DEEP SEA FISH AND MEN BE WISE—KEEP PREPARED THE SOCIALIST VOTE AMERICA'S BIG FIVE

Scientists study fishes that live a mile below the ocean surface. Bring them to the top, removing the water pressure, they burst and die.

Human beings live at the bottom of an atmospheric ocean, 500 miles deep. If you took us to the top we probably should burst, and we should die surely. Man cannot live even ten miles up, to say nothing of 500 miles.

We pity the poor, submerged deep sea fish, leading such dull lives. They would pity the submerged poor among human beings.

Science says all of earth's life was once in the ocean. Some animals climbed on the land, developed lungs in place of the fish's bladder, ears in place of gills. Men were included in that migration to land. Other animals, even more ambitious, learned to fly—the birds.

Among human beings a few, birdlike, fly above the level of necessity to the realms of wealth. Once they get there, they, like the birds, are safe. But, like the birds, they don't do much thinking, they don't have to think.

Mr. Brown, known the world over as the recalcitrant stormy petrel of thought, quarrels with President Coolidge because the President speaks of good will between nations, then asks for fifteen cruisers.

That's not inconsistent. The other nations know that we can get the fifteen cruisers, and fifty if we want them. And that creates the "good will."

Brown asks, "Is a man who goes out into the world armed only with faith more timid than he who carries weapons?" Of course he is. Look at the rabbit. He carries no weapon, and is more timid than the lion or wolf that has a mouthful of weapons.

You can't be truly courageous unless you are wise. And if you are wise, you keep prepared.

Socialists of the country discover with grief and surprise that their Presidential candidate, Norman Thomas, polled only 300,000 votes, against more than 15,000,000 for Governor Smith and 22,000,000 for Herbert Hoover.

Debs, in 1912, got nearly 900,000 votes.

However, Socialists need not be downcast. Their candidate had a hard time, running against prosperity, 7,000,000 Coolidge popularity, the "wet-dry" issue, etc. When people are as busy as that, they haven't time to think about Socialism.

Will Rogers selects an "All-American Team" of ability, as follows:

Thomas A. Edison, Henry Ford, Herbert Hoover, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Lindbergh.

He probably leaves out the ablest man in the country, as yet unknown. That's fortunate, for it means we have reserves.

Rogers would have these five men run the country, "move Thanksgiving Day up to election and do away with elections entirely."

The plan would work, of course. The original John D. Rockefeller could have done the job alone when he was younger. He would have known how to select the men.

But the people must plan to govern themselves as babies learn to walk, no matter how badly they do it at first. If you always hired a man to push your baby around in a wagon, the baby wouldn't develop

CROCKETT TO AID FIGHT ON NEW COUNTY

Local Representatives Attend Meet At Ft. Stockton Wed.

DRAW UP PETITION

To Ask Property Owners To Sign Protest To Legislature

Crockett County citizens, including those living in the affected area, will join forces with Pecos and Terrell Counties in fighting a rumored movement to create a new county out of parts of Pecos, Crockett and Terrell Counties with the new oil town of Iraan as county seat.

This was the attitude of a group of citizens of this county manifested in a mass meeting held at the Livestock Exchange building Tuesday evening of this week.

The mass meeting was called by the Lions Club following the reading of a communication before that body at its meeting Monday noon from President Frank S. Vaughn of the Fort Stockton Chamber of Commerce, calling attention to the movement for creation of the new county and to some of the disadvantages to the counties affected and to landowners in the area of the proposed new county.

After an expression of overwhelming sentiment in opposition to the proposal voiced by the assembly, T. A. Kincaid, chairman of the meeting, called officials of the Fort Stockton Chamber of Commerce over long distance telephone and was informed that a meeting of the Fort Stockton Chamber's committee was planned for 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. At Mr. Kincaid's request, the meeting was postponed until afternoon and a delegation of local citizens left here Wednesday morning to attend this session. Among those who signified their intention to attend this meeting were Mr. Kincaid, Chas. Coates, Pon Seahorn, Ira Carson, A. C. Hoover and others. Representatives were expected to be on hand also from Terrell County and it was the hope of local leaders of the fight that some plan of action would be worked out at this inter-county conference.

Several landowners in the area which it is proposed to include within the boundaries of the new county were present at the Tuesday night meeting here and expressed themselves as strictly opposed to the movement. Created on the strength of oil development in the section, an enterprise which history has shown to be short lived in a given district, the new county would find itself in poor circumstances after a few years when the oil play ceased, it was pointed out. Taxes would necessarily be high in the new county, also it was pointed out, since the whole system of county government, public buildings and other improvements would have to be supplied. For these reasons, it was the opinion of those present at the mass meeting here that every property owner in the area would be opposed to the movement, especially the landowners, who form the backbone of the country.

Besides appointing committees to attend the Fort Stockton meeting Wednesday, the meeting instructed N. W. Graham to prepare a number of petitions to the State Legislature voicing opposition to the proposed creation of the new county. These petitions will be circulated among property owners in the area affected and also among property owners in the three counties affected.

