ELECTRICITY

The late Charles P. Steinmetz, the most original thinker in the field of applied science that we have ever had in America, once said that the time would come when electric current would be so cheap that it would not pay to read meters. A flat rate of a trifle per month, the way water is paid for now, will be all that domestic current will cost, beyond doubt, some day.

The latest invention for reducing the cost of generating electricity is the mercury boiler. The liquid metal, mercury, is used instead of water to drive the first of a series of turbines; the rest of the series are driven by steam generated by the cooling of the mercury. W. L. R. Emmett, a General Electric Company engineer, has been working away at the mercury boiler for twenty years in his Hartford laboratory. Already he has proved that it can be operated for a small fraction of the cost of steam.

That is only one of the many economies which will eventually make electric current literally as cheap as water.

VITAMINS

Nobody knows yet precisely what vitamins are, but new facts about where they come from and what they do are being discovered almost every day. The latest discovery is that common colds are more likely to attack persons who do not get enough Vitamin A in their diet. This is the vitamin which is found in whole milk, certain fruits and in the green vegetables. It, in turn, is directly traceable to the effects of sunlight on growing things.

Vitamin D, another of the essentials for a balanced diet, and without which perfect health is not attained, is the subject of a business deal involving a million dollars. Scientists at the University of Toronto discovered a way of irradiating wheat flour so that ordinary bread made from it would contain more of this vitamin. A baking concern in the United States has offered a million dollars for the right to use this process in making bread commercially.

The knowledge even of the existence of vitamins is only ten years old. Much is yet to be learned about them, but what has been learned so far points to a revolution in our eating habits in the course of another generation or two, and to the control of diseases which still baffle the doctors.

MANGANESE

The most curious discovery which modern medical research has made is that unless a mother's food contains a trifling percentage of the metal manganese she has no interest in her babies.

Fortunately there is manganese in infinitesimal amounts in almost every item of daily food, but in the rare instances where maternal affection is absent doctors now know what to do for it; they simply can make sure that the mother is getting a proper ration of manganese, and assimilating it.

It has long been known that every element in Nature is present in the normal human body. Since the human body is the product of its environment, it is natural to suppose that it must partake in some degree of everything else on earth. The oxygen in the air is not put there because humans need it to breathe, as the old philosophers taught, but our bodies are organized to breathe oxygen because that is the active element of the air in which we have developed. And we are finding out that a large proportion of human ills are due to some bodily defect which prevents the full utilization of the elements which are taken into the body, or to the absence of some essential elements in the usual diet.

FUNERAL FOR MRS. TAYLOR AT 3 TODAY

Long Time Resident Of Ozona Died Early Wed. Morning

Beneath a pall of flower surrounded by hosts of sorrowing friends and loved ones, Mrs. Frank Taylor pioneer citizen of West Texas was laid to rest in Cedar Hill Cemetery here today. Funeral services were conducted from the First Baptist Church, the Rev. M. M. Fulmer officiating, assisted by Rev. J. H. Meredith, pastor of the Methodist church. Rev. Fulmer, pastor of the deceased, who, through the years, had been a faithful member of the church, paid a simple tribute to the greatness of Christian motherhood and the life of service. Bro. Fulmer pointed out that Mrs. Taylor had been known as a loving mother and a faithful servant of the Lord, than which there is no higher office. He spoke of her state of being prepared to go, whose only regret was in leaving the loved ones behind and whose chief concern was that they meet her in Heaven.

Music for the service was provided by a choir, each member of which was a close friend of the family. Mrs. M. M. Fulmer was at the piano. Joe Obekampf, undertaker, was in charge of the arrangements.

Assault Charge Held Over Watson

Dist. Atty. Baker Explains Disposition Of Case Here

The Stockman is in receipt of a letter this week from Weaver H. Baker, district attorney of the 112th District, calling attention to a slight error in the report of disposition of the Lem Watson case. The report in last week's Stockman said that the indictment was quashed on motion of the defense attorney, Houston Smith, but, as a matter of fact, the case has been transferred to the drop ticket and is technically still pending, the district attorney points out. Mr. Baker declares that the plea of limitations on the rape charge was good at law but that the indictment also contained an assault to rape charge which is not barred by limitations for three years and which charge he proposes to hold over Watson to insure his good behavior.

Ozona High Lads Trounce Eldorado

Second Victory Scored On Diamond Here Saturday 6 to 2

Behind the superb pitching of Conley Cox, the Ozona High School Lions last Saturday afternoon made it two up on the Eldorado Yellow Jackets by defeating them on the local diamond 6 to 2. The previous Saturday the locals had journeyed to Eldorado where they administered a sound drubbing to the Schleicher lads. Except for a bit of loose playing by his team mates on two occasions, Cox would have turned in a shut-out game against the Eldorado lads. As it was he allowed the visitors only one hit, that in the first inning, and was credited with fourteen strike-outs. In the fifth inning he struck out three men with only ten pitched balls, nine strikes and one ball.

The Lions were on a hitting spree, tapping the offerings of Kerr of Eldorado for a total of ten safeties, Conley Cox and Jones Miller accounting for two of them and E. Miller, Henry McGhee, Walter Kyle, Abe Lee, and Buddy Moore one each. Roger Dudley and Joe Friend failed to land one in safe territory, but gave a good account of themselves in their positions in the field. The score by innings:

ELDORADO	000	000	110
OZONA	202	110	000

Undeafated so far this season the Lions will journey to Rock-springs next Saturday to engage the Edwards lads in the first game of the season between those two teams. A return match will probably be arranged for a date in the near future here.

One Inch of Rain Falling Here Wed. Aids Range Growth

Coming at a psychological time when ranges were in need of moisture, rain, Wednesday night, gave a new impetus to spring in Crockett County, and a new boost to almost perfect rain conditions in the stock raising area.

