Big Shakeup In Fascist Leadership

Officials In Cabinet, Party And Military Posts Replaced

ROME, Oct. 31 (AP)—Premier Mussolini reorganized the entire leadership of the fascist regime today in a shakeup of cabinet, party and top military posts unprecedented in its sweeping scope.

Seven Changed Seven cabinet ministers, the secretary of the fascist party, the chiefs of staff of the army, air force and fascist militia and four undersecretaries of state were replaced.

In addition, Mussolini himself yielded the portfolio of minister for Italian Africa to General Attilio Teruzzi.

He removed his army chief of staff, General Alberto Pariani, who a few months ago carried out military consultations with German army officers under the German-Italian military alliance signed last May but now no longer mentioned in Italy.

Winnipeg, Oct. 31 (AP)—Four hundred school children, three of their number slightly injured, were driven from their classrooms here today by an explosion which raised the floor of one room six inches, but left the rest of the building untouched.

Rest Of Building Undamaged; 3 Children Slightly Hurt

Howe, Grayson County, Oct. 31 (AP)—Four hundred school children, three of their number slightly injured, were driven from their classrooms here today by an explosion which raised the floor of one room six inches, but left the rest of the building untouched.

Jack Calloway, about 16, apparently sitting directly over the spot the explosion centered, was cut and bruised. His fountain pen was blown against the ceiling, splattering it with ink.

Others slightly injured were Hansel Smith and Mary J. Booser, both about 16.

Russell Bryant, Howe newspaperman, said gas accumulated under the floor of the one room apparently was ignited. No one offered an explanation of how it was ignited.

The 25 students in the blast-torn room, recovering quickly from their consternation, marched calmly from the room, while other students in the combined grade and high school walked out of their classes. School was dismissed for the day.

Bryant said the only gas pipes in the school building were concentrated under the room affected by the blast. A gas heater, he said, had been turned on since early morning.

The explosion ripped off part of the composition ceiling, which was not heavy enough to injure the students. Tables and chairs, not bolted to the floor, were scattered pell-mell about the room.

Rotary Hears Talk On Music

Music has a definite place with the individual, in the home, the community and in the development of the child, William B. Dawes, director of public school music, said in an address before the Rotary club Tuesday noon.

Dawes, who looked at music as a means of artistic expression, stabilizing influence and as a spiritual developer, also commended The Herald's Music Appreciation offer. He pointed to the offer of 10 series of symphonic recordings of the musical classics as a great step in the right direction.

What he had to say of the offer tied in well with what he had to say of music in the community—that it "can be elevating or degenerating. It is a matter of our selection."

Each individual has something of the artist within himself, said Dawes. "You are an artist to the extent of what you put of yourself into your work. The fact that you are a service club member indicates that you are an artist."

FIXED FIGHTS?

Bible Looks For Trouble Saturday

By the Associated Press. The Texas Longhorns took the pessimism of Coach Matty Bell...

It was Bell who scouted the Longhorns in their victory over Rice last week then returned to Texas to lead the process of Texas and its Jack Crain.

Coach Dana Bible of the Orange and White compared Bell to Caesar who always belittled his own army and praised the enemy.

The Longhorns were physically fit for the game with the Mustangs but Bell lamented his injuries but regained Earl Glasie, blocking back, who is now able to return to the lineup.

The Texas Aggies, who clash with unpredictable Arkansas Razorbacks at Fayetteville, came out of their game with Baylor last week without serious injury but Baylor had Milton Merka, blocking back, and Leonard Alken, guard, nursing injuries.

TENNESSEE AGAIN NAMED NO. ONE GRID TEAM

THE SPORTS PARADE

BY HANK MART

From the Durham, N. C., headquarters of the National Association of Minor Baseball leagues Monday came the announcement that Francis (Salty) Parker, the Lubbock Hubbers' likeable skipper, had been drafted by Marshall of the East Texas league (Class C).

All of which means that Hack Miller, Hubber pilot of two years ago, will probably be at the helm of the champions again next year. What with Harry Faulkner deserting the game for a fling at football, Miller, 'tis said, may be given other duties in the Hubbers' front office by the parent club, the Chicago White Sox.

Fans of this sector dislike seeing Parker leave. Even though he skippered the most unpopular club in the loop the former Detroit infielder was perhaps the best liked player in the entire circuit, made more friends than any other performer during his "stretch."

Parker will probably go to Marshall as the Tigers' manager, succeeding Guy Sturdy who could not make a go of it. Sturdy bought the club two years ago but was suspended for 90 playing days by Judge Bramham for striking an umpire and was never able to fit into the scheme up on his return.

Salty told your reporter during the summer he would much rather go back to the Texas league as a player than be moved around by the Chisox and may yet land a position in Class A-1 ball.

Little brother dept. Marshall Goldberg's little brother, Bill, is getting rave notices at Davis Eldins... Young Joe Osmandski is doing all right in Brother Bill's shoes at Holy Cross... And you're going to be hearing about a kid named Vike Francis at Nebraska whose big bud, Sam, was an all-America three years ago.

All America dept. This week's candidates: Nick Drahos, Cornell tackle; Bob Kellogg, Tulane back and Jack Crain, Texas U.'s sophomore back.

Opening quotations: Duke 3-5 over Georgia Tech; Southern Methodist 2-1 over Texas; Ohio State 2-1 over Indiana; Alabama 5-2 over Kentucky; Dartmouth 7-5 over Yale; Tennessee 3-1 over Louisiana State; Southern California 3-1 over Oregon State; Michigan and Cornell 4-1 over Oregon State; Michigan and Cornell 4-1 over Illinois and Columbia.

Continuing to shape up as District 3-AA's best wing is Bobby Savage, Big Spring's sterling 160 pounder. His performance in last Friday night's game with Midland drew favorable comment from Midland players and fans alike.

Savage is a youngster who stays near top physical condition the year around. He plays softball and baseball during the summer and, incidentally, is recognized more for his ability as a softball pitcher than as a gridder, having participated in two national junior tournaments besides innumerable state and district meetings.

John Daniel's hopes for a winning basketball team, too, are built around the tall young blond. Bob is high point man on last year's crew and should be even better this time out.

Savage wants to go into professional baseball but first would like to improve his game in college and may follow Alton Bostick to the University of Texas.

Cornell Jumps To 3rd Place, Aggies Fifth

Norton Team Ranks Ahead of Sooners And Trojans

By BILL BONT NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (AP)—The backers of Major Bob Neyland's Tennessee Volunteers still are beating the loudest drums on the football handwagons.

