A BILL FOR THOUGHT
THE PLACE FOR SPEED
MEDALS FOR FLYERS

Italy's heavyweight champion is here, 22 years old, 6 feet 2 inches tall, weight 235 pounds. Boxing two and a half years, each of his ten opponents kindly became unconscious in four rounds or less.

This descendant of Roman gladiators, Umberto Torino, is artistic, sings, plays several musical instruments and could lecture on Verdi. He seems to be the natural, physical and mental opponent for Tunney.

Torino could interest local talent by offering to revive the old Roman boxing with the cestus, a glove of heavy thongs loaded with iron or bronze, making it unnecessary for the referee to count.

The McNary-Haugen bill is enthusiastically passed by the Senate. There are elections coming. The House will pass it also, many that vote for it counting on the President's veto to counteract their vote.

That the President will veto the bill is probable and that it will be passed over his veto is probable.

According to wise men, some "best minds" far removed from farming, now approve the bill.

Anything to make the farmers more prosperous would be welcome, but the so-called "farmers bill" may surprise farmers when understood.

According to wise ones, the Government would sell packers at what price they must buy hogs, and tell flour men at what price they must buy wheat. And the Government would guarantee profits to packers and flour men. After they had sold all the American public would buy, at prices much increased, of course, packers, millers, cotton men, etc., would "dump" the balance in foreign markets at any price obtainable.

And whatever the "proceeds" lost by dumping, the Government would make up in hard cash taken from taxpayers. There is an equalization plan of doubtful value.

Another feature of the bill would be complicated bookkeeping and inspection, involving gigantic armies of additional public servants.

When a packer buys a pig he changes it into scores of products. He would report profits and losses to the Government, and the Government would have to investigate every detail. The prospect of Government price-fixing, with guarantees and inflation, worries some men that think Racing on the sand at Daytona Beach, in his Black Hawk Special speed car, going more than 200 miles an hour, Frank Lockhart blew out a rear tire. His car bounced 300 feet, "turned several somersaults" and landed upside down. Lockhart was killed.

This unfortunate death of a daring automobile racer is a warning to those that indulge in excessive speed. The air, not the ground, is the place for speeding.

President Coolidge will give medals to six fliers—three recently arrived, the Frenchmen, Costes and Lebrun, and the able Italian the Marquis de Pinedo.

He might add one medal for Miss Junkers, daughter of the man that made the westward flying airplane, responsible for the trip's success. Through all the excitement she has kept out of the limelight, and that deserves a medal.

A German scientist proposes "one clock for the entire scientific world." The exact time would be broadcast throughout the world by radio. It would be correct within one-hundred-thousandths part of a second, which seems excessive accuracy to the layman.

One "master synchronizer" would do the work for the whole world.

KELLY KING EVENS COUNT WITH SONORA

Giant Hruler Turns In 4-3 Win In Return Game Here Sun.

GOES 10 INNINGS

Local Fumble-Fest Is Stopped In Time To Save Disaster

Kelly King, ace hurler for the Ozona Giants, evened the count with Sonora and with his teammates lolled in the sweet essence of revenge here Sunday when the Giants took the Branches to a 4 to 3 cleaning on the local diamond in a ten-inning fracas that kept several hundred fans whooping from the first to the last.

The Giants took the lead in the first inning when Frank Russell, lead-off man and ace-high with the stick for the locals, singled and Cobb, King and Russell each got on, Cobb scoring on the pitcher's wild heave.

Ozona added another in the second when Lockhart scored on Frank Russell's single to left, and again in the fifth the locals pushed over a run when King singled and stole second and third and then raced home on a passed ball.

The situation looked bad for the locals for a few minutes in the eighth when the visitors knotted the count and threatened to add another victory to their collection as a result of a flock of bunched errors on the part of the Giants.

