SHEETS

To determine why cotton fabrics wear out, the U. S. Bureau of Home Economics has made a laboratory test of 400 sheets discarded by a big Washington hotel.

The results of the tests have been submitted to manufacturers of sheeting, who are trying to find ways to make sheets which will wear longer in the parts where these give out.

Not a matter of great national importance, perhaps, but an illustration of the way in which scientific research by the Government aids manufacturers and incidentally helps to provide the public with better goods.

INDUSTRIES

Economists, statesmen and capitalists are hunting for new industries to take up the slack in permanent employment resulting from the extensions of labor-saving devices in established industries.

One thing that is being seriously considered by one of the great concerns which manufactures mechanical devices, is a machine which can be installed in the home, like a radio or refrigerator, which will cool the house, or at least the room it is in, in summer. In the laboratory it is possible to do this now. What is needed is the development of this on a commercial scale, to sell at a price within the reach of the average family.

In time, and perhaps in a very short time, something like that will become a great industry.

AIRPLANES

For the first time since flying was invented, anybody can now buy a serviceable, up-to-date plane, complete with engine and all necessary equipment, for less than $2,000.

That does not mean, however, that flying is about to become as popular as motoring. For one thing, an airplane still needs a lot of room from which to take off and land in; it is not adapted to the use of the city dweller. Parking space for airplanes is not easily found.

Nevertheless, young folk are practicing flying in increasing numbers and planes are being steadily improved as to stability and durability in the air. Thousands more lives will be sacrificed before the safe airplane is perfected, but it is safe to say that in another fifty years the air will have lost most of its danger.

CONCRETE

In writing the history of human progress a thousand years from now one of the important milestones which will have to be recorded will be the invention of Portland cement, in the early 1800's. The use of concrete consisting of Portland cement and sand, gravel or crushed stone is one of the great advances made practically in our own time. It is still so new that all of its possible applications have not been realized.

An improvement in concrete, making it at once lighter and more nearly fireproof, has just been developed. Tests by Columbia University experts proved that it resists a temperature of 1,800 degrees and weighs less than a third of ordinary concrete, bulk for bulk. It is made by adding aluminum powder and soda to the aggregate. The aluminum generates hydrogen gas and makes the concrete rise like bread, so that it takes only a third as much to fill a given space. Two inches of the liquid mass poured for a floor for example, will rise to nearly six inches thick, drying as it expands.

Fireproof and heatproof homes will be regarded as necessities a hundred years hence.

John A. Walker Dies In Sheffield Result Acute Heart Attack

John A. Walker, a former resident of Ozona and a partner of the late B. C. Flowers in the grocery business in Ozona about 18 years ago, died suddenly early Sunday morning in Sheffield as a result of an acute attack of heart disease.

Mr. Walker had gone to Sheffield from his ranch home near Marathon to receive some sheep which he had purchased.

The body was taken to Marathon in the Joe Oberkamp hearse for burial Monday, funeral services being conducted there at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Mr. Walker was about 65 years of age and is survived by the widow and five children.

Dedicate Church Sunday, Sept. 21

All-Day Jubilee Meet Is Planned For Day, Bishop To Preach

An all-day jubilee meeting will mark the dedication of the new Ozona Methodist Church which will take place Sunday, September 21, according to plans announced this week by the pastor, Rev. J. H. Meredith.

The morning service will begin at the Sunday School hour and at 11 o'clock Bishop Sam H. Hay will conduct services. The morning service will be followed by a free barbecue in the city park at noon.

During the afternoon, beginning at 3 o'clock, a reminiscent service will be held, during which the past will be reviewed. This meeting will be of particular interest to old timers and to the younger people as well. Many of the old time preachers who formerly occupied the local pulpit have been invited to attend the services and many are expected to be here.

The day's services will be closed in the evening with the first service of a week's revival meeting to be conducted by Rev. James V. Reid, the "singing evangelist." Rev. Reid is a splendid musician and song leader and on the occasion of his last visit to Ozona when he held a meeting here re-organized the church's music and accomplished much good from that standpoint.

Rev. Reid has had lots of experience in revival work and in musical leadership. He started as pianist with Rev. Arthur Moore and was for a time with the Ham and Ramsey revival team. During the World War he was in charge of music for the Y. M. C. A. at Fort Sam Houston and this summer has been busy practically all the time with large assemblies. He is a forceful revival leader and the church is looking forward to great benefit from his series of meetings, which will be held each morning and night during the week.

Scurry Deputy Shooting Victim

Brother Of Mrs. Jones Miller Injured In Snyder, Texas

SYNDER, Sept. 6. (AP)— Acting as peacemaker between two other men culminated today in the shooting and wounding of O. S. Wills, 56, of Fluvanna, deputy sheriff of Scurry County.

The shooting occurred at noon, on the square here. Wills told officers afterward that a man for whom he had been acting as go-between in a dispute with another man, called him to his automobile and began shooting at him.

Wills struck at the gun and the first shot went wild but the second struck him in the left shoulder. He jumped to the running board of the car and grappled with his assailant, holding the man until Sheriff F. M. Brownfield arrived.

Frank Greer, 29, farmer living five miles south of Fluvanna, was arrested and charged with assault to murder. He later was released under $3,000 bond. His wife and mother were in the automobile with him at the time of the shooting.

