District Court Recessed Until Monday Morning

Compensation Case Is Set; Petit Jury to Report Monday

Judge W. C. Jackson recessed the 112th district court until next Monday morning at the conclusion of the first day of the fall term which opened here Monday morning. The grand jury was impaneled Monday morning and after a brief session adjourned without reporting any bills of indictment.

Rotarians Hosts To Teachers at Banquet Tuesday

95 Present at Ladies Night Affair at Community Center

Ozona Rotarians were hosts Tuesday evening to members of the faculty and the board of trustees of the Ozona Public Schools and other guests at the annual ladies night banquet held in the auditorium of the Community Center. The meal, provided by the Latin-American Mother's Club, was a Mexican dinner, deliciously prepared and skillfully served.

President Royal Caswell of the club presided. He announced the purpose of the meeting was a get-acquainted move and asked each Rotarian to introduce himself, name his business or classification, introduce his Rotary Ann and guests, the teachers being parceled out among the membership.

This done the group enjoyed a sing-song led by Ross Hufstelder, club song leader, with Mrs. H. B. Tandy at the piano.

The program feature of the evening was a reading, "The Modern Art Exhibit," expertly done by Mrs. Joe Ripple. The selection, calling for a high order of histrionics as well as vocal presentation, was executed in masterful fashion by Mrs. Ripple, and thoroughly enjoyed by her audience.

Ninety-five Rotarians and their guests enjoyed the evening.

SCOUTS ENJOY BARBECUE

Boy Scouts of Troops 53 launched the new season's Scout activities with a barbecue supper and program at the Scout cabin Monday night. Members of the Scout committee and a few other adult guests were present. Scoutmaster Bill Cooper reported that interest was high, especially among the group of younger boys, in the Scout program this year.

Twice-Wounded Marine, Veteran of Tarawa And Saipan Fights, Home for Treatment and Rest, Satisfied He Got His Share of Japs

A twice wounded veteran of some of the toughest fighting to date in the whole Pacific war zone against the Japs is home for a well earned rest, and, although he has lost, temporarily at least, the sight in his right eye, carries a piece of shrapnel behind that eye, another embedded in the bone of his jaw and scars of two other shrapnel wounds through each shoulder, he has the immense personal satisfaction that he "got his part of the Japs" before they got him.

He is Marine Johnnie Leonard Armentrout, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Armentrout of Ozona, a soft-spoken, clean-cut young man of 19, but made of the fiber of the American fighting man that no army on earth can lick. After more than a month in Naval hospitals, at Pearl Harbor, aboard ship and at Bremerton, Washington, he is home for a brief rest before going to another Naval hospital at Corpus Christi on the 30th of this month. There Navy doctors hope to be able to restore the sight in his right eye, pierced by a small fragment of a Jap hand grenade which exploded just outside his foxhole on Saipan. That same grenade sent the fragment that is now embedded in his jaw and another that ploughed through his left shoulder from the front and out at the back—the same as another piece did to his right shoulder on the bloody beaches of Tarawa island in the Gilberts.

Young Armentrout enlisted in the Marine Corps in February, 1943, and by July 1 of that year was on his way to the South Pacific as a part of the gallant American fighting forces which are now knocking at the outer doors of the Jap homeland. He landed first in New Zealand and there underwent intensive training for what lay ahead.

He was attached to the Second Marine division, as fine a body of fighting men the world has ever seen. It was the gallant Second which braved the withering fire of the entrenched Japs on Tarawa to storm the beaches and ultimately wrest the island from Jap grasp, but at terrific cost in American lives.

Young Armentrout went ashore among the first wave of Marines to land on Tarawa. They were brought from transports in Higgins boats but these foundered on (Continued On Last Page)

Sgt. Boyd Baker, Prisoner of Germans, Knew of Invasion

Mrs. Alice Baker of Ozona, whose son, Sgt. Boyd Baker, tail gunner on a Flying Fortress shot down over Germany, is a prisoner of the Germans, recently received a number of letters and cards from her son after a silence of several months.

The latest date on the letters was June 11, five days after the Allied invasion of the German held continent. Sgt. Baker indicated in the language of the letter that he knew of the invasion, substantiating press reports on the progress of the invasion.

