Adelia Willis Is Improving

Child Believed Staging Winning Fight With Death

Adelia Willis, daughter of Sheriff and Mrs. W. S. Willis, who for the past several days has been fighting death at close quarters, was reported last night and this morning as being considerably improved.

Approximately two weeks ago the child accidentally stuck the blade of a pair of scissors in her knee. Complications arose and her condition became serious the last of last week and an emergency operation was performed by Dr. F. T. McIntire Saturday to drain the injured knee.

An improvement was noted soon after the operation but the child's condition became critical Monday and for a time attendants had despaired of her life. A blood transfusion was resorted to Monday afternoon, L. B. Townsend furnishing the blood for the stricken child. The transfusion operation was a success and slow improvement has been noted in the child's condition since.

Although the child is still not considered out of danger, she is much improved and barring further complications it is believed she will recover.

Mail Truck Forced To Turn Back From Barnhart Attempt

For the first time in many months, Ozona was without mail of any kind yesterday. The recent unprecedented rains have delayed transportation of the mail, but L. C. Lynch, driver of the mail truck between here and Barnhart, found it impossible to traverse the road Wednesday and turned back to Ozona after attempting the trip from here to Barnhart Wednesday morning.

Mr. Lynch said on his return here that he might have been able to travel the road had it not been for the many automobiles that are mired in the bog holes. With the road in its present condition, it is practically impossible to travel it except in the ruts that have been cut by traffic. The stalled autos blocked the ruts and the mail driver was forced to turn back.

There are several families stranded on the road between here and Barnhart, it was reported here yesterday, and some fear was expressed that unless the weather clears soon, means of rescuing the occupants of the stalled cars will have to be devised to prevent suffering.

Canvass Shows No Change In Count

County Demo Committee Names Delegate To State Convention

Official canvass of the votes cast in the run-off primary on August 27 by the Crockett County Democratic executive committee last Saturday showed no changes from the original unofficial count as announced following the close of the polls.

The results of the local election were officially certified to the State Democratic executive committee by Houston Smith, county chairman.

The Crockett County Democrats designated Lowell Littleton as official delegate from this county to the state Democratic convention to be held in Lubbock next week. Mr. Littleton, assistant cashier at the Ozona National Bank, is in Lubbock this week on his vacation and the committee will ask him to represent Crockett County in the convention session.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Littleton are spending a two-weeks vacation in Lubbock.

Seek Protection Of Ft. Lancaster

Lions Ask Highway Department To Preserve Historic Ruins

Preservation of the ruins of old Fort Lancaster on the banks of the Pecos River on the H. E. Cox ranch will be sought by the Ozona Lions Club when construction of the new highway near the site of the old fort gets under way.

The new highway will traverse that area about 400 yards south of the ruins of the historic old fort. The Lions Club has under consideration a plan to mark this and other historic spots in the county along the new highway and when the matter was brought up for discussion at the club session Monday, fear was expressed that the ruins might be destroyed by workmen engaged in building the road.

Contracts for grading and drainage on that section of the highway are scheduled for letting this month and in order to get the matter before the proper authorities in ample time, a committee was appointed Monday to communicate with the highway department, the resident engineer here and the district engineer at San Angelo, asking that precautions be taken to prevent damage or destruction of the historic ruins. The matter was also brought to the attention of Mr. Cox and his aid sought in protecting the ruins.

Clothing Aflame, Man Is Saved By Quick Action Of Witness

Chalmers Broadfoot, manager of the Popular Variety Store here, probably owes his life to his own presence of mind and that of R. J. Cooke, proprietor of the Ozona Meat Market, who Monday morning smothered out flames that had leaped to Broadfoot's gasoline-soaked clothing and for a few seconds threatened him with serious burns and possibly death.

Mr. Broadfoot was attempting to kill a horde of small black bugs that had gathered around the street light in front of his store and were crawling into the store. With a gallon can of gasoline he was burning the bugs by soaking them with the fluid and applying a match. While he was pouring gasoline on a pile of bugs, a small flame nearby leaped to the new fuel supply and Mr. Broadfoot stepped back with his can in an effort to prevent its becoming ignited. In doing so he sloshed a quantity of the gasoline on his clothing and the flames enveloped him in a flash.

A stranger standing nearby attempted to beat out the flames with his hat but failed and Mr. Broadfoot, remembering a water hydrant at the back of the store, started for it in a run.

Mr. Cooke, who was making for the blazing man, called to him to stop and despite the fact that the flames were licking up the front of his clothing and into his face, he stopped at once and Mr. Cooke seized him and threw him face down on the ground and tucked his clothing in around him to smother out the flames in an instant.