One inch of moisture was recorded in Ozona and the rain is reported to have covered considerable territory. Scattered rains for the past month or more have fallen throughout this section. Abundant winter and spring rains have made weeds and grass put on a rank growth and the profusion of wild flowers to be seen at this time of year resembles more a spring in California or Florida.

Beecher Childress is suffering from an attack of bronchial pneumonia. His condition is not considered serious.

Mrs. Albert Boggess and small son, Albert Boggess, Jr., of Dallas, are visiting Mrs. Boggess' parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Montgomery.

Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Meredith and Mrs. B. C. Flowers went to San Angelo Wednesday to be present at the Methodist Missionary conference.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Friend went to San Angelo Tuesday with their infant son who was ill.

Ozona's Entries Named For Angelo School Meet

At a contest staged in the school auditorium Wednesday morning, and participated in by twenty-two students, contestants were named to represent Ozona High School in the coming District Meet to be held in San Angelo. In senior divisions the girls contest was won by Miss Totsie Robison, with Miss Carolyn Montgomery as alternate; the boys contest was won by Rob Roy Curry, with Ben Ingham as alternate. Junior winners were: girls, Helen Adams, first; Willie V. Coose, second; Mary Williams, third; boys, John Henderson, first, Gene Williams, second, Sam Glover, third. In the event that the one placing first is unable to enter at San Angelo, the second place becomes the alternate. Judges for the contest were Houston Smith, Miss Lucille Williamson, and M. M. Fulmer.

W. L. Aldwell Death Victim

Pioneer Sonora Banker Succumbs To Pneumonia Attack Tues.

William Lea Aldwell, 72, president of the First National Bank of Sonora, retired ranchman and pioneer West Texan, died at 9:13 o'clock Tuesday morning from pneumonia at John Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore.

Mr. Aldwell sustained injuries in a fall at a Fort Worth hotel May 17, 1930, and had been under care of physicians since that time. He had returned to San Angelo and Sonora twice since then but he had never regained his health.

Funeral arrangements were indefinite Tuesday night but it was presumed the body left Baltimore late Tuesday and that it would arrive in Sonora in time for services there Saturday afternoon.

In addition to ranching and banking interests Mr. Aldwell was one of the leaders in the movement to extend the railroad from San Angelo to Sonora. His fractured hip, however, prevented him from riding the first train between the two cities.

Survivors include the widow, two sons, Roy Edward Aldwell and George Lea Aldwell, two daughters, Mrs. T. A. Williams of Rocksprings and Mrs. John O. Nesbit of Plainview, Texas.

Mrs. Aldwell, then Winnie R. Harris, and Mr. Aldwell were married in San Angelo December 15, 1884.

Mrs. W. N. Jackson was in Ozona from her ranch home near Best Wednesday to visit her brother, A. W. Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bailey were in Temple from Thursday to Saturday of last week.

Play First Lions Benefit Game Sun.

Ozona Town Team To Play In Sonora Sun.; Here In Two Weeks

Ozona's town baseball team, practically the Giants of the last few years intact, will make the first appearance of the present season on the baseball diamond next Sunday afternoon in the first of a series of games between Ozona and Sonora for benefit of the Lions Clubs of each town. Only two games have been arranged for to date, the first next Sunday, and the second on Sunday, May 3. The Sonora team will entertain the Marathon Oil Company nine from Del Rio Sunday week and will be unable to play the return game with the locals until the following Sunday.

The diamond series will be played on a 60-40 basis in both towns, the winner taking 60 per cent of the proceeds and the loser 40. It was planned at first to allow the team playing in its home town to take all of proceeds in the game at home.

All of the proceeds in the series will go to the Lions Clubs of Ozona and Sonora to be used in community work. Teams to face each other in the series must be bona fide residents of the community in which they represent and none of the players must necessarily be members of the Lions Club.

The possible Ozona line-up as announced this week by Manager Jack Sharp, is as follows:

Frank Russell, short stop; Claude Russell, second; Bob Weaver, center field; Bealer Brown, third; Red Greer, right field; Rex Russell, first; Jack Sharp, left field; Conley Cox and Cyclone Pierce, pitchers; W. T. Childress and Lloyd Thomas, catchers; Walter Kyle, Bus Miller and Bill Grimmer, utility.

The first game in Sonora next Sunday afternoon will probably get started around 2 or 3 o'clock. A good sized crowd of Ozona rooters are expected to accompany the team on its journey.

BEN LEMMONS TO HOSPITAL

Ben Lemmons was taken to the San Angelo Hospital Wednesday for X-Ray examination and treatment, following more than a week of illness here. About ten days ago Mr. Lemmons was in a car wreck near Van Horn, and it is feared that injuries which then were thought to be trifling may be of more serious nature. Mr. Lemmons is also suffering from an attack of pneumonia brought on perhaps by shock following the accident. The Stockman joins the many friends in the hearty wish that he may soon be recovered and back at his place in the store.

Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Childress are in Houston.

CITY CLEANUP TO BE STAGED LAST OF MONTH

Quarterly Drives Planned By Woman's Club And Commissioners

HAUL TRASH FREE

County Will Furnish Trucks And Men For Thorough Cleaning

At the regular meeting of the commissioners court on Monday, a committee from the Woman's Club, consisting of Mrs. W. J. Grimmer, Mrs. A. C. Hoover and Mrs. Roger Dudley, was given permission to proceed with the plans for a city-wide clean-up campaign the last week in this month, the expenses of which are to be defrayed by the county. Following this clean-up week there is to be one every three months, beginning in June so that they will fall in the proper quarters of the year.