With 67 of 128 experts casting their first-place votes for Tennessee, the Southeastern conference powerhouse today retained the No. 1 spot in the third Associated Press ranking poll. But the margin was by no means decisive as it was a week ago, just after Tennessee had handed Alabama a thorough drubbing.

Chiefly through their first place votes, the Vols accumulated 1,120 points. But Michigan, only all-winning team left in the Big Ten, came in a close second with 1,005, and Cornell, No. 1 team in the East and impressive winner over Ohio State last Saturday, jumped from seventh place to third with 933 points. Michigan got 20 first place votes and Cornell 18.

Two other teams with perfect grades held down fourth and fifth in the ranking. Notre Dame dropped two notches from the runner-up position, and Texas A. and M., Southwest conference favorite, stayed in fifth place, the same ranking it had a week ago.

The standing of the teams (figured on basis of 10-9-8-7-6, etc., with first place votes in parentheses): 1—Tennessee (67) 1,120; 2—Michigan (50) 1,005; 3—Cornell (18) 933; 4—Notre Dame (12) 858; 5—Texas A. and M. (6) 714; 6—Oklahoma (2) 605; 7—Southern California (1) 598; 8—Tulane (1) 419; 9—North Carolina (1) 314; 10—Nebraska (0) 189; 11—Oregon State, 76; 12—Duke, 46; 13—Duke, 44; 14—Ohio State, 34; 15—Kentucky, 22; 16—Southern Methodist, 21; 17—New York U., 20; 18—Louisiana State, 17; 19—Clemson, 16; tied for 20—Alabama and U.C.L.A., 14 each.

Also ran: Santa Clara, 13; Minnesota, 6; Holy Cross, 3; Dartmouth 2.

Off the rankings, Tennessee, Southern California and Tulane have this week's toughest assignments. All three meet teams placed in the second ten, the Vols getting their real test of the season against Louisiana State and its Leo Bird-Ken Kavanaugh passing combination. The Trojans meet the only all-winning Coast conference team, Oregon State, and Tulane goes up against Kentucky, which also is unbeaten and untied.

Michigan, meanwhile, will be playing Illinois, while Cornell tackles another Ivy leaguer, Columbia; Notre Dame has its annual joust with what is expected to be an improved Army team; Texas Aggies face hard-luck Arkansas; Oklahoma plays its second Big Six conference game, with Iowa State; North Carolina meets sub-par N. C. State, and Nebraska seeks to throttle the passing of Missouri's Paul Christianman.

Pimlico Race To Decide '39 Champion

BALTIMORE, Oct. 31 (AP)—Monday, as the old saw has it, makes the mare go, but dollars will play second fiddle to personal grudges, sectional feuds and breeding arguments tomorrow when three fine horses match speed and stamina in the Pimlico special—a "dream race" that became a classic reality.

There will be more to stake in this race than the $10,000 purse and the Maryland Jockey club Gold Cup. Real glory and nationwide acclaim await the thoroughbred that wins and the first to cross the finish line stands a good chance of being named the "horse of the year."

Here is the line-up for the winner-take-all, weight-for-age event to be run over a mile and three-sixteenths:

Horse-Owner Jockey-Wt. Challeon (Brann) (Arcaro) 120 Cravat (Martin) (James) 128 Kayak II (Howard) (Woolf) 128

In their only meeting to date, Challeon whipped Kayak II in the Narragansett Special. And, before that, Kayak II beat Cravat in the Hollywood Gold Cup. Thus, when these three meet in the special, there's a triple grudge to be settled.

BELL A CAESAR

Herr Maxie, Galento Are Suspended

CHICAGO, Oct. 31 (AP)—Illinois boxing rings were closed today to fight managers Nate Lewis and Joe Jacobs and fighters Tony Galento, Max Schmeling and Harry Thomas, all heavyweights.

The Illinois State Athletic commission barred all of them yesterday after publication of charges by Thomas that his bouts with Schmeling and Galento were "fixed" fights. The commission said none of them could operate in this state "until every vestige of suspicion is cleared away."

Thomas, who lives in Eagle Bend, Minn., lost to Schmeling by a technical knockout in the eighth round, Dec. 12, 1937, in New York. He lost to Galento by a technical knockout in the third round, Nov. 14, 1938, in Philadelphia.

Thomas' manager at the time was Lewis, veteran Chicago fight manager. Jacobs managed Galento and Schmeling. Joe Jacobs, in New York, scoffed at Thomas' charges.

"I don't know what Thomas is talking about and I don't think he does, either," said Jacobs. "In Chicago, Lewis said that if Thomas 'threw' the fights 'he'd do so without my knowledge and without any instructions of that nature from me.'"

IT'S A TOUGH LIFE NOTRE DAME, Ind., Oct. 31 (AP)—The coaching game is getting tougher and tougher, Elmer Layden thinks. And he says the reason is threefold: better high school coaching, more even distribution of material, and more effective scouting. Those account for the Irish's margin of only 15 points in five games over opponents' scores.