Mr. Broadfoot suffered only a slight burn on his hand and so quickly were the flames extinguished that his clothing was not even scorched.

Arkansas Barnyard Scene Duplicated In Setting For Shower

Mrs. Dixie Brown, Mrs. Harry J. Friend, Jr., and Miss Allyne Friend entertained with a miscellaneous shower at the Hotel Ozona Saturday afternoon for Miss Beth Davidson who is to be married next Saturday to Mark Garver of Little Rock, Ark.

The ballroom of the hotel was arranged as a replica of an Arkansas barnyard. The floor was covered with hay and bales of hay were stacked about the room, furnishing seats for the guests. Clothes hanging on the line, wash tubs and boilers showing recent usage, a chicken coop containing live chickens, a wood pile with chopping block and axe and other farm implements were arranged about the room, and the hostesses, dressed in calico dresses and barefooted greeted the guests at the door.

Mrs. Charles Williams won the prize for the most words arranged with the letters in the word "Arkansas." Guests were given a piece of calico and asked to fashion some useful article from it. Miss Heister Bunker was awarded the prize in this contest. Each guest also furnished a recipe for the bride's recipe book.

Little Jackie Lou Friend and Edna Beth Davidson, dressed as hill urchins, pulled in a small covered wagon bearing gifts for the bride-to-be. Refreshments consisted of ginger bread and pink lemonade. There were about thirty guests present.

7 Inches And Still Raining

Total Fall Here For The Year Brought To 22 Inches

More than seven inches of rain and it's still raining!

That's the record in Ozona for the past week. The sun has been able to shine only about two days during the week and from a half to two inches of rain falls each day.

The rains in this immediate section have for the most part been slow falling, however, and damage from high water has not occurred. Both draws through Ozona have risen some from time to time but neither of them has overflowed its channel.

The week of rain has brought the total rainfall in Ozona for the year to nearly 22 inches, according to records of the rain gauge maintained at the Joe Oberkamp store.

Traffic over highways through this territory was practically paralyzed yesterday. Only a few trucks and cars were able to negotiate either the Sonora or the Barnhart roads. Ozona was without mail service either to or from Barnhart yesterday and it was considered doubtful that the truck would be able to travel the road today.

Iraan Noses Out Giants 4 to 3 In Game There Sun.

Iraan's baseball nine nosed out the Ozona Giants in a closely contested game on the Iraan diamond Sunday afternoon. The score was 4 to 3.

Both teams were credited with six hits each, Buster Miller handling the hurling job for the locals in most efficient manner. Red Greer, Giant outfielder, was a casualty of the day, suffering a badly sprained ankle in stretching himself on base running.

The Giants are scheduled to wind up the season on the home diamond against Iraan next Sunday. If the weather clears enough to make it possible for the Iraan players to get here the game will be played at Powell Field Sunday afternoon beginning at 3 o'clock.

Bids Asked On 11 Miles West Road

Second Section West Of Ozona Advertised For Sept. 19

Bids for grading and drainage structures on the second section of Highway 27 west of Ozona, 11 miles in length, from Bachelor Hill to 9 miles west of Ozona, will be received by the State Highway Department at Austin Monday morning, September 19. Advertising notice to contractors is being published in this issue of the Stockman covering this project.

This will be the first contract in this county under the emergency appropriation of the Federal government for relief of unemployment. The contract provisions are for the employment of local labor where practical and provides for payment of skilled labor at the rate of 45 cents an hour and unskilled labor at 30 cents an hour, with a maximum of 30 hours a week allowed. Provision is also made that hand labor must be employed wherever expedient to employ the same.

Only one more section of the west road from Ozona remains to be let for grading and drainage. This section will include the big fill down the hill near old Fort Lancaster, which is to be a two-mile-long grade with a rise of approximately 600 feet in that distance. Contracts for this section are expected to be let at the next session of the commission.

Say "I saw it in the Stockman."

DIST. COURT OPENS HERE

SEPTEMBER 19

Light Docket Awaits Court In Regular Fall Session

JURORS SUMMONED

Grand Jury Meets On Opening Day; Petit Jury On 21st

Judge Joe G. Montague will convene the district court in its regular September term here Monday, September 19. The grand jury will be impaneled on that date and the first two days will be devoted to non-jury matters while the grand jury finishes its work. The petit jury has been summoned to appear on Wednesday, September 21.

One of the lightest dockets in several terms awaits the court here this month. Officers report but little work to be brought before the grand jury and neither the civil nor criminal dockets will require much time of the court.