The campaign will be under the directions of the Woman's Club as it has been in the past, and will include Lima, the Mexican addition of the town. Men to clean the public grounds and lots of the city and trucks to haul the trash from the same and the accumulation of waste from private homes will be provided. People are asked to give their premises a thorough spring cleaning and to pile the debris where the trucks can conveniently get to it to haul it away.

If advantage is taken of these facilities provided by the county and the Woman's Club now in June and every three months following, it will result in a cleaner and much more sanitary town.

More definite plans to be followed will be given later as to the exact plans to be followed in the Clean-Up Week. The routes that the trucks will follow and the general progress of the campaign.

Fair Assn. Meeting Postponed To Sat. Night, April 18th

The meeting of the stockholders of the Crockett County Fair Association announced for last Saturday night was postponed on account of the small attendance. The meeting has been reset for Saturday night of this week beginning at eight at the Hotel Ozona, fair officials announced.

This is one of the most important meetings of the year, since final plans for the sixth annual Rodeo, Race Meet and Stock Show are to be perfected and officers of the organization were disappointed at the indifference to the meeting called for last Saturday. The time being so short before the opening of the show, Joe Pierce, president, and other Fair Association officers urged that every stock holder, committee member or other persons interested in the success of the Fair be present at the meeting Saturday night.

John L. Bishop returned from Lubbock Wednesday where he has been at the bedside of his infant son who has been dangerously ill. He is now on the road to recovery.

Mrs. Willie Hawkins of Waco is visiting her granddaughter, Miss Joanne Hawkins at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Graham. Mrs. Floyd Henderson and Mrs. Roy Henderson were visitors in San Angelo Wednesday.

The editor being flat on his back with a dirty mixture of tonsillitis and flu, this paper was gotten out by the efforts of the inhabitants of Ozona acting as assistant editors. The flavor of the composition is therefore new and pleasing. Not wishing to lean too heavily upon the willingness of our friends, however, we hope to be able to provide the regular symposium next week.

CANNED FOOD IS WHOLE-SOME

The use of preserved foods, fresh vegetables, fruits, meats and almost everything edible, packed either in tin or in glass, is a matter of such everyday experience that few people realize what an extremely new thing it is in human life. A hundred years ago the canning of food was practically unheard of. It is only within fifty years or so that the present safe modern methods of canning have been developed. Up to the 1870's, the only effective ways in general use of preserving food stuffs were those of salting, smoking, pickling drying or preserving with spices. The opening up of trade routes between Europe and the East Indies, in the Middle Ages, was due, as much as to any one cause, to the demand in Europe for pepper, cloves, all-spice, and other pungent, aromatic spices grown in the East, which could be used to preserve meats and other foods. In the World War our soldiers were fed largely on canned meats, canned beans, canned fish, and an immense variety of canned vegetables, soups and fruit preserves, all of them already cooked. Military rations in the Civil War consisted only of such foods as could be preserved by salting, smoking and drying. The cooking had to be done in the field. The last prejudice against canned foods ought to disappear in the light of the report of Dr. W. H. Eddy, of Columbia University, who has conducted extensive tests with forty-nine different canned foods, including milk, meats and fowl, vegetables and fruits. Dr. Eddy informed the American Chemical Society, the other day, that these tests show that the vitamins A, B, C, and G, which are essential for health, are contained in foods canned by modern processes, in substantially the same degree that they are to be found in the fresh products. It is inevitable that the use of canned foods will increase as population tends to concentrate in the cities, and the problem of fresh food supply and of domestic cooking become more complex. The canning industry is one of the largest in the United States, but it bids fair to be much larger. In several parts of the country co-operative canneries, owned and operated by the farmers who grow the products which are canned, have been successful. Co-operative projects of that kind are among the enterprises which the Federal Farm Board is authorized to assist with financial co-operation and expert advice. There is room for many more of them, wherever a sufficient number of farmers are willing to agree to produce the necessary supplies of raw material to keep such a canning in operation. THE PHYSICIAN—THE MINISTER

THE MEN WHO ARE THE FIRST TO GREET YOU AND THE LAST TO SEE YOU

Most of us saw the light of day and were brought through many early trials and troubles by the faithfulness and skill of the family physician. And aside from our families, no two individuals have a more important part in the drama of life. The physician is usually the first and last—the first to greet us and the last to serve us. Do we attach proper significance to the responsibility of the physician? Perhaps—or perhaps not

Regardless of individual opinion on this point, it is a fact that there is no profession—and no business—in which the entire period of preparation is gone through without remuneration, and but few, if any, require even an approximate length of time. Circumstances and human nature combine in making it difficult for the physician to establish a profitable practice for a considerable period after he is fully qualified to serve.

The physician, like the minister, serves humanity because of their desire to do something for their fellow-men. Do physicians rush to a plague-stricken country for the same reason men follow a boom? You know differently. Neither to they answer your call at midnight or later for the few dollars' fee. They do it because of serving an ideal.

Show your interest and appreciation by being fair. You are not asked to do more, but let's stop side-tracking the bill we owe our doctors. Let's meet it on the first of the month just like we do the gas and light bills. Perhaps those would not be paid so promptly but for the knowledge that they would be "shut off," but be just as fair to the man whose overhead has trebled in just the few years, and who has, if at all, only slightly increased his fees.

The Way of Life

TOO MUCH BELLYACHING

I shall be criticized for the title of this editorial, but it is a good old Elizabethian phrase and there is no other which expresses so forcibly the thing I have in mind. Let me illustrate with a story.

I stood in line one night at the ticket window in Providence, waiting to take up the lower berth which I had reserved to New York. In front of me was a man who had come up from Chatham on Cape Cod, having telegraphed for a reservation from there. Through a mistake on the part of the Chatham operator the telegram had gone to Boston instead of to Providence. If the man waited for the train to come through from Boston he would not get to bed until about two o'clock in the morning. If he got on a Providence car he would have to sleep in an upper berth because all the lowers were sold.