Wills was taken to a hospital at Lubbock but late today attendants reported his condition was not serious.

Mr. Wills is a brother of Mrs. Jones Miller and father of Sam Wills and Mrs. Chas. Hunnicutt of Ozona. Mr. and Mrs. Hunnicutt and Sam Wills left for Snyder immediately upon receipt of word of the shooting to be at their father's bedside. Word received here this week indicate that Mr. Wills is doing well.

Stephen Perner is in Eldorado this week visiting his wife, who is a guest at the home of her parents in that city.

LET CONTRACT ON BARNHART ROAD IN OCT.

Highway Engineer Promises Early Action On Project

SURVEY STARTED

Engineers Ordered By Wire To Run Lines For Route

A promise that contract would be let for construction of the Ozona-Barnhart road as early in October as possible was given Judge Chas. E. Davidson of this county on the occasion of a recent visit of the local official to the offices of the State Highway Department at Austin, Judge Davidson reported here this week.

The information concerning plans for the Barnhart road project in this county was given Judge Davidson by an assistant engineer in charge of the office at Austin.

As an indication that the promise was given seriously, telegrams were immediately dispatched by the department to the crew of engineers who have been here several weeks surveying a route for the Old Spanish Trail project through this county. The telegrams ordered the engineers to start a survey on the Ozona-Barnhart road at once and according to information here this survey already been started by the engineers.

If contract on the Barnhart road is let in October it will mean that work will be started on this project before the end of the year. Before that part of this county's project is completed, then, it is believed the state and federal departments will be ready to let contracts on the Old Spanish Trail highway through the county. The Barnhart road will call for approximately 30 miles of paving and the Old Spanish Trail about 52.

Information concerning the route which the Old Spanish Trail will take through the county is not yet available, officials say. Several surveys have already been run and it is understood the information thus gained is now in the hands of federal engineers for their final selection of the best route.

Ringling Bros. Show To Be In San Angelo Wednesday, Sept. 17

It's actually coming. There is but one really great circus. And therefore it was good news which was today received that Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey's Greatest Show on Earth will soon visit this section—with all its myriad of wonders.

The first advance advertising car heralding the appearance of the colossal amusement organization is now in this territory and its gaily-colored posters and lithographs blazon forth the news.

Coming on its own four trains of 100 double-length railroad cars carrying its entire complement of 1680 persons and 1700 animals. The great Ringling-Barnum combined circus will exhibit more new features this year than ever before in its history, including an entire tribe of Ubangi men and women from the remote jungles of Africa, a region in which few white men have ever set foot. These primitive savages with mouths and lips as large as those of full-grown crocodiles will appear as a feature of the main performance, and not as a separate attraction. And there will be a return engagement by popular demand, of Hugo Zacchini, the Human Projectile who is now fired bodily from a cannon in more terrific and longer flights than last season.

The Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey Circus with its multitude of marvels brought from the four corners of the Earth will exhibit in San Angelo, Wednesday September 17.

HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION

Even though it is as yet nothing more than a promise, the best news this newspaper has been privileged to print is the statement from Judge Davidson recounting his interview with officials of the state highway department wherein the latter promised to let the contract for construction of the Barnhart road in October.

The outlook for an early start on construction of the Crockett County highways, provided for in the recent $375,000 bond issue voted in this county has been more or less discouraging up to now, but this statement puts a brighter aspect to the situation.

The highway department could not pick a more propitious time for beginning this work. The present depression would be largely relieved were this work started at once and the county would be benefitted more ways than one. It is to be hoped the county officials and interested citizens will make every effort to keep the matter always before the highway department officials to the end that the work can be started at the earliest possible moment.

TAX UNIVERSITY LAND?

A matter of vital importance to Crockett County is scheduled for discussion at McCamey next Saturday, September 13, at a mass meeting of citizens and representatives of the West Texas counties containing University of Texas lands.

This meeting has been called by civic leaders of the area for the purpose of organizing forces in interested counties to wage an active campaign on behalf of passage of the proposed constitutional amendment which would tax University lands for county and school purposes. This proposed amendment is to be voted on at the general election in November and every effort should be exerted in its behalf by West Texas counties.

The proposition to tax University lands is a step in the direction of justice and fairness. West Texas counties have borne the burden of this part of the University's support for years and in strict fairness the lands should have been subject to county and school tax from the beginning. Now that the lands have produced immense wealth for the state's great school, it is more than ever just that the lands should be subject to tax for county and school support.

Next to the greatest acreage of University lands in any one county in the state is in Crockett County. Just as an indication of the importance to this county of passage of this amendment, it would raise the valuations of this county by nearly a half million dollars if the land were rendered for taxation at $1.25 an acre as other land in the county is rendered.

This is an unfair burden on every county where this land is located and if the proposed amendment were explained to voters throughout the state, its justice would be apparent to every fair-minded voter. That as we understand it is the purpose of the meeting in McCamey next Saturday, to form an organization for the purpose of advocating passage of the amendment throughout the state to the end that West Texas counties might be relieved of this unfair burden. Members of the commissioners courts, civic bodies, chambers of commerce and interested citizens of every county in the area is invited to the meeting and it is hoped that a good representation will be on hand from Crockett County.