Among those reported suffering from the flu this week are Mr. and Mrs. Bascomb Cox, Greene Cooke, Lillian and Posey Baggett, Mrs. W. H. Augustine, Walter Augustine, Hugh Childress, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Worth Odom, Judge Chas. E. Davidson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Elledge, R. J. Cooke and children.

Crockett County Band Reorganized

John Thornhill Is New Director, Practice Friday Night

The Crockett County Band, organized last year under the direction of Jack Nance and which later disbanded, has been reorganized and will be directed by John Thornhill, recently of Coleman, who is also director of the Parent-Teachers Association school band.

Mr. Thornhill has had considerable experience as a band director and music teacher and has been highly recommended to officials of the local musical organization. He was here Wednesday completing arrangements for renting the home of Mrs. Leta Hawkins and left Wednesday afternoon for Coleman to bring his wife and two children here.

The first practice under Mr. Thornhill's direction will be held by the Crockett County Band Friday night of this week. Approximately twelve men out of the old organization are expected to be out for the first practice and several new members are in prospect. An effort is to be made to form an orchestra from this group to form a separate musical organization.

Many Cases Flu Reported Here

Disease In Mild Form But Epidemic Spreads Through Town

What is believed to be the peak of the "flu" epidemic, which has been sweeping the country for several weeks, has been reached in Ozona, with about 90 per cent of the citizenship down with the malady, just recovering from it or suffering from a borderline case.

The disease here is of about the same intensity as that reported from other sections of the country; considerably milder than in former outbreaks, but sufficiently severe to confine its victims to their beds for a few days.

Severe colds, some of them bordering on the "flu" are numerous, the uncertain weather and the flu epidemic being blamed for the widespread illness in this section. No deaths have resulted from the disease here, however, and no serious cases have been reported.

DOCK FRIEND ACCIDENTALLY KILLS BOY, 15

R. W. Drago Victim Of Hunting Tragedy At Close Of Season

SHOT NEAR MARFA

Jim Brownriggs Of Ozona Standing Beside Boy

Another case of mistaken identity on the hunt, claimed its victim last Saturday morning when Raleigh Drago, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Drago of near Marfa, died shortly after being shot through the abdomen with a 30-30 rifle in the hands of Dock Friend, Sutton County ranchman and formerly of Ozona.

Thinking the boy was a deer, Mr. Friend fired, the bullet passing through the boy's abdomen. He lived three and a half hours, dying however, before an Army surgeon sent from Marfa could reach him. The body was shipped to Brady where funeral services were held Tuesday morning.

The dead boy's father was foreman on the Sim Weatherby ranch about 45 miles southwest of Marfa and the lad was spending a part of the Christmas holidays on the ranch with his father. Mr. Friend and Jim Brownriggs of Ozona were on a hunt in that section and the boy, having failed to get a deer in several previous hunts, asked to be allowed to join them.

Mr. Brownriggs and the boy were trailing a buck they had sighted in a canyon and Mr. Friend was on the rim of the canyon on the opposite side, 200 or 300 yards distant in an air line. Mr. Brownriggs said that he was standing beside the boy in less than two feet of him, both of them with their attention focused on the movements of the buck, when he heard Friend's gun crack and young Drago fell.

"I'm shot," Mr. Brownriggs quoted the boy as saying as he fell.

While Mr. Brownriggs stayed with the boy, Mr. Friend went to the John Young ranch house five or six miles distant to summon aid, and an Army surgeon was sent from Marfa. The boy was dying, however, when the party returned from the Young ranch house.

Surviving besides the parents are two brothers, Allen C. Drago of Christoval, and Ira Drago of Sanderston, one sister, Louise Drago, and an uncle, John Drago

Ozona Beauty Shop Is Sold

Miss Joey Jolly, Experienced Operator To Be In Charge

Miss Joey Jolly, sister of J. W. Jolly of San Angelo, owner of the Margarette Shoppe of that city and of the Bluebonnet Style Shoppe of Ozona, will be in charge of the Bluebonnet Beauty Shop in the Hotel Ozona following sale of the shop this week by Miss Rachel Schraeder.

The beauty shop and style shop will be operated in the future under the name of the Ozona Specialty Shoppe, it was announced. Mrs. L. J. Kittle will remain in charge of the ladies ready-to-wear department.

Miss Jolly is an experienced operator, having been in charge of one of the largest beauty shops in Oklahoma City for several years.

Hide Of Huge Snake 22 Ft. Long, 30 In. Around On Display

The snakiest snake story that has gone the rounds here in some time is told in a display this week in the window of the Joe Oberkampff store.

The display consists of a snake hide (and it's a real snake hide) 22 feet long and 30 inches wide. A sign beside the hide reads "Snake Stories" and "Captured in the wilds along the Pecos River."

