Secretly Pursues Investigation Of Case

TRENTON, Jan. 17, (P).—Governor Hoffman, striking back at threats of impeachment and answering editorial criticism today defended his reprieve of Hauptmann with the following statement: "If impeachment is the price that must be made for daring to follow the dictates of my conscience, I am ready for it. A good investigation of the Lindbergh case might be a healthy thing."

TRENTON, Jan. 17, (P).—Doctor John Condon today informed Attorney-General Wilentz that he would return immediately from the Panama Canal zone if Wilentz desired. Wilentz replied that there was no need for "Jafsie" 'to change his plans cution.

Anna Hauptmann visited her husband in his death cell for what might be the last time.

A confession "by someone other than Hauptmann" was reported from a high source. The Governor's office professed no knowledge of it.

Governor Horner of Illinois ordered continued investigation of a convict's story of a chance to buy findbergh ransom money. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said she had received appeals to inter-cede for Hauptmann, but would do nothing.

Harold C. Keyes, one-time investigator for the defense, in New York was quoted as saying new evidence in existence would result in an acquittal.

SMITH-ROOSEVELT TIFF IS GAIN TO POLITICS

Every so often the American public has to get its blood pressure raised by some argument that isn't very important, and today the question at issue seems to be: was Al Smith invited to sleep at the White House or was he not; if so, what of it?

Mr. Smith has been invited frequently, says the White House. Mr. Smith has been invited very rarely if at all, says Mr. Smith. The one sure thing seems to be that, regardless of the number or the warmth of the invitations, he has not been sleeping there and doesn't propose to.

This set-to, of course, puts the final stamp and seal on the breaking of a distinguished friendship. It was a friendship that had important consequences for the nation, while it lasted; for if it had not been for the urgings Lou is of Mr. Smith, Mr. Roosevelt would not have become governor of New York state, and if he had not been governor, he likely would never have gone on to the presidency.

But the friendship has gone sour, long since, and all that is left of it today is an undignified squabble which is entertaining, but hardly constructive.

The reason it has people talking, of course, is that the break is a symptom of an important change which is coming over American politics. It would be a mistake to suppose that mere personal reasons are at the bottom of the row. They may enter into it, of course, but they are not fundamental.

At bottom, the quarrel is indicative of a strong new current which, running through the Democratic party, is bearing some men in one direction and sending others off

Whatever the New Deal may or may not amount to, and whatever its virtues and its faults may add up to, one thing at least is obcious; in a more or less confused way it does represent a definite political philosophy, a definite view of the place which government ought to occupy in the nation's social and economic life.

By the same token the opposition to the New Deal, as exemplified by the non-White-House sleeping Mr. Smith, represents an equally definite opposing philosophy.

The mere fact that this cleavage is taking place is a good thing for politics. It should eventually bring back the sort of reality that infused American political struggles in the days of Jackson and Lincoln.

Modern campaigns, too often, have been mere scrambles for jobs, with the opposing candidates embodying much the same set of principles, if any.

Back of the Smith-Roosevelt row lies a revival of politics' old-time health. When political disagreements can be heated enough to turn good friends into bitter enemies, it is a pretty good sign that the electorate has stopped shadow boxing and is concerned with something really serious.

Tree Varieties Extensive

HARRISBURG, Pa. (U.P.) — Pennsylvania forests contain 110 kinds of native trees, half of them classed as important timber material, according to the bureau of research of the State Department of Forests and Waters. The state's forests produce wood of such a wide range of qualities as to meet practically all commercial market requirements.

Easier Reading.. Writing with Glareless Light

Good lighting is needed wherever eyes are used for prolonged seeing tasks. At the writing desk, for reading, sewing or studying, the right amount of glareless light is a protection against eye fatigue and the troubles that are caused by straining the eyes to see under a poor light.

Too often this strain isn't attributed to the lighting. Some people think that because they have enough light to see by, they have enough light. But scientific tests have revealed that the human eye is a poor judge of what is enough light. Only a careful check by someone trained to make lighting tests will show accurately whether you have proper lighting in your home.

RETZLAFF GIVEN SMALL CHANCE OF BEATING BOMBER

Beebe Tries Flying High

CHICAGO. (U.P.—Dr. William Beebe, noted bathyspherist, has proved he is as much at home in the air as below sea level, for he flew in one of United Air Lines' coast-to-coast passenger planes at an altitude of 9,000 feet, a height three times his record descent into the sea, which was 3,028 feet below sea level.

To set off another blast of dynamite tonight. Conqueror of all opposition in his amazing drive for the world's hear vy-weight championship, Louis will meet Charley Retzlaff, lanternjawed rancher with a terrific right hand punch, in a battle scheduled to go 15 rounds or less at the Chicago Stadium. Indications Thursday night were that 20,000 spectators would witness the bout, with gate receipts around $100,000.

PRESIDENT OF MEXICO AUTHORIZES A MONUMENT TO MARK ROAD COMPLETION

sources at Mexico City regarded as reliable, reveals that President Lazaro Cardenas has directed erection of a marble monument to cost 130,000 pesos to mark the completion of the Pan-American highway.

It is expected the monument will be an exedra and erected at Kilometer 231, known as Barranca de San Vincente, the most conspicuous point on the new road between Laredo and Mexico City. When completed it will be visible for almost five kilometers along the highway and will have a verrace affording a striking panoramic view of the surrounding country.

The terrace will face west overlooking a deep ravine studded with enormous rocks and giving the observer a perspective of the difficulties overcome in pushing the highway through that section.

It is believed the monument will be pre-Cortez in design and built of gray and white marble plentiful in that region.

Inscriptions will be engraved on the central portion recounting details of construction of the road, the names of officials who cooperated and suitable sentiments regarding the importance of the monument in fostering mutual understanding and friendship between the people of the Americas.

The dope on the contest here is dizzy stuff. The Frogs beat S. M. U., S. M. U. beat Texas; Texas beat Rice, And there you are!
While the fans work on dope. Coach Dutch Meyer and his squad are working on offensive plays and defensive formation. Meyer does not think he has a flag contender, but he is cheered up by the showing the boys are making.
"The boys are hitting the bucket with satisfying regularity," he reports. "If they can keep going against the tough opposition coming up, we'll win some games, for they still pay off on buckets."
The T. C. U. camp was cheered up this week by the announcement that Darrell Lester, senior center, may be able to get into shape for the last half of the schedule. Lester's shoulder, injured in the Sugar Bowl football game, has improved rapidly and the doctor says he may be able to play in two or three weeks.

Now and then, in talking with your friends, the subject of bran has come up. So that real facts might replace unsupported opinions, the Kellogg Company has aided for some years research in leading nutrition laboratories.

Studies made on a group of healthy women showed that two tablespoonfuls of bran daily con-tinued to relieve constipation* over a period of months. How different from cathartics—where dosage often must be increased. Another series of tests on men indicated that, with some people, the "bulk" in bran was much more effective than that found in fruits and vegetables. Further tests showed that Kel
