And March Is Not Here Yet

A blinding dust storm, driven by a hard north wind, obscured the sky in North and West Texas today. Dust filtered into buildings and made breathing difficult in places. The storm raged throughout the night in West Texas but is somewhat abated today.

Middle Western states yesterday felt the disturbance along a 500-mile front, covering a half dozen states with a dusty pall. All of West Texas was blanketed by the fog with the worst of the storm being felt in north and northwest sections of the state.

MANSLAUGHTER IS DECISION OF JURY

Father Breaks At Announcement Son

• Is Not Acquitted PAWNEE, Okla., Feb. 22. (A). The fantastic Phil Kennamer murder case ended here last night with verdict of first degree manslaughter against the 19-year-old precocious son of a federal judge. Judge Thurman Hurst will fix the penalty at 2 p.m. Saturday. 4 to 99 Years

Under the conviction, the Thanks-giving slayer of John Gorrell may be sentenced to serve from four to 99 years in state prison at McAles-

99 years in state prison at McAlester.

But the defense will not give up without a further long legal battle. At the same time the youth is sentenced his attorneys will file a motion for a new trial which, if overruled, will be followed by an appeal to the state criminal court of appeals.

Sitting beside his father, Federal Judge Franklin E. Kennamer of the northern district of Oklahoma, young Kennamer took the verdict without rising and without showing visible emotion.

The father was the more moved, tears starting to his eyes, and young Kennamer patted the smallish, gray-haired man on the shoulders.

A moment later he was surrounded by consoling friends and was led back to the little 1899 model sandstone jail to await passing of sentence.

Prosecutor Pleased

Neither father nor son would comment. Holly Anderson, Tulsa county prosecutor who tried the case here on a change of venue, was delighted.

"We are mighty pleased and are convinced Judge Hurst will overrule the new trial motion, and that he will be upheld to the last," Anderson said.

will be upheld to the last," Anderson said.

Only J. A. McCollum, local attorney for Kemamer, was at the defense table as the verdict came in.

Anderson and his junior assistant, W. F. (Dixle) Gilmer Jr., who closed the state argument at 11:45 a.m., were present, representing the small army of lawyers who sat on opposite sides of the long table through the seven days of the trial. There was a stir when it was learned the jury had agreed just eight hours and 15 minutes after beginning deliberations.

The crowd that had been waiting in dwindling hope of a verdict last night hastily pushed through the doors and in two minutes the courtroom was filled.

with friends, smoking one long cigar after another.

His brother, David, a veterans' bureau employe in Washington, sat beside the judge, but Opal Kennamer, sister of the youthful slayer, took a seat far back in a corner. Her eyes were wet but she did not weep as she heard her brother convicted of the slaying which has excited Oklahoma for almost three months. months.

Dr. Gorrell in Court

Dr. Gorrell in Court

Dr. J. F. Gorrell, father of the slain 23-year-old student dentist, entered the courtroom just a moment before Judge Hurst, who had been called from his home. Mrs. Gorrell was not with him, for the first time during the trial.

By agreement the jury did not consider a verdict of guilty of murder and voted from the first on guilty or not guilty of manslaughter, it was learned from one member.

On the first ballot three voted for acquittal and nine for guilty of manslaughter. Ten more ballots were cast before the jurors agreed on a verdict of guilty of manslaughter with the sentence not considered. On the twelfth ballot they agreed to leave the sentence to the court.

"We had quite a time getting together," Jacob Clark, foreman, said.

GEORGE WASHINGTON - SANE BALANCE WHEEL By BRUCE CATTON

Back in George Washington's day the words left and right had no political connotations. If you were a conservative they called you a tory, and if you were very conservative you were an out-and-out monarchist; if you were radical you were a democrat, and if you were downright Bolsheviki they called you a Jacobin right Bolsheviki they called you a Jacobin.

But whatever the words were, Washington had the Pastime Bridge same sort of problem that any leader must face in time of social upheaval—the job of steering a fair course be- Club Meets With tween the extremes demanded by different groups of his Mrs. Bailey

He was unquestionably a conservative at heart. He was a landed country gentleman-probably the richest man in America, by all accounts—and he was an aristocrat by birth and training.

Yet he was a rebel, too. To revolt against the king was no light thing, in those days. If the revolution had I failed; Washington would unquestionably have been hanged, drawn and quartered in the tower of London, and he knew it as well as anyone. The man who led the colonial army in 1776 must have had a good streak of the radical in him somewhere.

In his own character he balanced the radical and conservative elements perfectly; and we add "First in peace" to that familiar tag, because he did the same thing as president.

That was no easy thing for him to do, any more than it is an easy thing to do today. On the one side were powerful influences which wanted the new nation contaminated as little as possible by this pernicious democracy business-some of them, indeed, wanted a new monarchy over here. On the other side were the ultra-radicals, who wanted their democracy made as absolute as possible.

