LET CONTRACT FOR TOPPING SONORA ROAD

Commission Asks Bids On Caliche Base At July 1 Meeting

OZONA TO CO. LINE

Project Withdrawn In May For Lack Of Federal Approval

Contract for application of a caliche base course on 15.065 miles of Highway No. 27 from Ozona east to the Sutton County line will be awarded by the State Highway Commission at its session July 1, according to notice received here Tuesday by Exline Martin, resident engineer for the Highway Department.

This project was first advertised in May but was withdrawn before the date for letting on account of failure of federal engineers to finally approve plans and specifications. A number of contractors have inspected the job and it is likely that the contract will be let at the July 1 session without further hitch.

Topping of the road with caliche will be the first step toward final hard-surfacing of the route. Information here is that the road will be allowed to stand several months after application of the caliche base, when it will be surfaced with one coat of asphalt and later two other courses will be applied to complete the hard-surfacing.

Work is expected to start soon on the grading and drainage on the 9-mile stretch of the highway from Ozona West, contract for which was awarded recently to J. S. Wade & Son of Coleman. The Dozier Construction Company of Austin was awarded contract for construction of five small bridges and 68 culverts along the 9-mile stretch.

Eyes Burned By Lime Explosion

Henderson White Suffers Injury In Unusual Accident

Henderson White, about 17, suffered painful injuries to both eyes Monday morning when an explosion of unslaked lime placed in a wet bucket threw the lime into his face, filling both eyes. The accident happened on the Jeff Owens ranch on Live Oak Creek about 35 miles west of Ozona, where young White is employed.

Mr. Owens and young White were mixing the lime with other ingredients for stock medicines. The boy failed to notice a small amount of water in the bottom of a bucket when he poured a quantity of lime into it. When he stooped to pick up the vessel, the action of the lime and water at the bottom of the bucket caused an explosion which threw the dry powder into his face.

After first aid was administered at the ranch, the injured boy was brought to Ozona where he was placed under the care of Dr. F. T. McIntire. Dr. McIntire expressed the opinion that no permanent injuries would result from the accident and that the burns would not endanger the eyesight. The boy is receiving treatment and is reported improving.

EQUALIZATION BOARD MEET

The County Commissioners Court is in session this week as a board of equalization, the second such meeting this year. The court will probably meet sometime next month as a final board of equalization at which time taxpayers whose renditions have been raised by the board will be given an opportunity to appear to present their case.

City Breakfastless As Lightning Rips Out a Transformer

Ozonans who place their faith in the West Texas Utilities Company for their three squares a day went breakfastless or dined late this morning when they awoke to find their electric stoves "dead," ice boxes dripping and no lights.

It was all caused by a bolt of lightning, or presumably so, at any rate. Ozona was plunged into darkness at about 11 o'clock Wednesday night. Trouble shooters for the local office of the Utilities Company found a transformer and an underground cable burned out. A crew of workmen was kept busy all night, finally making the necessary repairs and turning in the current about 7:30 this morning.

Stock Shipments In Area Increase

Fat Lambs Move Out From Barnhart At Fast Clip

BARNHART—Livestock shipments have increased appreciably from this section and from Ozona and Big Lake recently.

D. I. Taylor, county commissioner here, took with him to Fort Worth this week 12 fine bucks to be placed on his stock farm near there.

Floyd Henderson and Coates Brothers each shipped two double deck cars of fat range lambs to Oklahoma City Saturday, consigning them to Meek, Jones & Clark. Joe Davidson of Ozona shipped out one car to the Texas Livestock Marketing Association at Fort Worth, and Monroe Baggett, who shipped one car Saturday is to send another out Sunday. Nath Hickman of the Big Lake section has shipped a car of fat lambs to Fort Worth which he expects to bring 4 1-2 cents.

Worms and sore-mouth have been causing the sheepmen in this area much trouble recently. Some have completed doctoring and report their stock improving.

Sutton Secures Most Of Right-Of-Way For OST To Crockett Line

SONORA—With exception of two tracts of land outside the city and two or three lots within the city limits all right-of-way from Sonora to the Crockett County line on highway 27 has been secured. County commissioners in session this week were busy securing deeds and paying property owners.

The original estimate of $100,000 total cost for the project has been reduced considerably. The county's part will be $56,000, according to Alvis Johnson, judge.

The rock hill on the Rock-springs road has been blasted away and a new roadbed constructed, greatly facilitating travel. The entire portion of the road in this county, south from the intersection with highway 30, will be regraded and improved, with several muddy stretches graveled and the entire road made virtually all-weather highway.

