able discussion of all problems confronting the industry in Texas and nationally, will be heard when the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association meets in annual convention at San Angelo July 28-29-30-31, according to Edwin Mayer who has charge of arranging the business program for the convention. Many capable speakers have already accepted an invitation to appear on the program, and the discussions will cover all phases now affecting the ranching industry.

The Predatory Animal Control Association has requested that they be given one hour at some time during the convention when there will be no conflicts with other meetings, and this request will be granted according to the program chairman, in order that all visitors who desire may attend this meeting. In addition to the special meeting, Roscoe Runge, attorney for the Predatory Animal Control Association, will address the entire convention on this subject at one of the morning sessions.

Efforts are being exerted to have representatives of both the State and National governments speak on bitterweed control and to discuss this topic from all angles of interest to the ranchman.

Mayor Brown F. Lee will welcome the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers to San Angelo, and the response will be delivered by H. W. Reick of Roosevelt, Texas. The invocation for the opening session Tuesday morning in the Ritz Theatre where all of the business meetings of the association will convene at 9:30 each morning, will be delivered by the Rev. Arthur R. Whittle of the Emmanuel Episcopal Church.

It is very probable that F. J. Hagenbarth, president of the National Wool Growers, Tom Connally, W. R. Ely, A. B. Clawson, Roger Gillis, F. O. Landrum, J. E. Robbins, James C. Stone of the Federal Farm Board, Bryon Wilson, secretary of the National Wool Marketing Association, and many other prominent leaders will be here and appear as speakers on the program. Slayer Of Crockett County Rancher Believed Caught After Search Of 15 Years

A 15-year-old Crockett County murder mystery was believed near solution with the return here this week of a Mexican believed to be Salome Alvareal, alleged murderer of Jarvis Harp, former Crockett County rancher on the George Harrell ranch near Ozona.

Positive identification of the Mexican, who was arrested a few days ago in Kinney County after a two weeks vigil by officers, has been made by at least two persons and several others have expressed belief that the Mexican is the one wanted for the 15-year-old murder.

Sheriff W. S. Willis returned with the Mexican from Del Rio late Wednesday afternoon and placed the suspect in the Crockett County jail. An indictment is pending against the slayer of Harp in district court here.

Arrest of the suspect was brought about through the efforts of Sheriff Willis and Charles Miller, inspector for the Sheep and Goat Raisers Association. The Mexican, who gained passage into the United States from Mexico under the name of Salome Alvarado, was working on the Slater ranch in Kinney County, near Brackett, and Inspector Miller first picked up the trail which led to the arrest. Suspecting that the Mexican was the one wanted in this county for the murder of Harp, Miller communicated with local officers and with officers at Del Rio. A close vigil was kept over the suspect while officers worked furiously to trace down evidence which might lead to his positive identification. Believing that the Mexican was planning to leave the Slater ranch, Miller arrested him and he was transferred to the Del Rio jail, from which he was later transferred to the Crockett County bastille.

Bishop Identifies Suspect

Metz Bishop, San Angelo insurance man and former ranch partner of the slain man, and W. M. Johnigan, former Crockett County deputy sheriff, are the two who have positively identified the suspect as the Mexican wanted in connection with the slaying of Harp. Mr. Bishop went to Del Rio while the Mexican was held in jail there and picking the suspect out of a group of Mexicans pointed him out as the man who slew his former partner. Mr. Johnigan visited the Mexican in the local jail this morning and identified him as the man long sought as Harp's slayer.

Mr. Johnigan was a deputy sheriff under Sheriff Jim Moore during the time of the slaying, and he told officers here this morning that he and Mr. Moore had arrested Alvareal some time before the slaying on a charge of drunkenness and disturbing the peace. The man now held is the same one they had in jail at that time, he declared.

Victor Pierce, for whom Alvareal worked shortly before being employed by Harp, expressed belief that the suspect is the man wanted, but could not make positive identification. Others who knew the Mexican have also tentatively identified the suspect.

Roy Graves, former Ozona resident, now of San Saba, is said to have talked with Alvareal in Mexico seven years ago, and in that conversation the Mexican is said to have told Graves that he was the man who killed Harp. Sheriff Willis has sent for Graves to come here to see whether or not he can identify the man held.

Body Badly Mutilated

Miguel Reyna, Del Rio Mexican, was placed under $250 witness bond by Sheriff Willis in connection with the case. Reyna is believed by officers to be well acquainted with the prisoner and is being held as a witness in the belief that he can identify him.

Harp was slain and his body badly mutilated at a lonely spot a few hundred yards from the George Harrell ranch home. The slaying is said to have been the outgrowth of an argument between the Mexican and his employer over the handling of some goats.

It was surmised at the time that Harp rode up to the goat camp where Alvareal and another Mexican were and the argument ensued. The reconstructed account of the subsequent struggle and death of Harp had it that Harp pulled a small caliber pistol and fired at his attacker, the bullet inflicting a scalp wound on the Mexican. Harp was then jerked from his horse and horribly beaten and cut with a long knife. Persons who saw the body declared that he had been hacked all over the body, apparently with a long dirk, and that imprints of hob-nailed shoes on the dead man's head showed that he had been brutally stamped by his slayer after being cut down. The back of the head was also smashed in.

Pieces of the small pistol owned by Harp were found near the body, it was said.

District Lay Leader To Occupy Pulpit At Methodist Church Sun

"The Fourfold Life" is the subject of a discourse to be delivered at the Ozona Methodist Church at the morning hour Sunday by J. A. Montgomery of San Angelo, assistant lay leader for this district, who is the second to fill the local pulpit during the absence of the pastor, Rev. J. H. Meredith.

Mr. Montgomery is a forceful speaker and capable leader and a well filled auditorium is expected to greet him at the church Sunday morning. Services will begin at 11 o'clock.

"I trust we may have a good hour of worship together," Mr. Montgomery said in a card written to Dr. J. A. Fussell, announcing his sermon subject for the morning hour. There will be no evening services at the church.

