A DASH OF ICE WATER FOR THAT WAR FEVER

Congress evidently is in the mood to do something pretty drastic about the profits which are made in wartime.

The House of Representatives seems to be going down the line for the McSwain bill, far milder than the one presented to the Senate by Senator Nye. But it has added to it a provision for 100 per cent taxes on excess profits, and it seems likely that in the end we shall get a compromise between Senate and House bills—a compromise bill far stronger than would have seemed possible a year ago.

And whatever may be said about the military value, or otherwise, of such a bill, there is one way in which it ought to be exceedingly useful. When the war fever begins to sweep the land, a law of this kind ought to act very much like a sponge dipped in ice water and applied to a fevered forehead.

For what it aims to do is simply to make war as unattractive to all the people as it is to the lads who have to go out into the front line trenches and offer themselves as targets.

A member of the Senate Munitions Committee expressed it thus:

"Our bill is drastic because war is a drastic thing. The tax collector who comes for one man's money is not nearly so solemn and forbidding a visitor as the draft officer who knocks upon another man's door for his young son.

"It is our intent clearly and honestly to let every person in the country know that he will be expected to bear a large share of the burden of any war."

We talk a great deal about the horrors of war, but we don't really mean all of it. We never can forget that when war comes business will boom.

Wages will be higher, profits will be higher, everybody will be busy, and those of us who don't have to do any fighting will, really, be better off than in peacetime.

And because that is true, it is very easy for war fever to sweep us off our feet.

Arranging things in this new way ought to help us to keep cool in a time of crisis. If we knew in advance that profits, salaries, and wages would be subject to very strict limitations, and that income and other taxes would immediately shoot to dizzy heights, so that all of us would feel the war burden in a direct and unmistakable way, it is likely that we shouldn't agree to go to war at all—unless the reason for doing so was clear and overwhelming.

And that, in turn, would be a boon immeasurable. To find a way to check the war-madness—that is what people everywhere have been seeking ever since 1918. Wouldn't a bill of this kind come close to doing it?

WRONG POINT OF VIEW

Charles M. Schwab still thinks he was right when he remarked, early in the depression, that there are no rich men left in America.

"I only want to point out," he tells the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Society in New York, "that I was practically right. There are no rich men left in the old sense of the word, but we have made up for that in happiness. We may have lost great sums of money and profits, but we now retain the sentimental fellowships of old times."

All this probably sounds excellent, if you who read it are in the upper income tax brackets. But if, like the vast majority of your countrymen, you are not, it sounds just about as hollow as the original remark.

There are a great many rich men left in this country, and the sharpest criticism that is made of our recovery program is that it is benefiting them more than it is benefiting the little fellows.

Mr. Schwab is an immensely able industrialist, but as a commentator on the distribution of wealth he is something less than inspired.

Informal Reception Sunday Evening and Open House This Morning Greet Guests

Center of conference activities for women Sunday afternoon and evening was the mezzanine of the Hotel Scharbauer, brave with tri-color shields and the flower-decked Friendship House and overlooking the pennant-hung lobby of the hotel. Cowboy bandannas made vivid spots of color among the groups that formed and re-formed and shifted again as Midland Rotary Anns greeted out-of-town members and their husbands. Visiting Rotary Anns were greeted by officers and other members of the Midland club and escorted to the registry desk which stood before the Friendship House. Here they were given bandannas and leather quilts as souvenirs of Midland, name cards and tickets and programs for the conference activities. After the church services of the evening a musical program was presented in the Crystal ballroom followed by an informal reception on the mezzanine. Mrs. Foy Proctor sang as a feature of the impromptu reception program. Group singing was led by Rotarian Shunway. Freddie Martin played his famous accordion in a d quartet members were presented. This morning open house was held from 8:30 o'clock until 11:30 o'clock at the Friendship House at the north end of the mezzanine. Floor baskets of pink snapdragons, pink and blue larkspur, and other flowers were placed at vantage points about this attractive nook planned particularly for Rotary Anns. The punch table was laid in white with sprays of fern radiating from the crystal bowl which was banked with ferns and purple blossoms. Mrs. Harvey Fryar was in charge of the punch service assisted by Misses W. B. Simpson, Clint Lackey, and Coter Hest. Members of the Midland club were in the houseparty throughout the morning. Following the open house, guests were transported to the Country Club for the Rotary Ann Rendezvous. who declines to duel for his sweetheart's hand. Branded as a coward, he finds refuge with old Commodore Jackson's troupe of actors as a singing attraction. Under the Commodore's tutelage, he becomes the most feared gunfighter on the river, and just as he is about to return to the girl, he finds that he is in love with another lady who detests dueling. "Mississippi," adapted from the play by Booth Tarkington, was directed by Edward Sutherland.