Annual Picnic To Be Staged By Baptists At Live Oak June 29

Wednesday, June 29, is the date that has been fixed for the annual Baptist Sunday School picnic to be held in the grove on Live Oak Creek, it was announced this week by Rev. M. M. Fulmer, pastor.

Arrangements for the outing, appointment of committees to take care of various details, will be made at the Sunday School hour Sunday morning, the pastor said.

The picnic will be in the nature of a basket dinner, with each family taking a basket, the whole to be spread on a common table. Approximately 100 persons are expected to attend the picnic.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETE FOR BARBECUE 4TH

Money & Meat Ready, O. W. Smith, Chairman, Reports

BASEBALL GAMES

Locals To Play Three Days; Dance Nights Of 4th and 5th

With the necessary money subscribed by business men of Ozona and all the meat needed donated by ranchmen, everything is set for the big barbecue to be staged in the city park here at noon on July 4. O. W. Smith, chairman of the barbecue committee, reported at the Lions Club meeting Monday noon.

An enthusiastic response on the part of Ozona people was met by the committee in its work of completing arrangements for the gathering. The barbecue and county-wide get-together will be held in lieu of the annual Rodeo, Race Meet and Stock Show and several hundred persons are expected to be on hand for the feed.

By way of entertainment, a baseball game will be held in the afternoon at Powell Field, with the San Angelo Shepherders as the probable opponents of the Ozona Giants. Games have not been definitely matched with the San Angelo crew, however, and it is possible that some other team will oppose the locals on that day, it was declared by the manager of the local club.

A big dance, with music furnished by the Six Red Hot Peppers of San Antonio, will be held the nights of July 4 and 5 on the open-air platform at the fair grounds. The dances are to be widely advertised and good crowds are expected to be on hand for these. The baseball club is also planning to arrange games for Sunday, July 3 and Tuesday, July 5, as well as on the Fourth.

Jumbo, Huge Bull Of Gist Herd, Shown Here, Is Slaughtered

ODESSA—Jumbo is no longer the largest Hereford bull in the world, for he is dead. Owned by John M. Gist, veteran breeder at Odessa, Jumbo gained the 3709 pound mark before he was shipped to Fort Worth for slaughter. This huge piece of meat, measuring fourteen feet from the tip of his nose to the root of his tail and six feet from the high point of his shoulder to the bottom of his hoof, carried more weight than any other Hereford bull in the world.

Kept in a double stall at the Gist Hereford farms, Jumbo attracted nationwide attention. Gist had been offered $1 per pound if he could get the bull to top the two-ton mark. Coming within 291 pounds of the goal, Jumbo started falling off, because of the excess weight placed on his hoofs.

Gist said he would attempt to raise another bull surpassing the record that Jumbo made. Other cattlemen over this section of the country are endeavoring to gain the distinction of raising such a Hereford, but so far have not come near the mark set by the veteran breeder.

ENTERTAIN LIONS CLUB

A male quartet composed of L. B. Townsend, W. N. Hannah, J. H. McClure and Ross Huffstедler entertained members of the Ozona Lions Club with several selections at the regular meeting of the club Monday noon at the Hotel Ozona. Clinton Glover was a guest for the luncheon and program.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Littleton of Abilene are here for a visit with Mrs. Littleton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Ingham, and with Mr. Littleton's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Littleton.

Mexican Suffers Fractured Skull In Fight Sunday Night

Francisco Salinas is in a serious condition suffering from a fractured skull and Jose Perez is in the Crockett County jail awaiting filing of charges in connection with a fight in the Mexican suburb of Ozona Sunday night.

Salinas was struck in the head with a large rock which shattered his skull. The injured man was brought to the office of Dr. F. T. McIntire who performed an operation to remove bone slivers from the brain. At last reports, the Mexican was doing well and is now expected to recover.

Charges against Perez are being withheld pending developments in the condition of the injured man.

Auto Destroyed By Flames Sat.

Car Belonging To Joe Forehand Burns On East Highway

A Chrysler sedan belonging to Joe Forehand, manager of the Ozona Motor Company, was destroyed by fire on the highway just east of town Saturday morning. The flames started under the hood and when Mr. Forehand raised the hood the vacuum tank exploded and the car was enveloped in flames before he could check it.

The body of the car was completely destroyed. The motor, however, was not damaged and a new body has been placed on the chassis and it has been placed in service again.

