Voltage

The brewers have thought themselves up quite an idea. Briefly, it is that now we have repeal—or rather as soon as congress gets back—32 beer should be taxed at the rate of $3 a barrel while brew of stronger voltage would be levied against it. Their argument is that 32 beer is non-intoxicating in fact. They contend brewers who furnish the public with such a soft drink should get a break over the brewers who try to get us tipsy. Support of the dregs is being banked on heavily to get the proposition across.

Representatives of the beer bars (as they used to be called) are being on Treasury officials to get them to make such a recommendation to congress. In one way or another the matter is going to be put up to the House Ways and Means committee. The brewers are mindful of the fact Chairman Robert L. Doughton of North Carolina is classed as a prohibitionist.

Officials of at least one other federal department to which the proposition has been broached are fearful the treasury may fall in line. If it does, Chairman Doughton is going to get a memorandum opposing any such tax differential.

The man who stands ready to write it says the way would be split wide open to additional profit on beer with the customer thinking he is getting something potent but actually being served 32. This would be an act of course.

Turkey-Talk

Here is a belated Thanksgiving story. An admirer gave Linton Collins, personal officer of NRA, a swell turkey for the holiday. It arrived at his office the day before Thanksgiving and he put it out of his window to keep cool. Brad Carroll, chief clerk of the Blue Eagle shop, climbed out of his window, walked along a ledge and swiped the turkey.

When Collins missed the bird he hit the ceiling. He called for a searching investigation and finally ordered the captain of the watch not to let anyone out of the building carrying a bundle that looked like a turkey. While all this was going on Carroll walked the ledge again and replaced the missing fowl. Collins found it and was happy. Also, when he started home that evening with the turkey under his arm, a guard stopped him at the door. He had forgotten to cancel his order and for a while it looked as though he would be taken to the bastille.

Borah

Senator Borah is all cranked up to fight over a code for the aluminum industry. He is fearful his amendment to the NRA law prohibiting any code which creates a monopoly is at stake.

General Johnson has indicated he is going to be very careful as to what he gets into while regulating hours and wages in the aluminum industry. The independents saw some unfair practices clauses must

18 States Celebrate Amendment Repeal Festivities

Lack Fervor Of Forecast

President Says Saloon Of Old, Or Disguised Form Not To Return

WASHINGTON (AP)—Eighteen states celebrated repeal of eighteenth amendment quietly Tuesday night, festivities lacking the fervor some had forecast. President Roosevelt, proclaiming repeal, said: "Policy of the government will be to see to it that social and political evils that have existed during the pre-prohibition era shall not be revived nor permitted to exist." He asked especially "that no state shall by law authorize the return of the saloon either in old form or in some modern guise." He said the "objective we seek through a national policy is education of every citizen toward a greater temperance throughout the nation."

Governor Harry Moore of New Jersey vetoed the liquor control plan; but both houses overrode his veto, authorizing supervised sale in that state.

Colonel Hindered In Take-Off By Dead Calm On Gambia River

MRS. LINDBERGH AT WIRELESS CONTROL

Landing Made At Natal, Brazil, After Fourteen Hours In Air

NATAL, Brazil (AP)—Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh arrived here Wednesday after 1850 mile projected flight from Bathurst, Gambia, across the South Atlantic ocean.

They averaged 126 miles per hour, completing the ocean jaunt in fifteen hours, fifty-five minutes. Thousands greeted them.

BATHURST, Gambia (Wednesday)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh tied his heavily laden airplane into the air at 3 a. m. today, and with Mrs. Lindbergh at the wireless headed across 1,900 miles of open sea toward South America. After a score of more unsuccessful attempts to lift the heavily laden plane in an almost dead calm, he was helped on his way by a light breeze from the interior which rapped the surface of the lower Gambia river.

First Message (A message direct from the Lindbergh plane to Bahia, Brazil, relayed to Pan-American Airways in New York, reported their position at 3 a. m. an hour after the take-off, as 12:17 north latitude, and 17:50 west longitude, 115 miles at sea.)

