FOOD

Long Island ships dressed ducks to California. California sends turkeys to New York. Florida ships trainloads of celery to the North and Jacksonville stores sell California celery. New Jersey raises strawberries, onions, cabbages, but Jersey suburban housewives buy them from grocers who in turn buy them from New York City wholesalers.

The Federal Farm Board should find ways to eliminate these round about methods of food distribution with their expensive freight rates, and profits to half a dozen middlemen. The food supplies of big cities will some day be grown in regions adjacent to the cities. It will be cheaper to grow winter vegetables under quartz glass in electrically heated hothouses than to haul them across a continent.

BUILDING

The last stand of the hand-worker against the machine is in the building trades. Building costs are excessive all over the country and are still mounting. Wages go up without corresponding increase in productiveness. In the mechanized industries higher wages reflect higher production.

It is perfectly possible to erect houses of any size out of standardized, machine-produced elements, which any unskilled workman can put together under competent direction. Plastering is unnecessary; many wallboards on the market are better and more economical. Painting can be done more efficiently and cheaper by spraying.

MARCONI

Thirty years ago a young man with an inquiring mind succeeded in sending a signal across the Atlantic without wires. That was the beginning of radio. Everybody knows some of the things that radio has accomplished since then, but there is more to come.

Marconi looks for the transmission of power by radio before very long. Television—seeing at a distance—is just around the corner, already here in the laboratory. A photograph sent across the ocean by radio enabled the London police to catch an American crook the other day. Short radio waves raise the body temperature, so that we may yet keep warm in winter by having radio terminals on opposite sides of each room.

THINKING

If you want to get your pay raised, think. A big automobile factory needed more space. A young engineer climbed a girder and looked over the machinery floor. He thought for half an hour then showed his boss how overhead carriages could replace the trucks which carried parts to and from the machines. The space saved in aisles and passageways provided room for additional machines, to house which the company had contemplated spending a quarter of a million. The salary raise the young engineer got represented interest on a fifth of that.

The world pays more for ideas than for anything else. They must be sound, constructive ideas, the product of real thinking. Every step the world takes in advance is the result of somebody's thinking.

W. R. Wallace Dead, Funeral Wed

Local Paint Contractor Succumbs Tuesday Afternoon

Funeral services were held at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon from the Ozona Methodist Church for William Renshaw Wallace, 33, Ozona painting contractor, who died at 1:15 Tuesday afternoon in the apartments occupied by the family over the Ozona Drug Company.

Services were conducted by Rev. J. H. Meredith, pastor of the Methodist Church. Burial was in Cedar Hill Cemetery, with Joe Oberkamp in charge.

Mr. Wallace had been a resident of Ozona more than fifteen years. He had been engaged in painting and interior decorating during that time. He married Mrs. Ruby Rexrode in San Angelo on November 24, 1926, and brought his bride back to Ozona to make their home. Mrs. Wallace has for the last several months been proprietor of the Theo. Patra Beauty Parlor here.

Mr. Wallace was born in Sparta, Tenn., on April 21, 1896, coming to Texas in his early youth. He was widely known in this section and hundreds of friends followed the body to its last resting place in Cedar Hill Cemetery Wednesday afternoon.

Active pallbearers were Raymond Bennett, Glenn Rutledge, Lee Scallorn, W. L. Smith, O. J. Nolan and J. C. Butler. Honorary pallbearers were H. O. Word, H. P. Vaughan, L. L. Bewley, Warren Clayton, Dr. W. E. Cox, Scott Peters, L. B. Adams, Joe Oberkamp, Joe North, J. O. Secrest, Bill Grimmer, Tom Smith, R. R. Dudley, J. T. Keeton, W. W. West, Hurst Meinecke, R. J. Cooke, W. H. Augustine, F. A. Gray, Richard Flowers and S. L. Butler.

Surviving besides the widow are four sisters, Mrs. Chas. Hurd, Mrs. T. K. Crane and Mrs. M. C. Hudgens, all of Sparta, Tenn., and Miss Ida Wallace of San Angelo, his step-mother, Mrs. W. R. Wallace, Sr., of Sparta, Tenn., two brothers, Byrd and Charles Wallace of Sparta and one half-brother, Tom Hudgens of Sparta.

Action Deferred On Charity Body

Lions To Further Consider Project At Next Meeting

Action on a committee report which recommended the creation of a local united charities body for the purpose of directing relief work locally was deferred by the Lions Club until its next meeting when the report was presented to the club at its meeting Monday noon.

