OZONA GIANTS TAKE ONE OF TWO THRILLERS

Locals Grab Sunday's Game After Two Out In Last Of 9th

IRAAN WON SAT. 6-5

Tying Run Clipped Off One Step From Plate In First Game

Any baseball fan gets a big thrill when his favorite team wins a game, but when that same favorite team wins the game in a last minute flash, after two men are out in the last half of the ninth inning, coming from behind to sack the contest—that's counted as the greatest thrill a real lover of the great American game can imagine.

Such a thrill was furnished partisans of the Ozona Giants in the thrill-packed final game of a two-game series over the week-end with the Iraan nine as opponents.

Saturday's game on the local lot, the season opener on the home ground, almost furnished the same super thrill, a last-half-of-the-ninth rally in that case failing when the tying run was nipped just one step from the coveted home bag. Saturday's game ended 6 to 5 in favor of the visitors.

The Sunday thriller was nearly the same story, but with a different ending. With Iraan leading 1 to 0 since the second frame, prospects looked gloomy for local fans when the Giants came up for their last batting chance in the ninth and Brown, first up, struck out, and Dorley followed him to a blazing liner that Dorley crashed square at him.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE

Dallas Journal: For the second time this year, murder has drawn a suspended sentence in Dallas. Without going into the case as jurists do, it is impossible to say dogmatically that in both instances the verdict is wrong. But in the latest case the defendant appears not to have denied the killing, but to have pleaded insanity brought on by the consumption of poisonous whiskey. That would seem to give some sort of basis for determining the worth of the jury's services in the cause of protecting life in Dallas.

Thus far there have been six murders in Dallas in 1935. Not a single defendant out of these six slayings has gone to the electric chair. Two defendants have been turned loose, as free as air, with suspended sentences. This sort of thing has been going on for a long time in Dallas. Of course murder is rampant here. We had 85 killings last year. Dallas is one of the most unsafe cities in America today.

Juries ought not to have the duty of determining the severity of the penalty. They should say "guilty" or "not guilty"—and let the judge do the rest. We ought to change our law to arrange it that way.

A SENATOR'S RETORT

Much favorable press comment has been accorded Oklahoma's blind Senator, Thomas P. Gore, because of his courageous and spirited reply to certain of his constituents who threatened him with political vengeance if he did not vote for the $4,850,000,000 work relief bill.

Aside from any consideration of the merits of the bill itself, the Senator's retort is worthy of repetition. He said:

"This will acknowledge your exceedingly diplomatic and hospitable telegram. It shows how the dole spoils the soul. Your telegram intimates that your votes are for sale. Much as I value votes, I'm not in the market; I cannot consent to buy votes with the people's money.

"I owe a debt to the taxpayers as well as the unemployed. I shall discharge both. None but the bully resorts to threats and none but the coward yields to them."

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

BY JULIAN CAPERS JR.

AUSTIN, April 30—Way back in September, 1934, following a meeting of the Texas Centennial commission at which some fancy politics was played, a banker member of the commission from Dallas remarked that "There isn't going to be any politics in this Centennial." "It is a great patriotic enterprise, and politics has no part in it," he said.

Today the inaccuracy of his statement is being borne home forcibly on that commissioner and his colleagues.

After the most hectic political battle in Texas' legislative history raging through three sessions, the Centennial bill finally has passed both houses. But, as passed, it left the Centennial commission out on the tip end of a limb. The three million dollars appropriated will be spent by the newly created commission of control of nine members—the governor, lieutenant governor and speaker serving ex-officio, the governor naming three members, the lieutenant governor and speaker two each. The commission, with no money to spend, is holding the bag.

And the end is not yet in sight, so far as politics in the Centennial is concerned. Gov. Jimmie Allred, to the astonishment of all observers, announced he would withhold his signature to the bill until he had "studied it carefully." He intimated he might not sign the bill, because the legislature has failed to pass any of his revenue-raising measures. This notwithstanding the fact he submitted the matter to the legislature as emergency legislation, and urged its passage.

So the poor old Centennial political football received another hefty boot. Friends of the governor are puzzled at his action. Nobody thinks that he believes he can bluff the legislature by his move; nobody thinks he will eventually do anything but sign the bill. Immediate signing would have brought him the good will of thousands of patriotic men and women all over Texas who have labored long and arduously for the Centennial. His delay will not befriend enemies of the bill, and will only generate coolness on the part of those who favor it, even though he signs it later.