The message reported a true course and was signed "Lindbergh." For four days the Lindberghs had balked by inability to lift the heavy load of fuel required for the longest yet attempted in their aerial survey tour of Atlantic ocean airways. Excess fuel and baggage was jettisoned, and at 4:30 p. m. today the colonel went to the plane for a final inspection. Ready for the flight, the craft bobbed in a gentle swell before a picturesque row of native shacks bordering the river.

Weather Favorable The colonel was informed that weather indications insured a bright, clear tropical night for the takeoff. The German steamer Westfalen, which had been in Brazil securing supplies, was due to return to its mid-Atlantic post yesterday, affording further security for the Lindberghs on their long flight. The Westfalen is used by the German Lufthansa line as a base for trans-Atlantic flights, and officials of the line previously had offered the Lindberghs use of their facilities.

By veering slightly northward off a direct course to Natal, Brazil, they could also stop at St. Paul's island, a French possession in mid-Atlantic. Fernando de Noronha, a volcanic island 125 miles off the coast of Brazil, offered another possible landing place.

14-HOUR TRIP Calculations based on the known speed of Col. Lindbergh's plane fixed the approximate time of a flight across the South Atlantic at 14 hours or less. Their route, in a south-south westerly direction, will carry them across the equator at approximately the location of St. Paul's island, a little more than midway distance. Natal, believed to be their intended destination, is a seaport with a harbor of two square miles. Advice from South America said Pan-American Airways, for whom Colonel Lindbergh is technical adviser, had requested that the harbor be kept sufficiently clear of shipping to enable a safe landing. Landing places were also prepared at Recife (Pernambuco), 180 miles south of Natal, and at Fortaleza, in the state of Ceara, Brazil.

Facts About Your Chamber Of Commerce

IT'S UP TO YOU! Yesterday a man was overheard talking on the street. He said "I have been reading those chamber of commerce advertisements. I hope they get their budget." He hoped "they" would get "their" budget.

Yesterday also a certain committee chairman was phoning one of his committeemen. The committeeman said, "Sure, it's important work. You ought to get your budget, and I'll be glad to help you box up."

He was talking about "it," and "they" said "you boys" not seeming to realize that he was just as much a part of the organization as "they" were.

Both of these men were members of the Chamber of Commerce—friendly to its purposes, and willing to work for its support. But they unconsciously detached themselves from the organization.

Many citizens do this, not realizing that they themselves and not somebody else are to be benefited by the activities of the chamber, that they themselves, along with several hundred others, are the chamber.

So let's narrow this thing down to a sharp point. How do you think about yourself in connection with the chamber of commerce? Do you look upon yourself as part of it, or do you content yourself with saying it is a good thing which "they" ought to support.

The success of the present membership and budget campaign does not depend on what is done by Tom, or Dick, or Harry.

Even a Hitler Must Bow to Democracy

Sole significance of the farcical election by which Chancellor Hitler gained an expression of his nation's approval for the things he has done is that it proves that even a dictator must step out now and then and make a bow in the direction of democracy.

Renunciation and Education

The monetary policy of the United States is not likely to be settled by losing our temper. In a crisis it is best to be cool, and they last the longest who become very calm, very quiet, and very steady when conditions are critical. As for the alarmist, the despairing, the melodramatic or the excited mood, that should be reserved for those affairs which do not involve the security of great bodies of men. And, therefore, it does not seem to me that a rip-roaring fight about the currency will help us.

"As a subscriber to the San Francisco Call Bulletin I often read your interesting articles," writes Jack Goldman from San Francisco. "As a close follower of western football for 25 years I must call your attention to your so-called All-American selections. You only mention eastern, middle western and southern players. Now surely you should know better."

We not only know better, as a consequence of this, but examination of the ninth annual Associated Press All-American consensus shows three players from the Pacific Coast on the first team and a total of ten Far Western aids, more than the delegation from any other section, on the complete "squad" of three elevens.