Giants Meet T. P. S. Nine Here Sunday On Powell Field Diamond

The Ozona Giants will again engage the Texas Public Service crew from San Angelo on the local diamond Sunday afternoon. From the standpoint of the locals, this will be in the nature of a battle for revenge, the San Angelo nine having defeated the Giants in no uncertain manner early in the season.

15 1/2 INCHES OF RAIN HERE SINCE JANUARY 1

Week-end rains here, totalling 1 1/2 inches, brought the total in Ozona since January 1 to 15 1/2 inches, according to a record of the year's fall kept with the official gauge at the Joe Oberkamp store. The rains this week were more or less scattered throughout this section but covered a considerable territory and will help ranges a great deal.

Lions Back Park Improvement Plan

Assistance Of Club Offered Fair Assn. In Carrying Out Plan

Members of the Ozona Lions Club voted Monday to endorse the efforts of the Crockett County Fair Association and the Baseball Club to beautify Powell Athletic Field and to offer the services of the club to these organizations in whatever manner it can be of assistance in seeing that the program as outlined in the agreement between the association and the ball club is carried to a successful conclusion.

In discussing the project, members of the club expressed the opinion that the organization might be of some help in soliciting funds for the plan, furnishing help, planting trees, vines, shrubs, etc., and it was suggested that possibly later in the fall the club might stage a home talent play for the benefit of the improvement fund.

The plan as outlined in the agreement was declared one of the greatest improvement projects ever undertaken here and members of the club were unanimous in their endorsement of the project.

A total of $550 in cash donations have been secured toward completing the improvements and this amount is expected to be swelled to $1,000 or more by this fall when actual work is expected to get under way. The funds thus collected will be turned over to the board of school trustees who will direct the improvement work in co-operation with officials of the baseball club. Sale of livestock, donated to the cause, at the week-end sales in connection with the fair each year, will further swell the available funds.

The department through its corps of sanitarians is carrying on a campaign for construction of the pit type toilets where sewer systems, cess pools or septic tanks are not available. Complete and detailed plans for construction of these types of toilets are available to any person wishing them. Mr. Fahrenthold will be back in Ozona in a few weeks and he is anxious to help Crockett County people with any problems in sanitation which might arise.

DANGEROUS CURVES NEAR SONORA TO BE ELIMINATED

A new route of the Old Spanish Trail from Sonora, to be surveyed for the hard surfacing provided for in a recent bond issue in Sutton County, will eliminate the dangerous curves now made by the road on the west edge of Sonora, it is understood here. The new route will take a straight course out of the town and these four bad curves will be eliminated entirely.

A concrete bridge over the Dry Devil's River in the edge of Sonora will be constructed and another bar to through traffic will be eliminated. Surveying work is now under way on the route of this highway from Sonora to the Crockett County line in preparation for the award of contracts for paving the stretch.

COUNTY AGREES TO SHARE STREET GRAVELING COST WITH PROPERTY OWNERS

Health Dept. Men Make Inspection

Dist. Sanitarian To Be Available To Aid In Local Problems

P. C. Fahrenthold, district sanitarian, and E. L. Grimes, Jr., district Sanitary engineer with the State Health Department, were in Ozona Monday making a sanitary inspection of the city and getting acquainted with Ozona people with a view to helping with local problems of sanitation.

Mr. Fahrenthold is one of 20 sanitarians working throughout the state of Texas under a federal aid appropriation for the improvement of rural sanitation. He is making headquarters in San Angelo while working in a half dozen West Texas counties, among which Crockett County is included. Mr. Grimes is with another division of the state health department and makes regular trips to Ozona on inspection tours.

The district sanitarian is concerned with protection of wells, improvement of toilets, mosquito and fly control, milk sanitation and other phases of the public health. He will cover the entire county, including ranch homes and his services will be free to any individual or community in matters of better health and sanitation.

Half of the cost of the gravel necessary to surface streets in the town of Ozona will be borne by the county if property owners will pay the other half, it was agreed by members of the Commissioners Court in session here.

In addition to bearing half of the cost of gravel, the county will furnish the grader and labor to grade up the streets, cut the proper drainage ditches and get them in good condition to receive the coat of gravel, it was declared.

The county grading machine has done considerable work here in the last few weeks in an effort to make proper drainage of some of the worst streets and in most sections of the town a fairly satisfactory grade is already up. But before the gravel coating is laid, the streets will be graded again and shaped up for good drainage in order that the best results might be obtained from the surface material.

Two blocks of graveling have already been laid under the plan outlined by the county. The block in front of Jones Miller's home has been graveled and it is understood the county has agreed to share in the cost of this work, done originally by Jones Miller. The block in front of the Paul Perner home has also been surfaced recently. Both of these projects show the wonderful improvement that can be made on a street with a few loads of gravel. In addition to preventing the streets from being muddy in rainy weather, the gravel coating cuts down considerably on the dust nuisance in dry weather, it is pointed out.

Gravel for the recent street projects has been secured at $1 a load, with a yard and a half to the load, it is understood. This is considered a reasonable price and members of the Commissioners Court declared that the county would be willing to share in the cost of street work on this basis. It is understood that approximately 90 loads were used in surfacing the block in front of the Paul Perner home, making the cost of property owners in that block around $10 each.

The county is not taking the initiative in the matter, members of the court said, but when projects are completed the county will reimburse property owners to half the amount of the cost of such work. The procedure necessary to take advantage of this offer would be an agreement among owners of property or residents along a street or block to have the work done and pro rate the cost. County road machinery would be available for grading the streets and as soon as the gravel work is completed the county will reimburse those who shared in the cost.

In the event the county's liberal offer is generally accepted it will not only bring about a great improvement in streets of the town but will provide work for a number of men this summer.

A SERIOUS INDICTMENT

Perhaps the most shocking revelation that has been made public for many years is the report by the Wicksham Commission on Crime and Punishment of the way in which child offenders under Federal laws are misused, neglected, even tortured in various state penal institutions to which they have been sent by the Federal courts.

The Federal government maintains prisons for adult offenders, but has to turn children who are convicted of violating Uncle Sam's laws over to state and county institutions. Investigators report that in some of these prisons they are placed in damp, unsanitary, dark cells, in others mixed with hardened adult criminals, in others practically starved, and in others beaten and otherwise mistreated for the slightest infraction of discipline.

