

HEAVY RAINS INSURE GOOD WINTER RANGE

Two-Months Drouth Is Broken By Downpour
This Week

OVER 2 IN. HERE

Sharp Drop In Temperature Warns Of Approaching Winter

Heavy rains, general over most of this section and accompanied by a sharp drop in temperature, relieved a two-months drouth in the stock raising section for the winter season.

The total rainfall here was nearly 2 1/2 inches, while the fall was reported much heavier in other parts of the county. Reports indicate that the fall was general throughout this section of West Texas.

The rainfall here Thursday night was accompanied by a severe electrical disturbance and considerable wind. Local electric service was interrupted shortly before midnight by the wind and lightning, but crews of the West Texas Utilities Company were on the job during the night and service was restored before daylight.

Slight damage was reported as a result of the wind here. A garage belonging to L. L. Bewley was blown from its foundation and several trees were uprooted, but no further damage was done so far as is known. A tornado is reported to have struck Fort Stockton late Sunday afternoon, ripping roofs from several houses and damaging business houses. No one was hurt, however, so far as could be learned. Mr. and Mrs. Clay Adams, former Ozona residents who now reside about 11 miles the other side of Fort Stockton, reported considerable damage to fences and death of a number of sheep as a result of the wind.

Dr. Coates Builds Home In California

Dr. and Mrs. G. L. Coates, formerly of Ozona, are having a handsome new home constructed in Pittsburg, Calif., according to an item in the Pittsburg Evening Dispatch, a copy of which has been received here by Mrs. George Metcalf. One of the principal reasons for Dr. and Mrs. Coates' decision to leave Ozona was the fact that they could not find a suitable home here, and friends in Ozona rejoice that they are able to build a new home in the California town.

The item from the Pittsburg Dispatch follows: "A large new home is being constructed out at Home Acres overlooking the wide expanse from there to the San Joaquin River and the hills across that waterway. It is on Loftus Avenue and will be modern in every way. The architecture is modern Spanish, which is indigenous to the soil here in California."

P.T.A. MEETS MONDAY

The first regular meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association of the current school year will be held at the High School building at 3:15 p.m. Monday, according to announcement by the president, Mrs. W. A. Kay. All members are urged to be present, and visitors invited.

PTA Drops Band Maintenance Plan

Members Decide To Abandon Project At Special Meet

The Parent-Teachers Association will not sponsor a school band during the coming session, it was decided by unanimous vote at a meeting of the association held at the school building Thursday afternoon at the call of the president, Mrs. Albert Kay.

The special meeting of the association was called for the purpose of finally disposing of the band project in order that the band director, J. H. Thornhill, might be notified of the decision. Mr. Thornhill had already left the city, but indicated he would return if the P.T.A. decided it would support the band another year.

Lack of interest on the part of the people and the consequent difficulty in raising the necessary funds were cited as reasons for the organization's action in dropping the project. A committee from the Lions Club, headed by President M. M. Fulmer, was present at the meeting and informed the P.T.A. members that that organization did not feel able to take over the project as a club, but that individual members of the organization had renewed their pledge of support to the band project.

Music Club Opens Year's Work Thurs.

The Ozona Music Club will start off its year's work Thursday afternoon when the first meeting of the year will be held at 3:15 with Mrs. Joe Pierce, Mrs. Hugh Childress and Miss Wanda Watson as hostesses. Mrs. Bright Baggett is leader, the opening program being known as President's Day. The president, Mrs. L. B. Cox, Jr., will deliver her annual message at this opening meeting.

"The Eyes of Texas," "To a Wild Rose" and "Stars Brightly Shining" will be chorus numbers to be sung by the club and a piano solo by Miss Lois Riddle and a vocal selection by Mrs. J. W. Henderson, Jr., will complete the musical numbers on the program. Choral practice and a social hour will be observed at the close of the program.

Ralph Watson Suffers Torn Lip When Rides Into Wire Over Gate

Ralph Watson is suffering from injuries suffered Saturday morning when he collided with a strand of barbed wire across the gate to a trap south of Ozona.

Mr. Watson was horseback, helping drive his lambs to Barnhart for shipment, and rode through the gate at a fast gallop. He did not notice the wire in time to dodge it and it struck him in the face, cutting a deep gash in the lip and cheek.

Others in the party rode to the Elie Hagelstein ranch house and Mr. Hagelstein brought Mr. Watson to Ozona in his car for medical attention. Ten stitches were necessary to close the wound. Mr. Watson is able to be out this week and attending physicians say the wound is healing rapidly.

Columbus And Eagle Lake Scouts Visit California In Truck

Twenty-one Boy Scouts from Eagle Lake and Columbus, Texas, passed through Ozona this week on their way home after a month's tour to Los Angeles, Calif., via Yellowstone National Park and other scenic spots. The boys were travelling in a truck and were under the direction of Rev. J. W. Airey, Scoutmaster at Columbus and Rev. W. A. Flachmeier, assistant Scoutmaster.

