

Warsaw Yielded To Germans Only After It Became A City Of Ruin And Tragedy

BUDAPEST, Sept. 28 (AP)—Except for strange, sputtered signals, the wavelenght of the Warsaw radio was silent today.

Apparently the station's epic tale was told, ended on the same defiant note it struck during the 20 days it told the outside world of German siege.

The last message, broadcast at 3 p. m. (8 a. m. C.S.T.) yesterday, was a new challenge to the assailants:

"We will never give in while one of us is alive."

But last night the Polish telegraph agency carried a dispatch, dated Warsaw, which indicated defense of the Polish capital had been abandoned.

German announcements said the city had capitulated unconditionally and would surrender formally tomorrow.

From the picture painted by the radio announcers and by a Polish army flier who escaped through a barrage of German shells, Warsaw gave up only after it had become a city of ruin and tragedy.

The flier, Lieut. Col. Mateus Isyck, who flew out of Poland Monday, told of an ever-deepening black pall of smoke over Warsaw.

In a husky voice that dropped to a whisper, he told of starvation, of incessant rumbles of siege guns, of civilians creeping from cellars during lulls in artillery fire and beneath air raids to bury their dead in parks, and public places.

"From the air the city is a horrible sight," he said. "Hardly a building is intact."

"The city is ringed by six divisions of German soldiers whose artillery is pouring in shells unceasingly, aided by an average of 200 raiding planes a day."

"Warsaw is a city where from 40 to 60 new fires start daily from incendiary bombs."

"It is a city where priests say mass in wrecked churches; a city of never-ending bellows where heavy bombs go crashing through four or five floors and topple an entire building."

"There's a no-man's land strewn with dead men, women and horses."

Col. Isyck said Warsaw's defenders could rest "when the Germans took time out for lunch" but otherwise the bombardment was "steady and methodical, striking every section of the city."

"I had a room in the Bristol hotel," he related. "One day I went there to find my room had disappeared in a mass of ruins."

"All hospitals have been hit or destroyed and practically all medical aid is administered on the spot. In many instances there was nothing to do but watch those die who were seriously wounded."

"At times the wounded had to be thrown from burning houses to the street below, even though they suffered additional broken bones."

Col. Isyck said the Poles found pamphlets on some captured Germans "promising them that by Christmas Nazi Propaganda Minister Goebbels would speak to them from London."

Britain Looks For Hitler To Propose Peace

Fuehrer Expected To Bid For Acceptance Of Poland's Defeat

LONDON, Sept. 28 (AP)—Conviction that Adolf Hitler is working toward a spectacular "end the war" move designed to force British and French acceptance of the "liquidation" of Poland grew in diplomatic circles here today.

The British government kept guarded silence on German-Soviet Russian negotiations at Moscow but many informed observers expressed belief Hitler would make the talks a springboard for a "peace offensive."

Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax had another interview with Russian Ambassador Ivan Malsky yesterday, apparently seeking light on enigmatic Russian policy.

Britain grimly went ahead with preparations for a war of any length to "crush Hitlerism."

Unflinchingly the nation accepted financial sacrifices called for yesterday in a 2,000,000,000 pound (approximately $3,000,000,000) war budget submitted to parliament by chancellor of the exchequer, Sir John Simon.

The budget called for a 35 per cent tax on income until next March 31, end of the fiscal year, and 37.5 per cent in the next year. The rate has been 27.5 per cent.

The Bank of England reduced its discount rate today from four to three per cent to assist huge borrowing—loans of nearly 1,000,000,000 pounds (approximately $1,000,000,000) are in prospect—to finance the war this year.

The indicated minimum budget requirement of 2,000,000,000 pounds will be met roughly half by borrowing and half by taxation.

Some observers declared Hitler's immediate goal was to have Britain and France recognize a "flat accomplishment" in Poland and conclude hostilities in the west with a promise of colonial concessions to Germany.

Failing this, Hitler would launch fierce aerial warfare against the British and French, with the aim of destroying civilian morale, these observers predicted.

Alert against this hostility, the government warned that the 1,500,000 women and children now distributed through the English countryside should not return to homes in congested cities. Stringent night curfews were kept in force.

United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy again advised Americans in Britain to go home. It was estimated there still were some 4,000 of them in the United Kingdom and of this number 2,500 were said to have no urgent reasons for staying.

ARMS SALE IS APPROVED BY COMMITTEE

Senate Group OK's Neutrality Change, Lifting Embargo, And Putting Bel- ligerents On Cash-Carry Basis

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP)—The senate foreign relations committee approved today the administration neutrality bill to permit the sale of American armaments to belligerent nations.

Senate debate on the measure is scheduled to start Monday.

Senator Borah of Idaho, ranking republican member of the committee, announced the vote as 16 to 7. He said several of those voting for the measure reserved the right to oppose it later.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky said the committee had agreed to an amendment to permit American planes to land and refuel at their bases in the Western Hemisphere, even if the bases were situated on belligerent territory.

Committeemen recorded as voting against approving the bill were Senators Clark (D-Mo), Shipstead (FL-Minn), LaFollette (Prog-Wis) and four republicans, Johnson of California, Vandenberg of Michigan, Capper of Kansas, and Borah.

Senators White (R-Me), Gillette (D-Iowa) and Reynolds (D-NC) were said to have voted for approval in order to get the measure to the floor. They reserved the right to oppose it later.

The bill was approved after a three-hour session. It would repeal the existing embargo on arms to belligerent countries.

Belligerents would be required to take title to all armaments and other goods purchased in this country before they were shipped, however, and would have to carry the purchases home in their own vessels.

Sponsors of the measure claim these provisions would serve to put all sales to warring countries on a virtual "cash and carry" basis.

The committee's final action on the measure came after development of a controversy which threatened for a time to delay approval until tomorrow.

The senate, in its brief session, voted unanimously to ask the attorney general for information on what powers were made available to President Roosevelt when he recently proclaimed a state of national emergency.

The resolution asking the information was proposed by Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.).

The resolution also requested the attorney general to inform the senate what other extraordinary powers, if any, were made available to the president "under existing statute in emergency or state of war."

Senator Clark (D-Mo) offered a resolution calling for the establishment of a seven-man senate committee to investigate "all persons or firms" acting for foreign governments and using propaganda or other means in an effort to effect "a change in the neutral position of the United States."

The resolution was referred to the foreign relations committee.

The senate adjourned until Monday after a 12-minute session.

NEW LINEUP SEEN IN MOSCOW PARLEY

U-BOAT CREWS ARE LAUDED BY HITLER

WILHELMSHAVEN, Germany, Sept. 28 (AP)—Adolf Hitler visited this North sea naval base today to congratulate submarine crews returning from cruises in "enemy waters."

Announcement of the fuhrer's visit said he came to laud the submarine flotilla for "successful trips" abroad.

Grand Admiral Erich Raeder, commander-in-chief of the German navy, accompanied Hitler.

The fuhrer thanked officers and men personally and later at an informal gathering had members of submarine crews tell him of their experiences.

Estonia Gives Reds Trouble

Second Sea Attack Occurs As Relation- ship Studied

MOSCOW, Sept. 28 (AP)—The official Soviet agency, Tass, today reported the second attack in two days by an unidentified submarine on Soviet shipping near Estonia.

Crew in No Danger

The agency said the captain of the 967-ton soviet steamer Pioneer radioed that an unknown submarine had forced him to run onto the rocks of Vigrund Bank while trying to enter Narva bay.

The bay is on Estonia's northern coast.

A salvage expedition was dispatched to aid the Pioneer, whose crew was reported in no danger.

Russia said yesterday a mysterious submarine had sunk the soviet steamer Metallist in the same general region. The announcement coincided with soviet press attacks on Estonia accusing her of harboring foreign warships.

Estonian relations received attention while soviet negotiations were under way with Germany and Turkey.

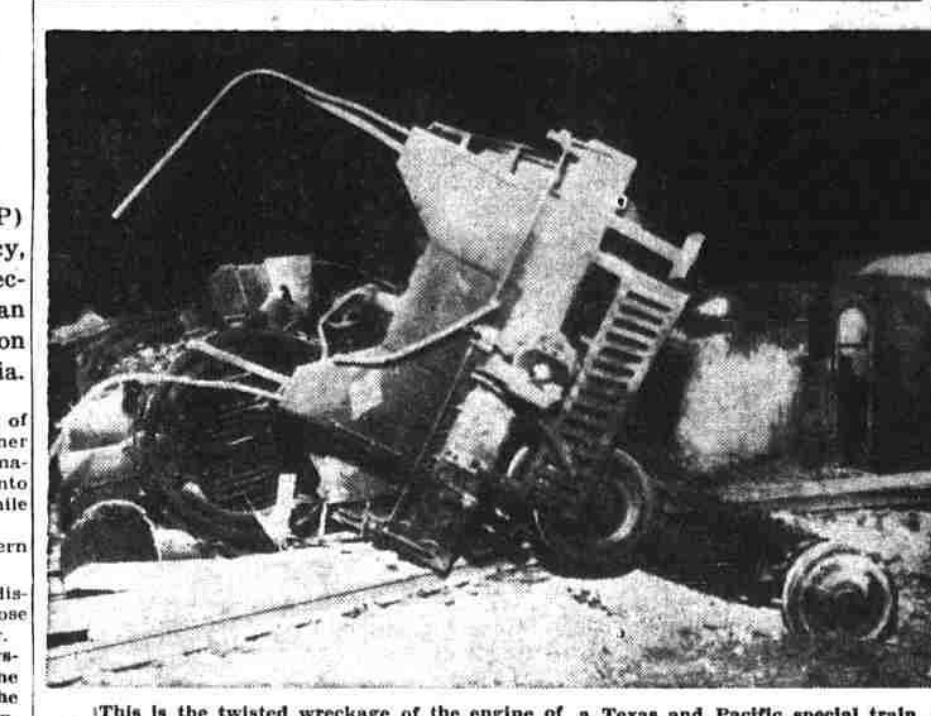

The German-Russian parley was resumed this afternoon in the Kremlin, where Joseph Stalin, Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov and German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop conferred from 3 p. m. (6 a. m. C.S.T.) until 5:30.