Austin observers, who have developed a profound respect for the political acumen of Gov. Allred, were pointing this week-end to his Centennial bill action as an important political miscue, which may have large bearing upon his future political career. At any rate, the governor's action seems to prove there hasn't been much else but politics in the Centennial up to date.

Discussion of the governor's political future has opened up the whole field of state political speculation a full year in advance of next summer's political wars. Gov. Allred's recent visit to Washington to oppose federal oil control has revived talk that he is going to oppose U. S. Sen. Morris Sheppard for re-election. Lobby gossip here names these others as probable starters in this race: Rep. Joe Eagle, who has already announced; Rep. Martin Dies, who appears to be campaigning among cotton farmers; Guy Fisher of San Augustine, who polled less than 50,000 votes against Sen. Tom Connolly, and has announced against Sheppard, and possibly Rep. Wright Patman of Texarkana although Washington advices indicate Patman seems to have cooled off somewhat since his bonus bill in congress hasn't fared so well.

If Allred runs for the senate, Speaker Coke Stevenson of Junction; Atty. Gen. Bill McGraw of Dallas and Rail Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson of Amarillo are regarded as certain starters in the gubernatorial sweepstakes, and Tom Hunter may run again. Lieut. Gov. Walter Woodul of Houston and Clyde E. Smith of Woodville, now assistant secretary of state, will likely bid for the attorney generalship. Buford Jester of Corsicana, lawyer and University regent, is said to be contemplating making the race to succeed Woodul as lieutenant governor, if Woodul doesn't seek re-election. He probably will have several rivals from the ranks of the senate.

Harry Hines of Wichita Falls, new chairman of the state highway commission, plans no basic changes in highway policies, he has assured his friends. He will go after additional federal highway allotments vigorously, and continue the department's policy of connecting cardinal routes thru-out the state. Privately, Hines has said he will seek to make two important changes of policy, however. One will be to decentralize operations of the highway commission, holding hearings and possibly contract lettings in various sections of the state, so that citizens and contractors seeking to do business with the commission will not have to travel hundreds of miles to Austin frequently. He will also endeavor to soften up the attitude of the highway engineers in their relations with the public, and make them realize they are the servants of the people. The district engineers have considerable authority, in their respective territories, and they have sometimes fallen into the common engineering fault of being somewhat "hard-boiled" with the public. Hines would like to eliminate this attitude.

Big Spring Cattle Feeding Experiment To Close On May 10

A steer feeding experiment running 180 days at the United States Experiment Station, Big Spring, will close on May 10 and the record made by the animals on feed will be announced, according to J. M. Jones, Chief, Division Range Animal Husbandry, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, under whose direction the tests have been conducted cooperatively by the Federal and State stations.

While this is the eighth test conducted at the Big Spring Station, it is the first in Texas in which steers have been fed individually, which speeds up the results. Twenty steers were fed individually, the type and quality of each having been carefully recorded at the beginning of the experiment. They were fed identically the same rations excepting that the amount fed varied according to the appetite of the animal. In comparison with these twenty steers another comparable twenty head were group-fed in the usual manner and on the same feeds as the individual steers re-possible to determine somewhat the influence that certain type and quality in the animal may have upon the economy of gains made, a thing entirely impossible in group feeding. The cattle were bred by E. B. Dickinson, of Stanton, Texas, and some outstanding individuals were included in the group.

It is expected that a representative of the packing houses will attend the closing of the tests to place valuations on the steers as they leave the feed lot and to advise stockmen attending the meeting as to market preferences for killer cattle. Mr. Jones will, in addition to discussing the current experiment, give a brief history of the feeding experiments that have been underway at the Big Spring Station for the past eight years. George Bond of the Big Spring Station staff, who personally fed these animals will make a report at the meeting. The meeting will be in charge of Mr. F. E. Keating, superintendent of the Big Spring Station who has devoted much attention to these feeding experiments for the value that they have in providing the best utilization of the large feed crops produced in that section.

Intense Nationalism Flames In Early Texas As France and Spain Plunged Into War; Indian Control Is Factor

Bexar Archives Record Colonial Efforts For Advantage

AUSTIN, Texas, May 1—In March, 1793, life in Texas suddenly took a new turn and Europe seemed instantly to move nearer to the North American continent, for Charles IV of Spain declared war against France. His proclamation, translated from the Bexar Archives in the library of The University of Texas, strikes a decidedly modern note. He stoutly disclaimed responsibility for disturbing the balance of powers in the Old World and cited the anarchy and irreligion in France that forced him to attempt to bring the aggressor to her senses in hopes of avoiding a general conflagration. He, thereupon, issued a ringing call to his loyal subjects to join in bringing the contest to a successful close.