Sheriff W. S. Willis and Deputy Casbeer had practically completed summoning members of the grand jury and petit jury panels this week. Those summoned for grand jury service include J. M. Baggett, Z. H. Eppler, Bruce Drake, Tom Choate, A. E. Deland, Morris Black, Charles Coates, J. H. Gray, George Brown, Ray Dunlap, M. T. Blackwell, J. M. Dudley, Bruce Galyon, Albert Brock, L. B. Cox, Jr., and R. ## PROUD OF 8-INCH RAIN?

Mr. and Mrs. Ashby McMullen came in from their ranch the first of the week anxious to report to Ozona friends their record breaking rain of 8 inches. But when they tried to tell of their 8-inch fall their hearers immediately countered with stories of falls ranging from 10 to 27 inches all over the section. Ashby says he has a notion to enter a complaint at getting a measly 8 inches of rain.

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey Hale of Venezuela, South America, are visitors to Ozona, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bascomb Cox. Mr. Hale is connected with an oil company operating in South America. Mrs. Hale was formerly Miss Billy Scott of San Antonio. She and Mrs. Cox were girlhood chums in C.I.A.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 8, 1932.

FLOOD CONTROL FOR OZONA

Ozona has been lucky during the past week when torrential rains were falling all over the southwest, putting rivers and draws out of banks, resulting in loss of human life and millions of dollars in damage to property.

Two draws come together in Ozona, each one of them draining a wide section of territory to the north of this city. Either one of these draws is capable of overflowing a part of the residence section of Ozona, but should both of them reach their flood stage simultaneously most of the town of Ozona would be under water.

Ozona has been fortunate in that rains of flood proportions have not fallen to the north of us. With the ground soaking wet as it is now, should one of the virtual waterspouts that have fallen in some sections of this area fall in the watershed of these two draws, it would mean thousands of dollars worth of damage to Ozona property owners, and possibly loss of life.

Engineers who have looked over the flood control possibilities of these two draws have declared that with a comparatively small outlay of money, the constant overflow menace that the draws present for Ozona could be eliminated entirely and the draws made to carry flood waters with a minimum of danger from overflow.

Dredging and straightening of the draws through town would be the solution, in the opinion of these engineers. Even clearing the draws of obstructions, such as the now useless slab of concrete which once served as a footbridge over Johnson Draw, would help the situation, and plowing up of channels so that flood waters would take away the loose dirt and thus in time deepen the channel would also improve the drainage.

By controlling flood waters in the draws, much valuable land along the banks would be reclaimed for town lots, and property owners in the overflow area would be relieved from the constant threat of floods.

Considering the immense gain that would accrue from such a project, it would seem that the county could find no better way of spending money than in undertaking to protect the town from flood waters. And there could be found no better time for doing the work than this winter when many local workers will need employment to earn a livelihood during the winter.

Im the fastidious housewife. Now listen to me, my house is always spotless, and I want you to know it. I meet you at the door with a "Clean your shoes" greeting, and won't let you enjoy your stay for straightening the rug, window curtains and dusting a little bit. I can always keep my house spick and span, because everybody in town is afraid to come in it.

Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Smith and son, Massie Ray, Mrs. Will Miller and Miss Dorothy Miller were visitors to San Angelo and Miles Sunday.

SCANDALS By THE TOWN GOSSIP

"Nothing like a good water fight to sell merchandise," said I. G. Rape Tuesday as he made charges to a couple of customers for stationery and other items that two young ladies had drenched in staging a water duel in the store.

"Such popularity must be deserved," was the general comment of bank customers who noted the big bouquet of flowers on Scott Peters' desk at the bank Tuesday.

If only some of these geographers who write text books and refer to this section as the "semi-arid west" could make a trip over some of these roads in West Texas now.

They probably would refer to it then as "the swampy region of West Texas."

Old Jim is getting ready to "practice law" in a big way, beginning next January. But it's barely possible that Jim will be wasting his time lining up "clients" now. A lot of things might happen between now and next January.

But if any of you folks need any service from the state agencies at Austin, just see Barber Brown—after next January—if.

"In olden days the maidens dressed

"Just like old Mother Hubbard,

"But nowadays, the Saints be blessed,

"They look more like her cupboard."

"Say, what kind of company are you expecting, if you don't want to let them in?"

"The gas company, the telephone company, and the electric company."

Bryan McDonald is reported to have attempted suicide when he read the final figures in his computation of how much money the water company lost in the six inches of rain that fell here the past week.

"Our new neighbors seem to be the most devoted couple," said the wife. "He kisses her every time he goes out and even waves kisses to her from the sidewalk. Why don't you do that, John?" "Why don't I?" replied John. "Good Lord, I don't even know her yet."

"Didn't you advertise?" a salesman asked an Ozona merchant.