Meanwhile the Moscow diplomatic corps wondered anxiously whether these conferences portended another quick shift in Europe's balance of power.

With two other foreign ministers here, representing Turkey and Estonia, Moscow was the proud center of intense diplomatic activity.

Only a few hours after his plane landed, the German diplomat held

French Planes Over Germany

PARIS, Sept. 28 (AP)—Military dispatches today reported French scouting planes had carried out successful reconnaissance flights far into the interior of Germany.

The French airmen went "as far as possible" eastward, flying over railroads and highways to observe German troop movements behind the western front, these dispatches said.

Reliable sources asserted activity on the west, where a general staff communique reported "a calm night," was confined chiefly to scouting operations, but that operations on a more extensive scale could be expected soon.

"An enemy attack west of Saarbruecken failed," the communique declared.

Informed quarters expressed belief Fuhrer Hitler was preparing to advance peace proposals, backed by the threat of a possible German-Soviet Russian military alliance and new Nazi troop concentrations in the west.

These sources said they would not be surprised if Hitler made representations to France and Britain before the weekend.

Such representations, it was expected, would ask the allies to recognize the German-soviet partition of Poland and raise consideration of Germany's colonial demands.

Refusal to consider peace on this basis, observers declared, might be taken by Hitler as justifying before the world a "com-

End Of Polish Campaign Seen As Fortress Falls

BERLIN, Sept. 28 (AP)—The supreme army command, announcing for the second day a success for Germany's air force against Britain's naval might, reported today a British heavy cruiser had been bombed off the east coast of Scotland.

(A spokesman for the admiralty in London declared this was "all poppycock.")

At the same time the command foreshadowed the end of the campaign in Poland with the news that the fortress of Modlin, 15 miles northwest of Warsaw, had offered to surrender following the recapture of the Polish capital.

In describing aerial activity yesterday, the command's communique said:

"Heavy British cruiser was successfully attacked off the Isle of May (at the mouth of the Firth of Forth) by one air force fighting unit. One 250-kilo (550-pound) bomb hit the ship."

The announcement, failed to assess the damage, but added:

"Of the heavy British naval forces which were attacked the day before (Tuesday), one airplane carrier was hit by one 500-kilo (1,100-pound) bomb and one battleship was hit at the prow and midships by two 250-kilo bombs."

The fortress of Modlin, stronghold of Polish forces at the junction of the Vistula and Bug rivers, waved the white flag of surrender 24 hours after the Polish capital gave up resistance.

Modlin was cut off from Warsaw last week, and the offer to surrender marked the end of a formidable nest of resistance.

CAA Urged To Set A Hearing On New North-South Line

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP)—Three Texas congressmen today urged Chairman Robert H. Hinckley of the Civil Aeronautics Authority to expedite the setting of a hearing to determine the need of an air line from San Antonio, Tex., to Denver.

Representatives Mahon, Kilday and South told Hinckley they had ample evidence to warrant authorization of the line, which would extend via San Angelo, Big Spring, Lubbock, Amarillo, Tex., and Pueblo, Colo.

Hinckley informed them hearings on the CAA docket probably would last until December.

Three companies have applied to CAA for authority to serve all or a portion of the proposed San Antonio-Denver route. They are Braniff Airways, Continental Airlines and Easair, Inc.

AIRCRAFT CARRIER HINTED BY NAZIS AS LAST VICTIM

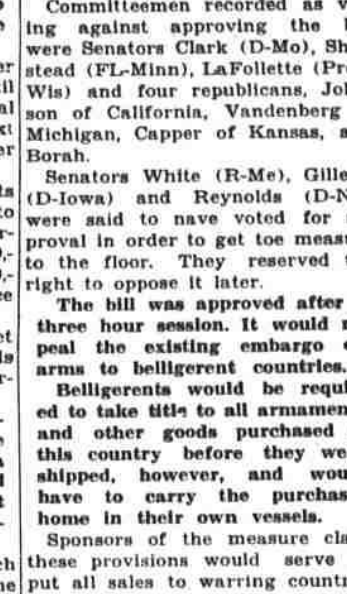

BERLIN, Sept. 28 (AP)—German radio stations today broadcast a hint that Britain's newest aircraft carrier, the Ark Royal, was the vessel which the German high command asserted was "destroyed" by Nazi aircraft Tuesday in a raid on British naval units in the North sea.

(The British Press association said "suggestions of damage" to the Ark Royal "are untrue" and declared the vessel "is safe and sound at her allotted station.")

"An airplane carrier of the most modern construction sustained a square hit of the heaviest caliber" in Tuesday's raid, the broadcasts declared.

"A tremendous explosion was the result. Where is the Ark Royal?" (The 22,000-ton Ark Royal, which carries a normal complement of 60 planes, was completed Nov. 16, 1938, at a cost of about $12,000,000.)

Jean Bolton sits calmly in West Palm Beach, Fla., waiting to go into court where she told of being kidnaped with a school chum, Frances Dunn. Gets Death For Slaying Girl

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Sept. 28 (AP)—A bogus theatrical promoter who lured two movie-truck girls from Miami with glib promises of fame, and then killed one of them, looked with but faint hope today toward a supreme court appeal that might save him from the electric chair.

A circuit court jury of ten married men and two bachelors last night convicted Charles Jefferson, 29, on a charge of slaying 17-year-old Frances Dunn in a palmetto thicket near the beach at Boca Raton last August.

The verdict of first degree murder without a recommendation of mercy made the death sentence mandatory.

Jefferson—also known as Thomas Cochran, Herbert Goddard and Thomas Ashwell during his checkered career—managed a weak smile when the jury returned the verdict after deliberating 4 hours and 35 minutes.

Work Progressing On Road To Lakes

Rapid progress was reported on the county lateral road project from old Highway No. 1 east to the Moss Creek city lakesite Thursday.

Thurston Orenbaum, county road engineer, said that two tractors and blades had been assigned to the job for the past two days and were rapidly clearing up a road bed.

Next week county crews will be put to work facing State Highway No. 9 right-of-way over the Frank Pool pasture.

J. Floyd Malcolm, associated with Cagle Bros. of Blahop in the construction of two city dams, said Thursday that equipment would be moved from those jobs to a new camp to be established south of town on the state highway project on which Cagle Bros. and Latimer of Blahop bid successfully.

Cotton Subsidies Total Over $97,000

There were 86 checks in the amount of $5,732, bringing the total number of checks received to date to 954 and the amount to $97,199. Average check received Thursday was little less than $87, far below the previous average of more than $100.

At Cut Bank the temperature dropped to 30 degrees during the night. The minimum was 31 at Great Falls and Lewistown.

Assault Case Nearing Jury

The fate of Alahondro Ramirez, Mexican charged with an assault on his wife with intent to kill her, was due to be in the hands of a jury early Thursday afternoon in 70th district court.

Ramirez testified that he had been arrested after the woman had been cut on the leg, arm and throat during a brawl in a street in the Mexican quarter on Sept. 8.

In a contested case, C. O. Cross was given a divorce from Roxie Mae Cross, but custody of a minor child was granted to the defendant for the current school term when the plaintiff will be given custody for the summer and the next school term.

Jack Potter was given a divorce from Ruby Dell Potter.

With the September term of court nearing an end, Judge Cecil Collins put the jury commission, composed of Joe B. Harrison, Curtis Driver and W. C. Rogers, to work drawing up the grand jury and petit jury lists for the November term.

Shippers See Trade Gains

FORT WORTH, Sept. 28 (AP)—A 15 per cent increase in shipment of cotton during October, November and December, over the corresponding period of 1938 was forecast today as members of the Southwest Shippers Advisory board palmed a rosy picture of business conditions in the Southwest during those three months.

Approximately 400 delegates from Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas, holding their 32nd one-day meeting heard reports which indicated a 5.5 per cent increase would be made in the movement of all commodities during the last quarter of the year.

The cotton committee, headed by J. W. McCann, reported the cotton business looks brighter than it has for the last four years and added because of the government export subsidy, exports have increased about 50 per cent and "the domestic mills also are buying much cotton."

The European war is the principal factor in the increased business, it was stated. The wholesale grocers' committee anticipated a 10 per cent gain in shipments of food commodities over the last quarter of 1938.

Of the 28 commodities studied, only nine are due to show decreased shipments. Flour, meal, and other mill products are tabbed for a one per cent increase.