Young Baker wrote that he had been "behind barbed wire" for seven months and knew how a rat in a cage feels. His health, he said, is still "fairly good."

Marine Dale Walker, Coming Home After Long Service in Pacific

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Marine Private First Class Orval Dale Walker, son of Mrs. Lawrence Gause, formerly of Ozona, has returned from long service in the Pacific and will soon be home on a 30-day furlough.

He has been brought home under the Marine Corps policy of returning to the United States men who have had long overseas service or who have been injured twice.

Pfc. Walker was in action in Saipan where he was awarded the Purple Heart for wounds, twice.

He was formerly employed as a truck driver for the Titch-Goettinger Company in Dallas, prior to enlisting in the Corps.

Shape Plans for War Fund Drive Here October 10

Workers Called to Area Meet in Angelo to Plan Campaign

Mrs. S. M. Harvick, Crockett county chairman for the National War Fund Drive, slated to start over the nation on October 10, announced this week that a corps of workers is being lined up for an intensive campaign to be launched on opening day in the hope that this county again can be the first in this West Texas region, as it was last year, to report its quota raised.

Lee Wilson, as special gifts chairman, reports progress already in lining up special gifts for the campaign of $25 or more. This part of the campaign, Mrs. Harvick hopes can be completed by the 25th of this month. Persons who wish to make special gifts in advance of the opening of the drive are asked to contact Mr. Wilson at once.

Mrs. Harvick and as many of her local group of workers as can will attend and area-wide luncheon to be held at San Angelo Army Air Field on Monday, September 25, when district drive directors will outline this 1944 campaign plans and acquaint workers with the objectives of the many-pronged war fund drive.

Crockett county has been assigned an over-all quota of $3,000 in this year's War Fund Drive, the annual campaign which raises funds for the support of the USO, the War Prisoner Relief Society and all other relief and war service organizations with the exception of the Red Cross. Of this amount, $2,706 will go to the National fund while the balance will be retained in a local fund for promotion of local war service work.

In order to speed conclusion of the local drive, the town and county will be districted and workers assigned to each district for a whirlwind campaign. A meeting of workers for an explanation of the campaign plans will be held sometime next week, Mrs. Harvick announced.

"I am confident that Crockett county will come through again on the National War Fund Drive," Mrs. Harvick declared this week.

"We are so far from the war out here that it seems too little that we can only give money. But this is a real need, a drive in support of a many relief and war service organizations that are doing wonderful things in support of our fighting men, for relief of our men who are prisoners of war in enemy camps and of the civilian populations of countries overrun by the enemy. For such a cause it should hardly be necessary to ask for donations—they should come in voluntarily."

Lions to Meet Angelo Kittens In Opener Sat.

Non-Conference Tilt To Start Here at 2:30; Locals Ready

Coach L. B. T. Sikes announces "ready" for the opening game in the 1944 football campaign for his Ozona High School Lions, slated for 2:30 o'clock next Saturday afternoon on the Powell Field grid iron.

Opponents of the Lions in this season opener will be the San Angelo Kittens, No. 1 B team of the San Angelo High School state champion Bobcats. The Kittens last Thursday night clouted the Lake View Chiefs 14-0 in their opening game of a ten-game schedule.

Next Saturday's opener will be the first of two non-conference games which Coach Sikes has arranged for his lads before they plunge into the five-game district schedule which will take in order Mason, Menard, Junction, Eldorado and Sonora.

The game will be called at 2:30, the gates opening at 1:45. Admission prices will be 25 cents for students and 50 cents for adults. Officials will be C. E. Ellison of Big Lake, Jack Black, Big Lake Coach, and a Mr. DeBerry, elementary school principal at Eldorado.

Coach Sikes' boys, although one game under the Kittens as far as experience goes for the season, will have had three weeks of intensive practice under the eagle eye of the coach and know what it's about. The starting team is made up of nine veterans of last year's first string and two burly lads who went through last year's season as members of the squad but were ineligible for play. And what's more, there will be a bench full of likely substitute material. All of which adds up, not to a prophecy on the outcome, but to conclusive evidence that however tough the San Angelo lads might prove to be, they will have met one of the gamiest, fightingest little teams in West Texas when the smoke is cleared from next Saturday's battle ground.

