ELECTION RESULTS

Well, the first spasm of the Texas election scramble is over and the next is already getting warm.
With the exception of one race, the matter is settled so far as county offices are concerned in Crockett County and we offer up a huge sigh of relief as things get back to normal again, when folks can get to the business of living again.
Nobody is hurt, no ill feelings have resulted from the local contests and everybody is ready to settle back into the customary groove again.

A good loser is one to be admired and congratulated. He not only makes his associates more comfortable, but he is himself happier and able to enjoy more fully the things of life. The few contests that developed for county offices in Crockett County produced some good losers and the people should be proud of a community that is able to escape the bitterness and strife that is such a blighting curse in many places on the occasion of hard-fought political contests. If a community can settle back to normal, good-humored routine immediately after a battle of ballots, it is many times blessed.
We admire most heartily one who fights clean and hard for what he thinks is right, but when the die is cast and the decision read, we admire more the one who, no matter what the outcome, is ready to put aside the rancor and strife and put a shoulder to the wheel for the general good. That's the good citizen, and we hope that local politics will be forgotten in Ozona and the ideal of Ozona's welfare and advancement be sought after as earnestly and as vigorously as political fortune was sought.

WE ARE STILL RURAL

According to the United States Census, the majority of the people of the United States live in "urban" rather than "rural" communities. The Census of 1929 showed 51.4 percent of urban population as against 48.6 percent rural. The Census of 1930 will undoubtedly show a much larger proportion living in communities of a size which the Federal government calls urban.

The catch in this is in the definition of "urban" and "rural."

The Government's position is the arbitrary one that any community with more than 2,500 inhabitants is "urban" and anything less than that in size is "rural." We agree that the line has to be drawn somewhere, but we submit that this is drawing it too far down the line.

Certainly there are thousands of communities of more than 2,500 population whose interests are still rural, whose inhabitants have not got the big city point of view on any of the important matters of manners, morals and outlook on life generally. We can name cities of 50,000 and more whose interests are still almost entirely agricultural, or in lines which depend directly upon agriculture; and a city like that, no matter what its size, is definitely rural.

Rural communities are growing in size; that is clear from the incomplete Census reports already published. Towns which had 2,500 population ten years ago are now for the most part nearer 5,000. But that does not make them any the less rural.

We are almost inclined to agree with the New York Times, which suggests that only cities of 100,000 or more should be classed as urban. If that classification were adopted, about 36,500,000 of the people of the United States would be in the urban group, and the remaining 70 percent would still be rural folk. That would be drawing the line somewhat closer to the top than probably is justified, but there is something in what the Times says about Los Angeles, with more than a million and a quarter population; it is astonishingly metropolitan in some respects but "on most of the issues on which the American people vote, small town."

There is a difference between "small town" and "rural." Mere size of the community in which one lives does not necessarily affect one's point of view. It has been said that there are more "small-town-minded" people in New York than in any strictly agricultural community, and that is probably true. Certain it is that the dominant point of view of the people of America is opposed to the point of view which we think view which we think of in connection with the big cities. Probably the Times is right in saying that the "effective" urban population of the nation is not more than a quarter of the total.

OLD AGE

Renewed interest has been aroued in the subject of longevity by the arrival in America of the ancient Turk, Zaro Agha, who claims to be 156 years old.

Doctors who have examined this aged man say that he is certainly of great age, and that his general condition is such that he ought to live another 15 or 20 years. To be sure, there is no way of proving how old he is. He claims to have fought in the Turkish army in 14 wars, to have married and lost twelve wives in succession, and to have a grandson who is now past 90. That may all be true, but when a man gets to the point where he looks extremely old, it is often easy for him to claim to be much older than he really is. None of the very old people—those claiming to be well over 100—was born in any place where birth records are kept. Old people are often forgetful and not a little vain, and in general it is prudent to discount the claim of anyone to be more than 100.

There seems to be no doubt whatever of the great age of John Voorhees, Grand Sachem of Tammy Hall in New York, however. He was born 101 years ago in July, in New York City, and his christening is a matter of record in the church of the parish in which he still lives.

To draw any conclusion from the manner of living of these two old men, as to how one can prolong one's own life, would be foolish. Zaro Agha, being a Mohammedan, is a teetotaller; he has never drunk anything stronger than coffee and he has never been a smoker. Mr. Voorhees, on the other hand has always smoked and taken a drink whenever he felt like it.
Both men were hard physical workers during their youth and young manhood, but that may have nothing to do with their longevity at all.

The soundest conclusion of medical authorities is that old age is something we inherit, like the tendency to baldheadedness. If one's parents and grandparents, or most of them, lived to old age, it is probable that the individual will enjoy long life, if he takes care of himself. The greatest handicap to longevity in these days is worry.
Everything else being equal, the man who gives his emotions more or less free rein and does not worry about things he cannot help will live longer than the ones who do the world's worrying for it.

After all, it is a matter of small importance to most people whether they live beyond the traditional threescore and ten years or not.
After seventy few care how soon they leave the earthly scene. The important thing is to get as much out of the first seventy years as possible.

