UN Refuses To Debate Case Of Gerhart Eisler

Spring Session of General Assembly Is Brought to End

NEW YORK, May 19. (AP) spring session last night by rejecting a surprise Polish fugitive.

Poland unsuccessfully raised the Eisler controversy at the end of the six-week spring session marked by two positive achievements -admission of Israel as the 59th UN member and approval of the first world treaty intended to safeguard international transmission of Sharp disagreements blocked action on disposal of Italy's pre-war colonies and on a Latin American move to lift the UN ban on toplevel diplomatic representation in Spain. The colonies question was put over until the assembly's fall session here.

Polish Delegate Juliusz Katz-Suchy delayed the scheduled adjournment when he suddenly brought up the case of Eisler, now held in England after jumping bail away aboard the Polish Lines in the United States and stowing Batory.

Katz-Suchy said his government wanted the Eisler case discussed by the UN immediately. He charged Eisler's detention in England at American request was a "violation of fundamental rights and freedoms, traditional practices of political asylum and accepted principles of international law."

The Pole argued bitterly when Assembly President Herbert V. Evatt of Australia ruled Poland had not given sufficient notice before presenting the Eisler case and that adjournment plans would not be changed.

General Rush Seen Friday When City Lake Is Re-Opened

Based on inquiries concerning the exact date of opening which have deluged the city hall, the Herald office and sporting goods establishments, a general rush toward Moss Creek lake is expected Friday morning when the fishing season will be ushered in following a recess of two months.

C. R. McClenney, city secretary, recalled that a veritable "land office" business resulted when the city lake was first re-opened after the war, and he will not be surprised if demands for fishing licenses reach the same proportions for a few days, beginning Friday. Throughout the city this morning there was evidence that fishermen are planning to turn out tomorrow in substantial numbers. Such evidence prompted city firemen to rush their plans for establishing a fish-bait center at the city hall fire station. They had hundreds of minnows ready this morning and they hope to keep a good supply con-

With a little luck and a better sense of timing, the Cayuses might have gotten the required 41/2 innings of play in against San Angelo here last night.

As it was, San Angelo was at bet and in a threatening position in the top half of the fifth when the rains came and Umpire Ben Cook had to rule "no contest."

Additional Funds For Education System Sets Demand For Results

A persistent battle for more state funds for its educational system appears to be over the hump, and along with it some sharp reorganization.

In the main, the three major bills will shift some weight from local districts to the state, although there may be exceptions. As a general rule, the measures ought to mean more funds available.

To those who have campaigned long for more support and for reforms, this near achievement doubtless will be cause for satisfaction that comes out of victory. Teachers, who would be among the beneficiaries, might look forward to more remunerated salaries.

But there is another side to this matter, namely a sobering realization that educators, from the newest teacher to the highest administrator, will be confronted with the herculean task of making a

Consistent stress on the need of additional funds have resulted in a popular conception that money is the answer to the problem. Indeed it is tap root to the answer, but expenditures of money in education cannot be expected reasonably to work a revolution in the twinkling of an eye. But a large segment of the public may anticipate revolutionary results.

There are a few easy surface manafestations of better education, but by and large the deeper currents are not so quickly gauged. It sometimes takes years for the verdict to shape on effectiveness of an educational program or system. Public understanding on this point will help just as well as a realization on the part of educators that they must strive as never before in the next two years to produce first evidences that the new investment announcement that Japanese reparations are being terminated to practical intents. A considerable portion of political dynamite also is wrapped up in the deal.

Economic Logic But Political Dynamite In Japanese Decision

Economic logic stems from the position of the U.S. in pumping huge sums into the economy of Japan in order that that country might not only recover but make some token payments on its reparations. In effect, the American taxpayer would be subsidizing the reparations,

The other side of the picture is the effect this course of action has and will have on the Far Eastern policy. Gen, Carlos Romulo, expressing a Philippine reaction and perhaps one typical of the victims of Japanese aggression, was dismayed. How genera, that feeling is among Asiatics we do not know, but there is a possibility that it is widespread on the part of those who suffered so much at the hands of the Japanese

This is especially so in the light of declarations from the Far Eastern Commission that Japan needs more prime industrial works, which might be easily converted to war purposes.