ARMY'S SIDE A correspondent who wishes to remain unidentified but who nevertheless adds a strong endorsement to West Point's side of the argument over the use of men with previous college experience on Army teams cites the case of a recent Cadet backfield star who developed exclusively under the coaching of Biff Jones and Ralph Sasse.

There are hundreds of high school boys who will do the same if given a chance," he says. "I believe Army has one of the best systems in the country for developing football material. You probably know that fraternities and cliques do not rule the roosts there as is done in some colleges."

Another writer on the same subject adds: "A great deal of hokum is written about Army playing ex-college stars. They have had a few but even players like Cagle, Sprague, Jablonsky and Buckler were never good enough to get their names in the headlines before going to West Point. Why not give Army credit for developing the athletic ability of such boys, instead of condemning them?"

NEED COME IN HANDY It is interesting to note in this connection that there's a football star in the plebe class now at West Point, a backfield player considered one of the best blockers in the game, who had to drop gridiron activities because of deficiency in mathematics. Furthermore, that he did so at his own insistence, rather than seek assistance, because, he told superiors, his chief idea in going to West Point was to make an Army career for himself and not to add to his football reputation.

Unless this player makes up the demerits, he may not be at West Point next season, when he would be eligible for varsity competition. And even if he does stick, he may be unavailable for football.

His name is Harrison Stafford. He was a star at the University of Texas and selected on the second All-America team of 1932.

position and study, and they suggest that before a campaign of denunciation is organized it would be useful to have a campaign of education.

I do not see why the President does not do something to help the people to understand his policy. It would be ever so much better than calling them Tories.

All these considerations do not prove that the Warren gold policy is sound. I do not know whether it is sound. But they do show that it is entitled to sympathetic examination.

Virginia Boasts Handy Man in Eugene Wager

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (UP)—University of Virginia coaches are calling Eugene Wager their most versatile and obliging player.

He has played on the varsity football team three years and each season has found him with a new job in the line.

Back in high school days he was the star center at Ellensburg, Wash., and he came to college bent on playing that position. He found too much competition, though, and switched to tackle, making the varsity in his sophomore year.

Last year the coaches needed an end and they asked Eugene to take the job. This season a center was needed and Wager was shifted back to his first love. Now the coaches are wondering why they didn't have him there all the time.

From The Sidelines

By BILL ZEE

It's over now, this business of seeing football games and living in constant fear of somebody protesting a member of your team. At last, we, as well as everyone else, can rest peacefully until next year, when the Big Spring Steers are going to stampe to their first District 3 title, to see an eligibility protest filed against some local boy.

This sector waited until the last moment before it was bitten by the intelligibility bug. And then it almost served as a boomerang on San Angelo. Maybe they'll learn better than to file a formal protest and then attempt to withdraw it. Well, anyway, Obie Bristow nearly won a district title out of the deal.

Now that football season is over, uno all but the shouting done, the time comes for the picking of all-district football teams. Elsewhere in this paper is one with which we had a great deal to do. We could show partially, as is sometimes done, and choose the entire "F" team—which wouldn't be much a bad choice. But like Blomdy Cross, Bobcats for his mythical team last year. When accused of partiality, he said, "No, I'm not, if I were, I'd put the whole team down."

Rep. Duvall Expected To Seek Witt's Place

FORT WORTH (UP)—The political bee, set to buzzing by Congressman Joseph Weldon Bailey's announcement for the U. S. Senate, has started humming in Fort Worth and Tarrant county.

Announcement of J. C. Duvall, Fort Worth state representative, of his candidacy for lieutenant-governor is said to be a matter of a few weeks at the most, throwing him in the race against Sen. Walter Wood of Houston.

Duvall was chairman of the powerful House Revenue and Taxation Committee in the last regular legislature. He was one of the most liberal members of the House, fostering the horse-race betting bill and standing behind other liberal movements.