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything).

Henry who said, "let us have peace?"
Mike, Sr.—"Niver, me son. No man by the name of Patrick wud ever say anything loike thot."
Down in Alabama, a negro preacher who had served a short jail sentence in his earlier life was fearful lest his congregation discover the fact, as in later years he had been a model of rectitude. One Sunday, rising to begin his sermon, his heart sank to see a former cellmate sitting in the front row. Quick thinking was necessary. Fixing his eye on the unwelcome guest, the preacher announced solemnly: "An takes mah text dis mo'nin' from de sixty-toth chapter and fo' hundreth verse of de Book of Job, whioa says: 'Dem as sees an' knows me, an' says nothin', dem will ise recompense later!'"
Although this verse sounds like I might have written it myself, I'll have to admit it was sent in:
DUST:
A sneeze: You choke: This is the thing that makes us cattlemen go broke.
We cry: we pray: for the rain that does not come, God only knows that we are due some.
But, instead comes this hell dust. Before which, many have fell.
If we only had one or two little showers this country would bloom like the spring flowers.
For this thing we should all pray but whether it will come or not I can not say.
—A Lover of Rain.

DEMONSTRATIONS MARK ELECTIONS IN JUGOSLAVIA

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, May 6. (AP)—Police swung rubber batons viciously Sunday night to disperse 2,000 anti-Government demonstrators who had gathered to cheer what they believed was a victory in the day's heated parliamentary elections.

Many skulls were bruised, but apparently no one was seriously hurt. It was the capital's only election day disorder.

While the demonstrators believed they were cheering an opposition victory—real or not—the Government radio was telling another story.

All Government sources maintained the regime of Premier Bogoljub Yevitch, which is carrying on the Government of the assassinated King Alexander, won the endorsement of voters and some preliminary figures from what is known to be a fairly strong opposition to support this contention.

The Government said it received 29,500 votes in Belgrade to the opposition's 9,000, while at Sarajevo the Government was given 7,000 for the Government and 4,000 for the opposition.

At Zagreb hundreds of youths belonging to the opposition were arrested and the Government ordered foreign correspondents to leave Croatia.

The opposition claimed an overwhelming majority in many regions. Anti-Government forces said they carried virtually all of Croatia, Montenegro and Vojvodina, where they said Ministers of Transportation Vujitch lost his mandate.

Airplanes hovered over the capital throughout the day dropping Government leaflets and hundreds of Government automobiles brought voters to the polls.

FLANDIN FORCES WIN IN PARIS

PARIS, May 5. (AP)—Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin led his Cabinet to victory Sunday in the campaign to retain municipal posts in the elections, results of which indicated little change in the political complexion of France.

Except for slight Socialist losses, incomplete returns showed that of fiveholders were re-elected in virtually every instance.

The results were looked on by observers as showing that the French still are divided along their old political lines, despite attempts of candidates to whom it up with campaigns based on everything from German rearmament to the dole.

The balloting was conducted with the same calm which characterized May Day celebrations, with only five arrests as showing the only excitement was provided by Madame Louise Weiss, Suffragist leader, who was arrested for throwing powder in the eyes of a police sergeant who tried to move her from her stand before a voting booth.

Premier Flandin was re-elected Mayor of his home town of Amcey Sur Cure by a vote of 96 to 11. Pierre Laval, Foreign Minister, whose re-election to the Municipal Council of Ambergiers was threatened by Communists, also won by a large majority.

Prison Schools Are Showing Increases

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP)—Prison schools are growing by leaps and bounds. J. M. Reynolds, supervisor of schools in the Texas Penitentiary System, said here recently, attributing the increased interest in education among prisoners to Gov. James V. Allred's action in placing pardons on a merit basis.

"At present we have exactly 2,754 inmates, or fifty-one per cent of our total prison population, enrolled in our various schools."

The highest former attendance at the schools, which were inaugurated in 1929 with 136 students, was 2,529, in January, 1933.

There are now 22 schools in the system and more are being put in as needed, said Reynolds. Other vocational courses are steadily being added and the increase in attendance justifies in the smaller schools on the farms.

