Fresh Italian Counter-Attacks Fail To Stop Advance Of Greeks

Captives Say Fascists' Air Fields Ruined

ATHENS, Dec. 12. UP)-Italian forces were reported today to have attempted counter-attacks at two points in the northern sector of the Albanian front, only to be driven back by the Greeks with heavy losses and lose the position from which they attacked.

The Greeks were said to have captured a large number of prisoners and much war material. Italian prisoners were quoted as saying that British Royal Air force and Greek attacks on the air-dromes at Durazzo and Tirana main port of entry into Albania and the capital, respectively, had been so effective that the Italians had abandoned the fields.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP) -The Dutch destroyer Van Kins bergen, a surprise companion of British men-o'-war on Atlantic blockade duty, today had account ed for the last of three German merchant ships which slipped out of the harbor at Tampico, Mexico.

The Van Kinsbergen took cossession of the Rhein, 6,031possession of the Rhein, 6,051-ton German freighter, off the coast of Cuba, naval authorities here announced last night. This terse statement was the first in-timation here that Netherlands warships were operating in con-junction with British in western waters.

The navy reported the freighter's nazi crew attempted to scuttle their vessel to prevent its seizure by the Van Kinsbergen. An independent source asserted that the merchantman also had been set on fire when the destroyer closed in Another German freighter, the 5,033-ton Idarwald, which steamed out of Tampico with the Rheir Nov. 29, was scuttled by her crew Sunday when intercepted by the British cruiser Diomede.

As early as Nov. 15, the Rhein Idarwald and a sister ship, the Phrygia, had attempted to steal out of the Mexican gulf port, with disastrous consequences for th Phrygia.

The Phrygia's master ordered his vessel scuttled. A fourth German cargo vessel, the Orinoco, was halt ed by engine trouble before she could clear Tampico harbor, and still is there.

Now I must tell you what hap pened the first time Eric opened his magic locket to ask for help. He snapped it open and whisper-d, "Give me help, little friend. I Right under his eyes, in the locket, he suddenly saw a tiny, tiny horse with a pair of wings From the locket came a voice which said, "Take this horse and set him on the ground. He will become big enough for you to ride. Then go to the giant who thinks he is the sun and tell him you have come from a Queen who thinks she is the sun.

"Tell the giant that the Queer can walk 30 days and nights with out tiring. Tell him she has so many faithful subjects that all through the 30 days and nights these is never a vacant place along the roads. Hundreds of people sather to admire her as she pass es by.'

So Erlc did as he was told. He set the tiny horse on the ground First it was no bigger than lady-bug. Then it was a beautiful big horse with large gray wings. Eric said good-bye to Santa who had been watching. "Good luck, by boy," said Santa. "I shall here by the road. I'll make stay some toys for the children in the town. Come back and tell me the over governmental policy that goes against a showing conclusively more efficient and re economical operation. The Herald sees litm-other than politics-for any agitation hat might be started toward bringing about disance of Howard county's current unit watem of lateral road improvement.

For the record, which does show more efficiand more economical operation, speaks loudly the unit system. It, in fact, ought to be reparded as one of the major achievements of the harlie Suilivan administration, which has prevailed for the past four years.

The unit system could have shown even a stronger record in its own behalf, we believe, if it had been in operation longer. The change from the outmoded precinct, local upkeep procedure was a drastic one, and some months naturally had to be devoted to reorganization. The unit system actually has had about nine months of operation which would constitue a fair test.

The county records show that 12 1-2 miles of new road have been constructed in that nine-

Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON-Ten or more states (and it could happen to all 48) now can get ready for the Battle of the Decade that has been cropping up every decade but one since 1790. Its other name is Reapportionment!

The Census Bureau has sent to the president the 1940 census figures, with computations of the number of representatives to congress each state will be allowed. By law, the president must pass these figures along to congress within a week after the new congress convenes January 3. Within 60 days, congress must reapportion the seats in the house-or the reappointment, by the "method of major fractions." will automatically become effective.

Here's the way it works. If the house of representatives is to continue with 435 members (and consequently, the same electoral votes and presidential convention delegations) then (by the method of major fractions) ten states will lose one representative each. These would be Arkansas, Blinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Nebraska, Ohio, Oklahoma and Pennsylvania. California would gain three representatives and the following states would gain one each: Arizona, Florida, Michigan, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oregon and Tennessee

If the "method of equal proportions" is used, the results will be the same except that Michigan and Arkańsas will retain the same numbers of representatives as they now have.

MAY IGNORE REDISTRICTING

I'm not going to get involved with the explanation of these two mathematical theories of representation. Except to some budding Einstein. wouldn't mean anything. The main point is that in 1910 and 1930 (there wasn't any reapportionment in 1920, and before the new decade was out, the error in that was apparent and a law now forbids ignoring it) the "method of equal proportions" was applied . . . and will be this time unless congress changes its mind.

