CHAMPION BOY AND GIRL. FORD VS. ROCKEFELLER. WHAT MADE STANDARD OIL MAN'S STRANGE NATURE.

Part of the Livestock Show activities in Chicago included judging the healthiest boy and girl in the United States.

Thelma Svarstad, a South Dakota girl, who won the female championship, is seventeen years old, blonde, strong, weighs 122 pounds, is 5 feet 2 inches tall, drinks plenty of milk, no tea or coffee, and expects to be a teacher.

The boy champion is William Tobias, of Michigan, fifteen years old, who weighs 130 pounds, is 5 feet 6 inches tall, likes boxing, admires Jack Dempsey, also drinks lots of milk. Milk dealers, please notice this in your advertisements.

From a livestock—and many other—points of view, these are fine American children.

But somewhere in America there is a little baby shivering in its mother's arms, delicate, with a thin little body, a big head, wide anxious eyes, that some day will do things the healthiest boy and girl will never do.

Write that down for your comfort, if you have a child that isn't so robust.

Henry Ford's offhand statement, "No successful boy ever saved money," was not meant literally. He meant that it was better to spend for information than merely to save a few dollars. Thomas A. Edison, his intimate friend, "never had any money until he got so much that he couldn't spend it."

The other "world's richest man," John D. Rockefeller, is surely "a successful boy," and did save money. He advises young and old to save now, as he hands each one a ten-cent piece with a smile worth a good deal of money. Mr. Rockefeller will tell you, "Save money, not chiefly for the money you save, but because saving teaches self control, and that's the beginning of wisdom."

Ford has high respect for John D. Rockefeller. He said to this writer, "I never saw John D. Rockefeller but once. But when I saw that face I knew what made Standard Oil."

At Brunswick, Ga., Walter Rawlins, in prison, saw his wife, whose complaint had jailed him for wife-beating. He seized a carving knife, dashed from the prison, overtook his wife, stabbed her several times. His excuse is: "I loved my wife so that I would rather see her dead than with somebody else."

The fair Jessica Brown, a stage beauty, once married to Lord Northesk, yesterday married Mr. Cornelius. Lord Northesk, as her retired husband, came to America led by his ambition to be the fifth husband of Peggy Hopkins Joyce. And so it goes.

Cemetery Assn. To Elect New Officers

Election of officers for the coming year and plans for the year's work were the principal matters to come before the Ozona Cemetery Association at the regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Joe Oberkamp, chairman, Thursday afternoon.

The association is just launching the new year's work and with the annual dues of the membership now payable several projects that have been planned in recent months will be put in operation.

CHILD DIES AS CHARITY FORCE BRINGS NURSES

Help Reaches Lad Too Late; Another Is Near Death

PNEUMONIA CAUSE

Lions, Churches And County Lend Aid To Families

A race with death, with several local agencies of mercy combining their forces in the battle against the Reaper, was lost Tuesday afternoon when the 8-year-old son of Pink Carta died at the one-room home of the family across the draw shortly after 3 p. m.

The condition of the family, in almost destitute circumstances as a result of illness, was brought to the attention of the local churches by Dr. G. Miller, who has been attending the cases, and the matter was in turn brought before the Lions Club at noon Monday by Rev. J. H. Meredith.

These agencies, together with several individuals who were apprised of the situation, took food to this and other families in strained circumstances and hired two nurses to take care of the sick patients. The Carta boy died a few minutes before the first of the nurses to be brought here arrived. Funeral services were held Wednesday.

The 16-year-old son of Lindsey Maynard is critically ill with pneumonia, however, and the father and another child are also confined to their beds as a result of the disease, and the two nurses have been assigned to these cases. The Maynard boy was reported in a very critical condition Wednesday afternoon, doctors holding little hope for his recovery. Both lungs are affected with pneumonia, it was reported. The father and the other child are in a less serious condition. All have been moved from a one-room dwelling in which they lived to a room in a vacant house across the draw.

The Lions Club, the county and churches are aiding in furnishing the nurses and providing necessities such as food and drugs to the stricken family.

W. T. Chamber of Commerce Men Are Visitors Here

L. B. Campbell, field representative of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, was in Ozona Thursday renewing Ozona's membership in the sectional organization. He was accompanied by Charles P. Miller of the publicity department of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Through its representatives at Austin, the regional Chamber of Commerce has a full program planned, which the Texas Legislature will be asked to consider during the present session, according to Mr. Campbell.

Among the things that the organization will try to have passed by the state law makers, will be amendments to the present laws governing the use of water of Texas' streams, it was said. Homer D. Wade, manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, will devote a part of his time in Austin to the ber of land

Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Jarratt left Wednesday for San Angelo after a stay of more than two months in Ozona. Mr. Jarratt is salesman for the Security Building and Loan Association of San Angelo and secured a number of building and loan accounts here. He expects to be assigned to Fort Stockton for the next several weeks.

The Friday Bridge Club was entertained last week by Mrs. L. J. Kittle at the home of Mrs. S. E. Couch.

The Late Tex. Richard, His Wife and Child

Question Mark Breaks All Records

Here's the crew of the Question Mark. This army monoplane, flying about the California coast, under the command of Major Carl Spritz, has broken all previous records for sustained flight. It is fed with gas in mid-air by smaller planes. The airplane took off on the first of January.