For teachers the system picks from inmates, 286 serving at present under twenty-two inmate supervisors.

In addition to an elementary seven-grade standardized curriculum, approximately 65 courses in vocational agriculture are being taught in the inmate-students. These courses come under headings of commercial, construction, mechanical, printing, shoe work, medical, power and refrigeration, feed mill, canning and packing, baking, livestock and dairy, horticulture, and poultry departments.

For work done in the schools the men are given credit on their sentences of an hour and half for each hour of attendance.

Nineteen inmates voluntarily joined the schools recently, said Reynolds, while pointing out that he expected the schools soon to increase to 3,000 inmates.

Hackett Will Sing On Ford Program

Charles Hackett, whose reputation as one of the world's great operatic and concert tenors probably exceeds that of any other American, will be guest artist with the Ford Symphony Orchestra and Chorus, under Victor Kolar, in the Ford Sunday Evening Hour of Sunday, May 12. The program is heard from 9 to 10 o'clock, Eastern Daylight Saving Time, over a coast-to-coast network of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Mr. Hackett is a self-made man in the truly American sense. Following his graduation from high school, he went to work for fifty dollars a month in a drafting office, but was discharged soon after, not because of incompetence, but because his employer was a male lover and felt that Hackett needed a spur to make him undertake the study of music seriously. The idea worked, for Hackett never again devoted his time to any profession but music.

Hackett went to Boston, and was able to pay for voice lessons under Arthur Hubbard by singing in a Boston church. Not long after, he had saved enough to go to Italy for further study. Within a few months after his arrival he had secured a few engagements to sing with the Grand opera, and scored such successes there that he achieved the ambition of every artisan engagement at La Scala.

After continued and increasing triumphs abroad, Hackett came back to his native land to sing first with the Metropolitan and then with the Chicago Civic Opera. His concert tours, as well as his operatic performances, have taken him all over the world. He is an especial favorite in Australia and South America, although his reputation is second to none in Paris, Berlin, Rome, Florence, London and other European music centers as well as in the leading strongholds of opera and concert in his native country.

Big Spring Golfers Drub Stanton 20-10

The Big Spring Sand Belt Team golfers swept all of their matches here and the Stanton golfers came out ahead by a 30-10 score.

Rogers of Big Spring was the only member of his team to lose an individual match to his opponents. Big Spring won low ball in every match.

The game scheduled to be played between Midland and Lamesa Sand Belt clubs was postponed until next Sunday when the Lamesa team requested a delay owing to the bad condition of the roads from Lamesa to Big Spring following the rains there Friday and Saturday.

COLTS LOSE LARGE LEAD AND GAME TO FORSAN CLUB 23-14

The Midland Colts lost their first game of the season yesterday when they dissipated an early lead and let the Cosden Oilers overpower them in a ding-dong slugfest 23-14.

Shiffert started on the mound for the Midland team and in four innings gave the visiting team four runs before retiring.

Girdley went into the box to start the fifth and immediately ran into all kinds of trouble. Determined to give all players a chance to play, Manager White sent in some infield replacements and errors by these men along with one by Girdley gave the invaders 8 runs before they could be retired. The Cosden team made one run off Girdley in the sixth, after which he was relieved by Carter.

Carter's offering proved to be no puzzle at all to the Forsan team and after walking two, hitting one and giving up a brace of hits he was derailed and Estes was brought in from the outfield.

Estes pitched fairly creditably, for an outfielder, but his support was of a very poor nature. The visitors managed to get him for their last eight runs in the last two innings.

Payne started on the mound for Cosden and though hit hard early in the game he improved and in the last four innings did not let any man get all around the bases.

Hard hitters for the game were plentiful and also lots of errors were made by each team.

The Midland team looked like a real nine for the first four innings of the game but after that they looked terrible. Pyron and Butler looked like a real keystone combination but after they were taken out for Bizzell and Dobson the whole infield failed to click and there was a lot of wild tossing of the ball around the diamond.

The canvasback is one of the fastest of all American ducks, and among the most famous.

Pontiac Field Men To Hold Conventions

More than 300 members of the field personnel of the Pontiac Motor Co. will meet with central office executives during a series of two-day conventions scheduled in the current month.

Oral and written examinations will comprise a part of each meeting. Four will be held—one in each of the four great sales regions in which the United States is divided on the Pontiac domestic sales map.

First meeting will be at New York City May 6-7, the second at Cincinnati May 9-10, the third at Chicago May 16-17, and the last at Oakland, Calif., May 21-22. The points designated are each in the approximate geographical center of the four regions.