Second to interest in Duvall's expected candidacy is that for state senator from Tarrant county. Senator Frank Rawlings, who ends his first term next year, probably will seek re-election. He was a strong supporter of the legislature of beer and race betting.

Frank Patterson, Jr., of Fort Worth, young floral representative from Tarrant and Denton counties, will oppose Rawlings, it is believed. Patterson also was supporter of liberal movements in the last legislature.

Two others are known to be gazing at the senatorial seat—Frank Ogilvie, a former assistant district attorney and supporter of Ross Sterling in 1932 gubernatorial race, and Mack Taylor, Fort Worth attorney.

Coach George Brown has sounded the call for his basketball team to assemble for the coming school year. Brown, with Bucket Hare, Jack Dean, and Caps Vendell Wood as a nucleus, will attempt to weld his third district champion in the past four years. The Steer netters have a record of which they should be well proud in five years at home they have lost only 8 out of 59 games. And those few games were to some of the fastest basketball teams ever seen on the local hardwood court.

Brown has several owners in Cordill, Neal, and the two Flowers brothers. Hare, Neal, Cordill and Sam Flowers have two more seasons each after this one.

San Angelo treks to El Paso for their first round in the schoolboy play-offs where they will tangle with Bowie's Bears. The El Paso team is composed entirely of Mexicans. San Angelo has a neat handle to jump if they take them. However, regardless of the winner of that game, we're picking the winner of the District 1 and 2 battle.

Pampa or Abilene is due to go to the semi-finals from the upper bracket while in the lower section we consider Brackenridge (San Antonio) or Greenville as choices to come through for the semi-final rounds.

The teams, considered by pre-season dopsters as the most outstanding, will meet to decide for themselves which is the best. Temple plays Ranger this week-end at Temple. Temple's Lions reign as favorites by virtue of their 68-0 win over Brownwood. Ranger defeated Brownwood 26-4. The winner of this melee, it is reported, will meet Amarillo.

Which ever team of these three emerges victorious over the other two will have every right to consider itself as uncrowned schoolboy champions of Texas.

Annual Faculty Program In Charge Of Tiny Reed

Plans are now under way to stage the annual Faculty stunt night program on Thursday night, January 11, according to D. H. Reed, who is in charge of the arrangements.

"It will be impossible to indicate the exact nature of the program yet," Reed stated, "but, as has been our custom in the past, we will try to offer a variety show, new and different from anything ever shown in this town."

Proceeds from the program this year will go toward caring for the entertainment expenses of the amusement program for the spring meeting of the Oil Belt Education Association which is to be held here in March.

Mr. Reed indicated that in all probability at least two performances would be given here and said that there was a possibility that the teachers would carry the program to neighboring towns.

"The team with the best lawyer is sure to win" was the way the Wheel sports writer summed up the situation in regard to the current condition in the football division of the Interscholastic League competition. Of course the statement was not meant to be a serious criticism of the situation, but it does express all too well the way many, many ardent supporters of high school athletics have come to feel about it.

Throughout the state this fall there have been a number of eligibility cases brought before district committees, and the evidence has been of such a nature a number of times to disqualify teams whose early season records had marked them as strong contenders for the state championship. In a number of these cases the schools disqualified had earned for themselves over a long period of time the reputation for adhering strictly to the rules of the league.

The occasion for the recent squabble over eligibility may be traced directly to the new rules of the league and the lack of experience among the school officials in checking every source to be sure that the representatives of their school are eligible.

The Wheel was happy when the University of Texas Interscholastic League adopted the new rules and we advocate the strict enforcement of them, but a certain tendency over the state to transfer the contact from the gridiron where the customers pay to see it won to the privacy of the district committee room makes us believe that certain rules concerning the administration of the present laws should be adopted.

The Wheel believes that if the schools are to maintain the present interest in our athletics it is imperative that all contending of eligibility be done before the season starts and that the teams certified at the beginning of the season be permitted to finish the season.