Coach Sikes yesterday announced the following starting team against the Kittens with weights and positions:

THURSDAY SEPT. 21, 1944

FAIR PLAY
By Samuel Pettingill
Congressman from Indiana

Admiral Kimmel, in an open letter to vice presidential candidate, Harry F. Truman, says the truth about Pearl Harbor will "startle the nation." If so, I want to be startled now. Not after the election.

It is almost three years since Pearl Harbor. For nearly three years Admiral Kimmel and General Short have been indicted before the nation by the Roberts report for "dereliction in duty." But Justice Roberts had no authority to try them, nor have they had their day in any court.

Is their case to become the Dreyfus case of America? Dreyfus, as you recall, was the French officer whose case split France in two for twelve years. The charge was made that he was sent to life imprisonment on Devil's Island to protect higher-ups on the general staff.

For some time after Pearl Harbor there was a legitimate reason for not trying Kimmel and Short. That reason was national defense. The trial might have brought forth facts of military value to the Japs. But the Jap tide began to ebb two years ago. It now flows fast before the tremendous pressure of American men and metal. It is hard to conceive any reason for further postponing the trial except that it might prove politically embarrassing to their superiors.

If the two men had stolen a few stamps from a post office they would be entitled to "a speedy and public trial and to be confronted with the witnesses against them." The Bill of Rights so provides. This provision does not apply to military law, but it states the spirit of our institutions.

Three years without a trial indicts those who prevent its being held.

Time will add to some reputations and tarnish others. The shocking lack of military preparedness, not only at Pearl Harbor, but all down the line, is a fact of which we will hear more. It is to the credit of Governor Dewey that a year and a half before Pearl Harbor he had joined with Senator Byrd and a few other unmuzzled men in letting the public see the gaping holes in our armor. Only 14 days after Churchill's "blood sweat, toil and tears," Mr. Thomas Dewey, speaking at Dallas, Texas on May 27, 1940 pointed out that after "letting sixty billion dollars run through their fingers" the Administration did not have a "single complete mobile division of infantry and artillery (15,000) which could be rushed to a point of attack."

Our Army Air Force had only 863 combat planes—a week's toll in war. General Arnold of the Army Air Corps had already gone on record that only "a half dozen" of the Army's planes were capable of being modernized. As Mr. Dewey then said, "None of the Army planes has armor, nor self-sealing fuel tanks."

We had only 2 per cent of Army requirements for anti-aircraft ammunition, only 14 per cent of anti-aircraft guns. We had modern rifles for only one soldier in six. We had only 2 per cent of Army requirements for light tanks and 9 per cent for medium tanks. We had a one-ocean Navy. The Stettinius report in the previous autumn of 1938 had been suppressed—and is to this day. It was stated that industrial mobilization would be in the hands of Secretary of Commerce, Harry Hopkins—a man who had never produced so much as a safety pin and had carried on a seven year war against American industry and its leaders.

Then Secretary Morgenthau, equally inexperienced, was to be given the job. Finally, it was given to the double-headed Siamese twins—William S. Knudson and Sidney Hillman.

Finally, on January 16, 1942, one month and nine days after Pearl Harbor, Donald Nelson was appointed to lead the War Production Board.

All this whets our interest in what Messrs. Kimmel and Short might tell us about Pearl Harbor.

SAMUEL S. PETTINGILL

Those who believe that the war is almost over would do well to remember that Texans still are fighting . . . and being wounded and killed . . . on all fronts. The fact that they aren't quitting should be a reminder that now is not the time to quit on the home front.

Here are some of the boys wounded on the European front during the past few days: Sgt. Arthur Appel of Taylor, Sgt. Victor Cmerok of Granger, and Pfc. Ike Mogford and Pfc. Baker Vermillion of Fredericksburg.

Latest casualty reports from the Mediterranean report S/Sgt. Bill Lord of Georgetown as among the wounded, while Pfc. Emilian Mensik of LaGrange was recently reported wounded in the Southwest Pacific.