In this frame McCurdy, who relieved Ridley in the box in the fifth, singled down the third base line. Sharp flew out and Renfro doubled to left, McCurdy going to third. After Hamilton had fanned, McCurdy scored when Cobb's throw to third was wild. Renfro went to third on Smith's single and Renfro and Smith both scored when Bob Weaver dropped Johnson's fly in center and threw wild to third trying to catch Smith. Johnson died on third when McClelland fanned.

Ozona captured the ball game in the tenth when King singled and went to second when the left fielder muffed the ball. King scored on Claude Russell's double to right. The game ended with nobody out for Ozona.

MUSIC FEAST FOR LIONS AT MONDAY MEET

Musical Saw, Cornet Solo, Vocal Numbers Are Enjoyed

BIG ATTENDANCE

New Members Being Added To Roster Of Peppy Club

Ozona Lions were treated to a musical feast at their regular luncheon hour Monday when a program arranged by Lee Wilson as chairman of the program committee was presented.

Nelson Hawkins, secretary and treasurer, again presided over the meeting in the absence of President M. M. Falmier and Vice-President Early Baggett.

Mrs. John W. Henderson, Jr., entertained the club with a vocal number, with Mrs. Lee Childress playing the accompaniment. As an encore, Dr. Cox and Mrs. Henderson sang a duet "A Perfect Day" which was greatly enjoyed by the club members.

A novelty musical number was a program on the "musical saw" played by C. C. Smith, a carpenter working here with Jack Nonce. Mr. Smith played "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" on a common hand saw, using a violin bow to vibrate the metal. This number was a real treat for the Lions, many of them never having heard music made on the lowly saw, Jack Nonce, whose numbers are always enjoyed, again favored the club with a cornet solo, and Dr. Cox, the club's "old stand-by" for vocal selections, responded to a call, Miss Dixie Davidson, another "pillar of the club" played the piano accompaniment for the cornet and saw selections and also for Dr. Cox.

The program was varied with a reading given by Miss Kathryn Baggett. The club was so well pleased with this number that Miss Kathryn had to beg off from an encore on the ground that she had not had sufficient time to prepare another number.

W. R. Baggett was present for the banquet and enrolled as a new member. "Secretary" Hawkins announced that three other new members had joined the club since its last meeting. Ben Robinson was a guest of Lee Wilson.

Giants To Clash With Iraan Sun.

Sam Cox Leads Locals Against Invading Iraan Oilers

Another baseball treat is in store for Ozona fans Sunday when the Giants, who nosed out the Sonora Bronchos 4 to 3 in a ten-inning affair here last Sunday, will clash with the fast Oilers from Iraan on the local field beginning at 3 o'clock, according to announcement made Wednesday by Jack Allen, manager.

Sunday has been designated as "Sam Cox Day" in Ozona. The local diamond veteran will again be seen in action against the Oilers, the manager said. He will start on the mound for Ozona, according to present plans, and if his wing is not what it used to be, he will be shifted from position to position until he plays the entire field.

The Iraan Oilers are said to be a fast crew and the locals are expected to present some stiff competition in the Sunday contest. Kelly King, local mound ace, will be in readiness to go into the box if the veteran Cox weakens.

Ft. Worth Pastor To Preach Here Sunday

Rev. Stricklin of Fort Worth will preach Saturday night and at the regular Sunday morning and evening hours at the Ozona Church of Christ in the absence of Elder Walter Cook, who is in Sheffield this week holding a missionary meeting.

Rev. Stricklin is being considered by the local congregation as pastor here to take Elder Cook's place, the latter having recently resigned his position effective July 1. Bro. Cook's term in Ozona does not expire until in the fall but he will leave about July 1 on an evangelistic tour and will not return, he said. He will go to San Antonio from here.

