YOU CAN'T GET SOMETHING FOR NOTHING

Marshall News: It's an easy matter to humbug all of us. And the farmer is no exception. Just now he's receiving bonuses raised through the processing tax. The checks look good, and the farmer, in many instances, thinks he is just that much ahead. But when he goes to buy a sack of oats he does not realize that he pays the Government 80 cents on that sack. But he does. When he buys a sack of corn meal that he used to get for 25 cents he finds it's costing him 59 cents if he buys it on bargain days. When he buys feed for his cattle he finds the processing tax or something else has increased the price from 50 per cent to 100 per cent. Before the processing tax he could buy good flour, 24-pound sack, for 60 cents. Now we notice on bargain days he can get it for $1.09. Formerly when he was short on meat he could get two pounds of pork chops for a quarter. Yesterday we paid 31 cents for one pound.

One mill and elevator company here in East Texas paid the United States Government more than a half million dollars in processing taxes last year. Probably 80 per cent of this mill's product is sold to farmers. It's easy to see that Jones pays the freight, we will find if we look closely enough. Every time a farmer buys a sack of meal or flour he pays for the processing tax on cotton. And every yard of cotton goods his women folks buy, there is the processing tax.

It takes pretty hard work to get something for nothing. Mr. and Mrs. Beeler Brown are moving to the H. O. Word home today.

Retired Militia Officer Seized Reins Of Government Of Province of Texas Only To Be Ousted After Brief Reign

Bexar Archives Reveal Progress Of Moves In Frontier Province

By Mrs. Mattie Austin Hatcher, Bexar Archivist University of Texas Library

AUSTIN, Texas, July 31—Even while Don Manuel de Salcedo, governor of the Province of Texas, was holding a council of war to prevent the spread of the revolution into Texas, Juan Bautista de las Casas, a retired militia officer, was plotting against him. By the afternoon of January 21, 1811, the majority of the troops of San Antonio had been won over by the conspirator and, at midnight on January 21, Casas, with a few men, surprised the general headquarters and captured the officers in command. Thereupon the non-commissioned officers and privates at once joined the rebel leader. At the head of these troops Casas then marched to the governor's headquarters. In a last effort to rally his forces, Governor Salcedo had retired to the barracks of the reserve forces. Casas pursued and captured him there; and, by the morning of January 22, 1811, he was in complete command of the Province of Texas.

After having arrested Salcedo, Herrera, and other officers, one of his first official acts was to confiscate the property of all Europeans. Next, he issued a proclamation explaining his actions. He claimed that he had taken over the government because Governor Salcedo was planning to retreat toward the United States, leaving the province in the hands of the advancing hordes of Hidalgo. Casas urged the soldiers to fight for their religion, for their king and for their country.

Original Copy Quoted An original copy of the proclamation, dated January 23, 1811, found in the Bexar Archives in the Library of The University of Texas, reads as follows:

"Loyal residents of this capital: Your governor has deserted you! You saw his family and baggage leaving. You were not ignorant of the preparations that all the other leaders were making to run away. All other Europeans found no other recourse than to follow them. Is it honorable for the leaders who were in command over us to desert us without, at least, deciding in council who should take charge of the command of the troops and the residents? The object of their arrest has been to safeguard interests which these Europeans have abandoned. To this end, inventories have been made in due legal form; thus we shall be protected from any unfortunate results.

"Do not think that Europeans have been arrested in order that they may be deprived of their property; our holy religion is opposed to robbing, as you well know.

"Perhaps some of you have heard, sometime during the previous three days, that the object of our leaders was to take us to the frontier and put up fortifications on the Colorado River or some other suitable place. Would not that be shameful flight? Would not that be to abandon your families and your property? Would not that be an act of cowardice? Let us wait for the enemy here. If there is such an enemy, then our arms will be used until the last drop of our blood is shed in defense of our holy religion, of our king and sovereign, (may God country, which we respect.

"Soldiers, what are you going to say? Aren't you going to oppose all enemies of God, the king and our country? Won't you go at the head of the columns in order to conquer them or to die rather than to be considered cowardly? In all of you I see the same expression of the greatest enthusiasm and patriotism for the just cause. I have learned through experience to have great confidence in you. Remain united, for such is the request of a leader who has placed himself at your head in order to quiet the fears of a rebellion against you.

