Around And About

The Sports Circuit

By Tom Beasley

DID YOU ever have the desire to get out and go places? Of course you have. We all have our interests and the places we would like to go and see. Obie Bristow, one of the boys who was smart enough to get out of the coaching racket while still credited with having fairly good sense, hopes to get his fill of football this fall.

IN HIS usual wise-cracking manner, Bristow told us yesterday afternoon that for many years he had had a desire to get out and roam around the country during football season. Go to the various colleges and universities and make a close study of the methods used by all of the big coaches. "I've wanted to do that for years," Obie said, "and if everything works out o. k. I'm going to do it this fall."

JUST TO get a good start to condition himself for the football trek he expects to make, Obie has planned to take in the world series, and he can yell, "We was robbed" to his heart's content.

THE BIG, colorful Bristow, who can peddle hot air with the best of 'em, would spend about a week at each of the major schools. For instance, he would stop at Ohio State for a week, watching the workouts and taking pictures, and then thumb his way to a new location. "That would beat any coaching school," J. Gordon remarked gleefully.

HAROLD B. WHITE is to be here Wednesday with the big stick of the state softball association to stir up interest for the district finals here on Aug. 28 and 29.

COSDEN CHEMISTS WIN FIRST GAME OF PLAY-OFF

LAB TACKS UP 9 TO 7 DECISION

By HANK HART

A dazzling seventh-inning attack snatched the Cosden Chemists to come from behind Monday night and take the first game of the softball playoff series from the Cosden Oilers, 9-7, despite long distance hitting by Spike Hennings' crew and flashes of brilliant fielding by young Freddy Townsend.

Four hits, a pair of walks, and an overthrow by "Mileaway" Baker at first base pushed the Labmen into a safe lead and Roscoe Van Zandt, who had been having a hard time of it, responded by holding the Oilers down without a great deal of trouble through the last three innings.

Heavy Hitters

Van gave up only eight hits during the fray but the Oilers counted six of their seven runs on long distance clouts. Pepper Martin homered for the first marker in the second frame, "Ekeets" West smashed out a homer in the fourth, Martin belted up with another circuit smash in the fifth, this time with Baker aboard, and reliable "Rat" Ramsey put one over Madison's head in right field good for four bases in the sixth with Jake Morgan on the sacks.

Lab went out in front in the opening frame when Ray Groseloc fired a line drive into center field with Tody Williamson and Horace Wallin aboard, but West tied it up in the fourth when he hooked into Van's fast one and sailed it out over the barrier in left field.

Martin's second homer in the fifth gave Swatzy something to work on, and a big sixth frame lengthened his lead to 7-3. After Ramsey had trotted home, Dutch Moxley binged with two away, stole two bases, rested while Van issued free tickets to Baker and Martin, and then romped home when Townsend walked.

That advantage looked big enough, but the Chemists set to work when the first man went to the plate. Phillips beat a throw to first and came all the way home on Howard Swatzy's triple. Howard marked up the second run of the inning when he tallied on Payne's line double, and Pappy went to third when Smith dropped a low throw by Morgan who was attempting to catch Williamson after fielding his hopper. Wallin walked to load the sacks and Madison forced Payne in. Groseloc followed by grounding to Morgan at third. Jake threw in time to catch combine for the district tournament. So that terminates the little squabble between Mgrs. Ernie Richardson of Lab and Spike Hennings of the Oilers.

QUOTING WHITE: "Teams will be restricted to their roster of fifteen men, and have the privilege of selecting two additional players from any team in their league making a total of 17 players they may make eligible for the tournament. A careful study of the rules and regulations will show you it is the desire of the Amateur Softball Association to equalize competition wherever possible, and to exclude teams gathered just for the purpose of entering the tournament. The A. S. A. promotes the playing of the game by many players and does not sanction the idea of all-star teams. However, a team in a small town where there is no organized league has a right to enter competition, and we make it possible under our rules."

Gopher Coach Sees End Of Win String

Mourful Minnesota Mentor Starts Annual 'Worky' Session

By RICHARD F. POWERS MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 4 (AP)—Bernie Bierman is now at his "summer season" worrying. Talk of the Olympics, baseball and the recent 108° temperature here falls to prevent the Minnesota head grid coach from getting in his regular hot weather worrying, preparatory to the start of the imminent fall campaign.

In the fall, Bierman worries in earnest. The Gophers, undefeated since 'way back in 1932, present Bierman with a problem. When will the string of victories be broken? Bierman "cheerfully" admits the string probably will be broken this fall, in fact "maybe three or four times" if the Gophers don't show "a lot more than they showed in spring drill."

Incidentally, Bierman's worries are real. The 1936 Gophers face, in order, the Washington Huskies at Seattle September 28, Nebraska, Michigan, Purdue, Northwestern, Iowa, Texas and Wisconsin.

Still a Powerhouse Barring ineligibility of injuries, however, Minnesota will have another powerhouse eleven to spring on its foes.