In Texas, nationalism at once flamed up. The Spanish authorities were determined to guard against treachery, the French to hold all commercial gains they had made and to push their explorations further toward New Mexico where rich mines—the sinews of war—were to be found. The line from New Orleans to Santa Fe would have been a boon to Napoleon, who was beginning to dream of a world empire. French traders offered many ingenious plans to this end—none so interesting, perhaps as the proposal of Alexander Dupont, who, having failed a little earlier to gain a favorable hearing from the viceroy, determined to interest the governor of Texas in his far-reaching plan. In a communication dated San Antonio de Bexar, June 8, 1793—now translated from the Bexar Archives at the University—he presented his case thus:

"It would be very wise to keep the Indians of the North in a state of peace, as at present, and to encourage them thereto by the means which I will set forth.

"First, a fort should be established near the village of the Taguayas, protected by a good garrison.

"Second, this fort would keep the Indians of those tribes from coming to the presidios of San Antonio de Bexar and Bahia del Espiritu Santo to steal horses, as in their wont, for the commandant of the said fort would prevent their doing so, or at least would give notice beforehand so that precautionary measures would be taken accordingly. Even if his vigilance was fruitless, at least the guilty ones would be punished by him or by the chiefs of the tribes in case complaints were made to him by the governors of the provinces or by the captains of the Bahia.

"Third, as the aforementioned fort would be at the Taguayas, it could also be used to hold back the Comanches in case they withdrew from the peace treaties they have made in the Province of Texas and those adjoining, for any of their hostilities would be promptly punished by the troops. At the least this fort would keep the Comanches from having any dealings with their allied Indians. In a short time they would be helpless, not being able to get gunpowder, bullets, swords, knives and other necessities for their wars and hunts, for they have not other means of getting them except from the Taguayas, Guachitas and other tribes adjacent to the land where it would be well to build the fort. It is evident that these Indians have always obtained in abundance from the Comanches everything they need.

"Fourth, if the Indians of any tribe—friendly, indifferent, or enemy—should commit any depredation, and, provided the governor of the province or any other official was willing, orders could be given to the commander in charge of the said fort to punish, subdue or restrain the guilty parties, according to the circumstances.

"Fifth, this fort would hold the Guazas in check, and would prevent their entry into the territory of the Province of Texas, and consequently put a stop to their killing of Spanish travellers, traders, and hunters, who would happen to be out, and die at their hands.

"Sixth, it would be wise for the governor of the Province of Texas to give orders to have traders go to the villages of the Comanches; in the first place, to provide them with all those trifles that are so necessary to them in exchange for the pelts which they prepare—a thing which would make them see the advantage of having our friendship. In the second place, the traders would be able to take note of all their movements, and so promptly notify the government of all moves whenever it might be necessary.

"Seventh, it would be a good thing if the presents destined for the Indians should be distributed to them frequently and without fail, so that these Indians may know that the promises given at the time of the peace treaty have been kept. It is well known that these Indians, the first thing, demand a gift from whomever they meet.

"Eighth, beside all the reasons above stated, it should be remembered that a permanent peace with the Indians would be of great advantage. In this way, land in which valuable minerals could be found would be more easily examined for there are a great number of veins to be seen. By this means the royal treasury and the population of that territory would be increased, and the public benefited more by the mines or by the trade and commerce with the Indians.

"Ninth, from all the above reasons, it is evident that the founding of such a fort would be of great service to God and His Majesty. The Indians living in the surrounding country greatly desire this, and perhaps by this means some of them could be won over to our faith. Then later they might even ask for religious instruction. By this means both Majesties would be served.

"This is all I reported to His Excellency, the viceroy, about the importance of protecting the Indians of the north, and holding the friendship they have shown us. I notify you of this for your guidance."

War soon ended but jealousies continued and national ambition persevered. In Texas the next turn of the wheel of fortune was awaited anxiously.

Zeb Boggs dropped by Jeb Hoskin's place one afternoon in hopes of mooching a little liquid refreshment. However, Jeb didn't appear to get the idea and finally Zeb threw out a hint:

"That persimmon beer you made must be gettin' right good by now."