Rev. Airey passed through Ozona last year with a group of Scouts on their way to visit Carlsbad Caverns. The boys are well trained and organized and seemed to be enjoying themselves. While here they visited Rev. M. M. Fulmer and A. W. Jones, troop committeemen of the local scout organization.

SUTTON COUNTY LAMBS WEIGHED 68 POUNDS

Clayton Puckett recently delivered a thousand mutton lambs at Barnhart to the Cassidy Southwestern Livestock Commission Company. The animals weighed sixty-eight and two-thirds pounds and were contracted for early at ten and a half cents per pound.

Crockett county lambs have been weighing out at Barnhart, some going better than seventy pounds.

40 Rooters For High Pep Squad

Elizabeth Perner Is Chosen Yell Leader For 1929-30

If Coach Lewis' fightin' gridiron aggregation doesn't turn in a flock of wins for Ozona High it won't be the fault of the rooting section. The Ozona High School Pep Squad is ready and yearning to go when the whistle sounds for the first game of the 1929 season. The pep squad will be directed in its yells this year by Miss Elizabeth Perner, with Miss Louise Henderson as assistant.

Forty lusty throats will open up from the huddle to lend encouragement to the lads in the field when they are opposing invading foes, that number having reported for membership on the pep squad. The squad has been provided with handsome booklets containing well known High School yells and songs with a few new ones added and these will be distributed among the members. Practice is already under way under the direction of the leader and the squad hopes to be in shape for some peppy rooting when the first game of the season is called.

Woman's Club Plans Year's Work Tues.

Plans for the coming year's work were outlined at the first meeting of the club year held by the Ozona Woman's Club Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Max Schneemann. Mrs. P. L. Childress was leader for the day.

The program was designated as "President's Day" and marked the inaugural meeting of the club. Mrs. A. C. Hoover, retiring president of the club, spoke on "The Enjoyment of Being a Club President." The new officers of the club were presented by Mrs. Paul Perner. After a musical number, plans for the year were discussed under the leadership of the president, Mrs. Lee Childress.

The next meeting of the club will be October 8th, when the play "Coquette" by George Abbott and Ann Preston Bridgers will be studied. Mrs. W. R. Baggett is hostess at the next meeting.

J. R. Kersey was in San Angelo on business Tuesday.

11,500 Head Of Lambs Shipped

First Of 25,000 Head Bought By Chicago Firm Loaded

The annual begin of Crockett County lambs is on. Lanes leading to the shipping pens at Barnhart are choked with the fleecy flocks daily as the 1929 lamb crop is moved to market. Five producers with a total of 11,500 head loaded out at Barnhart during the past week. Of this number, 6,286 represented the first shipment of a total of 25,000 head of Crockett County lambs contracted by the National Producers' Co-Operative association of Chicago early in the year. Another consignment on this big purchase is to be made this week-end, according to local producers.

Wayne West, Ira Carson, Massie West and V. I. Pierce were Crockett County producers who shipped last week to the Chicago concern. Wayne West shipped a total of 1750 head of muttons, averaging 71 1/2 pounds. Ira Carson shipped 1150 head averaging 73 1-3 pounds. Massie West 2,000 head averaging 71 3/4 pounds, and V. I. Pierce 1386 head averaging 69 1/2 pounds. These lambs brought 11 cents a pound. George Harrell loaded out 300 head of muttons to Womble of Fort Worth at 10 cents. Mr. Harrell's lambs averaged 70 pounds.

West Bros. and Ira Carson also delivered 5,000 head of ewe lambs to Jess Elrod at $8.50 a head.

Young-Shannon Well Best In Co.

Producer Makes 200 To 500 Barrels Daily In Tests

With estimates on pump production ranging from 200 to 500 barrels a day, Dr. J. W. Young's No. 1 J. M. Shannon, has established itself as one of the best of the Crockett county producers. Following swabbing tests it was thought the well might go on the pump within a few days.

Total depth is 2,556 feet, 10 feet from the lime pay and while it had not been definitely settled, if the well opened a new pool or was a two-mile extension of the Powell area. Dr. Young expressed the belief it is a new pool opener.

It will be called the Shannon pool, Dr. Young said, over long distance Tuesday night. He said six-inch pipe had been landed at 2,512 feet, prior to which 50 feet of crushed rock was run to protect the pad.

With the oil 200 feet from the top Monday a three hour swabbing test was held but the engine was not working well and following a broken belt a thorough test was not made.

The well had 2,200 feet of oil in the hole Tuesday morning and after cleaning out the last ten feet of rock it began swabbing at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at an estimated 500 barrels a day, according to Dr. Young, who also said the gravity was 31 corrected.

It was estimated two or three days would be required to get the well on the pump and by that time it was thought that Humble would be to the location with their pipe line. Meanwhile the swabbing will be continued, it was said. Elevation was corrected to 2,661 feet.

Dr. Young, in advancing his belief the well has opened a new pool, points out the oil being green and being in a different horizon than in the Powell field. Others express the opinion it is an extension of the Powell area.