Bierman tries to hide a smile when he looks over the veteran line, averaging over 200 pounds, with Ray King and Dwight Reed at ends; Co-Captain Ed Widseth, 225-pound giant, and Lou Midler, 215 pounds, at tackles; at least six high grade guards, and Svendsen at center.

His frown is still missing when he looks over his backfield forces with Co-Captain Julius Alfonso at right half; Bud Wilkinson, 200-pound converted guard at quarter; the "speed quartet," Andy Green, Purdy Thompson, Rudy Gmitro and Bill Matheny at left half and Rork, Christensen and some newcomers at full.

Minnesota will feel the loss of All-America Dick Smith at tackle; Captain Glenn Seidel, George Roscoe, Babe Lovel and Sheldon Beise in the backfield; Dale Rennebohm at center, and other veterans, but the fastest backfield in Minnesota, history will offset some of the loss.

Left Half No Problem Bierman can keep alternating Uram, Thompson, Matheny and Gmitro at the potent left half post. These four backs, uncovered toward the end of the campaign last year, were primarily responsible for the heavy scoring when the Gophers defeated Michigan 40-0 and Wisconsin 37-7.

Critics agree that going out to the coast to play Washington in the first game may prove too much for the Gopher forces. The normally erratic play displayed in the first game each season could prove costly to either side.

But Bierman enjoys his worries. "Just wait until the Gophers tangle with Washington," he says, wiping a dripping forehead. "There will be more heat out there on the grid at Seattle than we have in this heat wave."

Miss Mary Evelyn Lawrence has returned from Dallas where she spent three weeks visiting her aunt, Mrs. Pat Cassidy, and attending the Centennial.

Williamson at home, but in an attempt to complete a double play, Baker bounced the ball off Groseloc's shoulders. Terrazza then binged to account for the final tally.

Finally Connects Jack Smith, who had fallen victim to Van Zandt's fast ball five times in two games, finally beat out an infield blow in the eighth, but Williamson snuffed out that rally by taking Morgan's pop in left and Swatzy "died" on third in the ninth frame when Smith looped a fly to Phillips in short right.

The teams meet again tonight in the second of the championship series.

Oakland Hills Prepares For The '37 Open

Construction Of New Tees Is Underway On Four Holes

BIRMINGHAM, Mich., August 4 (AP)—The 1937 national open golf championship is almost a year away but already the Oakland Hills country club is making preparations for it.

Construction of new tees has been started on four holes. The layout will measure 7,007 yards for the open as compared to its present length of 6,880. Par will be changed from 35-37-72 to 36-36-72. The revision was recommended by Joseph G. Dey, Jr., executive secretary of the United States Golf association, who came here recently to examine the course.

Changes in par will involve the eighth and fourteenth holes. A new tee will be built on the eighth, increasing its length to 552 yards and making it par 5. The front tee will be played on No. 14, making that hole a 455-yard par-4.

Scores Should Stay Down Herb Shave, greenkeeper at Oakland Hills for the last 16 years, has started the task of getting the greens in top shape for the open.

Shave announces that players planning to compete in the open need not have any fears that the traps will be as difficult as they were at Oakland in 1935 when scores skyrocketed and Sam Parks, Jr., unknown Pittsburgh professional, was able to come home a victor with 299 strokes.

"The sand in our 108 traps will be smooth," Shave says. The veteran greenkeeper, who has prepared Oakland Hills for a number of championships, believes that a score of 288, even par, will be good enough to win next year's open.

Bothersome Breeze "There is always a strong wind at Oakland Hills and this breeze will trouble the players," Shave declares.

Championships are nothing new to Oakland Hills. The western open was held here in 1922. In 1924 Cyril Walker won the national open at Oakland Hills with a score of 297, three strokes better than Bobby Jones. Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare won the women's national here in 1929. In 1935 the western junior championship, and in 1936 the western junior girls' tournament were staged on the course.

From the standpoint of championships, Oakland Hills will be an ideal site for the open inasmuch as there are a number of vantage points on the hilly layout from which play on three or more holes may be observed.

Oakland Hills is located 18 miles from downtown Detroit.

Eckhardt Disappointed Brooklyn Baseball Fans BROOKLYN, Aug. 4 (AP)—Brooklyn fans who were disappointed with Eckhardt's futile efforts to hit National league pitching are wondering what sort of pitching he is called on to face in the American association, where he has been setting the pace for batters. Eckhardt came to Brooklyn last spring with quite a reputation as a hitter, having beaten Joe Di Maggio out for the 1935 Pacific coast league batting crown. Stengel was mighty patient with Eckhardt before he let him go back to the minors.

LaBelle, Dory Detton Booked For Top Go

Dory Expects to Tame French Scrapper Tonite

Another wrestling match, packed with scientific artistry and jammed with rough possibilities, is booked at the athletic club's outdoor arena tonight.

Gene La Belle, the wild and woolly Frenchman with the wild and woolly haircut and shave, tangles with the popular Dory Detton in the main event.