Senior Rings Are Ordered

Three orders of senior rings have been sent off and out of these two have arrived. Sixty-six seniors have ordered rings and ninety-one have been measured. "We will send an order off for anyone as soon as they pay their dollar deposit," said Principal Gentry.

The method of ordering rings has been changed this year. Instead of the rings being sent in full orders to Principal Gentry they are sent C. O. D. to the individual students.

Plans for the senior barbecue have been completed. The barbecue is to be held at the City Park Friday night instead of the new water well as first planned. All seniors who have paid their quarter are to meet in front of the High School building by six-thirty and plenty of care will be furnished to carry them to the City Park.

After the barbecue has been eaten, games will be played. They plan to be back in town by eight o'clock.

Fifteen Junior High School Broncho Football Players Letter

Fifteen members of the Junior High School Broncho football squad were lettered, according to Coach Gene Gardner, and will be privileged to wear the Broncho sweater.

While it is not possible for the Athletic Council of the school to issue awards this year, all of the fifteen men who wish to do so may buy the standard sweater chosen for the club. The sweaters are maroon with "Bronchos" written across the chest and one service stripe on the arm.

Members of the squad who participated in as many as twelve quarters and qualified for a letter are: Mills Wood, Odell Womack, Harold Wood, Alton Cunniff, Elmer Polson, Chester Smith, guards; Choc Smith, center; Choc Jones, Weldon Bigony, quarterback; Johnny McGee, Raymond Lee Williams, halfbacks; Julian Neal, Buck Tyree, Chester Williams, fullbacks.

Conflicting Evidence Presented In Eligibility Wrangle; San Angelo Gets District Three Title

Conflicting evidence and various contentions brought to an end District 3's eligibility squabble, giving to San Angelo its first title since 1912. The Bible list of what chance they might have had for the crown.

District 3's gridiron affairs were running along smoothly, no team bore evil toward another. San Angelo and Sweetwater were to play for the district crown Thanksgiving day. But San Angelo was dropped to lose. So, and it might be conjectured truthfully, Angelo wanted to have almost a cinch on the royal purple. A protest was the answer. One against John Holbert of Sweetwater.

Most of the evidence had been gathered with the assistance of Ed McCarna, lately of San Angelo and more recently of Mannington, W. V. Nothing more to do than to lodge the protest. But the Concho gridders stopped Hennis's Nags. No need of a protest now. Mr. Chester Kenley, San Angelo high school principal, attempted, then, to withdraw the protest. Chairman Gentry offered to vacate the chair which is the custom in the Committee meetings, but the other members held that he preside and vote. His was the only negative ballot.

And thus Sweetwater came clear of her ineligibility charges while San Angelo is enjoying the glories of a district title, and Big Spring is harboring no grudge.

Broncs Hold Pecos Eaglets To 13-0 Score

Playing at Pecos, and with the added handicap of having been defeated by an overwhelming score on their own field, Coach Gene Gardner's Junior High Bronchos held the veritable Pecos Eaglets to a 13-0 tally, putting up a stubborn battle against a superior opposing forward wall.

The game was the last of two contests to determine the mythical junior championship of West Texas.

The closeness of the score, as compared to the score of the first game indicates the closeness of the battle although Pecos immediately got tuff in the lead early in the first quarter.

In the first few minutes of play Richards, shifty Eaglet back and aerial bomber, heaved the pigskin 20 yards to Lybrand, end. Lybrand ran the remaining 30 yards for the initial counter. A pass attempted for the extra point was incomplete.

Both teams played nip and tuck football until the latter part of the fourth stanza when Captain Bob Kelton scampered around end for fifteen yards to the Big Spring one foot line. Richards crashed off-guard for the touchdown.

An opportunity for the Bronchos to score came a few moments later after Coach Thompson, Pecos, had substituted with a number of high reserves. The Gardnermen drove down the field from the middle of the gridiron to the 3 yard line where the midjet Eaglet linemen bolstered and held for down.

The game ended with no more scoring threats.