Harmon To Have Chance To Repay Michigan's Debt To Illini Saturday

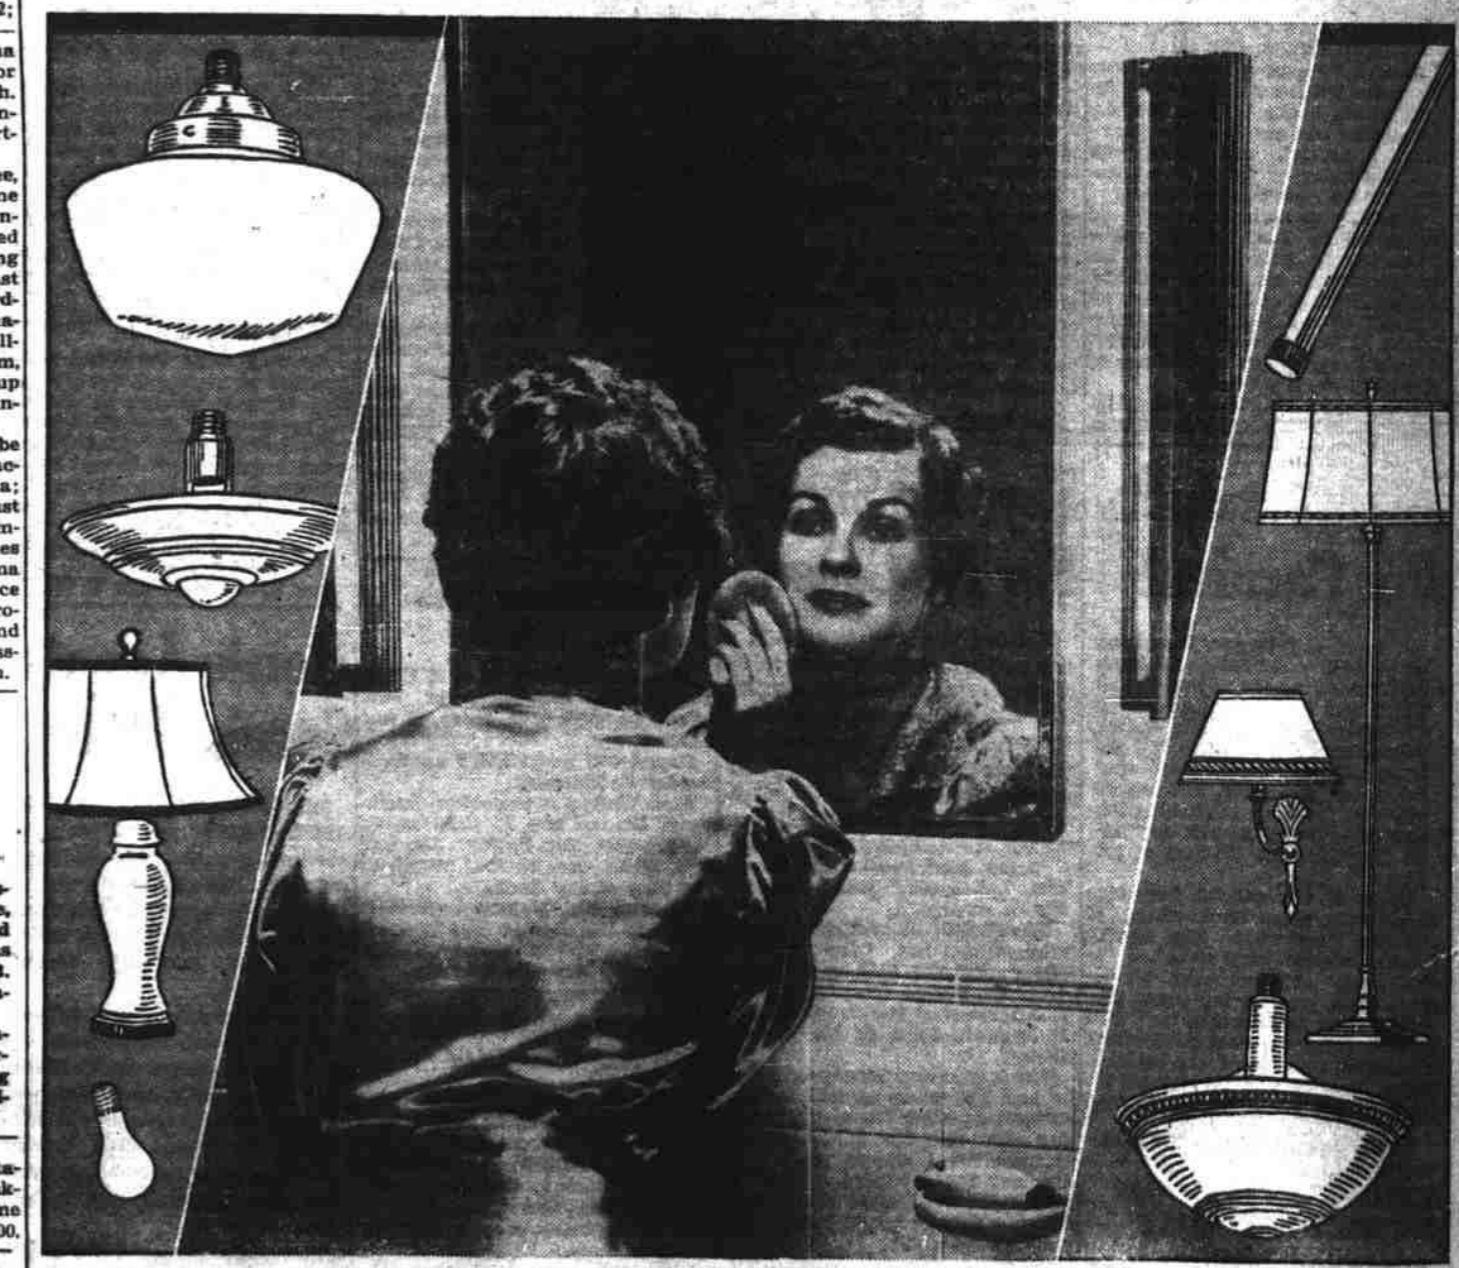

CHICAGO, Oct. 31 (AP)—Sensational Tom Harmon, one and all will agree, is one of the year's finest backs, but the claim that he is the equal of Harold (Red) Grange has the football faithful down at the University of Illinois in a seething rage.

To many Midwest grid followers and particularly Illini fans, Grange is the all-time 'ops for getting to payoff dirt quicker and oftener than anyone else ever did. But you can't put that line over to University of Michigan partisans.

Illinois and Michigan play at Champaign Saturday and the word is out that Harmon, leading scorer of the nation, is set to give the Illini a single-handed beating such as Michigan received at the hands of Grange 15 years ago.

That was the fall day in 1924 when the junior halfback star returned the opening kickoff 85 yards for a touchdown, then ran 70, 57 and 43 yards for three more touchdowns, all within the first 10 minutes of the game. In that short span he got his hands on the ball six times, scored four touchdowns and gained 288 yards. In all that day he played 42 minutes, picked up 403 yards in 21 tries, completed six passes for 64 yards, one for a touchdown, and snagged five touchdowns himself.

Needless to say, Illinois won, 39-12. Harmon has scored 75 points this season on 10 touchdowns, 10 points after touchdown and a field goal. As a sophomore at Michigan he gained 403 yards and completed 21 out of 45 passes.

Demands For Red Cross Services Prompt Greatest Roll Call in 20 Years

Half Million Workers Ready for Membership Drive

THE American Red Cross embarks on its greatest membership Roll Call in two decades November 11 when a half million volunteers working in virtually every community in the nation, will seek increased membership strength to meet growing demands for Red Cross services.

Increased membership support has been prompted by an urgent need for extending Red Cross services not only in this country, but as a result of appeals from Red Cross societies in war-stricken European nations, Mr. Davis said.