Frenchy, who can get as rough as the next person when the occasion demands, has been lectured and warned and threatened about arousing the ire of the cash customers with his rough ways of grappling, and membership fees in the hands of the match tonight will be free of illegal entanglement.

The bout has fine possibilities, and may be the finest exhibition of fair and square bone-twisting staged here this season.

Detton, toasted to a nice brown under the hot sun of Old Mexico, is in the best of condition, but because of his size he is always a target for the rougher boys. Nevertheless, he has a good average on the rating chart. His speed and ability to leap and jump with ease, gives him an edge.

Nick Bozinas, the untrustworthy Greek, meets Herb Parks, the fair-haired boy from Canada, in the semi-windup.

Cyclone Mackey, who sometimes listens to the call of the wild, will romp around the ring with Jack Hinson, the boy from the bayou country of Louisiana who has met and conquered men tougher than Mackey.

Gong sounds for the opener at 8:30 p. m.

WHITE TO BE HERE WICHITA FALLS, Aug. 4 (AP)—Harold B. White, state softball commissioner, will be in Big Spring Wednesday to confer with District Commissioner Howard Thomas and other softball fans on plans for the District 4 tournament.

White, just back from a scouting trip into the southern part of the state, reports that softball is booming. He expects forty teams to play in the state tournament.

seven counties are included in district 4 and each county may send as many teams as it wishes. Membership fee in the Amateur Softball Association of America is $1.50 per team for teams in organized leagues, $2.00 per team for all-star or independent clubs. This fee must be sent in with a certified player list, name of team, manager and town and team record for the season.

Teams Sent Warning Note

August 10 is deadline for Teams To Join Softball Association

The deadline draws near for applications for membership in the Amateur Softball Association of America and places in the West Texas district softball tournament.

By August 10, all teams planning to compete in the district tournament, first step toward a national championship tournament, must have certified rosters, applications and membership fees in the hands of district or state commissioners.

Another warning that Aug. 10 is the deadline for joining the A.S.A. was sent out today to teams in the district No. 4 area. Applications may be sent to Harold B. White, state softball commissioner, at Wichita Falls, or to Howard Thomas, district commissioner, care Seelye Hotel, Big Spring.

There is no limit to the number of clubs allowed in a district tournament, and as many from each town may enter as desire. Twenty-three Steady Performers Of all the world champion Tigers, Goose Goslin, Second-Baseman Charley Gehring, and Third-Baseman Marvin Owen have been the only steady performers.

In addition to his hitting—he has about 29 home runs—the Goose is varying opposition pitchers from another angle. He and the irrepressible Gerald Walker have teamed up in a base stealing act. The double steal is their pet.

To begin with, Goslin stood off the spring challenges of Mickey Cochran's outfield corps for his garden job.

He repulsed the fleet Jo-Jo White and Pete Fox, star of the 1935 world series. During that time, he also showed his heels to a companion veteran, Al Simmons.

The lusty "Yea, Goose," is still a favorite shout at Navin field.

Goose Still Going Good

DETROIT, August 4 (AP)—Baseball's best minds are ready to lay black crepe around the Detroit pennant aspirants, but the Goose won't bow his head.

Fifteen years in the major leagues—and Tiger Left-Fielder Leon (Goose) Goslin, who is approaching baseball's grand-daddy stage, is going about as strong as ever.

While much younger teammates folded under various burdens, to the distress of the Tigers' hope for a third straight American league championship, 35-year-old Goslin is enjoying one of his best seasons.

He Holds 'Em Months back, when the experts gathered in southern training camps, they pondered over the veteran outfielder's possibilities of standing up under another campaign.

"Don't let it bother you," was the substance of Goslin's remarks.

His average at mid-season was a .320 batting average from the cleanup position and the league leadership in runs batted in. He would have been proud of that in the days of his youth with the Washington Senators.

CAVALCADE BRINGS TEXAS HISTORY TO LIFE

DALLAS, Texas, August—Cavalcade of Texas, one of the "must see" things at the Texas Centennial Exposition, recreates the hilarious spirit of the Big Bend country in the above scene in the Jersey Lilly saloon when Judge Roy Bean was all the law there was West of the Pecos. Just below are the famous Wilson Clydesdales, valued at $100,000, drawing one of the covered wagons across the largest stage on earth; lower left, a tragic moment during the Comanche attack on Fort Parker in 1836; Lorraine Meeks, at right, member of the cast, dressed as a lovely Spanish senorita, wears a comb brought from Spain by her ancestors a century ago. And below, still the crowds come, jamming the entrance at every performance waiting to see one of the greatest shows on earth at the Texas Centennial Exposition—Cavalcade of Texas

Will Sing and Play for Nation

Young "Swing" Maestro Substitutes for Fred Waring

Tommy Dorsey, the trombone playing "swing" maestro, will bring his group of musical artists to Texas during August to broadcast a series of coast-to-coast CBS programs for the Ford Motor Company. Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians will be on vacation all during August. Each Tuesday night at the Texas Centennial Exposition Dorsey's orchestra will broadcast from the Gulf Radio studios.