Lack of sufficient time in which to discuss the project forced the postponement of further consideration. The committee report, outlined in last week's issue of The Stockman, proposed the creation of a charity organization composed of five members whose duty would be the annual collection of a fund sufficient to meet the local charity needs for the coming year and the distribution of such funds under proper supervision throughout the year.

A string quartet composed of "Arkansaw" Jordan, Hartley Johnson, Clyde Barbee and Neville Davis entertained the club with a number of old time melodies as the entertainment feature of the program.

Rain Here Tuesday Will Prove Benefit To Range Sections

Although light for the most part throughout the area, rains which fell in this section Tuesday will prove of considerable benefit to winter ranges, coming on the heels of the extended cold spell, which itself brought some moisture in the form of snow and sleet.

MAKE IT UNANIMOUS AN EDITORIAL

Just two weeks from next Saturday Crockett County voters must again go to the polls and again cast their vote on the question of whether or not this county will issue $375,000 in bonds for the purpose of matching state and federal funds to three times that amount to build $1,500,000 worth of paved roads through Crockett County.

That question won the overwhelming approval of the voters when submitted on December 21, but the legal phases of the procedure bringing about the election did not find favor in the eyes of the attorney general of Texas, and now it must all be done over again.

The proposition is just as important, possibly more important now than it was in December. This time the election order is in tip-top shape and should go through the state's legal scrutiny without a bobble. The need for good roads is more apparent every day and a stronger vote should be registered for the proposition at the coming election than was polled in the December election.

The majority having spoken in such decisive terms, there should not be a single vote polled against the bond issue in the election February 15. Maybe you feel a bit down and out after paying your taxes, automobile license fees, leases etc., and maybe the price of wool is low and all that, but a temporary depression should not be weighed against a project that extends over a period of thirty years. The depression, if there be one, and a person usually feels a bit depressed after paying up the first of the year, will pass but the need for good roads will continue always.

The state is still holding that three-to-one offer to Crockett County open, but if this county should defeat the bond issue for its share to match this liberal offer, it is doubtful that it will ever be renewed. Such an offer has never before been made to a Texas county so far as we know and if Crockett County ever hopes to have a system of good roads, this is a chance of a lifetime.

In this connection let us remind you who have not yet paid that poll tax, that there is just one day left in which to pay this tax and to earn the right to vote on public questions. This is another important political year, when Texas elects a new set of officials and the county does likewise. At least one local contest is just ready to boil over and all in all, politics, both local and state, promise to be most interesting this year.

With this in the offing, every voter should make a special effort to see that his or her poll tax is paid. When you wake up Saturday morning of this week, February 1, and your poll tax has not been paid, you must just resign yourself to being denied the right of franchise for a period of one year. You cannot vote on any matter of city, county, state or national interest. No matter how strong may be your feelings on any public question, you must be silent, for you have not the right to speak with your ballot.

That is a most unfortunate situation for one who has the interests of his own community, his county, his state or his nation at heart, and it is such a simple matter to avoid that state. If you have forgotten to pay your poll tax thus far, for heaven's sake don't take any further chances, go now and get your receipt.

And use it the first thing toward piling up a total of 300 votes unanimously for the issuance of $375,000 in bonds to pave 82 miles of Crockett County roads. Remember, the election to decide the fate of Crockett County's roads will be held February 15, two weeks from Saturday, and remember also, that Friday of this week, January 31, is absolutely the last day for paying your poll tax for the coming year.

The fall here amounted to an estimated quarter of an inch and was reported fairly general in this section. Rising temperatures preceding the rain prevented injury to livestock.

Joe Oberkamp Is Accident Victim

Foot Injured As Shotgun Is Accidentally Discharged

Joe Oberkamp, local furniture and hardware dealer, is in a San Angelo hospital recovering from injuries suffered Sunday morning in a hunting accident on the Pecos River.

Mr. Oberkamp received the full load from a shotgun in his foot when Conley Cox, a member of the duck-hunting party, stumbled and fell, the gun being accidentally discharged.

Members of the hunting party besides Mr. Oberkamp and young Cox were Sam Cox and Ralph Meinicke. The party was creeping up to a body of water in the hope of getting a shot at some ducks. Young Cox was in the rear and in making an effort to get on the firing line with the other hunters stumbled and fell, the charge from the shotgun entering Mr. Oberkamp's foot at close range.

The injured man was brought here for first aid treatment and then was immediately taken to San Angelo, where doctors found that his injuries were not serious. No bones were broken in the foot, according to word received here, and the wound is expected to heal without difficulty.

ONE DAY LEFT TO PAY TAXES

One more day left! Tomorrow, Friday January 31, is the last day of the allotted period for payment of taxes and automobile registration fees.