Earlier reports disagreed on whether the Monday swabbing exhausted the oil. One said that the well swabbed 75 barrels of 29.6 gravity oil in four and one-half hours, making two heads while swabbing, and was shut in with the hole full of oil. Gas was estimated.

FACULTY TELLS SCHOOL NEEDS IN LION TALKS

Men Teachers Guests Of Club At Meeting Monday Noon

STRESS VOCATIONS
Importance Of Vocational Training Pointed Out

Some of the needs of Ozona schools and some of the problems its faculty must face in the operation of the system were outlined before the Lions Club at its meeting Monday when male members of the local faculty were special guests of the club and furnished its "school day" program.

Members of the faculty who were invited guests of the club were C. S. Denham, principal, O. G. Lewis, athletic coach and math teacher, and Elbert Sadler, manual training teacher. Supt. John L. Bishop, a member of the club, was also present and contributed a talk to the day's program.

School life was featured in the Monday program by special request of the club at the previous meeting. The program was not held on the opening day of school because the faculty was too busy on that day getting classes arranged and other details in connection with the opening of school.

Principal Denham explained broadly the purpose of the public school system, pointing out five main purposes of the public schools—training in literacy, training for citizenship, training for leadership, training for a vocation and training in health. The school system is planned to concentrate its energy toward accomplishment of these purposes, Mr. Denham said, and every expansion, every concession to the system goes into the process for accomplishment of these aims.

Coach Lewis spoke on the outlook for athletics in the local school for the coming session, dwelling in particular on the football season, which is near at hand. Coach Lewis declared that the outlook was good for a better football team this year than last. There is a better spirit among the boys who are trying for the team, he declared, and although he sees much work ahead in whipping the squad into shape, he predicts a winning team for Ozona this year.

Mr. Lewis stressed the importance of clean sportsmanship, both in the field and on the sidelines, declaring that the principal aim in athletics is to develop the boy, mentally and physically, and that if the players are taught good sportsmanship and fair play, the time and effort in developing athletic teams would be well spent, even if not a single game were won.

Supt. Bishop elaborated further on the importance of vocational training in high schools. There is a growing demand over the country, he declared, for more elaborate vocational courses in high schools, to give the boy or girl some training in a life's vocation while still in high school. Many boys and girls nowadays do not go to college after finishing high school Mr. Bishop pointed out, and it is mainly for these that the vocational training is advocated, so that a high school education will more nearly fit a boy or girl for entering upon life's work.

Rev. W. R. Swinney, who was chairman of the day's program, threw in a specific suggestion for improvement of the local curriculum. He suggested that a secretarial course be added in the local schools, pointing out that such a course would prove of great benefit to both boys and girls, fitting them for at least one vocation by which they might earn a living. Many high school graduates go to business schools at great expense just to get the same course, he declared, and the training might be obtained at much less expense in high schools.

A Thought
 WORTH REMEMBERING

Indulge in humor as much as you please so that it is not ill-humor.

—G. D. Prentice.

"Co-operation" is one of the most over-used words in the English language, a word that has become a bromide, but one whose presence is indispensable in every after-dinner speaking program.

But despite its over-use and its bromide character in service club and after-dinner programs, it is one of the most significant words from the standpoint of community development of any in the language. It is a word which must be studied closely and analyzed before its entire meaning becomes clear and then its significance becomes apparent.

Think of the things of a community character that have been done and see if a one of them could have been done without co-operation. And then think what could be done with 100 per cent co-operation.

You need not go to a distant city to find your examples. Take those in your home town. How could Ozona have secured her own telephone system, one that was satisfactory to the people had there not been co-operation among those men who put up the capital for the system? How could Ozona have the best hotel between San Antonio and El Paso but for the co-operation of the men who put the money and effort into the project and saw it through to a finish? How could Crockett County have built schools, courthouse, jail, etc., without the co-operation of the people? How could the churches of Ozona have built such elegant houses of worship without the co-operation of the memberships? Do you think the beautiful park in Ozona, with its rows of trees and its rock retaining wall would have been possible had the people of this county and town, the women's organization, the county commissioners, etc., have been at loggerheads and refused to co-operate to accomplish this worthwhile result?

The answer is apparent in all of these instances and many more that could be cited. Now, in the same spirit, had you stopped to consider what other and more wonderful things could be done toward development of this community with a 100 per cent spirit of co-operation?

Do you think it probable that Ozona would have a sewer and natural gas system in a short while if the people of the town by unanimous action placed a proposition squarely before the franchise holders for these utilities, telling them that Ozona must have a sewer and gas system within a certain length of time and that if they intend to install such systems they must do so within that time or such interesting proposals will be placed before other companies that they will be induced to do so?

Do you not believe that, were property owners along every street in Ozona in favor of paving the streets and by unanimous action set about getting that improvement through, they could bring about the desired result in a short time?

Do you not believe that had there been proper co-operation from all sources that a concrete bridge would now span Johnson's Darw in Ozona?