This projected program is the most extensive and intensive held by Pontiac under the present management. A. W. L. Gilpin, Vice-president and general sales manager, who is directing the program and will attend all meetings, states that the object is to give every field man a complete, and up-to-date understanding of every function of the sales division and of company policies.

To that end every departmental head in the sales division will take part in each program. Lectures and theatrical presentations of subjects under discussion will occupy an important place in the two-day programs.

D. U. Bathrick, assistant general sales manager in charge of the East, will assist Mr. Gilpin in conducting the meetings at New York and Cincinnati, and C. P. Simpson, in charge of the western half of the country, will take a leading role in the Chicago and Oakland Meetings.

Other sales executives from the central office at Pontiac, Michigan, who will participate in all meetings are L. K. Marshall, service manager; S. C. Bray, sales promotion manager; O. A. Lamoreux, parts and ac-

TEXANS AWARDED CARNEGIE MEDALS

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP)—The heroism of a Pelly, Texas, foreman who tried to save a drowning man and a Fort Worth student who saved an elderly woman from a burning building was honored today by the Carnegie Hero Fund committee. A bronze medal was awarded the student and the father of the foreman.

The dead hero was Roy D. Littlefield, 38, a labor sub-foreman, February 14, 1934, he saw Louis J. Kloesel, 61-year-old laborer, attempt to cross Cedar Bayou, Texas, on a fallen tree and slide off into 20 feet of water.

Another man, holding to a strong vine, swam to Kloesel, was grasped by the drowning man but freed himself and swam to the bank. Littlefield, fully clothed, dived from the bank to Kloesel, then eight feet from the shore, and got hold of him. Kloesel threw an arm around Littlefield's neck and grasped another rescuer with his other arm. The second man broke away and swam to safety but Kloesel then threw both arms about Littlefield's neck. Littlefield tried in vain to break the drowning man's hold but was unable and they drifted a few feet and sank together.

The medal goes to the father, Raymond A. Littlefield.

The other Texan, Weldon J. Allen, a student, of (2624 University Drive) Fort Worth, was passing an apartment house January 31, 1934, as an explosion blew the roof from one corner of the second floor, hurling Mrs. Amelia L. Williams, 66, into a bathtub and severely burning her. Lights were put out and the inside walls of Mrs. Williams' apartment began to burn.

Allen and another youth broke a screen with a section of the broken cornice which had fallen from the roof. They broke the glass in the window, which was 12 feet from the ground, leaned the cornice against the window-sill and Allen climbed into the room.

Despite flames which covered the floor and walls, Allen responded to Mrs. Williams' cries and entered the bathroom, lifted her from the tub and supported her as he walked into the hall. One end of the hall was in flames but guided by cries from others Allen helped Mrs. Williams to the other end of the hall and through two rooms to a rear stairway despite dense smoke and darkness. They went down the stairs and out of the building.

Mrs. Williams died the next day from the severe burns. Allen was slightly burned.

Today's awards were two of 18 by the commission. Five of the heroes lost their lives while aiding others.

Mason Boys Winners In Cattle Showings

MASON, Tex. (AP)—"Mason county boy's calf grand champion" was a familiar headline over newspaper accounts of the five major livestock shows in Texas this year. This county, which in the last three years developed more 4-H Club calf champions than perhaps any other in the United States, produced the grand champions shown at Fort Worth, San Antonio, Houston, Amarillo and El Paso.

Among Mason county boys who were winners are: J. D. Jordan, Amarillo show; James Grote, San Antonio show; August Jordan, Fort Worth show; Byron Eckert, Houston show, and Sammy Horester, El Paso show.

Horester, named as the outstanding 4-H Club boy at the second annual Farmers' Week and Texas Agricultural Association convention at Dallas, was awarded a trip to the National 4-H encampment at Washington this summer. Last year he fed seven calves on which he made a net profit of $1,184.02. He has completed seven years of club work and won the Armour & Company trip to the International Livestock Exposition at Chicago in 1932.

R. B. Tate, Mason county agent, who has directed the group of champion winners for several years, instituted a new project of dry feeding for this season. Forty Mason business men and ranchmen agreed to give calves to boy feeders who complete a crop demonstration. Each boy must raise 2,000 pounds of grain and an equal amount of roughage and provide a feeding pen with self feeder and water before he becomes eligible for a calf. The calves will be delivered about Sept. 1.