After tomorrow penalties ranging from 10 to 20 percent apply on property taxes and automobile registration fees. After tomorrow you will be disfranchised for a period of one year unless you pay your poll taxes.

The expected rush on the tax collector's office materialized the first of the week and lines were forming outside the collector's office Tuesday. Sheriff W. S. Willis and deputy Tom Casbeer say that they will do all that is humanly possible to take care of the last minute taxpayers tomorrow. The office will be open Friday night as late as taxpayers continue to come in.

Dr. Ruby Otoupalik and Mr. Otoupalik will leave Saturday for Hamlin where they will attend the monthly meeting of the Oil Belt Chiropractors' Association which convenes there Sunday, February 2. This meeting will mark the close of the year and among the important matters to be before the meeting will be the election of officers for the coming year. A luncheon will be served visiting delegates at the Morgan Hotel.

FIXED DATES DECIDED FOR ANNUAL FAIR

July 3, 4 and 5 Permanent Dates, Assn. Heads Decide

TO ADD GOAT SHOW New Feature Added To Broader Local Attraction

The fifth annual Crockett County Rodeo, Race Meet and Stock Show of 1930 will be held in Ozona July 3, 4 and 5 and hereafter three days out of the first week in July of every year, to include the Fourth of July, will be the permanent dates for the Ozona show, it was decided at a recent meeting of stockholders and directors of the Crockett County Fair Association.

Selection of a fixed date for the local celebration will go further toward putting it on a permanent basis, in the opinion of heads of the local association, and inasmuch as the Ozona fair had its inception as a Fourth of July celebration that date has been chosen for the permanent date of the local annual affair.

Organization of forces, appointment of important committees and formulation of definite plans for the fifth annual Crockett County event has already been definitely put under way by the association heads and the promise is bright for the best celebration in the county's history this year.

Among new features to be added to the stock show this year will be a goat sale and show. Heretofore some goats have been shown but very few and officers of the association have decided to appropriate a liberal sum for premiums in a full-sized goat show to be held in connection with the fair this year.

In order to accommodate the animals which fair officials hope will be attracted here by this new offering, it will be necessary to erect new sheds on the fair grounds. Between $500 and $1,000 will be spent within the next few weeks in the construction of roomy quarters for the goats and every accommodation that is offered in other departments will be offered in the goat division.

Selection of a chairman and members of a committee to have charge of the goat show and sale is now before heads of the fair association. This selection will be made in the near future, while other committees are being definitely chosen, and full details of the goat show and sale will be broadcast throughout the goat raising sections.

Prizes and premiums to be offered in the rodeo, races and stock show events this year are expected to exceed the $5,000 mark reached last year. Advertising matter carrying details of the prizes and premiums to be offered in the various events are expected to be in circulation within the near future.

Work will also start soon on compilation of data for the annual souvenir catalogue for the 1930 show, giving a full list of prizes and premiums, each day's program in detail, local pictures and general information and reading matter of interest throughout this section. These catalogues will be off the press well in advance of the celebration and will be distributed in all sections of the stock raising area.

Capacity crowds greeted the famous Simmons University Cowboy Band when it appeared in two concerts here Saturday and Sunday. The band was heard in concert Saturday night and again Sunday morning in the auditorium of the Baptist Church.

CASTLES IN SPAIN

I have been reading the story of Cecil Rhodes.

His life was full of adventure; it makes excellent reading.

But the passage that interested me most was this: Riding to the Matoppos one day at the usual four miles an hour, Rhodes had not said a word for two hours, when he suddenly remarked, "Well, le Sueur, there is one thing I hope for you, and that is that while still a young man you may never have everything you want."

"Take myself, for instance. I am not an old man, and yet there is nothing I want. I have been Prime Minister of the Cape, there is De Beers (the diamond mines that Rhodes controlled) and the railways, and there is a big country called after me, and I have more money than I can spend.

"You might ask, 'Wouldn't you like to be Prime Minister again?' Well, I answer you very fairly—I should take it if it were offered to me, but I certainly don't crave for it."

At twenty-five he was so rich that he did not want for any of the things that money can buy; at thirty-five he did not want anything at all; at forty-nine he died.

I hope I may never be guilty of writing anything intended to make poor people contented with their lot.

I would rather be known as one who sought to inspire his readers with a divine discontent.

To make men and women discontented with bad health, and to show them how, by hard work, they can have better health.

To make them discontented with their intelligence, and to stimulate them to continued study.

To urge them on to better jobs, better homes, more money in the bank.