Do you not believe that did the people of Ozona and Crockett County co-operate with the merchants of Ozona, buy all their necessities from Ozona merchants and thus run the local volume of business up, that the price of living would come down in Ozona, that the community would prosper and progress like it has never done in the past and will never do until Ozona dollars are kept in Ozona?

Do you not believe that good roads could be built over every inch of Crockett County should the majority which favors such improvement come forward and assert itself, demand such action and follow it through until it is accomplished even if it necessitates a revolution in affairs that are?

Do you not believe that a new and adequate school building would be erected in Ozona before the opening of the next school term if the people rose up as a man and demanded that it be done?

Do you not believe that health conditions could be improved in Ozona by concerted demand of the people?

Our answer to all of these questions is "yes." We believe that anything within reason can be accomplished by co-operative effort and the affairs of this town and county are no exception. But until the people of Ozona realize that no small group of advocates, no matter how ardent or sincere they may be, can accomplish all of these things without the co-operation of all the people they are doomed to struggle along without the modern improvements that communities all about them are enjoying.

THE SCOUTMASTER SAYS—

If your boy is above twelve years of age and you want him to be "physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight," enlist him in the Ozona troop of the Boy Scouts of America, and we will train him to be "trustworthy, loyal, helpful, thrifty, brave, clean and reverent."

No troop may have more than thirty-two boys, but the boys will be accepted into the troop as they stand on the waiting list. We received two applications last meeting night and have room for a few more. We meet each Tuesday evening at 7:30 in the County Court room.—W. R. Swinney, Scoutmaster, Telephone 116.

As the Crow Flies

Not so long ago a great many people took the crow flight as a measure of the shortest distance between two given points.

Airplanes and geometry have changed that. Now it is air line.

As belief and opinion have changed concerning these, so also have they changed as regards a business house.

Time was when needles, pins, calico and muslin were at once in easy reach of saddle blankets on a rack and canteens hanging from the ceilings, with hackamore adorning the walls.

Now, it is GENERALLY conceded that a specialized store is the Best Place to Trade. The discriminating buyer goes to the luggage shop for his traveling kit; to the clothing store for his clothes, and by the same token—to the grocery store for his fare.

Groceries are our specialty. Ours, very probably, is the freshest stock in town. Last year we turned it twenty-eight times. It is impossible to get anything old from us except that occasional time when we so receive it.

We can supply you better than any one else. Business goes where it is wanted, and stays where it is well treated.

"Los Angeles!" the sneering preacher cried, as Jonah might have whinnied, "Ninevah!" and with equal scorn, "The Spanish missionaries may have called it the City of Angels; but the moving pictures have changed its name to Los Diablos! For it is the central factory of Satan and his minions, the enemy of our homes, the corrupter of our young men and women—the school of crime. Unless it reforms—and soon!—surely, in God's good time, the ocean will rise and swallow it!"

Though he was two thousand miles or more away—the Reverend Doctor Stedden was so convinced by his own prophetic ire that he would hardly have been surprised to read in the Monday morning's paper that a benevolent earthquake had taken his hint and shrugged the new Babylon off into the Pacific ocean.

But Doctor Stedden, if he could have seen the realm he objugated, would have confessed that the devil had a certain grace as a gardener and that his minions were a handsome, happy throng. As it was, Doctor Stedden had never seen Los Angeles and had never seen a moving picture. He knew that the world was going to wrack and ruin—as usual—and he laid the blame on the nearest novelty—as usual.

His daughter had heard him lay the blame in previous years on other activities. She wished he would not.

But then she had not escaped blame herself, and she was in a mortal dread now of a vast cloud of obloquy hovering above her and ominous with lightning.

Her father and mother named her Remember—after one of the Mayflower girls—nearly three hundred years after. Her father often wished that she had been liker to those Puritan maidens. But that was because he did not know how like she was to them, how much they, too, had terrified their parents with their love of finery and romantic experiment.

For it is only the styles and not the souls that change. There are chronicles enough to prove that the same quota of the Remembers and the Praisegoods of Plymouth and the other colonies suffered the same bitter beatitudes and frantic bewilderments as Remember Stedden and Elwood Farnaby endured when their elbows touched in the choir loft of the mid-Western village.

Miss Stedden felt a sudden tremor in Farnaby's elbow; then it was gone from hers; she saw his thumb nail whiten as it gripped the hymn book hard.

Somehow in the words he chanted seemed to stab him with a sense of guilt. He felt it a terrible thing for her to stand before that congregation and cry aloud words of ecstasy over her redemption from sin.

Their secret, unknown and unconfessed, was concealed by the very clamor of its publication. And it troubled Farnaby mightily to be gaining all the advantages of a lie by singing the truth.

When the choir was not singing openly and aboveboard, it was usually busily whispering. Even Elwood Farnaby had to lean over tonight and whisper important news to Remember. He was not permitted to call at her house or to beam her home after the service.

