

JOE DIMAGGIO'S BEST YEAR MAKES HIM NO. 1 SERIES THREAT

By DILLON GRAHAM Sports Editor, AP Feature Service
NEW YORK, Sept. 26—Before the shuffle even begins it's certain that the Yankees will hold the Ace of Diamonds in their world series duel with the Reds or Cardinals. Diamonds will be trumps and the top trump of them all is Joseph Paul DiMaggio, New York's centerfielder.

Base knocks and runs win ball games and the Nationals haven't a slinger to match DiMag in getting hits or banging in counters. The Frisco crab fisherman is, by almost popular acclaim, the greatest star in baseball. There isn't a better defensive outfielder in the game. There isn't a flycatcher who owns a better arm than Joseph. And none can hit with him.

Rated a hitting star ever since he socked out a triple in his first major league contest in 1935, DiMaggio this year has outdone all his previous feats. For most of the campaign his batting average was above .400. Harry Heilmann, Detroit outfielder, was the last American leaguer to hit above .400. That was in 1923, when he hit .403. DiMaggio's average was .387 on Sept. 21.

DiMag trails only Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox in runs batted in and Joe has been in fewer games than Ted. DiMag outpaces any of the Nationals. He is among the leaders in runs scored and home runs.

He's the first league batting champion the Yankees have boasted since Lou Gehrig won in 1934. "I was just luckier this year," is Joe's explanation of a mark some 60 points over his previous big league best.

"The ball just fell for hits more often than in the other years," he says. "I'm swinging in the same groove. I haven't altered my stance. Nothing is changed, so it just must be luck."
DiMaggio uses a heavier bat than most of the big hitters. His bat is 36 inches long and weighs about 38 ounces. Joe's powerful wrists enable him to wait until the last split-second before swinging his bat into the ball.

The DiMag batting average for the last three world series is .301. He hit .346 in 1936, .373 in 1937 and .387 last year.

BUCKY WALTERS FACES CURT DAVIS IN TITLE SERIES OPENER AT REDLAND, 32,000 FANS TO ATTEND

Cincy Can Sew Up Flag By Winning Pair; Bucky Seeks 28th Victory

By JOHN FRYE CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 26 (AP)—Down go the chips and you may know who's the better man when darkness settles over the Smoky Mill creek valley tonight.
Everything is set. The weatherman promised to hold off on rain. The field is perfect. The crowd likely will be 32,000 men, women and children.
All they have to do now is play the games. The first-place Cincinnati Reds, Bill McKechnie's 20-year wonders meet the second-place St. Louis Cardinals, just 3 1/2 games behind, in a doubleheader that means more to Cincinnati than any world series.

The fellow is William Henry Walters, known as Bucky, who has won 27, including the last six straight. He is also depending on a yearling who is no lamb, Gene Thompson, who has an 11-6 record. Manager Ray Blades of the Cards is calling on Curt Davis and Morton Cooper. Curt has beaten the Reds four of five times. Mort carried Paul Derringer to a 3-all tie last month.
The burden of proof is on the Cards, whom the Reds ousted from first place "way back in May with four straight victories.
The strange thing about this card set is that people make more of it than of the possibility of the world series. Around the barber shops and slippery spoon joints you hear, "I'd rather see the St. Looie games. They'll be more fun."

LARGE CROWD IS EXPECTED FOR WESTERNER GAME

LITTLE WORLD SERIES GETS UNDERWAY

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 26 (AP)—For the fifth time in the five years he has managed the Rochester Red Wings, Billy Southworth will lead his team into the little world series tonight.
The winners of the governor's cup in the International League playoffs will face the Louisville Colonels, American Association playoff victors, in the annual minor league classic.
Barring postponements, the teams will spend Friday in travel and conclude the best four out of seven game series in Louisville.

Chapman Team Again Favored To Go Far

One of the best crowds of the season is expected to gather here Friday evening for the Lubbock-Big Spring non-conference grid classic. The Westerners were runnersup in the state interscholastic league playoff last year, losing, 21-6, to Corpus Christi in the finals. Gone is Walter "Jumbo" Webster, giant back, from Coach Weldon Chapman's crew but the Westerners are again coming up with a team favored to capture District I-AAA honors.
The Panhandle champions lost a non-conference game to Capitol Hill (Oklahoma City) last week and earlier were tied by North Side (Fort Worth) but will be heavily favored to cop the decision here.