It seems pretty certain now that Ma Ferguson and R. S. Sterling will face each other in the run-off primary in August. Jim's hip pocket seems to have been enlarged somewhat since he last inflicted himself upon an otherwise self-respecting Texas, enlarged enough in fact, to carry about a third more votes than its former reputed load.

But we are hopeful that Ma and Jim shot their best barrel in the first primary and that the total in the run-off will be no larger than in the first. Since seeing what a huge vote Jim Ferguson can still command in this state, we are in favor of dividing Texas into at least two states, West Texas and East Texas, turning Jim Ferguson over to East Texas and putting up a wolf proof fence the entire distance of the boundary line between the two. And then we'd equip residents along the border with elephant guns, with instructions to take a pot shot should Ma or Jim ever attempt an entry.

A STOPPING PLACE

In the news one day last week a little story was printed about men models appearing in the streets of Chicago showing off little pants for men. Shorts they call them, and they come in all kinds of colors, ending just above the pretty knees of their male wearing. Rolled sox coming to just below the knee complete the ensemble. Sometimes I fear that men will become as senseless as women about clothes. A few years ago we departed from the old regulation pants to trousers big enough around the leg to make an old-fashioned pair of pants. Now they are trying to put these cute little panties on us. I may have to wear a pair of the cute little things, but I'll be darned if they'll ever get a brassiere on me.—Don Wright in the Crene (Mo.) Chronicle.

An Appreciated Tribute

Re-election to a public office without opposition and without a single "scratch" at the hands of nearly 600 voters is the unique honor that has been bestowed upon me, and I am anxious to show my friends in Crockett County how deeply this honor is appreciated.

It has been my aim since first being elected to this office to render the very best service of which I am capable, to devote my entire time and energy toward performing the duties entrusted to me by the voters and to conduct the office in a business-like manner at all times.

This policy has evidently found favor with Crockett County voters as evidenced by the unusual tribute paid in Saturday's election. For this tribute I want to express my deepest gratitude to the people of Crockett County. I am proud of this expression of your confidence and of your satisfaction with the administration of this office.

I shall endeavor during the coming two years to merit this expression of confidence and I promise my best effort during my next term to continue the efficient administration of the office and to win your continued approval of my efforts.

Again thanking you for your support which gave me a unique honor in political history of this county, I am

Yours most gratefully,

An Announcement of Interest to Patrons of our Service Dept.

Effective June 1, we are turning over active management and supervision of our repair and service department to Arthur M. Quist and Louis Donaho, supervising mechanics, and after that date our repair department will be operated by these men on a commission basis.

Both Mr. Quist and Mr. Donaho are expert mechanics.
Both were formerly connected with the Dudley Motor Company here and Ozona people know their ability as mechanics. We believe that under the new management patrons of our service department will find it more satisfactory to deal directly with the heads of the department where the work is to be done.

This department is thoroughly equipped to do any kind of welding or machine work and to service and repair any make of automobile. Service rates will remain the same as at present and all bills for this work will be handled through the usual channel of the McLeod Motor Co. as at present.

Miss Kathryn Baggett Honoree At Round Of Parties During Week

Miss Kathryn Baggett, whose marriage to Richard Flowers will be solemnized on August 12, was the honoree at a round of parties given by friends here during the past week.

Last Friday evening Mrs. Hugh Childress, Jr., and Mrs. Marshall Montgomery entertained with six tables of bridge at the home of Mrs. Paul Perner honoring Miss Baggett and Mr. Flowers. Miss Tessie Kyle was awarded high score for the girls, a gift of bath salts, Alvin Harrell, a tie for high score for men, and Fred Hagelstein a deck of cards for cut.

Miss Maggie Mae Kay, bride-elect, was presented with a bread knife and board and Miss Baggett was given a set of six individual salt and pepper shakers. Watermelon and punch were served during the course of the evening. The guest list included Misses Mary Childress, Maggie Mae Kay, Eleanor Ingham, Lucile Ingham, Beulah Baggett, Gracia Swanson, Kathryn Baggett, Tessie Kyle, Wanda Watson, Mildred North, Mesdames Ralph Jones, John Curry and Leta Hawkins, and Ralph Jones, John Curry, Alvin Harrell, Ele Hagelstein, Fred Hagelstein, Jack Hagelstein, Jimmie Simmons, Pascal Northcutt, Richard Flowers and Leonard Hensley.

Saturday morning Miss Baggett was again honored at a breakfast bridge and kitchen shower given by Miss Mary Childress at her home. Intimate friends of the bride elect were guests. High score prize for the games went to Miss Eleanor Ingham, two cup towels. Miss Beulah Baggett won high cut prize, a luncheon set. Miss Baggett was presented with a number of useful household articles. Miss Maggie Mae Kay was also presented with a luncheon set. The breakfast menu consisted of cantaloupe, fried chicken, rice, hot rolls, jelly and coffee. Punch was served at the conclusion of the games.