He bought an upper, but not without a great deal of grumbling.

"This is atrocious," he exclaimed. "Give me a telegraph blank. I am going to wire that operator in Chatham and tell him what I think of him."

To which the station agent answered very sanely: "What good will that do? You're mad already. What's the use of getting too men mad?"

Every hour of every day a certain number of things happen which just should not happen, but do. To err is human.

When I became a magazine editor years ago a very wise editor said to me: "You are about to make a sad discovery. You are about to learn that there are no efficient people in the world."

He went on to prophesy that writers would consistently misinterpret my instructions about article and that artists would insist on drawing their pictures all wrong.

To a certain extent the prophecy was fulfilled; but, having been warned in advance, I managed to get along without losing my temper often or increasing my blood-pressure much.

If you expect perfection from people your whole life is a series of disappointments, grumbings and complaints. If, on the contrary, you pitch your expectations low, taking folks as the inefficient creatures which they are, you are frequently surprised by having them perform better than you had hoped.

Too many of us are like that man in Providence, who probably "bellyached" to everybody he met the next day, saying that he was tired because a fool operator in Chatham had caused him to sleep in an upper berth. Doubtless he went home and "bellyached" to his wife; and he may still be telling the sad story, for all I know.

What's the use of it all?

FRIDAY BRIDGE CLUB

Mrs. Joe Oberkampff was hostess to the club last week at her home. A dessert plate of pineapple sundae and cake was served to the following members: Mesdames Scott Peters, Johnnie Henderson, Lee Childress, Roy Henderson, Tom Smith, Geo. Montgomery, Monroe Baggett, Joe Pierce, Mike Friend, J. C. Montgomery, Vic Pierce, Strick Harvick, L. B. Adams, Garnett Miller, and Joe Oberkampff.

"Have you ever been sentenced to imprisonment?" the judge asked sympathetically.

"Never!" exclaimed the prisoner, bursting into tears. "Don't cry—don't cry," said the judge, consolingly. "You're going to be now."

"How is Lazy Lemuel getting on since his accident?"

"Oh, he's lots better now since the doctor told him he'd never be able to work again."

The regular meeting of the Ozona chapter of the Eastern Star will take place on the 3rd Tuesday night of each month.

Boston Cream Pie

Two eggs, one cup flour, one one-half teaspoons baking-powder three-quarters cup sugar, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one-half cup boiling milk, one-half teaspoon vanilla extract or other flavoring.

Beat yolks and whites separately; add beaten egg yolks to stiffly beaten whites and gradually add flour, baking-powder, sugar and salt which have been sifted together three or four times; add hot milk very slowly; add vanilla. Bake in deep layer cake tin in moderate oven about thirty-five minutes. When cool, split and put between layers the following cream filling. Sprinkle powdered sugar on top of cake.

For the cream filling take one-half cup sugar, two tablespoons corn starch, one-eighth teaspoon salt, two eggs, one cup scalded milk, one teaspoon butter, one-half teaspoon vanilla.

Mix together sugar, corn starch, salt and beaten eggs; pour on gradually scalded milk; add butter; cook in double boiler for at least ten minutes or until thick and smooth, stirring constantly; add flavoring; cool and spread between layers of cake.

Beefsteak Pie

Season round steak with a salt- spoon of pepper and a teaspoon of salt to a two-pound steak, put bits of butter, the size of a hickory nut, over the whole surface, dredge with a teaspoon of flour, then roll it up and cut it in pieces two inches long; put a rich pie paste around the sides and bottom of a baking dish; put in the pieces of steak, nearly fill the dish with water, add a piece of butter the size of a large egg, cut small, dredge in a teaspoon of flour, add a little pepper and salt, lay skewers across the dish, roll a top crust to half an inch thickness, cut a slit in the center; dip your fingers in flour and neatly pinch the top and side crust together all around the edge. Bake one hour in a quick oven.

Dry mixture and when well mixed add three tablespoons of melted fat. Stir again and pour into well-greased muffin pans, filling them a little more than half full. Bake in a hot oven—400 degrees—for twenty-five minutes. This mixture may be poured into a greased shallow pan and baked the same time, then cut into squares for serving. This makes a johnny cake.

Honey Pie

With a little pie crust, some bread crumbs and some honey you can make a delicious sort of pie. Roll the pastry out quite thin, line a pie plate and bake until dry but not really browned. Now sprinkle with bread crumbs so that the bottom of the crust is covered and pour over them enough honey to cover the crumbs. Take what remains of the crust, roll out very thin, and cut into strips half an inch wide and lay across the pie to form a coarse lattice work with the squares between the strips at least an inch across. Put back in the oven and bake until the crust is a golden brown. If you like you may sprinkle the honey and crumbs with the juice and grated rind of half a lemon before laying the strips of crust over.

MAIN STREET Looks at BROADWAY

Church Seats at Premium

New York City church-goers had their annual trouble of finding seats for Easter services. Manhattan has more than 2,000 churches, an average of one to about 800 people, and on the big day nearly everybody goes.

St. Patrick's Cathedral ran out of reservations several weeks before Easter and all Protestant houses of worship, many of which make no attempt to reserve seats in advance except to regular pew-holders, had overflow crowds.

People in smaller communities are inclined to think of New York City men as an ungodly lot, but a few Sundays spent in the metropolis would speedily disabuse their minds of that idea. In fact, the city's ministers have always been a foremost influence in its life. One has but to run over in one's mind such famous preachers as Henry Ward Beecher, DeWitt Talmadge, Dr. Rainsford, Dr. Parkhurst, and, at the present time, John Haynes Holmes, Dr. Reisner and Bishop Manning, to realize the quality of spiritual leaders the big city asks and demands.