Scouts To Observe Anniversary Week

Feb. 8 to 14 Set Aside For Observance Of 19th Birthday

Members of Ozona's Boy Scout Troops will join Scouts all over the nation in observing Scout Anniversary Week, February 8 to 14, commemorating the nineteenth anniversary of the founding of the Boy Scouts of America, it was announced at a meeting Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock of the local Boy Scout Committee.

M. H. McMasters, Scout Executive for the Ranch District, was present for this meeting and also for the regular Scout meeting Tuesday night and assisted in outlining plans for observing Anniversary Week. The exercises during the anniversary observance will be in charge of Harry B. Matthews, assistant Scoutmaster, and will include renewal of the Scout oath an all-day hike, a Court of Honor, mobilization and other exercises.

The Scout oath will be renewed simultaneously by all Scouts in America at 8:15 p. m. on Friday, February 8, possibly by radio hook-ups.

Saturday, February 9, will be Mobilization Day, and all Scouts in the city will be required to mobilize at some point in the town unknown to them at a given signal. The Scouts on this day will take an all-day hike to the historic Fort Lancaster as a part of the anniversary observance.

Sunday will be observed in all churches as Boy Scout Sunday, special sermons and exercises being observed in the churches.

Monday, February 11, six boys from the local troops will be chosen by Assistant Scoutmaster Matthews to present a program at the regular Lions Club luncheon at the Hotel Ozona and a Court of Honor will be held Monday night at the Methodist Church.

Those present at the committee meeting were A. W. Jones, chairman, P. T. Robison, W. R. Baggett, John L. Bishop, Scott Peters, M. H. McMasters and H. B. Matthews.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Piner are expected to return this week from a honeymoon trip. They were married last Thursday at the home of the bride's parents in Meridian, Texas. Mrs. Piner was formerly Miss Olene Carleton. They will make their home on Mr. Piner's ranch near here.

STATE SECY. OF R. M. A. INVITED TO MEET HERE

Local Merchants Seek Aid In Organizing Association

TO CALL MEETING

H. L. Levy of San Antonio Asked Here In Near Future

H. L. Levy of San Antonio, state secretary of the Retail Merchants Association of Texas, has been invited to come to Ozona at some date in the near future suiting his convenience to assist the merchants of Ozona to organize a local Retail Merchants Association to be affiliated with the state and national organization.

Decision to invite Mr. Levy and to postpone final organization of the local association until his visit was reached at the second meeting of a group of local merchants at the Hotel Ozona last Friday night. This decision was reached after information was brought by Richard Flowers from the secretary of the Retail Merchants Association of San Antonio that Mr. Levy's services might be secured in assisting local merchants to get their organization off to a good start.

The first meeting of local merchants with a view to forming a Retail Merchants Association was held Wednesday night of last week at the call of W. J. Grimmer of the Grimmer Motor Company. At this meeting Mr. Grimmer introduced E. B. Wilkinson of the Southern Equipment Company of San Antonio who gave an outline of the workings of the Retail Merchants Association and traced the success which has attended organization of such associations in towns in this section.

At this meeting eleven business men pledged membership in the organization and a number of others who were not present also declared themselves in favor of becoming members in interviews with a committee the following day. It was decided to meet Friday night to perfect organization and elect officers for the first year, but this was postponed when it was found that the state secretary of the organization might be induced to come here for a meeting in the near future.

Lee Wilson Gives Lions Vocal Treat

Club's Prima Donna In Vocal Pink; Program Peppy

Since Lions Club programs get better and better the last one must be the best one and Monday's meeting kept up the average.

With more than thirty present, including several visitors, the club enjoyed one of the peppiest programs of the year. One of the features of the day was a plaintive tenor baritone solo sung by Lee Wilson, the club's prima donna, who by the mere length of his interpretation grabbed off honors from Slat's Meinecke, vocal soloist of the previous week.

The club was further entertained with two vocal numbers by Mrs. Bryan McDonald, with Mrs. W. J. Grimmer at the piano.

Among the visitors were Ira Cain, insurance agent of San Angelo, Pat Jarratt of the Security Building and Loan Association of San Angelo, and Mr. Lightsey of Colorado, brother-in-law of President M. M. Fulmer.

Mr. Cain is a member of the San Angelo Lions Club and helped the local club to organize. At the conclusion of the regular program, Mr. Cain spoke briefly on the "boy problem" pointing to the importance of proper attention to the boy and his training.

Scout Patrols To Participate In A Series Of Contests

Plans for a series of contests between patrols of local Boy Scout troops to continue through the next several meetings were outlined at the regular troop meeting Tuesday night. The first contest in the series, the Tenderfoot spell down, was held Tuesday night and the Wildcats, patrol led by Miller Robison, was highest in points, winning the badges awarded by Assistant Scoutmaster H. B. Matthews. The next contest will be knot tying.

There were 21 present for the Tuesday night meeting, including A. W. Jones, chairman of the local Scout Committee, and M. H. McMasters, Executive for the Ranch District.

METHODIST NOTES

Perhaps all of us are more or less interested in the deadlock of Congress over the signing of the Peace Pact, known as the Kellogg Bill, and also the Cruiser Bill. These are just the outcome of the clash of public sentiment against war and the old age long fear that one nation has of another. These bills effect every home whether you recognize it or not. The question is: Shall our youth, now in irresponsible state, be caused, when they become men to go to war and such a war as the world has never known because the fathers and mothers of the nations failed in this day to make friends and neighbors?

Every institution has a definite responsibility and duty to the future to discharge. What is the duty of the church or, what can the church do to help bring an end to war?

Sunday morning the subject will be: "The International Christ." Text, John 4:4.