An elaborate pink and blue bridge luncheon was given Wednesday morning by Mrs. Early Baggett and Mrs. Joe T. Davidson at the Davidson home honoring Miss Baggett. The guest list for three tables of bridge included intimate friends of the bride-to-be. Another table was added for uncheon when Mesdames W. R. and J. M. Baggett, Mamie Hagelstein and Frank Friend dropped in.

The color scheme of pink and blue was skillfully carried out in the house and table decoration, in the luncheon and even to the gifts. The tables were decorated with pink and blue shasta daisies, with maline bows of pink and blue tied about the vases. Ribbon and rolled sandwiches of pink and blue bread with pink butter, each tied with pink and blue ribbons, were served, with fruit salad and iced tea. Apricot sherbet with pink and blue decorated cakes were served, pink mints tied with blue ribbons being on each plate.

Miss Baggett was presented with a pink and blue towel, in a blue wrapper tied with a pink ribbon, and Miss Maggie Mae Kay was given a yellow and blue towel, in a yellow wrapper with a blue ribbon tie.

OPEN MIND

Dear Editor:

Good government depends upon the intelligence of those governed.

We boast of having a government for and by the people. Do you fully realize the meaning of that term? Where did government have its origin? With the people.

We first had parental government. Next came tribal government and then territorial government. In time these territories were cut up into small kingdoms and that was the advent of kings and kingdoms that established one-man rule and the beginning of tyranny. As the people became more enlightened they threw off the shackles of tyranny and established what is known as a representative government, the government under which we live today.

It becomes the duty of good citizens of this country to see to it that no organization, clique or clan interferes with the administration of this government. If you expect to have peace, harmony and progress, then you must select men capable of taking care of the machinery of your government.

Two years ago Al Smith and his supporters came to Texas and he was nominated for president of the United States by the Democratic party. There wasn't much harmony about that. If Ma Ferguson is nominated there won't be much harmony or peace in Texas for two more years. Do you believe that?

Washington is called the father of our country. I am wondering if Mrs. Ferguson will go down in history as the only "Ma" of this country. She has had a couple of girls. That's not much, Ma. There are some women with eight or ten children and these women don't want Mrs. Ferguson governing their children.

It has been said that the Baptists elected Neff. Also they are accused of drinking all the whiskey. That is partly so—but you should remember that the good Methodist and Christian people are just across the table wishing them a happy time. You should remember that these denominational names are not biblical. Every organization has a name. All the Protestant churches should stand firmly united in order to have good schools, good communities and good government.

Be on hand and vote in the runoff election. Don't fail.

LAS AMIGAS CLUB

Miss Maxine Roth entertained Las Amigas Club and a large number of guests with eight tables of bridge Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. R. Kersey. Miss Kathryn Baggett and Miss Maggie Mae Kay, brides-elect of next month, were each presented with a gift. Mrs. Marbury Morrison won high score, Mrs. John Curry, low, and Miss Wanda Watson, cut. A dessert course was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Worth Odum and children came to Ozona Tuesday from their home in Pecos County. Mr. Odum spent Tuesday and Wednesday in San Angelo on business.

The thermometer was knocked from its perch at 100 degrees Wednesday by a light rain which fell here, covering a small area about the city. The fall here amounted to about a quarter of an inch but was sufficient to settle the dust and relieve the heat. A good rain was reported on ranches east of town.

Mrs. W. R. Baggett, Mrs. Marshall Montgomery, Mrs. Hugh Childress, Jr., Miss Mary Childress, Miss Kathryn Baggett and Miss Beulah Baggett were in San Angelo Tuesday.

RANCHERS ENDORSE WORK OF SOUTHERN TARIFF ASSN

The results of the efforts of the Southern Tariff Association may be seen by observing the manner in which some of the Southern Senators and Congressmen voted on the recent passage of the tariff bill. The Association deserves the support, both moral and financial, of the people of this section. —Sol Mayer, Sonora.

The Southern Tariff Association was undoubtedly of great help and service to the sheep and goat raisers and the cattlemen in 1922 when the Fordney-McCumber tariff was enacted when the tariff on our products was increased over the very low rates of the Underwood-Simmons law. The Southern Tariff Association in 1929 and 1930 again was an important factor in the framing and passage of the Hawley-Smoot tariff which is the best tariff ever enacted in behalf of the agricultural interests of the United States. —Albert Kincaid, Ozona.

All West Texas should lend aid to the Southern Tariff Association. It has proved its effectiveness and value in the passage of three tariff laws, all affording protection to the livestock industry. . . . Joe Kerr, Sanderson.

We feel that the Southern Tariff Association is worthy of the support of our producers in their desire to obtain fair prices for their products. . . . Geo. E. Webb, San Angelo.

In our opinion the Southern Tariff Association has done a great deal of good along educational lines in stressing the necessity for an adequate protective tariff on Southern products.—J. M. O'Daniel, Wool Growers Central Storage Co.