The programs, which are sponsored by Ford dealers, will be presented twice each Tuesday night. The first time will be from 7 p. m. to 7:30 central standard time for the eastern and central states. The same broadcast will be repeated from 10 to 10:30 p. m. central standard time for Pacific coast and mountain states.

Two members of the orchestra will be featured. Edythe Wright, auburn haired vocalist, has a clever style, often changing the lyrics of her songs, substituting words and in some cases even whole lines that strike her fancy or better express her interpretation of the song's mood or meaning. Incidentally, she has three hobbies, golf, tennis and writing poetry.

Jack Leonard, also a vocalist, is a most personable and charming young man with a great deal of talent. He contributes considerably to the appeal of the orchestra.

The upper photograph is of Edythe Wright, auburn-haired vocalist who will sing during August with Tommy Dorsey's orchestra when, pinch-hitting for Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians during their vacation, the Dorsey group will be heard in a series of coast-to-coast programs to be broadcast from the Texas Centennial grounds at Dallas. Tommy, the youthful "swing" maestro, and his orchestra are sponsored by the Ford Motor Company. He is shown in the lower photograph.

One of the main reasons for the success of Dorsey's orchestra can be traced to the young music master's ability as a trombone player. Often Tommy substitutes a horn for his baton to do solo passages or lead the brasses in the many rhythmic arrangements popularized by the band.

Afghan In Two Colors

By RUTH ORR

An afghan is such grand pick-up work, and of course you can always use up all your odd pieces of wool. And doing such small sections at a time, you don't realize that you're working on such a big thing, until lo, and behold, there it is ready to put together.

The pattern envelope contains complete, easy-to-understand illustrated directions, with diagrams to aid you; also what crochet hook and what material to use and how much you will need.

To obtain this pattern, send for No. 333 and enclose 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to cover service and postage. Address Big Spring Herald, Needlework Dept., P. O. Box 200, Station D, New York, N. Y. (Copyright, 1936, by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Fares lowest in history—substantial reductions on round trip tickets—for the world's finest transportation in sleeping cars or coaches. And remember—when you take the train you know in advance exactly what the trip will cost.

Western railroads slashed fares in 1933. They presented air-conditioned service in 1934. By 1935 all principal trains were air-conditioned. For 1936 they have greatly increased the number of air-conditioned cars, including coaches, sleeping cars and diners.

Western railroads also offer economy meals, dependability, and faster schedules with safety. When you add these to low fares, you can't afford to overlook the greater comfort and independence of train travel. . . . Ask the railroad agent about travel or shipping to any part of the world.

THE PROBLEMS THAT REMAIN Recently it was recited that the tumult and the shouting that attend primary campaigns in Texas contribute nothing at all to the solution of the governmental problems that confront Texas.

Chief of them is that of revenue. The state's general fund still has an enormous deficit, and the cost of old age assistance poses the problem of finding enough revenue to wipe out that deficit and provide funds for the pension payments.

Man About Manhattan By George Tucker

Camera obscura: Until this year the Lunts had always dashed for this farm at Genesee Depot, Wis., on completing their Broadway chores. But this year it was to be different.

Fannie Hurst is really a teetotaler, although comparatively few of her friends know it. When guests drop in, as they do by herds and droves, cocktails are fetched by alert servants, but somehow or other Miss Hurst is served first, and she always takes the glass in the corner of the tray.

The comic strip idea has more than revolutionized advertising in the last year, and I can hear 800 artists chuckling in their ink pots. These are the cartoonists who nearly starved during the depression, and half of them still would be scratching for that next meal if manna hadn't poured from nowhere.

Not only panties and brassieres come into play—cake, medicines and 40 other commodities make their appeal through the medium of goofy heroes as conceived by the enthusiastic cartoonists.

The assignments are lucrative in the extreme—a half-page layout, for instance, nets the artist $400. The advertiser furnishes the dialog and the artist fits his characters to that background.

Man about Manhattan welcomes the return of the Friars. This great theatrical organization has taken a new lease on life, reorganized, and has set up headquarters in Edison Hall, 236 West 47th street.

HERRED, S. D.—Every day, traveling westward through Miles City, Montana, there passes one of the strangest and at the same time most pathetic caravans in the world. It is an exodus—a flight of many thousands of homeless, futureless, aged farmers and their families, broke, lost, finished.

Despite the years of wind and sun, Mrs. Bjornson still preserves some traces of neatness. She smooths her wrinkled dress and we can see past her into the house. It is too neat, but bare. Two small children play on the floor. Her husband is off with a relief gang working on the roads for the day.

"We've had lots of doctor's bills, too. There's been over $1,500 paid to doctors in the last three years. It wasn't so bad when we first started, cause we could make enough at least to pay for our feed and we was hopin' for a good crop to put us right. Well, year after year, no crop, and he, my husband, had to borrow what they call a 'seed loan.' Next year no crop and it's been plin' up since then, more and more debt."