Whether this monster, about the size of a telephone pole, was captured in the "wilds of the Pecos River" or in the jungles of South America or Africa, all who have viewed the specimen agree that he was SOME snake.

Geo. Harrell and Bright Baggett went to San Antonio on a business trip the first of the week.

Augustine Rounds Up 7 Negroes As Last Official Act

W. H. Augustine rounded out eight years of service as sheriff of Crockett County the past week-end when he rounded up seven negroes on various charges, including drunkenness, gambling and disturbing the peace.

The negroes appeared before Justice of the Peace W. M. Johnson Monday morning and entered pleas of guilty and paid their fines

WATCHMAN IS ASSURED SAY LION WORKERS

More Than $100 Subscribed By Business Men

COUNTY WILL HELP

Sheriff Willis Will Be Asked To Name Watchman Deputy

A nightwatchman to make the rounds of the business section of Ozona to guard against theft and fire is practically assured, according to the report of the committee headed by Chris Meinecke as chairman made to the Lions Club at its meeting Monday.

Mr. Meinecke reported that he had made a fairly complete canvass of the business men of the town and found them almost unanimously in favor of a watchman. Mr. Meinecke also circulated a subscription list among the business firms and around $100 a month was pledged toward paying the salary of a watchman. This amount was secured from only a part of the business firms of the town and Mr. Meinecke declared that he felt reasonably certain that a sufficient amount could be secured to assure the employment of a watchman.

In view of the fact that a watchman will be required to guard the county's property within the limits of the city as well as other property, the county Commissioners Court will be asked to help pay the watchman's salary.

Appointment of a nightwatchman is to be left in the hands of Sheriff W. S. Willis, it was decided by the Club, and business firms represented at the meeting. This course is to be pursued with a view to securing closer co-operation of the watchman with the sheriff's department. Mr. Willis will be asked to appoint the watchman and to supervise his work. The watchman, of course, will be deputized by the sheriff.

Another matter of business which came before the club Monday was a communication from the president of the Fort Stockton Chamber of Commerce asking that this county join forces with Pecos County in fighting a proposed movement to create a new county out of Pecos, Crockett and Terrell Counties. Since the Lions Club is the most representative organization in the county, it was decided to issue a call through the organization for a mass meeting at the Stock Exchange Tuesday night to consider the matter.

The entertainment features of the Monday program consisted of an exhibition of some "Lion Talent." President Fulmer penalized himself for not appointing a program committee by giving a reading and telling a few humorous stories. Ira Carson entertained the club by special request with his "Cobbler's song."

New Sheriff And Clerk In Office

Willis And Russell Are Sworn In With The New Year

Two new county officials took office in Crockett County Tuesday morning, January 1.

W. S. Willis was sworn in as sheriff succeeding W. H. Augustine who unbuckled his gun after eight years in the office. George Russell took the oath of office as county and district clerk to succeed E. B. Baggett, Jr., who had held the office one term. All other county officers took the oath of office at the beginning of the new term.

Ad Harvick was appointed deputy sheriff under Sheriff Willis and was sworn in. Mr. Willis' other choice for deputy was out of town Wednesday and had not taken the oath of office and his name was withheld.

Leaders are ordinary persons with extraordinary determination. Herbert Kaufman.

There are two new inventions, that present an interesting contrast.

One is a poisonous gas, cacodyl isocyanide, so deadly that armies may be destroyed in an hour by its lethal fumes.

The second is a metal, beryllium, with the tensile strength of steel and half the weight of aluminum. It is so hard that a sharp file cannot scratch it.

Beryllium may revolutionize the automobile and other industries. A man could pick up a 400-horse power motor made of beryllium and walk away with it.

Cacodyl isocyanide has been much more discussed than beryllium. There has probably been twice as much publicity given to the deadly gas as to the new metal.

Which means more to the world? One was invented for war, one invented for peace.

It shouldn't take you long to decide for yourself which one will mean the most to mankind in the generations to come.

Newspapers recently quoted a state senator from the western part of the state to the effect that he would introduce a bill at the coming session of the legislature reducing the bag limit on deer in this state from two bucks to one.

It is our sincere hope that this bill is not only introduced but is passed at this session of the legislature. If it were possible, the best thing that could be done would be to pick out certain hunters and pass a law forbidding them to ever kill another deer. But, of course, this could not be and the only thing left to be done is to cut down on the limit and maybe at least reduce their wasteful slaughter of game.

We have always been of the opinion that the bag limit on deer should be one buck a season. Very few families care enough about deer meat to have it every day throughout the winter, and two big bucks would almost feed the average family of today that long. Of course, the meat is usually parceled out among friends, but even then there is a large amount of waste.