"It's too derned good," Jeb replied. "The blamed stuff puckered up the necks of the bottles and now I can't pour it out."

Livestock Shipments To Market Fall Off, Moves To Grass Up

AUSTIN, TEXAS, April 30—Total forwardings of Texas livestock to the Fort Worth stockyards and to interstate points during March were 3,215 cars, against 3,308 cars in March, 1934, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. Year-to-year comparisons in carload shipments of the different classes of live stock were as follows: Cattle, 2,104 as compared with 2,166; calves, 539 and 419; hogs, 412 and 400 and sheep, 140 and 323. Aggregate shipments during the first three months of the current year were 10,495 cars, against 10,490 cars during the corresponding period last year.

"With the exception of Fort Worth, shipments of cattle to the large markets decreased materially in comparison with last year," the Bureau's report said. "For example, less than half as many Texas cattle went to Los Angeles and only one-seventh as many to Kansas City as were forwarded to these markets in March, 1934. On the other hand, shipments to the grazing areas of California and Arizona showed a phenomenal increase over a year ago. This was probably due to the unfavorable condition of ranges in West Texas and the excellent range conditions in the Pacific Southwest.

"The customary annual migration of Texas cattle to the Flint Hills of Kansas and the Osage country of Oklahoma began in March. Shipments to Oklahoma were twice those of March last year, while those to Kansas were less than half as large. These variations probably reflect the relative condition of ranges in these states during March.

"Shipments exceeded those of March last year from the Trans-Pecos country and South Texas, while substantial declines occurred in forwardings from the High Plains and Low Plains areas of Northwest Texas.

$50 Reward Offered For Dog Poisoners

A reward of $50 for the arrest and conviction of any person who places poison on streets of the City of Kerrville was offered this week by a group of dog lovers.

The reward fund has been placed in the Chas. Schreiner Bank for payment when a conviction has been obtained.

Commenting on the reward offer Tuesday, Mayor Richard Holdsworth said he was heartily in favor of the move to stop the practice of promiscuously throwing poison upon the streets.

"I recognize the rights of ranchmen whose flocks have been attacked by sheep killing dogs," Mayor Holdsworth said. "They have a perfect right to kill dogs on their own premises, but as mayor of the city I am heartily in favor of stiff penalties for those who put out poison on the streets and thus endanger the lives of little children. The stiffest penalties permitted under city ordinances will be meted out to all offenders."—Kerrville Mountain Sun.

Mrs. H. H. Long of Clarinda, Iowa, writes: "Kruschen was recommended to me by my doctor. Weight when starting was 226. Weight now after 3 jars is 208. Doctor says I'm doing fine."

When Kruschen Salts is prescribed by reputable physicians to safely take off fat and greatly improve health—why listen to gossipers who don't want you to be slender? Envious!

Have a mind of your own—get a jar of Kruschen today (lasts 4 weeks and costs but a trifle) Take a half teaspoonful in a cup of hot water every morning—tastes fine with juice of half lemon added. If you don't lose 12 lbs. and feel years younger—money back. Ozona Drug Store sells lots of it. (Adv)

Diphtheria Immunity Stressed As Feature Of Child Health Day

AUSTIN, Texas, April 30—The May Day slogan "Immunize Now—Stamp out Diphtheria" is designed to intensify the attack upon one of the most deadly foes of children, according to Dr. H. N. Barnett, Director of the Bureau of Child Hygiene. In the early days of our country's history an epidemic of diphtheria in a town not infrequently resulted in one or more deaths among the children of almost every family in town. These devastating outbreaks continued to appear in our various cities and towns until the latter part of last century.

The campaign carried on in connection with the celebration of May Day as Child Health Day, should give added interest to continuing diphtheria immunization work and extending its scope to include as many children as possible. The best time to immunize a child against diphtheria is during infancy. The procedure can be carried out any time after six months of age—the sooner the better. By carrying out a State-wide May Day program for this year with the slogan "Immunize Now—Stamp Out Diphtheria," it is hoped that the death rate from diphtheria may be reduced in Texas.

The place to have the baby immunized is in the family physician's office. The method of immunization is by the use of diphtheria toxoid. Every mother of a child who has not been immunized against diphtheria is urged to consult her family physician and have the child protected against this deadly disease.

Roy Hudspeth and Herman Perry of San Angelo were Ozona visitors Tuesday.

Bill Bissett, Ozona ranchman and former athletic coach of San Angelo High School, was in Ozona yesterday.