"Oregon Bound. We're sort of glad to be goin'. It's hard on the children though. They hate to leave the farm and it hurts them something awful to go."

"We wouldn't go if we was much older, but I get so discouraged at seeing him work so hard and so long, and for what? Course he hates to go, too; he's been here all his life and he hates the idea of givin' up and leavin'. With me it's different. I'm thinking of the children and where they're goin' to be if we stay here."

"Our plans are to go out to Oregon and join some cousins we got out there. They're dotin' right well and they wrote and suggested we come out and buy a farm out there. So that's where we're goin'—beginnin' of next week."

and athletic director at the University of Chicago, the reason is not hard to find. "We want to win," he said in a recent interview reported by the Christian Science Monitor, "and we think our European rivals do, too. We want to win enough to make sure that our physical condition is of the best, free from the handicap of alcoholic influence."

Some nations believe that it is proper to allow their athletes to drink wine and beer while in training, but even though the wet propagandists make quite a point of this, Professor Stag declares that the records of the Americans and Finns show that the argument has no value, and will have none until Italy, France, Germany and Great Britain, for example, supersede the dry nations in athletic performance. "After all," he says, "there is no better training beverage for any athlete than a glass of clear, cold water." Most college athletes, indeed, he added, know that they cannot afford to indulge in alcoholic beverages of any kind, and are habitual abstainers, so that they may face the keen competition at the best physical condition. MURDER TONIGHT

BY LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

Chapter 21
NEW CLUE

"No, Mr. Shipley he didn't come for another five minutes, and Cook and me nearly busting ourselves trying to keep the soup hot."

"I suppose when he did turn up, Mr. Shipley looked as though he'd surprised a bit?"

The maid considered. "F'raps he did look a bit put out," she said finally, and the Inspector, watching her closely, took his breath away as she had been in the realm of the grieving and was reliable; his next question had opened up vistas of being able to establish connection with the village-shaking business up at the Court. Hylton knew from bitter experience of her sort what fantastic rumors of sheer invention she would be capable of embarking on with only the slightest encouragement.

He decided to leave well alone and withdrew. He turned out of the drive and had not gone very far down the road when he met Mrs. Reeves walking her horse slowly home. She smiled pleasantly at him.

"Had a spill?" he asked.

"No, Coconut overreached badly and I had to bring him back. Slicking wasn't it? They're having one of the best runs ever."

"It was too hot for me," Hylton laughed. "I just had to drop out."

She nodded and smiled again in her attractive way and they parted. Hylton kicked his old horse into a trot and went back to the Hoops. Sergeant White was waiting for him there. Presently—the worthy old hawk being disposed of—they were clustered together in Hylton's private sitting room.

"Got anything to tell me?" Hylton asked.

"Yes sir, I have got something, though I don't know whether it means anything or not."

"Just one minute, Sergeant. Walk over to that door behind you and pick up your head into the billiard room, will you?"

White did as he was bid. "Nobody there, sir," he said a trifle surprised.

"Good. People who play billiards sometimes have long ears. Go ahead."

"It's this sir," The Sergeant produced a small square of yellow cardboard from his pocket and put it carefully on the table. "Edwards found it. He's our man on the back door at the Court. He was going off duty the other day and took a short cut across the bit of grass in front of the window."

"The window of the room where it happened?"

"Yes sir. A few yards away from the window he saw this and picked it up."

Hylton very gingerly took up the exhibit and studied it. The cardboard had been folded in half down the middle and had lost something of its pristine freshness, but all the printing on it was still perfectly legible.

Luxor Hairdressing Salon. Specialists in Ladies' Coiffures. Setting & Waving a specialty. Appointment Card Time. 2.30 Monday Jan. 18th. Telephone Morehester 61. Please bring this card with you.

"2.30 Monday Jan. 18th," he said reflectively. "Go to the telephone just outside, Sergeant, ring up Morehester 61 and ask who it was who booked an appointment for 2.30 last Monday."

"Right-o sir."

Hylton drew out one of his thin black cigars and lit it carefully. A woman in the case? He wondered. "Did you get them?"

"Yes sir; they were quite forthcoming about it, told me straight out."

"And who was it?"

"Mrs. Reeves of Ferney House."

The Inspector took the cigar out of his mouth and gave a long, low whistle.

"Mrs. Reeves, eh?" he said. "Wife of Captain Reeves—there seems to be devil of a lot in this business we haven't begun to get hold of yet, White."

The Inspector left the Hoops quickly and was over at Enderston Court as fast as his long legs could take him; he had decided to have a few plain words with Andrew Lumsdale before going on to see Mrs. Reeves.

He found Lumsdale in the kitchen, sitting down to a generous high tea and reading the paper.

"Afternoon Lumsdale."

"How do."

Lumsdale slowly masticated his last mouthful of food and eyed his visitor in silent and defensive speculation.