Lions To Install New Officers At Meet Next Monday

New officers and directors of the Ozona Lions Club, elected recently to serve during 1932-1933, will be formally inducted into office at the regular luncheon hour of the club next Monday noon. Decision to conduct installation ceremonies at the regular meeting hour instead of at a ladies night banquet was reached at the club meeting this week.

Officers who will be installed at next Monday's meeting include Hugh Childress, Jr., president; I. G. Rape and Dr. F. T. McIntire, vice presidents; Glenn Rutledge, secretary-treasurer; M. M. Fulmer, Lion Tamer; and O. W. Smith, tail twister. Directors include John L. Bishop, J. H. Meredith, J. H. McClure and Evert White.

June 30 Last Day For Payment Last Half Split Taxes

Twenty Crockett County taxpayers who took advantage of the new state law and paid half their 1931 taxes before December 1, last year, must pay the second half on or before June 30 to escape the penalty and interest charges, it was announced this week from the office of the tax collector.

The law provided that if taxpayers would pay half their taxes before December 1 they might have a six-months extension in 1932 for payment of the last half. Unless the balance is paid before July 1, a penalty of 10 per cent and interest at the rate of 6 per cent will apply.

LIONS TO MEETING

Several members of the Ozona Lions Club expect to attend a group meeting of the organization to be held in Eldorado Wednesday, July 6. Clubs in San Angelo, Ballinger, Sterling City, Sonora and Ozona are expected to have representatives present for the gathering.

Miss Helen Henderson and Miss Lucile Griffin of San Angelo are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ashby McMullen.

CROCKETT CO. TO HAVE RUN-OFF PRIMARY; BALLOT DRAWN FOR VOTE JULY 23

A second primary for Crockett County was determined upon by the County Democratic executive committee in session here Tuesday afternoon, when the order of names on the official ballot and cost of election were determined and election officials named. The first primary will be held July 23 and the second, or run-off primary August 27.

Giants Mop Up On Ft. Stockton

Steers Are Victims Of Slugging Ozona Nine Sunday

The Ozona Giants took an early lead and held it throughout the nine innings here Sunday against the highly touted Fort Stockton Steers, taking the contest by a final decision of 13 to 9.

The locals stepped in with a heavy barrage of hits in the opening frame to run up a total of six runs. The visitors went scoreless for three innings when they pushed over one and two frames later shoved over another. In the seventh, the Giants took a wider lead when they scored three more runs and in the eighth, after the visitors had scored two in their half, ran in four more. The Steers staged a determined rally in their final chance in the ninth to push over five runs, but fell short of catching the Giants' heavy court.

The Giants turned in a total of 13 hits, with four errors, while the Steers popped out only five safeties and were charged with five miscues. Murphy, a floater who asked for a chance on the mound, was tried out by the Giants for a little over one inning, issuing in that brief moment four bases on balls, two wild pitches and struck out one man. Conley Cox started on the mound for the locals and in six innings yielded only two hits. Buster Miller took his turn on the mound to relieve Murphy and stayed the final frame, the Steers straightening out three of his offerings for hits.

No candidates names are listed for the offices of county attorney, justice of the peace, constable, county commissioners and county Democratic executive committee chairman. No candidates filed for these offices but space will be provided for them on the official ballot and voters will have the privilege of writing the name of their choice for the office on the ballot.

Candidates for district offices are listed as follows: Associate Justice, Court of Civil Appeals,

Check Tax To Be Handled By Bank

To Charge Depositors Monthly; Postage Increase July 6

Following the plan of most other banks of the country, the Ozona National Bank will collect the two-cent government tax on checks, totalling the number of checks at the end of each month and charging the tax at two cents each to the depositor's account, remitting the amount of the tax to the government. The new tax on checks went into effect last Tuesday and the first charges under the new law will be noted in bank statements to be mailed out July 1.

An appreciable decline in the number of checks is expected by the local bank, for a few weeks at least, although the tax is not expected to make any difference in deposits or circulation of money locally.

The new postal rates go into effect next month. The higher rate on second class postage becomes effective July 1, while the three-cent rate on first class mail is effective July 6, according to notice received by Postmaster J. R. Kersey.

Spud In Deep Test On J. S. Todd Ranch In Crockett County

The test on J. S. Todd's ranch in north central Crockett County to be drilled by ten firms in search of production in the lime of Ordovician age was spudded late last week. A 24-inch hole was started by Eppenhauer Drilling Company, using the machine with which it drilled Stanolind and Mid-Kansas' No. 1 Massie, an 18,000,000-cubic foot gasser a mile and three-quarters to the south-east.