Subject for Sunday night will be: "Truth." Text, John 8:32.

Prayer meeting every Wednesday night followed by Choir practice.

The road from McCamey to the Yates oil fields in Pecos County including a bridge across the Pecos River, has been completed, according to a report presented to the Commissioners Court this week. The court ordered Crockett County's part of the expense of building the road, amounting to $1875 paid.

ASA ROBERTSON CHOSEN NIGHT WATCHMAN

Appointment Made Jan. 14 By Sheriff W. S. Willis

COUNTY PAYS PART

Commissioners Agree To Augment Subscription Of Merchants

Asa Robertson is now on duty each night in Ozona as nightwatchman.

Mr. Robertson was appointed to this position the first of the week by Sheriff W. S. Willis following an appropriation of $40 a month by the Commissioners Court augmenting a total of $110 a month subscribed by business men of Ozona toward paying the salary of a watchman.

The new nightwatchman took up his duties Tuesday night, making the rounds of the city for the first time under the new arrangement. Under the plan worked out by those sponsoring the watchman move, Mr. Robertson has received an appointment as deputy sheriff under Sheriff Willis and will work in co-operation with the Sheriff's Department.

The movement for appointment of a nightwatchman for Ozona was started in the Lions Club a few weeks ago by Chris Meinecke and as head of a committee by that club Mr. Meinecke followed the project through to a successful conclusion. Practically every business house in the city subscribed to the fund to be paid monthly toward the watchman's salary.

Mr. Meinecke appeared before the Commissioners Court Monday and assured that body that a total of $110 would be subscribed by local merchants and the court agreed to put up $40 to bring the total to $150 a month.

A small additional fund will be raised in the next few days for the purchase of a watchman's clock to be installed in the downtown section. Information in the hands of the committee is that a punch clock system can be installed here with the purchase of only one clock, a series of keys being placed in certain sections of the city and the clock being carried by the watchman and the hour of his rounds recorded on the clock. It is thought that one of these clocks can be purchased for between $35 and $50 and some means of raising this money will be devised by the committee.

LEMMONS OFF TO MARKET

Ben Lemmons, proprietor of the Lemmon Dry Goods Company here, left Wednesday on a buying tour of Texas and eastern market centers, buying new spring and summer merchandise for the local store. He will visit Dallas, St. Louis, Chicago and possibly New York market centers while away. On his rounds he will stop in one of the larger cities for medical attention. Mr. Lemmons expects to be gone several weeks.

SUNFLOWER CLUB

The night meeting of the Sunflower Club was entertained by Miss Hester Bunker and Mrs. Ralph Meinecke last Thursday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Bunker. Mrs. Arthur Phillips and Rice Lynn were awarded high score. Mrs. J. W. North and Oscar Graham, low, and Mrs. Rice Lynn and Eli Hagelstein the cut prizes. A delicious salad course was served.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Rice P. Lynn, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Austin, Mrs. J. W. North, Mrs. Hilary Phillips, Miss Tessie Kyle, Miss Louise Cones, Miss Mary Augustine, Miss Vivian Baggett, and Hugh Childress, Jr. Ele Hagelstein, Jack Hagelstein, Oscar Graham of Sterling City, Ralph Meinecke and Herbert Kittle.

THE OZONA STOCKMAN

Ozona, Texas, Thursday, January 17, 1929.

"The world wears a path to the door of the man who knows."
—Emerson.

A deplorable situation was discovered this week in Ozona when two families living across the draw one in a tent and the other in a small one-room house, with several members suffering from the flu. The churches, Lions Club and individuals joined in a relief move, furnishing provisions, coal, etc. and employing nurses to take care of the sick.

Relief came too late, however, for one of the families, a child suffering from pneumonia dying Tuesday afternoon, a few minutes before a nurse, brought from San Angelo, arrived. The other family was removed from the tent and placed in a vacant house across the draw. Two nurses have been employed to take care of these, the father and two children suffering from pneumonia. One of the children, a boy about 16 years of age, is reported at the point of death.

The organizations and individuals who responded so nobly to this call of humanity are to be commended. "They serve God well who serve his creatures."

Every member of every family in this community is interested in the news of the day. And no items are read with keener relish than announcements of new things to eat, to wear or to enjoy in the home.

Merchants of Ozona have the goods and the desire to sell them. The readers of The Ozona Stockman have the money and the desire to buy. The connecting link is ADVERTISING.

Give the people the good news of new things at advantageous prices. They look to you, Mr. Merchant, for this "store news" and will respond to your messages. "An advertisement is an invitation."

PRODIGAL FATHERS

There was a son and he had two parents. The father said, "son, I expect much of thee and am spending a great deal on thy education and clothes and paying the automobile bills. However, my son, I haven't time to give thee any personal companionship and ask that thou release me from paternal care and lordship and look to thy Mother for advice and companionship."

Straightway he took himself off to the ranch, subscribed for a number of magazines and trade journals, bought himself a radio, and busied himself with his sheep and cattle and goats. His hired men and Mexicans were his companions. On stated occasions he attended a lodge in town to which he had joined himself, where he consorted with men of like mind who sat around the room pretending to be solving the secrets of the universe in an atmosphere reeking with tobacco smoke, at the same time his son and daughter, who were not allowed to attend these meetings, were solving some of the secrets of a high life in his best automobile with some young folk of like minds and similar fathers. Being tired on Sunday morning he absented himself from church, (sending the children.) He slept late, read the Sunday edition of the daily newspaper, looked cross all morning, especially when the children happened to be about, growled a great deal at dinner. In fact, home had just become a place to eat, when he did not eat at an ill-smelling cafe, and to sleep occasionally.