S/Sgt. Ray Saunders of Wichita Falls, a spotter for a machine-gun company in France, was wounded in the left leg and chest, and lay for many hours under the fire of both Americans and Germans before he could crawl to safety. But he didn't quit! He is now in a hospital in England.

The example of the Texas lads who don't quit should prove an inspiration to all of those on the home-front. No one should quit until the war is finally won . . . and that means when the last shot has been fired and every Texas boy is back home! Meanwhile, every man, woman and child in Texas should pitch in to put the National War Fund campaign over the top!

BEHAVE YOURSELF!

In going through the hall, your haste should be concealed—You're not a halfback, charging up and down the field.

Why are there rules for behavior? Good manners serve a useful purpose in smoothing our contacts with others. They are not like evening clothes, something to be taken out of moth balls for special occasions. Good manners belong to everyday life: at home with the family; at school with friends; on the street with strangers. They are of no value unless they are real, and they cannot be real unless they are based upon kindness and consideration of others.

It is needless to argue the necessity of rules of etiquette. The plain fact is that we have them and unless we abide by them we are rated as either crude or ignorant. Behavior is therefore an important part of success. Those who know thoroughly the rules of the game are likely to win. The rules for behavior, like those of football and punctuation, are all set up for us, and the old standby, the Golden Rule, seems never to have gone out of style. Only a hermit needs no rules of etiquette.

You have all met the bad school citizen who goes tearing along the hall, diving into people, but never stopping to apologize. (Are we getting too personal?) Or that other one who never seems to get anywhere without linking arms with two or three friends and ambling along. You sometimes see him stopping to chat with a friend right in the middle of the hall; or elbowing his way through the halls, pulling someone after him; or crowding everyone off the stairway; or letting doors fall back in people's faces. If you try to get to your destination on time it won't be necessary to make a last minute rush. Observe the same courtesies that you would in your home, on the sidewalks, or in a downtown store.

O. H. S. AT HOME

IT HAPPENED LAST WEEK—LOUISE spent a six day "week-end" in Sanderson. DAPHNE was rushed to the hospital upon the advice of her doctor rather than her own desire to travel.

DON'T QUOTE ME, FOR I ONLY HEARD—that JIMMY and BERNARD are sporting new football togs that are not exactly regulation.

PEOPLE ARE TALKING ABOUT—The coming football game next Saturday.—The eternal triangle: JOYCE, BYRD LOUISE; MAX, CORINE, BILLY MC.—EARL'S California accent.

CORONETS and ORCHIDS to PEP SQUAD and DRUM CORPS who are carrying on in spite of handicaps. CHAPPO, chipper, cheery, and chocked full of animation, who is back in school after a vacation of extended months.

HISSES and CATCALLS to—Those people in our school who have failed to adjust themselves to the pattern and routine of O. H. S.—i.e., those who do not follow directions, hand in assignments late and hurriedly done, and cause confusion. (If the shoe fits, wear it.)

Coach Jimmy Stewart has just put high hopes on S.M.U.'s backfield this year. L. B. COX, 165, will be at wingback or right half. Bud will do part of the kicking for the Mustangs, too.

SOMETHING NEW HAS BEEN ADDED — Joe Harris — Senior rings; don't forget to admire each one.

THE PEP SQUAD PEP'S IT UP!

The Pep Squad and the Drum Corps are taking the bull by the horns and really beginning to plan big things for the purpose of throwing the Punchers this year. Of course, they are going to be in there pitching at all the games but especially for the one at Mason because it will be our first district game and we have an old score to even. We plan to wipe the slate clean this year and chalk on a different score in favor of the Lions!

Due to the absence of a band, there will be no pep rallies at night for the first two games against San Angelo and Big Lake. However, a big surprise awaits the public for the third one against Mason. Yes sires, a big surprise and we hope the public will stir out of their easy chairs and places of business and really give the boys a push!

The drilling, yelling and singing Pep Squad is working hard to be able to give the boys the support they need to earn that District Title. They need outside help too. Let's buckle down, Ozona!

WHAT IF. . . . Lowell and Nan didn't write notes during American History. Chappo hadn't gotten home during the wee hours of Tuesday morning?