Washington listened to both sides—and made both sides work together for the country. He teamed Hamilton and Jefferson together in his cabinet, which would be something like grouping Ogden Mills and Norman Thomas today. He steered a way straight down the mid-

Hamilton got much that he wanted, and so did Jefferson. What the country got was a solid beginning on which it was able to continue the great experiment in self-government for many generations.

The middle course is never very popular or spectacular. But it served the country very well indeed, as Washington applied it. Might not the same be true today?

LIGHT ON CITY BUSINESS

The city of Cedar Falls, Ia., is planning to spend some $300,000 this year for all purposes. To meet these expenditures, it will have to levy only about $18,000 in taxes. Why? Because its municipal light, gas, and water plants are returning profits of better than $280,000.

It is just a little bit hard to think of any very good comeback to this little argument, somehow. Cedar Falls citizens are going to get along this year without any general taxes. They will pay no taxes for sewers, lights, gas, cemetery, fire, or hospital purposes.

Their only municipal taxes will be a levy of 2.262 milts for library, park board, and comfort station opera-

Peter Molyneaux To London Meet

DALLAS. (P).—Means of moulding public opinion in support of stable money and the removal of barriers to international trade will be among topics for major consideration at an international conference of experts in London the first week in March, an announcement received from the office of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, states.

The conference is being held at the invitation of the governing body of the Royal Institute of International Affairs at London and is sponsored by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

Americans who will attend beside Dr. Butler are Peter Molyneaux, Dallas, editor of the Texas Weekly, a trustee of the Carnegie Endowment; Charles O. Hardy, member of the reasearch staff of the Institute of Economics, Brookings Institution, Washington, and Phillip C. Jessup, professor of International Law, Columbia University.

"It is believed if so authoritative a group as is to be assembled in London can agree and formulate a series of specific proposals in regard to the subjects mentioned,"

Dr. Butler said, "these proposals can be pressed upon public opinion everywhere and that much greater progress then will be made than is now possible . . . toward restoring prosperity, relieving unemployment, improving agriculture and bring to an end the dangerous policy of colossal public borrowing."
Dr. Butler has sailed for London and other members of the American delegation will sail from New York February 22.

TUGWELL REMAINS UNDERSECRETARY

Apparently reassured by President Roosevelt, Rexford G. Tugwell, under-secretary of agriculture, told reporters on leaving the White House late yesterday that he intended to continue at his present post.

A flare-up of the liberal-conservative row at the AAA had led the youthful looking administration advisor to consider quitting.

For how long he will remain he did not say, and it was known that for weeks a feeling of loyalty to the president had caused him to refrain from more serious sonsideration.

For some time it has been evident that Tugwell and Chester C. Davis, AAA administrator, did not agree. Davis has been winning lately, if the resignations are any indicating the control of the control o

First Jerome Frank, AAA counsel and close associate of Tugwell, was asked to go. Gardner Jackson, a liberal in the consumers counsel went with him, as did several others

Then, only Wednesday, Victor A. Christgau, assistant administrator and a member of the liberal group, submitted his resignation after a heated clash with Davis over policies.

But Frank yesterday accepted a position as assistant railroad counsel for the RFC. This strengthened the belief among Tugwell's associates that the latter had no intention of leaving.

Ravens Are Targets In Trapshoot Meet

BIG SPRING, Feb. 22.—The Protective Game and Fish association of Howard county is staging a two-day live bird shoot here March 2 and 3 when live ravens will be used for targets. Fifteen hundred ravens have been trapped to date for this purpose, according to Dr. C. W. Deats. Trapping will continue until date of meeting.

Invitations have been issued to sportsmen over West Texas. A barbeeue will be tendered the visitors. This is one way to eradicate the ravens, said Dr. Deats, and steps will be made to get other communities to stage these events. The rayens have done considerable property damage in this county for the past few years. Prizes will be awarded for feats attained during the two-day gun tournament.

The proposal would include purchase of several hundred thousand acres south of Alpine, Texas, near the "Big Bend" of the international boundary. No. 22

Deduction For Interest
Amounts paid or accrued within the taxable year 1934 as interest on indebtedness are deductible, with certain exceptions, from gross income in determining net income. Such items include interest on borrowed money to defray personal expenses, and on money borrowed for the purchase of real or personal property. If a person owes money on a lien or mortgage note on his home, the amount of the interest may be deducted. Indebtedness however, need not be evidenced by lien, judgment, or mortgage to make the interest on it deductible. Frequently indebtedness is evidenced only by a note.

Interest paid on indebtedness incurred in the purchase of obligations (other than obligations of the United States issued after September 24, 1917, and originally subscribed for by the taxpayer) the interest upon which is wholly exempt from Federal income tax, is not deductible. Interest paid on loans on life insurance policies is deductible provided the amount of the loan is not used for the purposes previously referred to in this paragraph.

Interest paid on behalf of a friend or relative where there is no legal chligation on the part of the payer is not deductible. In such cases the amount is the same as a gift.

As interest paid is deductible, so interest received in the taxpayer's return of gross income.