One day he came to himself and saith, "Where am I, anyhow? I thought that I was the father and the head of this house, but here I am an outcast so far as respect and affections of my family are concerned. All the affections my children seem to have for me is my auto and bank account," and he would feign have filled his heart with the affections his son gave the bootlegger, and his belly from the crumbs that fell from the last debauching banquet for which he had to pay.

And he said unto himself, "I know what I shall do. I'll arise and declare my position here. I'll show this family of mine that I have authority and to spare." And then he said, "Son, I'm thy father and demand of thee, my son, the honor, respect and obedience of a son. I am the one to whom thou oweest all that thou hast and art. I therefore demand of thee, my son, a son's love and respect due a son unto a father."

And the son saith, "Aw, come on, Dad, you're just a darned old fool of a mossback; you're out-of-date; go off and soak thy head, but first write me a check for another hundred." And there was weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth.

Don't Laugh At Progress!

A prediction has been made that in the future there will be air boats as big or bigger than the largest modern steamers.

You may believe this or not—but do not be one of the laughers. Recently the twenty-fifth anniversary of flying was observed. When the Wright Brothers first invented the airplane, pretty nearly everybody laughed. Think of the

THERE'S A REASON

At a small town Sunday School picnic, two small boys had lemonade stands, one on each side of the entrance to the grounds. The minister coming along goes up to George and says:

"Well young man, how much do you charge for your lemonade?"

"Five cents a glass," replies George.

Turning to Bill on the other side of the entrance the minister asks:

"And how much do you charge for your lemonade, my little man?"

"Two cents a glass," replied Bill.

The minister casts a mean look at George and immediately purchases a glass of Bill's lemonade.

"That's very good," he says, smacking his lips with pleasure. "Let me have another glass."

He smiles with smug satisfaction at the thought of buying two glasses of lemonade from Bill at less than the cost of one glass from George.

"Tell me, young man," he says, setting down the empty glass, "How can you afford to sell your lemonade for two cents a glass when George is asking five cents for his?"

"Well, you see," replies Bill, "the cat fell in my pail."

Faster Delivery

We will be caught up on all delayed deliveries some time in this month, after which we can fill all orders for the New Ford promptly.

Since its introduction a little over a year ago, Ford agencies have been behind on deliveries. This was caused by the great demand for the new car Henry Ford had promised the world, many orders being booked before its appearance and so many more after.

The Ford plant has been running full capacity day and night and the various assembling plants have also been running to capacity.

After this month we can promise almost immediate delivery. Place an order for one now for your wife. She will appreciate it as an Anniversary or Birthday gift. She needs one for Her Personal Car.

THE LAST OF THE DUANES

by Zane Grey
Illustrated by Verne C. Christy

SYNOPSIS

Buck Duane, quick on the draw, kills Cal Bain in self-defense and finds himself an outlaw. Flying from pursuit, he meets Luke Stevens, another outlaw, and the two become pals. Luke narrowly escapes capture and Duane is shocked to find his brother outlaw severely wounded.

Duane buries Stevens. Then he goes on to Bland's camp, where he gets into a fight with a man called Bosomer and wounds the latter. He makes a friend with an outlaw at Bland's called Euchre, who tells him of Mrs. Bland and the girl Jennie.

Duane meets Jennie, and promises to try his utmost to get her away from Bland's camp. To avert suspicion, it is planned that he pretend to care for Mrs. Bland. Euchre introduces him to the latter and he engages in conversation with her.

FOURTH INSTALLMENT

"Chess Alloway will kill you, if Bland doesn't," went on Jennie, with her tragic eyes on Duane's smile. But he achieved one.

"Oh, better take me at once," she said. "Save me without risking so much—without making love to Mrs. Bland!"

"Surely, if I can. There! I see Euchre coming with a woman."

"That's her. Oh, she mustn't see me with you."

"Wait—a moment," whispered Duane, as Jennie slipped indoors. "We've settled it. Don't forget. I'll find some way to get word to you, perhaps through Euchre.

Meanwhile keep up your courage. Remember I'll save you somehow. We'll try strategy first. Whatever you see or hear me do don't think less of me—"

Jennie checked him with a gesture and a wonderful gray flash of eyes.

"I'll bless you with every drop of blood in my heart," she whispered passionately.

It was only as she turned away into the room that Duane saw she was lame, and that she wore Mexican sandals over bare feet.

He sat down upon a bench on the porch and directed his attention to the approaching couple. The trees of the grove were thick enough for him to make reasonably sure that Mrs. Bland had not seen him talking to Jennie.

When the outlaw's wife drew near Duane saw that she was a tall, strong, full-bodied woman, rather goodlooking with a full-blown, bold attractiveness. Duane was more concerned with her expression than with her good looks; and as she appeared unsuspecting he felt relieved. The situation then took on a singular zest.

Euchre came up on the porch and awkwardly introduced Duane to Mrs. Bland. She was young, probably not over twenty-five, and not quite so prepossessing at close range. Her eyes were large, rather prominent, and brown in color. Her mouth, too, was large, with lips full, and she had white teeth.

Duane took her proffered hand and remarked frankly that he was glad to meet her.

Mrs. Bland appeared pleased; and her laugh, which followed, was loud and rather musical.

"Mr Duane—Buck Duane, Euchre said, didn't he?" she asked.