But the principal lure of hunting is the sport rather than the meat. Every hunter is entitled to the bag limit and if everybody went hunting and the bag limit is two bucks a season and everybody got his bag limit, the country would be just about cleaned of deer. As a matter of fact, some of the more popular hunting sections were just about cleaned during the past season. The purpose of the game laws is to protect the game for the benefit of the real sportsmen and the fellow who goes hunting and takes along a cook, camp-boy and a few others who couldn't fire a gun and then kills enough deer to make the bag limit for every member of the party is a game hog and should be curbed.

Landowners in this county, including those who own land in the area which a certain group propose to cut off into a new county, out of land from Crockett, Pecos and Terrell Counties, are opposed to the movement and every effort is going to be made at the coming session of the legislature to defeat such a proposal.

Townsite promoters have spoken freely, it is understood, their intention to lobby such a bill through the legislature, despite the expressed wishes of a number of property owners in the area. The proposed new county would take in virtually all of the Yates oil field in Pecos and Crockett Counties and its county seat would be a new oil town. The history of oil fields in Texas shows them to be short lived. Although such a county might have sufficient valuations at present to support a county government, it is a good bet that in five or ten years from now, landowners in the area would have a big courthouse, jail, school and other public buildings to pay for, while the oil interests would be far afield seeking new worlds to conquer and the flowing gold would no longer pour from the earth's bowels to help pay for public improvements and the salaries of office seekers.

That scar on Sheriff Willis' face is not a souvenir from a duel. Didn't he take an oath when he was sworn in as sheriff of this county Tuesday that he had "never fought a duel nor acted as a second in a duel in this state or in any other state." That is, among others, one of the moss-covered oaths that is required of public officials in this state of ours under the antiquated constitution under which the government operates. The day of hoop skirts and bustles, side whiskers and silk knee breeches is past and the day of Texas' constitution is gone with the hoop skirt. More power to the backers of a proposed new constitution for Texas.

Time is still slipping by. Here three days of the new year are gone and Crockett County still rests on her elbows and jingles her money while her neighbors, progressive, far-seeing counties, pitch their money into the pot and order a big consignment of public improvements, including good roads and good schools.

The proposal to bridge Johnson's Draw seems to have been postponed to death in the Commissioners Court. It does seem that a $6,000 improvement that is as badly needed as that one could be financed in some manner by the richest per capita county in the state.

The utilities of a city are combined in your car

Your automobile is something like a miniature city. There is an electric light and power system, a water system, a fuel system.

In the new Ford, you will find each of these systems of the latest design and best materials. Every part has been made to serve you faithfully and well at a minimum of trouble and expense.

Take, for example, the generator—one of the most important parts of the electrical system which supplies the current for lighting and engine ignition.

In the new Ford, the generator is of the power-house type and is distinctive in many features. It has been specially designed to prevent most forms of trouble. Oiling is necessary only once a year. About the only thing you need do is to have the charging rate changed as the seasons change.

Closely allied to the electrical system is the ignition system. It, too, is of new mechanical design in the new Ford. There is but one high tension cable and that connects the coil with the distributor. Even cables from the distributor to the spark plugs have been eliminated. Special care has also been taken to make the distributor water-proof, thus preventing short circuits from rain, etc.

The entire electrical and ignition systems of the new Ford are so simple in design and so carefully made that they will give you surprisingly little trouble. Yet that doesn't mean they should be neglected. Certain little attentions are needed from time to time.

The storage battery should be given water and the connections kept clean. The generator charging rate should be changed as indicated. Spark plugs should be cleaned at regular intervals. Distributor points should also be kept clean and the distributor cam given a light film of vaseline every 2,000 miles.

These are just little things, but they mean a great deal to your car. You can have them looked after at very small cost by the Ford dealer when you take the car in for oiling and greasing.

A thorough checking-up at regular intervals will lengthen the life of your car and give you many thousands of miles of carefree, economical motoring.

SECOND INSTALLMENT

SYNOPSIS

Buck Duane, quick on the draw, kills Cal Bain in self-defense and to escape becomes an outlaw. He meets Luke Stevens, another outlaw, and they become friends. Later Luke is shot.

"Feller's name was Brown. Me an' him fell out over a hoss I stole from him over in Huntsville. We had a shootin' scrape then. Wal, as I was straddlin' my hoss back there in Mercer I seen this Brown an' seen him before he seen me.

"Could have killed him, too. But I wasn't breakin' my word to you. I kind of hoped he wouldn't spot me. But he did—an' fust shot he got me here. What do you think of this hole?"

"It's pretty bad," replied Duane and he could not look the cheerful outlaw in the eyes.

"I reckon it is. Wal, I've had some bad wounds I lived over. Guess mebbe I can stand this one. Now, Buck, get me some place in the brakes—leave me some grub an' water at my hand—an' clear out."

"Leave you here alone?" asked Duane sharply.

"Shore. You see, I can't keep up with you. Brown an' his friends will foller us across the river a ways. You've got to think of number one in this game."

"What would you do in my case?" asked Duane curiously.

"Wal, I reckon I'd clear out an' save my hide," replied Stevens.