"No, sirse, I did that once and it nearly ruined me," he replied.

"How's that?"

"People came in and bought dern near all the stuff I had."

VOTERS MUST CONTROL TAXATION

In 1927 the major departments, commissions and bureaus of the Federal government cost the taxpayers $1,964,000,000.

In the 1932 fiscal year they cost $3,195,000,000—an increase of 63 per cent. The cost of one department increased 220 per cent in that time—another jumped 117 per cent—two others went up 113 per cent and 106 per cent, respectively.

The most amazing phase of this is that we were in a far better position to pay in 1927 than in 1932. Those were boom days, when extravagance was taken almost as a matter of course. In the last three years businesses and individuals have been forced to cut costs and adjust outgo to reduced income. Only the governmental departments and commissions and bureaus and whatnots have demanded that an unending stream of dollars be ready for them to spend.

The meaning of all this should be clear enough by now. We face the specter of tax bankruptcy. We are experiencing a tax policy that is forcing money into tax-free bonds, throttling business and creating unemployment and distress. Government extravagance and waste strikes deep into every pocketbook.

There is but one solution—drastic cuts in the cost of government. There is but one instrument for achieving that—the demand of the people, who pay the taxes and cast the votes. There is the final word. Until that word is spoken emphatically at the polls, the economic future of America must remain clouded by doubt.

And Here's Hoping for a Better Year By Albert T. Reid

...writes of "THE MASTER EXECUTIVE"

Supplying a week-to-week inspiration for the heavy burdened who will find every human trial paralleled in the experiences of "The Man Nobody Knows."

A MAN COMES OUT

The days of Jesus' doubt are set down as forty in number. It is easy to imagine that lonely struggle. He had left a good trade among people who knew him and trusted him—and for what? To become a wandering preacher, talking to folks who never heard of him? And what was he to talk about? How, with his lack of experience, should he find words for his message? Where should he begin? Who would listen? Would they listen? Hadn't he perhaps made a mistake?

Satan, says the narrative, tempted him, saying: "You are hungry; here are stones. Make them into bread."—The temptation of material success. It was entirely unnecessary for him to be hungry ever. He had a good trade; he knew well enough that his organizing ability was better than Joseph's. He could build up a far more successful business and acquire comfort and wealth. Why not?

Satan comes in again, according to the narrative, taking him up into a high mountain and showing him the kingdoms of the world. "All these can be yours, if you will only compromise." He could go to Jerusalem and enter the priesthood; that was a sure road to distinction. He could do good in that way, and have the satisfaction of success as well.

Or he might enter the public service, and seek political leadership. There was plenty of discontent to be capitalized, and he knew the farmer and the laborer; he was one of them; they would listen to him.

For forty days and nights the incessant fight went on, but once settled, it was settled forever. In the calm of that wilderness there came the majestic conviction which is the very soul of leadership—the faith that his spirit was linked with the Eternal, that God had sent him into the world to do a work which no one else could do, which—if he neglected it—would never be done.

Magnify this temptation scene as greatly as you will; say that God spoke more clearly to Jesus than to any who has ever lived. It is true. But to every man of vision the clear Voice speaks; there is no great leadership where there is not a mystic. Nothing splendid has ever been achieved except by those who dared believe that something inside themselves was superior to circumstances. To choose the sure thing is treason to the soul.

If this was not the meaning of grain market, they are buying in the wool market, they are buying in the cotton market, they are buying in the silk market. That means that "big money" has got over being afraid, and we think it is time for lesser people with little money to overcome their own timidity and begin to spend. By buying now you speed the return of prosperity.

THE PARABLE OF THE TALENTS

The man who "went and hid his talent in the earth," and thereby became history's most familiar example of unfaithfulness and folly, must have lived in times like our own. His country, we take it, was emerging from one of those depressions which, off and on, have visited every people under the sun since business began. So fearful he was, that he fell into worse trouble than that he was trying to avoid, and tragically missed his life's greatest opportunity. Entrusted with a certain amount of cash, he hoarded it instead of using it. He could have bought the best of goods at bargain prices; he could have made investments, more advantageous than any which had been or ever again would be in his day; he could have done his part toward providing jobs for hungry men, toward quickening sluggish streams of trade, toward restoring confidence and prosperity. But he was afraid, "and went and hid his talent in the earth," wherefore, as a matter of economic and social justice it was taken from him, and given to those who had the courage, the loyalty and the enterprise to use it.

The old parable is now strikingly new. Its truth rings afresh in the following lines from a current advertisement: "Don't say you can't help. Don't say you're too little to help cure a big national crisis. You can help. Have your hidden your money away, buried it in the ground, put it in a sock, locked it up in a safety vault?"