TOM ONSTOTT SELECTED AS SCOUTMASTER

Utilities Co. Manager Perfecting Organization Here

ASK NEW CHARTER

All Boys Must Register This Week To Protect Charter

Tom Onstott, local manager for the West Texas Utilities Company, was chosen as Scoutmaster for Ozona Boy Scout troops at a meeting of the local Scout Committee held at the Hotel Ozona Monday night. Mr. Onstott has accepted the post and has already begun organization of the Scouts.

The Scout Committee, appointed recently at a meeting of those interested in the promotion of Scouting here, is composed of A. W. Jones, Will Baggett, P. T. Robinson, Pon Seahorn and John L. Bishop. Mr. Jones was selected as chairman of the committee.

Mr. Onstott has had experience as a Scoutmaster and he was unanimously chosen by the committee. He will serve without pay. The committee will leave it up to the Scoutmaster to select his own assistant.

Appointment of a new Scout committee and Scoutmaster was made necessary as a result of the recent organization of the Rancheo District of the Goveo Valley Council Boy Scouts of America, with R. V. Davis, Field Executive, in charge of the work in the five counties composing the district, Crockett, Sutton, Schleicher, Menard and Kimble counties.

Enrollment of Ozona Scouts who expect to attend Camp Kickapoo, beginning June 3 and continuing ten days, is now under way, Scoutmaster Onstott said. All boys who want to attend this camp are urged to register at once so that their names may be sent in reservations made. All reservations must be made by the middle of next week.

Stockman Ad Brings Flock Of Buyers To Elder Cook's Home

"Take That Ad Out," He Says After Hundreds Of Dollars Worth Is Sold

"Take that ad out of The Stockman, I've sold everything I had."

This was the telephone message received at the Stockman office Wednesday from Elder Walter Cook.

Elder Cook had inserted a classified ad in last week's Stockman listing several articles for sale. He is leaving about July 1 for an evangelistic tour after which he will locate in San Antonio. The ad brought him a stream of buyers, he declared, and several hundred dollars worth of household goods, watches, guns and other articles were sold.

"One man in Sonora saw the ad and came here to look over the articles," Elder Cook said. "He bought over $400 worth of it."

If you don't believe advertising in the Stockman gets results, try it.

Wayne West will start construction on a modern home to be erected on the corner occupied until recently by the R. P. Carson home just south of the W. E. West home

Breeders Association. Inquiries have already begun to come in from all over the nation, from Hereford breeders in all parts of the country, inquiring about the local show with a view to entering.

"The Ozona cattle show this year, from present indications," Mr. Davidson said, "will be the best ever held and if its present growth continues will be one of the biggest in the state."

THE OZONA STOCKMAN

Published Every Thursday Morning at Ozona, Texas, County Seat of Crockett County by

W. EVART WHITE EDITOR and PUBLISHER
Entered at the Post Office at Ozona, Texas, as Second Class Mail Matter under Act of Congress, March 3rd, 1879.

Ozona, Texas, Thursday, May 24, 1928.

The fame of Fredricksburg as the "largest unincorporated town in the United States," passed recently when the citizens of that town by an overwhelming majority voted to incorporate the town. It is our fervent hope that Ozona will soon lose its fame as "the best unincorporated town in the world," by knocking the "un" out of "unincorporated."

On Saturday, June 23, there will be held a very important election in Crockett County. The result of that election will determine whether or not the citizenship of this county will longer tolerate the nuisance of free grazing of big flocks of sheep and goats, horses, cattle and other livestock on the private premises of residents and property owners of the county.

The vote in this election will determine whether or not the citizens of Ozona will longer be subjected to invasion of their yards and flower beds by these wandering herds and the destruction of shrubbery, grass and flowers that represent months and sometimes years of labor and care.

The vote in this election will determine whether or not Ozona is going to get out of the crossroads class where hogs, cattle, chickens, sheep goats, horses and mules graze at will in the downtown business section and present a picture similar to scenes of country villages used in the movies. The situation is not quite as rank as that but it is bad enough to prompt a full turn-out of votes on election day and an overwhelming expression for abatement of the nuisance.