It would be wise perhaps to gear individual decisions to the over-all policy in the Far East. It would be wise, too, to be rid of the popular myth that everything is rosy in Japan. The same problems exist there as exist in other occupied ter-

COMPROMISE IN CHINA American Ambassador Leighton Stuart in China is mad as a hornet at the British for trying to make a deal with the Chinese Communists behind his back. Without telling Stuart a word British representatives talked with the Chinese Communists twice last week. By accident Su-

the Chinese Communists let De British keep Hong Kong, the British government will then be willing to extend formal recognition to the Communist regime.

The British have concluded that they will never be able to hold out on Hong Kong against the Communists even with the new land, air and sea reinforcements that have been rushed there, hence their willingness to compromise. Stuart is plenty burned up over the whole affair because such a deal would pull the last rug out from under the Chinese Nationalists by giving the Communists their biggest diplomatic victory. BLANKET CONTRACTS

Painstaking, persevering Sen. Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming has been applying the scourge to big monopolies for years. Now he has come up with revealing information on the way big corporations handle big contracts with the government. In 1946, the Atomic Energy Commission signed a contract with General Electric for Atomic Energy work at Hanford, Wash., and Schenectady, N. Y., under which G.E. was paid all its costs plus a fixed fee of $1. The total amount obligated under this contract was $370 million of which $7 million was paid to General Electric for salaries, training of personnel, etc.

Meanwhile, Sen. O'Mahoney points out that it has become a common practice of the Atomic Energy Commission to get around congressional appropriations by authorizing blanket contracts in such a way that Congress cannot judge their validity. In the current year, for instance, the commission has contract appropriations of $600 million and Congress has no way of knowing what it's all about.

The senator from Wyoming, therefore, is demanding that, with out going into atomic secrets but only financial matters, these contracts be filed with the Congress and made available for congressional scrutiny

Edward Bellamy, in his magnificent "Looking Backward," envisions an American Utopia in which the federal government will take over the whole industrial machinery. There will be no more strikes, and there will be no more dissatisfaction with wages, for everyone-common laborer, doctor and engineer-will receive the same pay for doing his best. Such a system, of course, would do away with poverty, crime and a myriad of other social evils, and make the brotherhood of arms bill which is troubling Congress will be greatly affected, and, one may hope, clarified, by what happens at the Council of Foreign Ministers. There is strong support for the pact and the Senate can ratify it during the early days of the Paris meeting.

But the arms bill, and particularly the appropriations, cannot pass until the end of June at the earliest. By that time the Soviet government will have shown its hand in Paris. And so Congress, as it considers the arms bill, will know fairly well whether the danger of military aggression against Western Europe is waxing or waning.

As a matter of fact, the arms bill itself bears little relation to the original conception or to what has been generally said about it. A billion dollars is a trifling amount of money, even as a first installment, if the purpose of the arms bill is to create forces in Western Europe to contain the Red Army. All that the arms bill actually contemplates is the supply of sufficient equipment out of the American surplus to bring the existing forces in Western Europe, which are extremely small, up to a reasonable military standard. A modern armored division costs about 250 million dollars, and so, if the whole sum were used in Western Europe alone, it could not begin to produce a force capable of playing a decisive part in a war. All that the arms bill can do is to arm better the forces which are now almost unarmed.

That is well worth doing, indeed important to do, but not for the reasons usually given, not for the reasons which have left Congress so unconvinced. The real value of creating somewhat better armies in West Europe is that they will give a feeling of security against internal aggression, and a sense of confidence in dealing with the revival of Germany. They are related to the Russian military proble a only indirectly-only in the sense that they remove any temptation by Russia to intervene in case of internal disorder.

If the Soviet government is really pre-

> If, on the other hand, the Soviet government is intransigent and aggressive in Paris and determined to expand rather than to contract its military position in Europe, then it will be manifest that the arms bill is quite inadequate, and that it should at once be enlarged and speeded up. For then it will be necessary to concentrate our efforts on giving Europe immediately the means of resistance. That will call for a radical revision of our own strategical plans and our military pro-

For Mr. Acheson's hand will be strengthened in Paris if it transpires that the scale and tempo of European rearmament are related to the sincerity and reasonableness of the Soviet proposals.

> He will be playing a stronger hand if, with the pact ratified, the arms bill becomes a function of the agreements that are being negotiated-if in substance, satisfactory agreements mean a very modest rearmament, if no agreements mean more rapid and larger armaments.

Not all the old-timers whose names are going on the "big spring centennial year" roster are necessarily those who braved a frontier country to move to Howard county. Many of them were born here. Names continue to come in by special coupon. It is hoped to get the list as complete as possible. If you're a 40-year resident, or know someone who is, the information will be appreciated. Some of the later registrants:
