ARRANGEMENTS FOR TRADES DAY NEAR COMPLETION

Grand Parade Will Be Feature of Show

Trades Day arrangements today were nearing completion. The parade, to start in front of the Reporter-Telegram building at 3:30 p. m. Saturday under the direction of Harry L. Hight, had been outlined in detail.

Headed by City Marshal Andy Nowwood, riding a black saddle horse, the parade will consist of a stringed orchestra, the Texas Rounders mounted on truck, the Midland Colts baseball team, the parade clown, Ray Gwyn's loud speaker for announcements, cowboys and cowgirls of their horses. Next will be the livestock division, headed by stallions, then cow horses, saddle horses, Percheron mares and colts, jacks, draft horses and mules, thoroughbreds, Standard poodles ridden by boys and girls, Hereford bulls, Hereford cows, Roan Durhams, Holsteins, Jerseys.

The livestock section will be followed by floats and vehicles, headed by Midland merchants and business institutions, including new automobiles, farm machinery and equipment, decorated advertising cars and other vehicles.

Numerous special features, such as the trotting horse and rig from Knott, will be interspersed among the regular divisions.

Judging of livestock will begin at 2 o'clock, at the Trades Day grounds south of the Reporter-Telegram.

The parade will follow immediately afterward starting at 3:30 p. m. going from the Trades Day grounds east to Main street, north to Texas avenue, west to Carrio street, south to Wall street and east, past the Hotel Schabauer and between the two banks on Main street, then south and back to the starting point.

John M. Gist, Hereford breeder of Midland and owner of the prize stallion, will add to the prize for best Percheron stallion, giving $150 in merchandise.

H. H. Fine has accepted the work of clerk of the show and sale, taking the place of Fletcher Currie who will be umpiring a baseball game out of the city.

E. B. Bickel, chairman of the Trades Day, and W. T. Blakeway, general manager for the day, said this morning that every individual of every business house is invited to have an exhibit in the parade and in the show. If additional prizes are offered by merchants who were not seen early in the week, full credit will be given, they pointed out, that the monthly event is for the benefit of all and "nobody is barred."

Going Into Action in War on Atlantic Icebergs

The annual iceberg boom is on. Warm weather breaks mountains of ice off northern glaciers, creating a menace for shipping as the bergs float south. Even ice patrols set out to blast the bergs into harmless pieces with their huge deck guns. Here's a view from the deck of the U. S. Coast Guard boat, Mendota, as it cautiously approaches a huge floe in the North Atlantic. Water a quick survey of its extent, the booming of the Mendota's guns sounded the death knell of this peril to shipping.

ENGLAND JOINS ARMAMENT RACE

LONDON, May 2. (AP)—Great Britain will spend an extra $25,000,000 this year to keep abreast of Germany in Europe's heading air armaments race.

The amount will be expended in addition to the $105,000,000 already provided in air estimates for the current fiscal year, it was disclosed Wednesday.

The proposal, regarded as an answer to Adolf Hitler's boast that the Reich is as strong in the air as Great Britain, is expected to be the high light of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's important announcement opening the House of Commons debate on foreign affairs today.

The Prime Minister, speaking in the Commons Wednesday, said that the British Government stands behind an article he wrote last week assailing Germany's swift rearmament as perilous to the continent's peace.

A formal declaration of foreign policy and national defense to be presented to Parliament will contain definite assurances that Britain is taking the necessary measures to keep its defenses adequate to meet Germany's weapons.

THE COMING CENTURY

The Centennial year of 1936 will be memorable in the annals of the State. Much attention rightly will be paid to past history and present achievements and visitors to Texas will be impressed by the good roads, great stretches of fertile land and the evidences of mineral wealth on every hand.

But it would be a great blunder if Texans, in their the annals of the State. Much attention rightly will be narrations of the State and its resources, stopped with past history and present development. The real Texas is the Texas of the coming century, when its citizens have become weaned from cotton-mindedness and begin to see the incoming of a new era in which home manufactures and industries will be prominent.

The drift of Northern and Eastern capital and industries is toward the South and more especially the great Southwest region. Business is gradually leaving the East and migrating into newer regions rich in possibilities, such as in Texas. This Southwest region is largely still economically virgin territory. The development of its resources, the canalization of its rivers and the growth of its seaports on the Gulf and at the mouths of rivers will be the work of coming years.

But this southward drift can be directed and expedited if the State and local governments, in both county and municipality, will develop constructive leadership and plan systematically for a safe transition from cotton to manufactures. Banks and capitalists should think in terms of home investments, seeing to it that the profits from the State's natural resources remain in the State for further investment, not for the enrichment of absentee investors, interested only in dividend returns. At present Texas is permitting its natural wealth to add to the profits of outsiders, many of whom exploit its resources. How much wiser are the Filipinos, who recently placed in their Constitution the statement that 'natural wealth belongs to the islands and can therefore be leased but not sold to capitalist investors. The State University's income from oil land leases is a minor illustration of the benefits that accrue from so wise a policy.

Texas in the past has a history that is glorious in its achievements. Present developments are important and Texans may well feel proud of them. But the real Texas belongs to the century that will begin in 1936. At present the future lies dormant in the hearts of the coming leaders of the State, the younger citizens who see visions of an imperial Texas, made up of millions of intelligent and resourceful persons, happy in the continuous progress of the Lone Star Empire of the Southwest.

BACK TO RIVER TRAFFIC

After decades of idleness, the Missouri river once again is to become a highway for commerce. On June 7 navigation will reopen along the "Big Muddy," and a string of barges will leave St. Louis in charge of a tug, carrying freight to Kansas City.

While all this will present harassed railway traffic managers with more reason to frown their brows, it is probably true that on the whole it represents a step in the right direction.

We may not be quite sure, just yet, how we are going to solve our transportation problems. But it is surely logical to suppose that any step which makes transportation cheaper is a good one to take.

It is worth remembering that if we ever really exploit our vast industrial resources to their fullest extent, we shall need all the transportation facilities available—and wish we had more.

War Profits--

tee that sales abroad and exchanges of patents with foreign munition makers helped them to learn foreign munitions secrets. The answer to that is twofold. Admiral Forbes told the committee there is no such thing as war and munition secrets. But, far more serious, is this fact. Before the war we sold munitions abroad. The Electric Boat Company sold a submarine to Austria. The submarine is an American baby. The head of the Electric Boat Company admitted to the Nye Committee that all the "vital parts" of the German submarines were taken from his company. The Germans got them from that sub-boat which was sold to Austria. And it was those German submarines, patterned on the American models, which sank our ships and brought us into the war.

Then there is a little scrap of more recent unwritten history which ought to be told now. When Hitler came into power in Germany over two years ago, American munition manufacturers saw with delight the rise of another customer. Their agents hurried to do business with the new war lord. By April of 1934 Germany swarmed with the representatives of American airplane makers. In July Dolfuss was assassinated and for days the world looked on with the gravest uncertainty as France and Italy and Czechoslovakia mobilized their armies.

In the midst of these fears one American manufacturer of planes was putting on all possible speed to deliver parts, while the battleship Goering bombarded the company for more and more speed. That company was delivering motors, crankshafts, cylinder heads in quantities sufficient for 100 planes a month. Another American maker of automatic pilots and gyro compasses was rushing shipments for 50 planes a month. It had turned over to the German government its plant for making certain aircraft parts, including fire control devices.

One of our largest plane producers was just getting into production and beginning the delivery of war aircraft complete. Altogether these American manufacturers looked forward to equipping Germany within a year—that is, by April, 1935—with 2500 fighting ships. To know what a formidable armada that is you must remember that the entire air-fleet of the American Navy is but 936 planes.

There doubtless will be a movement to prohibit all munition trade abroad.

3. Nationalization of munitions must be threshed out. The committee is studying that subject. It is a big one. It has technical difficulties and questions.

4. What about trading with foreign countries when engaged in war? Should we sell them clothes, food, luxuries? The trend of opinion in the committee seems to be that perhaps this sort of trade should not be, and perhaps could not be well prevented—but that the United States should forbid the shipment of anything to belligerents during the war on American ships. American vessels in peril-fraught zones might well be taken into another war. Belligerents might come to our shores and trade, but it would be a cash-and-carry business.