Suave Talk Fails

"You may have the satisfaction and assurance of knowing that your families and your property will not be molested. We are defending your property and your homes. Do not get alarmed; calm yourselves. Let each one continue in the fulfillment of his respective duties.

"If those who proclaim that they are our enemies attempt to make us adopt views other than those given us by our parents, we shall fight them until death, rather than make a shameful flight.

"The honor of the arms of our monarch, since it is a matter of great importance, must be upheld with the greatest splendor even at the cost of our own blood. Whoever fails to do so—thereby failing in his duties as a loyal subject—shall suffer, without recourse, the penalty which he deserves for such a crime.

"In order that this proclamation may reach every one, it shall be published by the town crier in this capital and copies of it shall be posted on the two corners of the main plaza and at the guard house of the provincial military quarters for the information of all the towns people and the garrison.

In spite of this patriotic speech, Casas immediately attempted to get in touch with Hidalgo and his army. In addition to arresting all the Europeans and confiscating their property, he reorganized the army and placed his favorites in command. Disorganization and tyranny worse than that alleged to exist under the Spaniards soon developed. Besides strong opposition began to develop.

There was a very powerful Creole family living in San Antonio by the name of Zambrano. One of the members happened to be away on a ranch in the vicinity. He was immediately summoned and asked to take the lead in curbing Casas' activities. This man, Juan Manuel Zambrano, who was to become the most outstanding leader of the period, at once hurried to San Antonio and took up the cudgels in favor of the old order of things. He soon reorganized a counter-revolution and, on March 2, 1811, dealt the Casas regime its death blow.

Retail Sales For First Half 1935 Show Slight Gain

AUSTIN, Tex., July 31—Reports from 93 department and specialty stores in Texas indicate an average increase in dollar sales during June of 4.4 per cent over June a year ago but a decline of 12.1 per cent from the previous month, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. The average decline is 14.5 per cent.

"Sales during the first six months of the year averaged 3.5 per cent above those of the corresponding period last year," the Bureau's report said.

"The different types of stores varied considerably in relation to the two comparable periods. Men's clothing stores made the best showing followed in order by women's specialty shops, large department stores, small department stores and dry goods-apparel stores.

"Cities in which sales for June and the first six months show more than the average increase over the corresponding periods last year are: Austin, Dallas, El Paso, San Antonio, Temple, and Tyler."

SOVIET MARRIAGE

Fort Worth Star-Telegram: As a result of the Soviet's decision to restore the institution of marriage to something of its former solidity under the law, a curious thing is happening at Moscow.

The divorce officials are being flooded with applications for sun-dering of the loose ties which characterized the Soviet "reform" marriage. Out of every 100 marriages in Moscow in 1934, 37 resulted in separations, which can be had in Russia for the asking. During May of this year the rate rose to 44 out of every 100.

The increase, which continues, is due to the fact that those who are not agreeably mated are hustling to get loose before the new and more stringent marriage law comes into existence. The status of children, bad under the present law, is bringing about the change in law.

It is interesting to note that the very young couples in Russia are not resorting to divorce. Divorces are most numerous between the ages of 23 and 30.

Hospitality of Mexican People and Charm of the Land Impresses Ozona Correspondent on Tour of Republic

Many Spots of Interest May Be Visited On Way To Capital

EDITOR'S NOTE—Bill Gray, Ozona staff correspondent, accompanied Dr. and Mrs. A. Grandy to Mexico City last week to attend the International Convention of Lions Clubs, sends the following word of his trip from Laredo to the Mexican capital. The letter was mailed by air mail Monday last week, but did not reach Ozona until Saturday.

MEXICO CITY, D. F., July 24—The land of enchantment, the antiquity of the centuries, the rugged mountain and tropical villages and forms a cloak of magic over every scenic vista where Popo keeps company in the Sleeping Lady, the current summer is the attraction of Americanists.

International Rotarian convention which closed at this city a few weeks ago brought thousands of visitors from the United States into the land of Montezuma. The Lions International convention is in progress and more than four thousand people from Montreal to Cuba and from Blyn to Waikiki are drinking in the fiesta repast offered during the four days of convention. The city in its finest fiesta appears to the City of more than one million people presents to the visitor a picture of contrasts in multiple spots of interest. As one may, he can not partake of all the offerings of the Mexican metropolis. There is too much to be seen, too many beautiful things to be witnessed in a scant week or ten days.