DETROIT MAN NAMED Legion Commander

CHICAGO, Sept. 28 (AP)—Raymond J. Kelly, corporation counsel of Detroit, was elected national commander of the American Legion today.

Kelly was chosen unanimously to succeed Stephen F. Chadwick, of Seattle, after two other contenders for the office had withdrawn. The new chief of the organization of 1,024,084 ex-servicemen has been head of Detroit's legal department since 1933. He worked his way through the universities of Notre Dame and Detroit and served 18 months overseas during the World war as a lieutenant in the artillery.

The two legionnaires who were nominated but who withdrew in favor of Kelly were Lynn Stambaugh, of Fargo, N. D., and Milo Warner, of Toledo, O.

Legislation to outlaw "the communist party, the German Bund and similar organizations," was advocated by the convention.

Delegates attending the final session approved the report of the American Legion committee urging such action.

The pronouncement also asked continuation of the Dies committee investigating unamerican activities, suggested registration of aliens and requested the legion-

TRAYNOR RESIGNS AS PITT MANAGER

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 28 (AP)—Harold (Pie) Traynor today resigned as manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, a job he had held since June, 1934. A successor has not been selected.

President William E. Benavenger accepted the resignation, effective Sunday, with "regret" and announced Traynor would be retained by the club, probably as an assistant to Joe Schmitt, head of the Pirate farm system.

Benavenger said he would "get busy at once" to find another manager.

Reports current here said Frankie Frisch, former St. Louis Cardinal pilot, would get the job.

DIES COMMITTEE IS TOLD OF 'FUEHRERSHIP' COLLECTIONS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP)—The Dies committee was told today that an organization with headquarters in Vienna and Berlin collected funds from Ukrainians in the United States toward establishment of "fuhrership" in the Ukraine.

Emil Reyvuk of Jersey City, assistant editor of the Ukrainian Daily Svoboda, testified Ukrainians had contributed through him for years to the "O.U.N." and its leadership, the Freyid, which sent out appeals from the two cities.

"O.U.N." the witness said, stood for "Organization of Ukrainian Nationalists" and was the international

KANSAS CITY, Kas., Sept. 28 (AP)—C. I. O. union employes of the Cudahy Packing company walked out today and caused the large plant to close down.

Police estimated 800 strikers gathered in front of the company's gate. They formed in lines six abreast, blocking all entrance to the plant. Members of the A. F. of L. union said they were anxious to go back to work and may ask Governor Payne Ratner to declare martial law in the area.

They were due back at Annapolis for classes September 30. The party left Gainesville, Tex., at 11 a. m. Wednesday.

FUR COAT, ON THE HOOF—Three such "chins" as these would alarm any woman, but judges at a sheep breeders' show in Newmarket, Australia, were delighted with this Merino ram's "perfect neck rolls, square build, good head."

HITCHHIKER HELD IN DEATH PROBE

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Sept. 28 (AP)—A 300-pound, powerfully built hitchhiker was jailed today in the investigation of the slaying of Mrs. Clara Buchanan, 33-year-old matron strangled with an apron and kitchen towels in her home Monday. No charge was placed against the prisoner. District Attorney Frederick E. Smittle said one description that put investigators on the man's trail was furnished by another woman who reported an attempt to attack her two weeks ago.

Other Texas Survivors Of The Athenia Disaster Arrive Home With Graphic Tales Of Horror

By the Associated Press

Fifteen more Texas survivors of the Athenia disaster neared their home state today with graphic accounts of terrifying experiences while the ship was sinking and during the long hours in life boats before rescue vessels arrived. They reached New York late Wednesday aboard the United States liner Orizaba.

Helen Hannay of Houston, hailed as one of the heroines of the sea tragedy, refused to be interviewed. Her father, District Judge Allen B. Hannay, proudly showed her a two-page letter from Joseph P. Kennedy, United States ambassador to Great Britain, praising her rescue work while seasick on the Athenia.

In going to the aid of four or five women and children in the fast-flooding hold of the ill-fated ship, Miss Hannay, University of Texas sophomore, broke her left arm and shoulder blade and suffered a severe injury to her right eye.

Through her father, she told of being seasick and in bed when the explosion occurred. With a flashlight she made her way to the hold to help the women and children trapped there. She left on one of the last lifeboats pulling away from the Athenia. A davit collapsed as the lifeboat lowered, killing the woman next to her.

After being picked up by a British destroyer, Miss Hannay stayed at the West Glasgow hospital until the Orizaba sailed.

As soon as she saw her father, the Houston girl said: "I managed to save two of the knives I bought for you."

Judge Hannay is president of the Whittlers' club at Houston.

When reporters tried to question her about her experiences, Judge Hannay answered: "We'll talk about that later."

"No, never," the daughter interposed.

Propellers Destroyed Boat.

The Mackey sisters of Gladewater, Louise and Catherine, reached America's safe shores on the latter's birthday. Their lifeboat was destroyed by the propellers of the Knute Nelson, one of the rescue ships.

"I think about 70 of us were in the boat," Louise said. "I don't think more than eight or ten were saved. The rest just died in the water, I guess. We clung to wreckage for four hours before we were picked up."

"You see, the sea was so high the Nelson had to keep going but her propellers were turning at what seemed to be a tremendous speed. As we drifted into them, I remembered the old serial movies where the villain had tied the girl in the path of the buzz saw and then it was continued until next week."

"But we had no handsome hero to pull us out. Almost it seemed a magnet—those blades sucked us to them, and then tipped into the lifeboat just like a buzz saw might. Splinters of wood flew and many of the people in the boat must have been drawn into those huge meat choppers because when we finally were rescued we found blood stains on the white canvas of our lifebelts."

Miss Maxine Robison of Austin said she was in the dining room when the ship was blasted.

Polish Refugees Aboard.

"There was a terrific splintering," she said. "The lights went out. Then the ship listed toward port side. The tables overturned and we scrambled out into the passageway. We lit matches to see."

"The only people who showed any panic at all were mothers who couldn't find their children, and you couldn't blame them. Most of the mothers were Polish refugees and they couldn't understand English and didn't know what all the commands were about."

Jerry Jane Wynne of Dallas was taking a bath when the explosion occurred.

"I grabbed a silk negligee and ran to the deck, believe me," she said. "Somebody gave me a coat. I was in the life boat eight hours and it was plenty cold with such a little bit of clothing to protect me."

Other Texas Athenia survivors aboard the Orizaba included: Harry and Mrs. Edith Bridges, Abilene; Hazel Casserly, San Antonio; Margaret Doggett and Bel Stewart, Dallas; Miss Bobbie Bert, Sonora; William and Mrs. Kate Hinds, Houston; Miss Anne Moore, College Station, and Miss Elizabeth Wise, Fort Worth.

AN ANALYSIS OF THE WAR DEVELOPMENTS

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The Moscow conference between Russia and Germany, with Turkey sitting in, continues to be the switchboard of the European war. We shall know how the conflict is heading when the new cartographic firm of Stalin and Hitler cuts us in so we can learn how the map-making and political readjustments of the continent are going. At the moment the proceedings remain as mysterious as a dog burying a bone, though there are plenty of reports going about. The most important development in connection with this hush-hush parley is the persistent report that the communists and nazis may enlarge their cooperation by entering a military alliance, which presumably would bring the soviet into the war on Germany's side.

Soviet Premier Molotov has announced Russia will remain neutral, and apart from that, observers generally believe an alliance would not suit Stalin's policy. The point of all this is that there is a wide-spread belief in Europe that Germany is getting ready to make another peace offer, and is holding the threat of a Russo-German alliance over the heads of England and France.

There is no indication the Anglo-French allies have receded an inch from their firm declaration they intend to pursue the war until they "crush Hitlerism."

It is doubtful whether the Nazi fisher himself believes there is much chance of persuading the Allies to make peace on his terms.

One other important development relates to the precarious position of little Estonia, former Russian territory lying on the Gulf of Finland next to the Soviet Union. Unofficial reports persist in Moscow that Russia is demanding fortification concessions in Estonian waters.

Whatever the outcome of this, there appears to be small doubt Russia intends to control the Baltic, which must be in the way of a hard blow to Germany.

Entertainment In Store For Oil Men At Houston Meet

FRANK CAROTHERS

HOUSTON, Sept. 28—Frank Carothers, of the Norvell-Wilder Supply company, widely known humorist, has been well chosen to serve as chairman of the entertainment committee for the big annual convention of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas association, to be held here October 6th, 8th and 7th, according to John R. Suman, president of the Houston Wildcats and general chairman on arrangements for the convention.

Carothers has put many a prominent oil man on the "pan" with his wisecracking philosophy and is a past-master in the art of arranging a fun program for oil men, Suman stated.

Plans for entertaining the oil men and their wives during their stay in Houston have been practically completed. Advance information obtained through local convention committee sources late Wednesday indicates that the Houston Wildcats, hosts to the oil men, will stage an unusually fine entertainment program on Friday night, October 6th, at the River Oaks country club. The affair is to be known as the "Oil Men's Jamboree," and will include a banquet, floor show and dancing to the music of a nationally famous orchestra.

INCREASE SHOWN IN CAR LOADINGS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP)—The Association of American Railroads reported today $14,828 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ending last Saturday. This was an increase of 9,000 cars, or 1.1 per cent, compared with the preceding week; and an increase of 145,124, or 21.7 per cent, compared with a year ago.