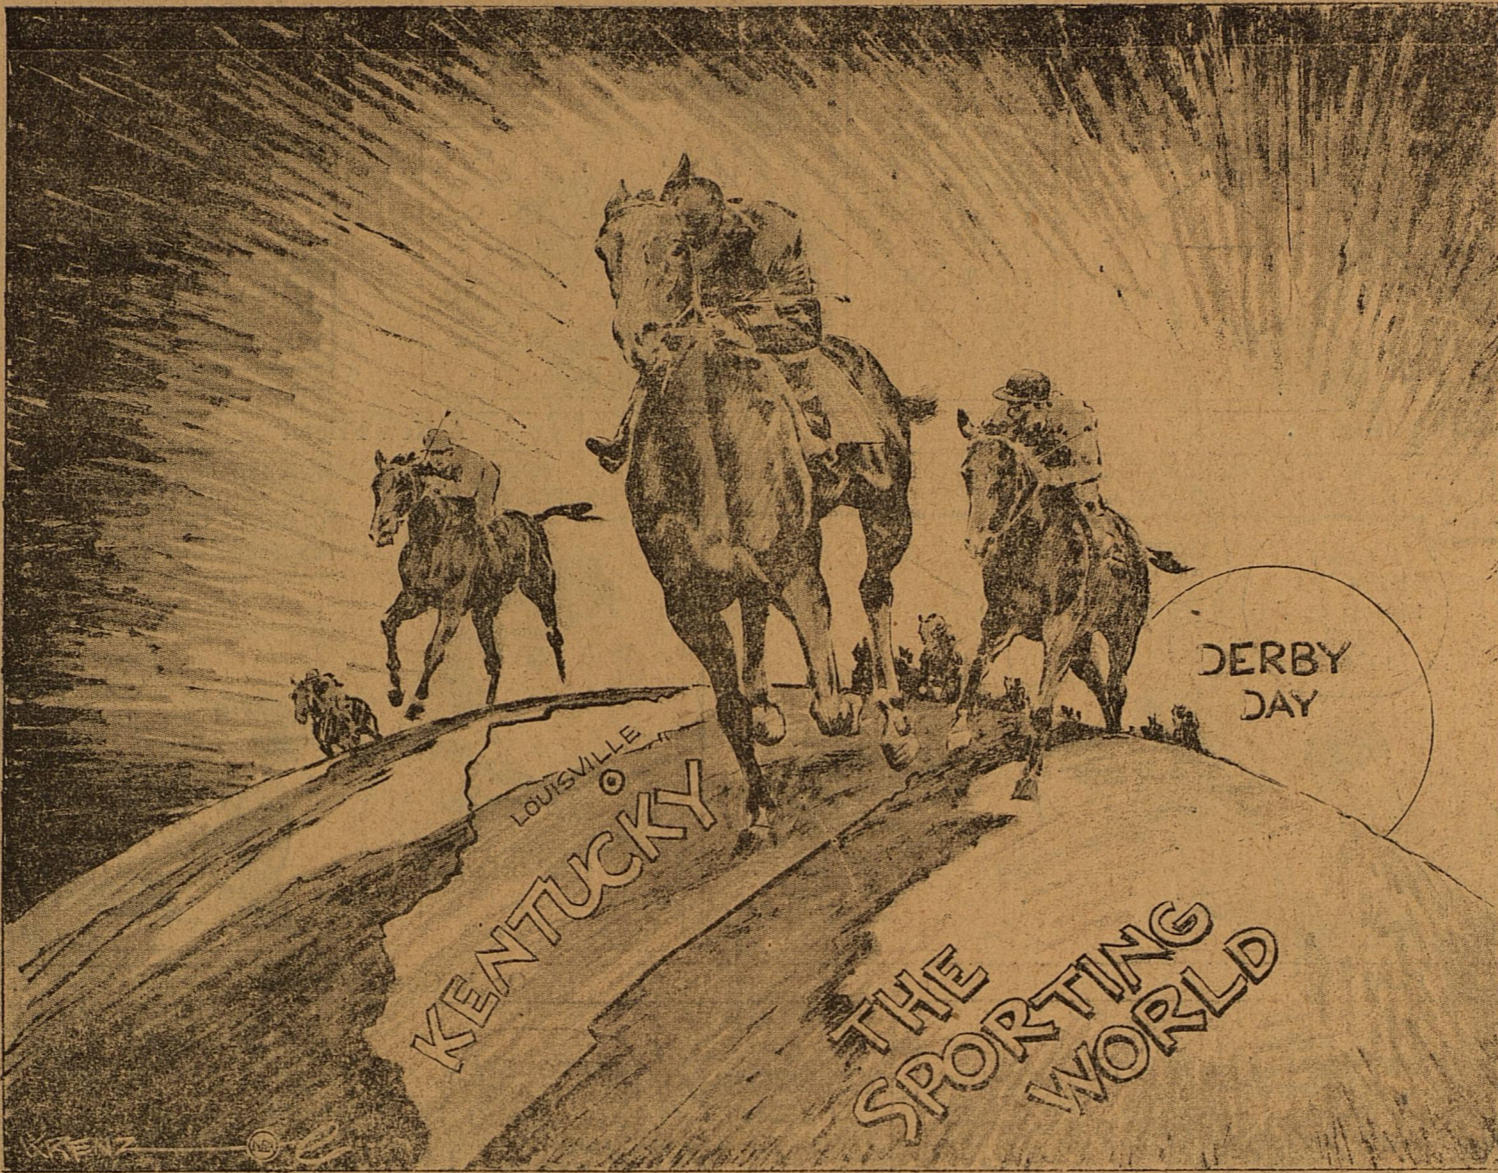

5. Next there is the subject of international control of munitions by some international body. Dr. Manley Hudson of Harvard University, went to Geneva for the committee to make a study of that subject and has made an elaborate report on it. It has been printed and can be secured, doubtless through your own Congressman.

6. Then comes the question of Americans wandering into war zones. Already Senator Nye and Clark have introduced a resolution in the Senate to deny passports to "American citizens traveling in war zones or on any vessel of any belligerent power except under such regulations as the President may make."