Then bring it out, if you want to help this depression. You'll help your state and your nation and your fellow man. And you'll help yourself. Every dollar you put back into use helps. It helps make a market for the things you grow. And it helps you. Your money is worth more now, in terms of what it will buy, than it has been in many, many years. There is a feast of bargains spread out before you. Prices will go up. The value of your money in terms of what it will buy will shrink. It will shrink, if it remains hoarded. Bring it into the sunlight. Let it spread and grow you a new crop of dollars. Not in wild speculation, not in wildcat schemes. No need to lose it that way. The best securities, the best lands, the best investments of all kinds are waiting for you on the bargain table. Did you know that the biggest fortunes were not founded in periods of prosperity? They were founded in times of adversity like these, by men who had cash—and courage."

HUMAN BUSINESS FRANKS

The shop owner or merchant who finds fault with the way the other fellow is doing business, quite frequently is the man who himself is constantly doing things opposite to rules that are best for the community. Most every line of business today is confronted with some problem or another pertaining to competition. It is really good that the business world revolves on principles of this sort. Without them we would all become stale; there would be no joy or enthusiasm and we would be a lazy and indolent lot.

A community where merchants refuse to trade with one another is a weak spot. Yet there are places like this. The money that at home would be utilized by home folks over and over again, once it is transferred from the locality to a larger center, it is lost to the pool; perhaps never to return. A sad thought and it reads almost like an obituary. It is slow death to a community. Merchants in larger centers will have little need for spending money in the small town and they don't propose to do so. They are however, taking small town citizenry constantly and thereby sapping the strength from smaller communities. Why be weak and fall for it?

What can be done about it? United action on the part of merchants will help. Patronize the other business man when he sells something out of your line. If you sell groceries don't look for a cheap wholesaler to sell you a suit of clothes at cost, etc. Pay your neighbor his reasonable profit. He could perhaps buy groceries at wholesale if he tried. The same is true in the printing field. The small town merchant who spends money to have printing done away from home is not fair to the community. He is spending this money with an outside firm that brings little or nothing to the town in question. Surely it is doing nothing to build the town up.—Independent, Jordan, Minnesota.

FLOOD CONTROL FOR OZONA

Ozona has been lucky during the past week when torrential rains were falling all over the southwest, putting rivers and draws out of banks, resulting in loss of human life and millions of dollars in damage to property.

Two draws come together in Ozona, each one of them draining a wide section of territory to the north of this city. Either one of these draws is capable of overflowing a part of the residence section of Ozona, but should both of them reach their flood stage simultaneously most of the town of Ozona would be under water.

Ozona has been fortunate in that rains of flood proportions have not fallen to the north of us. With the ground soaking wet as it is now, should one of the virtual waterspouts that have fallen in some sections of this area fall in the watershed of these two draws, it would mean thousands of dollars worth of damage to Ozona property owners, and possibly loss of life.

Engineers who have looked over the flood control possibilities of these two draws have declared that with a comparatively small outlay of money, the constant overflow menace that the draws present for Ozona could be eliminated entirely and the draws made to carry flood waters with a minimum of danger from overflow.

Dredging and straightening of the draws through town would be the solution, in the opinion of these engineers. Even clearing the draws of obstructions, such as the now useless slab of concrete which once served as a footbridge over Johnson Draw, would help the situation, and plowing up of channels so that flood waters would take away the loose dirt and thus in time deepen the channel would also improve the drainage.

By controlling flood waters in the draws, much valuable land along the banks would be reclaimed for town lots, and property owners in the overflow area would be relieved from the constant threat of floods.

Considering the immense gain that would accrue from such a project, it would seem that the county could find no better way of spending money than in undertaking to protect the town from flood waters. And there could be found no better time for doing the work than this winter when many local workers will need employment to earn a livelihood during the winter.

THAT'S ME—

Im the fastidious housewife. Now listen to me, my house is always spotless, and I want you to know it. I meet you at the door with a "Clean your shoes" greeting, and won't let you enjoy your stay for straightening the rug, window curtains and dusting a little bit. I can always keep my house spick and span, because everybody in town is afraid to come in it.

SCANDALS By THE TOWN GOSSIP

"Nothing like a good water fight to sell merchandise," said I. G. Rape Tuesday as he made charges to a couple of customers for stationery and other items that two young ladies had drenched in staging a water duel in the store.

"Such popularity must be deserved," was the general comment of bank customers who noted the big bouquet of flowers on Scott Peters' desk at the bank Tuesday.

If only some of these geographers who write text books and refer to this section as the "semi-arid west" could make a trip over some of these roads in West Texas now.

They probably would refer to it then as "the swampy region of West Texas."