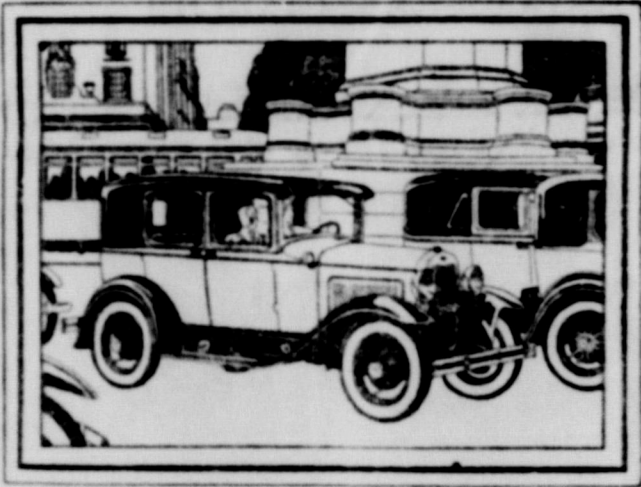

I do not believe the present tariff bill, which is the best ever written, in so far as it affects this section of the United States, would have ever passed had it not been for the work of the Southern Tariff Association.—C. C. Belcher, Del Rio.

I feel that the Southern Tariff Association has carried on a most effective work in behalf of a protective tariff on ranch and farm products and I most cheerfully commend its work. . . . S. E. McKnight, Sonora.

I am well satisfied with the results obtained by the Southern Tariff Association and feel that the organization can render a further service in the matter of increasing the tariff on hides. . . . J. D. Jackson, Alpine.

We consider the work of the Southern Tariff Association of great importance to the ranching and other business interests of West Texas. . . . M. L. Mertz, San Angelo.

Meeting
the Needs of Millions of People

The low-priced automobile has brought greater opportunity and added hours of recreation to millions of men and women.

BECAUSE the automobile is such an important factor in the lives and prosperity of so many people, the purpose of the Ford Motor Company is something more than the mere manufacture of a motor car.

There is no service in simply setting up a machine or a plant and letting it turn out goods. The service extends into every detail of the business — design, production, the wages paid and the selling price. All are a part of the plan.

The Ford Motor Company looks upon itself as charged with making an automobile that will meet the needs of millions of people and to provide it at a low price. That is its mission. That is its duty and its obligation to the public.

The search for better ways of doing things is never-ending. There is ceaseless, untiring effort to find new methods and new machines that will save steps and time in manufacturing. The Ford plants are, in reality, a great mechanical university, dedicated to the advancement of industry. Many manufacturers come to see and share the progress made.

The greatest progress comes by never standing still. Today's methods, however successful, can never be taken as wholly right. They represent simply the best efforts of the moment. Tomorrow must bring an improvement in the methods of the day before. Hard work usually finds the way.

Once it was thought impossible to cast gray iron by the endless chain method. All precedent was against it and every previous experiment had failed. But fair prices to the public demanded that wasteful methods be eliminated. Finally the way was found.

A better way of making axle shafts saved thirty-six million dollars in four years. A new method of cutting crankcases reduced the cost by $500,000 a year. The perfection of a new machine saved a similar amount on such a little thing as one bolt. Then electric welding was developed to make many bolts unnecessary and to increase structural strength.

Just a little while ago, an endless chain conveyor almost four miles long was installed at the Rouge plant. This conveyor has a daily capacity of 300,000 parts weighing more than 2,000,000 pounds. By substituting the tireless, unvarying machine for tasks formerly done by hand, it has made the day's work easier for thousands of workers and saved time and money in the manufacture of the car.

All of these things are done in the interest of the public — so that the benefits of reliable, economical transportation may be placed within the means of every one.

TO MY FRIENDS

The final count of votes in Crockett County puts me definitely out of the running for the office of tax assessor. The voters have two good men to pick from in the August run-off and may the best man win.

I am deeply grateful to those who cast their ballot for me in the first primary. I hold no regrets or ill feelings at the outcome of the voting, for it was my intention at the outset to abide by the people's choice at the polls should it affect me adversely. Even though I failed to make the run-off, I feel that I still have many good friends in Crockett County and after all is said and done I think more of your friendship than your vote.

I ran the best race I was capable of making and the outcome will not alter my feelings in the least. I am proud of the vote I got and grateful for every one of them. Many of my friends did not vote for me, but they are my friends still, and I am proud of a clean campaign that made this possible.

Again thanking you for your vote and your friendship, whether you voted for me or not, I am

Most sincerely,

U. S. 'RUSTY' SMITH

TO THE VOTERS OF CROCKETT COUNTY

With a feeling of deep gratitude for the favors you have shown me in the past and for the support you gave me in the first primary Saturday, I am launching an active campaign for the Democratic nomination in the run-off election next month for re-election to the office of Tax Assessor of Crockett County.

I shall make the run-off campaign as I did the first primary race, on the merits of my record in office. The experience I have gained in the administration of this office I feel fits me for a more efficient and business-like performance of its duties. I have given my best efforts since I have been in office to be worthy of the faith and confidence expressed in me by the voters who have supported me at the polls and if I am again honored by re-election to the office, I shall continue to give the very best that is in me toward a faithful performance of the duties imposed upon me.