So. What is going to happen? In the states which gain one or more representatives, they can-if they wish-ignore redistricting and in 1942 merely add another "congressman-at-large" to the state's ballot. In the case of California, of course, it would be three congressmen-at-large.

the years preceding! The records show further that the county has effected a saving, in its road program under the unit system, of more than $6,-

000. This is something over seven per cent, on the approximate volume of $80,000 per year the county has for its road and bridge fund. And we know of few businesses which would not welcome a system that would effect a seven per and The Herald has taken the position time and again that these are as important, to the county as a whole, as are designated highways-we can build only on a county-wide plan to get maximum benefit. If we can get more improved lateral roads-and these are the routes that favor the seat-at less money, then there is no excuse for tinued.

In Illinois, Ohio and Oklahoma, the legislatures can wrangle over whether they want to drop their present posts of "congressmen-at-large ... or redistrict.

In Illinois that would mean dropping one of the seats held by Congressman-elect William G. Stratton and Stephen A. Day; in Ohio, one of those held by Rep, George H. Bender and Congressman-elect Stephen M. Young, in Oklahoma, the seat now held by Rep. Will Rogers.

In the other seven states which lose reprecontatives, redistricting must come. If that were all, it would mean possibly only political upheaval, attempts at gerrymandering (juggling district lines so one party or the other will have a voting advantage), and otherwise general fracases in the above-named states. But that isn't all.

TWO EXAMPLES

But no Maugham.

When the census maps finally get back to the states, there will come up again the decennial struggle to eliminate or maintain districts which obviously offer such unfair representation as to be sometimes almost laughable. Just to take two as examples. In New York City, Samuel Dickstein represents the lower east side 12th congressional district. According to the 1930 census, he has been speaking for 90,671 persons. Just across the East River in Kings county, Donald O'Toole, in the eighth district, has been representing 799,407 persons In other words, if Dickstein's district and O'Toole's are on opposite sides of the fence on any issue, then the former has nearly eight times the voting strength of the latter in the house of representatives.

Do you see why reapportionment is bound to be another Battle of the Decade?

fallacy of ever trying to picture an author in one's mind's eye from merely reading his books. With "Power" and "The Oppermans' in mind, I had imagined Feuchtwanger to be of imposing stature. On the contrary, he is a little man, rising barely an inch or so over five feet. In contrast, Anderson and Van Paassen towered loftier than usual.

Later, in Maugham's rooms, I was able to note the titles of more than 50 books that he had brought with him. Although he is himself the author of scores, none was present Ernest Hemingway was represented, also Hartzell Spence, Oscar Levant, and quite a few military experts.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

HOLLYWOOD They have filmed the hig ballet sequence for "No, No, Nanette" but the story behind it is yet to be told.

Herbert Wilcox, the director-producer, had his doubts about ballet in its relation to the general movie public.

Anna Neagle and 24 other dancers were to do this ballet which would symbolize the struggle in an artist's soul between commercialism and serious art. The sequence, as usual, was going to cost a neat little sum, but Wilcox didn't mind that as long as it served to put over a story point without clogging the story tempo. He didn't want it to mean, to the movie fans, just a pretty dance inserted while the story caught its breath.

He talked it over with Aida Broadbent, who creates ballets and dances for the movies.

"The number must mean something, must stand on its own as a means of plot progression." said Wilcox. "It's the ideal way to put over the point, but I'm not sure the picture public is sufficiently familiar with ballet to grapp it as quickly as they must to make it effective in the picture."

Aida Broadbent said she thought anyone with an ounce of imagination, the slightest sense of tone and rythm, could interpret the average ballet. Wilcox said, "Show me"

So they staged an informal lunchtime matince on a sound stage. The audience included some 30 secretaries and office workers from the lot All they had to do, after Miss Broadbent's dancers improvised a ballet "Quest for Beauty," was to write down their individual impressions of what the dance was all about

- By Robbin Coons

The results rather bore out Wilcox's notion. Quest for Beauty," in the answers, turned out to be 'Storm,' 'The Spirit of Aviation,' 'Boy Meets Girl,' 'Supper at Ciro's' and so on. Wilcox conceded the Broadbent point about "imagination," and also conceded that the test might not have been a fair one.

They tried it again-with the ballet girls rehearsing the actual Art vs. Commercialism number as conceived by Miss Broadbent, and with Wilcox taking the precaution to explain to his audience the story of the picture, thus putting the ballet into proper context. This time the results-before an audience of 34-were more satisfactory. Most of the spectators caught on.

Well, If you see the movie, you can judge for vouraelf.

Meanwhile, although ballet appears to be gaining in popular favor, the balletinas haven't been doing so well on the screen Vera Zorina, who is a lovely thing op stage or off, has yet to do a picture as antisfactory as any one of her stage appearances, and Irina Baranova, who was impressive on stage and in front of the camera, didn't register on the screen (in "Florian.") The best ballet dancer in pictures remains as always, an actor who was never in ballet -Chaplin. (For sample of his act, see "The Great Dictator.")