If anything can turn a boy or girl of 15 or so into a habitual criminal, it is prison treatment such as that.

These children have done nothing to merit any such treatment. It is only occasionally, to be sure, that a minor comes under the ban of the Federal laws. These young prisoners have been found guilty of running a stolen automobile across a state line, which is one of the most recent crimes under Federal laws, or of acting as messenger for drug-peddlers, again crossing a state line, or of other inter-state acts which, while serious enough, do not call for such brutal and heartless treatment as these youngsters get.

If the United States Government must send children to jail, then let the Federal authorities establish their own prison for minors and see that they are humanely treated.

BANKERS ON ADVERTISING

Bankers are hard-boiled business men, basing their deductions on proven facts, and the following, published in the American Bankers Magazine, is sound advice:

"No business man in any town should allow a newspaper published in his town to go without his name and business being mentioned somewhere in its columns. This does not mean you should have a whole, half, or even quarter page ad in each issue of the paper, but your name and business should be mentioned if you do not use more than a 2-line space. A stranger picking up a newspaper should be able to tell what business is represented in a town by looking at the paper. This is the best town advertiser. The man who does not advertise his business does an injustice to himself and the town. The life of a town depends on the live, wide-awake and liberal advertising business men."

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Glyn Blair of Ozona to Elmer Sorrels, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Sorrels of this city, who is with the 88th Observation Squadron at Fort Sill, Okla. The wedding took place in Altus, Okla., on June 6.

So many Ozona folks have been going away recently to take a bath. Some of the water out of those wells on the hill might have healing qualities too if given a proper try-out. Anyway, some old home-made soap and a rough gunny sack for a bath towel would go far toward removing dirt.

Then, there's the town wit who asked H. A. Moore if he sold any ham and eggs to the fellow he bought that new Chevrolet from down in Lometa.

A PREACHER'S FAREWELL

Probably it is an old story, but anyway it's full of logic. A preacher had been greatly discouraged and had sought a new field of labor. He happened to have a friend in the governor, to whom he appealed and not in vain. He got a political job. In taking leave of his flock, he said:

"Brothers and sisters, I must say good-bye.

"I don't think God loves you, because none of you ever die.

"I don't think you love each other, because none of you ever get married.

"I don't think you love me, because you have not paid my salary.

KILLING THE SNAKE

A pamphlet issued by one of the big insurance companies tells us how to act in emergencies: how to revive a drowning person; how to bandage a burn; what to do for snake bite.

On this last subject there is an introductory sentence which is set in big type for emphasis. It reads: "DON'T STOP TO KILL THE SNAKE."

The idea contained in that crisp utterance has far-flung applications. Whether any specific deed should or should not be done depends not merely upon its character but equally upon the circumstances and the time.

ROWENA RIDES THE RUMBLE

COPYRIGHT 1931 BY THE AUTHOR

by ETHEL HUESTON

SYNOPSIS

Rackruff Motors hire Rowena to accompany Peter on a nationwide tour in their roadster as an advertising stunt. At the last minute Little Bobby is engaged to act as chaperon.

A few miles out Bobby becomes tearful at being parted from her sweetheart and Rowena insists on taking her place in the rumble so that she can ride with Peter and have him to talk to about Carter. Rowena gets Peter to consent to divide the expense money each week as soon as it arrives, and astonishes Peter by eating too economically.

The three tourists reach St. Louis, after passing through Buffalo and Chicago. Peter and Rowena have many tiffs, while Bobby is enraptured at the way Carter is fuming over her flight from New York.

THE STORY

There were bound to be ever so many pleasant, cool, shadowy shortcuts between St. Louis and Kansas City.

On the way between St. Louis and Kansas City, Peter asked about short-cuts at no end of filling stations and garages as they went west, but no one seemed very well informed about by-roads, and for the most part every one advised against attempting any such thing.

It was well on toward noon when Peter found a man in a garage who thought there really was a short-cut just as Peter wanted. He wasn't altogether sure it was a direct route to Kansas City, but at least it did not lead back toward St. Louis.

They had driven about twenty miles along this rambling lane, which at times seemed to turn uncertainly toward Kansas City and then made a dead run for the Nebraska line, when they saw a stalled car in the road before them. The driver lay stretched out on the bank with his hat over his face.

Peter slowed up. Rowena leaned forward and rapped sharply on the glass. "Never ask advice of a broken-down driver," she warned him darkly. "If he knew what he was doing, he wouldn't be broken down."

But Peter for once had struck the right party. The man knew every road in the state.

Peter thanked him for his careful directions and returned to the car. He was too much of a gentleman to leer triumphantly back at Rowena under the awning umbrella in the rumble seat. He just got in behind the wheel and started the motor.

He had driven fully twenty miles over the worst possible sort of country road when he found that a bridge was out, that there was no detour, and the only possible way to go on in the direction of Kansas City was to go back to the main road and start over. Very meekly he turned around to pay homage to her better judgment, but stopped short, staring open-mouthed. Bobby, who always looked where others did, turned too and her amazement surpassed his own.

The rumble seat was empty. Rowena was not there.

Peter slowly returned over the roads to where the self-styled expert had given him his directions.

Twenty miles! Bobby closed her eyes. Peter hoped she was praying. He would have prayed himself except that the hard driving over the bad road required his complete attention. But he did keep breathing over and over in his heart the one word "God! God! God!" and trusted the Infinite would understand it for appeal.

Instinctively his foot lifted from the accelerator and at a noiseless crawl the car rolled up to the shadowy bank under the willow tree where the stranger with the stalled motor had mapped out the futile short-cut.

"Oh!" whispered Bobby weakly. "Look—look! Rowena!"

Rowena indeed, lying motionless beside the road where the afternoon sun slanted behind the trees to throw protecting shadows over her slender figure. Peter was out of the car long before it had come to a stop and was up the bank and kneeling beside her. He lifted one limp slim hand. It was stained red.

"Rowena!" he whispered. Rowena opened her eyes. "Oh, hello," she said cheerfully. "Gosh, you were a long time coming back."