If you supported me in the first primary, I am deeply grateful; if you did not, I hold no ill feeling and earnestly solicit the support of all in the coming run-off primary

Sincerely,

O. W. SMITH

Miss Nobody from Nowhere

BY ELIZABETH JORDAN

"Dearie, you could go to the minister's funeral in them," the clerk earnestly assured her. They parted with the impression in both young hearts that they could have loved each other if life had not held so many other interests.

It was pleasant to be clad in her own garments now, though she had to carry Margat's outfit in a box, as well as her own additional purchases, packed in the new suitcase.

Last of all she visited the shop's beauty parlor. "Dye my hair black," she said.

The subsequent effect was not bad, but she surveyed it with more approval than it warranted. It not only changed her greatly, but it crystallized in her mind a half-formed plan to abandon the farm hibernation she had considered, and to remain in the city and get some work.

Back in her hotel rooms once more, she looked at her wrist-watch. Quarter-past four. In less than two hours Hamilton would be calling for her. She wondered what he would think of the dyed hair, and immediately realized exactly what he would think of it. He would not like it. She would put on her hat to avoid giving him too sudden a shock.

There was a tap on the door and she hastened to open it. Almost before she could do so, it was flung open and Hamilton hurried into the room.

"Don't be worried," he said, trying to speak naturally, and even producing a fair imitation of his characteristic smile. "He's down there."

"He? Who?"

But she knew.

"The man you spoke of last night. At least, I'm pretty sure it's the same man. He fits the description, and he's asking at the desk for Miss Berson. He described you to a dot, and Robinson immediately made the bright suggestion that it might be Miss Parsons. Fortunately, I was passing the desk and heard him, so I didn't stop for the elevator, but sprinted up the staircase to warn you.

She caught up her coat and hurried into the bedroom for the suitcase she had not yet unpacked.

"Let's go," she called back as she hurriedly added to it the garments of the night before. "We can slip out the back way."

The room telephone tinkled, but she was already in the hall, almost running. He took the suitcase and kept close by her side, walking with long strides. His manner was normal now, and he spoke so casually that her nerves relaxed.

"Better go down the back steps," he advised, as she turned toward the service elevator.

"Of course. I didn't think."

He led the way and she followed him.

Hamilton picked up a taxicab.

"Up into Central Park," he told the driver. "Make good time and keep going till I tell you to stop." As the cab started he turned to his silent companion and was shocked at her pallor.

"There's nothing to worry about now," he hastily reminded her. She broke out with a desperation that horrified him:

"Perhaps not . . . till the next time! But I can't keep up this sort of thing—running from place to place, hiding . . . or trying hide . . . as if I were a criminal. I can't endure it any longer."

"Of course you can't . . . and you're not going to." He spoke soothingly, as he would to a child.

"As soon as we get to the park I'll tell you how we can avoid any more running and hiding. But just now I want you to relax. There's absolutely nothing to be worried about, and there isn't going to be any more worry for you in the future."

She sighed, plainly unconvinced; but the quiet assurance of his manner had its usual effect, and he was relieved to see her look of high nervous tension give way to one that merely expressed utter hopelessness. Both were silent while the cab made its swift way up Fifth Avenue. When it entered the park Hamilton gave the driver another order.

"There's a quiet little corner up at the northern end where we can talk," he explained to Eve. "I've gone there several times lately to think things out."

When they reached the quiet corner he paid and dismissed the chauffeur, while Eve glanced around without interest. She had, indeed, a look that alarmed him—something of the look of an exhausted swimmer, ready to go down.

He led her to a bench and sat down beside her.

"I expected something like this, Eve," he began casually. It was the third time he had used the name, but neither of them was conscious of this. "I don't know why I expected it, he went on, "but I did. Perhaps I had what's called a 'hunch.' Perhaps I merely reasoned that your large friend's next move would be to get professional help and track you. Anyway, I was sure something was coming and I got ready for it. That's why I told you there would be no more of it. There won't be, if you will trust me and do what I suggest."

She replied only with a gesture, but it was a gesture expressing such despair that it made his throat ache. She merely raised her right hand, which lay in her lap, and dropped it again as if the effort had been too much for her; but there was eloquence in the simple action. It implied that she had come to the end of things. He had to wait a moment before he could go on.

"I'll put my plan before you," he said at last, "and I want you to hear it all before you speak. You can't continue like this. You see that yourself, clearly enough. The time has come when you must give some one else the right to protect you. So I want you to go through a marriage ceremony with me, Eve, and I want you to do it right now."

"Of course it will be only a matter of form," he hurried on. "That goes without saying. But it will give me the legal right to stand between you and the world. You can drop your troubles on my shoulders and forget them; and if any large stranger comes looking for you, he'll find me ready to tell him where he gets off. By meeting him, too, I may find out who you are and all about you; and eventually, as soon as you're willing to, we'll get into touch with your family, or with your friends, if you have no family."