Duane felt inclined to doubt the outlaw's assertion. For his own part he decided his conduct without further speech.

First, he watered the horses, filled canteens and water-bag, and then tied the pack upon his own horse. That done, he lifted Stevens upon his horse, and holding him in the saddle, turned into the brakes, being careful to pick out hard or grassy ground that left little signs of tracks.

All that night Duane, gloomy and thoughtful, attentive to the wounded man, walked the trail and never halted till daybreak. He was tired then, and very hungry. Stevens seemed in bad shape, though he was still spirited and cheerful. Duane made camp. The outlaw refused food, but asked for both whiskey and water. Then he stretched out.

"Buck, will you take off my boots?" he asked with a smile on his pallid face.

Duane removed them, wondering if the outlaw had the thought that he did not want to die with his boots on.

"Pard, you—stuck—to me!" the outlaw whispered.

Duane caught a hint of gladness in the voice—he traced a faint surprise in the haggard face. Stevens seemed like a little child.

To Duane the moment was sad, elemental, big with a burden of mystery he could not understand.

Duane buried him in a shallow arroyo and heaped up a pile of stones to mark the grave. That done he saddled his comrade's horse, hung the weapons over the pommel, and mounting his own steed, he rode down the trail in the gathering twilight.

Presently the trail widened into a road, and that into a kind of square lined with a number of adobe and log buildings of rudest structure. Within sight were horses, dogs, a couple of steers, Mexican women with children, and white men, all of whom appeared to be doing nothing.

His advent created no interest until he rode up to the white men, who were lolling in the shade of a house. This place evidently was a store and saloon, and from the inside came a lazy hum of voices.

As Duane reined to a halt one of the loungers in the shade rose with a loud exclamation.

"Bust me if that ain't Luke's hoss!"

The others accorded their interest if not their assent, by rising to advance toward Duane.

"How about it, Euchre? Ain't that Luke's bay?" queried the first man.

"Plain as your nose," replied the fellow called Euchre.

"There ain't no doubt about that then," laughed another, "fer Bosomer's nose is shore plain on the landscape."

These men lined up before Duane, and as he coolly regarded them he thought they could have been recognized anywhere as desperadoes.

The man called Bosomer, who struck out in advance of the others, was a hardlooking customer, with yellow eyes and an enormous nose. He had sandy hair and a skin the color of dust.

"Stranger, who are you, an' where did you git that bay hoss?" he demanded.

His yellow eyes took in Stevens horse, then the weapons hung on the saddle, and finally turned their glinting hard light upward toward Duane.

"Stranger, who are you?" asked another man, somewhat more civilly. "My name's Duane," replied Duane curtly.

"An' how'd you come by the hoss?"

Duane answered briefly, and his words were followed by a short silence, during which the men looked at him. Bosomer began to twist his bearded lips.

"Reckon he's dead all right, or nobody'd hev his hoss an' guns," said Euchre.

"Mr. Duane," began Bosomer, in low stinging tones, "I happen to be Luke Stevens's side pardner."

Duane looked him over, from dusty, worn-out boots to his slouchy sombrero.

"An' I want the hoss an' guns," he shouted.

"You or anybody else can have them for all I care. I just fetched them in. But the pack is mine," replied Duane. "And say—I be-friended your pard. If you can't use a civil tongue you'd better cinch it."

"Civil? Haw! Haw!" rejoined the outlaw. "I don't know you. How do we know you didn't plug Stevens, an' stole his hoss, an' jest happened to stumble down here?"

"You'll have to take my word, that's all," replied Duane, sharply.

"Stranger, Bosomer is shore hot-headed," said the man Euchre. He did not appear unfriendly, nor were the others hostile.

At this juncture several more outlaws crowded out of the door, and the one in the lead was a tall man of stalwart physique. His manner proclaimed him a leader.

He had a long face, a flaming red beard, and clear cold blue eyes that fixed in close scrutiny upon Duane. He was not a Texan; in

Don't Believe Her

Dear Miss Vera,
I love a young man very much, and in every way I think he is very nice. He has always been fair and nice to me, but my girl friend does not like him and tells me of an affair she once had with him and that he skips from girl to girl. I asked him about his affair with her and he got very angry and said he had never known her very well at all. I am all upset about this and wish you would tell me, dear Vera, just what to do about it.

DARLING.

Dear Darling, do not believe her. No matter what she says about him. Judge him rather from your experiences with him.

Just think—suppose that they did have some sort of affair; it is past; and he certainly showed himself much nobler than she by refusing to talk about it while she brought it up in order to try to break up your friendship with this young man, which seems to be a very beautiful one.

Don't believe her—most likely she has added a good deal of imagining to whatever may have been the facts. Girls sometimes do that, you know.

As to his skipping from girl to girl, there is no reason why a young man should devote himself to one until he has found the one he really cares for.

Perhaps you are that one for him—at any rate, I sincerely hope so, and I hope gossip won't break everything up for you.