"Are—are you—hurt?" stammered Peter.

"Hurt? Why, no! What do you mean, hurt?" She licked a bit of red raspberry juice from her finger as she spoke.

"D-did you fall out, darling?" asked Bobby in fatuously affectionate tones.

"Fall out?" repeated Rowena. "Certainly not." She stood up, lifted her arms, stretching her slender figure comfortably to its utmost height. "Had a grand nap" she said. "And wrote out just what I think of Missouri. Poor dears, you must be dreadfully hot and tired. Come and sit down—a minute's feast to feed you. Berries and cold spring water. I knew you would be famished so I picked heaps."

"You darling," said Bobby, and greedily fell to. "But will you please tell us, "she mumbled, with a full mouth, for she was very hungry, "how you fell—how you got—out of the rumble seat?"

"I climbed out," said Rowena cheerfully. "It's the only way you can get out of a rumble seat."

"But when—"

"We didn't see you!"

"When Peter and the broken-down gent were dusting off Missouri in the middle of the road I noticed the wild berries up on the bank among the rocks. I must have got myself out of sight of the car without knowing it, for the first thing I knew, I heard the usual racing of the engine with which dear Peter gets under way, so I ran down and there you were—tearing off among the ruts in a cloud of metaphorical glory. So I picked some more berries, and the broken-down gent and I shot craps until the garage man came and towed him in. He invited me to go with them, but I knew you would be back for me when you got around to it."

"There was a bridge out on the short-cut," explained Peter quickly.

"I know. The broken-down gent remembered it about ten minutes after you had gone. But of course it was too late then."

"You're very game about it, Rowena. Very sporting. I wouldn't blame you if you didn't speak to me again from here to the coast."

"Oh, nonsense!" said Rowena pleasantly. "This was just an accident. Accidents never make me mad. It's just," she added meaningfully, "just—certain—people."

In Kansas City, Bobby found thirty-one telegrams from Carter, each increasingly immoderate in its commands for her to give over this outrageous conduct and return home at once.

Rowena had the usual fat one addressed in the boyish scrawl, and surely she had read no further than the first paragraph when she began counting out her money. Peter had a comforting telegram from Mr. Rack, with a

Car Owners Bought More Firestone Tires During April, May and June than in any like period in History

There are reasons for this—Firestone is now building the Greatest Tire Values in history, with the result that Firestone factories are operating 24 hours a day, 6 days a week, to meet public preference.

This is the year everybody is scrutinizing his purchases. This is particularly true in tire buying because of the many confusing and misleading statements made about tires.

To give car owners the facts, Firestone published comparisons showing quality, construction and prices. Then the public came in—made their own comparisons with cross-sections cut from Firestone tires—and from special brand mail order tires and others.

When they saw the facts, they bought more Firestone tires during April, May and June than in any like period in Firestone history.

Drive in today and let us show you these Firestone Extra Values and have your car equipped for Safe, Trouble-Free Summer Motoring. We can save you money and serve you better.

Frequent Sprinkling Of Lawns & Flowers Declared Injurious

Big Spring—In his visits in several communities of the county last week it was not uncommon to note that many gardenists were breeding trouble by too frequent sprinkling or wetting by other methods of the surface soil on garden spots, said J. V. Bush, farm agent.

Frequent sprinkling or wetting of the surface soil will cause plants to develop their root systems near the surface because the plants do not have to seek moisture in the lower levels, he pointed out. Disastrous results may be expected from this practice as the weather grows hotter and the surface soil tends to dry out more rapidly, not giving the root system time and moisture with which to push downward to tap reserve moisture in the lower levels.

The same mistake is being made by many townspeople in watering of lawns, he said. Too frequent wetting lawns develop root systems near the surface and if the upper layers of the soil are allowed to dry out with hotter weather the grass will turn yellow and suffocate and the lawn will appear bare.

He suggested the following rules for caring for your lawns during the heat of the summer:

The way to avoid drought effects is to keep the plants drier. Apply less water less frequently but more at a time. Give the ground a good soaking, enough to wet the soil to a depth of several inches. Then, when the surface water evaporates the roots of the plants will push downward and tap the reserve moisture in the deeper layers of the soil.

Talking Version Of "Trader Horn" To Be Shown Here Aug. 3-4

"Trader Horn," Metro-Goldwyn Mayer's sensational filmization of the famous book of African adventure, will be shown at the Ozona Theater, Monday and Tuesday, August 3 and 4, as the biggest undertaking in the filming of adventure films in history. With a motorized safari of a hundred trucks and autos, the troupe pressed into jungles in Africa never before traversed by white men.

They carried the first and only sound recording apparatus ever brought to Africa's jungles, and filmed and recorded the drama, with wild beasts, savage native dances and ceremonies and other details right on the ground.

Covered 25,000 Miles

They covered British East Africa, the Belgian Congo, and invaded the dreaded Murchison Falls "sleeping sickness" country in the 25,000-mile location trip.

The story, as adapted from the famous book by Alfred Aloysius Horn and Ethelreda Lewis, deals with the trader and his protegee, Peru, who promises a woman missionary to find the "White Goddess" of the savage Isorgi, whom she believes to be her daughter, lost in a native raid as a baby.

How they brave terrors of the jungle and the savage head hunters, find the girl, escape, both fall in love with her, and Trader Horn's dramatic sacrifice at the end to send the two younger people to safety are among the elements of the tale. It binds together wild elephant charges, fights between lions and leopards, thrills among crocodiles, the charge of a savage rhinoceros, and other terrific natural drama of the jungles.

Harry Carey, hero of "Trail of '98," "Silent Sanderson" and many other hits, plays the trader and Edwina Booth, pretty blonde of "Manhattan Cocktail," who volunteered for the arduous trip, is seen as Nina T. Duncan Renaldo, of "Bride of San Luis Rey" fame Olive Golden, former Western star, and Mutia, giant Swahili warrior, who plays Renchero, are among the cast.

MAIN STREET Looks at BROADWAY

Police Chesterfields

Every New York policeman has his shoes polished up to the last degree. You can find one without his shield sooner than without a polish. Their uniforms are always pressed and there is not a set of men in the world who present as smart an appearance as the 19,000 men on Commissioner Mulrooney's force.