Old Jim is getting ready to "practice law" in a big way, beginning next January. But it's barely possible that Jim will be wasting his time lining up "clients" now. A lot of things might happen between now and next January.

But if any of you folks need any service from the state agencies at Austin, just see Barber Brown—after next January—if.

"Say, what kind of company are you expecting, if you don't want to let them in?"

"The gas company, the telephone company, and the electric company."

Bryan McDonald is reported to have attempted suicide when he read the final figures in his computation of how much money the water company lost in the six inches of rain that fell here the past week.

"Our new neighbors seem to be the most devoted couple," said the wife. "He kisses her every time he goes out and even waves kisses to her from the sidewalk. Why don't you do that, John?"

"Why don't I?" replied John. "Good Lord, I don't even know her yet."

"Why don't you advertise?" a salesman asked an Ozona merchant.

"No, siree, I did that once and it nearly ruined me," he replied. "How's that?"

"People came in and bought dern near all the stuff I had."

VOTERS MUST CONTROL TAXATION

In 1927 the major departments, commissions and bureaus of the Federal government cost the taxpayers $1,964,000,000.

In the 1932 fiscal year they cost $3,195,000,000—an increase of 63 per cent. The cost of one department increased 220 per cent in that time—another jumped 117 per cent—two others went up 113 per cent and 106 per cent, respectively.

The most amazing phase of this is that we were in a far better position to pay in 1927 than in 1932. Those were boom days, when extravagance was taken almost as a matter of course. In the last three years businesses and individuals have been forced to cut costs and adjust outgo to reduced income. Only the governmental departments and commissions and bureaus and whatnots have demanded that an unending stream of dollars be ready for them to spend.

The meaning of all this should be clear enough by now. We face the specter of tax bankruptcy. We are experiencing a tax policy that is forcing money into tax-free bonds, throttling business and creating unemployment and distress. Government extravagance and waste strike deep into every pocketbook.

There is but one solution—drastic cuts in the cost of government. There is but one instrument for achieving that—the demand of the people, who pay the taxes and cast the votes. There is the final word. Until that word is spoken emphatically at the polls, the economic future of America must remain clouded by doubt.

And Here's Hoping for a Better Year — By Albert T. Reid

BRUCE BARTON writes of "THE MASTER EXECUTIVE"

Supplying a week-to-week inspiration for the heavy burdened who will find every human trial paralleled in the experiences of "The Man Nobody Knows."

A MAN COMES OUT

The days of Jesus' doubt are set down as forty in number. It is easy to imagine that lonely struggle. He had left a good trade among people who knew him and trusted him—and for what? To become a wandering preacher, talking to folks who never heard of him? And what was he to talk about? How, with his lack of experience, should he find words for his message? Where should he begin? Who would listen? Would they perhaps make a mistake?

Bruce Barton

Satan, says the narrative, tempted him, saying: "You are hungry; here are stones. Make them into bread."—The temptation of material success. It was entirely unnecessary for him to be hungry ever. He had a good trade; he knew well enough that his organizing ability was better than Joseph's. He could build up a far more successful business and acquire comfort and wealth. Why not?

Satan comes in again, according to the narrative, taking him up into a high mountain and showing him the kingdoms of the world. "All these can be yours, if you will only compromise." He could go to Jerusalem and enter the priesthood; that was a sure road to distinction. He could do good in that way, and have the satisfaction of success as well.

Or he might enter the public service, and seek political leadership. There was plenty of discontent to be capitalized, and he knew the farmer and the laborer; he was one of them; they would listen to him.

For forty days and nights the incessant fight went on, but once settled, it was settled forever. In the calm of that wilderness there came the majestic conviction which is the very soul of leadership—the faith that his spirit was linked with the Eternal, that God had sent him into the world to do a work which no one else could do, which—if he neglected it—would never be done.

Magnify this temptation scene as greatly as you will; say that God spoke more clearly to Jesus than to any who has ever lived. It is true. But to every man of vision the clear Voice speaks; there is no great leadership where there is not a mystic. Nothing splendid has ever been achieved except by those who dared believe that some thing inside themselves was superior to circumstances. To choose the sure thing is treason to the soul.

If this was not the meaning of grain market, they are buying in the wool market, they are buying in the cotton market, they are buying in the silk market. That means that "big money" has got over being afraid, and we think it is time for lesser people with little money to overcome their own timidity and begin to spend. By buying now you speed the return of prosperity.