Earl and Ruth didn't sit together in the show? Mike and Barbara weren't getting so serious about each other during Spanish?

The Seniors weren't so proud of their rings? Everybody didn't have a cold? The boys didn't enjoy Miss Craven's class so much?

Mike Friend's motto, as far as girls are concerned, wasn't "run when church bells ring?" There weren't so many "fish" in the hall?

The chemistry students knew what the course was all about? The new poster in Study Hall wasn't so attractive?

Daphne hadn't come home from the hospital last Monday? The freshman girls could stay in step when the pep squad marches?

Most of the girls in high school weren't suddenly red-headed? We didn't have such a good chance to Beat San Angelo?

First Football Game Next Saturday

The Lions open the football season in Ozona Saturday at 2:30 with a non-conference game with the San Angelo "B" team.

The Ozona crop, of which 7 are seniors, will probably be as good all around club as the 41 bi-district bunch but whether they will go as far remains to be seen. The starting line-up will find 9 of last year's regulars back with two boys who were ineligible last year.

So far the team has looked big but not very polished. The Kittens will probably not weigh us, but who ever heard of a Kitten licking a Lion!

BACK TO SCHOOL

Our third week in school! Oh boy, oh boy! Back in the same old groove (uncensored term for rut) and back to the printed page. . . . Ahem. Serious minded students are again quietly gathering their books and with fast but dignified steps are hurrying to their classes in an effort to get started on the lesson before the bell rings in order to crowd a few extra seconds of learning. Football boys, as in days of yore, complain again and again that they don't get to work out enough. Outraged readers again complain that "light fiction! All the time just light reading. . . nothing classical, nothing historical or scientific in the library!" Okay, do I get the medal?

Staff Sergeant T. E. (Wildhorse Red) Jordan, with the U. S. Army Air Forces stationed at Tucson, Ariz., is here this week on a furlough visiting friends.

the outer reefs and they were transferred to amphibious tractors which carried them to where the water was shallow enough to wade, Marine Armentrout related.

"I thought I was a goner when I jumped out of the amphib," he said. "I fell into the water and went under. My pack and gear was so heavy that I had plenty of trouble righting myself."

The Japs were pouring everything they had at the men wading ashore in the waist-deep water, Armentrout related, mostly machine gun fire and bullets coming "uncomfortably close" as he put it. "I was scared half to death," he confessed, and no doubt his feeling was shared by every man in his division, and the Japs ashore as well. He later said that he was not nearly so frightened in the Saipan landing as at Tarawa, his first taste of action against a fanatic enemy.

Armentrout got ashore on Tarawa and battled the Japs with his outfit from the landing at about 9:30 in the morning until about 7:30 that night when the grenade fragment through the shoulder put him out of the fight.

"It wasn't so bad after we got ashore," he said. "The toughest part was getting on." It was behind the much publicized seawall around Tarawa where the Ozona lad was first wounded. He and two buddies were crouched behind the wall awaiting a chance to clean out a particularly troublesome Jap pillbox just over the wall. They had tossed grenades at the pillbox but had failed to score. Then a Jap in the fortified position tossed one of his grenades over the wall, squarely in the midst of the three Marines. All three were wounded, the other two more seriously than Armentrout. In fact it was not until he and other members of his platoon who rushed up to help out had finally cleaned out the Jap pillbox that fellow Marines noticed his bloody shoulder and a Marine captain ordered him back aboard ship for treatment.

"We got 'em," he said with an apparent satisfaction. And how they "got 'em" was another story that illustrates the pluck and resourcefulness of the American fighting man. One of the Marines who took the position behind the wall after the other two were wounded discovered an abandoned American demolition kit nearby and retrieved it. From it, the crouching Marines took explosive charges, attached caps and fuses and tossed them at the Jap position over the wall.

"He was using fuses about that long," young Armentrout mused, measuring between extended hands. "I told him they would toss one of those back at us directly." "Aw," he said, "I've handled this stuff before. I know how to fix it." And we got the job done with his fixing—finally tossing one in the pillbox which eliminated that bunch of Japs. Later the boy told me he had never handled that kind of explosive before."