"Now let me see," the Inspector went on briskly. "Last Monday, when you went in by bus to Morechester you went straight from the bus to cinema didn't you?"

"That's it."

"Without calling anywhere en route?"

"Ah went straight to pictures."

Hylton leaned back and said quite pleasantly, "You may not like to be told so, Lumsdale, but you're a liar. You went straight from the bus to the Post Office, didn't you?"

The brooding blank eyes looked at him steadily, the lantern jaws moved steadily, but the man said nothing.

"You went to the Post Office, didn't you, Lumsdale?"

"Ah might have gone to get a few stamps, ah forget."

"True you might have gone to get some stamps, and if that were all you might have forgotten about it. But it wasn't all, and you haven't forgotten. You went in to get something from the General Delivery where you are known by the name of Langley—that's so, isn't it?"

Lumsdale said nothing, but his steady stare was not quite so aggressively confident.

"And what's more, in the name of Langley, you have been in the habit of getting small packages every month or so for a goodish time, haven't you?"

"Well, suppose I have, what of it?"

Hylton leaned back and laughed softly. "You don't know as much as you think you do, Lumsdale, that's the trouble with your type," he said.

"Apparently you don't know that it's illegal to have a General Delivery address in the same town as your ordinary postal address."

"Ah'm no lawyer."

"If you were you wouldn't be such a damned fool, Lumsdale. You're in danger, and apparently you don't realize it. You stood to benefit very considerably by Arthur Burdett's death; you knew his habits; you knew every detail about the house. We've only got your word for it, mind, that Arthur Burdett wasn't alive when you came back on Monday evening and dead when you went out to find the Sergeant."

"My word's as good as any man's."

"Is it? When I look into what you tell me you were doing on Monday the first thing I find is a lie. Many a man has been arrested and held on less suspicion than that, Andrew Lumsdale."

"What do you want me to do?"

"It isn't what I want, my friend. It's what the Law demands. The Law will find out who killed Arthur Burdett if it takes a year to do it. If you don't want to be arrested on suspicion this afternoon, you better tell me now what all this Post Office business means and what was in those packages."

Andrew Lumsdale was silent for a full minute, and when he spoke it was in a very different tone of voice from the surly defensiveness he had used so far.

"Look here, Mister," he said, "I didn't kill Arthur Burdett. I know as things look a bit black against me; I realized that from the start, but I never did it. In a way you may almost say I was fond of the old fool. All the same I don't see why I should get into trouble for something as wasn't on my plate as you may say, and that's why I kept quiet about the Post Office business."

"Very few people have got into trouble by telling the Police the truth," the Inspector said dryly.

"All right then," Lumsdale drew a key from his trouser pocket, crossed the kitchen and unlocked a drawer in the old fashioned dresser. He rummaged about with both hands for half a minute and eventually brought out a collection of photographic postcards and these he threw down in a heap on the table in front of the Inspector.

"That's what came in the packages," he said.

Ringsley Hylton picked up half a dozen of the photographs and studied them slowly, a curious conflict in his mind. Principally he was thinking how true it is that with human nature you never can tell what will happen.

The Sidelines

By CHARLES GRUMBON
NEW YORK, Aug. 3. — There never was anything in Flatland quite like the bursting of the Brown Bubble.

The demolition of Joe Louis under Max Schmeling's right powered by a stout heart still has the critics of the defensive side over the fistie fists that looked in the preview like nothing but the mad out of the German's ring career.

Joe Louis was the critics' pick and practically everyone else's, too—the super fighter. Now the second-guessers are plugging the critics because they forgot to consider what would develop if Joe Louis himself happened to get hit, which occurred quite often and effectively in the Yankee stadium.

It is highly probable that Joe hadn't considered what to do if he was struck hard—really hard. When he was floored in the fourth round he proved his unfamiliarity with the situation by bounding back without taking the few seconds of recuperative time allowed before the referee tolls "ten."

The Four C's

The experts didn't take into account, either, that Max Schmeling had mastered the four C's of cauliflower college: courage, condition, confidence, control. Louis was a beginner in the matter of control—not the same Brown Bomber who plastered Max Baer in the fourth heat last September. There is some lingering doubt about Louis' condition, whereas Schmeling was in the pink. As for confidence, the Brown Bomber was on the wrong side—overconfidence, obviously. You can't question his courage.

Speaking as one of the many chumps who thought the Bomb couldn't flaze out, we're only ourselves to blame. At both training camps, Lakewood and Napanoch, Promoter Mike Jacob's hired hands who dealt out information insisted repeatedly before the fight that Joe wasn't the same lightning-like Louis who won 27 straight professional fights, that Schmeling was a phlegmatic, untried German who had a good chance to whip Louis!

True, these lads are working under orders to smoke it up, make it look like a fight so that folks would jam the stadium to the number of 30,000 and to the tune of a million and a quarter. They were commissioned to blow up Schmeling and blow down Louis—to make it appear even, if they could.