She seemed stunned, and he was not surprised. But she asked a question that made his eyes kindle. She was actually considering his suggestion: "Would such a marriage be legal? We don't even know my name."

"Probably it wouldn't be legal in your present condition. But it doesn't matter whether it's legal or not, since it's merely a bluff for present use. The persistent gentleman who is dogging you won't know it isn't legal, any more than he knows of the other complications. I will make him deal with me as your husband, until you meet some one in whom you have more faith. When you are yourself again and all this trouble is past, I shall ask you to really marry me, and if you consent we'll have another ceremony. If you don't, we can have this little bond nullified very easily, as a simple matter of expediency in the unusual conditions surrounding when it was made. And all my life, even if I never see you again," he ended simply, "I shall be happy because I was able to be of use to you."

He stopped now, so definitely that she knew he was waiting for an answer; but she merely repeated that tragic little gesture of her ungloried hand. He took the hand and held it.

"I know all about you," she murmured.

"Of course you do. I saw to it that you knew all about me, for I was sure something like this would come up."

He thought he was following the workings of her mind, but her next remark surprised him.

"You don't know anything at all about me. Why!" she broke out. "I may be a criminal . . . an adventuress! I may be anything! It will be taking advantage of my one friend. It may put you into a position that is simply horrible."

"See here," he said, "I won't have a moment of peace until I've safeguarded you. Let's stop talking and go and be married."

To his incredulous delight she rose as if the matter were settled.

"But I've warned you," she reminded him as they walked to the nearest roadway.

"And I think," she added, "I'll despise myself for letting you do this."

They followed the roadway, walking several minutes before they found an empty cab to take them to the marriage license bureau. There, after the perfunctory details were over, Eric asked Eve:

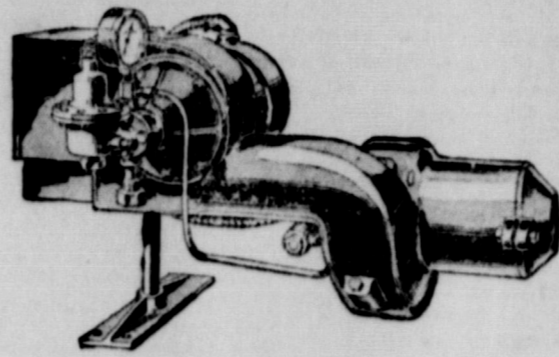

"Which shall it be—the justice or the clergyman? As it's only an affair of form, I suppose it does not matter, though I think the clergyman would be better for our purpose."

"I think so, too," she agreed, almost inaudibly. After that she did not speak until they reached the East Side of the license bureau.

The clergyman filled in the marriage certificate and offered it to Eve, who took it and held it vaguely, as if she did not know what to do with it.

"Put it in your hand-bag," Hamilton said, and she followed the

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

AN EPISODE

Bill sat in his buzzing flivver at the front gate, awaiting revised orders as to what he should bring from town. After a long moment, his father's head appeared at the little farmhouse door, with "That's all, Bill—an' be shore not to forget them pills—an' hurry right back."

The farm-boy chugged away, finally pulling up in front of the village drug store; "I want a box of the best liver pills ye got," he informed the spectacled dispenser of life-savers; after some discussion as to the sort most effective, Bill took a quarter's worth of the "improved," any three of which would have probably torn through a wooden man. The dutiful boy soon gathered the rest of his items and skurried home.

John, Bill's elder brother, had been "layin' around two days, with colic in his bowels—couldn't work—needed his liver shook up"; symptoms, diagnosis, treatment, Johnny took a full dose of the "best pills to be had," that night at bedtime. He put in a bad night, Johnny did; by the middle of the next day he was very much swollen in the abdomen, was in great pain and at intervals, delirious. The mother called the doctor.

It didn't take ten minutes for the physician to build a few conclusions—sharp and emphatic they were. "This boy has a ruptured appendix and consequent peritonitis; you should have consulted me at the very beginning of his complaint; not it is very late; he must be rushed to the best hospital available, right now! Every split second of delay lessens our chance of saving his life."

After a long, tedious fight, Johnny succumbed; his entire system was saturated with the infection. The "improved" pill had wrought desolation.

If this story impresses upon my reader the fact that, a cathartic pill should NEVER be given to a patient with abdominal pain—effort many times. Better safe than sorry. See the doctor first.

TO THE VOTERS OF CROCKETT COUNTY

I wish to express my appreciation for the majority I received in Crockett County and to thank my many friends for their untiring efforts in my behalf. I have no regrets, no bitterness, I fought a hard, fair, honest fight and lost.

I believe you have elected a man who will fight for the needs of this District and will make the District a good representative in The National Congress.

I am grateful for every thing that has been done for me and the more than cordial welcome I received, even from the people of Crockett County who voted for Mr. Thomason. I lost the election but gained much in Friendship in Crockett County, which I will ever hold dear.

HALP! HALP!