It was planned to set 100 feet or less of 20-inch pipe and then cement the bottom of the cellar. The cellar walls were cemented before drilling began. The test will be drilled by Eppenhauer until Noble Drilling Company of Tulsa moves in its big rotary when that firm will take over operations. When the rotary is ready gas from No. 1 Massie will be used for fuel. Stanolind will direct the exploration, being the largest contributor to the 4,000-acre block. No. 1 T is in the center of the north quarter of section 67, block G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. survey.

MR. FORD AND UNEMPLOYMENT

The annual report of the Ford Motor Company shows that the company lost over $53,000,000 last year, but it still has a comfortable cash surplus of 372 millions left, and, according to all the reports, Mr. Ford is using a lot of this money and most of his own time in trying to find ways to alleviate distress, put men to work and generally make conditions better for such individuals and families as he can reach.

Nobody has yet found the perfect answer to the problem of industrial unemployment. One reason is that it is a new problem, as human events go. A hundred years ago there was no industrial unemployment worth mentioning, because there were no industries worth mentioning, in the modern sense. Generations of people who had no contact with the land had not been accustomed to being born and reared and living their lives in cities and industrial communities, without any means of support except the wages that they received when the factories were running. Now we have millions of people who have no resources to fall back on when business conditions compel industry to shut down, unless they have been among the thrifty few who have saved up something.

Mr. Ford thinks this is all wrong, and so do we. We agree that the word "unemployment" has become one of the most dreadful words in the language, and the condition of unemployment has become the concern of every person in the country. And we certainly agree with him that charity, in the ordinary sense, should be resorted to only when every possible means of helping people to help themselves has been exhausted. Helping people to help themselves does not necessarily mean "making work" or paying them for jobs which do not need to be done and which are not really productive. It does mean taking a personal interest in the individual problems of men and women and their families, and calling into co-operation everybody who needs to have any kind of work done, so that those who are able and willing to work will not get the habit of idleness. It means, also, seeing to it that nobody starves while out of a job.

Perhaps it would be practical everywhere to carry out the methods which Mr. Ford has adopted in Dearborn, which include the opening of a community commissary where people can buy food on credit, giving their I. O. U.'s when they have no cash; but that system seems a great deal better than the indiscriminate handing out of food itself or orders on the store, without putting any obligation upon the recipient ever to return it. Giving anything

This Is Going To Be Good — By Albert T. Reid

For nothing is what makes paupers. Giving under conditions where the recipient is made to understand he will be expected sometime to pay, when and as he can, tends to elevate the self-respect of the unemployed.

OUR DAY OF RESPONSIBILITY

(By Harry Chandler, Los Angeles Times, Past President American Newspaper Publishers Assn.)

Take away the newspaper—and this country of ours would become a scene of chaos.

Without daily assurance as to the exact facts—so far as we are able to know and publish them—the public imagination would run riot. Ten days without the daily newspaper and the strong pressure of worry and fear would throw the people of this country into mob hysteria—feeding upon rumors, alarms, terrified by bugbears and illusions.

We have become the watchmen of the night and of a troubled day. If the American newspaper has occupied a position of high responsibility before, its weight of responsibility has been doubled during this trying period.

This period of depression has wrought a great change in the mood of the American public. In the years immediately following the World War it seemed as though our quondam sense of care and responsibility had been recklessly tossed away. Nobody seemed to care about anything—or to think about anything except having a good time, of making money and spending it.

The collapse of an inflated era of spending has suddenly sobered them. It isn't jokes and cocktails that they want now. It is bread and butter—and facts.

This changed mood opens for the newspaper publishers of America a new day of increased opportunities and responsibilities.

A frightened public looks to us for the truth. We have become a sheet anchor in the storm. It has been suggested to me many times that the members of the publishers association take a united stand on this or that public policy. I feel that in doing so we would surrender the greatest strength of the American newspaper. Each newspaper should stand in a position of responsible stewardship to its own people acting on its own convictions and answering to its own conscience.

No one knows what the immediate events of the future may bring forth. It is enough to know that out of this period of suffering much good must inevitably come. If we were nursing vital and dangerous errors in our commercial and industrial system—and if we were started on a dangerous and ruinous path we can well give thanks that the crash has happened now—rather than later when its correction would involve more peril.