Pecos has scored 120 points to 18 for their opponents this season.

Rev. John Thorns Talks On History In Chapel Period

Rev. John C. Thorns, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, addressed high school students in chapel Wednesday morning on history.

"When we study history," said the speaker, "we realize it is a study of individuals whose stories taken together make up the story of the day."

He pointed out that at the same time Washington and Columbus were making history, Aaron Burr and Benedict Arnold were making history of an altogether different sort.

Thorns pleaded with students to so live as to be a credit to the community, to bring no ignominious history down upon it.

go in or the trust will reign supreme.

To substantiate their point the independents call attention to the forthcoming bids on 2,000,000 pounds of aluminum for the Navy. The little fellows had opening of these bids postponed until December 25 pending outcome of the code squabble.

If the trust is required NOT to quote special spot prices to its own subsidiaries the independents can bid on the Navy order. If no such clause is included they won't be able to meet the competition.

They argue this proves perfectly Mr. Mellon's Aluminum Company is a monopoly. Borah is inclined to agree. You'll quite likely hear from him.

The only hitch is that the aluminum company controls production 100 per cent.

It does about 75 per cent of the fabricating, the independents doing the rest.

General Johnson makes the point that the law requires only that a substantial proportion of an industry is necessary to produce a code. He holds the Mellon company represents better than 90 per cent.

Nickel
The recent decision of Germany, France and other countries to follow Japan's example and increase their nickel coinage on the surface looks like just another monetary move.

Our state, war and navy departments see something more significant in this doubling and tripling of the world demand for nickel.

They look upon it as another indication of the war fever now stirring in so many places.

A large reserve of nickel is highly useful in time of war. Coins made of this metal can be easily recalled from circulation and melted down for armament use.

Germany, suspected of so much in the way of secret re-arming, has a special break from the situation.

You can't accuse a country of getting ready for battle just because it puts out a flock of nickel coins.

Federal Reserve
Many local bankers agree with Winthrop Aldrich's criticism of the Federal Reserve who don't agree with him about anything else. The Federal Reserve bank's new money policy in 1928, adopted with the blessing of British authorities, generally admitted to have contributed vitally to excessive asset speculation.

Insiders blame it less on the system than on the lack of leadership at the time. Governor Benjamin Siring ruled the bank with an iron hand but he was laid up most of that year with the illness which preceded his death and bank policy tended to drift into the easiest channels.

New York suspects that Aldrich's remarks were meant to pave the way to revision of the Federal Reserve Act. The changes would give the government much broader powers of intervention. That might be a practical compromise with the demand from radical congressmen for abolition of the Federal Reserve.

Aldrich
Suggestions for plugging the loopholes in the Banking Act of 1933 made by Mr. Aldrich fitted in beautifully with pre-arranged plans. Congress is expected to enact them early in the session with presidential approval—and Aldrich will be the fair-haired boy. Local bankers do not quarrel particularly with his ideas but sort of wish they had thought of them first.

Mr. Aldrich's comments about investment bankers stirred mixed emotions among the tribe. They noted especially his comment that "investment banking should not be destroyed or superseded by a government agency" and wonder if they are supposed to be grateful for the crumb. They aren't.

Rebuttal
Albert Wiggin still has a number of friends and defenders hereabouts. They are extremely bitter toward Mr. Aldrich and claim that he deliberately dumped everything on Wiggin's back in order to protect his own position. They insist that the case against Wiggin was made to appear much worse than it actually was and that he was given no opportunity to present a rebuttal.

They also inquire why no one asked any questions about the German loans which the Chase inherited from the Equitable.

It is true that Wiggin was a much larger stockholder in the Chase than is customary for bank officers and that he therefore had an important personal stake in the effect of his decisions. It is also true that he was bold enough to tide over hundreds of businesses by extending them credit in '29 and '30 when other banks were frantically calling in their loans.

Code
The investment bankers' new code of trade practices will be a pip. The committee in charge is trying to work out a set of regulations so severe that even the government cannot help patting them on the back for it. The step hope still lingers that rigid self-regulation will be acceptable in place of stringent application of the Securities Act.