"Buckley," corrected Duane. "The nickname's not of my choosing."

"I'm certainly glad to meet you, Buckley Duane," she said, as she took the seat Duane offered her. "Sorry to have been out. Kid Fuller's lying over at Deger's. You know he was shot last night. He's got fever today."

"When Bland's away I have to nurse all these shot-up boys, and it sure takes my time. Have you been waiting alone? Didn't see that slattern girl of mine?"

She gave him a sharp glance. The woman had an extraordinary play of feature. Duane thought, and unless she was smiling was not pretty at all.

"I've been alone," replied Duane. "Haven't seen anybody but a sick-looking girl with a bucket. And she ran when she saw me."

"That was Jen," said Mrs. Bland. "She's the kid we keep here, and she hardly pays for her keep. Did Euchre tell you about her?"

"Now that I think of it he did say something or other."

"What did he tell you about me?" bluntly asked Mrs. Bland.

"Wal, Kate," replied Euchre, speaking for himself, "you needn't worry none, for I told Buck nothing but compliments."

man. "It's a common enough story along this river. Euchre here is a tender-hearted old fool, and Jen has taken him in."

When Euchre had shuffled into the house Mrs. Bland turned to Duane with curiosity and interest in her gaze.

"I'll tell you, Duane," she said earnestly. "I'm sure glad if you mean to bide a while. I'm a miserable woman, Duane. I'm an outlaw's wife and I hate him and the life I have to lead. I come of a good family in Brownsville.

Evidently the outlaw's wife liked Euchre, for her keen glance rested with amusement upon him.

"As for Jen, I'll tell you her story some day," went on the woman till long after he married me. We were separated at times and I imagined he was away on business. But the truth came out. Bland shot my own cousin, who told me. My family cast me off, and I had to flee with Bland.

"I was only eighteen, then. I've lived here since. I never see a decent woman or man. I never hear anything about my old home or folks or friends. I'm buried here—buried alive with a lot of thieves and murderers. Can you blame me for being glad to see a young fellow—a gentleman—like the boys I used to go with?"

"I tell you it makes me feel full—I want to cry. I'm sick for some body to talk to. I have no children, thank God. If I had I'd not stay here. I'm sick of this hole. I'm lonely—"

There appeared to be no doubt about the truth of all this. Genuine emotion checked—then halted the hurried speech. She broke down and cried. It seemed strange to Duane that an outlaw's wife—and a woman who fitted her consort and the wild nature of their surroundings—should have weakness enough to weep.

"Would Bland object if I called on you occasionally?" inquired Duane.

"No, he wouldn't. He likes me to have friends. Ask him yourself when he comes back. The trouble has been that two or three of his men fell in love with me, and when half drunk got to fighting. You're not going to do that."

Without any solicitation or encouragement from Duane, the Bland woman fell passionately in love with him. His conscience was never troubled about the be-

"Tis not a lip or eye we beauty call,
But the full force and joint effect of all.

—Pope.

How many women, I wonder, really know how to cast up a good-looks inventory? You know, it is a most extraordinary thing to me, this peculiar beauty-blindness which seems to possess so many of your country-women. Beauty, to the average American, seems to mean such really meaningless and unimportant things as matched features and curly hair, extreme youth and perfect thirty-fours.

I simply cannot argue the matter with you if you are so unfortunate as to possess this "beauty-contest" complex. Nevertheless, let me call to your attention the fact that the Cleopatras and the Helens and the Sapphos of this world were not always young, and probably possessed none of the specifications of either the modern movie stars or the Modern Venus. They did, however, possess charm-appeal—and a full measure of individuality.

In getting together the facts for the Beauty Inventory, then, let us not fail to include charm as a most important factor. Next in consideration comes the condition of your skin. Then comes the hair. Next the hands. Next the figure. Lastly, those important yet intangible things—Poise and Tact and Graciousness.

These are all the attributes of a lovely woman. For loveliness is not dependent upon the color of your eyes or the length of the lashes. It is, instead, an ensemble of perfections—with now and then little imperfections thrown in to make the whole more fascinating.

I know this—that in all the years of experience, I have never improved upon the principle upon which I built my success, and that was—and is—that in every woman lies a certain degree of loveliness. When she develops that to its fullest degree, she is beautiful, and the world and her mirror will emphatically testify to the fact!

As we work together, improving each beauty-point in its turn, so do we add to the sum total of our good looks and bring it nearer to the perfect whole. If this feature or that is not to our entire liking—what matter? With a soft, velvety skin, a clear, vivacious eye, lustrous hair—and ways that are gracious—we shall still be able to say with a poet, "Tis not a lip or eye we beauty call, but the full force and joint effect of all."

BOY WANTED—AND THE KIND

Wanted—A boy who stands straight, sits straight, acts straight and talks straight.

A boy who listens carefully when spoken to, who asks questions when he does not understand and does not ask questions about things that are none of his business.
A boy whose finger nails are not in mourning, whose ears are clean, whose shoes are polished, whose clothes are brushed, whose hair is combed and whose teeth are well cared for.

A boy who moves quickly and makes as little noise as possible.
A boy who whistles in the street but not where he ought to keep still.

A boy who looks cheerful, has a ready smile for everybody, and never sulks.

A boy who is polite to every man and respectful to every woman and girl.

A boy who does not smoke cigarettes and has no desire to learn how.

A boy who never bullies other boys or allows other boys to bully him.

A boy who, when he does not know a thing says, "I do not know" and when he makes a mistake says, "I am sorry," and when requested to do a thing says, "I'll try."