But it does no harm, in our striving after these worthwhile things, to pause once in a while and count our blessings. Prominent among my blessings I count the joys of anticipation—the delights of electing Castles in Spain.

Garage Employee Is Seriously Burned As Torch Explodes

John Simms, employed at the Wilson Motor Company, suffered painful burns about the face and hands last Saturday when a blow torch which he was using to thaw out frozen water pipes exploded in his hands, showering him with burning gasoline.

The torch contained but a small quantity of gasoline and this fact is believed to have prevented more serious consequences from the accident.

Simms' clothing was ignited by the burning gasoline but he removed them before he had suffered any serious burns about the body. The wounds were dressed here and the injured lad was able to be about again the first of the week.

Sutton To Ask Vote On Bonds To Surface Spanish Trail West

A movement looking toward an election to decide whether or not bonds shall be voted to pave Sutton County's part of the Old Spanish Trail west to meet the paving to be done by Crockett County if the $375,000 bond issue passes here in the election February 15 is under way in Sonora, according to reports from the neighboring town.

Action on this project would have been taken before now, prominent Sonorans report, but

BATHTUBS
Have you a bathtub in your home? No, that isn't "Foolish Question Number Umpteen." There are nine million homes in America without bathtubs, according to the Statistical Abstract of the United States. Only two houses out of three have them. A few years ago, as time goes, nobody had bathtubs. There was one in the White House when Lincoln was President, and when President Cleveland wanted to have a second one put in members of Congress made speeches denouncing the bad example of luxury which the President would set! The first bathtub with fixed plumbing was installed in Cincinnati less than 100 years ago and physicians denounced the habit of bathing as injurious to health.

Times change and luxuries multiply. Today 15 million homes have electric flatirons, 7 million have vacuum cleaners, 5 million have washing machines, nearly three quarters of a million have electric refrigerators. The time is coming, and coming soon, when these and other electrical appliances will be regarded by everybody in America as of as great importance as the bathtub, but it may be another hundred years before everybody has them, and even then there will probably be some homes without bathtubs.

FEDERAL AID FOR THE SMALL BUSINESS MAN

"Even as we laud the splendid efforts of these leaders of industry," said Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, speaking of the business conference in Washington, "let us not lose sight of the unnamed hundreds of thousands of 'little fellows' in the business world... the corner grocer, the small-town druggist, the hardware dealer in a modest way, the woman selling 'notions,' the restaurant proprietor with a neighborhood trade... These smaller merchants, with their innumerable stores where business, in whatever volume, constantly proceeds, form the backbone of our American business organism."

That was a splendid tribute to a class of citizens among whom are many who have been feeling lately as if they and their kind did not count for much in the scheme of things. What with chain stores opening up everywhere to compete with the local merchant, and the attention of the public centered on what the "big fellows" are doing, no wonder many a small grocer or druggist has felt as if it were no use to try to keep on going, that there wasn't room in the world any more for his kind of business, or at least for him as a business man. It is one of the most encouraging signs of the times that the Federal Government recognizes the importance of the local merchant and that a man of Dr. Klein's ability and influence should stand out as the spokesman for the small business establishment. The Department of Commerce has been making a study of the reasons for the failure of local merchants in several communities, as the first step toward helping independent business men to hold their trade and share in the nation's prosperity. "Facts and their efficient application," says Dr. Klein, "are the indispensable road workers on the highway of success." And he and his assistants have discovered that most of the failures are due to ignorance of the facts about their own business. Only about five or six percent of the failures of neighborhood stores are traceable to chain-store competition; many more are due to carelessness in credits and collections, to inaccurate bookkeeping, to inability to grasp the essential points of good merchandising and to inexperience.

This is a great work, and the facts discovered and their implications are available to everybody who will ask the Department of Commerce for them.

Real Values At A Real Store

When you think of women's wear, men's wear, childrens clothing, dry goods, etc., think of Lemmons—not some store in a far-away city, inaccessible and out of sympathy with you and your problems.

What you buy in any store is quality merchandise at a fair price. If a store gives you that, then you are satisfied no matter where it is, are you not? All you have to depend on for quality is the reliability of the maker of the merchandise and the retailer who sells it to you. Certain manufacturers have established a reputation for quality through years of fair dealing and these are the manufacturers whose product we sell.

Nationally advertised brands such as Hart Schaffner & Marx Clothing, Munsing, Carter, Bradley, Phoenix, Wilson Bros. and many others must have quality to bear the reputation they do. Compare our prices on these known quality brands! You will find none cheaper in even the largest city stores.

(This is the Sixth of a series of ads on the subject of buying at home. We invite you to read them and consider with an open mind the facts presented.)