THE PARABLE OF THE TALENTS

The man who "went and hid his talent in the earth," and thereby became history's most familiar example of unfaithfulness and folly, must have lived in times like our own. His country, we take it, was emerging from one of those depressions which, off and on, have visited every people under the sun since business began. So fearful he was, that he fell into worse trouble than that he was trying to avoid, and tragically missed his life's greatest opportunity. Entrusted with a certain amount of cash, he hoarded it instead of using it. He could have bought the best of goods at bargain prices; he could have made investments, more advantageous than any which had been or ever again would be in his day; he could have done his part toward providing jobs for hungry men, toward quickening sluggish streams of trade, toward restoring confidence and prosperity. But he was afraid, "and went and hid his talent in the earth," wherefore, as a matter of economic and social justice it was taken from him, and given to those who had the courage, the loyalty and the enterprise to use it.

The old parable is now strikingly new. Its truth rings afresh in the following lines from a current advertisement: "Don't say you can't help. Don't say you're too little to help cure a big national crisis. You can help. Have you hidden your money away, buried it in the ground, put it in a sock, locked it up in a safety vault?"

HUMAN BUSINESS FRAMES

The shop owner or merchant who finds fault with the way his fellow is doing business quite frequently is the man who himself is constantly doing things opposite to rules that are best for the community. Most every kind of business today is confronted with some problem or another pertaining to competition. It is really good that the business world revolves on principles of this sort. Without them we would all become stale; there would be no progress or enthusiasm and we would be a lazy and indolent lot.

A community where merchants refuse to trade with one another is a weak spot. Yet there are places like this. The money that at home would be utilized by business folks over and over again. Once it is transferred from the locality to a larger center, it is lost to the pool; perhaps never to return. A sad thought and it reads almost like an obituary. It is slow death to a community. Merchants in larger centers will have little need for spending money in the small town and they don't propose to do so. They are however, taking small town citizenry constantly and thereby sapping the strength from smaller communities. Why be weak and fall for it?

What can be done about it? United action on the part of merchants will help. Patronize the other business man when he sells something out of your line. If you sell groceries don't look for a cheap wholesaler to sell you a suit of clothes at cost, etc. Pay your neighbor his reasonable profit. He could perhaps buy groceries at wholesale if he tried. The same is true in the printing field. The small town merchant who spends money to have printing done a way from home is not fair to that community. He is spending the money with an outside firm that brings little or nothing to the town in question. Surely it is doing nothing to build the town up. —Independent, Jordan, Minnesota.

Wright Cowden of Midland is here visiting friends.

Then bring it out, if you want to help this depression. You'll help your state and your nation and your fellow man. And you'll help yourself. Every dollar you put back into use helps. It helps make a market for the things you grow. And it helps you. Your money is worth more now, in terms of what it will buy, than it has been in many, many years. There is a feast of bargains spread out before you. Prices will go up. The value of your money in terms of what it will buy will shrink. It will shrink, if it remains hoarded. Bring it into the sunlight. Let it spread and grow you a new crop of dollars. Not in wild speculation, not in wildcat schemes. No need to lose it that way. The best securities, the best lands, the best investments of all kinds are waiting for you on the bargain table. Did you know that the biggest fortunes were not founded in periods of prosperity? They were founded in times of adversity like these, by men who had cash—and courage.

Those words are worth every man's pondering. They are words of common sense as well as common patriotism. They are approved by all ages of the past, and they will be verified by history now in the making. Who hides his talent today will find himself, at last, shamed and empty-handed, who uses it will be numbered among the fortunate, the faithful and the good.—Atlanta, Georgia Journal.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

"ADHESIONS"

Many of my lady patients have had, at one time or another, an operation for disease within the abdominal cavity. Removal of tumors, diseased ovaries or appendices—these operations involve exploration within the body, and, frequently leave after the most skilled surgery—adhesions.

"Have I adhesions?" The question has been asked of me many times. Well, if your bodily functions are performed naturally, you need not worry. Constipation after an operation for appendicitis does not necessarily mean that the bowel is bound down by an adhesion. Yes, an adhesion is the growing together of structures in the abdomen that should not grow together. I have seen many cases of "adhesion" from the rupture—and later recovery—of an abscess of the tube or ovary, that ran its course without operation.

Bowel-walls and peritoneal surfaces grow together very quickly under certain contacts by ruptures or forced pressure. Where a very marked stricture of the intestinal canal is produced, it may be necessary to re-open the abdomen and release the band closure.

It is a very serious error to conclude that a masseur or hand manipulator can break loose adhesions—whether real or imaginary; my particular field of work puts me in contact with many "drugless physicians." Rarely should a surgical abdomen be subjected to hand manipulation, and even then, the display of "elbow grease" marks the ingnoramus who is capable of doing serious injury.

A few minor adhesions cause only slight pain; it is only those that narrow the caliber of the bowel and interfere with normal evacuations that need the attention of your careful physician.