Naturally, on $60 a week, the pay of a New York cop, they can afford to dress better than they used to when they drew $80 a month not so very many years ago.

Police Wire-pulling

Naturally, with so many on the force, there is a certain amount of inside politics played all the time. One of the choice assignments over which the men battle is the tri-weekly job of policing the crowd at the Goldman band concerts in Central Park. And the way they fight each other for the privilege of getting that job is nobody's business.

Each concert attracts close to 7,000 people, half of whom get seats while the remainder are allowed to drape themselves on the grass or wherever they can find a point of vantage. The police are there to keep them in order—and one pinch a century would be a high average. All the cops have to do is listen to one of the finest concerts on earth and then go home.

A Wonderful Gift

The Goldman band concerts are just one sample of the hundreds of free amusements offered New Yorkers all through the year. The city gives the bandstand and the Guggenheim family, which made a huge fortune in minerals in the Rocky Mountains, pays the musicians, the cost running to many thousands of dollars every year.

The band plays at Columbia University campus on alternate nights, thereby drawing a totally different crowd. In the course of the year probably a million people hear the band, not to count the many millions more who listen in by radio. Even New Yorkers who seem to find it hard to praise anything in especial about their city, admit the Goldman band concerts are wonderful.

The Goldman band is just one more thing that links New York up, in its likes and dislikes, with the small town. Hundreds of small places support a town band and the tri-weekly summer scene in Central Park differs only in size from the happenings in myriad of smaller places throughout the country.

A New Wrinkle

The best shoe polisher in the world has a stand in the shadow of the Metropolitan Opera House, just off Broadway. Like most of them, he is an Italian. He puts four or five different kinds of polishes on your shoes and makes them look like new.

What hit me most was that when I sat down in his chair he tucked in my shoelaces, so they wouldn't get wet, and then slipped in pieces of leather about as big as a half-sole, into the sides of my shoes, letting them stick up to protect the socks from getting stained. It was a touch of the real service one gets in this town.

It's a good tip for your local shoe shiner.

Boot Trees

Nearly every man in New York owns one or more pairs of boot trees—those chunks of wood shaped like the foot that go in the shoes when you take them off. They keep the leather from shrinking and make them look like new right to the day you fire them into the garbage can.

Of course, all women everywhere keep their shoes on lasts when they are not being worn, but New York is probably the only place in this country where the men use them. In England, where it rains every day for months, everybody has to use them or have their shoes look like Charley Chaplin's.

There was a young lady of Siam Who said to her lover, young Priam If you kiss me, of course You'll have to use force— But God knows you are stronger than I am.—Ex.

Hundreds Expected To Attend Paisano Baptist Encampment

Hundreds of ranchmen from the Big Bend country and other parts of Texas are expected to attend the Paisano Baptist Assembly, which will be held at the mile-high religious resort between Marfa and Alpine July 31 to August 9.

Those who have attended the encampment in the past say it is one of the unusual gatherings of the Nation. It is an old-fashioned camp meeting, the boots and spurs are worn by hundreds who listen to the addresses and join in the songs and prayers.

The only gospel some hear during a year is that which they hear at the encampment. Camp Paisano is said to have stamped its influence on the citizenship of this entire West Texas territory. The regard the people hold for spiritual things is attested by their generosity when the big pie pans are passed to raise funds to defray the expenses of the meeting and for other projects. More than $14,000 has been taken up at one time.

The greatest spiritual program that could be arranged has been provided. Dr. Geo. W. Truett, pastor of the First Baptist Church Dallas, and Dr. I. E. Gates, pastor of the First Baptist Church, San Antonio, will do the preaching. Dr. J. B. Tidwell, teacher of the Bible at Baylor University, will conduct a series of lectures on the Bible. Splendid programs have been arranged for the B. Y. P. U., Sunday School and W. M. U. The afternoons will be open for rest and recreation, and a splendid lot of amusement will be provided.

Hon. Pat M. Neff, chairman of the Board of Trustees, Baylor University, will speak on "Christian Education," and Ollie B. Webb, assistant to the President of the Texas & Pacific Railroad, will speak on "Business and Religion." These interesting talks will likely be made on Sunday, August 2nd.

The general public is invited. While it is a Baptist Encampment yet all denominations are welcome to attend and join in with the leaders in all of their activities.

Rev. L. R. Millican, 4216 Trowbridge Street, El Paso, is the President and A. C. Esterling, Del Rio, Texas, is the Secretary.

WORLD WAR LOSS 11 MILLION

A., 107,284; Italy, 507,160; Russia, 2,762,064; Belgium, 267,000; Serbia, 707,343; Roumania, 339,117; Greece, 15,000; Germany, 2,050,466; Austria-Hungary, 1,200,000; Turkey, 300,000; Bulgaria, 101,224; total 10,873,577.

To this must be added: 20,000,000 wounded; 9,000,000 war orphans; 5,000,000 war widows, 10,000,000 refugees. These figures do not include the indirect losses from revolution, famine, and pestilence, the increased death rate and the total losses due to the war. According to the Swedish Society for the Study of Social Consequences of the war the total loss must be put down at 40,000,000 lives.

GAME

Driving over Austerlitz mountain, one of the Taconic range which separates New York from Massachusetts I flushed seven pheasants in as many miles. One gorgeous, long-tailed cock pheasant rocketed out of the brush smack into my windshield and fell to the road with a broken neck. He deserved a better fate.

The breeding of pheasants is being encouraged by the states of the Northeast. Some state authorities supply pheasant eggs free to those who will hatch them under barnyard hens. New York is paying 4-H Club boys and girls $1 each for mature pheasants so hatched. They are liberated in the state forest preserve, to be shot by hunters in the proper season.

In Virginia and some other parts of the South the native American partridge is sometimes called a pheasant. There is no native pheasant. These game birds are imports from China and eastern Asia. They have been bred in Europe for sport for centuries. American hunters have pretty well cleaned out our native game birds, but it is expected the imported pheasant will increase and multiply under careful conservation, so that there will still be something for the next generation of sportsmen to shoot.