"Fugilite Popcookers"

Well, Jersey Jones, in the Louis camp, and Francis Albertini and Doc Morris, of the Schmeling press corps, laid it on heavy; taking so long and loud about the magnificent German and poor Young Joe Louis that they may have begun to believe all this potter themselves. No one paid any heed, except to poke fun at them for having to serve their master so loyally as to utter a lot of pugilistic popcock.

Had a younger-wise to the hooded ways of the handout found listened and heeded, he'd have picked the winner and been an expert cum laude. Instead, all of us wise guys had tongue-in-cheek when the air castles were being built at Napanoch and razed at Lakewood.

It's interesting, sometime, to turn back to training camp sites, to see how they stack up with what happened in the ring. Louis only played his harmonica when questioners collared him at Lakewood, so he can be dismissed. A writer at Napanoch asked Max Schmeling: "Are you afraid of Joe Louis?" to which Der Schlager replied: "Are you afraid to go to work in the morning?" Schmeling kept insisting the Louis he saw in the movies against Max Baer and in the flesh against Uscudun was very amateurish. This usually caused a lot of snickering in the press bungalow after Max walked home to his sylvan retreat up the Shawangunk mountain.

But Maxie made Joe look like a rank amateur with an orthodox right for which an experienced stumblie bum should have devised some sort of makeshift defense. Max actually measured the Bubble with his left and drove home the right frequently. The critics, to a man, felt every one of those lung-stinging blows that found Joe leading with his chin.

The only solace for the type-writer ponderers was that they saw a great fight—going the wrong way.

We stopped a tadly singed critic in the midst of composing his apology for the unkind things he had said about Schmeling before the fight. "But," he enthused, "it'll make a great fight between Brad-dock and Schmeling in September. And what that Schmeling won't do to the champ..."

They're incurable, these experts.

Connally Urges Modification Of New WPA Order

MARLIN, Aug. 4. (AP)—Senator Connally today urged Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes and WPA Administrator Hopkins to modify an order under which no allocations were made for Texas out of new PWA funds.

Connally said he had sent the following telegram to those officials in response to protests from numerous municipal bodies in Texas:

"Press reports that no allocations for Texas of PWA funds will be made out of the new appropriation because it is claimed that not sufficient number of skilled laborers is available in Texas.

Race Crowded For Congress In California

Entries In Aug. 25 Primary Total 128 With Three Parties Listed

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 4. (UP)—Nineteen of California's 20 congressmen—the 20th is not a candidate for re-election—will have varying degrees of opposition when they go into the state primary Aug. 25 to compete for party nominations.

Four are conceded good chances of emerging from the primary in a strong position for the general election. The other 15 may face fights up to election day.

Already assured of re-election is Richard J. Welch (R.), San Francisco, whose only opponent is Lawrence Ross, communist party candidate. The communist registration is slight.

Rep. Harry L. Englebright (R.), Nevada City, also appears likely to win unless his democratic opponent, Benton Fremont, shows a surprising gain. Englebright is registered on both tickets and will have no opposition in November if he can win the nomination of both parties in the primary.

Lea in Strong Position

The other two incumbents with less to worry than their colleagues are Clarence F. Lea (D.), Santa Rosa, with republican and communist opponents, and R. W. Gearhart (R.), Fresno, with democratic and communist opposition.

There are 14 candidates for Rep. John Henry Hoepfel's Los Angeles democratic seat; 11 each for Democrats John Steven McCroarty's and John M. Costello's place; 13 for the position held by Thomas F. Ford (D.), Los Angeles. Reps. Frank H. Buck (D.), Charles Kramer (D.), and Sam L. Collins (R.) have six opponents each. The other incumbents have three, four or five.

One contest which is attracting attention in the northern section is that between Buck and Sheridan Downey (D.), who is attorney for Dr. Francis E. Townsend and has the backing of pension plan advocates.

Eight candidates entered the race for the seat vacated by George Burnham (R), San Diego. Five are democrats, two republicans and one a communist.

Altogether, 128 candidates filed for the 20 positions. Many of them entered their names on two or more party tickets, seeking to make a clean sweep in the primary.

Those who filed on more than one ticket must win the nomination of the party in which they are registered if they are to go on to the November election. If, for example, a democrat wins the republican nomination but loses the democratic, he will be dropped from the race.

Communists entered the congressional fight seriously for the first time this year, competing for 12 of the 20 positions. Their party was legally qualified in California two years ago.

Go Slow On Eating And Drinking, Macfadden Advises Campaigners

Still stalwart at 65, Bernard Macfadden thinks the nation's political health worse than its physical condition.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4. (AP)—Bernard Macfadden thinks the political health of the country is worse than its physical health, but he's still enough of a physical culturist to offer a few tips to election campaigners.

Rule number one, he says, is not to overeat. (He himself doesn't believe in three meals a day and eats only when he is hungry.)

Rule two: Don't overdrink.

Rule three: Balance mental efforts with physical exercise.

In his immense paneled office glittering with leather chairs and mahogany desks from which he directs his myriad enterprises—12 magazines, children's schools and health resorts, employees numbering 2,000—his gray-brown eyes twinkled under bushy eyebrows.

