Truman choked up as he gazed at the assembled thousands, some of whom had been waiting for "I appreciate this reception," he told them. "It's magnificent. There's not any more I can say except that we are back home for good."

Another throng of 1,500 waited in the street when the Trumans drove up to their big, white frame home on North Delaware, and were more cheers and demands for a speech.

Truman was deeply touched at the depot when Mayor Robert Weatherford Jr. told him, "You's always be Mr. President to us." "I can't tell you how much I appreciate this reception," he said, voice breaking. "I never expected anything like this. There-fore, it is closer to my heart." But his inevitable humor came to his rescue. "I am in the army of the an-employed," he said. And then, talking again like the Democratic campaigner of "give 'em hell" fame who credits the employment situation to party policies, he couldn't resist adding, "but it is a

It makes a lot of difference when you are President of the United States as Harry Truman found out as he stood in line waiting his turn to buy a paper during a 15-minute stopover of his train in Cincinnati Ohio, while he was enroute to his home in Independence, Mo. COLD FRONT BRINGS HIGH WINDS AND DUST: LIGHT RAINS POSSIBLE

Subsiding winds and mild sprinkles had cleared part of an early morning dust cover brought in on the wings of a new cold front which blustered in Wednesday night.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said that most of the dust would subside by early afternoon. There might be light rains. Outlook was for partly cloudy to cloudy weather turning fair tonight. Temperatures were due to be down but not sharply. Minimum expected Friday morning was 34 degrees.

Visibility here was reduced at one time to ¾ of a mile in the early morning hours. Not a great deal of moisture is behind the front, said the bureau.

Winds of 75 miles per hour were reported in Dal-hart, along with a light snow which also fell at Amarillo. Lubbock had a little rain along with its high winds. No damage was reported.

Most of the rest of the state reported high winds, some light rain and fog.

Porky, The Polio Pig

And this little pig netted $25 for the March of Dimes Drive. The little porker, all decked out in a gaudy red ribbon and pedicure (maybe it's a manicure on its front paws) was a mystery prize at the party held at the Officers Open Field Ration Mess Tuesday night. Lt. Albert Westbrook won the livestock and decided to auction his newly started "barnyard" with proceeds going to the March of Dimes. Lt. Johnnie J. A Bible Thought For Today-

The Greeks had certain initiations into secret teachings. They went far, but no initiation is required to be given the key to Christ's Kingdom. Faith is always the key. You must believe it and all is yours.—"Ask and it shall be given you, seek and ye shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you." — Mat. 7:7.

Dog Poisoning One Thing, Risk Of Murder Is Quite Another

his Chihuahua dog in his front yard suffering from a dose of strychnine. The tiny dog had a piece of Vienna sausage which a veterinarian said was loaded with the

Everett said the sausage had been tossed into the yard at a point where several small youngsters are in the habit of playing. There was enough of the material on the sausage to be seen and possibly to have had some effect had a child handled it and then had occasion to put his fingers

Of course, this is conjecture. But it is our feeling that we can't afford even conjecture where children are concerned. This is not the first time such incidents have occurred. Once there was evidence that candy had been loaded and tossed to a pet.

We can understand how some people can become exasperated with pets of others, especially if they are not under proper control. But we have never been able to understand the workings of a poisoners' mind. And certainly we cannot imagine how anyone could be so calloused and mean as to leave poinsoned bait in such a manner might put it within reach of children.

For Heavens sake, let's not let our tempers draw children into the line of fire. Dog poisoning, as cruel as it is, is one thing; the risk of murder is quite

In some respects, the matter is back where it was about a year ago. The Supreme Court held, on the basis of incomplete reports, that the avenue by which the CRMWD brought contest was not the

What happens now remains to be seen Even under the Martin district regulations the CRMWD would not be shut off from water, although the amount of withdrawl might be regulated within limits of space time. CRMWD officials here have said they are hopeful that the problem could be settled without resort to further contest. Perhaps, with a year's experience, this might be possible. It might be, too, that the legislature will come up with some laws which would clear the issue materially for all concerned.

Alberta Used To Be Canadian; Then War, Americans, And Oil!

EDMONTON, ALBERTA, CAN., - The 000. Now Edmonton has close to 165,000, heater in the automobile couldn't keep up with the 20-below temperature. Baby, it was cold inside. We wore "station-wagon coats" - wool-fined gabardines with high mouton collars. My companion said:

You Americans taught us how to dress for our climate. We used to wear derby hats and Chesterfields — very British, very citified. During the war, Americans introduced parkas and big coats."

This vast province of Canada, some 2.000 miles from moneyed Montreal, Toronto, New York, Philadelphia, and other financial citadels of the East, is bearing up under the prolonged invasion of American dollars, know-how, venture, pragmatism, and unconventionality.

Alberta - with its oil, cattle, large farms and the new-born petrochemical in-- is the Texas of Canada, though Albertans don't make like they'd light cigars with five-dollar bills. Canadian conservatism has withstood this American Chamber of Commerce official. Only the other day, the Edmonton Stock Exchange was opened with first-page fanfare in the Edmonton Journal and a cocktail party at the just-doubled-in-size MacDonald Hotel. A telegram from C. V. Combe, financial editor of the Winnipeg Tribune and presumably no Edmonton rah-rah-er, touched the happy note for exuberant brokers hoping to cash in on the Alberta oil boom.

"Congratulations on opening Canada's newest stock exchange. It shows how phenomenal growth of Canada is being led by Canada's fastest growing city in Canada's most American province." Most Canadians would resent this reference to Americanization. Not Edmontonians.

Most Canadians would shy away from the word "boom" with its antonymous connotation "bust." Again, not Edmontonians. They've got ideas of Edmonton as the Chicago of the North. Why, it's got or is going to have nearly everything but steel, and even that's not out of reach of the imagination, is it? Iron ore and coal are to be had in British Columbia, hundreds of miles away. A railroad has to be built to bring in these resources. Still, around Edmonton, there's oil and gas - cheap fuel. Home-heating runs to only $70 a year. In a cold climate! What more can you ask for low-cost living or production!

Edmonton has been a distribution center for the prairies - the place to which farmers sent cattle and wheat. In this, it vied with Calgary, 192 miles to the south, and once the bigger city. In 1931, Calgary had a population of 83,000 Edmonton 79,-

The Big Spring Herald

Calgary some 135,000. Edmonton's strategic location, as the gateway to the Yukon and Alaska, explains its recent growth. It was the base for U. S. Army engineers constructing the Alaskan highway. It was the fueling station and freight depot for planes to the Yukon and Alaska. Here, Russian pflots would pick up lend-lease planes for ferrying to the Red air force. Today, Edmonton claims it handles more air freight than any other airport in the world.

All that and petrochemicals! Five miles east of Edmonton is a plateau called Chemical Valley. Celanese Corporation's Canadian Chemical Co., Ltd., is constructing a $55,000,000 plant to make yarn, solvents, and anti-freeze. It's due to be completed this year, which won't be any too soon for the unacclimatized Texan in charge of construction.

Imperial Oil, Ltd., 70 per cent owned by Standard Oil (N. J.), has completed a big refinery and is making additions. This facility was first erected at Corpus Christi, Tex., was moved during the war by U. S. Army engineers to White Horse in the Yukon, and then after the war was sold to Imperial, dismantled and relocated here. McColl-Frontenac Oil, a subsidiary of Texas Co., has a refinery, as has British-American Oil.

Canadian Industries, Ltd., in which Imperial Chemical Industries of Great Britain and Du Pont have an interest, is building a $13,000,000 plant to manufacture polythene, a plastic of many uses. Those are only a few Chemical Valley names. Outside Edmonton, at Fort Saskatchewan, Sherritt-Gordon Gold Mines is erecting a $17,500,000 nickel refinery and fertilizer plant. Ore transported hundreds of miles from Lynn Lake, Manitoba, will be processed here. All this expansion is likely to beget further expansion.

Yet labor is scarce and hard to get. The migratory habits of many large Albertan wheat farmers suggest the problem. They sow in the spring, harvest in the fall, and winter in Florida and other warm places. Can a stable labor force be built up in Edmonton's harsh climate? Edmonton has a population problem in reverse. The area Edmonton naturally serves is east of Winnipeg, west to the coast. It comprises more than half of the inhabited real estate of Canada, but only about 4,000,000 of the 14,500,000 population, hardly enough to warrant integrated manufacturing from raw materials to finished shoes, dresses, suits, automobiles and appliances. Edmonton may aspire to be a second Chicago, but first a population must grow up around it. Until then, its lot will be to feed raw and semi-finished materials to larger manufacturing centers

There Might Be A Purge If This Fellow Changes The Lady's Hats

The opinions contained in this and other articles in this column are sololy those of the writers who sign them. They are not to be interpreted as necessarily reflecting the opinions of The Herald.—Editor's Note.

Work of a New Mexico man in the mil-Mnery field may create a greater furor in the hat department than the new President's rejection of the traditional silk cylinder for his inaugural shade.

President Eisenhower rocked tailors and hatters as far away as London when he chose the homburg and short coat over the tophat and clawhammer. But this New Mexican, monkeying with feminine uranium, is apt to create a cataclysm to shatter even the Iron Curtain. He's taking liberties with ladies' hats-something the milliners in Paris, Petrozavodsk, nor Pine Bluff won't appreciate. And if he ever sets up mass production, the ladies won't like it either. There might millinery, he uses a very thin sheet of iron, and hammers, cuts and draws it into the desired shape. (Judging from conventional hats, any old shape will do.)

Then he hammers out sheet metal flow ers, leaves, etc. for trim. On some, even iron feathers are used for decoration.

Surprising thing about the finished product, it is lighter in weight than most women's hats. Hagy's hats weigh from one to four ounces, depending on the amount of trim and the number and size of holes, I

Selling price ranges from $7.50 to $12.50. Selling point, at least so far, is the fact that Hagy says they can be changed to go with any costume, simply by re-rigging the ribbons and other accessories,

What got Hagy into the business in the first place, though, was the way the women went for that first model, the Christmas present. The friend wore the hat to a party and everyone there wanted one like it.

Hagy better let that be a warning to him, though. If he ever starts making them alike, there's not a woman in the world would wear one of the things -WAYLAND YATES

Washington Calling-Marguis Childs

To Say No To Forces Of Greed Will Be Hardest Task For Ike

lene became President of the United States of America. The long journey from that small house in Kansas near the Santa Fe tracks to the most powerful office in the world has been completed.

It is the journey we like to think of as typically American—the saga of opportunity, the boy poor but eager, bright, willing, earnest, aspiring to be the best, the first, This is a legend endlessly repeated.

But it is also history. The man who leaves the impossible, the awesome office of the Presidency, Harry S. Truman, made that same journey from the farm outside Independence, Missouri, to Washington. So have many other Presidents.

The Eisenhower journey has had various stages. The man who now takes over the Presidency has already known great power. He was the supreme commander of the greatest military force ever assembled in the first war actually global

During the past decade this observer has seen Eisenhower in many roles. He appears on the surface to be outgoing, genial, an essentially simple man. But beneath that surface is a complex individual.

In his small office in the school house in Rheims, France, the supreme commander had on the wall beside his desk a photograph of his mother. She appeared the traditional mother of the Whistler painting. Yet in her face was a spiritual intensity, a look of dedication, that made clear why she had been a member of a religious sect demanding so much of its

In the years since Abilene a great deal has happened to the thirty-third Presi-Power-its attractions, its responsibilities, its privileges-inevitably leaves an imprint. One must remember how long this office has been held out to the man Potsdam when he told Eisenhower that he could be President with his. Truman's,

The Democrats in June of 1948 were frantically beckoning to the general to come and rescue them. They were publicly, many of them, pleading with him to take the Democratic nomination. This reporter sat in Eisenhower's office at Columbia University while that was happening, observing the paradox of his impatience on the one hand and his refuctance on the other. It was an extraordinary thing, having party leaders who could make national headlines telling you that you must sacrifice your personal desires for a private life to save, if not the nation, at least one of the two political

Then during the two years at SHAPE outside Paris came a procession of both Democrats and Republicans, saying that it was his solemn duty to lead the nation out of crisis, away from war. The urgings of the Democratic visitors were hardly less insistent, passionate, wrapped in the colors of patriotism, than those of the Republican leaders.

No human being, not even a saint, could be unaffected. How well Eisenhower has been able to keep a perspective the future will tell. But certainly he is going to need all the righteousness out of his Abilene background; all of the spiritual dedication that is in his mother's face in that photograph which has gone with him through the years. For it cannot have escaped the new occupant of the White House, even though he has had little time to reflect on history, that he is only the second professional soldier to become President. The first was Ulysses S. Grant, who likewise went from a small Midwestern town to become a national hero in his progress to the highest office in the land.

Grant's judgment of people was inadequate when he stepped outside the military sphere, Certain of his friends took his administration as an opportunity for plunder. They betrayed him and his life ended in tragedy close to disaster.

Now on this great "gettin" up in the mornin' day" there are those who see the change-over as an invitation to get all they can while the getting is good. They are out to revise the tax laws for the benefit of the few; to push through special privileges for narrow special interests; to make all the fast bucks that can be made fast. If these forces are not restrained, they will constitute a wrecking crew and the wreck can come very fast.

The new President must be able to recognize them no matter what disguise they wear and particularly if they come with the mask of friendship. It will be far from easy. The hazards are, in fact, very great. To overcome them President Eisenhower must summon a grim determination to say no and no and no again. For the genial man from Abllene this will be the hardest task of all.

Holy Tree Draws The Buddhists

The Buddha, famous religious leader, was born in India more than 25 centuries ago. Since India was his native land, we might expect that it would now be filled with his followers, but the fact is other-wise. Most of India's people are Hindus or Moslems.

There are about 150 million Buddhists in the world today. They live mainly in China, Burma, Siam and Ceylon.

Casey Jones and Bobby Maines, regulars, are still ailing but will probably see action tonight. Others open for HCJC are Bobby Williams, the team's and the Zone's leading scorer; Charley Warren and Richard Gilmore.

Williams, who suffered an ear injury in a collision last week, was to have the stitches removed this morning. He'll probably be ready to go all the way. Gilmore is still limping a bit but he'll be ready to go all-out, barring further mishap. Warren appears to be about the only