PICCARD . . . up he goes

Professor Piccard has been higher above the earth than anyone else ever went and came back. He thinks he can go even higher to explore the stratosphere.

If the Professor went high enough, beyond the layers of gases which travel with the earth in its revolutions, he could stand still in space and let the earth revolve under him, coming down thousands of miles from where he went up. He would have to go at least sixty miles up, however, instead of ten, and even then his balloon would still be within the range of the earth's attraction and would travel with it.

It is not beyond the realm of possibility, however, that travelers of the future, wanting to get to the other side of the world in a hurry, may just go up a hundred miles or so and let the earth move under them at the rate of a thousand miles an hour until the spot they want to reach is under them. That sounds fantastic now, but no more so than any kind of air navigation sounded a hundred years ago.

MARCONI another achievement

Senatore Guglielmo Marconi, the inventor of wireless telegraphy, announces that he has been successful in developing an ultra-short radio wave which follows the curvature of the earth.

Marconi, unlike some other inventors, has always been careful in his public statements. He never announces that he has something until he has actually tried and proved it, and he never makes predictions unless he knows they are going to come true very soon. This new discovery is of importance because it means that the part in the standard above now in use.

ODD—BUT TRUE

"As a result," my friend continued, "Japan is getting larger orders for silk than she has had for years and the price is going up. And because of the prospect for this additional revenue, Japan's military party is making plans to go ahead with the conquest of Manchuria, for which there was not enough money available a few months ago."

The idea that any one nation can stand alone is as unsound as it is dangerous.

TELEVISION . . . on its way

One of the experts of the Bell Laboratories, who is working on the problem of television, told me the other day that he thought scientists and engineers are getting very close to the day when it will be possible for anybody to see the person one is talking with over the telephone. It is being done now, as a laboratory demonstration, and the problem is to reduce the cost.

As for radio television, broadcasting on a screen events actually in progress, that is a long way yet. It would be interesting if anybody who had a proper receiving set could see the next Olympic Games without having to travel across a continent or an ocean to do so. Nobody who has even a glimmering of what is going on in the research laboratories is willing to say today that anything is impossible.

Mother of 7—Still Young

This woman who gives her children the right stimulant need not worry about growing old. Her system doesn't stagnate; her face doesn't age. She has the health and "pop" that come from a lively liver and strong, active bowels. When you're sluggish and the system needs help, don't take a lot of "patent medicines." There's a famous doctor's prescription for just such cases, and every druggist keeps this standard preparation. It is made from fresh laxative herbs, active salts, and pure pepsin. Just take a little every day or so, until every organ in your body feels the big improvement. The next time you have a bilious headache, or feel all bound-up, take this famous syrup instead of the usual cathartic. You'll be rid of all that poisonous waste, and you haven't weakened the bowels. You'll have a better appetite, and feel better in every way. The constant use of cathartics is often the cause of a sallow complexion and lines in the face. And so unnecessary! Would you like to break yourself of the cat'artic habit? At the same time building health and vigor that protects you from frequent sick spells, headaches, and colds? Get a big bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin today. Use often enough to avoid those attacks of constipation. When you feel weak and run-down or a coated tongue or bad breath warns you the bowels need to be stimulated. Give it to children instead of strong laxatives that sap their strength. It isn't expensive.

Dr. Young Starts 19th Test in Crockett Co.

Dr. J. D. Young, president of the Trans-Texas Oil Company, Inc., spudded in his nineteenth Crockett County test last week. The new test is the No. 1 Shannon Estate, 330 feet from the north and west lines of section 35, block 1, G. C. & S. F. R. R. Co. survey. It is scheduled to the big lime and the pay horizon is expected around 2,450 feet.

Dr. Young has sold two spreads near the test to two major companies. It is a quarter of a mile northwest of the first hole he put down in Crockett County in 1923, which had 220 feet of saturation in the lime encountered at 2,245 feet. Two shots, however, failed to make the well produce commercially.

Why Do You Trade With FLOWERS GROCERY?

One customer told another, and that one told us that the reason he traded here was, "That I am never worried about getting gypped. I know that all weights will be correct and tickets added straight." We appreciate that tribute to our attempt to treat every one alike—with fairness to all.

Of course, being human we do make mistakes, but we are always glad to correct any errors.

$10 CASH PRIZES

We have something that you can't get at every store. Two weeks from now we will give a Five dollar bill for the best letter on "Why I Trade at Flowers Grocery." Then, to give the Nos an even break—another five to the person who writes the best letter on "Why I Do Not Trade at Flowers Grocery." Your name will not be published with the letter if you so desire.