REUNION—Determined to locate his father, whose letters he found after his mother's death, Edward Scott, 16, hiked to Washington, D. C., was united with Cornelius V. Scott, 39. Boy's mother took him to Tennessee soon after birth.

DROUTH WORSE THAN THAT OF 1895

KIRBYVILLE, Tex., Sept. 28 (AP)—Old timers describe the drouth in this section as worse than the "dry spell" of '95 when "tracks made by plowmen in cotton fields in the spring were still there in the fall." The rainfall in this deep East Texas section has been negligible since early spring. Fall truck and garden crops have failed to sprout. Big timber was reported dying and forest fires have been frequent. Water holes have dried up and wells are falling, forcing farmers and ranchers to haul water from towns. Even highway workmen have been affected, having to wear masks to combat the dust.

The Cut in Pensions

In all the fuss about the cut in October old age pension checks, this fact should not be overlooked—The new public welfare board demonstrated that it had plenty of courage to do the just rather than the political thing by making that cut.

Everyone with the slightest knowledge of state affairs has known for months that when the board started repaying the bank loan in October, as required by law, it would be necessary to cut down on the pension program.

There were two ways to do it—1. One method was to cut each check the same amount, as was done for October when a $6 cut was made.

2. The second method was to cut off about 5,000 old people completely, thus saving enough money to make the payments to the bank.

Many believed that the second course would be followed. Certainly it was the political course.

The politician reasoned thus—"If you cut off 25,000 people, it will make them plenty mad, but the 100,000 still on the rolls won't be mad. On the other hand, if you cut down on every pension check, you will make all those on the rolls—more than 120,000—hopping, mad."

But the new board, without an eye to the politics of the situation, decided to cut all checks equally, and it's a safe bet that all 120,000 pensioners will be furious.

The pension problem could have been settled if there had been more of a spirit of compromise on the part of Governor O'Daniel during the last session of the legislature.

The governor's proposal to levy a sales tax through a constitutional amendment aroused a bitter, five-months fight, and no final agreement on 'his' particular proposal was ever possible.

But everyone knew that these things were true—1. A vast majority of legislators—perhaps 95 per cent—knew that the pension program needed some additional money and this majority was willing to vote for a tax measure that would raise the money.

2. With a willing word from Governor O'Daniel, a statutory tax bill could have been passed in a few days, and this bill could have been put over in exactly the form desired by the governor, whether it contained a sales tax or transaction tax or whatnot.

The governor, however, refused to budge an inch on his demands for a constitutional amendment, and this was a concession to which the 56 house members would not agree.

As a result of his insistence on a tax measure following his ideas to a T, the governor now finds himself in a tough political spot as a result of the current pension crisis.

Last year he promised $30 per month pensions to everyone over 65; this year, in October, the average pension check will be about $5, the lowest figure in the history of the Texas old age pension system.

The bitter fruits of a refusal to compromise are now being reaped, and the worst part of it all is that the real sufferers are the 120,000 old folks whose checks are being slashed.

George Tucker Man About Manhattan

NEW YORK—The machine age has been overtaken and passed—as far as New York is concerned—by the slot machine age. About the only thing the machines haven't been able to give you is a shave.

You can drop nickels (dimes and 15 cents too) in slots along our boulevards and obtain coffee, sandwiches, cigarettes, handkerchiefs, chocolates, beautiful music, peanuts, mints, perfume sprays, and even books. Or perhaps they should be called pamphlets. These, to me, are the newest thing in slot machines.

There is a huge one in the Chambers street station and a swell glance as I sped past noted these titles (1) E Hitler a Maniac?; (2) Do You Lose Your Temper?; (3) and The Truth About Mussolini. There were perhaps a dozen other titles. You drop in a dime, select the title that amuses you most, and pull down a lever. The book drops out.

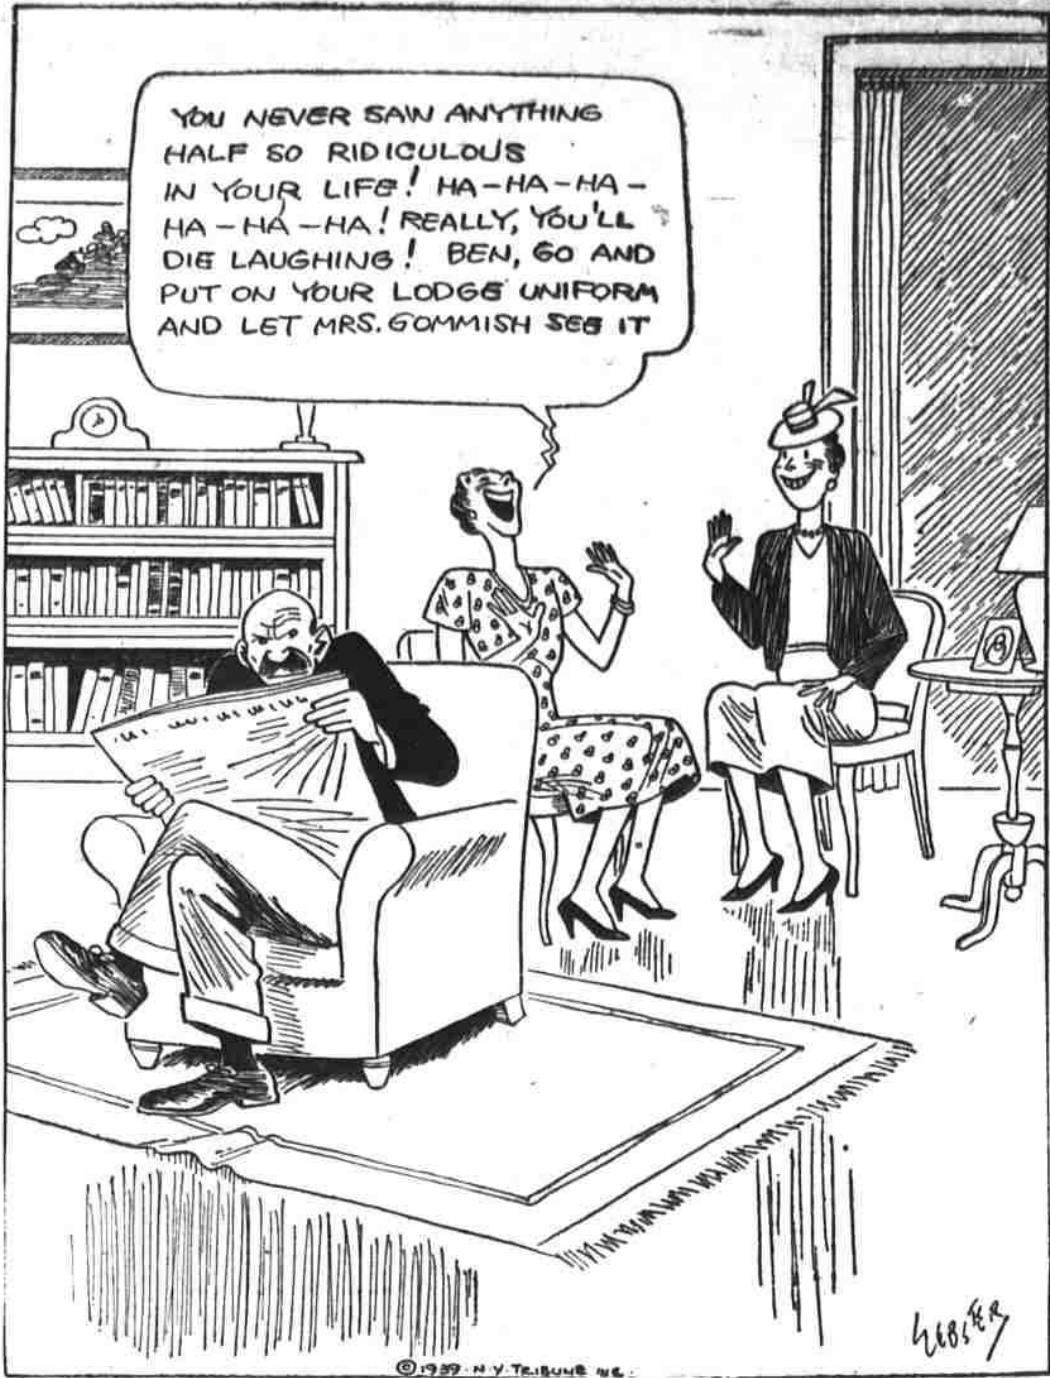

Our waterfront has changed its spots. It doesn't look the same. The big German-American Hamburg line docks are as silent and empty as a churchyard at night. When you pass there you get echoes back if you even think.

Near at hand the big Normandie, pride of the French marine service, is snug at her pier. But she is a deserted ship. Her crew has fled back to France, leaving only "the watch." No one is in evidence as you nose by, but if you attempted to get too close, or board, you'd have plenty of gendarmes to pour on you.

The other day I talked for nearly an hour with the captain of a low-lying black and yellow freighter. She was black and yellow then. But as we talked dozens of men were hastily converting her into a ghost ship of gray—gray sides and decks and funnels and trimmings. It was the shade of gray best calculated to become undiscernible in clouds and in fog and mist. She was the ship of a belligerent nation.