Hospitable People
The stay of a few days in an entire not to be forgotten in the time and in the same period will not forget the graciousness of the officials of the government and the people themselves.

Travelers entering into Mexico at the port of entry, Nueva Laredo, along the Pan American highway of fancy along the journey to the citadel of Mexico, Mexico City which is over seven hundred miles from the Rio Grande gateway.

Travelers who have invaded the city mode of the railway, feel they have been dropped magnet-fashion into a glorious metropolis which can be compared to Chicago because of its innovations and can be likened to some far away Persian city because of the strange spectacles.

tacles, the multiplicity of odd customs, the dazzling haciendas, funny looking hogans and jacals where native Indians live and because of the provoking mystery of centuries old cathedrals.

Invading Mexico for pure delight in its scenic splendor and for catching a glimpse of its variety of peoples, one must go the way of the Pan American highway to give their purpose fullest realization.

Night In Monterey

Until one has spent a night in Monterey, journeyed by car thru the jungles, traversed the rivers by ferry, witnessed a tropical rainfall at Valles, dropped to four-hundred feet in the tropical lowlands and climbed to nine thousand feet in the mountains above the clouds and seen the native Indian by his hogan, adobe and jacal into which he has woven the fan palm for roof over the bamboo rafters, then one has not seen Mexico.

Passport in pocket and three and one half times more pesos in the wallet than one had dollars, one leaves Nueva Laredo and travels westward and south from the entry port along a straight stretch of highway for forty-miles without altering the course. Here is the Rio Grande country, cactus, sotol and greasewood. Monterey is 150 miles from Laredo.

A night in Monterey is not to be traded for one hundred nights in the average American city. Walled patios, narrow streets, veiled women and strange looking shops set the imagination to wonder. A room is secured at one of the downtown homes and the tourist's room opens to a beautiful patio where odd little birds in cages chatter and where long fronds of ferns reach out to clasp hands with the tall paupau tree. A great part of Mexican life is new revealed to the tourist in the privilege of spending a night inside the walled casa and breathing the fragrant scent of the patio garden.

Students Demonstrate

The tourist is fortunate. He meets Antonio Luger, who is a mechanic and resides in a room across the patio. Antonio is not tired and he walks with the tourist to the plaza and here they see the grand promenade—a spectacle that holds all the charm that has been said of it. Then the tourist is treated to a demonstration—the Congress of Students is in session in Monterey and socialistic students have chartered about fifteen buses and they drive them up and down the street, chiding students of the congress. There is no bloodshed as officers keep the two forces moving along. Two days before, two students of the congress have been killed by a radical student, Governor Garredo Canabal, the "Hot Pepper of Tabasco," has been linked with the killing. Students and agrarians of Mexico do not like the cannibal of Tabasco. Antonio goes into the politics of his country. He talks of Calles, Cardenas, who is the present president, of Senor Canabal and his red shirts and of the future of Mexico. The country is in a transition stage and Antonio hopes for its future. Antonio bids you good night in the patio and you sleep delightfully in the casa in Monterey and a melody goes through your mind, "It happened in Monterey, in Old Mexico." You sleep long and pleasantly.

Monterey is behind. Now the tourist is in the jungles. A large ant bear bounds from the dense roadside and is hit by the car. A merciful death is administered and the tourist, regretful, drives on. Jungles, densely woven vegetation stretches ahead. The night is spent in Valles, tropical Valles a few hundred feet above sea level. The tropical rainfall comes down with a roaring noise. Early the next morning the tourist leaves Valles. He crosses four rivers by ferry and at each place bridges are being erected across the stream. Natives are bathing and at one river, not a hundred yards from the ferry, a native man is bathing unclothed and watching tourists as they are towed across the river on ferry. The Indians are unashamed.

Lunch at Tamazunchale (Thomas 'n Charley). Now the sixty miles of precariously stretched ribbon of road along the backbone range of Mexico. Now and then the tape of road leads the tourist to seven thousand feet and the clouds are below. But the grandeur of the deep green mountains is not to become boring but more enchanting as one winds deeper and higher into the range. Magay plants, corn and cane grow at mountain levels of more than forty-five degrees. Soon the tourist is in the coniferous growth and now and then he is stopped while the highway workers clear away a landslide.