Every publisher who may read these words believes and knows in his heart that in every fundamental element our country is on a firm foundation. There is nothing the matter with the U. S. At heart it is strong and firm. It will ride out the storm, but during the period of the hurricane it is up to us—the newspaper publishers—to stand with resolution at the wheel.

These are the times when the conduct of a daily newspaper ceases to be a commercial enterprise. It becomes a stewardship that often involves great self-sacrifice and great courage.

As I believe in the U. S., so I believe in the honesty and good faith and unselfishness of the newspapers of the U. S. And I believe in their consecration to this trust and in their ability to keep the beacon lighted during a period of very rough weather.

The public offers us faith and trust. We will return them honesty of effort.

HOW TO BRING BACK GOOD TIMES

Nothing could do more to bring back good times than assurance of a decrease in taxes during the next few years.

Every effort should be made to increase governmental efficiency, eliminate waste and duplication of effort and do away with the bureaus and commissions that milk the taxpayer dry. Doing this would not damage the functions of government—it would greatly improve them.

High taxes have throttled industrial development in England. They have done the same thing in Germany, in Austria, in Australia and elsewhere. They are doing the same thing here. High taxes make and prolong unemployment, cause hoarding of capital and frighten investors. In short, their whole influence is toward the prolongation of depression.

With the setting sun, your hopes of yesterday died out. All right. That was yesterday.

Things didn't materialize the way you dreamed they would. All right again. Now—the present hour—is Today. Yesterday bears no relation to it, except perhaps, the relation that a nightmare bears to the morning after.

Forget all about yesterday... it is dead and buried in the cemetery of Time.

Today is alive. Are you? Well then, get busy! Fling from your shoulders the depressing weight of those hopes that haven't come true. Stand erect. Man, the world is yours! You have just as much claim on its good things—on the things you've longed for and prayed for and worked for—as the other fellow has.

This hour has been handed to you as a gift from the overflowing storehouse of Eternity.

What are you doing with it? Answer that.

Moping? Growling? Despairing? For shame!

God has favored you with another chance to make good. He has given you Today. Prove your appreciation by making it a stepping-stone to happier, worthier tomorrows!—The Imprint, St. Paul, Minnesota.

GOOD BUSINESS

A good business man is always held in high esteem because he will not violate any law that defeats the chief aim in life—that he be lived in greatest abundance. The man who acquires a fortune and dies in early life is not a good business man; he has failed in life's most important end. He has not had the business sense to take care of the most precious thing to him—his health. What is life worth to you if you are dead, or even half dead?

Sometimes I have to hammer it into the heads of my most intelligent patrons, that their activities amount to slow but certain suicide! Some take the warning; of course some do not.

Here are some serious faults that many so-called business men indulge in daily: Rushing from home mornings, with insufficient breakfast to fit the body properly for the day's work. Dining downtown, at "luncheon" to save time; these two principal meals of the day are almost ignored in the interest of "business." Going home at the close of hours, tired, worried, often exhausted in mind and body, to swallow a heavy dinner. Lastly, retiring late, in the belief that the gorge will be digested at bedtime.

The function of healthy sleep is to repair the nervous and mental wear of the day. This wear is not repaired in a sleep that is simply stupor—unconsciousness—the stupor produced by the bludgeon, the knockout. It is not healthy, invigorating sleep; it awakens with more tire than was felt on retiring.

Such conduct takes its toll in deaths before death should occur. The "heart-failure" of the newspaper diagnosis; the cerebral hemorrhage on men aged before their time.

"HARD TIMES" FIVE THOUSAND YEARS AGO

A papyrus handbill, dated in Memphis, Egypt, 3068 B. C. is thought by some to be significant. A free translation is:

"A few lawless men are depriving the land of sovereignty. The laws are defied and men tread them under foot. The lawbreaker is the possessor of wealth, while the rich man has lost everything."

"There is a scarcity of gold. The skilled craftsman is without work. The man who reaps the harvest gets nothing for it and he who did the plowing does not secure the profit. The land is depleted. There are more rulers than ever. I show you a land turned upside down."

But shortly thereafter, Egypt entered upon a period of unprecedented prosperity.—Whaley-Eaton

Fifty and Fit

A MAN is as old—or as young—as his organs. At fifty, you can be in your prime.

Why go along with "fairly good health" when you might be enjoying vigor you haven't felt for years?

There's a simple little thing anyone can do to keep the vital organs stimulated, and feel fit all the time. People don't realize how sluggish they've grown until they've tried it. The stimulant that will stir your system to new life is Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. It will make a most amazing difference in many ways.