Statisticians tell us the State of Texas ranks fifth among 48 states of the union in illiteracy which, no matter how unpleasant to the average citizen, is not difficult to believe when more than 200,000 Texans go into a trance and dizzily toss a ballot apiece for the power behind the petticoat in the current governor's gallop.

But if the great State of Texas wants to make a monkey out of itself that way, far be it from the humble conductor of this column to squawk. We've been laughed at before.—Blondy Cross in S. A. Times.

suggestion as mechanically as she had followed all the others.

As they descended the steps leading to the street, Hamilton put the soft pedal on himself, with a firm foot. This was the big hour of his life. But it was not the big hour in the life of the silent girl beside him, who still looked like one in a dream. He steadied his racing pulses, stopped a taxicab, and spoke his first words since the ceremony:

"It's a case of 'home, James,' isn't it?" I mean," he added as he saw her inquiring look, "we'd better go right back to the Garland and meet what's there, hadn't we?" Her silence seemed an acquiescence to the plan and he gave the cabman the direction. They entered the hotel lobby and a large man who had been seated in a lounging chair near the entrance, quietly smoking a cigar that looked as if it had been made especially for him, rose and came to meet them with an air of assurance.

Eve stopped, but Hamilton, with a murmured "One moment, please," swept her past the large man and into the elevator a few feet farther on.

"Go upstairs, dear," he quietly told her. He put her suitcase in the elevator, gave the starting signal to the operator, and, as the car began its ascent, turned back to the caller, whose look of assurance had given way to one of stunned surprise.

"My wife is very tired," Eric courteously explained. "She has been shopping all day, so I'm sure you will excuse her. Perhaps you will come in here," he went on, leading the way to the writing-room, "and let me act for her in any matter that interests you."

"My name is Henderson," the stranger briefly announced; "Samuel Henderson; and I'm from Chicago."

WHAT'S IT ALL ABOUT?

I have a friend who, after many years of hard work in subordinate positions, found himself suddenly near the top of a big business. To his own surprise his income jumped to more than a hundred thousand dollars a year.

A whole new world opened out before him. As if by magic all his dreams began to come true.

Did it change him? I cannot see that in any essential characteristic it changed him at all. Not long ago when we were alone he opened his heart.

"Here I am with a new house, and money in the bank, and all my five children in college, and three automobiles. And down underneath I am the same simple guy that used to get eighteen dollars a week and took three years to pay for the piano. Somehow it doesn't seem real. I have to get myself off in a corner once in awhile and ask, what's it all about?"

I know some other things about him that he did not tell me. I know that he is supporting fifteen or twenty people who haven't had such good luck. I know that he is taking lessons on the fiddle, which has been a secret ambition for years. And I know that on Thanksgiving Day he marshals his whole family and marches them down to church.

Sinclair Lewis named him, and others like him, Mr. Babbitt. They are more like Jim Bludsoe, the Mississippi River engineer.

Bludsoe didn't know what it was all about, either. He just did the day's work, running the steamboat back and forth, raising his family, and living his life. One day when a fire broke out he did the simple normal thing of sticking to his post.

"I'll hold he rnozzle to the bank 'Till the last galoot's ashore."

He was not a deep thinker, nor very religious, often profane. But John Hay ventured the guess that "The Lord ain't going to be too hard on a man

That gave his life for men."

My friend is rough like Bludsoe, and by no means a saint. "What's it all about?" he asks, and he will never know the answer any more than the rest of us. But he has done his job with courage; he stayed simple. He gives freely. He has a humble sense of gratitude, and he has kept his heart young.

Those qualities have been enough for this world. Somehow I think they'll be enough for whatever other worlds may be.

To Thank You

I want to express my sincere gratitude to my friends for their support in the Democratic primary Saturday. I feel that I have been signally honored in being accorded a place in the run-off next month and I am herewith launching my campaign for the nomination in the coming election.

I feel confident that those who supported me in the first primary will continue to do so in the run-off and that others who did not support me in the recent election will rally to my cause. I am making the run-off campaign on the same issue—that I am confident of my ability to perform the duties of the office and that I feel that my opponent has held the office as long as he is entitled to it and that another citizen should be given a chance.

If I am elected to the office of Tax Assessor in the coming run-off I pledge myself to a conscientious performance of the duties thereof and I earnestly solicit your support and influence.

Sincerely yours,

W. M. JOHNIGAN

BUSINESS ENCOURAGES ERADICATION OF TICKS

Business men, as well as the producers of livestock, are interested in cattle-tick eradication in many of the Southern States, according to reports received by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. In Florida, one of the leading banking institutions recently used paid advertising space in a daily newspaper, to comment favorably on the progress being made in tick eradication.

"Many of the leading dairy and cheese interests of the North and West," the advertisement reads, "have been establishing plants throughout the South, thus helping to put the dairy industry on a safe and solid foundation, and to encourage the diversification of agriculture, the raising of more and better livestock, and the production of milk, cream, butter, and cheese. The tick can be abolished, and when this is accomplished Florida will quickly attain high rank as a producer of beef cattle and dairy products—and a new stream of dollars will flow into the State."