"Although the Red Cross must meet the cries from war-stricken Europe, we of America must not slacken our effort to reduce the peace-time forms of human suffering found in this country," Mr. Davis declared.

"The 5,700,000 American men and women who enrolled as members of the Red Cross last year enabled the organization to meet the needs of sufferers in 157 disasters during the year, as well as to train hundreds of thousands in First Aid, Life Saving and health education."

Tyson On Way To Grid Glory

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF WACO, Oct. 31 (AP)—There was a throaty roar in the valley of the Brazos today—a roar that carried random back to the days when the gold and white-shirted sons of Waco High stood at the top of Texas schoolboy football.

They tell you here that Waco is back with one of those mighty machines that went to the state finals six years in a row and won the championship four times. Probably not as strong defensively but every bit as good offensively as the state title outfit of 1927 which many considered the greatest team ever produced in the interscholastic league.

And its blocking is pronounced the best in more than a decade. Last week Waco smashed Corsicana 27-7. In so doing the Tigers beat one of the outstanding teams of the state—an eleven that had been favored by many to reach the semi-finals of the title play-off.

Waco bottled up Wally Spencer, hailed as the best running back in the state. Spencer never got more than eight yards on a try. In fact the entire Corsicana team gained 32 yards rushing and lost 33 while Waco rolled up 373 yards and lost but 21.

Good Defense Therefore, the Waco High defense must not be so bad, even though it does not compare with the teams of championship history. It's the 27th season for Paul Tyson, the gridiron master of Tigerland. He's the dean of Texas high school coaches and also holds the record for the most championships. And his 1921 team that was not in the league was not only unbeaten and untied but was not scored on.

and no team ever got close to its goal line. The sparkling of the Waco backfield—and of the five regulars—four are lettermen from last season—is Francis Pulatite, 190-pound load of dynamite carrying the ball and a fine blocker. And not far behind is Leverett Bowen, an ebullient young man who goes places when they give him the ball. The backfield averages 155 pounds.

And that line! It's big and powerful and smart. It averages 182 pounds to a man, which not only is large for a high school team but compares with some of the college aggregations. It is paced by its tackles—the 195-pound Price and Lloyd Myers, another burly, crashing youngster. In all there are seven boys on the team who made a letter last season.

Give Paul Tyson four lettermen for his backfield and there's going to be trouble down the line for the other teams. There is trouble ahead for them all this season. Right now Waco must be ranked as either the state's No. 1 team or the team the No. 1 team has to beat for the championship.

Kirk McKinnon Returns To Hardin-Simmons Lineup For Tempe Battle

The Effects Of Liquor Cannot Be Repealed

By DR. O. R. MILLER, D.D. Many employers of labor complain of their employees for lack of efficiency because of their drinking habits. But many such employers do little to help or encourage their employees to abstain from the use of intoxicating beverages and lead sober, industrious and efficient lives.

There are many ways by which employers can encourage their employees to abstain from all intoxicating beverages.

(1) They can have delivered occasionally to each of their employees some sensible, convincing leaflet showing the injurious physical, economical and social effects of liquor drinking.

(2) They can have put up in their shops or offices, or place of business, striking cartoons showing the wisdom of total abstinence and how the whole family is injured by the breadwinner's drinking, and how it is made happy by his abstaining from liquor drinking. And there are other ways by which employers can encourage their employees to become total abstainers.

But there is one other way often overlooked by employers by which they can encourage and inspire in their employees a desire to become total abstainers, that is, by the employers setting a personal example of total abstinence, before their employees.

If it is generally known among the employees of a concern that the head of the concern is a strict total abstainer and would be pleased if all his employees would follow his example, that would have a tremendous influence on every employee under him.

However, if the head of the firm is known by his employees to be a drinking man, even if he does not drink to excess, yet the personal influence of his life on his employees for total abstinence is lost! He cannot consistently or successfully command them not to drink, as long as he drinks. (Submitted by and published at the request of the local W. C. T. U.)

Farm Income At High Mark

CHICAGO, Oct. 31 (AP)—October, traditionally the banner cash income month for American farmers, closed today with agriculture's prospective 1939 dollar receipts the best of any year in almost a decade except for 1937.

Market analysts estimated that even though this year's income of more than $5,000,000,000 may fall below that of two years ago, it is giving farmers buying power equal to that of 1937 inasmuch as prices of commodities they purchase are lower.

The farm price advance which has occurred since the start of the European war was partly responsible for lifting the level of agricultural income over that of last year. Although some of the war boom enhancement of commodity values faded away, producers have large supplies of practically all types of grain, livestock and dairy products to market at higher price levels.

Since August 31, the day before war broke out, prices of principal farm commodities such as grain, livestock, eggs, butter and cotton have advanced 10 to 25 per cent and in most cases, except for live stock and eggs, are higher than a year ago.

Until September, farm income was running slightly below 1938. Total receipts from marketing and government payments were $4,594,000,000, compared with $4,612,000,000 the first eight months of 1938 and $3,350,000,000 in 1937. In September, however, with the war under way, cash income skyrocketed to $487,000,000, about $28,000,000 over the return for the same month in 1937, the banner year since 1929, and $102,000,000 better than September last year.

The last four months of the year usually give farmers about 40 per cent of their total annual income. Government and private statisticians estimated total income for the year, including payments, at $8,300,000,000.

RAILS SHOW BIG REVENUE INCREASE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (AP)—The Association of American Railroads reported today an increase of almost $150,000,000 in the net railway operating income of Class One railroads for the first nine months of 1939, compared with the corresponding period in 1938.

Operating income for the nine months this year was $325,066,888, which amounted to an annual rate of return of 1.91 per cent on property investments, the association said.

The War Between The States

In Georgia, the director of the State Department of Public Welfare has ordered the Surplus Commodity Corporation to discontinue distribution of Wisconsin margarine taxes constitute a virtual ban on an explaining the order, he declared that present Wisconsin margarine taxes constitute a virtual ban on a product which provides an important outlet for cottonseed oil.
 Whatever else may be said about this development, it certainly serves to focus attention on one of the most glaring evils of interstate trade barriers. When a state sets up such barriers, it invites retaliation from other states, and a vicious circle is well begun. The National Cotton Council, commenting on the action of the Georgia welfare director, predicts that other states than Wisconsin having high taxes on margarine may anticipate retaliation. "It is a war which the Cotton Belt does not welcome, but one which the South can wage with genuine effectiveness," the Council stated. "The millions of people dependent on cotton and cottonseed for a livelihood do not intend passively to watch one of their major sources of income swept away."
 Is the sort of thing that happens in other states of the America Union erect tariff walls around their borders, and nobody profits from it. Far better would be a strict observance of the spirit of the constitutional prohibition against interstate trade barriers. Other states, unfortunately, are not without guilt in this connection. They have trade-hampering features of their own. Yes, they even have margarine taxes.