The Tarawa landing was November 20, 1943, and after some ten days of hospitalization, Armentrout was sent back to the Hawaiian Islands and there went through months of further training. In June of this year, he sailed again, this time to Saipan, landing on that island, again under Jap fire, on June 15.

A month of hard fighting day and night, followed as the Marines pushed the Jap garrison on Saipan slowly into a corner.

"We fought all day, mostly on the move," young Armentrout said, "and at night we would dig in and stand hourly watch, two men to a foxhole, one on guard while the other slept in hourly shifts. It rained every night without fail and sometimes in the daytime it was blistering hot all day and at night we slept in the water filled foxholes, living on canned C and K rations. We didn't have time to set up field kitchens and have hot food — everybody was too busy with the Japs."

Most of the Japs they encountered on Tarawa were the big six-

Ship Loaded With Jap Death

Rows of huge shells wind along the decks of a U. S. battleship as it loads up somewhere in the Pacific preparatory to carrying out its assignment of blasting Jap holdings. The inferno loosed by its guns cleared a path for the landing forces, which were then able to send a landing party ashore to capture the base.

foot Imperial Japanese Marines, pretty tough fighters, the Ozona lad declared. There were some of these on Saipan also, but mostly they were the little brown, scrawny fellows, weighing scarcely more than 110 pounds, he said.

It was in the last stages of the fight on Saipan before American forces cleaned out the last Jap pockets of resistance that young Armentrout was wounded a second time.

"It was about 3 o'clock in the morning," he related. "We had been warned that a Jap counter attack was expected, and we had been formed in line and dug in. The Japs were only a short distance in front of us over a little rise in the ground and in a wooded area. Suddenly about 300 of them dashed at us, screaming at the tops of their voices. They used only hand grenades, although they had rifles slung over their backs. Our machine gunners and riflemen mowed them down—one machine gun crew in particular I remember was stacking 'em up as they rushed their position."

"I was stooped over putting another clip into my M-1 rifle when the grenade exploded at the edge of our foxhole, fragments hitting me in the face and shoulder. I was blind in both eyes for a time, my buddy taking me by the hand and leading me back to the command post. I guess I fainted there from loss of blood—anyway, when I came to, they were giving me blood plasma. I was again put aboard ship and sent to Pearl Harbor and finally back to the States."

Armentrout was wounded on Saipan on July 11, just a few days before the Pacific command announced the last organized Japanese resistance on the island had been broken.

Marines are great souvenir hunters, young Armentrout said. Every dead Jap is fair picking for the first who discovers him, he declared. He had a collection of souvenirs, including a Jap saber and other articles, but left them all in the foxhole where he was wounded, he said. He confessed, however, that it was most satisfying to shoot Japs, and the "got his part of 'em" he said.

Regularly a rifleman, young Armentrout served as an assistant Bazooka gunner on Saipan by day and a rifleman by night.

"We couldn't shoot the Bazooka at night," he said, "because the flame from the rocket lighted up our positions."

Sgt. Max Schneemann, Jr., arrived this week from Camp Polk, La. to spend a 15-day furlough visiting with his parents and friends.

Pvt. Wayne West Jr., is home this week for a brief visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. West, before reporting to a camp in Wisconsin where he will enter training in an Army radio school.

merican Association; an instructor in the National Rifle Association; an examiner of the American Red Cross; a member of the Rotary Club—these and many other activities have contributed to the rich store of experiences he draws on for program material.

Raymon has traveled more than 300,000 miles through every state in the Union presenting "Reptiles of North America" before hundreds of audiences of every type. Many odd facts about reptiles are mentioned, and many myths, popular fallacies, and folk stories about them are exploded. His presentation of this fascinating subject, handled in an entirely different manner, leaves the audience with a much better understanding of one of nature's most misunderstood forms of life.

Fifteen live specimens of the reptile family are exhibited, displayed and handled in an entertaining and enlightening manner. To see Mr. Raymon handle these various "pets" in an actual demonstration that even snakes can be domesticated, is proof that the average person's knowledge of herpetology has been greatly neglected.

Mr. Raymon has been a hit in the South and Southwest on four previous tours.

Monroe Baggett is in a San Angelo hospital this week for examination and treatment.