CARD OF THANKS

The age-old tendency of a defeated candidate is to find a reason for defeat. My reason is, I did not get enough votes to elect me, yet most people are willing to concede that one is sometimes the victim of circumstances.

I wish to express my profoundest gratitude to all who supported me, or gave me conscientious consideration.

CHEVROLET Six-Cylinder Trucks

Bigger, Faster, Sturdier and more economical

In size, speed and durability, the Chevrolet Six-Cylinder Truck is superior to any haulage unit ever built by Chevrolet. Yet, for all these decided advantages, it shows (according to many prominent fleet users) a lower maintenance cost than any other low-priced truck of similar capacity!

These basic facts should be borne in mind by everyone considering the purchase of an inexpensive haulage unit—in these days, when business men are watching transportation costs.

Many important features of the Chevrolet Six-Cylinder Truck are given below. Study them. Use them as a basis of comparison—to prove quality—modern design—and EXTRA VALUE!

Restriction On Production Of Lamb Urged

West Texas sheepmen are heading a movement to restrict the production of lamb in the United States by 25 per cent for the incoming year. They would voluntarily reduce the number of bred ewes in the seven principal sheep growing states by not breeding 25 per cent of their ewes. They would also sign an agreement under which all lambs in excess of 90 per cent of 75 per cent of the number of ewes in each flock would be turned over to a fund to popularize lamb. N. D. Blackstone, cattleman and sheepman of San Angelo, fathered the idea and it's gaining popularity daily.

Mr. Blackstone estimates that this act would raise the price of wool five cents a pound and would make ewe lambs worth $10 next spring. The ewes would be run dry this winter and shipped out fat in the spring.

Mr. Blackstone is to present the plan to the American National Livestock Association with headquarters in Denver. Mr. Blackstone has just returned from Kansas where he marketed three loads of his 1,500 head of steers. He said the Texas cowmen have marketed about 20 per cent of their holdings there, with losses reported usually only paper losses as most of the cattle were grown by those who took them north. He said the feeders are taking only 8 per cent of the grass cattle.—S. A. Times.

Couch Nine Beat Eldorado, Drop One To Snowwhite Lads

The Mike Couch baseball squad vindicated Ozona's prowess on the diamond at Eldorado Wednesday afternoon when they defeated by a score of 8 to 4 the team that had a few days before trounced the Ozona Giants to the tune of 15 to 2.

Sunday afternoon the Couch squad met its Waterloo, however, when the Snowwhite Creamery nine from San Angelo invaded the local lot for the fourth engagement with the Couch aggregation. The creamery lads emerged with a 7 to 2 victory, resulting when Hanken weakened on the mound and let in four runs in the seventh. Buster Miller relieved Hanken with none out and held the visitors without further markers from then until the end of the game.

LIONS WANT PIANO

The Ozona Lions Club wants to buy a second hand piano. A motion by former president M. M. Fulmer that the club purchase a piano was adopted by the club Monday and Mr. Fulmer and L. L. Bewley were appointed on a committee to negotiate the purchase. If there is anyone in Ozona who has a piano for sale should notify either member of this committee or The Stockman office.

BUYS 2500 YEARLING EWES

Bob Murchison purchased from John Fogarty 2500 head of yearling ewes which he shipped on Wednesday of this week to his ranch 12 miles south of Fort Stockton. They brought $6 per head and were shipped from Big Lake.

Selling and shipping of stock is not heavy at this time of the year and there is little being done along that line in this immediate section of the country.—Big Lake Wildcat.

Judge and Mrs. Chas. E. Davidson left Wednesday morning for Junction to attend the funeral of Roger Blain there Wednesday afternoon. They will go from Junction to San Antonio for a few days stay.

Your Power Supply and Your Neighbor's

The grouping of electric service requirements of a widespread area into one large electric system has brought about today's efficient power supply in small communities. Just as in the large city, mass production and mass distribution of electricity become possible. Greater efficiency in operation, and hence greater economy result.

The transmission system of electric power supply is among the outstanding industrial developments of the past fifteen years. Supplanting isolated local plants, it has brought greater efficiency, greater dependability and wider distribution of electric service to small towns and rural areas.

With 2,500 miles of high tension transmission lines, the West Texas Utilities Company distributes economical energy to 115 prosperous cities, towns and communities in West Texas, the "Land of Opportunity".

West Texas Utilities Company... In Appreciation

I am deeply grateful to my friends and supporters for their loyal support which resulted in the victory for me in Saturday's election. I feel that my record in office was responsible for the expression of the voters and I am proud of such a record and proud of the wonderful friends I have in Crockett County.

I am proud of another fact in this race—that it was made along the lines of clean politics, free from mud-slinging and cheap campaign methods. I faced a worthy opponent and now that the battle of ballots is over I am confident that the same friendly feeling exists on both sides as before.

I shall endeavor to administer the duties of my office with the same zeal and earnestness as in former years and during the next two years will put forth my best effort to merit the confidence expressed in me at the polls Saturday.

Again thanking you for your support, I am

Gratefully yours,

Tom Casbeer