SCHOOLDAYS

All over the nation, the public schools are again in full swing. Shortly the colleges will begin their annual sessions. The greatest of all American industries, education, is running on full time again.

More than 25,000,000 pupils are enrolled this year in the public schools of America, under nearly 800,000 teachers, to whom we pay an average salary of $100 a month a total bill for teaching alone of more than one billion dollars a year, to which almost another billion must be added for other educational expenses. And that is for public grade schools alone, below the grade of high school. In the high schools we have another two and a half million pupils, with 140,000 teachers. Then there are State normal schools and teachers' colleges, in addition to state universities, supported out of public funds, and on top of those are the privately endowed preparatory schools, colleges, universities and professional schools, accounting for nearly another million of students with some 75,000 instructors.

There is nothing else except war for which we spend so much money as for education in this country. And still we have not got as far as some other nations have gone, in proportion to population. Little Denmark has a higher percentage of high school and college graduates. Only about 30 percent of farm boys of high school age in America ever go to high school; almost 100 percent in Denmark.

RULERS OF AMERICA

Mr. James W. Gerard, once United States Ambassador to Germany, made public the other day a list of 64 men who, he said, were the real rulers of America. There was not a single politician or office-holder in the list. It was composed of the men who operate the great industries, banks and newspaper organizations of the nation.

Some of the nation's richest men were on Mr. Gerard's list, of course; but many men of great wealth were not included. The rich men whom he named are men who actively manage the investment and operation of their own wealth, like Henry Ford and John D. Rockefeller, Jr. But the great majority of these "Rulers of America" are hired men. They work for other people, manage other people's money and property for them.

They rule, or help to rule America, not because they are men of wealth but because they are men of brains and ability. Walter P. Gifford, president of the American Telegraph and Telephone Company, does not own as much as one percent of the company which he manages. Owen D. Young, Chairman of the General Electric Company, is a hired man working for the company's stockholders. Such power as those men and others similarly situated exert is theirs because they have proved their ability to build and operate great organizations of capital and men.

That is the American principle, to which we all subscribe; that a man is entitled to go as far as his individual abilities will permit, provided he does not gain power at the expense of others. And it is safe to say that for sheer ability the men whom Mr. Gerard calls "Rulers of America" have it all over the general run of public officials.

RUBY M. AYRES

So this was Julie Farrow! a woman whose love affairs were notorious although she was said to be only eight and twenty, a woman for whose worthless sake only six months ago a young fool, had, in a moment of hysterical disillusionment, taken his life. Giles Chittenham put down his iced drink and shifted his position a little in order to get a better view of her.

She was very plainly dressed. She was entirely without jewelry of any kind, without even a wedding ring. Rodney had complained that Julie Farrow was not interested in diamonds.

"She won't let me give her anything. She says she hates diamonds. She won't take anything from me. I only wish to God she would."

This woman was certainly unique; there was nothing of the stereotyped adventuress about her and possibly therein lay her chief attraction.

Rodney at any rate had adored her, adored her so madly that one night, convinced at last that she would have nothing to do with him, he had upset a skiff near the weir at Maidenhead and put an end to his life.

Rodney was a powerful swimmer, but a coroner's jury had brought in accidental death, and only Chittenham knew the truth, only Chittenham ever saw a letter which the boy had posted to him in America an hour before his death, declaring his intention.

"She's done with me. She's forbidden me to go near her again." Chittenham had destroyed the letter as soon as he had read it. Of what use to stir up muddy water when Rodney was gone?

Chittenham had been out of England for nearly two years looking after interests in South America, and he had only returned on account of Rodney's death, and in order to wind up his affairs. Rodney and he were half-brothers.

Giles knew that he would be treated to a week of hysterics when he and his mother met. He was sorry for his mother, but he had always found her wearisome. In his heart he was amazed that she had ever managed to find two husbands.

Rodney had been like his mother. The boy's tragic death had been a severe blow to Giles, and he had subconsciously determined that if ever he met Julie Farrow she should not be allowed to go unpunished.

He knew that she was a divorced woman; he knew that there were many unavowable stories told of her, although Rodney had always been her loyal champion.

"If you saw her you'd understand," Rodney wrote. "She's so wonderful. All women are not as rotten as you think they are. You've probably been unlucky, but we don't all have the same experience."

Giles had certainly been unlucky, but Rodney had not known of his brother's marriage at all, and neither had anybody else in England.

His wife was an American girl named Sadie Barrow, whom he had married because she had amused him, and because she had seemed to expect him to marry her.

That was a year ago, and they had lived more or less of a detached life since. She did not want homelife, she wanted to be here, there, and everywhere, and when Giles objected she reminded him that she was financially independent of him and meant to do as she chose. After six months' bickering, Giles gave in and let her go her own way.

They met occasionally, and then always by Sadie's own request. She was in New York when the news came of Rodney's death, and Giles had cabled to her that he was going to England. Her reply had been characteristic.

"Your funeral, not mine. Not coming."

Chittenham did not care; as a matter of fact her refusal to accompany him was relief. He wished to keep his marriage a secret. It was on his way across the Atlantic that a sudden distaste for the reason of his journey seized upon Giles.

wandered up to Paris and ran into Harry Lombard whom he had not seen for five years.