7. In the last war we loaned ELEVEN BILLION DOLLARS to our allies. When the war was over they paid a little in the way of interest. One by one they all put their thumbs on their noses and wagged their fingers at us. For those loans now we are hated by the world, damned by our allies as a Shylock. Also we are out eleven billion dollars. Are we helped to get us into the war. Senators Nye and Clark have introduced another resolution which is designed to make it unlawful for any American to lend money or extend any credit to any belligerent government for the purpose of buying or paying for munitions of war.

That all these plans together, if carried into law, would prevent war no one imagines. There still remain the great human causes of war. But it so happens that we have no real quarrel with any nation on earth. The great human causes, which run so deep

Overshadowing The Sports World

UMPIRE'S 'PLAY BALL' WILL BE ONLY SPEECH FOR OPENING GAME TONIGHT

By JESS RODGERS

With no more formality than an opening "Play Ball", the first night game of the year will start tonight between the Elite "We Clean Em" tailors of Monahans and the Midland Hardware club that has been gathered together in the last few days by Luther Tidwell.

The Monahans club, as full of fight as a game rooster, and as full of wisecracks as Will Rogers, has promised to bring along 500 spectators to watch them change the name of the Midland team from Hardware to Software.

The Monahans team is already claiming the championship of West Texas for the year of 1935 but it is our opinion that they are just a shade "Pramachure" as it is a long time until the season is over.

The visitors may take the Midland boys' scalps back home with them tonight but five will get them ten if they can do so after the season has started here. At present the feature of the Midland team is their lack of condition but let them get a few games played and get used to the ball and the Ward county sluggers would more than likely become poppers and whiffers.

Tidwell will start on the mound for the Midland team tonight and if he fails to retire the visitors with his slow curve ball Manager Tidwell will toss either Bill Howard or Jimmy Adamson at them.

No admission will be charged for seeing the game and everybody and their dog is invited to come out and see it.

The Virginia Judge Yucca Picture Today

Walter C. Kelly, "The Virginia Judge," heads the comedy cast of Paramount's "McFadden's Flats" in the character of an old Irishman who prefers a "faithful enemy to a doubtful friend." The picture comes to the Yucca Theatre Friday and Saturday.

Featured with Andy Clyde, comedy favorite, Kelly plays an Irishman who rises from hod-carrier to builder, but never abandons his feud with the Scottish barber whom he secretly likes.

The children of these two old hardhells, Richard Cromwell and Betty Furness, are romantic about each other until Kelly sends his daughter away to finishing school where she soon forgets her old friends.

Kelly's growing extravagance soon gets him into financial hot water and he learns that Clyde's money had secretly carried him all along. Everything is saved however when a millionaire takes Kelly into partnership and both he and his daughter learn that old friends are the best.

2 West Texas Wells Show Sulphur Water

Hopes of two West Texas wells were dimmed yesterday when sulphur water showed in the hole, according to reports here today.

One, Gulf Production Company No. 5 White & Baker, Pecos county, encountered a hole full of sulphur water at total depth of 2,051 feet, after showing a little oil. Orders have been given to plug and abandon the test, which was the fourth failure drilled by Gulf on the property. Location is in the northeast corner of the northeast quarter of Section 38, block 194 G. C. & S. F. Railway survey.

Whether or not sulphur water showing in Penrose et al No. 1 Kioh, western Ector county wildcat, will mark the test a failure is not definitely known yet. The wildcat, located in section 31, block 45, township 1 north, T. & P. Railway survey, has drilled to 4,394 feet in limestone, one barrel of sulphur water per hour showing at 4,298 feet, although it is believed that the water is exhausting.

Aggies and T.C.U. to Meet in 2 Game Series

COLLEGE STATION, May 2.—Virtually out of the championship picture but with a good chance for second place, the Texas Aggies will play the Texas Christian Frogs on the Kyle Field diamond here Friday and Saturday. The Aggies are four games behind the leading University of Texas Longhorns, with only four games to play, but are only one game behind the second place Frogs.

Capt. Jake Mooty, of Fort Worth, who has hurled forty-nine of the 70 1-3 innings the Aggies have been fielded in conference play, probably will start Friday's game in the box.

Trotting Horse, Gig to Be Paraded

The trotting horse is not all gone. Midland was paid a visit Wednesday by P. O. Hughes of Knot, north of Big Spring, who owns and drives to a gig a fancy trotting race horse, McRone Patches.

The horse was seen by Midland men who attended a race meet at Ackerly last Saturday. He was put through his fast trot by the owner as a special stunt on the program. Hughes will bring him to Midland Saturday and drive him in the Trades Day parade.

Hughes, who was here yesterday, is an ardent fan for trotting races and hopes to see them come back in Texas.