"How long are you going to remain here in Hoboken?" I asked the captain. I didn't expect an answer, and when I got one I was greatly surprised. "At least three weeks," he said, "right here."

After A Man's Heart

Chapter 21 SCIENTIFIC STUDY

"I'll back you to do whatever needs to be done," George rose and rested a friendly hand on her shoulder for an instant. "Of course I know you were joking, Buff, when you used to talk about marrying Tim; but golly, how swell it would be if it really happened! I couldn't wish anything better for old Tim—and he's one of the best, though I admit he's acting like seven kinds of a fool just now—than to pick himself a wife like you."

"She looked steadily ahead of her. "I wasn't fooling, George. I'm not now. I'm going to marry Tim." "He know it?" demanded the startled Mr. Weekes.

"No," Her mouth drooped a little sadly. "That is, I've told him often enough but he refuses my offer."

"He—why, the silly so-and-so, the—why, I'll make him marry you if I have to bash his head in!" "Calm yourself, George dear. You sound like the father of the wronged maiden in a dialect poem—in Texas, down on the Rio Grande, or something like that. I'll handle this matter myself, and thank you so much! Is that clearly understood?"

"He opened his mouth, shut it, opened it again to say, "Clearly; most clearly indeed, my dear Miss Atlas. Any other little jobs you've laid out for yourself? Like shoving Long's Peak a mile or so nearer to Pike's, for example?"

"You consider my task so difficult?" "Well, Tim—if Tim's made up his mind either to do or not to do something, he's not what you might call easy to influence. And with this Iris complication again to the fore—but my money's on you, Buff, every time. And may heaven bless you!" he said at the door.

"Buff set herself to the study of Iris DeMuth with the cold detachment and concentration of a scientist. She wanted to know two things about her: first whether the newcomer was sincere in her protestations of innocence about the affair of the summer; second, in just what lay the charm she exerted over Tim, as well as over most of the men she met.

The second question was more easily answered than the first. Iris was sex-conscious. It was not in her to allow anything masculine, whether it was Boulder's most eligible young lawyer or the freckle-faced urchin who brought cigarettes to her room, to depart without having her mark put upon him. She did it automatically, perhaps instinctively, Buff decided.

"She was a lovely little girl," ran Buff's thoughts, "graceful, pretty, with that white skin and those wistful dark eyes. She probably flirted in her kindergarten days. In her teens she got real results. It's an occupation with her just as Lance must concern himself with the reaction of his public to every new character he puts in his cartoons."

There was nothing spiteful in this analysis. Buff was honestly trying to understand a nature distinctly foreign to her. Her life with her parents had given her a large tolerance of humanity's foibles. Somehow the discovery that most of Iris's affairs were impersonal, merely the artist's display of talent before an audience of one and that invariably masculine, served to soften her fault toward Tim in the younger girl's eyes. She discovered that Iris had a bag of tricks, as professionally necessary as that of a conjurer. The drooping of long lashes against a petal white cheek, the sudden wide and radiant smile which so transformed her, the appealing hand on a man's arm, the caressing little upward inflection in the lovely voice—Iris used them one after another, impartially. Buff came to know them all, to watch for them. What mystified her was that Iris's victims remained unaware of her technique no matter how often and automatically it was used.

Lance Carroll's daughter, gifted with his own ability to burlesque anything and anybody, took sober counsel with herself on the subject. She knew how delicately but effectively she could exhibit Iris to Tim as she was, not as he saw her. The faintest accentuation of that coquettish appeal could not fail to make it ridiculous.

"But I shan't do it until I've proved—not just guessed or believed, but proved that Iris does not love Tim. One part of my mind says she does—how could she or any girl help it, darling Tim! The other reminds me coldly that when all is said and done, she did him the greatest possible injury last summer. And I don't think she's such a fool as she wants us—particularly Tim—to believe. She knows too much about men to have let that Latsaw deceive her. All that business of switching ore specimens on Tim—it sounds distinctly phony to me. However, I'll wait to be sure!"

So Boulder was treated to the unusual sight of Buff Carroll and Iris DeMuth, Tim's erstwhile fiancée and his present friend and comrade, going everywhere together. Buff lunched at the Boulder with Iris, with Tim and George—a George who exhibited an unexpected savvy toward the girl he disliked and distrusted—dined with Buff at her apartment. The quartet took in a weekly movie together. They drove, when the roads were clear of snow, up into one after another of the several canyons opening out of the University toward the west.

Tea in Buff's living room became a daily function; with Iris, always lovely, always a trifle mysterious and remote, lying back in the chair which best framed her dark head, while Buff presided over the table, and the town's younger set came and went.

"No chance at all to see you alone these days," George grumbled. "I've been waiting to tell you that the land still stands in Iris's name. Whatever her game is, she's going to play it slowly and cautiously this time. She needs to, in view of the rumpus that business kicked up here last summer."

"You're still convinced she's playing a game?" They were talking in undertones in the small dining room. Buff had slipped away to stick her head through the swinging door and ask Webby for more sandwiches. George had followed her, and detained her in consultation.

"What else?" he inquired simply. "It's not in her to love Tim, or any other man. She might be devoted to a bully, the sort of man Latsaw is, for instance; but it's more fear and admiration, the thrill of danger, than it is affection as such, even for him. She has no inner resources. If you understand what I mean, two stout lower in the social scale and she'd be the typical gangster's "moll." She loved the feeling of power it gave her to be catpaw for Latsaw—golly, it rhymes! Sorry, Buff! If she had more brains she'd make a dandy spy for some European country. As it is, she's not bad, she's not clever. She's a darned sight closer to being the sweet clinging vine she's always portraying than she realizes."

"You think this man Latsaw sent her back here? Gave her instructions to make it up with Tim?" "Exactly. They figured he fell so hard for her last year that it wouldn't be a big job to get hold of him again. It's exactly the sort of thing to flatter Iris's vanity. Latsaw knows that and is making use of it. For some reason best known to himself he wants that land back. I wish to heaven I knew why! It is merely to get possession of it legally, he could have bought it at the price Tim and I had set on it. But no, Iris must needs pay what we'd lost, and therefore renew her hold on Tim. Tim's the keystone of the deep dark plot—if plots have keystones. Latsaw needs him for something. "He scowled all the way up to his rapidly retreating hairline. "I wish I knew what!"

Buff put a question she had long hesitated over. "Tim... what do you think about Tim, George?" "You mean, is he back in Iris's toils?" she would like characters in a melodrama. Buff!—That's hard to say. If I had had the sense in the beginning not to sail into her, that infernal chivalry of his wouldn't have been aroused. As it is he's looking for trouble every time I open my mouth about her. You two are queer," he mused aloud. "You and Tim, I mean. Neither one of you is happy unless you're protecting somebody. Tim's doing a knight-in-armor act for Iris, you're on guard for Tim's sake. I wish," he finished plaintively, "somebody would yearn to look after me a while. Is it because I'm not tall and sort of gaunt looking, like Tim? Or is it because his hair is so thick and unruly? Why does no one long to rush to my defense?"

She patted his arm soothingly. "You belong to the League of Defense yourself, George dear! Who saw Tim through that bad time in August? Who came out to the ranch and fussed anxiously about his health, his mental state? You're worrying now, you just said so!"

He grinned sheepishly and said, "When appearing at that moment with a replenished sandwich plate, he took it from her and went about the living room, offering sustenance to Buff's guests."

The first part of Buff's problem was solved for her unexpectedly, and by Iris herself. It was a bitter day in February, with a wind that howled like an agonized soul about the campus, hard pellets of snow driven down from the high peaks making walking almost impossible. The two girls had lunched together in Buff's dining room and afterwards Iris had appropriated the softest chair and drawn it close to the fire. She had a cat's talent for making herself comfortable; also a cat's daintiness about her person. Buff thought, watching her touch her hair with deft fingers, smooth the folds of her wine-colored corduroy velvet, relax in just the position which best displayed the crossed slender ankles.

Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON—We have come upon some data about mustard gas that may arouse memories of World War veterans, particularly since it is pretty certain that the old burner will be used again on the French, English and Germans on the western front.

None of the countries now at war, nor even the humane United States, has any idea of giving up mustard gas as a war weapon. In fact, United States military men, together with some of the chemical warfare experts of other countries, have been defending the stuff as one of the more humane ways of winning battles.

Casualties are high, but only a few of the casualties are going to die and only a few more will be permanently crippled. The same can't be said of bullets or a jagged hunk of exploding shell. Anyway, that is the contention of the gas warfare advocates. As a gas, mustard is just about tops. Gas masks will keep the soldiers from inhaling—but that is only a fractional protection from mustard. That stuff soaks into clothes, burns little blisters at the slightest contact, and makes a hospital case out of even the mildest attacks. It can't be handled in a field dressing station, in the manner of a minor nick from a bullet or shell fragment.

When a soldier gets a touch of mustard gas he lies out of the war from 30 to 90 days—and perhaps for the duration.

The stuff grows on you. Each little blister fills with juice just like a burn. But the juice is not ordinary juice. When the blister breaks, the juice will raise more blisters where ever it touches. And those blisters make more blisters, endlessly.