Some Church Economics

Churches in small communities rarely have to contend with one of the great troubles that confront houses of worship in great cities—the constant shift in population. Lower Manhattan is full of famous churches whose congregations have practically moved in a solid block to the suburbs, leaving them stranded and without the families on whose support they depended in former years.

As all the families do not move to the same suburb, the church is unable to follow them, and it is then they have to resort to various expedients in order to keep open the House of the Lord.

In some cases, like that of the Second Congregational Unitarian Society, founded in 1825, it has slowly turned into the present Community Church, of which Dr. John Haynes Holmes has been pastor for the past 24 years. The church now is strictly undenominational and has a membership of some 2,000, hailing from 32 different countries and numbering among its constant worshippers Catholics, Protestants, Jews, Buddhists, Mohammedans, Hindus, Zoroastrians and Bahaists.

The church lives up to the Golden Rule more than any other part of the Bible perhaps, and spreads its many energies among the fields of welfare work. It is now putting up its fifth church structure, a 26-story building at Park Avenue and 35th Street.

Curious Church Changes

Shifting of population in New York and other large cities has led to some curious deals in ecclesiastical property. A quarter of a century ago the Italians attempted to make the Bronx their exclusive stamping ground. Hundreds of families moved out there and in a short time numerous churches were built to cater to their spiritual needs.

A few years ago the Jewish population, finding the lower East Side getting too crowded, also decided to move north. They went in droves and it was not long before the former Italian residents found themselves in an insignificant minority in certain of their chosen districts.

Their churches began to empty as their congregations moved away and it was not long before some of the churches found themselves unable to meet their fixed charges.

A few years ago a Jewish congregation made overtures to one of these Catholic churches whose worshippers had moved out of the district and wound up by taking over the church property and turning it into a synagogue.

In Chicago, years ago, a Protestant church was turned into a livery stable for the same reason, later becoming a garage which recently was torn down and made over into an office building.

How "Wall Street" Churches Survive

A dozen or more churches still stand in lower Manhattan, the so-called Wall Street district, and find themselves as much of service to humanity as ever they did when their parishes were thickly populated. Nowadays, after the offices close, that part of town is practically deserted, most of its residents being located in the Syrian district.

Being left without parishioners, such churches as Trinity, St. Paul's, where Washington used to worship and which still contains his pew as he left it, the old John Street Methodist Church, the first Methodist house of worship in America, and others, had to devise new ways of existing.

As a result they have all turned to week-day noon services and one will see their auditoriums crowded six days a week for the short services offered for busy brokers, clerks and office help, of which class women form a respectable proportion.

In addition the churchyards of Trinity and St. Paul's are always thronged on bright days by stenographers, who delight in sitting around on the ancient tombstones and eating their lunches. And nobody, including the sextons, seems to find anything sacrilegious or disrespectful in their actions.

Ben Lemmons is recovering rapidly from an attack of pneumonia.

Dr. A. J. Fussell went to Austin Tuesday on business.

The real issue involved in the repeated attacks being made on the growers' wool marketing organization is whether the PRODUCERS of wool in this country SHALL or SHALL NOT have their own strong marketing organization. Much may be said and done to belaud the program but the real issue remains the same.

During the brief time it has been in operation the

Due to the grower organization, wool was more stable during the chaotic year 1930 than was any other basic commodity; growers received several million dollars more during the year than they would have received had there been no cooperative; producers interests were safeguarded in all ways more effectively than ever before.

Your Standard of Living

FOR all we know, some Mongolian landowner, living miserably in a smoky felt tent, may be the richest man in the world . . . For standards of living are not based merely on wealth. They are based rather on the way people use wealth. Assault Charge Held Over Watson havior. Mr. Baker's explanation of the points of law and manner in which the case was disposed of is contained in the following excerpt from his letter:

"Houston Smith filed an exception to the indictment based on a plea of limitation relating to the charge of rape, which in law was unquestionably good. However, his exception was not acted on, and as a matter of fact the State had not announced ready for trial, and the proper time for it to have been acted upon was after the evidence was all heard.

"The indictment also charged an assault, which is not barred by our statutes of limitation for three years. However, in consequence of the fact that I knew the court would have to sustain the plea of limitation when timely presented, which I assumed would have happened, Mr. Graham, Wynn, and myself decided to transfer the case to the drop docket of the district court of that place, and permit Watson to plead guilty to child desertion.

"The purpose behind this was to hold over Watson a charge upon which he may ultimately be tried in the event he gives the citizenship of your county any further trouble. In order that no question of law will enter into the matter, at the next term of the grand jury there, I shall ask that an assault with intent to rape be charged against him by the grand jury. Of course, I never intend to try the case, unless Watson should give us more trouble up there, but I do desire to use what advantage I can take as a monitor over his conduct in the future.

"I wish to say that this little mistake makes no other difference so far as I know, and only wanted to mention this to you in order that a proper understanding might be had of the situation. The indictment, you will find, is on the drop docket of the district court, subject to call.

"I want to take this opportunity of thanking you for the courtesy shown me while there. I especially enjoyed the Lion's Club Luncheon and sincerely appreciate the attitude of friendliness shown me by the good people of your community."

Camp Fire Girls

Well, here we go; Camp Fire is sponsoring a play. What for? Well, we want to go to a real Camp Fire camp this summer where we will have the real Camp Fire training and the material to work with. Camp Fire in Ozona is in its infancy and there is much we have to learn. We need our crafts books and materials that at present are not available. The camp is going to be near Mertzon and there will be three weeks of it in all. We have our choice of one week out of the three. The date so far is not known, but we will hear soon.