Lombard had a business in Paris, and although he had not met Rodney for some time, he apparently knew all the details of the tragedy and a great deal about Julie Farrow.

Chittenham suggested that they go along to London together. He rather liked Lombard.

Lombard shook his head. "Sorry, but I'm off to Switzerland to-morrow on business for the firm." A sudden bright idea came to him. "You come along with me. I shall only be gone a few days. There's no hurry to get home, is there?"

"None. A few days one way or the other can make no difference."

And that was how Fate bent Giles Chittenham to her will. He went off to Switzerland with Lombard the same night, and a day or two later met Julie Farrow on the steamboat between Lausanne and Montreux.

It was Lombard who recognized her and pointed her out.

"Well, what do you think of her?" he asked.

"You might introduce me," Chittenham answered, and a moment later the two men were crossing the deck together.

Julie Farrow smiled and held out her hand.

Lombard presented Chittenham. He glanced enquiringly at the woman beside Julie, who was looking on with calm eyes. Julie introduced them.

Mr. Lombard—Mr. Chittenham—Miss Lennox.

"Are you staying long?" Lombard enquired.

The two women looked at one another and smiled.

"If Julie's afraid to tell you, I will," Bim Lennox said in her calm, unruffled voice. "We're out here to settle a mad wager. Julie's got a car and in a moment of mental conceit she made a bet with me that she would drive from Villeneuve right up through the St. Bernard Pass and back again."

"I've been through the Pass twice," Lombard said. "And there's nothing very alarming about it if the weather's all right. I should say that you will lose your bet, Miss Lennox."

Julie took off her hat, letting the cool breeze from the lake blow through her hair, and Chittenham saw that she had beautiful hair, a queer mixture of brown and golden and coppery shades.

"Dyed, of course," he told himself, and knew that he lied.

Julie moved her chair back a little and spoke to Chittenham. "Isn't it a perfectly glorious day?" she asked. "And don't you love these sort of places, and the blue sky, and the bluer lake and the sunshine? They all make me feel so excited and happy." Chittenham shrugged his shoulders.

"I love Switzerland," she said dreamily. "I haven't seen a great deal of the world, but every bit I see I love a little more than the last. I love everything."

"And everybody?" Chittenham asked.

She laughed and shook her head. "No. I'm afraid I can't say that. In fact I dare say you'll be shocked when I tell you that in all my life I've never really and truly loved anybody." Chittenham could well believe it.

"A lady without a heart!" he said lightly.

"Yes." She agreed seriously. "I don't think I could have been there when the hearts were given out."

"It's not yet too late. You never know who may turn the corner of the street and present you with one," Chittenham said jokingly.

To change the conversation he said:

"May I be inquisitive and ask who Miss Lennox is besides being a great friend of yours?"

Julie's eyes followed the elder woman affectionately.

"You'd never guess!" she said at last. Chittenham laughed.

"I should say it would not be difficult. Probably she has a weird flat somewhere in Chelsea where people sit on cushions on the floor in preference to chairs, and smoke scented cigarettes, and eat strange foods. . . ."

Julie chuckled.

"You're miles out!" she said triumphantly. "She hardly ever lives in London at all—she's got a cottage in the country, and she's not a bit rich—she's only just got enough to live on comfortably, and she writes dress articles for papers to make a bit more, and with that money she sends crippled children from the slums down to the seaside, or sometimes to her own cottage. She loves children, and she's got the largest heart in the world."

"Isn't that rather a pose with some women?" Chittenham asked unkindly.

"Are you a cynic as well as a woman-hater?" Julie asked curtly.

"I only speak of things as I find them," he answered.

Before there was time for a reply Bim and Lombard rejoined them.

MAIN STREET LOOKS AT BROADWAY BY ERNEST CAMD JR

NEW YORK — Three short blocks from the glitter of Broadway, sprawling like some unsuspected monster beside the Hudson river, extends the gray square of New York's tenement district. This is a side of the city that few outsiders know. To most persons living small towns — and I was one of them — New York is the symbol of wealth and ultra-modern luxury. True, it is a city of spectacular wealth. But it is also one of spectacular poverty. The jewels and perfume of Fifth Avenue are but a block away from the unshaven faces, the garbage cans and prowling cats of Sixth Avenue. A city of startling contrasts...

Amid these tenements is human drama that only a Dickens could picture. The current drive against violators of the tenement house law has bared conditions that might have shocked the author of "Oliver Twist." Housing inspectors found eight persons living in three rooms, only one of which had a window. Fifteen such families live in this building. And there are no bathtubs — none in the entire neighborhood. Some houses have running water. Others do not.

In another house, which had no lights, five families living on the same floor use the same bathroom containing no bathtub. "There doesn't seem to be any water," the inspector commented to the janitor. The janitor laughed. "There isn't any water because there aren't any pipes." "What happened to them?" "Stole 'em. If the tenants didn't cut them out and sell them, prowlers did. Same way with the light bulbs."

One house boasts a small flower garden, gay with sun flowers and nasturtiums... banners of defiance against a sullen world. But it grows in buckets and tin cans perched upon a fire escape. In case of fire it would cut off the exit of more than a hundred persons. It must come down, the inspectors ordered.