Pachuca, "King Midas" of the entire world. Here, one sixth of the silver of the world is brought from the earth and smeltered in the American Smelting and Refining Company. The smelter is four-hundred years old.

Senor Pedrol Gil, shop owner and part owner of Pachuca's leading hostelry, stops his work (it is Sunday) and shows the tourist through the plant. Mine shafts are all around the plant and a terminal may be entered which penetrates the mountains side and continues in length for thirty-five miles, connecting every mine in the vicinity at some level. Three-hundred pounds of silver are filtered out from the plant every day.

Senor Gil is a gracious Castilian Born in Granada, Spain, he has been in Mexico fifteen years and has made good. His brothers reside in Spain. He invites the tourist to his hotel for a serving of imported wine and says adieu after inviting the tourist back to Pachuca.

ated in November last year. The theatre auditorium with triple balcony, is the gem of the structure. The curtain, made of glass, was produced by Tiffany and Company at a cost of $47,000. It is embellished with gold and has upon it the painting of Mount Popo and the Sleeping Lady. Shaded lights from behind give the effect of an evening view of the two peaks through a grailed window. On looking upon the scene for a few minutes, you have fallen into the optical illusion of looking through a huge window on Mexico's holy mountains which are supposed to guard it from the skies.

Splendor Marks Opening

The grand opening of the Lions International Convention was marked with military splendor, a guard of honor forming lines about the entrance way and an army detachment standing at attention on the street facing the Palace. Inside, picked military guard stood at attention, and in the theatre guards in full military dress surrounded the auditorium. Five flags of the member nations, Canada, United States, Cuba, Hawaii and Mexico were escorted to the stage at the grand opening while the Mexican military band played marching accompaniment. News reel cameramen and news photographers crowded the auditorium for shots of the opening formality.

Among the offerings on the program are nightly functions at the Foreign and other exclusive night clubs, a bull fight in the Plazo de Toros, presidential ball Wednesday night, a trip to the Aztec pyramids, visit of the city by motor and other functions.

Among the magic spots of the city are the Castle of Chapultepec, which crowns a rocky eminence where Montezuma once lived and the home of emperors, viceroys and presidents since before Maximilian and Charlotte, the Palacios de Bellas Artes (Palace of Fine Arts), the Mexican Cathedral, the finest in America and erected in 1563. Inside, doric columns support dome ceilings and naves, chapels and altars are profuse in jeweled and artistic decorations. There is no end to the spots of magic land in Mexico City. The National Museum is a book in itself, the Column of Independence is as colorful as our Statute of Liberty. The National Palace is more than a palace, with sentinels marching before its many entrances at all hours.

Above all, the color of the city is outstanding. Fiesta apparel is especially in display during the convention but residents say that the gaudy dress of the Mexican is everyday style. Sombreros, tight fitting trousers with bright buttons down the legs, natives with baskets, buckets and what-not on their heads, blond German residents dressed in the latest metropolitan fashions, these all lend attractive tint to the color of the city.

"City of Eternal Spring," as it is called, and hailed as one of the three most beautiful cities in the world, Mexico City is a treasure house of the ages where the most fanciful lore may become reality in any of its byways.

LETTERS From Readers

Dear Sir:

"Recently there appeared in your paper an article written by Julian Capers, Jr., of Austin, Texas, which is so inaccurate and misleading that I think it should be answered. It is immaterial what he thinks or says about me, but it is important that this propaganda, which is designed to hurt the great cause that my bill represents, should be exposed. This article seems to be a part of a well planned and highly financed scheme to propagandize the country in opposition to my bill. I have heretofore secured possession of canned editorials and I have a letter from the International Migration Service, with headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, which was sent to all cooperating agencies urging them to influence Members of Congress and to get favorable material in local newspapers.

"Since my bill is essential to stop the millions of aliens who are ready and anxious to enter the United States and to get rid of the thousands of gangsters, racketeers and other criminals that have infested this country, I feel it my duty to expose every type of propaganda which will injure the cause.