All the interstate trade barriers in all the States ought to come down. —(The Texas V. eky).

NEW YORK—This is the season of the year when lecture bureaus trot out their most saleable talent and send it across country on tours that, as a rule, begin in New York and wind up on the coast. High authors have found American audiences especially receptive to their stories in recent years, and for this reason the bureaus are always on the alert for British writers who feel the inclination to climb upon a platform and talk, instead of write, for awhile.
 There is another speaker—an Austrian, in town, and for the moment he is quietly going about the city, familiarizing himself with both its sober and its after sides. He is a tall, thin, quiet young man with wavy, reddish-brown hair, a sensitive looking mouth, a pair of direct yet brooding eyes. I am referring to His Imperial Highness, the Archduke Felix of Austria, a younger brother of Otto, who some day hopes to see a restoration of the Hapsburg dynasty in Austria.
 Otto himself is in Paris at the moment, gathering legions of dissatisfied Austrians to fight against the Germans.

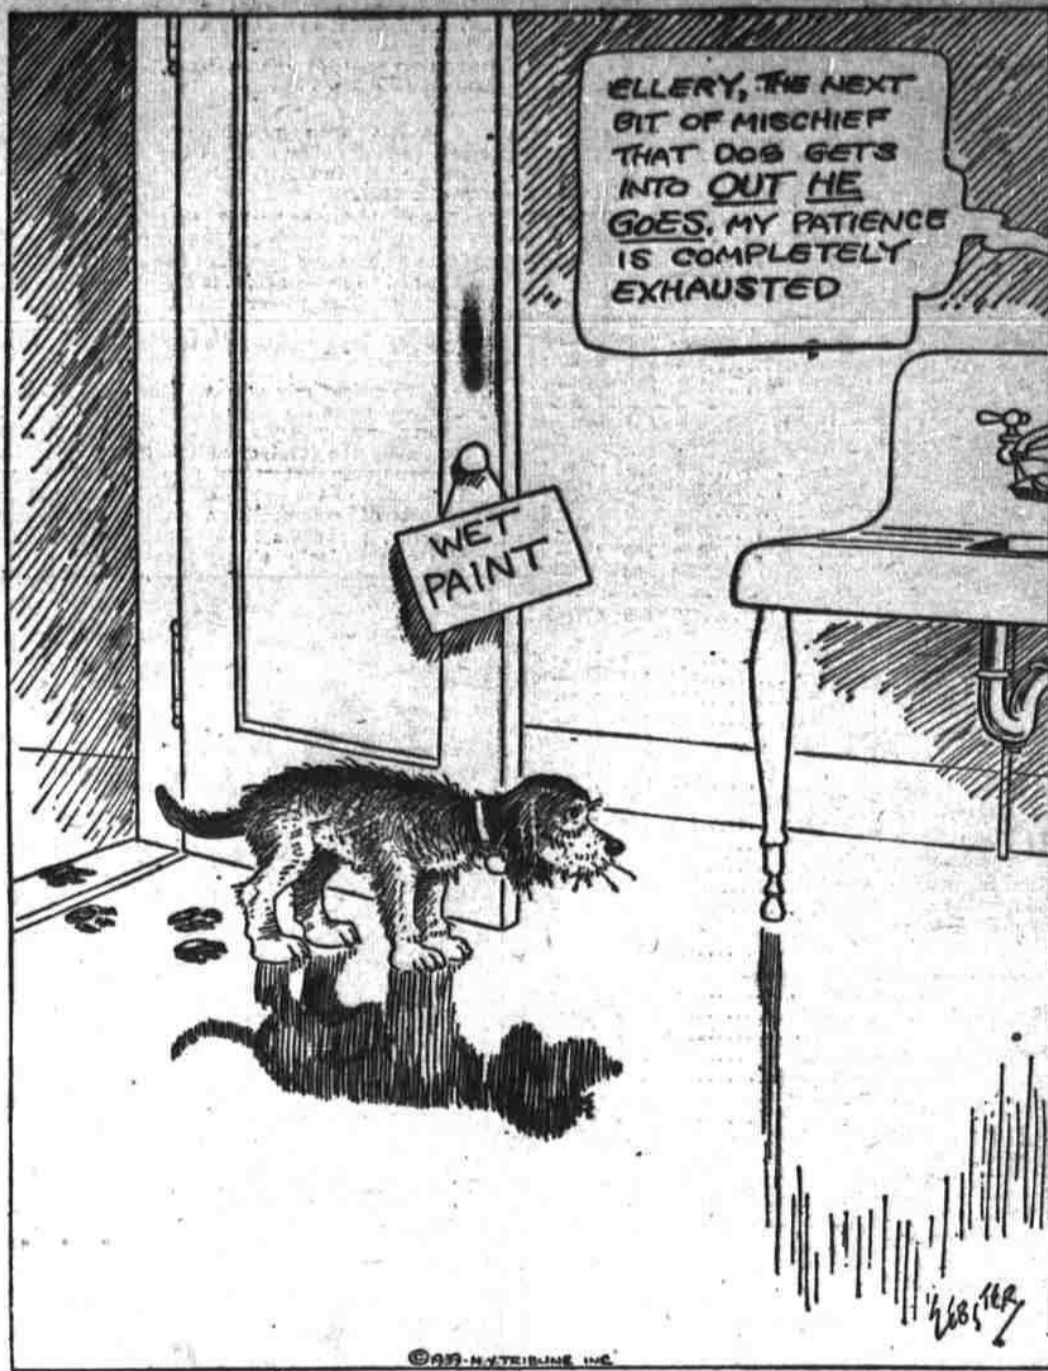

The young prince has come to the United States by way of Canada, with his uncle, the Prince of Luxembourg. He speaks English perfectly. His lectures will deal with the probable part Austria will play in the reconstruction of Central Europe.
 He's only a stripling, but the Nazis are said to have him down on their private little blacklists. After the absorption of Austria, he fled across the border just in time. The Nazis immediately charged him with theft of the Hapsburg gold plate, but the prince declares looting Nazi officers confiscated it.
 "I'm sorry I didn't think of it," Felix confessed. "I'd love to have it, but I was moving so fast I didn't have a chance to think of anything. I was in military school when Anschluss came, and with a chauffeur I made a break for the border. That was a wild ride. Every minute I expected to be overtaken."
 "When we reached the Hungarian frontier, the Hungarian guards stopped us. They were afraid to let us pass for fear the Nazis would use that as an excuse to invade Hungary. Finally one of the guards said he would have to telephone Budapest for instructions, and when the guards went into the house we made a break for it. . . . The Nazis have got me all wrong about that gold plate. . . . I didn't take it, but I wish I had thought of it first."