Not far away, in a tiny room, sits a man with three convictions against him. The next conviction means life imprisonment. Soon, on the dark, narrow stairs that lead to his hiding place, there will appear a man wearing a badge. For the tenement inspectors, it's all in the day's work. Sam Grossman had an idea — a plan — for pepping up a certain radio program. Time and again he presented the scheme to the station manager. Each time he received encouragement, but no definite offer of purchase. A few days ago he had another appointment — the sixth in two weeks. Up to the fifteenth floor he went. Then down the corridor to the door. But this time, somehow, he couldn't force himself to knock. Maybe this would be like so many other trips. He wandered down the hall. Up the stairs. And to the sixteenth floor. If isn't worth while, he decided. Then he threw himself from a window.

On the floor below, the station manager waited — and waited. Grossman's contract lay on the table, ready for signing. He could not understand where Grossman was. He had always been so prompt before, so eager to go ahead with the deal.

A Gentleman of Color, with several of his dusky friends, was preparing for a Sunday joy ride. Their ancient auto creaked up to a filling station. Out popped the driver. "Ah wants some gasoline," he said with a grandiose air.

There was a delay of several minutes, punctuated by sounds of wrangling between the driver and the station proprietor. Finally, one of the girls in the car poked her head out to see what was the matter. She was just in time to hear her chocolate Lohmarvar exclaim: "Aw, put in a whole gallon, then!"

Roadside sign: "Where will you spend eternity?" "What a subject for hot weather!"

A SLUMBER PARTY

Miss Vicky Pierce entertained Friday night with a theatre and lunking party at her home. After the show the girls were served watermelon on the lawn and games followed until past midnight. A breakfast of grape fruit, waffles and chocolate was served next morning on tables out on the lawn under the pecan trees. Those enjoying this affair were Misses Helen Adams, Dorothy Henderson, Esther Kate Pierce, Grace Butler, Eda Schneeman, Bertha Lankford, and the hostess Vicky Pierce.

No Relief Measures For The Sheep Men According To Kincaid

Commenting on freight reductions allowed by railroads as a relief measure to drought stricken sections, T. A. Kincaid, president of the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association, finds none have been given the sheepmen, according to the following statement published in the San Angelo Morning Times:

The reductions granted in freight rates will not benefit the ranchmen of West Texas because of certain technicalities in the rate schedules which will make the reductions not applicable here. T. A. Kincaid, president of the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association, said last night in Ozona. Mr. Kincaid had been informed of the reduction by a traffic expert, who pointed out the technicalities preventing this section from being aided. The Sheep and Goat Raisers Association had asked a 50 per cent rate reduction on sheep, especially lambs moving within the state and in interstate commerce. The association requested this reduction because of the drought conditions and low prices on sheep in its behalf demanded some emergency aid, permitted by the Interstate Commerce Commission in a recent ruling allowing the reduction in freight rates to relieve drought conditions. West Texas with many of its pastures denuded of grass through lack of rainfall has been left to shift for itself, Mr. Kincaid said.

There is no appeal from this decision rendered by the traffic heads of the roads in Chicago yesterday. There has never been a stocker rate on sheep, Mr. Kincaid says and for the last 10 years the sheepmen have been forced to pay for about 400 excess pounds on each double deck car of sheep handled out of Texas. The minimum carload is 22,000 pounds on sheep while it is physically impossible to load more than 18,000 pounds in one car. "It looks like they have told us to go ahead and shift for ourselves that there is no aid for the ranchmen and if he has a drought it's just his misfortune and the railways can't be worried," he said.

The Electric Man Explains the New Home Comfort Rate

"As I told you last week, the new Home Comfort rate follows the wholesale discount system.

"Simply explained, this is a method of rate structure which divides the investment expense proportionately among customers according to the amount of demand upon the production and distribution capacity of the system, and upon the duration of such demand.

"In an average five room home, the first 4 kilowatt-hours per room, or the first 20 kilowatt-hours, would be at the initial rate of 12¢ per kilowatt-hour; the following 5 kilowatt-hours per room, or the next 25 kilowatt-hours, would be at the second rate of 7¢ per kilowatt-hour; all subsequent kilowatt-hours, or all in excess of 45 kilowatt-hours, would take the low additional service rate of 4¢ per kilowatt-hour, or 3¢ per kilowatt-hour in homes where service is also used for heating or cooking, one fourth the initial rate.

"Just think of the additional service possible with this new schedule. The normal necessities of your home should use more service than that covered by the first two rates, and then you can operate any of the multitude of time and labor-saving appliances on the Low Rate, or use a large amount of additional lighting service without a material increase in your total bill.

"Next week I plan to tell you more about the advantages of the new Home Comfort rate, so watch for me on the pages of this newspaper."

"And what do your people say to this wild adventure?" Chitttenham asked presently.

Julie laughed. "I haven't any people that matter to me, or I to them," she admitted. "I am a law unto myself."

"With a supreme contempt for Mrs. Grundy I suppose?"

"A profound contempt," she agreed emphatically. They were both silent for a moment, stopped by mutual consent at the ship's rail, their faces turned to the mountains.

"What are you thinking about?" she asked impulsively.

He brought his eyes back from the distant mountains and looked down at her.

"I was wondering just how far you would allow your contempt for Mrs. Grundy to carry you?" he said calmly.

Julie raised her head with a little defiant gesture.