"Mail Order Brides"—sounds like a matrimonial bureau advertisement, but let me tell you "Mail Order Brides" is as far ahead of a bureau as the Austin is the Old Gray Mare. Imagine two old ranch hands, not so old either, going to a dance and having to dance with one another just because there were only three women to thirty-four men. No wonder when they saw the slogan on the front of the catalog—Everything Under The Sun—they figured they might try getting a wife. Well, they do, and say! but the fun begins. I forgot to say they finally ended up by being three 'cause Old Man Henshaw figured that his son needed one, too, and changed the order that he accidentally found when the boys had to perambulate in a hurry. Those "Brides" certainly are bent on getting their man and how everything works out is plenty interesting.

Born Blind; Now Sees

Earl Musselman, 22, of Altoona, Pa., now sees for the first time. Artificial pupils were grafted successfully.

Now, I may be conceited in thinking that I can coach this play but it is the first thing in my life I really want and think I can do. Miss Nan has been lovely and has offered suggestions and help in any way. I would give a lot if she could coach it, but she has a lot too much to do now so come on, everybody, and give us a pat on the back and a word of encouragement, 'cause it simply has to go over in a big way and the cast is a real one. Next week I'll give you all the particulars.

Haven't had Camp Fire meetings because all of the girls are in one or another of the different plays and musicales that are under way, so as soon as that is over we will have one grand big rally.

Camp Fire in Ozona is in its infancy and there is much we have to learn. We need our crafts books and materials that at present are not available. The camp is going to be near Mertzon and there will be three weeks of it in all. We have our choice of one week out of the three. The date so far is not known, but we will hear soon.

"Mail Order Brides"—sounds like a matrimonial bureau advertisement, but let me tell you "Mail Order Brides" is as far ahead of a bureau as the Austin is the Old Gray Mare. Imagine two old ranch hands, not so old either, going to a dance and having to dance with one another just because there were only three women to thirty-four men. No wonder when they saw the slogan on the front of the catalog—Everything Under The Sun—they figured they might try getting a wife. Well, they do, and say! but the fun begins. I forgot to say they finally ended up by being three 'cause Old Man Henshaw figured that his son needed one, too, and changed the order that he accidentally found when the boys had to perambulate in a hurry. Those "Brides" certainly are bent on getting their man and how everything works out is plenty interesting.

Now, I may be conceited in thinking that I can coach this play but it is the first thing in my life I really want and think I can do. Miss Nan has been lovely and has offered suggestions and help in any way. I would give a lot if she could coach it, but she has a lot too much to do now so come on, everybody, and give us a pat on the back and a word of encouragement, 'cause it simply has to go over in a big way and the cast is a real one. Next week I'll give you all the particulars.

Haven't had Camp Fire meetings because all of the girls are in one or another of the different plays and musicales that are under way, so as soon as that is over we will have one grand big rally.

THE SUCCESS OF THE DINNER LIES IN THE COFFEE

Coffee is the one item of every meal that men discuss with knowledge and enthusiasm.

They may not know what kind of flour made the bread, the rolls or the pastry, nor may they grow excited over whether the potatoes were grown in Maine or Texas.

But every one of them knows whether the coffee is good...or not so good.

The secret of All Gold popularity with both men and women is that it is always RIGHT.

Whether served for breakfast, lunch, dinner or with a "snack," it just touches the spot.

The housewife who serves it knows its uniform quality NEVER varies. It is good because it must be good. And she knows that any meal, whether served only to the family or to guests, is bound to be an unqualified success if accompanied by All Gold...all good...all the time.

TIGER EYE

by D. M. Dower

THE STORY SO FAR

The Kid's name was Bob Reeves but back home on the Brazos they called Tiger Eye, because one eye was yellow—the eye with which he sighted down a gunbarrel. His father was "Killer" Reeves, but the boy did not want to kill. If he stayed home he would have to carry on his father's feuds, so he headed his horse, Pecos, northward and encountered Nate Wheeler, who drew his .45 and fired just as Tiger Eye did. The Kid didn't want to kill Nate, only to cripple him, but his aim must have been wild, for Wheeler dropped from his horse. Babe Garner came riding up. Wheeler was a "nester," he said, and had it coming to him. Tiger Eye rode to Wheeler's cabin to notify the dead man's widow.

THE STORY

"No'm, you'll bettah stay right heah, I'll go tote him in, Mis' Wheelah. I'll tote him on his hawse."

The mother stood upon the step and watched him go, her hand shielding her eyes from the last direct sunrays. Her face was white and her mouth was grim.

He knew there was murder in her heart; not for him who brought the message—for the man who had shot her husband.

A bleak sense of being somehow tricked by circumstances swept over the kid. It wasn't fair. He wasn't a killer, he hadn't wanted to kill, but a man lay dead because of the kid's bungling shot.

Shoah funny, Babe Garner being right there close where he could see and hear the whole thing. Never needed any explaining—just took it for granted the kid only did what he had to do. Never said a word, either, about the poor shooting.

Getting Wheeler on the pinto, tying him on with his own rope—like totting a deer out of the hills along the Brazos. The kid worked calmly enough but he worked fast and he did not look straight at Nate Wheeler's face; not once. Damn' shame. Shooting Wheeler's arm down would have done just as well. Better. A damn sight better for the woman and that baby.

She was down by the gate, waiting in the dusk, when the kid came riding up, leading the pinto with its grisly pack. The little woman unfastened the gate, her fingers clinging to the weathered, strap-worn slick in her husband's hands.

She did not speak as the grim burden went through. Just reached out and caught a swaying, inert hand and laid it swiftly against her cheek and let it go. The kid swallowed hard and turned his tiger stare straight ahead, up the trail toward the darkened cabin.