The chief argument of trading at home is that it not only rebounds to the benefit of every person in the community, but it actually pays in dollars and cents. Every dollar sent to the city helps to build the city and to tear down your community.

Figure the cost of doing business out of town—figure it honestly. Figure in the cost of a drive to the city in your auto, the gasoline, oil, tires and depreciation on your car. Then figure your hotel bill, your restaurant bills, and the many incidentals that would not happen if you had stayed at home. Then, in the case of mail order business, figure the cost of postage, freight, etc., and the delay in getting your merchandise, the annoyance and further delay in returning unsatisfactory goods for exchange. All of that runs into money whether you will admit it or not.

If you figure the cost honestly you will find it is a case of trying to lift yourself by your own bootstraps.

Consider the case of your home merchant. Isn't it reasonable to believe that he studies his business, is constantly trying to get the best merchandise to place before his customers at the lowest possible figure? And in this day of keen competition, there are few business men who do not run close to the danger line in figuring prices that will attract trade and meet competition anywhere.

It is only necessary to use common sense in considering these problems. The field is open to all who wish to enter any line, and if there were big profits to be made that condition would not last, for every opening is carefully searched out, and competition has reduced everything to the level of lowest possible prices.

Keep Ozona money in circulation in Ozona. It will rebound to your benefit. Every dollar spent here helps you, no matter what business you are in. The more prosperous your neighbor is, the more prosperous you will become. Figure costs honestly, trade where your business will benefit you indirectly, in addition to the benefit you get from your individual purchases. Trade at home!

DEVIL-MAY-CARE

by ARTHUR SOMERS ROCHE
ILLUSTRATED BY DONALD RILEY

Synopsis

At a party in Palm Beach given by Mr. Cooper Clary, Leeson, an attorney, meets Lucy Harkness, known as Devil-May-Care, and she leaves a deep impression on him.

Aboard the Minerva Tim declares his love for Lucy but she replies with contempt, after which he tells her she is being kidnapped.

She then jumps overboard. Lucy reaches land and is taken care of by Dr. Faunce who takes her home.

Later that day Leeson informs her Tim is to be arrested.

Lucy marries Tim Stevens, but leaves him immediately after the ceremony.

While Stevens is hunting his wife, Lucy and Dr. Faunce launch a new boat which is wrecked by a hurricane.

She told herself that her desire to be back on the bridge was due to her desire for fair play, to her reluctance to leave any excitement behind her. But even as she told herself these things, she realized that she was not admitting the whole truth. Certain shy thoughts intruded. . . . How magnificent Tim had been!

How utterly devoid of fear he was! She was awake when he returned, somewhat after dawn, to the house and she descended quietly to the patio, lest the servants be awakened, to greet him.

He was haggard, mud-stained, a stubble of beard was on his chin, but his spirits were gay. He grinned at her.

"If you'd do all this for a man you hate—lord! What you'd be capable of for a man you loved, Lucy Devil-May-Care!" he said to her.

She felt herself blush. "I like fair play," she said. "Oh, I know. Don't be worried.

I'll not bother you. Gosh, but I'm hungry!"

"Sit down," she said.

He eyed her curiously, but dropped into a chair. She went to the kitchen and turned on the electric stove; she was back inside ten minutes, bearing a tray on which was steaming coffee and a plate of scrambled eggs.

"But you don't get it unless you tell me everything that happened," she warned.

He laughed. "Oh, you saw all the excitement! Leaming arrived at five this morning. He'd brought court officers with him; he presented an order restraining any one from entering upon my property until title was adjudicated. I think the old boy exceeded his powers a bit, but it doesn't matter, because Clary and I came to an understanding. Clary's a rotten winner, I'd guess, but he knows how to lose. Offered to buy me out at my own price. I told him I was here to stay; so he offered to effect a combination of his holdings with mine, my crowd to have the majority stock, and we shook hands on it.

"Only man that wasn't satisfied was the marshal. I thought he was sheriff, but he was smaller—try than that. Yep, Maddox was pretty sore at what I'd said, and the men I'd slugged were angry, so I'm under arrest, out on bail, and I'm to be tried this afternoon. I'd plead guilty and pay a fine; only, this Maddox chap got my goat, and he ought to be removed from his two-penny office, so I'll go to court. And that's that."

Tim was up and out of the house when, at lunch-time, she awoke and dressed. She was surprised at his absence and vaguely hurt.

Luncheon seemed strangely lonely. She wondered if Tim were with Fergus Faunce, and tried to imagine what had brought these two together in amity. She couldn't guess. Restlessness possessed her.