This famous doctor's prescription is a delicious syrup made with fresh herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. It starts its good work with the first spoonful. That's all you need to drive away the dullness and headache of a bilious spell, and rid the system of that slow poison that saps your strength. It's better than a tonic for tired bowels, and unlike habit-forming laxatives you can take it freely or give it to any child. And it isn't expensive.

Get some syrup pepsin today, and take a little tonight. Don't wait until you're sick to give your system this wonderful help. You can avoid those spells of biliousness or constipation. A spoonful every now and then is better than constant worry about the condition of your bowels, or fear of auto-intoxication as you grow older. Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin protects the system. All druggists keep this preparation.

ADVERTISING

Builds Business and Protects the Consumer

With adequate advertising, sales increase in volume, thus permitting lower prices to consumers

BUDGETING

the Advertising Appropriation

Business men realize that people today are keener buyers than ever. So they are planning to offer better values, to render better service, than they have ever been able to do before.

As a consumer, you will be interested in some of the proved methods by which quality of merchandise and service is improved and price decreased.

Modern advertising is the most effective of those methods. This is the way it works—to your advantage as a consumer:

First, you know that consistently advertised products are dependable in quality. Advertising reflects the maker's confidence in his goods. He will not spend good money for advertising something which disappoints buyers. His business depends upon your good will. Nothing will more quickly destroy your good will than misleading, untruthful advertising of inferior products.

Second, well-planned advertising reduces the price of the product. It does this by increasing the volume of sales, which, in turn, makes mass production possible. Automobiles are a familiar example. Just compare the price of an average car of twenty years ago to the price of today. Mass production did it—and mass production depends upon a large sales volume. Advertising brings that.

And so, the right kind of advertising is, above all things, beneficial to the consuming public. If it were not, it couldn't succeed—and you know it does succeed.

These things are in the business man's mind as he plans his advertising. Naturally, he wants to build up his business volume—increase his sales—obtain the good will of more customers. Those might be called the objectives of his program.

To reach those objectives—which, as has been pointed out, bring real benefits in quality and economy to consumers—he budgets an advertising appropriation sufficient to do the job. The days of "hit or miss" advertising have passed. To win a definite share of the public's good will, advertising must be planned in relation to a definite predetermined purpose.

The business which appropriates an adequate amount of money for advertising, is a business which protects its own interests by protecting the interests of the public. Every business, in the final analysis, depends upon the patronage and good will of the consumer.

MAN MADE THE TOWN

SYNOPSIS

Diana, a young English girl, in love with Dennis Waterman, a married man, undergoes a nervous collapse and is sent to the country to recuperate under the care of Dr. Donald Rathbone, who lives near the cottage where she stays. She finds herself falling in love with the doctor, but still trying to hold Dennis' affection. Linda, Dennis' wife, tells her that she offered Dennis a divorce but he would not accept it; he would have felt compelled to marry Diana. Diana's love for Doctor Rathbone is tempered by jealousy of a woman named Rosalie, who lives in the doctor's house. At last Rathbone finds that he is deeply in love with Diana, but he confesses to her that Rosalie is his wife.

He had married her out of sympathy, when her husband had been killed in the war. But Rosalie was hopelessly insane. Diana and Rathbone part, and a letter comes from Aunt Gladwyn calling Diana back to London.

Dennis comes to see her. She discovers that she is all through with him. As she is leaving for London a letter comes from Dr. Rathbone, expressing his hopeless love. Back in London she learns that Linda Waterman, Dennis' wife, has been for years in love with a married man whose wife has just died in an insane asylum. Life seems a frightful, puzzling affair. She goes to a party, expecting to be bored, but the footman at the door announcing the incoming guests, calls out: "Dr. Donald Rathbone."

THE STORY

Diana had been idly watching the scene before her, thoughts far away, but at the sound of that name her slender body stiffened, and her face went as white as her gown.

"No... no... no..." Her heart cried out in passionate protest even as her dilated eyes met Rathbone's across the long room.

And she had been afraid that she was beginning to forget him! Forget him! Forget his big, powerful body against which she had once been held in such perfect happiness and peace? His grave steady eyes, and the mouth that looked as if it rarely smiled?

He did not smile now, though a little flash passed across his sombre eyes before he turned to greet his hostess.

It seemed an eternity to Diana before Rathbone began to make his way across to her. He seemed to know a great many people, many of whom stopped to engage him in conversation.

Rathbone was beside her now, but he made no attempt to take her hand, and she did not offer it.