"I'll go fix the bed for him," she announced dully, coming up as the kid halted at the doorstep and swung limberly down from the saddle.

The kid was unfastening the rope where the last hitch had been taken in the middle of Nate Wheeler's back. The body had sagged to one side, and the kid lifted it by one arm—the gun arm, the one he meant to shoot down. The arm gave limply in his grasp, the bone shattered above the elbow; and the kid froze to an amazed immobility for ten seconds, his mind blank, his fingers groping and testing.

Arm shoah was plugged all right. Not a doubt in the world about that. Funny the kid hadn't noticed it before. But, then, Wheeler had fallen on that side and his arm had been underneath, and the hole in his head was too plain to miss seeing. It never had occurred to the kid to look at that arm. Hadn't happened to get hold of it when he loaded him on the pinto, either. Hell, he hadn't missed after all! Hit the arm right where he aimed, up above the elbow where there was only one bone to bust and no great harm done. Few weeks in a sling, arm good as ever.

The kid felt the little heat waves streaking up his spine at the woman's voice from the doorway, and the heat warmed and dissipated that cold lump he had been carrying in his chest. He hadn't bungled that shot, after all. Wheeler must have ducked his head right in line with the bullet. It was an accident—and that made a difference; a very great difference to the kid, justly proud of his skill.

He lifted Wheeler's body from the pinto to his own back, carried it in and laid it on the bed. The wife now stood staring down at him with the hot, dry eyes of hate. Hate for the man who had killed her husband.

She stooped now and picked up the baby and set him astride one bony hip and wiped his nose and cheeks with a corner of her apron. Red-headed little tike, that baby. Red-headed like his pappy. It pointed now to Wheeler and said, "Daddy go bye?" twice, waving his chubby arm toward the bed.

That did something to the woman, kinda. She grabbed the baby's arm down and turned away quick, and sat down on a rocking chair and started moaning and rocking, the baby's face pressed so close against her shoulder that its little stubby nose was flattened and it kicked like a calf at the branding fire, trying to get loose.

"Anything yo'all want me to do—milk, or anything like that?" The kid stood by the door with his bullet-scarred hat in his hand trying to keep the red out of his face.

"No—oh, no—oh, feed the pinto—and feed the team—" The little woman still rocked the baby, speaking jerkily like that between her moaning.

The kid went out and led Pecos and the pinto down to the stable. Pecos he led behind the stable. Dark, back in there. Pecos snorted a little, but he'd stand, all right. No use having him out in sight—not in a country where the nesters hollered "Draw, you coyote!" and then started popping it right to you, without waiting to see if yo'all were going to draw.

The chores were soon done. How about a grave? Plumb foolish to start digging, unless he knew where to dig. She ought to have the say about that, but he hated to ask her.

Riders coming. Poole men, maybe, after Nate Wheeler. They oughtn't to bother the widow now, the way she was feeling. The kid started running. He reached the cabin door and opened it while the riders were still at the gate.

"Men a-comin' heah, Ma'am. If yo'all don't want 'em—"

"Oh, let 'em come," she answered wearily. "They can't do any more damage. They've got Nate—they ought to be satisfied with that."

She got up and crossed the room, and presently the kid saw her face, dead white in the flare of a match she was drawing across the lamp wick.

The riders stopped outside the cabin and some one whistled a call—but it was not the night-bird call Babe Garner had taught the kid. Different. This was the first strain of that old war song, "When Johnny Comes Marching Home." The kid's lips puckered thoughtfully and he repeated the strain, standing just inside the closed door. Friends, they must be; that is, friends of the Wheelers. He wouldn't have to dig that grave after all. The kid was glad, for he hated grave digging.

He opened the door and the men came in; four of them, one after the other. Shaggy, farmer-looking men, with stubby cheeks that stuck out on one side with great cuds of tobacco. The kid felt a vague distaste for them.

They halted at sight of him, huddling just within the room instead of scattering. But the kid's hat was off, and though it dangled from his left hand he looked at home there, somehow. Besides, they had got their signal all right. The leader relaxed, dropping his hand to his side.

"We come to tell Nate there's a meetin' over to Hans Becker's place and we'd like to have him go along. He cast another suspicious glance toward the kid and checked what more he would have said. "You better get ready and go too. The women are talkin' about stayin' all together over there, where it's a big house and plenty of room, till we git the Poole—" He stopped again. "This boy working for you?" he asked brusquely.

"He's—been helping me—" "Oh, I don't call him to mind. Yuh want to look out for strangers. Where's Nate?"

The little woman lifted her hand from patting the baby, and pointed one finger to the corner where stood the bed.

"Sick?" A headshake was his answer, and the kid did not move.

"No time to go on a toot, with the Poole—"

"They got him." Nate's wife spoke in that dull, level tone which the kid hated to hear. "Shot him on the road somewhere. The boy found him and brought him home."

The kid stood aside for them, as they rushed to the bed to look at Nate, but no one paid any attention to him. Not then. The tall man brought the lamp and they examined the body thoroughly. They muttered together, but the kid could not hear what they said, because he stayed back, near the foot of the bed. Near the door too. No use letting them block the way out, even if they did think he was working for the Wheelers.

There was a sudden and significant pause. The tall man leaned over and probed carefully with a finger, then stood up and spat over his shoulder into the shadows. He looked past his companions, fixing his unpleasant gaze on the kid.

"You over there, what's your name?"

"Bob Reeves," said the kid.

"Reeves—don't know that name. Where you from?"

"Brazos." The kid did not lift his eyes—much. But he got a pretty comprehensive view through his lashes.