And finally she swallowed her pride. She telephoned the courthouse and learned that Tim's trial was set for two o'clock. She drove over to West Palm Beach, parked her car, entered the courthouse, was directed to the proper room, and joined the crowd that thronged in the corridor outside it.

She could make no headway through the crowd until she thought herself to state to an attendant, her name. Then way was made for her, and she found herself in the courtroom. Her husband saw her, whispered to a lawyer, and that worthy immediately came to her side, and led her to a seat beside Tim.

Stevens seemed a bit worried. "My lawyers have been telling me that a conviction, trifling as it is, won't help me with investors. It's not terribly important, but . . . would you mind testifying in my behalf?"

"Why . . . of course not," she replied.

The judge opened proceedings, Maddox, called and sworn, testified that he, acting upon the request of Clement Clary, who had told him that he had reason to believe that violence would be offered his peaceful gang of laborers by the defendant, had, with half a dozen deputies, gone to Seminole Creek. There two of his deputies had been assaulted by the defendant, Timothy Stevens, who had later threatened Maddox with a revolver. He had put Stevens under arrest, but the defendant had resisted restraint.

Two of his deputy marshals were called and corroborated his testimony. Then Stevens took the stand. Duly sworn, he began his story.

"Maddox may tell the truth, your Honor, when he says that Clary stated he expected trouble. The truth of the matter is that I never dreamed of such action until my wife came to me at Mango Key, several miles from the bridge over Seminole Creek and informed me that she had learned of the proposed assault upon my property rights. Naturally, it being a matter of vital importance that the bridges be left standing, I, with my wife and Dr. Fergus Faunce, went by boat to the bridge in question.

"I threw a couple of men off the bridge, and challenged Maddox and his gang to take me. He said that he was an officer of the law—I think he called himself sheriff—which was an untrue statement—but I felt that he was not enforcing justice and refused to yield to arrest. The man is truthful enough, so far as he goes, your Honor, but he doesn't go far enough. I do not believe that he was bribed by Mr. Clary, but I have reason to believe that he owns certain acreage adjoining what was, until this morning, the Clary properties, and believed that the value of his holdings would be enhanced by the destruction of my bridges. You might ask him, your Honor, if my surmise is correct."

Maddox admitted the truth of the surmise, reluctantly. The man was stubborn; Clary had tried to call him off, and now he began to regret his stubbornness. He regretted it still more when Devil-May-Care took the stand. For she not only corroborated her husband's testimony, but remarked that men had shown an exceeding reluctance to attack two, which statement brought a laugh from the crowded courtroom.

That ended the rather flat proceedings; the judge reprimanded Maddox for too zealous conduct and discharged Stevens.

Through the press Tim guided his wife; the pressure of his hands—either one was big enough to enclose her biceps—was strangely pleasant upon her flesh. She was seeing, she thought a new Tim, a Tim that had never existed in the days when she had mocked him, derided him.

"Much obliged, Lucy," he said, as they gained the street.

He bowed, turned on his heel, and left her. She entered her coupe and drove slowly across the toll-bridge, to Palm Beach. At Bradley's she turned into the courtyard parked her car, and entered the Casino.

Gambling seemed indicated. She wanted something to restore that wild uncertainty of racing blood that had been hers last night when she started from the Everglades Club; that had been hers half an hour ago in the street before the courthouse.

As she approached the roulette room she saw young Leeson. With him was Elsie Darragh, a dimpling, smiling, joy-radiating Elsie. She seized Lucy's hands.

"You're the first to know," she breathed. "Just now I reached for some chips, and my hand touched Jim's, and, with the croupier looking on, my dear, he might have heard him!—he asked me to marry him."

Lucy kissed the girl. She held out her hand to Leeson. That young man was blushing, but his eyes were cold. She read his thoughts. They said, "You played with me, found out what you wanted to know, used me, betrayed me. I'm afraid of you; you're not my kind. I need something tamer, I've got it."

She played, unhappily, for half an hour. Why should other people be happy and she unhappy? For Leeson would be happy, despite his thoughts which she had read. He would forget the memory of Lucy in the reality of Elsie. . . . Heigh-ho! . . .

Industry Stimulator

Lord Churston, British financier, on his recent trip to West Texas said:

"There's no chance of comparing America and England. You have the cheapest power possible. Everybody can use it, whereas in England it can't be done. I pay 25 cents a kilowatt hour for electric service. It is impossible for all classes to have this convenience. For instance in the agricultural areas, where laborers are paid 31 shillings a week, they could not afford to buy electric service.

"West Texas should be very thankful for cheap power and for its availability to all. Big power companies certainly are of great stimulation to Texas Industry."