Singing beside her in the house of God—that was different. He told her now that the factory where he was employed would close down the following week because of hard times. Elwood was to have been promoted to superintendent soon.

To Remember Stedden the news that Elwood would have no job in a week and would know no place to look for one had more than a common commercial interest. It was the alarm of fate.

She had loved Elwood since they were children—had loved him all the more for the squalor of his home. He was the son of the town's most eminent drunkard, old "Fall-down Farnaby."

Among the slipshod children of his family Elwood alone had managed to acquire ambition. He had latterly supported his mother and a pack of brothers and sisters. He had even been able to go to the war and win the guerdon of a wound that made him glorious in Remember Stedden's eyes and a little more lovable than ever.

Her father, however, had been unable to tolerate the thought of his daughter's marrying the son of the town sot. Doctor Stedden felt that he was proving his love and wisdom toward his daughter, by forbidding her even to meet young Farnaby outside the choir loft. He was sure that her love would wear out.

He did not know his daughter. Who ever did?

Elwood had expected that the bad news would shock her. But he could not understand the look of ghastly terror she gave him. He forgot it in his own bitter brooding and did not observe the deathly white that had blanched her paler.

Yet he had noted that she was paler of late and had added that worry to his backbreaking load of worries.

She coughed incessantly, too, and kept putting her hand to her chest as if it hurt her there.

On the way home under the wasted magic of the rising moon, Remember did not walk as usual between her father and mother with a hand on the arm of each. Tonight she kept at her mother's left elbow and clung so tight to the fat, warm arm that her mother whispered:

"What's the matter, honey?"
"Nothing, mama," she faltered.
"I'm just a little tired, I guess."

Mem again was coughing violently and the rest of the way home Doctor Stedden was not a preacher anxious about his daughter's soul, but a father afraid of her life. The cough to her parents was an ominous problem. To her it might promise a solution.

Next morning at her father's command Mem went to see Doctor Bretherick. She told him that her parents were afraid her cold was more than a cold, and she coughed for him. He asked her many questions, and she grew confused and apt in blushes that he asked her more. Suddenly he flung her a startled look, gasped, and stared into her eyes as if he would ransack her mind. In the mere shifting of his eyelid muscles she could read amazement, incredulity, conviction, anger, and finally pity.

All he said was, "My child!" There could be no solemn conference than theirs. Doctor Bretherick had attended Mem's mother when the girl was born. He thought of her still as a child, and now she dazed him and frightened him by her mystic knowledges and her five demands that he should help her out of her plight or help her out of the world.

He refused to do either and demanded that she meet her fate with heroism.

In the talk that followed, Dr. Bretherick drew out the fact that Elwood Farnaby was "the man" and suggested a plan for their marriage when the telephone rang.

The doctor's welcoming "Hello!" broke through a many-wrinkled smile. It froze to a primace. As Mem watched he kept saying: "Yes... Yes... Yes!" and finally "That's right, bring him here."

He set down the telephone as if it were a drained cup of hemlock. "It wasn't Elwood?" Mem asked. "No Yes. Well—O God! what a bitter world this is!"

Mem caught eagerly at grief.
"Tell me! What's happened? What's happened to Elwood? He's hurt. He's killed."
"Yes."

It was Dr. Bretherick who afterward found a solution.

"Your cough will take a long time to cure or kill," he said. "But it may come in very handy. I've got it all thought out. You can't stay in this town now, I suppose. Most of the animals crawl away and hide at such a time; so suppose you just vanish. Let your cough carry you off to—say, Arizona or California."

She was startled at this undreamed-of escape. He went on:

"I'll tell the necessary lies. That's a large part of my practice. And practice makes perfect. You will go to some strange town—and pose as a widow."

"You will marry an imaginary man out there and let him die quietly. Then, if you ever want to come home here, you can come back as Mrs. Somebody-or-other."

He chose Woodville as the name Mem was to write of. She was to describe Mr. Woodville's devotion then tell of a hasty marriage and request that her letters be addressed thereafter to her as Mrs. Woodville.

GUIDEPOSTS TO Health and Happiness

By Bernarr Macfadden

In spite of the freedom girls today enjoy, there is a large group of young women who cannot get husbands. It is for them that beauty and charm columns are run in the newspapers.

These columnists tell you that you must be neat in appearance, a good housekeeper, a fine cook, modest and yet entertaining, and that you must never let a man see your faults. I do not doubt that many girls are impressed by this information.

But it is shallow. It makes serious, fundamental principles out of superficial frills. It may be one way of getting a husband, but it is not the best way. Nor will it hold him.

Getting a husband does not depend upon the fragrance of your perfume, the color of your hair, your ability as a cook, nor the amount of "come-hither" in your eyes.

Getting a husband depends, fundamentally and primarily, upon the amount of physical attraction you possess. And I do not mean that a girl must be vampish or even beautiful.

