RELATIONS WITH JAPAN BELIE ALL WAR TALK

During the last three or four years, the average American came to recognize the word Japan as a synonym for trouble.

Japan was doing this, that, or the other thing in China and Manchuria; Japan was refusing to abide by the Washington treaty; Japan was fortifying mandated islands in the Pacific; some day Japan and the United States would get together and fight it all out.

That was the burden of most public references to Japan in this country. And since cultivation of an attitude like that is a necessary prelude to war, it all had a pretty ominous sound.

But of late the keynote seems to have changed. We are beginning to hear talk about co-operation instead of talk about rivalry. Someone seems to have remembered that Japan is one of our best customers in the matter of foreign trade, and that fixing to fight your best customer is about the poorest way of promoting a trade revival.

The recent argument over Japanese exports of textiles lends point to this matter.

Japanese textile mills have been working overtime. They have sent finished goods into such traditionally English markets as India and China. They have sent them to South America, where both British and American mills have done business; of late they have begun to send them into the United States itself.

This has led to protests, and the protests have led to a re-examination of our trade relations with the Mikado's empire.

Now the Japanese foreign office points out that, whatever the Japanese mills may do with their finished product, they at least buy most of their raw material from American producers.

During recent years, for instance, America has sold approximately $100,000,000 worth of raw cotton to Japan annually. These sales constitute the largest single item in America's agricultural export trade.

Last year the United States' sales of cotton to Japan outvalued the total of all Japanese exports to the United States.

In this connection it is worth remembering that Secretary of State Hull and Foreign Minister Hirota last year exchanged letters agreeing that there is no good cause for friction between the nations; and it is also noteworthy that the Japanese are anxious to conclude a new treaty with the United States working out a non-competitive basis for the foreign commerce of the two countries.

All this is worth remembering, for the simple reason that it points in the direction of peace instead of war. Our navy may feel justified in holding its maneuvers in the Pacific: these figures indicate that the danger of war is only superficial, and that underneath there are most solid and substantial reasons for keeping the two nations at peace.

Electrical timing correct to a millionth part of a second and every record certified by American Automobile Association.

Here's what it means to you. Probably you'll never care to drive a car five miles at 93 miles an hour. Yet, it means a lot to you to have a car that can go that fast-to shoot out of traffic tangles or flash you out ahead on the highway. It isn't likely you'll want to drive a thousand-mile stretch at 85 miles an hour, but you do want a car with the fine engineering, power and ruggedness it takes to do this. Ordinary driving is no work at all for a car like this. That's what it means to own a Hudson-smoother miles, more enjoyable miles-plus ruggedness and gasoline economy that make those miles cost less. You can see and drive an exact duplicate of this record-breaking Hudson Eight at any Hudson showroom.