A boy who looks you in the eye and tells you the truth every time.
A boy who had rather lose his job, or be expelled from school than to tell a lie or be a cad.

A boy who is more eager to know how to speak good English than talk slang.

A boy who does not want to be "smart" nor in any way attract attention.

A boy who is eager to read good wholesome books.

A boy who is perfectly at ease in the company of respectable girls.

A boy who is not a goody-goody, prig, or a little Pharisee, but just a healthy, happy and full of life boy.

This boy is wanted everywhere. The family wants him, the school wants him, the boys and girls want him, and all creation wants him.—Exchange.

Varied Questions

Dear Miss Vera,

Is it too much difference in size for a woman five feet and one inch tall weighing one hundred and ten pounds to marry a man six feet two inches weighing one hundred and ninety six pounds?

Could you send me a list of household furnishings the bride should have before the wedding?

Is it proper for a woman to go with a man she is engaged to, to his room in a rooming house where there is no parlor at their disposal? And is it permissible for a woman to enter a man's room at a hotel?

MISS E.

Dear Miss E., many women have married men much taller and stouter than themselves. I personally can see no reason why this is wrong or unwise. As to the list of household furnishings, just ask any woman that recently has been married.

No, it is not proper to go to a ginning of that affair. She launched it herself. It took no great perspicuity on his part to see that.

Joe Oberkampff

Victrolas — Furniture — Hardware — Plumbing

He was playing a game of love. Playing with life and death! Sometimes he trembled, not that he feared Bland or Alloway, or any man, but at the depths of life he had come to see into. He was carried out of his old mood.

Not since this daring motive had stirred him had he been haunted by phantoms of Bain beside his bed. Rather had he been haunted by Jennie's sad face—her wistful smile—her eyes.

He never was able to speak a word to her. What little communication he had with her was through Euchre, who carried short messages. But he caught glimpses of her every time he went to the Bland house. She contrived somehow to pass door or window, to give a look when chance offered, give him a look when chance afforded.

And Duane discovered with surprise that these moments were much more thrilling to him than any with Mrs. Bland. Often Duane knew Jennie was sitting just inside the window, and then he felt inspired in his talk, and it was all made for her. So at least she came to know him while as yet she was almost a stranger.

Jennie had been instructed by Euchre to listen, to understand that this was Duane's only chance to help keep her mind from constant worry, to gather the import of every word which had a double meaning.

Euchre said that the girl had begun to wither under the strain, to burn up with intense hope, which had flamed within her. But all the difference Duane could see was a paler face and darker, more wonderful eyes. The eyes seemed to be entreating him to hurry, that time was flying, that soon it might be too late.

Then there was another meaning in them—a light—a strange fire wholly inexplicable to Duane. It was only a flash, gone in an instant. But he remembered it because he had never seen it in any other woman's eyes.

Inside Duane's body there was a strife; his heart pounded, his blood raced, his breast bore a heavy pang. Something hot had dug into his vitals and the pain remained. In the depths of his mind, his soul, there was chaos.

He felt something dying in him. He suffered. Hope seemed far away. Despair had seized upon him and was driving him into a reckless mood when he thought of Jennie.

He had forgotten her. He had forgotten that he had promised to save her. He had forgotten that he meant to snuff out as many lives as might stand between her and freedom.

The very remembrance sheered off his morbid introspection. She made a difference. How strange for him to realize that! He felt grateful to her. He had been forced into outlawry; she had been stolen from her people and carried into captivity.

They had met in the river fastness, he to instil hope into her despairing life, she to be the means, perhaps, of keeping him from sinking to the level of her captors. He became conscious of a strong beating desire to see her, talk with her.

These thoughts had run through his mind while on his way to Mrs. Bland's house. He had let Euchre go on ahead because he wanted more time to compose himself.

Darkness had almost set in when he reached his destination. There was no light in the house. Mrs. Bland was waiting for him on the porch.

She embraced him, and the sudden violent, unfamiliar contact sent such a shock through him that he all but forgot the deep game he was playing. She, however, in her agitation did not notice his shrinking.

"Duane, you love me?" she whispered.

"Yes—yes," he burst out, eager to get it over, and even as he spoke he caught the pale gleam of Jennie's face through the window.

He felt a shame—he was glad she could not see. Did she remember that she had promised not to misunderstand any action of his? What did she think of him, seeing him out there in the dusk with this bold woman in his arms?

Somehow that dim sight of Jennie's pale face, the big dark eyes, thrilled him, inspired him to his hard task of the present.

"Listen, dear," he said to the woman, and he meant his words for the girl. "I'm going to take you away from this outlaw den if I have to kill Bland, Alloway, Rudd—anybody who stands in my path. You are dragged here. You are good—I know it. There's happiness for you somewhere—a home among good people who will care for you. Just wait till—"

His voice trailed off and failed from excess of emotion. Kate Bland closed her eyes and leaned her head on his breast.

Duane felt her heart beat against his, and conscience smote him a keen blow. If she loved him so much! But memory—understanding of her character hardened him again, and he gave her such commiseration as was due her sex, and no more.

"It's Bland!" whispered the woman, grasping Duane with shaking hands. "You must run! No, he'd see you. That'd be worse. It's Bland. I know his horse's trot."

"But you said he wouldn't mind my calling here," protested Duane.

"Euchre's with me. It'll be all right."

"Maybe so," she replied, with visible effort at self-control. Manifestly she had a great fear of Bland. "If I could only think!"