The amount of physical attraction a girl possesses depends upon how much of a real woman she is. A real woman is strong. She can run and jump and wrestle. She swims, plays tennis, enjoys walking. You know at a glance that she would bear normal, healthy children. She is full of vigor and enthusiasm. Vivacity is her greatest charm. Every cell in her body and brain is alive and functioning. Life, to her, is an interesting and thrilling experience. She drains every moment of all it holds.

I am not discounting the value of such womanly virtues as cooking, housekeeping and neat appearance. Nor am I ignoring beauty or charm. But I do say that these so-called beauty experts over-emphasize these attributes.

Every girl should know that sex attraction is not a game of love, but a powerful tool in the hands of Nature through which the propagation of the human race is assured. The more pronounced the sex characteristics, the greater the attraction. Whatever your natural endowment may be you can further emphasize it by paying attention to physical culture rules.

And she is fair... her sunny locks Hang on her temples like a golden fleece. —Shakespeare.

The Care of Blonde Hair

Have you ever realized how many different kinds of hair there are—and that all need different care?

Basically, of course, the care of all hair is the same. The proper care is health care, and the health of the hair depends largely upon the general health of the body. It requires good circulation—which means massage and brushing. And it requires cleanliness—which means proper shampooing and more brushing.

Heads of different colors need different types of shampoos and rinses. Blonde hair, especially, must be carefully washed and rinsed to preserve its natural color and beauty.

Of all hair, I think naturally blonde hair can be the loveliest. Whether it is pale, silver yellow or tawny gold, or a soft, ash blonde fair hair has something about it rare and lovely which sets apart from the browns, reds and blacks of the dark-haired world, and makes us think of fairy tales and golden princesses.

Really golden hair is something to live up to, because it is the rarest of all. Children often have it, but often, too, it darkens as they grow older. The golden-haired woman who stays golden-haired until she is gray or silver, usually takes wise care of her hair.

Here are some of the rules she follows, in company with all her blonde-haired sisters:

She never washes her hair with tar soap or uses sage tea or an oily dark hair tonic, since these are bound to be darkening. Instead she shampoos with a light, liquid shampoo. You may make one at home by dissolving a cake of pure Castile soap, sliced fine, in a quart of boiling water. Let it simmer until the soap is thoroughly dissolved, then put the jelly in a jar and use a little for each shampoo.

If the blonde-haired girl's scalp is dry and she needs a pomade or tonic to use as a massage, she uses a pure white cream, or a little mineral or castor oil mixed with cologne water.

To keep her hair light and fluffy she may occasionally use a teaspoonful of baking soda dissolved in the liquid shampoo; or at the end of the shampoo, a rinse made by mixing one teaspoonful of salts of tartar and two teaspoonfuls of strained lemon juice with three pints of water.

Camomile tea also makes a good rinse, especially for the Titian blonde. To make it, use ten cents worth of the tea boiled in a pint of water. Strain and apply evenly to the hair, leave on a few minutes then rinse in tepid water.

Now Feeling Fit From Head To Toe

"The Sargon treatment built up my whole system and I feel better and stronger than I've felt in years."

My health had been going back on me for three years, mainly from a bad case of stomach trouble. I couldn't eat a meal that didn't make me suffer from dyspepsia and indigestion pains. Even the lightest foods soured on my stomach and brought sharp pains that almost took my breath. I was bothered all the time by constipation and biliousness and was always having headaches.

"I have used two bottles of Sargon now and am keeping up the treatment. Almost as soon as I started it the pains in my stomach disappeared and I never have indigestion. I can eat anything I want and never have those headaches any more. The Sargon Soft Mass Pills completely rid me of constipation and biliousness without the slightest upsetting. I'm in such fine health now in every way that I want to tell everybody about this wonderful treatment."—W. T. Farmer, 3951 Capital St., Dallas. Ozona Drug Company, Agents.

"SOULS FOR SALE"

After a brief honeymoon she could eliminate Woodville in some way to be decided at leisure. It would be risky, he said to let Mr. Woodville live too long.

A hurricane struck the little town of Caverly on the day of Elwood's funeral. When Mem expressed a wish to sing with the choir at the service over their late fellow-singer, her mother cried, "A girl who's got to go out West has got no right to go out in weather like this."

So she stayed at home and stared through the streaming windows. She saw her poor old father set out to preach the funeral sermon.

He had that valor of the priests which leads them to risk death in order to defeat death; to endure all hardship lest the poorest soul go out of the world without a formal conge. Doctor Steddon clutched his old overcoat about him and plunged into rain that hatched the air in long, slanting lines.

Again and again Mem revolted at the outrage of robbing her own parents of their savings—their one shield against old age. She went again and again to Doctor Bretherick and demanded that he release her from her promises not to tell the truth and not to kill herself.

But he compelled her to his will and she was too glad for a will to replace her own panic to resist him. For a necessary stimulant he prophesied that somehow in that land of gold she was seeking she would find such wealth that she could repay her parents their loan with usury, with wealth, perhaps. Who knew?

He spoke of many women who had begun poor and finished rich.

"You might go into the movies, for instance, and make more money than Coal Oil Johnny," he said.