"Mr. Capers derisively mentions the fact that I wrote an article which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, a Republican magazine. While it is true that I am perhaps the only member of Congress who was requested to write a special article for this magazine, it is also true that the Democratic Members of the Cabinet have written articles recently for the same magazine, and Mr. Capers might as well cast aspersions on Attorney General Cummings for writing in this magazine as to create the impression by innuendo that there is something sinister about the article which I wrote. As a matter of fact, the Saturday Evening Post calls upon Democrats and Republicans to write articles upon subjects of National importance, concerning which the author is a recognized authority. The reckless statement made by Mr. Capers that I made a radio speech on a network program sponsored by a Republican newspaper in Washington demonstrates the character of propaganda that is now being used against me and my bill. I never made a radio speech at any time that was sponsored by any newspaper. I did make a radio speech under the auspices of more than 100 patriotic societies and organizations, with such people as the official heads of the Americanization Committee of the American Legion and veterans of Foreign Wars upon the program committee. These organizations are nationwide and are strictly non-partisan, with both Democrats and Republicans in their membership. Mr. Capers' statement that, "His speeches have frightened some ignorant aliens, to the extent that the U. S. Immigration office in principal cities have felt called upon to issue reassuring statements," is like wise untrue. It is true that Commissioner McCormack, contrary to the law, sent statements to the immigration officers and instructed them to get such statements in the newspapers. These statements were misleading, as I have shown, and even newspapers, such as the Houston Chronicle, who opposed my bill, denounced Colonel McCormack for using the government employees to disseminate his arguments against my bill.

"As a matter of fact, Colonel McCormack and the Labor Department have always opposed my bill, and have sponsored the Kerr Bill. This Kerr bill has the support of all anti-restriction forces and foreign societies, and if it is passed will go a long way in nullifying and destroying our naturalization and deportation laws. Now I am willing to meet anyone in the open in a frank discussion of the merits of my bill. I concede that everyone has a right to his own opinion, but I deny that it is fair for Mr. Capers to take advantage of the splendid newspapers of Texas by slyly inserting the propaganda of the foreign societies and the anti-restriction forces unless he is willing to state who is financing his activities.

"His statement in connection with my radio speech that "His press agents sowed down Texas newspapers with flattering notices and an unflattering photo in advance of the speech" is a reflection on the splendid newspapers who cooperated with these patriotic societies in this radio program. There was no press agent connected with this program, and Mr. Capers' statement is an unwarranted affront to these great patriotic orders, whose only interest is to preserve the principles of Americanism and to combat the un-American doctrines that are flooding our country.

"When I entered this fight, I knew that there were many powerful forces that would oppose me and would seek to misrepresent my views and motives, and to raise religious and radical issues. Ever since the first fight was made for restriction, this has been the strategy of the opposition, with a view of deceiving the people and drawing a red herring across the trail. Running true to form, they are doing the same thing now on a larger scale. When I get through with this fight, I will show conditions that will startle this Nation. The gigantic smuggling and racketeering in connection with illegal entry of aliens, the wholesale dumping of criminals and other undesirable aliens upon our shores and the millions of aliens that are holding jobs and, in many instances, voting, will be a revelation to all citizens whether of native or foreign stock, naturalized or native born, whose first allegiance is to this, our country. With no numerical restriction against immigration from the Western Hemisphere, and with a mere handful of men to patrol the thousands of miles of our borders, and with our immigration and deportation laws wholly inadequate, unless something is done in the near future, we will be over-run in the next decade with millions of undesirable aliens.

"I have at all times made it clear that my bill is not based upon religious or radical prejudice, and is not aimed directly or indirectly at the foreign stock American citizens and the naturalized citizens. In fact, it is distinctly in their interest.

"I know that the policy of your paper is to be absolutely fair and to give your readers both sides of every question, and I am appealing to you to publish this letter in the interest of justice and fairness. I do not ask this for myself, because I am unimportant in this controversy, but for the sake of the great cause which I represent, and which is of tremendous importance to the American people.

"When all the facts come to light, it will be found that my figures in reference to the number of aliens in this country, will be too small, and that instead of seven million aliens being here, there will be a larger number.

"I regret that Senator Shepard's name has been linked with this alien propaganda, and I feel sure that he will repudiate this statement as soon as it is called to his attention, and disavow any sympathy or connection with this effort to discredit and defeat my bill.

"With kindest regards and best wishes, I am Sincerely yours, Martin Dies.