BONUSES

Bethlehem Steel Company, in response to the protests of some stockholders who thought the men who run the business were getting too much money for their work, has increased salaries and reduced the percentage of bonuses paid to employees for increased production.

Perhaps the Bethlehem bonuses were too high; I cannot judge that. I am certain, however, that the greatest incentive to good work which any employer can offer to his employees is to give them money rewards above their wages if they do more than the routine requirements of their jobs.

Some day the whole wage system will be revised and every worker will be paid precisely in proportion to his output. Then if he wants to loaf on the job it will be his loss and not his employer's.

BABCOCK

When Dr. Stephen Meulten Babcock died at the age of 87 a few days ago, there passed on the man who, more than any other individual, was the father of the modern dairy industry. The Babcock Test for butter fat revolutionized dairying and set a new standard to which to breed dairy cows.

Today the dairy industry, which includes not only milk, cheese and butter production but the wide range of manufacturing industries based on the use of casein, from skim milk, is one of the greatest in the nation. It has brought the impoverished wheat states of the Northwest into the forefront of agricultural prosperity. It has brought healthful, nourishing food within the reach of everybody. And all that as the result of one agricultural college professor's experiments.

MCCORMICK

Exactly 100 years ago, in July, 1831, a young Virginia farmer named Cyrus McCormick made the first public demonstration of his horse-drawn reaper. At that time more than four-fifths of the people of the United States were engaged in farming. To put it another way, it took the labor of four families on the farm to feed five families, including themselves.

The direct result of McCormick's invention was to increase agricultural production, and reduce the number of farmers. Today fewer than a quarter of our people are farmers. One family on the farm feeds three other families who produce no food. And anyone who knows farming will agree that even fewer farmers could feed the whole nation.

McCormick became a millionaire, one of the few such in his time. His descendants still control the International Harvester Company. They are industrialists and the United States has become an industrial nation, largely because of Cyrus McCormick.

Flays Increased Government Cost

League Head Blames "Office-Holding Element For Tax Ills

Round Rock, Texas, July 15.—The Old Settlers Reunion, which is just closing its annual meeting at the grounds owned by it near here, gave one afternoon to the Williamson County Tax League, which invited Mr. D. M. Jones, head of The Taxpayers Protective League of Dallas County, and E. G. Senter, one of its officers, to address the meeting on the subject of excessive taxation in Texas.

Mr. Jones briefly explained the objects of The Taxpayers Protective League and Mr. Senter discussed the rapid growth of taxation, state and local, in Texas within the last few years. He said that the burden of taxation upon the people of Texas has reached the breaking point; that taxes take most of the revenues of the people from all their export crops and that the state is rapidly heading toward financial ruin on account of the intolerable burden of taxation; that this is mainly due to the fact that the office-holding is in control of Texas politicians; that they are constantly increasing their numbers and power, and increasing their fees and perquisites; that the legislature has for many years been under their control and the control of special interests which operate with them, working together to get what they want. Mr. Senter said no relief will come as long as the people shall continue to send young lawyers to the legislature, who have dominated it for years and whose object in going there has been to find clients for themselves. He urged that an organized appeal should be made to the people to quit sending young lawyers to the legislature and that the best men in every county shall be conscripted for this service next year, not as candidates of themselves but as candidates of organized taxpayers.

It was stated by both of the speakers that the plan of The Taxpayers Protective League is to thoroughly organize Dallas County at once and to put out candidates conscripted from the people to run in the next primary, committed to the acceptance of reasonable compensation, with the pledge openly made that all fees in excess of amounts to be agreed upon, shall be turned to the general revenue fund of the county. It was further disclosed that it is the purpose of this League to urge the organization of a similar taxpayers' movement in every county of the state, with the intention, early next year, to call a state mass meeting of delegates from each of such organizations for the purpose of effecting a state-wide movement to control the next legislature and the next

POPULATION

The population of the United States is not increasing at as rapid a rate as formerly. We have about 125,000,000 people now, and President Hoover recently said that the expectation is for an increase of 20,000,000 in 20 years. That would give us 145,000,000 in 1951.

The importance of those figures lies in the fact that some long-time industrial and railroad operations have been based on the expectation that population would keep on growing at the rate which it did in the 1890's and early 1900's, when immigration was unrestricted. Pressure for the lowering of immigration bars comes mainly from those interests.

Farm production in the United States today is sufficient to feed 140,000,000. Farmers must find a foreign market for food sufficient for 15,000,000 people, therefore or suffer from low prices. The alternative is to reduce the acreage under cultivation for the staple crops. That is what the Federal Farm Board is preaching, and it is bound to come.

Hints for the Home by Nancy Hart

Russian Tea Punch

This has a foundation of a quart of tea, strong, but quickly brewed. Nothing is worse in iced drinks than tea that has been brewed long enough to produce a bitter taste.

To the tea add a mixture of two tablespoons of orange juice, five tablespoons of lemon juice and two cups of sugar. Then add a quart of charged water and half a cup of fresh berries and shredded pineapple, either canned or fresh. Serve with shaved ice.

Loganberry Punch

To one pint of loganberry juice add a pint of water and the juice of one lemon. Serve with thin slices of lemon in the glasses. If your taste demands it, add sugar.

Rhubarbade

Into a casserole put a pound of rhubarb cut in small pieces, half a cup of sugar, a cup of water, and bake covered until the rhubarb is tender. Strain, add a quart of ice water, the juice of one large orange and two lemons, and serve. This recipe fills a dozen small punch cups.

Currant Punch

Mix together two cups each of sugar and currant juice and boil five minutes with six cups water. Add the juice of three lemons and three oranges, one cup of cold tea, and serve. This will fill twenty-five punch cups.

Pineapple Lemonade

Add four cups hot water to two of sugar, and boil slowly for fifteen minutes. Cool and add a small can of chopped pineapple, the juice of three lemons and of four medium oranges, and a bottle of charged water. Add a quart of cold water, and pour on chopped ice in small or large glasses.