Mem imbibed mysterious tonics at the doctor's office, and always came away buoyed up with the feeling that her tragedy was unimportant, commonplace, and sure to have a happy finish.

But the moment she reached her home she entered a demesne where everything was serious where jokes were never heard, except pathetic old witticisms more important in intention than amusement.

And at last, one day, quite unexpectedly, when she was under no apparent tension at all, the girl went into Mrs. Steddon's room and said, in a quiet tone:

"Mama, I want to tell you something. I'd rather break your heart than deceive you any longer."

"Why, honey! Why, Mem, dear, what on earth is it? You can't break this tough old heart of mine. What is it?"

She whispered it so softly that her breath was hardly syllabled.

"Mama, I—I'm going to have a—to have a baby."

The shock of the news was its own ether. Mrs. Steddon whispered back, covering:

"You? You! My baby! You? A baby?"

Mem nodded and nodded till her knees were on the floor and her brow in her mother's lap. Old hands came gropingly about her cheeks. She felt the drip, drip of tears falling into her hair, each tear a separate pearl from a crown of pride.

Then her mother fumbled at the dreadful question:

"But who—who—"

"Elwood!"

Mrs. Steddon's decision was easy and she made no difficulty of the gross deceptions involved. Her husband must be protected in his illusions and protected from the necessity of wreaking his high moral principles on his own child. His child must be protected from the merciless world and the immediate wrath of the village.

Miss Mildred Davis will leave Saturday to enter Simmons University at Abilene.

The Town Doctor
(The Doctor of Towns)

Says

GET COMMUNITY MINDED

What you do, what you say, your attitude toward the place where you live, creates or destroys public opinion, prestige and good will of your community.

Other people look to you for an example—if you do not speak well of the community, if you do not do something for the community, others will do likewise.

No city, town, village or hamlet can expect to become a better, more interesting, more attractive place in which to live, work, play and prosper unless everybody does a little something. It isn't necessary to spend days or weeks on a drive of some kind; you don't have to get out and make a show of yourself; or is it necessary for you to be one of the big toads in the puddle, to be able to do something.

And don't think that when you do something for the benefit of others, that you are a martyr to the cause; nor that you are donating. Get it out of your head that you are doing something charitable every time you go a little out of your way to perform a little service or dig down in your pocket for a few dollars to make possible something that the other fellow will get some good out of.

You can't make money unless the other fellow does. What profits the community profits you, and there are no "ifs", "ands" or "buts" about it.

Do something! You have a dozen chances every day to do something, to say something that will build! You have as many opportunities to put your foot on what others say and what others fail to do that tears down.

Get Community Minded! It is good business, and plain, everyday, common sense.

CHALLENGE TO NATION FROM BOY SCOUTS

(Reprint from Dallas News)

Every thoughtful person today is concerned with making America's moral development keep pace with all other progress. Neither the school nor the church has found the complete solution to this problem. To sympathetically guide and develop the interest of boys as they approach manhood is a logical way of giving direct assistance.

In this respect the Boy Scout movement offers an opportunity not equalled in any other field. So varied are the interests it covers that practically all types of boys find congenial points of contact.

The self-discipline required by scouting puts stability into character and develops the highest type of leadership. What will it mean for citizens of the future when Governors, States' attorneys, Mayors and all others associated with them administer public affairs with honesty, integrity and fair play, which are the normal outgrowth of scouting experience?

From my own eighteen years of experience in scouting and with it I issue to every community this challenge:

Make every boy a scout, under good leadership, in an adequately supported Boy Scout organization. Keep him there, at least between the ages of 12 and 16, and in two generations, or at least three, vice and crime will have decreased to a minimum.

This is not an idle boast, nor hazy dream. It is a reasonable expectation based on an experience of facts and following through boys of various communities having become scouts.

Our task, as scouters, has only begun. We must not stop; we need the help of every able man to lend a hand and help develop our boys of today and the men of tomorrow.

THE LONG SILENCE CONTRADICTIONS PLAYING THE GAME

My greatest ambition, at the age of seventy-six, is to be fair, polite, and as little of a nuisance as possible to others to meet my just obligations to the world, and get out of it with as little annoyance to others as possible. . . . I long to oblige my children by being as little trouble to them as they have been to me, and I have good children. I have a vague ambition to imitate Lyncurgus in one respect. When he was old and useless, he left a kind and intelligent word to his acquaintances, and went on a journey. He was never seen again. I have a vague ambition to spend my last and worst day in a distant place. An occasional friendly letter to my children, and then the long silence. . . . If my final attendants are honestly able to write to my children I was reasonably patient, and in possession of my faculties, I would consider that an achievement: old men not themselves have always been distressing to me.