"All the way if I wished to go all the way," she said quickly. "We've only got one life to live, and what does it matter what people say? I've never cared."

Chitttenham turned his back on the mountains, leaning against the ship's rail.

"Very well, then convince me!" he challenged her.

"Convince you? How can I?" "By taking me with you to-morrow through the St. Bernard Pass." She stared at him for a moment.

"Are you daring me to take you?" she asked quietly.

"Yes."

For a moment longer they held one another's gaze.

"Very well, but I make one condition—that you do not tell either Bim or Mr. Lombard until we return. It is not that I care in the least what they would think or say, but I have a reason of my own for wishing them not to know."

"As you please."

She went on calmly. "I am leaving at seven o'clock in the morning."

She turned away as if the discussion were ended and rejoined Bim and Lombard.

Chitttenham followed slowly. He felt angry and yet at the back of his mind there was an unwilling admiration for this woman. He could well understand how completely she had mastered Rodney, and how soon she had wearied of his slavish devotion.

She was the type who wanted a man to break her to his will, not a boy to kneel at her feet.

He looked forward to to-morrow with a kind of exultation; he had never crossed swords with a woman before; even with Sadie he had only made half-hearted protests; she had not sufficiently interested him for anything deeper.

It was raining a little when they started, and the morning was grey and chill as Chitttenham waited.

Julie arrived punctually.

"I did not expect to see you," was her greeting.

Chitttenham glanced casually at the car.

"I hope you've got good brakes," he said noncommittally. She laughed. Before they had gone very far Chitttenham discovered that Julie drove very well indeed. She was cool and quick and thoroughly understood the machine she was handling.

"Bim thinks she'll win the bet," Julie said presently, and she laughed. "But she won't. I can always do a thing if I set my mind to it."

"Always?"

She glanced round at him. "You think I am conceited?" she asked.

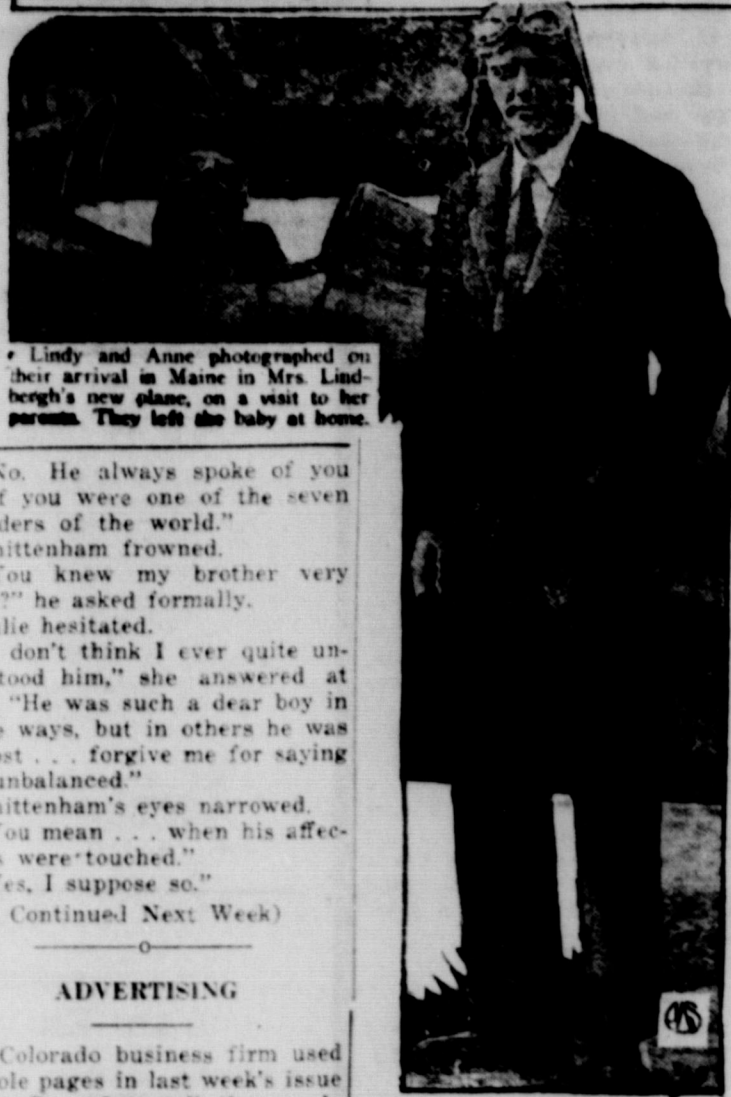

"No, but as it happens to be a conceit of my own—that I can always do a thing if I set my mind to it—it interests me to hear you express the same sentiment. I wonder how we should get on if it came to a battle of wills," he added lightly.

"What do you mean?" "Didn't Rodney tell you that I am a pig-headed brute?"

The Lindberghs Are Flying Again

Lindbergh and Anne Lindbergh photographed on their arrival in Maine in Mrs. Lindbergh's new plane, on a visit to her parents. They left the baby at home.

"No. He always spoke of you as if you were one of the seven wonders of the world."

Chitttenham frowned.

"You knew my brother very well?" he asked formally.

Julie hesitated.

"I don't think I ever quite understood him," she answered at last. "He was such a dear boy in some ways, but in others he was almost . . . forgive me for saying it—unbalanced."