Just Explain To Her

Dear Miss Vera:
I am very much in love with a young girl and see her very often.

But lately whenever I see her she is with her girl friend and whenever I take her out her girl friend comes along. I do want to be alone with her and don't know what to do about this, as I am too shy to say just what I feel about it. I do not dislike her girl friend but I would rather see just the girl I love.

"Students Night" Is Observed At Baptist Church With Program

The college spirit was present at the Ozona Baptist Church at the evening services last Sunday when the annual "Students Night" was observed by the local church. Similar services were held in most of the Baptist churches throughout the South.

The "Students Night" service was primarily in honor of college students who were at home for the Christmas holidays, all students regardless of denomination being invited.

All students home for the holidays from college were introduced by the pastor, Rev. M. M. Fulmer. Among those present were Cal Word, Jr., A & M College, Miss Mildred North, Simmons University, and Miss Gussie Watson, Baylor College.

After the returning students had been introduced, all those who had been in college in the last five years were introduced. In this group those responding were Miss Mattie D. Word, Simmons University, Miss Rose Burton, Simmons University, and Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Littleton, Simmons University. All other college students of all time were then introduced, and among those responding in this group were Mrs. L. L. Bewley, T. C. U., M. T. Blackwell, University of New Mexico, E. B. Lumpkin, A & M College, Mrs. Ira Carson, Baylor University, Mrs. M. M. Fulmer, Baylor University, and M. M. Fulmer, Union University of Tennessee.

The program for the evening was in the hands of the returned students. Miss Mildred North spoke on "The Strongest Character I've Met at College and How the Acquaintance Has Affected Me." Cal Word, Jr., spoke on the "Work of the Baptist College Students Union," and Miss Mattie D. Word spoke on "Some Home Ties that Help." Rev. Fulmer closed the services with a brief sermon on "The Place and Value of an Education."

This service will be made an annual affair in the local church in the future, the pastor said.

So sleek her skin, so faultless was her make. Ev'n Juno did unwilling pleasure take To see so fair a rival.

—Dryden.

Cleansing, as you have probably suspected by my last few talks, isn't the simple thing you might judge it to be. In fact, it is so important that neglect of this one process is enough to cause half a dozen serious complexion defects. Blackheads, whiteheads, excessive oiliness and even pimples and blemishes of Acne may be directly traced in numerous cases to improper, half-effective cleansing methods.

Last week I told you about the importance of washing. Today I am going to talk about the virtues of Cleansing Cream, for it is by a clever combination of these two agents that hygienic cleanliness may be accomplished.

Not even an every day morning and night wash will thoroughly cleanse your skin. You see, skin structure is layer on layer of thin delicate tissues, and through them run pores, each one of which is the opening of a tiny feeding oil gland. These pores must be kept free of dust and powder accumulations, or they cannot function. And pores that have gone "on strike" cause half the skin troubles of the feminine world. If you think soap and water sufficiently cleansing, try this experiment. Wash as thoroughly as you like. Then spread a film of a pasteurized cream all over your face. Let it stay on for four or five minutes, and then wipe it off. Look at your cloth! You need no further proof of the inadequacy of soap and water.

Choose a light, delicate cleansing and massage cream if your skin is sensitive. If it is oily or inclined to blackheads, use a pasteurized cream, as through a special process it is prepared to normalize these conditions. But be regular in your cleansing if you would have a beautiful skin. Never allow make-up to remain on overnight. And, as an extra precaution, tuck a jar of the pasteurized cream in your office desk or in the kitchen drawer, and treat your face to a beautifying cleansing during the day.

These are simple, common-sense rules which every woman—whether she be sixteen or sixty—will be wise to heed, for strange enough, as simple as they are, they are not so widely known as they should be.

Almost any day is a good day to start this scientific care of the complexion—whether it's to preserve the good looks you already possess or to set about in a sane, sensible way to reclaim those you have lost.

PRAIRIE DOG NOTICE!

The Commissioners Court is again giving notice that Prairie Dogs in Crockett County must be exterminated. The County has on hand quite a quantity of strychnine purchased at wholesale prices and will turn it over to the taxpayers at cost to county. The county clerk has charge of it.

This notice is not meant to require operations at once, but merely as notice to all parties that the court will insist that every prairie dog in Crockett County be killed during the next six months.

The Last of the Duanes truth Duane did not recognize one of these outlaws as native to his State.

"I'm Bland," said the tall man authoritatively. "Who're you and what're you doin' here!"

Duane looked at Bland as he had at the others. This outlaw chief appeared to be reasonable if not courteous. Duane told his story in more detail.

"I believe you," replied Bland at once. "Think I know when a fellow's lying."

I reckon you're on the right trail," put in Euchre. "That about Luke wantin' his boots took off—that satisfies me. Luke had a mortal dread of dyin' with his boots on."

At this sally the chief and his men laughed.