A tiny blister may form unnoticed under a soldier's belt. It breaks under the weight of his pack and runs down his thigh. A little chain of blisters forms. He is a sick man. He may try to keep on fighting, just to get another crack at the bloody butchers, but it is no use. He scratches the burn with his fingers and rubs his face. Then little blisters start there and off we go again.

Nice, isn't it? Sprayed across a road the gas will prevent troops passing that way for a week or 10 days at least. In woods or brush it may last several weeks. A mustard bomb dropped in an industrial plant would make casualties out of all who were sprayed by it, or who handled the machinery before it had been treated.

WE'VE GOT A LOT If it happens to be spattered over an airfield, all planes touched by it must be put out of commission until they are specially treated. A badly soured plane can hardly be recovered. The mustard gums up the delicate working parts in the dashboard mechanism.

The stuff can be washed away with lime by men wearing specially treated suits which prevent the gas getting to their skin. Doubtless it would delay operations in an industrial plant it would delay the slightest residue remaining in the cockpit will start blisters on the pilot unless he is willing to fly in a gas-proof suit. That is uncomfortable. Such suits are a hospital.

Taken to an airtight soldier is put to bed. The little blisters are drained so the juice won't touch him. Caught in time—before the stuff gets out of hand—the effects can be cured, and the soldier put back in the dugouts.

And the gas isn't mustard at all. It just smells like it, and looks like it.

Uncle Sam knows where he can get a lot of it.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

HOLLYWOOD—Peace, it's wonderful. The peace of Dietrich, Marlay-nah the happy, the gay, the working gal.

After a year and a half, she's making another picture. She's wearing her honey-gold hair curled and frizzily as well as covered with its usual gold dust for sheer. She's wearing a short, spangled pale green frock, with apangles in her hair, spangles on her slippers. She's Frenchy, the dance hall queen with the heart of gold. At least it turns out to be a heart of gold, if they stick to the story outline they have for "Destry Rides Again."

Marlene isn't the girl she used to be. If she was ever happy on the sets at one place, she didn't show it. She was the aloof one. But a year and a half on the sidelines, a trip to France to make a movie that wasn't made, a chance at a role that's like her first hit in "The Blue Angel"—these have changed her, or it might be that she's showing appreciation for her new American citizenship, for the chance to be in it all over here and away from it all over there.

Vernon Keys, the assistant director to George Marshall, wears a fancy whistle around his neck. On its face is a tiny watch, and engraved on the reverse, "I come." Gift from Mar-lay-nah. Gift with a chuckle in it. When Vernon blows, Mar-lay-nah comes running.

This new Dietrich is laboring on a set that is more than vaguely familiar. It is a saloon and dancehall of the wild west of the 1880's. It has the inevitable long bar (presided over this time by Billy Gilbert, the rotund sneezer), the usual abbreviated stage, on which Mar-lay-nah will throat through some western yippee tunes, and the customary games of chance. Almost equally inevitable is Brian Donlevy, in the role of the side-burned, suave guy with the heart of brass. (This role is getting to be a habit with Brian—but he could play it in his sleep.)

But there's one thing different: a fellow named James Stewart. For more than a year this picture has been on the Stewart schedule. Now that he's making it, his box-office value is sure to have been stepped up by the yet unreleased "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," the Frank Capra film.

A quieter, less pugnacious cowboy hero you couldn't imagine. The lad of the underling lip and bewildered yokel air is going to be the most distinctive western hero of the films, who fights with words and calms things down, when possible, by appeals to reason. But when he gets aroused, wow! (With Stewart in the role, the thought occurred that "Destry Rides Again" might be an attempt to satirize the familiar rooht-tooth theme, but Director Marshall says no, it's going to be played straight.)

Joe Pasternak, the producer, when asked how Dietrich was persuaded to play in a western, says: "Why, she wanted the part!"

But there's one thing mysterious about this picture, for all that. A careful reading of the synopsis reveals that Stewart, who does the riding, is tagged Tom Blake—and nowhere in action appears a character named Destry. Destry, it seems, rode again—but right out of the screenplay.

A reader of this paper is of the opinion that Nature knew what she was doing when she arranged touch her hair with deft fingers, smooth the folds of her wine-colored corduroy velvet, relax in just the position which best displayed the crossed slender ankles.

Siegfried Line Seen By Newsmen As Being Built Solely For Defense

(Louis P. Lochner, chief of the Associated Press Berlin bureau and a 1938 Pulitzer prize winner, is touring sections of Germany's Siegfried line and the Belgium, Luxembourg and French frontiers. This is his account of what he saw on the first tour of these sections by newspaper correspondents.)

WITH THE GERMAN ARMY OF THE WEST, Sept. 28 (AP)—Inspection of Germany's Siegfried line leads to the belief the fortifications are purely defensive, offering protection against approaching enemies but also providing obstacles to German armies wishing to charge opposing lines from the stronghold.

Seeing the inside and outside of the Westwall with the first group of Americans ever permitted within these guarded precincts has demonstrated to me that German strategy in building this fortification zone centered on three questions:

How can bombing attacks be nullified? How can tanks be prevented from invading this zone? How can artillery fire be so diffused as to make big gaps in the Westwall impossible?

Germany has developed a system of fortifications which differs essentially from the French Maginot line in its depth.

The defenses go deep as far as 35 miles from the frontier and consist of a maze of cross-crossed concrete and steel obstructions, pill boxes or bunkers camouflaged into the landscape and fortress-like embattlements invisible to the eyes.

Roughly speaking, the Westwall is a system of four lines of defense. The first two are for infantry and artillery. The third and fourth are for anti-aircraft defenses.

The first line is so thickly studded with concrete blocks and bunkers that in an area a half mile wide and one and half miles long we counted 70 pill boxes, each connected underground with the others.

Each of these bunkers is so arranged that firing from one crosses the fire from another. Hence, even if one were silenced, others splitting their fire simultaneously might prevent the enemy from entering the breach.

The concrete and steel blocks are so irregular that it is believed no tanks could force their way across them. Moreover, the pill boxes are camouflaged so that aviators have difficulty in finding them.

Inside The Fortresses Surrounding the entire fortifications are steel-plated fortresses at danger points. No American had been in one until our group was permitted to enter.

The inspection certainly was a revelation. We saw turrets seemingly calculated to spit liquid fire. We saw other turrets with heavy machine guns. We saw periscopes, electric kitchens, shower baths, radio sets, complete telephone plants, air purification machinery, bunkers for officers and men—all deep in the earth.

Each compartment of these subterranean fortifications was usually built into huge, mountain sides, walled off from the next by steel doors like bulkheads of ocean ships. From each side of long corridors, machine guns peered ominously at us.

It was explained that if by remote chance an enemy should come in through some door, machine guns would finish him. To make sure no enemy could detect the units of this diffused fortification system, gardeners planted shrubs and trees in such a manner that within six weeks after the planting the distant watcher could not make out the hidden defenses.

One of the season's better backs who will gain only publicity in this sector is Tommy McDonald, Forsan high school's ace fullback who, despite a wrenched side, has led the Buffaloes to two impressive six-man grid victories to date.

Tommy, who couldn't weigh over 160 pounds but is a natural, would have made Big Spring a grand little player had he been transferred here this fall.

The youngster who starred in basketball for Brady Nix's team last winter had to play second fiddle to Hollis Parker as a griddler for the Bisons during the '38 campaign but when Hollis moved on Tommy gained the spotlight. Hollis scored 126 points in closing out his high school grid career. Tommy may better that figure.

McDonald appears especially potent on the defense and notes that mail mostly by instinct. He galloped away in two touchdown runs against Coahoma last weekend that were breath taking. He leaves the passing and kicking to other members of the Forsan force but is a competent blocker, can catch passes and is the defensive block in the Forsan lineup.

Mentor Nix claims he does not have as powerful a team as he did last year when the Bisons romped to ten consecutive victories but McDonald may be able to lead the sextet to another perfect season.

What a combination he would make with Big Spring's Lefty Bethell.

KBST, the local radio station, will bring to Big Spring listeners a play-by-play resume of the TCU-UCLA football game following the Big Spring-Lubbock game Friday night, picking up that broadcast, which will be coming from Los Angeles, Calif., around 10:15 p. m.

Obie Bristow, who dropped over to Sweetwater Tuesday night to watch the TCU Horned Frogs conduct practice in preparation for their game with UCLA in Los Angeles Friday night, opines Jack Odie, Dutch Meyer's newest passing sensation, is one of the greatest passers he has ever seen in action.

Obie, however, thinks the Frogs are much weaker than in 1938.

Bill Dolan and Jesus Garza, two of Corpus Christi high school's top backs who played a large part in the Bucs' drive for the state championship last fall, are playing for Corpus Christi Junior college.

Odessa high school's slogan is "A state football championship by 1941."

The Hesses, piloted by one of the state's smartest coaches, Joe Coleman, might come through, at that. Several of his better prospects will not become eligible until 1940.

Bearkats And Coahoma Play Here Saturday

Night Clash Is One Of Two On District 12's Schedule

Herschel Wheeler's Garden City Bearkats and the Coahoma Bulldogs will tangle in a six-man grid exhibition at Steer stadium Saturday night at 8 o'clock, according to N. P. Taylor, Garden City school superintendent.

The game was originally scheduled to be played in Garden City but was transferred to Big Spring by mutual agreement.