DOCTOR OF TOWNS

HAS OZONA A HOLE IN ITS HEEL?

How do you feel toward the man who wears good clothes, keeps his shoes shined and his hat cleaned, but always on whose abdominal covering, there is conspicuous evidence of many a slip between the cup and the lip; who always needs a shave, and for the years that you have known him never has had a manicure?

What is your reaction when you behold a lady walking down the street all dressed up in the finest raiment, with a hole in her heel? And what would you think if you saw this same lady every day for a week, and every time that you saw her there was the same hole in the same heel of the same hose?

Whatever your reaction to such people, it is sure that you are not attracted to them. It is certain that contact with them does not fill you with joy and pleasure, nor create a desire to be intimately associated with them.

In people such is called slovenliness—or perhaps you have a better word for it; in communities it is "oppressive ugliness." Vacant store rooms with dirty, placarded and messed-up windows; broken, cob-webbed and paper-stuffed second story windows in the business district; vacant houses with tumble-down buildings; dirty streets; highway entrances littered with nondescript road signs; open city dumps and other such things of repulsion are to a community what a soup-stained vest or a heelless stocking is to otherwise well-dressed people.

I know a town where, seven years ago, a store building in the heart of an attractive business district was gutted by fire. Weeds grew rampant through the brick-bats within the confines of still-standing, smutted, charred half-walls.

Several years ago a school building surrounded by fine homes was condemned and abandoned. It still stands, dank and gruesome, its broken windows and rotted doorways yawning ghost-like, from under sagging roof and mildewed walls.

The city hall of a town I know was destroyed by storm some time ago. What was the basement of this building is now a catch-all—a dumping ground for street sweepings, tin cans, junk and corruption—a rodents' paradise of filth and hogwash in plain view of every passerby.

As you are affected by slovenliness in people, just so are the potential residential, commercial and industrial customers of your community affected by "oppressive ugliness."

Don't tolerate abominations that create "oppressive ugliness." They can be eliminated and it's your business and the business of every other citizen to see to it that they are eliminated, because it's costing you money by driving business out of Ozona and keeping new business and new people from coming in.

Sam Cox Home Is Damaged By Fire From Wires Thurs.

Fire, believed to have been caused by defective wiring, resulted in damage estimated at several hundred dollars to the Sam Cox home here last Thursday afternoon.

The fire was discovered breaking through the roof at the rear of the house. Volunteer fire fighters, headed by Chief Joe North of the local volunteer department, used chemicals in fighting the blaze until a hose connection was made from the plug at the Joe Pierce corner, after which the fire was extinguished in a short time.

All of the household furnishings were removed from the burning structure and nothing was damaged except the roof and ceiling of the house.

New Beauty for the New Ford

THE NEW FORD TOWN SEDAN

In the Town Sedan you see a distinguished example of the unbroken sweep of line which adds so much charm to all the new, roomy Ford bodies. Radiator, hood, cowl, lower roof line, fenders, wheels — every point of design reflects the new style and beauty that have been placed within the means of every one. All of the new Ford cars are finished in a variety of colors.

ANOTHER STEP FORWARD

THE introduction of the new Ford bodies has set a high standard of motor car value. From the new deep radiator to the tip of the curving rear fender, there is an unbroken sweep of line—a flowing grace of contour gaining added charm from the rich and attractive colors.

You will take a real pride in the smart style and fresh new beauty of the Ford just as you will find an ever-growing satisfaction in its safety, comfort, speed, acceleration, ease of control, reliability and economy. In appearance, as in mechanical construction, craftsmanship has been put into mass production. New beauty has been added to outstanding performance.

A feature of unusual interest is the use of Rustless Steel for the radiator shell, head lamps, cowl finish strip, hub caps, tail lamp and other exposed metal parts. This steel will not rust, corrode or tarnish and will retain its bright brilliance for the life of the car. Here, as in so many other important details, you see evidence of the enduring quality that has been built into the new Ford.

"The Breakers is on fire!" she heard the croupier say. "Your luck's bad, anyway. Better not buy any more chips, Mrs. Stevens. Look at the fire."

As she came abreast of the bathing-casino, she gasped in sheer delighted amazement. For the flames were shooting up into the air, seemingly hundreds of feet, illuminating the whole vast building. Vesuvius in eruption could hardly be more beautiful, more awe-inspiring.

No one cried, no one seemed sad. That was the marvelous thing about the catastrophe. In few other places in the world could people have faced disaster so philosophically. But these were of the nation's wealthiest. Their losses would not be crippling. Even the hotel company would lose nothing. It could sell the land on which the Breakers stood, for ten times the original cost of land and buildings combined.