Occasionally a cow gets out of her pen, a calf breaks through, and possibly one of the few horses or mules in the town or nearby pastures get out. These animals can do more harm to yards and flower beds in a half hour than they are worth. Of course, there is possibly no way of being certain at all times that one may not get out, but a strictly enforced stock law will prove a powerful urge to owners to keep their fences in the best of repair.

But the best feature of the law will be to stop the deliberate herding of sheep and goats, mostly by Mexicans who own not a foot more land than that on which their houses sit, along the draws, sidewalks and yards of the town, and to stop the running at large of sheep and goats owned by ranchmen whose lands adjoin the town and who steadfastly refuse to repair their fences to keep these animals in pastures. If the law is passed and strictly enforced, if a heavy pound fee is tacked on for every sheep, goat, cow, calf, horse, mule or hog found running at large anywhere in the county and the animal sold at auction for the pound fee if not redeemed, it will soon be possible for the people of Ozona to have pretty yards and feel safe from an invasion that will spell ruin for their labors.

The bracket lights placed in the residence section of Ozona are put there for a purpose, according to Tom Onstott, local manager for the West Texas Utilities Company. Those lights are paid for every month by the county and their purpose is to light the streets and not to furnish a target for small boys with "nigger sticks, air guns and rocks."

Utilities company officials here have had the same trouble since the lights were installed trying to keep good globes in them. People living near the lights are asked to phone the company when a light is out and it will be replaced at once without charge. But an appeal is being made to the boys to find other targets than the light globes.

SYNOPSIS

Palmyra Tree, aboard the yacht Rainbow, startled by seeing a hand thrust through the porthole, makes an investigation and discovers a stowaway. With him is a huge copper-hued man of whom she is a little bit frightened. Burke, the stowaway, entertains them with wild tales of adventure and the brown man watches her red hair intently. After leaving the stowaway and the brown man at Honolulu and spending a few days there, they travel on among the tropic islands. The night her engagement is announced to Van the Rainbow hits a reef. They spend three days on an uninhabited island before sighting a sail, which proves to be a vessel owned by Burke, who kidnaps Palmyra.

CHAPTER V.

For two days she had had a knife. Now, in the mid-hours of the third night, she was again lying in the cabin awake. She was thinking of a remark of Burke's several times repeated, which had assumed the significance of a threat. "Better volunteer that kiss while volunteering's easy," he had warned, his grim good humor in the last hour or two as she felt, growing a little thin. "For I can tell y'this: There won't be no evading the draft—once she clamps down." What had he meant? When Palmyra came on deck on this, the fourth day of her captivity, she saw that Ponape Burke was in an ugly mood. The man greeted her with alcoholic leer, his infantile features shocking in their age-old depravity. When she shrank back into the companion he was amused. "Come, come, Queenie," he roared. "Are y'ready with that kiss?" He belabored with laughter. Then, when she did not advance, he changed to the quick anger of intoxication. "Have it yer way, Miss Tree—Miss Palm Tree," he said thickly. "But 'twon't be long before you're down on yer shins a-praying the Lord for us one chance t'beg me t'take the dam' kiss—and you sick with fear I won't take it." Ponape rolled aft to the girl. "Sweetheart," he said, "I'm going t'part with you. She did not understand. "Dam' them Japs!" he exploded, his temper taking a new direction. "Twas their man-o-war we sighted last midwatch." So that had been the cause of the alert watch, with its brief but real excitement. The man's suggestion of parting with her, the possibility of Japanese intervention, had brought the color of hope to her cheeks. But he, returning now, struck at that hope with malicious perception. "Oh, safe enough in three or four days," he reassured. "They'll be gone then for a good six months. It's only in the meantime—ruin everything you t'be caught aboard." She tried to fathom his purpose. "I'm going t'jettison you. You shall stop ashore." She stared at him. Incredulous hope aroused again, only to fall before his expression. He had not the slightest thought of relinquishing her. Burke was amused. "'Tis a bonny isle," he said, "and you'll have naught t'do but sit and think o' me." The girl's spirits rose. She did not question that this would be some depot of his, a place of servile natives. But, even so, her position would be bettered. Surely, among them all, must be those to understand, to respond to her plea for protection. She was eager to go. But she thought it wise to seem indifferent. She waited until Burke turned away, then scanned the sea. As the day wore on toward its close she worked herself into a passion of suspense, apprehension. Burke was still drinking; what if night should find her aboard? And then, when it seemed she could stand no more, she discovered that the man Olive, grinning enthusiastically, was putting water, ship's biscuits and some other stores into a boat. In surprise, she swept the sea again—and found it blank. "Why, when do we get there?" she asked of Burke. He smiled sardonically. "We're there now," he answered. She was completely at a loss. He handed her his binoculars. "Hard-a-starboard," he directed.