The Bearkats have broken even in two starts this year, having won their first game, 48-8, from Water Valley but lost a 14-0 decision to Courtney their last time out.

The Coahomans were defeated by Garner in their first game and lost to Forsan here last Saturday evening.

District 12's other clash will send Sterling City against Courtney in Courtney Friday afternoon. Winner of that fracas will assume the top post in the south half standings.

Present standings:
Team— North Half
W. L. Pct.
Forsan 2 0 1.000
Garner 1 1 .500
Westbrook 1 1 .500
Coahoma 0 2 .000

Wesleyan Wins Over Goldbugs

Johnny Hunter, first-year fullback for the Rams, tossed three touchdown passes.

West Teams Face Rugged Opposition

Frogs' Coach Optimistic As Team Nears Los Angeles

By the Associated Press

Football fans should get much of the answer within the next 30 hours to the question of what Southwest conference elevens are strong and which, if any, are weak.

Southern Methodist, Texas Christian and Arkansas face skilled opposition Friday night and Saturday in Oklahoma, U.C.L.A. and Mississippi State respectively. Vanderbilt and Florida, which test here and Texas, may be potent, and Centenary, adversary of Texas A. and M., has been troublesome in past year. Baylor should breeze through its season opener against Southwestern.

The teams today either were traveling, getting ready to board a train or "tapering off" in their practices.

Texas Christian already was nearing Los Angeles, where it will meet the University of California, southern branch, Friday night in one of the nation's top intersectional billings for the weekend.

Coach Leo "Dutch" Meyer continued optimistic as he supervised the Frogies in a two-hour workout Wednesday night at Lordsburg, N. M.

Lain Is Back

Rice's hopes for a convincing victory over Vanderbilt at Houston Saturday night were heightened with the return to practice of Ernie Lain, the passing wizard. Olle Cordill, the other touchdown twin, watched proceedings from the sidelines but was expected to be fit for some service against Ray Morrison's crew.

Measling Matky Bell reported the Southern Methodist Mustangs were in an excellent frame of mind for their encounter with the University of Oklahoma at Norman Saturday but added "we just don't stack up in reserves like Oklahoma." The Oklahomaans were among the nation's top 10 teams in 1938.

Kay Eakin, veteran triple threat of the University of Arkansas, was kept out of practice Wednesday because of a boil on his arm.

The Porkers go to Memphis for a tussle Saturday with Mississippi State, impressive last week in a 45-0 victory over Howard.

Indications from Austin were the starting backfield for the University of Texas in its Saturday game with Florida would consist of Jimmy Grubbs, blocking back, Billy Davis and Nelson Puett, halfbacks, and Pete Layden, sophomore passing sensation, fullback.

In Wednesday's workout at College Station, a Texas A. and M. "E" eleven, led by Odell Herman, center, stopped Centenary plays led by Jack Wilson, Jimmy Witt and Malcolm Linder, gained ground in large chunks as Baylor continued preparations for the tilt with Southwestern.

The Horned Frogs are expected to face the finest passing attack they will encounter this year. Lacking in the material necessary for a rugged ground game the Westerners have taken to the air with decided success in their two starts thus far. Cawthon is the chief Lubbock gunner.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28 (AP)—Charles F. Hovey scored a hole-in-one, then followed it up with two birdies while taking a golf lesson on the Cedarbrook country club course.

Emphasis Is Placed On Texas High Schools' Interdistrict Grid Clashes This Weekend

AIR ATTACK IS EXPECTED BY STEERS CARDS BANK ON DAVIS OR LANIER

PAUL KASCH IS ON SIDELINES, BATTLE OUT

With Paul Kasch, star center, on the sidelines favoring an injured leg, Coach Pat Murphy made preparations to fill the pivot post for the invasion of the Lubbock Westerners who exhibit their wares in the Highland Park stadium Friday night.

O. F. Priest, 190-pound squadman, was running at Kasch's post as Murphy sent the Bovines through an extended drill Wednesday but Murphy indicated he might use Bobby Savage, star wing, at that slot.

Kasch was not in uniform but may be ready to play part of the time.

Lefty Bethell, star half, returned to practice after a one day lay-off but took no hard workout. He will probably be ready to start against the Westerners.

Hal Battle, ace guard, too, was missing from the Wednesday workout but was expected back today.

Clifton Patton, who looked to advantage against Colorado City last week, apparently has won one of the starting tackle berths. He played more than 40 minutes against the Wolves.

Works On Punting

Murphy sought to eliminate some of the kicking weaknesses of the Steer backs. Realizing that failure to boot up to par almost cost his charges the decision in last week's battle, the mentor had Bethell, Johnny Miller, Bobby Martin, Pete Pressley and Jack Graves all kicking at intervals.

None were impressive but it appeared that the punting assignment would again fall to Bethell.

The Hard defense may be in for a lot of trouble in trying to stop the Lubbock attack. Weidon Chapman, Westerner coach, employs a double wingback system, an offense with which the locals have very little experience.

Joe Tyson, ace Westerner back, definitely is on the sidelines for the Friday night go but the invaders will have plenty of threats.

Leete Jackson, Pete Cawthon and Billy Wright are all touchdown threats.

The Bovines can expect to face the finest passing attack they will encounter this year. Lacking in the material necessary for a rugged ground game the Westerners have taken to the air with decided success in their two starts thus far. Cawthon is the chief Lubbock gunner.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28 (AP)—Charles F. Hovey scored a hole-in-one, then followed it up with two birdies while taking a golf lesson on the Cedarbrook country club course.

Camouflaging A Fine Art In German Hands

By LOUIS F. LOCHNER

WITH THE GERMAN ARMY ON THE WESTERN FRONT, Sept. 28 (AP)—Camouflaging has become a fine art in the Saar sector of Germany's powerful Westwall.

You approach a bridge, for instance, and see a gasoline filling station with all normal equipment just before you.

But before you onto the bridge you see it isn't a filling station at all. If you look closely enough, you see machine guns pointing ominously at you from behind a facade that hides a pill box.

You see a group of trim little houses built in native Saarland style near an industrial plant.

You take it for granted they are intended for company employes. Then you come closer and see that windows and curtains simply have been painted against armor plate.

Your eyes travel up the beautiful slope of a valley and you see a green and white peasant's home.

But strong field glasses show guns of various caliber protruding from the windows.

You go into the beautiful forests in which the Saar region abounds. Logs on a slope seem to lie ready for hauling.

As a matter of fact, they are connected by barbed wire entanglements and make a formidable construction.

Less than a mile from the French at Saarbrücken, several hundred camouflaged bunkers and other defense stands have been built. Their steel plating is about six inches thick and their concrete walls six to 12 feet thick.

To the layman, the word of Fuehrer Hitler that "the Westwall is unconquerable" assumes a new meaning as he inspects the defenses against possible French attack.

Building and strengthening of fortifications continues all the time.

Pioneers (engineer corps) and the labor service work together and openly, even though they are within sight of the French.

So far, in this first month of war no French artillery or aircraft has tried to interfere.

HOUSTON, Sept. 28 (AP)—The communist party has called off its meeting scheduled here tonight, Brooks, state secretary of the party, said today.

Brooks claimed pressure had been brought to bear on the owner of a theater in which the meeting was to be held.

Brooks said another hall would be obtained for a meeting within two weeks.

"The meeting is planned to urge that America stay out of the imperialistic war," Brooks said.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP)—Two democratic senators—Connally of Texas and Wagner of New York—suggested today the nation's defenses be reurveyed at once to determine whether they are adequate to meet any threat to American security.

Connally, a member of the senate foreign relations committee, "old reporters an additional $1,000, $500,000 for the already-expanded army and navy could be well spent.

"While no other business except neutrality legislation should be taken up until that is disposed of," Connally continued, "I think it our duty to provide the navy with any additional armaments and equipment it may need at this special session."

"Additional provisions should be made for the army—in aircraft, anti-aircraft defenses and enlisted strength."

Wagner agreed there should be "a more thorough study of the adequacy of our defenses," saying it was essential "our country be in a position to defend itself under all circumstances."

The demand for universal service in war time was supported unanimously when presented by the committee on legislation.

The organization opposed any change in the method of declaring war in the United States—an action aimed at proposals to put the question of war or peace into the hands of the citizens in a referendum.

Members endorsed another resolution which expressed opposition to "further efforts" to change the traditional date of Thanksgiving lest the feast be "too close" to Armistice Day.

By mandate of the 21st annual convention the legion's new leadership will be pledged to pursue efforts immediately to strengthen the army, navy and air force.

Children Back Bergdoll's Story Of Having Lived Secretly In U. S.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28 (AP)—Two of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll's five children today corroborated their father's testimony he lived secretly in Philadelphia during part of the 19 years he was supposedly a fugitive in Germany.

Bergdoll, on trial before a general court martial on charges of desertion and escape, testified yesterday he slipped back into the United States twice, remaining four years the first time and three years the second. Both times, he swore, he lived in the home of his mother, Mrs. Emma Bergdoll, in Philadelphia, but never ventured from the house.

His oldest son, Alfred, 12, was called as the day's first witness.

Alfred, a fifth-grade pupil, said he remembered his father lived with them in Philadelphia while he was in the second and third grades and part of the time when he was in the fourth grade.