"You said Duane—Buck Duane!" queried Bland. "Are you a son of that Duane who was a gun-fighter some years back?"

"Yes," replied Duane. "Never met him, and glad I did not," said Bland with a grim humor.

Bosomer appeared at the door, pushing men who tried to detain him, and as he jumped clear of a last reaching hand he uttered a snarl like an angry dog.

Manifestly the short while he had spent inside the saloon had been devoted to drinking and talking himself into a frenzy. Bland and the other outlaws quickly moved aside, letting Duane alone. When Bosomer saw Duane standing motionless and watchful, a strange change passed quickly in him. He halted in his tracks, and as he did that the men who had followed him out piled over each other in their hurry to get to one side.

Duane saw all the swift action, felt intuitively the meaning in it, and in Bosomer's sudden change of front. The outlaw was keen, and he had expected a shrinking or at least a frightened antagonist.

But Duane did not speak a word. He had remained motionless for a long moment, his eyes pale and steady, his right hand like a claw.

That instant gave birth in Duane a power to read in his enemy's eyes the thought that preceded action. But he did not want to kill another man; he did not intend to. When Bosomer's hand moved Duane's gun was spouting fire, and Bosomer fell with his right arm shattered. He would never be able to draw a gun again.

When Duane went out with Euchre the sun was setting behind a blue range of mountains across the river in Mexico. The valley appeared to open to the southwest.

"The only feller who's goin' to put a close eye on you is Benson," said Euchre. "He runs the place and sells drinks. The gang calls him Jackrabbit Benson because he's always got his eye peeled an' his ear cocked. Don't notice him if he looks you over, Buck."

"Benson is scared to death of every newcomer who rustles into Bland's camp. An' the reason, I take it, is because he's done somebody dirt. He's hidin'. Not from a sheriff or ranger! Men who hide from them don't act like Jackrabbit Benson.

"He's hidin' from some guy who is huntin' hi mto kill him. Wal, I'm always expectin' to see some feller ride in here an' throw a gun on Benson. Can't say I'd be grieved."

"What have you against him?" inquired Duane, as he sat down beside Euchre.

"Wal, mebbe I'm cross grained," replied Euchre apologetically. "Shore an outlaw an' rustler such as me can't be touchy. But I never stole nothin' but cattle from some rancher who never missed 'em anyway. That sneak Benson—he was the means of puttin' a little girl in Bland's way."

"Girl?" queried Duane, now with real attention.

"Shore. Bland's great on women. I'll tell you about this girl when we get out of here. Some of the gang are goin' to be sociable, an' I can't talk about the chief."

During the ensuing half hour a number of outlaws passed by Buck and Euchre, halted for a greeting, or sat down for a moment. They were all gruff, loud-voiced, merry, and good-natured. Duane replied civilly and agreeably when he was personally addressed, but he refused all invitations to drink and gamble.

Evidently he had been accepted in a way, as one of their clan. No one made any hint of an allusion to his affair with Bosomer. Duane saw readily that Euchre was well liked. One outlaw borrowed money from him; another asked for tobacco.

Next morning Duane found that a moody and despondent spell had settled on him. Wishing to be alone, he went out and walked a trail leading around the river bluff. He thought and thought.

When he returned to the shack Euchre was cooking dinner.

"Say, Buck I've news for you," he said, and his tone conveyed either pride in his possession of such news, or pride in Duane.

"Feller name'd Bradley rode in this mornin'. He'd heard some about you."

"Told about the ace of spade they put over the bullet holes in that cow-puncher Bain you plugged. Then there was a rancher shot at a water-hole twenty miles south of Wellston. Reckon you didn't do it?"

"No, I certainly did not," replied Duane.

"Wal, you get the blame. It ain't nothin' fer a feller to be saddled with gun-play he never made. An' Buck, if you ever get famous, as seems likely, you'll be blamed for many crimes. The border'll make outlaw an' murder out of you. . . Wal, that's enough of that. I've more news. You're goin' to be popular."

"Popular? What do you mean?" "I met Bland's wife this mornin' She seen you the other day when you rode in. She shore wants to meet you an' so do some of the other women in camp. They always want to meet the new fellers who have just come in. It's lonesome for women here an' they like to hear news from the towns."

"Well, Euchre, I don't want to be impolite, but I'd rather not meet any women," rejoined Duane.

"I was afraid you wouldn't. Do not blame you much. I was hopin', though, you might talk a little to that poor lonesome kid."

"What kid?" inquired Duane, in surprise.

"Didn't I tell you about Jennie—the girl Bland's holdin' here—the one Jackrabbit Benson had a hand in stealin'?"

"You mentioned a girl. That's all. Tell me now," replied Duane abruptly.

Dr. Frank Crane Says

This newspaper will for some weeks continue to publish the work of the late Dr. Frank Crane. Dr. Crane recently passed away at Nice, France. Before leaving for Europe he had prepared a number of articles in advance.