Bruere
Local insiders credit the government with a smart move in naming Henry Bruere to investigate the alleged hardships inflicted by the Securities Act.

Bruere has the confidence of the financial community and is unlikely to be swayed by passionate rhetoric from either side. If he finds that the security underwriting crowd are seeking spoils—which is rated better than an even chance—he will say so. That would cut the ground from under the calamity howlers for keeps.

Wall Street sincerely believes it has an authentic case for modification and will offer volumes of evidence to Mr. Bruere to prove it. Dealers are willing to swallow almost anything except the extreme personal liabilities in the act.

Regulation
The Stock Exchange has a lively interest in the effort of the Grain Exchange officials have refused to accept responsibility for administering the government regulations. The best local opinion holds that the government will either have to yield on several vital points or take the exchanges over bodily—which

Goldman
Proposals for stricter regulation of the Stock Exchange were originally offered by Henri Goldman Jr. to President Richard Whitney some weeks before they were made public. Goldman received a polite acknowledgment—but nothing more.

Sensing that his plan had been sidetracked, Goldman then sent it to Chairman Fletcher of the senate investigating committee. He had no thought or intention that it should be made public. But the senators thought it was too good to keep to themselves and Goldman's Exchange business took it on the chin.

Conversion
The treasury's forthcoming mid-month program will include an exchange offer for short-term certificates to holders of the called but unconverted Fourth Liberties. Having shown small appetite for long-term bonds they will be tempted with brief maturities. Local experts expect the maneuver to be successful.

Littlefield Resigns As Texas Coach

Action Follows Re-election, Meagher Makes Stand At Rice

AUSTIN, (UP)—Clyde Littlefield resigned as head football coach at the University of Texas after having been re-elected for next year by the University athletic council.

Littlefield will be retained as head track coach at his own request, at an unstated salary.

He prepared a statement to be made public but submitted it first to the council and that group declined to release it, although it issued a statement of its own, at the conclusion of the secret meeting in the office of Dean V. L. Moore.

The statement, made public by Dr. W. E. Metzenthin, chairman of the council, said in part:

"The athletic council by unanimous vote recommended the renewal of the contract of Clyde Littlefield as head coach of football and track for the years 1934-35. Mr. Littlefield appeared before the council and after expressing appreciation of the action, declared that under the present circumstances he would prefer to be relieved of his duties as football coach and be allowed to concentrate on track."

HOUSTON, (UP)—The Rice Institute committee on outdoor sports was in session for several hours Tuesday but announced no action on selection of a football coach for 1934.

J. T. McCats, chairman of the committee, said that no action was taken. Jack Meagher, head coach for the past five years, appeared before the body to present his case for retention.

It was indicated the committee might hold another session Wednesday. Meagher had been subjected to considerable criticism as a result of the Owls' poor showing this season and the Rice Alumni association had refused to endorse his record.

Officials To Ask Insull To Leave Greece

Must Depart To Prevent Misunderstanding With U. S.

ATHENS, (UP)—It was learned reliably that the Greek government will request Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities magnate to leave Greece at the expiration of his police permit December 31, 1933.

Insull, it was explained, has no passport.

The government was said to be prepared to furnish a laissez passer for any country which Insull desires to enter from Greece.

This action would be the result of the Greek government's decision to do all possible to avoid disturbing friendly relations with the United States, which has made repeated representations desiring his extradition to face criminal charges in Chicago in connection with the bankruptcy of his utilities concern.

A member of the Greek senate deposited with that body an interpellation asking the Greek government what it had decided about Insull's return.

The senator said he believed it was necessary to forbid Insull to remain further in Greece because of misunderstanding which might lessen the friendliness of Greco-American relations.

There were other indications that Insull's refuge in Greece was becoming more insecure. Foreign Minister D. Maximos told the Associated Press the government would not deny any legal measures facilitating the return of the 73-year old former utilities king.