"Good-evening, Miss Gladwyn."

Diana raised eyes that were infinitely pathetic, because they fought so hard for indifference.

"Good-evening, Dr. Rathbone."

"A great rock in a weary land."

How silly to think of that now, and yet—oh, how wonderful to feel once again the peace and safety of his presence!

"I hope you are well?" he said formally.

"Yes, thank you."

"Quite well?"

She tried to answer, but now that suffocating feeling had mastered her, and she could only nod silently.

Then someone came and took him away.

At dinner he was a long way from her; he sat on Mrs. Foster's left hand with the great newspaper magnate on her right; evidently Rathbone was the second most important guest.

The dinner was endless; so Diana's overwrought imagination, the long table seemed to grow longer till Rathbone appeared to be separated from her by miles; course after course followed one another in terrible monotony. How could people go on eating for such—hours!

She almost said, "Thank God," when at last the ordeal was ended. Rathbone would come and talk to her now, she was sure; he would find some way of shaking off all the other people, and he would come to her, and he would say something that would stop this dreadful pain. He would know what she was suffering; perhaps he was suffering equally himself. But though she watched the door of the great unfriendly drawing room with strained eyes till the men began to appear, Rathbone was not among them.

Then she learned that Rathbone had been called away suddenly on an urgent call.

He had gone without even saying good-bye to her.

CHAPTER XXI

Anna had been waiting up for her. She said with unusual kindness in her voice:

"I should go to bed and try and get some sleep."

"I couldn't sleep," Diana said.

"Let me give you something to make you sleep—some of that draught you used to take before you were ill. You must sleep, Miss Diana."

Anna came back with the sleeping draught and Diana took it and allowed herself to be put to bed.

"I'll be close by, if you want me," she said.

Something in her tone of voice made Diana think suddenly of Miss Starling, and an almost childish longing for her and for the peace of her little room at the cottage awoke in her heart.

How amazed the Creature would be if she could know!

Diana sat up in bed, rocking herself to and fro.

She wished she could cry, but her eyes felt too hot and burning to allow the relief of tears.

Were other girls made to suffer like this, or were they too wise to allow themselves to care very much for anyone?

With a terrible feeling of restlessness she got out of bed and began to walk about the room.

If only he had bid her good-bye at Mrs. Foster's. Shown some affection for her.

If only she could sleep! Her head was throbbing so; it reminded her of that night at the Savoy with Dennis, when the world had seemed to be filled with a million demons, all of whom were conspiring together to torment her.

Anna's sleeping draught had been useless; it had only excited her and racked her nerves.

Perhaps if she took some more... She looked round the room eagerly; yes, the bottle was there on the dressing table.

Diana crossed the room. She was a childish figure in her white nightgown with her bare feet and disordered curly hair.

Her hands shook a little, making the bottle rattle against the glass as she measured out some of the drops.

It had a nasty bitter taste.

"That's because I haven't put any water with it," Diana thought vaguely. "I don't care; perhaps it will really make me sleep this time."

She shivered and made a little grimace as she crept back to bed. Why were all the things that were supposed to be good for one so nasty?

CHAPTER XXII

Jonas was putting the pony and trap away in the stable when Mr. Shurey came down the yard, a giant figure looming out of the gray mist.

"Don't 'ee put her away yet," he said. "There's some things for Rathbone's."

Jonas turned round.

"It'll be difficult to get so far in this fog," he said rather sullenly.

The farmer frowned.

"When I was your age I didn't argue about things being difficult," he said bluntly. "I did 'em. If you go up to the house the missus'll give you what's to go."

Jonas shrugged his shoulders and obeyed. He did not really object to the fog, but he was in no mood to go. There was a dark spot in his mind whenever he thought of Donald Rathbone.

He felt as if, during the past weeks since he first met her, she had unconsciously been giving him broken pieces of a puzzle, which had slowly and carefully formed themselves into one, until this morning, he suddenly realized that it was complete. And it was Rathbone's face that he saw in the finished picture.

The love Jonas felt for Diana was the kind of love which Dante had felt for Beatrice. He had been content to love on his poet's dreams of her, asking nothing more for himself than that he might be allowed to continue to dream.

But that she should be unhappy was more than he could endure.

It was nearly midday before Jonas reached Rathbone's. The big gates were wide open—a most unusual thing in his experience, and as he neared the house he saw that the front door was wide open also, regardless of the damp fog that swirled in.

He drove round to the side door and got down.

Nobody answered his repeated knock, and presently he turned the handle and looked into the kitchen.