I have long observed that everything is contradicted. As wise a man as I know will make a statement to me and another equally wise declares there is nothing to it, and my informant a fool. Anatole France once wrote: "Every false idea is dangerous. Dreamers are thought to be harmless. It is a mistake; they do a great deal of harm. Apparently the most inoffensive are really injurious; they tend to make one disgusted with reality." . . . This I thought excellent. . . . On the same page, six lines below the statement quoted, Anatole France wrote: "To know nothing at all; to imagine is everything. Nothing exists except that which is imagined." . . . A direct contradictory by a wise man. Which statement does he believe? Probably the first, since it is sensible, while the other is foolish. . . . Why does this author contradict himself? Because he is a writer. Having exhausted his own side, he writes pot boilers on the other. . . . Writers do this. Sherwood Anderson, another author, owns two newspapers in the South. In the election one of them supported Mr. Hoover for President, and the other, Mr. Smith.

Big business is like big baseball; players are mainly country town men who have climbed into fast company solely on merit. . . . I was once talking of baseball to an old player, who had been given a chance in fast company, and failed. He did not exhibit the slightest bitterness because he was compelled to quit the game, and engage in law. "In order to be accepted in the big leagues," he said, "a man must have everything; I hadn't it." . . . In business, as in baseball, the game is played in the country as well as in the big towns, and the same rules hold good; most applause and profit for those best able to hit the ball, field and display the most intelligence. The stars in the big towns are constantly dropping out because of age; recruits must be had from the country, and always the recruits are selected strictly on accomplishment. . . . Any young man who understands the game of baseball and its rules understands the conditions governing success in life. If he fails to play the game as well as he might, let him take his medicine with as good grace as possible.

Beautiful samples on display. Get your pick early this year. You will get a worry off your mind and have a wide choice of cards, too. See the 1929 samples at The Ozona Stockman.—Adv.

Let us hope the highway patrolmen will soon be on the job. They are needed. Reckless driving and blocking of highways and endangering the lives of travelers by carelessness of motorists should be prevented as much as possible. A term in jail and cancelling license to drive a car would put a crimp in some reckless speeders that a fine would never do. Our judges should consider the safety of the public in handling reckless driving cases.—Uvalde Leader-News.

THE PAJAMA FAD.

This season's pajama fad among men, which was given such an impetus through street appearance in nocturnal garb by Editor Saunders of North Carolina, may be something more than a passing novelty.

We doubt that the actual wearing of night clothes in the daytime is likely to become general, even in torrid weather, but the idea of more sensible clothing for men is one which seems bound to become more widespread. Already we have seen a revolt against the stiff-bosomed shirt, the starched collar and the barrel cuff, even though the comfortable suspenders of old have been largely superseded by the often distressing belt.

Certainly there might be devised a species of male garb which would at once fulfill the requirements of neatness combined with comfort. Whether it shall take the form of modified and glorified pajamas, or something entirely different remains to be seen.

But when it arrives it should be welcomed by the long suffering masculine tribe—if the members thereof have enough nerve to wear it.—Ft. Stockton Pioneer.

Mrs. P. C. Coates and children, Miss Louise and P. C. Coates, Jr., are here this week from their Fecos County ranch. P. C. Jr., leaves this week-end for College Station where he will enter A. & M. College.

Mrs. Minnie Mansfield and son of Bandera and Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Thomas and son of Oklahoma, stopped over in Ozona Sunday for a visit with R. J. Cooke and family. Mrs. Mansfield and Mr. Thomas are cousins of Mr. Cooke.

LOST—Handtooled leather purse with initials N. H. S. under flap. Contained four one-dollar bills and some change and a lady's wrist watch. Liberal reward for return to Mrs. Elton Smith or The Stockman office.—22-lrc.

Helm did not get far with his insanity plea. The jurors took ten minutes to agree that he was sane, just as sane as he was when he robbed the bank at Cisco and killed two policemen in the get-away. The sooner Texas juries put the lid on these slobbering wemen, and fool preachers who have connivance fits over dirty murderers, the better for our state.—Uvalde Leader-News.

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS—
The new line of 1929 Christmas greeting cards is the most beautiful ever offered. See them today at The Stockman office.

THE New BUICK

New Controlled Servo Enclosed brakes

unrivalled for smooth, sure, silent operation in any weather . . .

To Buick, pioneer of four-wheel brakes, now falls the distinction of another major achievement in this same vital field: the development and introduction of Buick Controlled Servo Enclosed Brakes—the most effective four-wheel braking system ever devised for any automobile!

Buick's new brakes are of the highly efficient internal-expanding type. They are fully enclosed—fully protected against dust, dirt and water—and thus assure maximum braking effectiveness under all weather conditions.

They represent the highest development of the self-energizing principle, which makes the car's own motion provide part of the braking effort. They reveal unmatched responsiveness to the slightest pedal pressure. And they are so perfectly controlled that "grabbing" is entirely unknown! When you apply these brakes, you obtain the most positive, as well as the smoothest and most silent action you have ever experienced in any automobile!

Drive the new Buick! Test not only its matchless new brakes but its brilliant all-round performance, riding comfort and driving ease—all of which combine to establish the new Buick as the greatest value ever offered in the fine car field!