Presently she made out, through the glasses, that which might be the crest of palms. The island seemed far distant. But the Pigeon of Noah had held to her course for no great time when her master gave the order to heave to, and lower away the boat. "But it's so far," she hesitated. Burke winked at Olive, already at the oars, then dropped over the side without reply. Palmyra, disdaining his proffered hand, followed. The savage bent to his work and they were away, under the stare of the crew. All too soon the girl saw why she had thought the island distant. As with each stroke of the oars it rose in its stark meagerness, her heart sank. So small, so flat, its four cocoa-palms so stunted, it was well nigh invisible to the novice. The moment her feet touched the sand she hurled herself at the white man. "Belay there, sweetheart," he laughed, retreating. "Steady does it. Didn't I tell y' you'd have plenty o' time t'sit and think o' me?" "Y'got water and stores for six weeks or so and housekeepin'll be easy-like," grinned her despot. "Y'just set in the shade and munch yer biscuit and think o' me." "And then, sometime, maybe you'll sight the old Pigeon lovin' by. And if you're tired o'yer own company, y'can hoist yer hanky for a signal. And perhaps I'll be such a good kind gent as t'lay y'aboard again, me understanding what you're after is t'rush up and give me that kiss." She clenched her teeth behind the closed lips. He turned as if to go. Then, casually in a well-considered effect, he called Olive to fetch that of which the girl had not thought in days—a pink silk parasol. With a flourish Ponape Burke presented this gay trifle which alone of all the world that she had known, had escaped the deluge. "For my queen," he said with mock ceremony. "Fresh completed folks has a tender skin. If queenie should show up offering a kiss all blistered like a biled lobster—why maybe that kiss wouldn't so much be wanted. And, remember: 'tis a kiss, free given and free taken.

pays a passage from this reef." He sprang upon the stooping back of his fellow to be carried to the boat. He rode high, his legs on either side of the brown torso, doubled, and supported by Olive's hand, under each shin, as a stirrup.

When the boat had cleared the reef, Ponape Burke rose to wave her a jaunty adieu. When they were half way to the schooner, the girl uttered a sob and, flinging down the parasol, ran after them until she stood in the surf. Then, slowly, she turned and came back to the palms and threw herself upon the sand—prone. And, oddly enough, as she lay, it was not the white man's cruel humor that revolted her so much as the brown man's mirth. For Burke had a purpose, but Olive's was a mere savage delight in pain. She had said that in the whole world she alone was alive. Now, however, across the coral clinkers a something was coming, moving eccentrically, yet approaching at an alarming speed. A something alive? It was gay with red polka-dots; it ran with the exaggeration of a toy, seeming about to stumble at each step, yet zig-zagging over the clinkers in an astonishing ease and rapidity. Unexpectedly the girl laughed.