Nobody about. He set the basket of eggs and butter down on the table and had turned to go when Hobson, the chauffeur, suddenly appeared.

Jonas looked at him.

"Where's everybody?" he asked. He indicated the basket. "I've just brought that. Isn't there anybody about?"

"We've got something else to do besides hang round waiting for you to call," Hobson said tartly. He half turned to go, then came back.

"Which way did you come?" he asked, lowering his voice.

"Through the village."
"Oh—well—you didn't see anything of our Miss Rosalie, I suppose?"
"Miss Rosalie? No. Why?"
"Why?" Hobson echoed with the impatience of anxiety. "Why, because she's out somewhere, of course. Been out since nine o'clock this morning, as far as we can make out. Not very nice for a young lady to go wandering off on her own a morning like this, is it?"
"Alone?" Jonas said.
"You mean—she's lost?" Jonas asked.

"No, I don't mean nothing of the sort," Hobson retorted angrily. "You can't get lost round about here. It's just the fog that makes it difficult to find her. If you see anything of her it 'ud be a kindness to let us know or to bring her back."

"All right," Jonas said briefly. He had turned to go when Hobson called to him again.

"Look here," he said more confidentially. "You won't open your mouth all over the village, I know, so I'll tell you."

"Miss Rosalie has been missing ever since it was light. Nobody knows how she managed to get out—it's never happened before, and there'll be hell to pay if the doctor comes home and she isn't here."

"Isn't the doctor at home?"

"No, he hasn't been home for two nights, lucky for us; but we've got to find her before it gets dark, and that's all there is about it. I've been out myself since seven—haven't had any breakfast yet!" Hobson grumbled, trying to hide his anxiety.

"If I tell Mr. Shurey he'll send some of us along to help," Jonas said. "It'll get dark early today, with this fog hanging about."

"If you tell Shurey the whole village'll know," Hobson said lugubriously. "Not but what I don't think you're right. The more of us that looks for her, the sooner she'll be found."

"Have you tried the woods? She used to go there a lot in the summer."

"Tried the woods," Hobson said scornfully. "When you can't see your hand before your face out in the main road, how do you think you're going to see in the woods? Not but what it isn't an idea," he added. "I could find my way through them in the dark," Jonas said quickly, but Hobson shook his head.

"What I'm afraid of is the river," he admitted reluctantly. "It always had a wonderful fascination for the poor lady. Sit for hours watching it, she would, and singing to herself." He broke off with a touch of emotion, then pulled himself together to say gruffly: "I can't waste my time talking to you; but if you do see anything of her—"

"I'll keep a lookout," Jonas promised.

He went back to the trap and drove slowly away.

The river!... It was a disagreeable thought on a morning like this. His imagination was deeply stirred. The river would be icy cold and full of dead weeds.

It seemed to be getting dark already, although it was not yet three o'clock; the grayness of the mist was deepening and intensifying, as if someone were blowing black smoke into it and the two were slowly mingling together.

Before he had gone a mile on the road he was obliged to get down and lead the little pony. It was almost impossible to see the ditch or any turnings. And somewhere wandering hopelessly about was Rosalie—a poor "mad" thing, as Diana had called her.

The curious acrid smell of a river was in the air, a mingling of rotting vegetation and dank water. If he was indeed anywhere near the river, then he had wandered very far from the right direction, for the river wound half a mile behind the village in a wide semicircle.

BAPTIST CHURCH Sunday, June 26, 1932

9:45 a. m. Sunday School. Arrangements to be completed and all committees appointed for the annual picnic at Live Oak Creek Wednesday, June 29th. Don't fail to be there.

11:00 a. m. Brother J. J. Kellam, field secretary for Buckner Orphans Home, will speak at this hour. Brother Kellam has been working for Buckner Orphans Home for many years, and is much loved among Baptists and others over the Southland. Buckner Orphans Home is a large institution caring for about 700 orphan children. How this large family is fed, housed, doctored, educated, trained in self-support, ect., will be of interest to everyone. We have a very close interest in the Home not only because it is ours but because one of our own men, Deacon A. C. Hoover, has been a member of the board of directors for several years.

7:30 p. m. The B.Y.P.U. meets in its room in the Sunday School Building. Visitors are always welcomed at these meetings.

8:30 p. m. The pastor will preach at the evening service. Subject: "Today." A vital message on a most important topic.

For Jesus' sake and your soul's we urge your attendance upon these services.

M. M. Falmer, Pastor.