This would have been on Bergdoll's second visit, from October, 1935, to October, 1938. His first visit lasted from June, 1929, to May, 1933.

Alfred said he was constantly warned not to mention his father's presence in the house.

His sister, Emma, a blonde child of 11 with long braids, told the same story.

When Emma left the stand Bergdoll's civilian counsel, Harry Weinberger, said she was the last witness he would call to support his contention Bergdoll's residence here in his fugitive years outweighed the charges under the statute of limitations, since he was within the jurisdiction of this country during that time.

Bergdoll, already serving a sentence of five years for desertion—a sentence imposed for evading the World War draft—faces an additional penalty of five and a half years if convicted.

NEW OIL SHOWING
NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 27 (AP)—Discovery of a new oil showing at LaPlace, 25 miles northwest of here, was watched with interest today.

Field reports indicated the Pan-American No. 1 Chaffe had encountered and cored sand at a depth of 8,112 to 8,140 feet, with a show of oil in 15 or 20 feet of the sand.

At a subsequent meeting, further details for observing the week will be outlined by the group.

Fred Stephens headed the exchange as its president in the meeting. Roy Reeder was official representative of the chamber of commerce.

Fire Marshall E. B. Bethel represented the city and King J. Sides, assistant superintendent, the schools.

his initial conference with Molotov, with Stalin sitting in.

The length of the first talk—four and one-half hours—indicated several problems were involved and the announcement that the conversations would continue today indicated decisions still were to be made.

While Von Ribbentrop was being received yesterday with a guard of honor, Estonia's foreign minister, Karl Selter, came back to Moscow, ostensibly to negotiate a trade pact.

However, unofficial reports persisted that Russia was making demands upon Estonia for fortification concessions in Estonian waters on the Gulf of Finland and the Baltic sea.

Relations with Estonia were emphasized last night by a broadcast reporting the sinking of the Russian freighter Metallist near Narva bay, off the northern coast of Estonia, by an unidentified submarine.

The soviet press attacked once Russian-ruled Estonia, declaring the little Baltic state harbored naval bases for foreign powers.

The dispute with Estonia went back to the escape of the Polish submarine Orzel from Tallinn harbor last week. Th Orzel had been interned at the Estonian capital.

ORDER CHECK ON DEALER LICENSES
City police Thursday were ordered to check automobile dealers and salesmen for licenses in accordance with an ordinance passed last year at request of dealers.

The move is being made to curtail activities of curbstone traders who move in temporarily to hawk Mexican cotton pickers. Under terms of the ordinance, each dealer and salesman is required to have a license to trade in cars and to make deals out of a certain designated place of business.

PRE-CHRISTMAS FESTIVITIES TO BE PLANNED
It's hardly the night before Christmas, but the trade extension and good will committee of the chamber of commerce is being convoked into session Friday at 4 p. m. by Chairman Charles Frost for preliminary discussions on Santa Claus visit here in December.

In addition, the committee will consider invitations by Gay Hill and Foran for good will dinner affairs within the next two months.

Poster And Essay Contests Planned On Fire Prevention
Plans for a poster and essay contest to promote interest in national fire prevention week Oct. 8-14 were developed at a joint meeting Thursday noon of the Big Spring Fire Insurance Exchange, and representatives of the city, chamber of commerce and schools.

Prizes of $1 for the best and 50 cents for the second best poster in grades one to seven, inclusive, were posted along with similar awards for best essays on fire prevention for grades eight to 11, inclusive. The exchange and the chamber of commerce are posting the money jointly.

At a subsequent meeting, further details for observing the week will be outlined by the group.

Fred Stephens headed the exchange as its president in the meeting. Roy Reeder was official representative of the chamber of commerce.

Fire Marshall E. B. Bethel represented the city and King J. Sides, assistant superintendent, the schools.

Reds' Infield Matches Yanx' Only At Bat

By SID FEDER
NEW YORK, Sept. 28 (AP)—Your Aunt Martha out in Winfield, Kas., would be mighty proud of her stitching if she could turn out a patchwork quilt as gaudily jumbled as the infield those Cincinnati Reds are tossing against the Yankees in the world series.

Between Larry The Houdini MacPhail, in his day in the Rhineland, and Will McKechnie they have put together an inner defense that should at least be in the oddity of the diamond's hall of fame.

The Reds' quartet might not even make the series. But if they don't, the St. Louis Cardinals, who would replace them, have a cocktail crew, well mixed.

Still those four fellows from Cincinnati have done pretty well this year as a unit. Buck McCormick on first base, batting a gaudy .328, has made Sweet William Terry's face very red since William refused to give him a chance with the Giants, and Lonnie Frey, Billy Myers and Bill Werber all have been better than expected.

Of course, they don't figure to outline the inner cordon of the Yankees' defense. Yet, oddly enough, the famous Yankee infield is weaker in batting than the Cincinnati quartet, man for man, except one spot. That's on third base, where Dartmouth Red Rolfe, off his play this season, is only the No. 1 hot corner guy in the business. Rolfe and McCormick are the only big leaguers with 200 hits each for this fading campaign.

It's going to seem mighty funny not to see the old Iron Hoss steaming around first base when the Yanks take the field next week. The Iron Hoss, of course, is Lou Gehrig, who until he was retired, was a fixture in the Yanks' world series pictures. Lou's replacement, Babe Dahlgren, although hitting only .237, is a handy guy with what is known as "ducks on the pond." Batting eighth, he has driven in 88 runs.

At shortstop and second base, the two Cincinnatians have a total of some 61 batting points over Frankie Crosetti and his acrobatic sidekick, Joe Gordon. They may not hit as often as the other guys, but they've knocked in about 45 more runs than the Frey-Myers combination, and they've participated in a considerably larger number of double plays.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By EDDIE BRATZ
NEW YORK, Sept. 28 (AP)—Pittsburgh visitors say the Pirates are on the market (despite denials). The reason they aren't bringing more than a nibble is that the price is way up there. . . . There'll be a wholesale house cleaning if Frisch goes to the Pirates.

Prosperity note: The Reds figure they'll send back $200,000 in world's series reservations. . . . One customer sent in a check for $5,000, but all he got was two pairs and a refund.

The same magazine which carried Larry Kelley's blast on the Ivy League now has a piece in which Chick Meehan takes his hair down and says a lot of coaches signal their quarterbacks from the bench. . . .

Today's guest star: Daniel C. Oritz, Santa Fe (N. M.) Examiner: "What we call wasted energy is the sportscaster."

Anything can happen at Bucknell this year—the entire coaching staff is left-handed. . . . Seventeen of Montana's gridgers are six footers or better. For the first time since 1932 the Dodgers have won the year's series from the Giants. Joy in Flatbush!

Golden boys: Syracuse will use a gilded football for the kick-offs in all home games this year.

BACK TO WORK—Mounting demands for steel and large orders from the railroads have made lineups such as this at Jones & Laughlin plant, Pittsburgh, common in steel centers. Mills are recalling thousands of furloughed employees.

SCRIBE PICKS TCU, SMU AND RICE TO SCORE VICTORIES

By FELIX R. McKNIGHT
DALLAS, Sept. 28 (AP)—Grab your helmets, boys, here's the uncensored, unconfirmed and unauthentic communique from the football front: Texas to trip Florida by a touchdown; Rice to crush crippled Vanderbilt; the Texas Aggies to bury Centenary; Texas Christian to outstruggle U.C.L.A.; Baylor to romp against Southwestern and—the four star special—Southern Methodist, a touchdown underdog; to burst the Oklahoma bubble and to burst the Arkansas bubble at Mississippi State.

Los Angeles sports scribes, writing advance items on the invasion of Texas Christian for the U.C.L.A. game, headed columns with comment that the Christians were arriving at the home of the Rose Bowl nine months tardy. . . . Folks out there haven't gotten over Southern Cal's oversight in letting last year's Christians go to the rival Sugar Bowl.

One of the column classics of the week, that churned out by Harold Scherwitz of the San Antonio Light on old Lee Stebbins, Ford Worth's grand first baseman. . . . Typical of Lee was: "With his slouching walk and his jaws crammed full of eatin' tobacco and that ragged wisp of leather dangling from a gnarled hand, Lee looks inoffensive enough, but he's pure poison at his chosen profession. . . . When 'O' Lee retires—if he ever does—he's going to have a niche in the Texas League Hall of Fame alongside many other fabulous figures. . . ."

Coach Red Forehand of Brackenridge High, San Antonio, who tutored Ki Aldrich in his schoolboy days, makes the rash prediction that Joe Bob Markette, his Brackenridge center, will be another Aldrich. . . . "He even has a skinned beak nose like Aldrich's—and that makes it unanimous."

The downtown quarterback club of Houston, a goodly group of second guessers now equipped with a charter and everything, last night gave Coach Jim Kitts of Rice Institute the full works in its first session. . . .

Note to the "How-Good-Is-Jack Odie-Club": Coach Dutch Meyer of T.C.U., after several scrimmaged sessions: "Jack Odie is as good as any back I ever had at Texas Christian—through the sophomore year." Add note to the Odie club: He has a bad boil on his foot and may play only a few minutes against U.C.L.A.

ers who still announce each evening how many games the New York Yankees are leading the Boston Red Sox."