One of Prince Felix's close friends is the Baron Silvercray, Belgian envoy to Canada, and a brother of Suzanne Silvercray, the sculptress and artist, who now is an American citizen and lives in New York much of each year.
 In any case, H. I. E. Felix will have a chance to get acquainted with the town before he goes out. He is living at the Ritz and has been quietly vending his way along the brighter boulevards—looking, Eric says, like a dog during the theatre hours, and somehow one regrets, for his benefit, that "Reunion in Vienna" isn't still one of the current hits.

Eric Crosby, whose orchestra is featured on the Dixieland Song Shop Tuesday nights, is the only top flight swingster who can't play a musical instrument. Bob, like brother Bing, does all his swinging rough the vocal chords.
 One-fourth of the citizens of the United States are taxmen, an authority notes, and one-fifth are in the supply of the government. That still leaves a vast number of idle hands who speak respectfully to police.

Chapter 19
THE SUNDIAL
 Michael tapped his right temple meditatively and fingered the papers. Tuck put her hand over her eyes and concentrated. The District Attorney was listening, his hand shading his eyes.
 Michael picked up the larger pile of papers and counted them absently. "Eighteen," he muttered. "Eighteen," Tuck echoed under her breath.
 The District Attorney bent forward suddenly and looked at Bunny. "It's a cool night," he told her. "Strange how cool it gets on an evening."

Tuck looked at him. She gasped. "You've got it!" she said. Michael raised his eyebrows. "Eighteen" she cried. "Eighteen, and there are thirty all together. That leaves twelve, Michael!"
 "I have been led to believe so," he said gravely. "And—?"
 Her eyes were shining. "The words fairly ring in my ears. . . . Twelve of them, on a fine chain. Don't you see, Michael? It is the diamonds!"
 Michael looked down at the pebbles incredulously. They lay all together in a little heap on the table. He picked one up, and fingered it. "Damn!" he said fervently.
 "Damn, Michael!" Bunny inquired politely.
 "We shouldn't have mixed them. Maybe the child's right. Maybe twelve of them do mean something, although they're certainly all rocks together."
 "Why are they wrapped up? I don't get it."
 "To keep 'em all nice and warm, like the letters," he said soberly.
 "Don't be a fool. Could he have written a letter on the paper that wrapped these pebbles, then torn it all up into little bits like this?"
 "How do I know?"
 "There's no writing on the paper."
 "Those pencil marks. Maybe it's one word, in big thin letters. Torn up. All the marks I found were on the smooth paper. It means something."

"I think they kept the pebbles to count the days by," Tuck said moodily. "One for each day of the month. If they sent each other five pebbles it meant they would meet on the fifth."
 "Tut, tut," said Michael. "Come on with your pencil marks, Bunny. Her mind's wandering."
 "Do you know," Bunny said suddenly, looking up from the paper in her hand, "those lines go right along the edge. If the papers were torn exactly straight they wouldn't show at all."
 Michael stared at her. "Torn along the mark, eh? Well, then . . ."
 "Well then," Tuck repeated in a choked little voice, "we can fit them back together again the way he tore them. Because if he tore them on lines he must have meant . . ."
 "John Forrester had left his chair again, and stood at the desk. He looked down at the twelve bits of bond paper, pushed into a heap by Michael's long restless fingers. "It's a picture puzzle," he said slowly. "I never was good at puzzles," Michael said.

The puzzle was not easy to solve, but time and patience did it at last. On some of the papers penciling were not to be found even after the most careful scrutiny; the consequence was that no one knew which side of those pieces should go uppermost, and as all of the bits seemed to be of much the same shape, roughly triangular, for a time it seemed as if they were getting nowhere. But Tuck started them on the right track when she pushed to one side four pieces which were less triangular and more oblong than the others.

 "Shiny and dull," she said absently. "Not just torn any old way." She fingered the four papers she had pushed aside. She put them in a row next each other, but they did not fit. She tried making a square with them, one at each side, but they were not wide enough. Then, systematically, she picked up each of the other eight pieces and fitted it, first one side up and then the other, to each of the oblongs, until she found where it belonged. That was the correct procedure; and in a short time the fitted pattern lay before them.
 The four oblongs, it seemed, radiated at right angles from a common center, and between each pair two long triangles fitted neatly. The outer circumference of the pattern was a rounded square and the center was a round hole.
 "Tuck stared at it. Bunny tapped absently on the table-top. Michael pulled his ear.
 "There's something about it that looks sort of familiar," he muttered to himself. "But I'm hanged if I get it. Do you, dad? Mean anything to you?"
 John Forrester granted unintelligently.
 "Pebbles," Tuck murmured.
 "Is there any way," Bunny asked suddenly, "of knowing which pebbles were wrapped in those pieces of paper, even if we have mixed them; are they all just alike or not?"
 Michael looked at her approvingly and pushed the heap of pebbles into a long row.
 "They aren't quite all alike," Tuck said dubiously. "Are they? It seems to me some of them aren't quite as shiny as the rest."
 "Isn't it the way the light strikes them, Tuck?"
 "I don't know. Can you see it?"
 "I don't think I can, not quite."
 "I believe I can," Bunny said. "That third one looks a little muddy. Is that what you mean, Tuck? Those on either side of it are black and shiny."
 "That's what I mean. Now . . . Bunny, you watch and tell me if I'm right. I'm going to move out of line all the ones that look black and shiny." She put her finger out and went down the line slowly, carefully, pushing here and there a pebble out of line.
 "There they are," she said, when she had finished.
 "You've got sixteen black ones, and fourteen dull ones, Tuck," Bunny counted.
 "Try it again," Michael said with a queer note of excitement.
 Tuck went down the line again. "Here's one I'm not sure of," she murmured. "It might be either."
 She picked it up and scrutinized it closely. "I believe it's a black one, though."
 She went on; and when the experiment was over, they had sixteen black and shiny pebbles in one heap and twelve, a little duller in the other.