"He brought Nate home to me. And he did the chores." The little woman in the rocking chair, holding the sleep-slackened form of her baby in her arms, stopped rocking and turned her anguished eyes upon the tall man. "He's been awful nice and accommodat-ing, Pete Gorham."

"Accomodat-in'!" The tall man snarled the word like an oath. "Prob'ly one of the Poole's new Texas killers they shipped in! Accommodated you, mebby, by kill-in' Nate. Willin' to take Nate's place, mebby!"

The kid lifted his eyes now, though one was squinted shut and the other was the eye of a tiger. They did not see him draw his gun, but the little woman jumped and caught her baby up against her breast at the shattering roar of the kid's shot.

"That's to earmark yo'all so white folks'll know and walk wide of a skunk," drawled the kid, as the tall man clapped a hand to his head. "And that's for spittin' on the floor," he added, on the echo of another shot. "Scuse me, Ma'am—I couldn't stand to see him insult yo'all that-a-way."

No one in that room saw the kid make a hurried move, but the door opened, fanned the acrid haze of powder smoke and shut with a bang. Where the kid had stood was empty space. They looked at one another, and they looked at Pete Gorham, with the blood trickling down each side of his neck from bullet holes bored through the gristly tops of his ears that stood out against the black brim of his hat.

Once more the kid was running away, but he was not taking any more time than was necessary. He was in the saddle and waiting, peering forth, when he heard the cabin door open, saw a dim shape steal out. Then another, and after a minute one more.

Afraid of him, the way they acted. Afraid he would hide outside in the dark and pick them off one at a time as they came out. That's about their notion of what a Texas killer would be like. That was about the way they would fight—Pete Gorham, anyway. Now he would go earmarked the rest of his life. Shoah was a neat trick, and tempting too, with his ears sticking up like a field mouse under his black hat. Shoah made a fine mark. Easier than shoot-ing the pips out of cards. The kid gave a sudden boyish laugh at the thought of those ears with their round bullet holes.

The three went in again, slipping in one at a time. The kid grinned again. He'd bet Pete Gorham was the man that stayed inside and didn't come out.

After a while they came out again, this time with a lantern, one man walking ahead as if he were on guard. The kid didn't know about the lantern. If they went snooping around, and if they looked behind the stable, he might have to shoot somebody. Better not take a chance. So he backed Pecos a step at a time, back and back until they were out beyond the stable.

There, within sight of the gate—within easy shooting distance too—the kid waited in the gully not far from the gate. They drove away from the house at last, coming his way. One man was driving the team, his horse following behind the wagon. The little woman was on the seat beside him. Two riders went ahead.

Half a mile behind them, he followed the little cavalcade. Easy enough, with the cluck of the wagon coming faintly through the starlight.

her last hours easy. When her soul departed, she went out as though in pleasant sleep. Until a few days of her death she was conscious, knowing all who ministered unto her, and keeping up with the work of the household.

Born in Tennessee

Mrs. Sarah Taff Taylor was born in Jefferson county, Tennessee, on July 22, 1870. At an early age the family moved to Texas, locating in San Saba county, where she grew to womanhood. There she formed the acquaintance of Frank Taylor, which friendship ripened into love and they were married February 7, 1886. In 1898 with the four children that had been born to them in San Saba county, they moved to West Texas, locating in the Juno community where Mr. Taylor engaged in the ranching business. There four other children were born to them. In 1912 they moved to Ozona, though as is customary in West Texas, they retained their ranch home at Juno. This ranch home is located near the famous Beaver Lake on Devil's River, which is on the ranch of Mr. Taylor. Mrs. Taylor literally kept two homes, spending part of her time at either place and making each lovely with her presence.

She is survived by her husband, six daughters: Mrs. Roy Parker, Mrs. S. A. Coose, Mrs. Fred Deaton, Mrs. Charles Coates, Mrs. Geo. Baker, Miss May Belle Taylor; two sons, Sherman and R. T. Taylor; a brother, Mr. J. B. Taff of San Saba, and a sister, Mrs. H. A. Sykes of Goldthwaite, and seven grandchildren, all of whom were with her at her death.

Mrs. Lowell Littleton returned from Abilene where she has been ill at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Littleton for the past two weeks. She was accompanied by Bill Littleton who returned home Monday.

This notice was posted on a pleasure boat belonging to a certain steamship company:

"The chairs in the cabins are for ladies. Gentlemen are requested not to make use of them till the ladies are seated."

Mrs. Eula Montgomery and Mrs. Grady Mitcham of San Angelo are visiting relatives in Ozona.

"Mary, remember that you are only a servant; I don't want you to have so much company. Why, you have more callers in a day than I have in a week."

"Well, ma'am, perhaps if you'd try to be a little more agreeable you'd have as many friends as I have."

Bread or Punk?

Out in Line Camps, where perhaps two or three hundred men are doing a sweating grind, they call all bread Punk. Its Punk, whether its good, bad or indifferent.

But we, of the general public, do not call anything Punk, unless it is.

Every once in a while we see some Punk, but it does NOT bear the Golden Krust label.

You NEVER get our bread over a day old, and seldom older than five hours out of the oven.

Its BAKED RIGHT, MIXED RIGHT, CONCOCTED RIGHT and by Judas Priest, its GOOD. Yes, and its scaled to weigh a POUND—or MORE.

THREE DOZEN loaves a day MORE now, will cut out the Angelo wagon. They haven't made a thin dime on this run. They admit it. Every loaf you buy from our neighbors of the city only detracts a little more from Ozona.

If we were offering you something Inferior—we would not say a word. Golden Krust is fresher, tastier, prettier, better cooked, and YOU will be more satisfied with it. Surveyors having bought it have eaten the last of their purchase—3 weeks later and pronounced it GOOD.