Then she dragged Duane to the door, and pushed him in.

"Euchre, come out with me. Duane, you stay with the girl. I'll tell Bland you're in love with her. Jen, if you give us away I'll wring your neck!"

The swift action and fierce whisper told Duane that Mrs. Bland was herself again. Duane stepped close to Jennie, who stood near the window.

Neither spoke, but her hands were outstretched to meet his own. They were small, trembling hands, cold as ice. He held them closely, trying to convey what he felt—that he would protect her. She leaned against him, and they looked out of the window.

The approaching outlaws, halted a rod or so from the porch. Then Mrs. Bland uttered an exclamation, ostensibly meant to express surprise, and hurried out to meet them.

She greeted her husband warmly and gave welcome to the other man. Duane could not see well enough in the shadow to recognize Bland's companion, but he believed it was Alloway.

"Dog-tired we are and starved," said Bland heavily. "Who's here with you?"

"That's Euchre on the porch. Duane is inside at the window with Jen," replied Mrs. Bland.

"Duane!" he exclaimed. Then he whispered low—something that Duane could not catch.

"Why, I asked him to come," said the chief's wife. She spoke easily and naturally, and made no change in tone. "Jen has been ailing. She gets thinner and whiter every day. Duane came here one day with Euchre, saw Jen, and went looney over her pretty face, same as all you men. So I let him come."

"Kate, you let Duane make love to Jennie?" queried Bland incredulously.

"Yes, I did," replied the wife stubbornly. "Why not? Jen's in love with him. If he takes her away and marries her, she can be a decent woman."

Bland kept silent a moment, then his laugh peeled out loud and harsh.

"Jennie," whispered Duane, "that was clever of Mrs. Bland. We'll keep up the deception. Any day now be ready."

She pressed close to him, and a barely audible "Hurry" came breathing into his ear.

Then he stepped into the moonlight and spoke. Bland returned the greeting and, though he was not amiable, he did not show resentment.

"Met Jasper as I rode in," said Bland presently. "Duane, I want you to stop quarreling with my men. If you were one of us—that would be different. I can't keep my men from fighting. But I'm not called on to let an outsider hang around my camp and plug my rustlers."

"I guess I'll have to be hitting the trail for somewheres," said Duane.

"Why not join my band? You've got a bad start already, Duane, and if I know this border you'll never be a respectable citizen again. You're a born killer. I know every bad man on this frontier."

"More than one of them have told me that something exploded in their brain, and when sense came back there lay another dead man. It's not so with me. I've done a little shooting, too; but I never wanted to kill another man just to rid myself of the last one."

"My dead men don't sit on my chest at night. That's the gun-fighter's trouble. He's crazy. He has to kill a new man—he's driven to it to forget the last one."

"But I'm no gun-fighter," protested Duane. "Circumstances made me—"

"No doubt," interrupted Bland with a laugh. "Circumstances made me a rustler. You don't know yourself. You're young; you've got a temper; your father was one of the most dangerous men Texas ever had. I don't see any other career for you. Instead of going it alone—a lone wolf, as the Texans say—why not make friends with other outlaws? You'll live a while longer."

Euchre squirmed in his seat. "Boss, I've been givin' the boy exactly the same line of talk. That's why I took him in to bunk with me. If he makes pards among us there won't be any more trouble. An' he'd be a grand feller fer the gang. Slickest of all the gun-throwers I ever seen! An' I've rustled all around over the southwest."

About Your Health

Things You Should Know

by John Joseph Collins, M. D.

Said to be beneficial in certain grave disorders, one of which is pernicious anaemia, generally regarded as incurable, on account of its cause being indeterminable. So far, the use of liver in this condition is still in the experimental stage; next year we may find that we were mistaken—it's so easy to err, you know.

Fifty years ago the rural dwellers in some of our Atlantic states made "dried liver" a part of their winter store of animal foods—and they regarded it as a delicacy—even an essential to a well-kept pantry. Dried same as we cure dried beef. And, we know those old fellows lived out a goodly term of years, for some reason or other; they must have lived pretty sanely.

Modern science has gone so far as to advise raw liver, to be used much as medicine for anaemia. Even an attempt at accurate dosage has been made—and some very favorable results recorded. I have had no practical experience in this new procedure, but, when I see an article in a reliable medical publication, I read it carefully. You might, with benefit, do the same; there are yet many things to learn.

More than a year ago, I purchased a preparation called "liver substance" to be used hypodermatically for high blood pressure, which it was claimed could be reduced promptly by its use. As I could not find out exactly how the substance acted after injection, I was so very slow about trying it, that I have the stuff on hand to this very day; experiments do not appeal to me very strongly—perhaps I'm overcautious.

To go back far into the past, a great many people laughed at Columbus. At Gallileo. At Fulton. When the first steamship plied the waters of the Hudson, persons lined along the shore roared their contempt for the funny little boat Fulton had launched.

From time immemorial, indeed, the pioneers in science and discovery have been hampered in their work by the laughers. Those who would not believe. Even the phonograph and the motion picture machine were at first regarded with derision and disbelief. At most these wonderful boons to humanity were considered as harmless toys for children.

The world is learning a lesson. Today new inventions are greeted with respect. The day of the laughers, the haw-hawer, is drawing to a close. The avenues for discovery, the road to progress, are more open than ever before.

Be one of those to welcome the new thing when it comes along—do not shame yourself by laughing at it.

When the impossible is predicted remember that in the course of modern progress many a thing thought impossible has become possible and practicable.