The minister pointed out, however, that the government was unable to turn Insull directly over to the United States after Greek courts had twice denied his extradition in extended trials based on provisions of the newly arranged extradition treaty.

M. Maximos said nothing had been done about renewing Insull's residence permit, adding that negotiation had been brought up against Insull by competent Greek authorities, therefore no decision had been taken.

Judge Woodward To Retire From Pardons Board

Judge J. O. Woodward 78, Coleman pioneer, will retire January 1 from the state board of pardons and paroles. It was learned from his son, Senator Walter C. Woodward. His resignation, sent to Governor Miriam A. Ferguson a month ago, lately has been accepted, the governor thanking him for his services to the state.

His health made Judge Woodward's resignation necessary. He became ill about six weeks ago, while in Dallas and is slowly convalescing in his Coleman home.

Judge Woodward was appointed on the pardon board by Governor Moody and served as chairman until Governor Ferguson took office. Formerly he presided over the 53th district court.

He is the father of Garland Woodward, local attorney.

Presbyterian Men Hear Ex-Secretary Of Missions Speak

"Men of the Church," First Presbyterian men's organization, heard Dr. S. H. Chester, secretary-emeritus of the foreign mission board of the Presbyterian church, of U. S., speak on missions Tuesday evening.

Dr. Chester recalled out of a rich store of experience many interesting happenings bearing on growth of mission work abroad. He is father of A. E. Chester, president of the men's organization.

Leon Moffett, E. E. Fahrkemp, and Allen Hodges, spoke briefly from a layman's point of view on foreign missions.

Carl Young, accompanied by Cecil Floyd, was well received in a special musical number.

C. W. Cunningham was in charge of the program.

Dinner for twenty-five attending the regular monthly meeting was served by members of the Ladies Auxiliary.

Presbyterian Elders Are Chosen Here

At a congregational meeting of the First Presbyterian church last Sunday the following men were unanimously elected elders of the church: Sim O'Neal, Leon Moffett and W. E. Crairike. At the same time the following were elected deacons: A. E. Chester, Lee Porter, A. A. Porter, Allen Hodges, Bob Middleton, Raymond Dunagan and Herbert Whitney. The ordination and installation of these officers will be held in the immediate future.

Boy Scout Initiation At Rotary

Rotary club members saw a real Boy Scout initiation ceremony at its regular weekly luncheon Tuesday in the Settles ballroom. Charles Campbell, candidate for tenderfoot scout, passed the examination and test required of a tenderfoot scout, before a regular scout council, presided over by Scoutmaster Walton Morrison, Paul Warren, guard and scribe; Robert Hatley, guide; and Jimmy Ford, patrol leader.

The ceremony was very impressive, from start to finish, and the Rotary club got first hand information on what a scout had to know to become a tenderfoot. Scoutmaster Morrison outlined the requirements of a tenderfoot scout before the ceremony began. He said there were three stages of initiation a Boy Scout must go through will before coming a tenderfoot.

B. Reagan, acting vice-president of the Buffalo Trails Council, presented to President E. J. Mary of the Rotary club a charter for Troop 1, sponsored by the local Rotary Club. Troop 1 is the oldest troop in Texas, and one of the oldest in the United States. Grover Cunningham, chairman of the boys' work committee, announced that a drawing would be made from a hat holding names of the scouts in Troop 1, and each Rotarian would be expected to sponsor that particular member. Every Rotarian present drew one of the names.

Mrs. Bruce Frazier, club pianist led the club in a sing-song before the program, in charge of Charles Cunningham, began. The club practiced on the song, entitled "The Road Is Open Again". Words to the song were:

"There's a new day in view, There is gold in the blue,
There is hope in the hearts of man,
All the world's on the way to a sunnier day,
'Cause the road is open again,
There's a note of repair, there's a song in the air,
It's the music of busy men,

'Cause the road is open again,
There's an Eagle Blue, in the White House too,