"Those are the pebbles that came out of these pieces, then," Michael said. "Now, what the devil—gosh, this is getting exciting."
 Bunny shut her eyes tightly, and leaned back in her chair. Tuck wandered around the room, head bent, in deep abstraction. Gordon Deane's dog, next door, set up a furious barking. Tuck stepped out on the sun porch, and peered anxiously about for Agamemnon. The garden, white in the moonlight, lay before her.
 "The Pattern!" Suddenly she called Michael in a strange voice. "Look, she said. "There it is! There it is, Michael! Bunny!"
 "What, Tuck? Where is it?"
 "The pattern—I don't you see?"
 "And he left out the sundial." "I don't see anything but the sundial, Tuck. . . . is that the pattern?"
 "No, don't be so stupid. That's the hole! That's the thing that he left out, the sundial! Those long oblongs are the four paths, and the triangles are the flower beds!"
 Michael straightened up suddenly. "She's right, by George!"
 "It made one piece too many, Tuck."
 "Ummh." She stared out at it, white under the moonlight. "It's very pretty," she said. "It's too bad he left it out." Her eyes danced suddenly, and she turned on them. "Don't you see?" she cried. "Can't you guess?"
 "I admit I can't," Michael shook his head.
 "Nor I, Tuck."
 "That sundial . . . it's carved out of something, sandstone or something, I suppose. And around

Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON—In an upstairs room in the quarters of the almost-forgotten tariff commission there is being held the preliminary test that will show how far the U. S. will go in opening its markets to South America.
 The immediate question: What concessions will the U. S. give Argentina in their projected reciprocal trade pact?
 This country already has a reciprocal trade agreement with Brazil. While that is important, it doesn't test our "good neighbor" policy as does the proposed pact with Argentina.
 Brazil produces a number of items (such as coffee) which we vitally need, and in turn can absorb our manufactured products without stint.
 Argentina, on the other hand, is like the United States in many respects and is becoming more so early. She has an enormous "midwest" where cattle, corn, dairy products, poultry and wheat are produced. All the South American countries, Argentina is most advanced in manufacturing. Argentina can use a host of American manufactured articles, however. But to pay for them she must ship to the United States the things we have most of already: Cattle, corn, turkeys, hides.

Keystone State
 Argentina is the keystone country in South America. Farthest from the United States geographically, she also is farthest in sentiment. She always has leaned toward Europe, which furnished a better market for her wealth of raw products and was eager to supply manufactures in return.
 A solid wall of opposition arose at once to making any concessions to Argentina. The tariff-commission hearings give a misleading impression, however, because rarely does anyone but an opponent of concessions testify. Of several score witnesses heard in the opening days of the hearing, only one, a shoe manufacturer concerned, asked to have tariff barriers lowered. He wanted more South American hides to come in.
 The first days found a steady stream of senators and congressmen, each representing some sectional interest. Senator Connally was an example. He pointed out that Texas produces cattle, hides, turkeys and a host of other products which would be hit by any rush of South American goods over lower tariff walls.
 "We feel kindly toward Argentina," he said, "but we do not feel so kindly that we are willing to sacrifice our own farmers to help the cowboys of the pampas." He added:
 "I voted for the trade agreements law when it was passed, but I have not been happy ever since about the vote."

Same Old Story
 Altogether 15 senators and two score or more House members told similar stories. Senator Byrd of Virginia said he was a supporter of reciprocal trade, but added a caution that if it should result in bringing in agricultural products at a level below that at which American producers can compete, "it means repeal of the reciprocal trade agreements act, which I believe would be a great misfortune." He wanted Virginia turkey growers protected.
 The opposition was mostly agricultural. There seems little doubt that any concessions made will have to be in lowered tariffs on farm products. And the money Argentina gets from selling such items there will be spent—mostly—for manufactured goods.
 The principle behind the act is that such a trade will in turn benefit the farmer because employment in manufacturing will be increased and a wider market for agricultural products will be opened. But it is hard to sell that sort of "remote control trade" to U. S. farmers.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

HOLLYWOOD—They return from the tubs where they were "all washed up."
 Garbo. She does it in "Ninotchka." The original mystery girl, nursed along by Metro because she was great guns at European box-offices though not so hot in the U. S., pulls the surprise of the year in her new and first major movie comedy.
 To see this Garbo—who can kid herself in an artfully projected, skillfully shaded performance—is to experience a thrill of discovery. You may have known the old Garbo by heart, anticipated her every lid-droop and chest-heave, but there is a surprise ahead in this new Garbo of comedy. For the first time (and this will outrage the Garbo fans who maintain their queen can do no wrong) the lanky Swede emerges from that screen as a complete human being, a girl with warmth and a sense of humor. Add to this the fact that she retains, when necessary, all the romantic magic associated with the Garbo tradition—and there's something for a fan to cheer about.
 "Ninotchka" is the first role the gal has had which might encourage a movie fan to walk right up and say, "Hi-ya, Greta, how's tricks?" How she would take it, if any fan did walk right up. I can't say—but it's certain that here is the beginning of Garbo's American popularity.
 It's the first picture she has made under Ernst Lubitsch's direction, although for years he has wanted to direct her. The sequel: Lubitsch will draw her again, is already looking for stories.

Dietrich. Here will come in "Destry Rides Again." It has already come, although the picture is not yet completed. She is getting other bids. Here, too, is a "new personality." Reflected, off screen, by a myriad of colorful gossams, a new friendliness and amiability. The old aloofness—or "Garbo angle"—is gone. As a wild west gal named Frenchy, she is a down-to-earth heroine with no time to pose behind veils, gauze and fish-nets as in the unadorned days of her von Sternberg tutelage. As a two-fisted, hair-pulling, cussing, and half-Nelson expert in her tussle with Una Merkel, Marjorie is bound to reawaken audience interest.
 Mae West. Teamed with W. C. Fields, she's a natural—if given any kind of story. (Don't know who reported it first, but I still like Producer Lester Cowan's report when Mae asked him, after she and Fields had been going "round and round over their story, how he felt about it. Said Lester: "I feel like Poland!")
 Baby LeRoy. The enfant terrible of Bill Fields' life at Paramount, the first infant star, is seven years old. Having been kept on salary by Paramount all these years, given a stretch at military school, Baby is now known as Lonnie, is ready to do things.
 And all of them, from Garbo to Leroy, prove once again that being "washed up" in Hollywood is merely a state of mind—producer's mind.