"But I don't see that you need be so heartbroken because Mable Flyway has jilted you?"

Ally of Man

It has been said by an eminent scientist that "electricity is life." Certainly today it is man's greatest ally in almost everything he does.

Electricity builds his skyscrapers, lights his home, turns the wheels of his industries, makes his clothes and afterwards washes and irons them, sweeps the floors of his home, makes his toast and coffee, milks the cows, pumps the water, cools the refrigerator, runs the fans, operates his transportation systems, bridges the ocean with his voice, and, in electrotherapeutics, actually becomes the giver or saver of life by making possible diagnoses, treatments and operations heretofore beyond the reach of science.

It is the happy privilege of this company to supply this modern partner of man in West Texas from gigantic generating stations and distributed over more than 2,000 miles of transmission lines.

Dr. Frank Crane Says

This newspaper will for some weeks continue to publish the work of the late Dr. Frank Crane. Dr. Crane recently passed away at Nice, France. Before leaving for Europe he had prepared a number of articles in advance.

MILK

Milk is perhaps the most ideal food for a human being. It is our only food in infancy and a food too little used by adults. It has been called "the perfect food."

It is a food however, that is hard to keep, for it readily spoils at too great a temperature.

We have preserved all other kinds of foods, we have salted fresh fish, canned vegetables and fruit, canned meat and smoked ham.

In 1851 a man went to England with a meat biscuit he had invented. On the ship on which he traveled there were cows to give fresh milk. At that time most vessels resembled floating barnyards, that is, most vessels that pretended to give human comfort. The inventor observed on his return trip home in the summer that the cows were sea sick, the milk was bad and many babies died.

Coming home he devised a process of drying milk and canning it. After much difficulty the enterprise was successful.

It grew to great proportions during the Civil War, when the government bought the entire output of his factories.

Since then preserved milk has been a boon to all explorers whether in the frozen regions of the north or in darkest Africa.

Herbert Hoover preserved the lives and health of some 1,200,000 Belgian children by condensed milk.

Our own Mr. Strauss has proved himself a public benefactor by supplying pure milk for babies.

Any traveler in Europe is familiar with the dirty milk that is supplied everywhere from milkmen's cans. These have been replaced almost entirely in America by the bottle.

Still about 6,000,000 children in the United States between the ages of two and fourteen are undernourished. They are stunted for lack of proper food, usually lack of milk. The various companies handling milk have done much good by disseminating knowledge as to the value of pure milk. Pure milk has as much to do with preventing infant mortality as any other one thing. In China, years ago, when they had plenty of cows, they created a great civilization, now that they have cut down their forests and eaten their cows they kill as many babies as they raise. You cannot bring up a child, with success, on tea.

Those health departments in the various cities which are insisting on pure milk and the companies which owe their success to the distribution of pure milk, deserve all encouragement. Nothing could be of more importance to the public health than the maintenance of a supply of pure milk.

J. A. Glover has returned from Hamilton, Texas, where he was called to the bedside of his mother, who was ill. Mr. Glover reported his mother considerably improved when he left her.

Be Prepared

For The Emergency

Were you ever embarrassed by the sudden appearance of company right at meal? Few cooks have escaped this trying situation. If you have ever had the experience, you know just how embarrassing it is when you've prepared a light plate supper say from what was left from dinner for the family and then dad brings in a guest for supper.

Canned goods on the shelves in the cupboard furnish the only escape from embarrassment. Stock up now and keep a supply on hand. We handle a complete line of choice brands of canned fruits, meats and vegetables, delicious enough to furnish a complete meal, even with company present.

The Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History

- a Six in the price range of the four!

represents 4 years of Development and over a Million miles of Testing

Years ago, the Chevrolet Motor Company designed and built its first experimental six-cylinder motor. This far-sighted step was taken because Chevrolet engineers knew that the six-cylinder motor is inherently the most perfectly balanced motor—the ideal power plant to meet the growing public demand for greater reserve power, faster get-away and, above all—smooth, quiet performance.

During the last four years, over a hundred six-cylinder motors were built by Chevrolet engineers and tested on the General Motors Proving Ground.

Day and night, through winter's cold and summer's heat, the incessant testing went on—until the present motor was developed and finally pronounced correct.

At the same time other Chevrolet engineers were perfecting other parts of the chassis. And another great automotive organization—the Fisher Body Corporation—was devoting its gigantic resources to the creation of the finest, sturdiest and most beautiful bodies ever offered on a low-priced automobile.

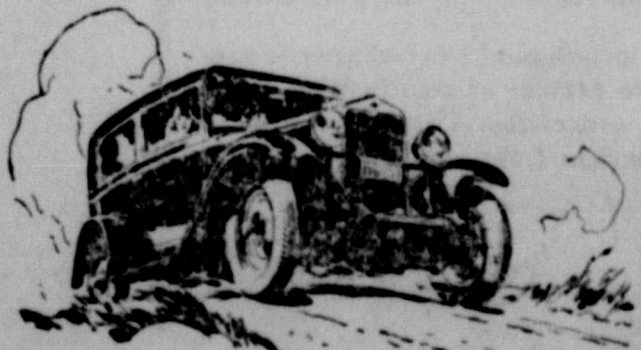

As a result, the Outstanding Chevrolet offers an order of well-balanced excellence—a combination of performance, comfort, beauty and handling ease that is truly remarkable—with a fuel-economy of better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

You owe it to yourself to see and inspect this remarkable car. Come in today!