Still Looks the Part

Behind him, sunk level with the window sill, was a radio; in his right hand he held a white handkerchief which he never pocketed. Occasionally he put it to his face. He aches tip-toe, spoke softly.

At 65 he still looks much as he did when Gene "The Great" Hart, sculptor, ex-Macfadden lieutenant.

His walking proclivities he has added an enthusiasm for flying, and now pilots his own plane. A year ago he walked 320 miles to Danville, Va., in two weeks—then flew back in an hour and a half. This year he couldn't make the annual walk because of political engagements.

Advocates Single Tax

"I believe in a balanced budget," he says. "Constructive plans with that end in view should be formulated. What everyone wants is security, now, next year, and five years from now.

"I think business organizations should take their workers into partnership—sign them up for a division of the profits and do away with violence and bloody strikes.

"This could be done by allocating some of the profits to stockholders and some to the workers.

"I believe in a single tax, which would include all other taxes. As it is now, city, state and federal tax bodies eat up revenues by their numbers."

He also believes farmers should organize along business lines to protect their interests.

Picture At Ritz Is Dedicated To Highway Police

A film dedicated to those hard riding fellows who follow the highways and strive to make them safe for travel—the state highway police—is "Crash Donovan," billed at the Ritz theater Tuesday and Wednesday with Jack Holt in the starring role.

Holt portrays the role of a cycle cop who experiences all the thrills of speedy riding and gangster chasing. The spirit of daring rides with him as he follows the highways to high adventure.

One of the exciting situations in the film requires Holt to ride his cycle down a steep incline and crash through the door of a house where a gang of smugglers are lying in ambush. Other unusual sequences have been written into the script, including a love triangle with an unexpected ending.

Nan Gray plays the feminine lead and John King is cast as her sweetheart. Romantic sequences are interwoven into the plot, and the story is highlighted by scenes showing how a modern state patrol organization is developed and operated.

Probable Serious Damage Averted As Fire Extinguished

What might have been the most disastrous fire in a decade was narrowly averted Tuesday morning by prompt action by city firemen when electric wiring at the government commodity warehouse short circuited.

Firemen attributed the blaze to pennies behind dead fuses.

Flames were burning wire insulation when firemen arrived and extinguished the blaze. Very small damage resulted and the WPA sewing room project, underway in the warehouse, was not affected by the incident.

The fire broke out near a quantity of cotton and garments from the sewing project were stored awaiting transfer. Besides the sewing room materials, several hundred thousand cans of beef and other food articles are stored in the building which is located directly west of the Wooten wholesale grocery.

GROUPS SEEK MAN TO RUN AGAINST LANHAM

FORT WORTH, Aug. 5. (UP)—Three political groups of Tarrant county today sought an independent candidate to oppose the reelection candidacy of Congressman Fritz G. Lanham, Fort Worth, in the Nov. 3 general election.

Supporters of the Townsend plan announced after a meeting Sunday they would have a candidate to replace Julian C. Hyer, Fort Worth attorney, who withdrew from the race after winning second place in the July democratic primary.

The candidate to replace Hyer has not been chosen. Townsdenites expected to choose their man this week, but other groups did not know whether they would support their choice. Also opposing Lanham are the Roosevelt democratic club of Texas and the Progressive Political club.

PLANE PASSENGER TOTAL NEAR 100,000 FOR MONTH OF JULY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Scheduled air lines in the United States carried 97,453 passengers and 701,142 pounds of express, and flew 30,252,357 passenger miles during June, 1936, the bureau of air commerce announced today. (A passenger mile is the equivalent of one passenger flown one mile.)

The 21 domestic air lines—those operating within the borders of continental United States—also flew 344,433 493 express pound miles. The total of miles flown was 5,619,896.

In June, 1935, the 22 companies operating at that time carried 73,896 passengers, 330,970 pounds of express, and flew 31,225,699 passenger miles, 186,310,017 express pound miles, and a total of 4,993,328 miles.

During June of this year 68 per cent of available seats were occupied, as against 69 per cent for June of the previous year.

FEDERAL EXPENSES FOR JULY SMALLER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4. (UP)—Federal expenditures for July, the first month of the new fiscal year, amounted to only slightly more than half those for the same period last year, the treasury disclosed today.

The decrease in federal spending was accompanied by a slight upturn in receipts, which totaled $293,886,769 compared with $278,908,944 for July, 1935. The deficit was $123,221,873, compared to $448,626,133 for the same period last year.

Why Gulf is the Gas for August

"FROM IN, PHILAS, and cool off!"
Most days are hot in August. Gasoline must be refined specially for this weather. If it isn't, part of the fuel goes out the exhaust unburned, wasted, and you don't get the mileage you should. Use That Good Gulf Gasoline in August. It's refinery-adjusted for summer weather—"Keeps In Step with the Calendar"—all of it goes to work, none of it goes to waste.