This nursery beast would presumably be no more than a land crab. Somewhat intimidated, however, she backed a step further up the palm. The intruder on her island—or was she not rather the intruder—hastened toward her, claws already half extended, as a hostess with hands out to greet a belated guest. The polka-dotted crab went "polkadoddering" on its way. It had kept her mind, for the moment, from the fact that the sun was sinking at a frightful speed. And then, there flashed back into her mind a word Burke had taught her, a native name for the monstrous robber crab. It was unga po—the night crab! In fright she sprang up, stared around. The very fact she had seen the one, presupposed presence of the other. To realize that her polka-dotted absurdity might be blundering near in search of prey was sufficiently disquieting; proximity of its fierce cousin legitimately alarming. For, with claws more than a foot long, it could snap the strongest bonito line like a thread crush the bones of a man's fingers cripple for life the wrist of a well (Continued on page 6)

Dr. Frank Crane Says

War Talk

A German leader, Dr. Paul Oestreich, declares that America and England will certainly be driven into war. They will both woo Germany for an all, and in this way Germany will rise in the council of nations.

We have had among our own people men who predict that war is certain. They say that human nature cannot be changed and that war is inevitably due to ensue.

Lloyd George says: "In every country it is part of the business of the fighting staff to work out a plan for defense against all conceivable enemies. They gloat over their efficiency and, like every inventor, yearn to put their machine to a test, until possible war soon becomes very likely and a likely war gradually glides into the inevitable."

From time immemorial nations and tribes have sought to "protect" themselves by increasing their armaments. A considerable portion of the press is urging the United States greatly to increase armament on sea and land in order to "protect" itself.

There was never a nation that could so protect itself. Greece tried it, and Rome and Spain and Germany and Russia, and they all fell.

The best protection for a nation is for it to form some kind of combination with other nations which public sentiment will endorse that shall abolish war as a final arbiter.

The most hopeful sign today is that people are finding out that war not only costs them money and valuable lives, but destroys property and sets back business.

It would be a good thing if every boy and girl in the country were compelled to serve two years under the tutelage of army officers in constructing great public works such as the Boulder Dam and the Mississippi Reclamation projects.

The regular meeting of the Ozona chapter of the Eastern Star will take place on the 3rd Tuesday night of each month.

There is no objection to universal conscription if it is universal, and if it is not primarily for the purpose of fighting. These boys and girls would be potential soldiers in case we were ever attacked, but their employment upon constructive works would not be in the nature of a provocation of war to other nations.

Some way or other we must give up our arms and defer questions of international dispute to some other arbiter than crass nationalism.

One hopeful sign is that plans of peace are openly discussed in international councils. The late Pan-American Congress was full of peace talk.

And peace-talking brings peace just as war talk brings war. The question after all is one of public opinion and the sooner that public opinion is turned away from causes of war and toward the efforts of peace the better will be our prospects.

 Horror returned upon her. She struggled back to her observation post. She must sight a ship instantly—now, now! now!!
 By day the lowness of the land had brought the skyline closer than she had ever imagined.
 She had thought of herself as the only living being in all the universe—with the eyes of that universe centered upon her.
 But, suddenly, from out the dark there came a hoarse cry.
 The girl doubled into a ball, automatically, as sometimes, one awakened by a crash of thunder.
 An interval; then she sat up and laughed—janglingly but with a good courage. It had been only a bird.
 As Palmyra had been caught unawares by the approach of night, so now, with the eastern skies aglow with the coming day, she was again unawares, lying deep in slumber.
 The sun, in his setting, had paused to implant upon her cheeks a goodnight kiss. And it was not now until he had stolen clear round the world to bestow an awakening kiss upon her other cheek, had surmounted the Chinese wall of vapor raised against him by the morning bank; that her eyes opened.

 As the girl stood watching the everchanging panorama, she became aware that the waters abounded in life.
 That bit of water upon which her gaze chanced to be fixed rose up into a peak and there appeared a dark round object which resembled a head.
 For a long minute she covered her eyes with her hands. Then she gathered courage at last to look. The head, bobbing up and down like a cork, was coming as fast as a boat. Presently, as she stared it reached the surf at a narrow opening of the reef. A few more strokes of arms, thick and brown, and the head of an islander rose dripping from the water.
 And then it was that Palmyra uttered another cry. For she saw a copper face with great square teeth clamped on a knife—a knife that did not hide the ferocious grin which had haunted her since she first saw it thus under her spotlight: the face of the brown man Olive!
 When the face of the savage Olive materialized to her view, the voice of the surf drowned that wail with which Palmyra Tree covered back behind her screen.

 The swimmer, rising from the brine, paused knee-deep to shake himself like a dog. Then he plucked the knife from between his teeth, thrust it into the leather sheath on his belt and came splashing ashore. He did not hesitate, but made direct for her hiding place, the only cover.

The girl sprang away in flight. The brown man, beaming terrifically, followed. She ran, stumbling now and again on the coral clinkers, until she reached land's end, and then on, as far as she could along the reef a-wash. Seizing from the water a broken knob of coral, she faced the savage. When he reached the edge of the sand, she hurled it at him. Then her hand rose toward her dress where her own knife waited.

Olive, at the missile, grinned none the less. Indeed, he seemed unaware of it, though it passed within a foot of his head. But it did, nevertheless, have an effect—one quite unexpected. For he sat down, cross-legged, on the sand. He broke into the animation of a speech.

He stood up, and the girl's hand flew back toward her weapon. But he came no nearer. To her surprise he turned and went strutting away toward the clump of palms. There he beckoned her to follow.

First, the savage pulled two of the half-grown coconuts. With his knife he cut through the two-inch green husk of one and exposed the lower end of the shell. From this, with three taps of the blade, he knocked a round cap. He took a big draft of the liquid within—cool, slightly acid, clear as water. Then he opened the second nut, brought it half way toward her, left it upright in the sand. She was, it seemed, invited to drink.

Turning to the clump of pandanus, he hacked out a short slim pole. This he next, with cord from her stores, lashed across the top of his uprights. Then he marched away toward the reef and, reaching out as one might to pick up a kitten by the neck, snatched a fish from a pocket in the coral. This fish, flopping vigorously, he bound to the crossbar of his dwarfed football goal.

The girl had been watching these moves breathlessly, wonder for the moment getting the better of fear. Not until he fetched the fish did she have any theory. Then it flashed into her mind that barbarous peoples always propitiated their deities with food offerings. Could this be a sort of altar. Did the savage seek to further his purpose?

But Olive gave no sign. With the last turn of the cord about the struggling fish, he strode away to the shade of the palms and, throwing himself down on his back, was almost instantly asleep.

Palmyra, crouching in the sun, stared at that figure. She was astonished. How was it physically possible for him thus to fall into slumber?

Whence had this man come, and why? Could Ponape have sent him to terrorize her? Or, had the savage—

She gave a shudder. She snatched the knife from her dress. She gripped its handle; she began to crawl toward that terrible figure.

But presently she hesitated, stopped. With a groan she sank down. She dropped the knife, buried her face in her hands. In resistance she could have fought like a tiger. But thus to creep upon a sleeping man.

For a time there seemed no alternative. Then she roused at the realization that, if she could not murder a sleeping man, she could at least disarm him. With Olive deprived of that knife, and her own retained, who could tell? She might have some shred of chance.

She put the blade into her dress and began again to crawl forward. She had got within a dozen feet of the savage, moving with caution, when unexpectedly, easily, almost as it seemed automatically, he opened his eyes and sat up. It was as if he had not been asleep at all; had, from the beginning, been waiting for her to do just this thing.

The girl shrank back. Olive fixed her with his strange eyes. Then he instantly returned to slumber.

Smiled expansively, as if it were a joke. He settled down once more. Sudden, startling in that place of solitude, there came a sound. It had not been Olive. She sprang up, circled land and water in a quick scrutiny.

Three Girls

Dear Miss Vera,

We are three girls, 13, 14 and 15 years old, of black hair, blue and brown eyes, fair complexion. We wear short dresses and wear knickers to school. We use rouge and lipstick and have bobbed hair.

Do you think we are old enough to make dates with boys? Should a girl invite her sweetheart to dinner? Should a girl go riding with a boy at night if she loves him? And if not?

Should a girl 14 or 15 love a boy or write to him? Should a boy come to see a girl any day in the week and should a boy love two girls? How old should a girl be when she marries? Do you think the boy should be older than the girl? Do you think a boy should be jealous? Should a boy of 14 go with girls? Do you think a boy should give a girl a birthday present, and should a girl give a boy one?

—BROWN AND BLUE EYES

Dear girls, you certainly are curious about a lot of things, but I am going to try to answer all your questions. Of course it is proper for you to have friends, both boy and girl friends, but you seem to be a little too young to think of the boys as sweethearts. It is very nice to invite a boy for dinner. It is proper to go riding with a boy at night unless parents object. Your parents should be asked before you make an appointment with a boy whether or not they would object to your being with him.

A person loves or does not love; there is no such thing as deciding whether or not to be in love! It is quite nice to correspond with a boy. A boy may come to see a girl as often as he likes if she does not make known to him that she would prefer him to limit his visits. That is up to her. I don't see how it is possible for a boy to love two girls if he can "love" more than one. It is not love at all. Just a thing that he thinks is love.

As a general rule, I think a girl should be at least 18 when she marries, and the boy ought to be the same age or more—but there are many cases of happy marriages where the boy was younger than the girl. Jealousy is never a good quality. A boy of 14 may have girl friends. Why not? An exchange of gifts is always a sweet and thoughtful memory.

But, dear girls, at your ages I think you should regard your boy friends with the same emotions that you regard your girl friends, rather than thinking of such things as love and marriage. These

Robt. Massie Co. To Remodel Bldg.

One Of Angelo's Leading Stores To Add Two More Floors

The Robert Massie Company, of San Angelo, will remodel their store beginning June 1. The New-Ten Hotel of two floors above the Robert Massie Company will be discontinued, and this will be added as display space to the Company, giving them floor space of four floors and balcony.

The entire building will be re-decorated, a high speed passenger elevator will be installed, and one of the most up-to-date store fronts added.

Such changes will make this store one of the most completely equipped and modern furniture establishments in the State; comparable with the greater furniture stores in the larger cities.

Ample and harmonious display rooms, distinction of grouping and arrangement will characterize the completed store.

Those whose cooperation and patronage has elevated this organization to its present distinction are assured of a continuation of service and quality that has been available in the past.

SEVENTEEN YEARS AGO

All freight moving into Ozona from Barnhart and San Angelo was via freight wagons, requiring from three days to two weeks to complete the round trip. It was nothing unusual those days to see from eight to sixteen horse loads coming into Ozona.

Moving freight via truck in Barnhart territory begun about the latter part of the year 1916. The consumption of Gasoline and Oils in Barnhart Territory 17 years ago was comparatively small, not-withstanding this fact: In the year of 1911, the GULF REFINING COMPANY established a distributing station in Barnhart, erecting a small warehouse with a bulk storage of 9000 gallons, at this time being the only wholesale Oil Station between San Angelo and Alpine. Today we have a bulk storage of about 50,000 gallons and have doubled the capacity of our warehouse at Barnhart, thus proving that our faith and determination in entering the Barnhart territory 17 years ago was well founded.

We are operating three trucks into Ozona, giving you a service second to none, placing GULF PRODUCTS at your door at Barnhart schedule.

GOOD GULF GASOLINE AND SUPREME MOTOR OIL may be obtained at the ORANGE Pumps at the sign of the orange disc in most every village from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico. Demand GULF PRODUCTS, they have stood the test for almost a quarter of a century.