Chitttenham's eyes narrowed.

"You mean . . . when his affections were touched?"

"Yes, I suppose so."

ADVERTISING

A Colorado business firm used 4 whole pages in last week's issue of the Record to tell the people about its big sale. It only shows that the live business man of today is not going to try to do business without advertising. People who buy are expecting the announcements of sales and are watching the pages of the papers that come to their homes in order that they may not miss taking advantage of a single bargain. It is true that hundreds may know where your place of business is located by virtue of the fact that you have been there for a long time, but how do they know what you may have in stock or how you are selling it unless you tell them about it?—Scurry County Times.

The manager of this Colorado store is well pleased with the results of his advertising. So many patrons were attracted to this store by this 4-page advertisement that on the day following publication of the paper the front doors were closed for a time to keep out the pushing throng. It pays to advertise.—Colorado Record.

WARM-WEATHER WARNINGS

Ice-cold water is a tempting beverage during the heated season; not only that, but every possible dainty in iced dishes keeps our youngsters busy devouring all they are able to pay for. From tens of thousands of counters, ice cream in endless variety of combinations, is dispensed, and too often is swallowed as fast as the husky master or maid can get it down.

This would all be very well—if something serious didn't result; not in every instance, of course, but now and then. And, it's tough for the victim when it happens; which makes this word of caution timely.

A very excellent New York surgeon told me some time ago, that cases of appendicitis were five times as frequent in August as in December. He attributed the fact to the wholesale eating and drinking of ice-cold foods and beverages during the hot months. He was operating on a fifteen-year-old girl at the time he spoke to a post-graduate class. "The little lady," he said, "doubtless frequents cod-drink stands and drug-store fountains Sunday afternoons and every evening in the week; she has probably averaged five to fifteen ice-cold dishes or drinks at each visit to the resorts."

"No, the beverages are not impure; you couldn't find a germ in any of the stuff dispensed," he continued; "it's the COLD that does the mischief. All intestinal tracts contain germs—and these do not attack a healthy canal; but, chill the delicate lining of the stomach and bowel, and the natural juices that are protective are stopped in their functioning; the germs then attack the weakened mucous surface, in greatly increased millions; appendicitis results."

It follows then, that iced drinks and foods should not be taken, or certainly not in excess. If taken at all, they should be warmed in the mouth before being swallowed—eaten slowly. We should never swallow an ice-cold spoonful; can you remember that?

SUCCESS

A TRIFLING DIFFERENCE

A negro laborer was putting in his first day with a construction gang whose foreman was known for getting the maximum amount of labor out of his men. He was helping in the task of moving the right-of-way and all day long he carried heavy timbers and ties, until at the close of the day he was completely tired out. Before he went home he approached the boss and said:

"Mister, you sure you got me down on the payroll?"
The foreman looked over the list of names he held.
"Yes," he said finally, "here you are—Simpson—Roy Simpson. That's right, isn't it?"
"Yas uh, boss," said the negro, "dat's right. I thought maybe you had me down as Sampson."

CHEATING

Once upon a time I hired a man to do a certain piece of work. He was well along in middle life, and I wondered why he had not made more progress, since he seemed honest and industrious.

I said to him: "I cannot be here to watch this work and so I shall have to trust you to do as if you were working for yourself."

He was profuse in his assurances. He seemed to want the job.

At the end of six months I visited him. He had done fairly well, but was rather glib with alibis. Other people were always holding him up. The weather was always very bad. He would have done so-and-so if he had been sure just what I had wanted, but I had failed to let him know.

I put this down as the grumbling habit of an old man.

"At least he is honest and means well," I said.

But one day, after about a year, I happened to appear unexpectedly. He was not in evidence. Upon inquiry I discovered that he was using my time and some of my materials on a little private job of his own. We had a solemn conference and decided to part.

When you put a man on his honor and then have him take advantage of your trust it is a blow to your faith in human nature. So I was depressed and a little sore.

But only for a few minutes. Then I said to myself: "How foolish I am to let this thing worry me. This man has cheated me out of a few hundred dollars, but what a petty thing that is compared with the way he has cheated himself! All his life he has held a nickel so close to his eyes that he couldn't see a dollar. All his life he has lived on alibis, watching the clock, stealing a little here and there from his employers, and imagining that he was doing well for himself.

"And where is he at sixty? Poor and jobless, and a failure. Reaping what he has sown."

The old idea of Heaven and Hell was very bad because it made us think that our reward or punishment is coming to us in some far-off place hereafter.

In the same way most people misinterpret the verse in the Bible which reads: "Be sure your sin will find you out."

They say: "Lots of people sin and are never found out. Therefore the verse is untrue."

But the verse does not say that your sin will be found out. It says, "Be sure your sin will find you out"—be sure that it will settle down in your heart and mold you in its own image.

That's a terrifying thought, or a very encouraging one, according to the way you live. Everything you do has its influence on what you are.

When you cheat you cheat yourself. And whatever you do that's decent automatically and inevitably builds you up.

Miss Grace Stone, principal of one of the Waco schools, and her sister, Miss Margaret Stone and a niece, Mrs. Lucian Stewart and two children of Abilene were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Cox on their ranch last week. They were on their way back home after visiting the Carlsbad caverns.