Milk Shakes

It is quite possible to make delicious milk shakes at home. You can, for a considerable price, buy an electric milk shaker, or you can for a very reasonable price buy a hand shaker that is quite satisfactory. Then make chocolate sauce in behalf of the cause of tax reform and drastic reduction in the cost of government, state, county and municipal. The sentiments expressed by both of these speakers were warmly endorsed and steps were taken at the meeting to press forward with the movement in Williamson County.

Finishing touches are being put on the Akron, which will be formally named on August 8. The photograph shows the three fins in place and the outer covering being applied to the ship's tail. Each fin is forty feet wide and 105 feet in length. The Akron is 785 feet long and weighs 221,000 pounds. It can lift 182,000 pounds of "pay load" besides its own weight. Mrs. Hoover will christen the airship by liberating a flock of doves.

friendly postscript by Mr. Ruff, advising that the redhaired siege was lifted and that they had been honored with a sort of an apology, but warning them to be careful of their future conduct.

Mr. Rack also said they were extremely pleased with the character of the work that had been turned out, and enclosed check for next week's expenses. Peter was extremely grateful for that check, for Bobby had spent the last cent of her week's allowance by Wednesday, after which time he and Rowena had been obliged to carry her between them.

"Chaperons come high, don't they?" grumbled Rowena, as she counted out nickels and dimes to make up her portion of Bobby's last manicure.

It was a genuine hardship to them to be obliged to contribute so extensively to the maintenance of luxury-loving Bobby. On the other hand, her presence was so essential to the all-important tour that they were in no position to quarrel very seriously even with her extravagances.

"For my part, I'd rather pay her bills than read Carter's telegrams," said Peter moodily.

"I wouldn't," disagreed Rowena promptly. "I've learned to read with one eye and listen with one ear, and that way I get through with only half the mental strain."

"Yes," but you've got a rumble to retire to."

"So I have. But I have to sleep with her."

One thing was certain. Her presence was essential, and Carter and his telegrams, she and her extravagances, were alike to be endured.

At Topeka she was startled to find but one telegram awaiting her—a ten-word, straight day message.

"Are you taking first train home or are you not?"

It was not even signed.

Bobby's fright was so genuine, her disappointment so real, that Rowena and Peter tried to console her.

Peter took them out to a movie, and Rowena—with her own money—bought her a cunning little Kansas souvenir, a flask carved out of a corn-cob and she seemed slightly more resigned.

She was very quiet as they crossed Kansas, and when they complained of the notoriously hot winds, she smiled patiently and said she didn't mind. She ate very little, and had fifteen cents of her allowance left at the end of the week.

When they reached Denver they hurried at once, as they always did, to get their mail, and there was nothing at all for Bobby, not a letter, not a telegram, not so much as a souvenir postcard. She said nothing but turned pale and a little sad smile froze the dimples in the soft face.

When Rowena went down to dinner she made excuses not to go—said she was very tired, said she wanted a hot bath and a good sleep, said she would just read a magazine she had picked out at the news-stand.

They went up to the room immediately after dinner with all good intentions, and Rowena knocked. When there was no answer she opened the door and they went in. The room had a deserted appearance. Bobby's handsome articles of toilet were gone from the dressing-table. Her beautiful dressing-gown was gone from the foot of the bed, her satin mules from beneath it. Her imported traveling bag no longer stood beside Rowena's shabby suitcase on the baggage rack.

Peter and Rowena looked at each other in wife-eyed consternation.

There was a note, written on hotel paper in Bobby's round childish hand. It was pinned to Rowena's pillow.

"Darlings, I'm going home, I've got to. If I don't, I'll never get him back. I'll send Peter the money I borrowed as soon as I get my allowance. I'm going on the seven o'clock train and I have already wired him to meet me. You're both just sweet and I love you. But I do wish you didn't quarrel so. I'm glad Carter and I get along better."

"And that," said Rowena flatly, "is that."

"It's all of that," added Peter gloomily.

"Nothing," declared Rowena drearily, "could be more irretrievably fatal than this."

"It was great sport while it lasted," said Peter. "You have

BLOOD IMBALANCE

Nothing should be appreciated more than perfect circulation of the blood in the body; and, many times we physicians meet with variations from normal, which may be called "imbalance," or encouragements here and there which may vary from congestions to actual dilatations of the vessels—organic disease.

People with big abdomens are been pretty game all the way, through, Rowena."

"It was corking good business, too," said Rowena. "And taking it all, you are not half bad to breeze around with, Peter."

"Well, it's all over now," said Peter.

"You don't suppose we could pick one up here, do you?—By advertising. The way we got Bobby in the first place."

But they both knew it was pretty hopeless.

They said good night with some thing vaguely suggestive of affectionate regard, for this killing, kindred disappointment gave them a cordial meeting-ground for almost the first time.

Rowena sat alone at her window, little and high up, for she had frugally changed from a double to a single room immediately after the desertion of Bobby.

She was not one to give up with out a struggle—nor to give up at all, for that matter.

It was nearly midnight when she shook off her final hesitation, with a mind made up. An idea had come to her, terrifying and tremendous, hours before. She had toyed with it, weighed it in the balance and, finding it wanting, pushed it resolutely away; but had permitted it to work its way back, insidiously sure. At twelve o'clock she called Peter on the telephone and that was an end of her hesitation.

"Listen, Peter. You meet me downstairs in the lobby, right away, will you? I have an idea."

"But I'm in bed!"

sufferers in varying degree, from blood imbalance. There are many great veins that traverse the abdominal wall and visceral content there situated. Anything that may cause "rush of blood" to these blood-vessels, produces immediate and very evident effect on structures elsewhere. A big meal is an example—overeating; intense determination of blood to the stomach and bowel, depleting the brain for the time being, causing dizziness, cloudy vision, staggering gait, stupor, with heavy feeling throughout the already over-fleshed abdomen. The symptoms may amount to a temporary helplessness, a not very enjoyable feeling in elderly persons.

I believe without accurate figures, that one-fourth of the blood volume may flow in a great tidal-wave to a ponderous abdomen, from overexertion, overeating, etc and, that this condition reacts heavily upon the heart and brain; of course the veins of such an abdomen become much dilated from the constant sagging, making possible, if I may use the term, "abdominal appoplexy." And here it is that the "tubby" abdomen is a very troublesome luxury.