Would Sales Tax Become Permanent?
 By ALEX LOUIS
 Herald Austin Bureau
 AUSTIN, Oct. 31—If the trend in other states may be taken as a fair indication of what is likely to happen in Texas, adoption of a general sales tax on a temporary basis will lead to an extension of the tax in the future and the probability of its becoming permanent.
 The proposal has been made by Gov. O'Daniel that the legislature adopt a two per cent general sales or consumer tax coupled with a 25 per cent increase in natural resource levies to finance the social security program through Aug. 31, 1941. It would be an experiment for the people to judge, the governor believes, and it would tide the state through the current old-age pension crisis.
 The question arises: "What would happen after Aug. 31, 1941?"
 Two probabilities are quite apparent. The consumers tax may prove so unpopular that the legislature will repeal it, or the levy may be accepted by the public as a necessary evil and be retained as a permanent feature of the state taxation system.
 Has Happened Elsewhere
 But it is a third eventuality that concerns Texas opponents of the sales tax. They are afraid that under pressure the legislature will ignore public sentiment and extend the tax beyond 1941. That would be the path of least resistance. It would be far simpler than searching for other sources of revenue to replace the sales tax.
 For those who want to argue the point, what has happened this year in other states may be used to prove either side of the sales tax issue.
 So far this year not a single new state has passed a sales tax, although New Jersey, New York, Maryland and Massachusetts—like Texas—flirted with the idea, the magazine "Tax Digest" reports in its current issue.
 On the other hand, no state which receives funds from a sales tax gave up this lucrative source of revenue.
 Extensions
 What was to have been a temporary sales tax in Arkansas and Alabama was made permanent by their legislatures. Colorado extended its "service" tax, first adopted in 1927, through June 1, 1941. It is comparable to the sales tax. The rate of the sales tax in Illinois was to have been reduced to two per cent on June 30, 1939, but the legislature continued the rate at three per cent for an additional two years.
 Missouri extended its sales tax to Dec. 31, 1941; North Dakota, to June 30, 1941. North Carolina and Oklahoma re-enact their tax systems every two years. Both re-

Officers Are Named At Church Council

C of CW Goes On Record As Favoring Establishment Of A Child Welfare Board To Handle Youth Problems

Accepted by acclamation was the slate of the nominating committee who named Mrs. Shine Phillips, president; Mrs. Bernard Lamun, vice president; Mrs. George Wilke, secretary; and Mrs. Joyce Fisher, treasurer, of the Council of Church Women for the coming year at a meeting held Monday at the St. Thomas Catholic church.

The nominating committee consisted of Mrs. V. Van Gieson, chairman; Mrs. J. L. Miller and Mrs. Fox Stripling.

Mrs. T. S. Currie was in charge of the program on "Child Welfare Work in Texas" and the main address was given by Mrs. Eugene McAllen. Mrs. McAllen pointed out that child welfare work builds future citizens and is a work that cannot be left undone. "Child welfare is not an emergency measure," said Mrs. McAllen, "but is here to stay."

Mrs. J. M. Morgan gave the devotional taken from the second chapter of Luke and telling of the birth of Christ. Mrs. Anna Mae Lane-bring sang two solos accompanied by Kathleen Elizabeth Williams.

Reports from officers were given and Mrs. Charles Koberg, treasurer, reported a general fund of $39.95 and nursery fund of $26.23. General receipts for the year were $193.68 and disbursements $127.53, leaving a balance in funds of $66.15.

Mrs. I. S. McIntosh reported on the China Relief project being adopted by other churches throughout the country and the council voted to keep rice bowls in homes and churches for relief refugees in war-torn China.

Mrs. W. J. McAdams, chairman of the committee on child welfare, reported on investigations of different cases in Big Spring and the ...traveling stylist for the Bar-bizon Corporation of New York, is visiting here at the request of the Albert M. Fisher Co.'s Store, where she is "at home" to women interested in the new fashions generally and in lingerie fashions specifically.

"Miss Barbizon", as she is called by many of her friends here, has brought with her an enchanting collection of new slips, gowns and pajamas with definitely new lines in lovely new colors. "The new fashions, as we saw them in New York," said Miss Barbizon, "are sentimental reminders of the nineteenth century. The wasp-waist and the revealing lines of the hour-glass silhouette make it imperative that slips worn with the new clothes fit at the waist and lie flat over the hips." Barbizon has styled slips to fit any and every figure type. The two-piece bias cut slip is recommended for the young and slim, the four-gore bias slip for those whom nature has blessed with small waists and ample hips, and the straight cut slip for more mature figures. There are so many sizes, twenty-four in some styles, that every woman can be fitted accurately.

Miss Barbizon is here to welcome visitors, to show the new styles and colors in slips, gowns and pajamas, and to answer questions. Her visit is limited to one day only tomorrow (Wednesday) when she will be in the Barbizon Shop of...

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, and Pepsin-ize Acid Stomach Too

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Senna helps you gain that won't derelict stomach motion, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how Pepsin-ize your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also contains Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even the picky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syp Pepsin at your drug store today!

If Your Child Has A NASTY COLD

Relieve the misery of a cold with Vicks VapoRub. Rub chest, throat, and back thoroughly with Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. Then spread a thick layer on the chest and cover with a warmed cloth. Right away VapoRub goes to work to relieve the misery. VapoRub brings double relief because of its double action. It acts both as a stimulating poultice and a medicated vapor. Its poultice action penetrates the surface skin; its soothing vapors are breathed direct to irritated air passages. Try it. You'll find that often by morning most of the misery of the VICKS VAPORUB cold is gone.

YOU MEAN TO SAY MAXWELL HOUSE HAS ACTUALLY BEEN IMPROVED?

RIGHT! IMPROVED IN TWO VERY IMPORTANT WAYS!

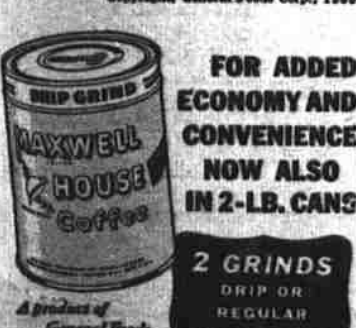

2 DEFINITE REASONS why Maxwell House is now even richer, more delicious!

1. New Enriched Blend. Yes! The famous Maxwell House blend has actually been improved... made richer, smoother, even more delicious and full-flavored than ever!

2. Improved Roasting Method. And this magnificent new blend is now roasted by a new method called Radiant Roast. A method that roasts each bean evenly... brings out more fully the extra flavor of these choice coffees. No bitter coffee from under-roasting. No bitter coffee from parching. Always full-flavored, always delicious!