A. W. Jones returned Friday after a visit in San Antonio and Corpus Christi.

THURSDAY NIGHT CLUB

Thursday evening at their home Mr. and Mrs. Joe Oberkamp were hosts to the Club. Zinnias in a variety of colors were used in decorations. At the conclusion of the games pineapple cake and ice cream were served to the following members and guests. Mr. and Mrs. Ben Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Childress, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Peters, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Friend, Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Hunter and Mrs. Fred Deaton.

Patient: "No, sir, my teeth are not loose."

Crockett Broncs To Make Life Miserable For Riders At Fair

Out in the West where men often learn to love their favorite steed, horses are given curious names. Names are wide in their scope and suggestive of the ferocity of their owners—as witness "Hell-To-Set," just one of the bronchos who will make sitting miserable for cowboys who will participate in the rodeos of the West Texas Exposition.

Recently 20 wild horses were secured from the Crockett County Fair Association, of which Joe Pierce is manager, and they now are on feed at the West Texas Exposition grounds.

But no matter what the condition of physical health, the "broncs" always have a mean disposition—a quirk somewhat in their spiritual being. One who wanders about the exposition corral now must watch lest a mean-eyed broncho bite an ear off. One afternoon and two nights of the exposition program will be given over to the spectacle of "an immovable object" (the cowboy) trying to cope with "an irresistible force" (the upward, downward, or sideways attraction one feels when astride a wild horse.)

Old Dinnie Quiet, Sad-Eyed
Jess Elrod, chairman of the rodeo committee, tells a few things about the names of the bronchos that will be used this year.

"Old Dinnie," who is quiet and sad-eyed but goes wild when a cowboy approaches, is likely to be back in the chutes for riding during the exposition. State papers earlier in the season carried stories about "Old Dinnie's" altercation with a barbed wire fence. Dinnie's cuts are mending rapidly.

"Widow-Maker" is scheduled to try her old tricks this year. She gained her name justifiably, it is said. She is a dynamic bay. Then there's "Vinegaroon," not so named because he is a vinegar-tinged roan, but because he is as poisonous as the vinegaroon is supposed to be.

"Buzzard" Is a High Flier
Not so effeminate is "Buzzard," a high flier when it comes to bucking, and said to be responsible for solving food shortages for the other buzzards. "Jumping Jimmy" lives up to his name "Casey Jones" is better known than the ball player. He has "struck out" a number of riders before "they got to first base." Sentiment is responsible for the name of "Fermine Aguirre," who before he was a horse was a hard-handed sheep-shearing crew captain. "Checo" was named after a Mexican lizard.

"White Foot" is a big steed. "Rex" is the Kaiser of the corral. "Charlie Charleston" is a dancer like what the rodeo performers don't like.

"Massie West Special" is a spirited steed who became an outlaw and was given to the Ozona Fair Association by Massie West, Ozona rancher.

"Hell-To-Set" Named Properly
Old "Hell-To-Set" is properly named. At the Eldorado rodeo he jumped a car when angered by the burr of a man that was sticking to his back. "Shed-em-all" is a horse of like temperament. Two years ago the demon shed boy, saddle, bridle and all.

"Jack Johnson" was named, not injudiciously, after the world's champion prize fighter. Then there's "Red Wolf," a sly animal, and the brown horse, stately of gait, who was christened "Touch-me-not." Smallest, but not least in fury, comes "Whirlwind," who, one cowboy said, comes nearer resembling a fullgrown tornado.

Four Amendments To Constitution To Be Voted On In Nov.

Four amendments to the State Constitution, two of them affecting the University of Texas and its oil lands, one aimed at a revision of the term of the Supreme Court and another at a reorganization of the Legislative session, will be voted on at the November election.

One of the amendments would permit counties in which University of Texas lands are located to tax this property as if it belonged to an individual. Heretofore, the land has been tax free and the counties complained that the university was not only sapping its natural resources in the form of gas and oil, but was depriving them of any tax revenues from the valuable tracts.

Another amendment will permit the board of regents of the University of Texas to issue bonds to provide funds for the erection of additional buildings on the campus. The bonds will be secured by the $13,000,000 oil and gas royalty fund. Under the present system, the university may use only the interest from the fund for new buildings.

Legislative reorganization and salary increase is among the list of amendments. If adopted, the amendment would lengthen the legislative session from 60 to 120 days and would double the pay of the legislators from $5 to $10 per day.

The amendment provides for separating the legislative term into periods, 30 days for the introduction of bills, 30 days for the committee hearings and reports and 60 days to the debate on the measures and the enactment of the laws. The rule, however, would not be rock bound, either branch having the right to set aside the regular procedure by a four-fifth vote with the further provision that emergency measures could be taken up at any time.

The fourth amendment would require the State Supreme Court to remain in session of only nine months. The present constitution requires the Supreme Court to go into vacation from the last Saturday in June to the first Monday in October, regardless of the condition of the docket and the number of cases pending. The amendment is being advocated by leading jurists and law-makers.

HEALTH NURSE HERE
Miss Jean Campbell, public health nurse in the employ of the Texas Tubercular Association, is here this week conducting a thorough physical examination of all school children. Children in both the grades and high school are being inspected, with local doctors assisting, and the health nurse will visit the Mexican school and county schools before the end of the week.