Motorists Learn Ways Of Saving Gas By Booklet

Gulf Agent Says Stockman Ads Making Users Saving-Wise

It has been a regular service of the Stockman to restore lost dogs, watches, wallets and whatnots to anxious owners. But today our attention is called to the fact that we have helped find something which the owners did not know they had lost.

"Thanks to the Stockman," says D. I. Taylor, local representative of the Gulf Refining Company, "a multitude of motorists have found that they have been losing gallons of good gasoline without realizing it—just as surely as if there were a leak in the gasoline tank!"

Mr. Taylor refers to the result of a series of advertisements recently placed in the Stockman by his company, offering all motorists the new free booklet, "15 Ways to Save Gasoline Money."

"Soon after the offer appeared in your paper, motorists began to flock to our filling stations to claim their copies of the booklet, and the original supply had to be renewed. An enthusiastic demand for them continues," Mr. Taylor states.

Among the 15 simple, money-saving hints illustrated in the attractive little Gulf booklet is a pertinent pointer on parking. It explains, to the surprise of most motorists, that a car figuratively "burns up gas" even when it is parked, depending upon where and how you park it. Other hints in the booklet that materially increase mileage-per-gallon deal with proper use of the self-starter, accelerator; gear shifting and other ordinary operations in driving, any one of which wastes quantities of gasoline, if carelessly done.

Titled "15 Ways to Save Gasoline Money," the booklet is free for the asking at all Gulf service stations and dealers.

Care in Selecting Stock Serums Urged

Ranchmen, if you are going to vaccinate your stock for Black Leg, or Hemorrhagic Septicemia, you should use a Tried and Proven Serum, prepared by a Reputable Pharmaceutical House, by employees who do nothing but study Bacterial Organism, and the effect upon disease germs, doing all the experimenting in their laboratories, and not in your animal, and absolutely no product will leave until it has been thoroughly tested.

If you were going to build a nice residence, it would be absurd to figure with a Druggist, or a Doctor to build it, but it is a similar experiment, to use a Serum prepared by someone who has recently taken up this study as a side line, and who knows less about your herd than you do yourself.

There is very little if any Hemorrhagic Septicemia in this locality, and you would be wasting time and money to vaccinate for it, even though you are using the best, unless your animal has some of the following symptoms: DROOPINESS, LOSS OF APPETITE, SLOBBERING, HIGH TEMPERATURE, NERVOUSNESS, INCREASED RESPIRATION, OR GASTRO INTESTINAL DISTURBANCE.

YOUR LOCAL DRUGGISTS CARRY NOTHING BUT THE BEST AND ASK YOU LESS FOR IT THAN YOU WILL PAY FOR A WORTHLESS PREPARATION.

NEWLYWEDS ARE HONORED AT DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. Miller Robison, newlyweds, were complimented with a dinner given last Friday evening by Mrs. Hugh Childress and Mrs. Ele Hagelstein at the Childress home here.

Guests for the dinner included besides the honored couple, Miss Dorothy Henderson, Joe Sellers Pierce, Miss Willie V. Coose, James Baggett, Miss Esther Kate Pierce, Dempster Jones, Miss Vicky Pierce and Jake Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. George Elliott of Abilene, brother-in-law and sister of Mrs. John Bowers of this city, are here visiting the Bowers this week-end. Mr. and Mrs. Bowers and their daughter, Barbara, and Mr. and Mrs. Elliott plan to leave Sunday on a week's vacation trip to Houston, Galveston, San Antonio and other points.

Mrs. T. A. Kincaid, Jr., is home from San Angelo where she had gone to have an infected foot healed. She will return in about two weeks for an operation.

ALVIN HARRELL HOSTS AT BRIDGE

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Harrell were hosts to their contract bridge club Thursday night, eight tables of guests and members being present.

Prizes for high score in the club were won by Miss Mildred North and Ralph Jones while those for guests went to Mrs. Lowell Littleton and Brooks Jobe. Cut trophies were won by Mrs. Ele Hagelstein and Carl Dorley.

In the afternoon, Mrs. Harrell entertained Las Amigas Club and included a number of additional guests, the affair being given at the Hotel Ozona. Mrs. R. L. Flowers won the high score prize in the club and Mrs. H. B. Tandy, that for guests. The cut award went to Mrs. Winston Newberry.