Methods of correction are slow, discouraging, and are seldom persisted in to get the relief possible. Carefully practiced exercises are productive of results. Of course free daily evacuation of the bowel MUST be maintained. Here it is starches in the diet must be cut down to a minimum. Indeed, the diet must be just what is needed and no more. In chronic cases patients short of breath and who puff with slight muscular exertion may wear a well-fitted bandage to support the sagging, indolent organism.

Standard Brands

If you are offered something inordinately cheap, before you buy it ask yourself if you know what it is you are buying. Inferior merchandise is on the market in great quantities—those "just as good" brands, you know. Of course, we do not say that anything that is new is no good, but we do say that the old line, standard brands, nationally advertised merchandise is the safest bet when you are not certain of the quality of the goods you are buying.

We handle only standard merchandise. The best lines that the wholesale market affords, lines that have stood the test of national advertising, brands that have stood up under the critical eye of users, that have been tested and found satisfactory and have been leading sellers for years. That's the kind of merchandise that is safe to buy—your money's worth of quality merchandise every time.

You will not find an 'off brand' on our shelves. We do not handle "shoddy" merchandise. We buy the best that is offered and you get it at the lowest reasonable margin of profit, plus a lot of service. What more could you ask from your grocer.

SLAYER—

in Coleman County.

The long search for the slayer was turned into a holiday outing, although most of the men in the chase were dead serious. The slayer rode his victim's horse to the Claude Hudspeth place, a distance of about 15 miles, and there tied the horse to a tree and took to the brush country, through which he made his way to the border, eluding the immense posse which beat the brush throughout the area and kept a close guard over every water hole in the section.

Victim In Poor Health

Harp came to Crockett County in poor health and went into the goat business, leasing land from George Harrell. The slaying took place about 22 miles from Ozona.

Among those who joined the search for the Mexican were George Harrell, Elam Dudley, Jim Walcott, Earl Berry, L. B. Cox, B. Coates, Early, Elo, and Bright Baggett, Roger Dudley, B. E. Ingham, Jim Bertram, W. H. Augustine, Paschal Odom, Blake Mauldin, and hundreds of others from Crockett and adjoining counties.

The Mexican suspect will be held to the next meeting of the district court in October, when he will probably be brought to trial on the 15-year-old murder indictment.

It appears strange that news like the following never gets into the daily papers. It certainly would be news for them on the grounds that the unusual is news. Here is a piece of news that the big news agencies have ignored. Commander Evangeline Booth of the Salvation Army is speaking: "Before prohibition on New York's Bowery the Army would collect often 1,200 or 1,300 men and women in one night who were too drunk to take care of themselves. Now they average no more than seven a night. In the Salvation Army Memorial Home they house 4,800 men each week, and average not more than one drunken case in a thousand. Drinking has dropped sixty per cent. We know it! Our men are walking the Bowery day and night, twenty-four hours a day, 365 days in

6,050,000 Head Of Sheep, 3,300,000 Of Goats In Tex. Jan. 1

Texas produces approximately 12 per cent of the wool and 85 per cent of the mohair grown in the United States and the bulk comes from the Edwards Plateau, which is included in the San Angelo area according to the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station in their bulletin "Type of Farming Areas in Texas," as recently released.

Although accredited with an unmistakable lead in producing the greatest amount of wool and mohair the territory of this section of West Texas is noted for its livestock, poultry, and in some sections cotton, maize and other agricultural products, the bulletin states.

The peak in sheep number of 7,500,000 head was reached in this state about 1885, the number then declined to slightly more than 1,600,000 sheep when an upward turn came about, until now there is a new high level of 6,050,000 on January 1, 1931, it is asserted. The importance of Angora goats in the state and the rate of increase in their numbers is best indicated from the amount of mohair clipped.

The Texas clip of mohair has increased from slightly less than seven million pounds in 1920 to approximately 14 million pounds in 1930. The number of goats in the state was estimated at 3,300,000 on January 1, 1931, the bulletin continued.

More than 60 per cent of the lands in Midland, Ector, Loving, Andrews, Winkler, Jeff Davis, Brewster, Presidio, Culberson, Hudspeth, Val Verde, Crockett, Edwards, Reagan, Sutton, Tom Green, Coke, Schleicher, and several other counties of this immediate section were shown to be under grazing.

AFTER THE DEPRESSION—WHAT?

We are indebted to Rockwell Smith, a real estate man of Van Nuys, California, for the collection of certain facts about financial depressions in the past, which should be valuable in predicting the future. Mr. Smith went through a file of newspapers back to the 1850's and finds these facts:

There was a business depression in 1857 lasting twelve months.

There was a business depression in 1869 lasting eight months.

There was a business depression in 1873 lasting thirty months.

There was a business depression in 1884 lasting twenty-two months.

There was a business depression in 1887 lasting ten months.

There was a business depression in 1893 lasting twenty-five months.

There was a business depression in 1903 lasting twenty-five months.

There was a business depression in 1907 lasting nearly twelve months.

There was a business depression in 1914 lasting eight months.

There was a business depression in 1921 lasting fourteen months.

The important thing about these past panics, however, is that every one of them has been followed by flush times, and the long er the depression lasted, the longer and more active the "boom."

The present depression has now lasted nearly twenty months. We can hardly say that the "boom" which will surely follow it has begun, but it is clearly on its way. And when it comes—oh, boy!

WORK TO START NEXT SUMMER ON U. T. LIBRARY

Austin, Texas, July 22.—If present plans mature, the proposed new $1,000,000 library building at the University of Texas will be started during the summer of 1932 and an additional year will see the structure finished and ready for occupancy. The present library building will then be used to house a museum, a recent announcement said. There are already a great number of collections of various kinds which will go to form the nucleus of what is expected to become the largest and most important museum in the Southwest. Among the notable collections already in the possession of the University are those composed of base and precious minerals, fossils, anthropological specimens, oil coins, statuary, specimens of Texas woods, relics of early Texas days and zoological specimens.