The sun, setting over Lake Worth, suddenly shone through the flames, a burnished, angry orange disk. The throngs upon the beach gasped in sheer delight at the spectacle. She found herself suddenly in the midst of a group of friends. Mrs. Copper Clary was among them.

"Aren't you proud of Tim?" the plump matron asked.

"He seems to be a good business man," she rejoined.

"Business? I'm not thinking of business! Look at him, my dear!" cried Mrs. Clary.

"Look at him? Where is he?" asked Lucy.

"He's been everywhere; just now he's on that roof—see?"

Lucy looked. Upon the cottage adjoining the north wing of the Breakers crouched men; white cloths, doubtless water-soaked, covered their heads; they played streams of water upon this building to whose roof they clung. They fought the fire as one might fight the living assault of savages.

She had advanced nearer now; she could pick him out of the others on the roof, by his cat-like agility as he moved about. Oh, my God! Why didn't he come down? What right had he to risk himself up there? He was married, and there were plenty of younger men to take chances. Some one had climbed one of the ladders, was beside Tim, was speaking to him. It looked, from the way he held his face close to Tim, as if he were whispering, but Lucy correctly guessed that he was screaming at the top of his lungs, for in no other way could he be heard above the roar of the flames.

She bumped into Leeson and Elsie Darragh. The girl was flushed with excitement, and Leeson was hardly less excited. He showed a magnanimity of which she had not believed him capable. (Though why should she have judged him harshly?)

"Congratulations on having a man for a husband, Mrs. Stevens!" he said.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

THE STITCH IN TIME

Our working people have learned pretty well the danger of blood poisoning from rusty nail wounds, or, in fact, from injuries apparently trifling, from any outside source that might inoculate the site of injury with dangerous if not deadly germs. Accidental scratches about the hands are seldom produced by surgically clean instruments and, it is not absolutely necessary for a wound to bleed to become poisoned by the violent intruder.

I knew a man who got a splinter-wound while opening a box containing goods for his store; he paid no attention to the little thing—until it compelled. The poison invaded the hand, the arm, the chest; a pneumonia developed from which the patient died within a week from the initial infection. If he had only attended to the small matter in time—but he didn't.

It was just about ten days later when I wounded the knuckle of my right forefinger on a door-hasp of a building only used occasionally; the metal was dirty, of course, exposed to the dust of the street, which the winds carried. The rather deep little cut bled annoyingly, and was quite painful. I thought of my late friend instantly, and his tragic end. I must disinfect at once.

But I had no germicide with me—nothing whatever in the way of iodine, mercury tablets, even without quick access to hot water and soap. I reflected seriously. Finally, a happy thought—I had some matches!

I ignited one, and applied the flame to that wound, until it was sterilized thoroughly—I grinned and bore it, as we often are compelled to endure what is good for us. I never had any trouble with that wound, you may be sure.

I might have averted serious trouble by my prompt though not very scientific treatment of the injury. And, I am relating this to assure you that, if injured, and you have a simple little match or two in your pocket, you can sterilize the wound capably and go on about your business. A stitch in time.

Sutton To Ask Vote

Sutton County has been delaying action to await developments in Edwards County relative to the construction of a highway in that county to meet Sutton's paving to the Edwards line. The project being considered by Sonorans includes the paving of both the Old Spanish Trail to the Crockett County line and the Sonora Rocksprings road to the Edwards county line. President W. E. Caldwell of the Sonora Lions Club, in a talk before that body Monday, declared that one of the greatest needs in Sutton County at present is a paved road west to meet the Crockett County project and it is expected that the Sonora Lions will name a committee at an early date to circulate a petition calling for the bond election.

Tires You Can Put On And "Forget"—as Long as You Drive Your Car!

It's a proved fact! Goodyear Double Eagles outlast the average driver's use of a car. Even so much as a puncture is the exception.

The cost? By the mile very little. Considering the super-margin of safety, freedom from delays and extra shock-absorbing comfort of riding on these big handsome tires, they are the most economical luxury you can enjoy.

The reason? They're the finest tires which Goodyear can build regardless of cost. But the price to you is moderate because of Goodyear's output of tires—almost one-third of the world's total.

We are glad to announce that the index price figure of groceries, as compiled within the week at Washington, shows a 7.8 percent drop.

Coffee is at a new record low price. Maxwell House is going at the present at $1.43 for a 3lb can, or 6 of them for $8.25. Try our DeLuxe Asparagus pack string beans at 3 cans for $1. You can't tell they came from a can.