ATTRACTIONS OF THE OLD

Laying aside all sex appeal and things of that sort many people believe that old persons are more interesting than young ones.

There comes a time in a man's life when a woman of forty is more interesting than one of eighteen. Beside the mature woman a girl is rather crude.

People who go to Europe love to poke around among the antiquities. There is a sort of sentimental interest in anything that is old. Many people despise America because it is too new.

There is no doubt that the old has a certain sentimental value. H. G. Wells says that when every house is heated by electricity millionaires will have smoke coming out of their chimneys to give the appearance of antiquity—artificial smoke.

At Hampton Court in England is a grapevine which brings the government more than six thousand dollars a year.

Only a little of the money is derived from the grapes it bears. Most of it comes from admission paid to see the vine because it is almost 160 years old.

There is only one thing that interests more than the new.

It is the old.

Anything that endures—whether it be a bit of canvas, a scrap of ancient oriental tapestry, an Etruscan wine jar, a bit of Mayan inscription on a volcanic rock from the forests of Guatemala, a printed page, or a lofty sequoia redwood—interests and fascinates man.

The fact that it has existed from the time his unknown ancestors lived, and will continue to resist the ravages of time long after he is dead, has something to do with his interest.

Mortal man looking at something which contains a touch of immortality is awed and fascinated.

Can't Be Hurt

A German of Wurttemberg is known as the man without any feeling. With a nail through his tongue, and long pins through his eyelid, his neck and his jaw, he remains uninjured—not even drawing blood. Not even a scar is left from the many exhibitions he has given.

Misses Josephine Longley and Leila Beth Jones left Wednesday for San Marcos to re-enter the Baptist Academy.

The "Big Three"

E. H. "Snapper" Garrison, plating judge, Frank J. Bruen, general manager, and John I. Day, vice president and presiding steward, of the Miami, Fla., Jockey Club, whose tireless efforts are largely responsible for the return of horse racing to Miami after the ban of a year ago.

Diet Fakers

The American charlatan possesses the unique ability to make money out of everything he touches because there are suckers, and will always be, I suppose. The favorite game, now, seems to be that of the diet faker; a great many suckers inhabit the dietary pool, and pay handsome prices, hence the bombastic gentleman who blandly assures them that, "any and all of our ailments are caused by improper diet"—and can be cured by correction of the exciting cause; of course, he only knows how to do the correcting, at so much per week, strictly in advance.

So that, when a man or woman hasn't sense enough to know when he or she is eating too everlasting much, either or both will cheerfully pay out fifty dollars a week, for the privilege of being fed on skim-milk and lettuce leaves until the engorged digestive tract rests. The "miracle" is then broadcasted among other suckers who know no better than to stuff themselves with all the skin will endure without bursting—other "cures" are perfected—and the game goes merrily on.

When individuals are well—and wish to remain so, a well balanced diet is necessary—a little of each standard food. Don't feast on potatoes and bread alone because you are afraid of meat; don't load up on sugars and sweets to the neglect of less enticing foods; for heaven's sake, why be a "vegetarian"? Might as well be an "animal-cule" or a "cerealist" or any other sort of food faddist! I repeat: Take six or eight staple foods; assemble them into groups, the more force-building for breakfast, the next for noon meal—and the lightest for evening; and stay by "the lightest for evening;" and stay by "the well-balanced diet."

Babcock Tells About Blowflies

O. G. Babcock, Sutton County representative of the bureau of entomology, United States Department of Agriculture, has trapped flies in the Carlsbad Cave in New Mexico and on top of the Rockies in Colorado, and he brings the information that airplanes are being used in Louisiana for experimental purposes to trap flies in the air. Mr. Babcock thinks the black blowfly is the worst in Southwest Texas and that its favorite breeding ground is in carcasses of animals and birds. He says there is no possibility of eradicating the fly in the ranch country but that it can be reduced in numbers. One of the big problems, he believes, is the matter of baits, and he describes as good baits, snakes, rabbits, prepared egg mixtures and cull animals though it is hard to uniformity in beef slime preparations.

This matter of baits will be one of the problems studied in federal fly trapping district at Menard which is to be taken over and operated by federal men after January 1. These men will keep accurate data on costs, efficiency of various baits and best worm medicine mixtures to be employed to cut down losses.

Mr. Babcock says the ranchman could cut their losses from flies heavily if they would bury the dead carcasses of animals within three or four days after death. Babcock thinks not less than two fly traps to a section is most effective. In the matter of placing fly traps he believes in the hill country it is best to follow the streams and draws. Sunny location for traps in the winter is advised.

Babcock says most of the flies are found in the spring but that they drop off in June or July and get bad again in the fall if there is plenty of moisture. Babcock says attempts to carry flies through the winter in the Uvalde territory have failed.

It is his belief that the flies that appear in the spring have migrated from some other places. It is the opinion of some that the flies come from the screw worm that falls out of the livestock and lives through the winter in the worm form.—Del Rio Herald.