High Football Has Gone Big Business

DALLAS, Sept. 26 (AP)—Texas schoolboy football definitely has entered the big business class.
The roar of the crowds and the tinkle of the coins at the turnstiles brought an expansion program in which $2,000,000 went for new athletic fields during the past two years.
A far cry from the days when the schoolboys often played in a pasture and had to stop the game to drive the cows off the field!
Dallas will open an $800,000 plant for its high schools next week, according to Hoke Smith, Dallas architect.
Smith labels the Dallas field the largest of its kind in the world.
The local stadium will seat 23,457, has a cinder track, field house that will take care of a basketball crowd of 3,500, space for tennis courts and one of the finest lighting systems in the country.
The Dallas plant will cost Dallas but about $150,000. The remainder was taken care of by government funds. The case is proportionately similar in practically all the plants constructed during the past two years.
Fort Worth opened a new high school athletic field this year. It cost $200,000 and seats 20,000.
San Antonio now is building a stadium that will take care of 22,000 with immediate extension facilities to 28,000. The approximate cost with WPA assistance is set at $400,000.
You think they are too ambitious when they build stadiums that seat 20,000?
Twenty years ago they needed only a level stretch of ground and they did their best to collect two-bits from the folks.
Today they get a dollar and the people yell for the tickets.

Marberry To Take Hill For Texans In Nashville

By FELIX R. MCKNIGHT FORT WORTH, Sept. 26 (AP)—Square at a game apiece after a fantastic 10-inning demonstration last night, Fort Worth and Nashville today travelled to the lair of the Southern Association champions to resume their Dixie Series struggle.
Nashville powered and finessed its way to a 9-8 decision in a game that had 29 players — including eight pitchers — on a merry-go-round of 26 base hits, four errors and lead juggling.
Both clubs have used just about all their pitching talent in the first two games, but after the day of rest it was expected George Jeffcoat, who finished last night in good style for Nashville, and Fred (Fip) Marberry would be chunkers for the Wednesday night opener at Nashville.

The Sports Parade

By HANK HART

Howard Schwarzenbach, one of the most colorful characters to ever wear the black and gold of a Big Spring football team, has joined the grid coaching staff of the local school and will assist John Daniel in tutoring the Yearlings, junior high team.
Swatzy, as he is popularly known, completed his eligibility here in 1932 but probably enjoyed his most successful season in 1931 when, as a member of Obie Bristow's great secondary which had as other members Tack Dennis, Ox Heblson and Bill Flowers, he played a major role in leading the Bovines to all honors except the district championship.
The Herd of 1931 scored a total of 398 points to seven for the opposition yet those seven points proved enough to knock the locals out of the title. Sweetwater dedicated Armistice Day toward dedicating the Bovines, 7-0, as Sammy Baugh and Red Sheridan made merry.
Local fans, who went to Mustangville aboard a special train to witness the classic, remember Swatzy for his dogged signal barking that almost turned defeat into victory. Particularly do they recall the time he, a youngster who dripping wet would not have weighed 135 pounds, came up from his safety position to tackle the gigantic Mike Hicks, knock him cold. Hicks, who weighed almost 200 pounds, had knifed his way through the Steer line and, sensing a touchdown pounded straight at Swatzy, seemingly intent on beating him to the ground. Swatzy and in a crashing contact slammed Hicks out of bounds. Only Swatzy got up.

The following year Swatzy played with an entirely different backfield which had Fred Kolberg and Jake Moran at halves and Henry Richbourg at full.
Howard's play in the campaign was good enough to land him a district honor as though the team was beaten several times. He was particularly impressive in the Bovines' 61-0 rout of Milledale in which he scored three touchdowns and in the local 19-7 triumph over Colorado when he tackled twice.
Swatzy later went with Tiny Trud to Eastern New Mexico in college, Fortales, where he played for three years. He finished his playing career at New Mexico A. M. in 1937.
While at Fortales Swatzy was the victim of one of the most fishy accounts of the year. He bore an ankle while catching a ball more than 20 yards from the nearest would-be tackler.
Howard entered a small high school team in New England a time last year and was a candidate for the head coach's job at the Fortales college before signing up his duties here.

Conn Retains Heavy Title In Pittsburgh

By GAYLE TALBOT PITTSBURGH, Sept. 26 (AP)—Billy Conn of this town still is light-heavyweight champion of the world, victor over Melio Bettina of Beacon, N. Y., in a savage 15-round slugfest last night at Forbes Field.
Billy, however, still does not look ready to fool with the elders of the tribe, the heavyweights. Though the decision of the two judges and referee last night was unanimous, the Associated Press score sheet gave him the victory by the narrow margin of 8 rounds to 7.
Game as a fighting cock, the handsome young Pittsburgher came back after losing five of the first six chapters to whale the champion all over the ring in the latter stages.
But Billy didn't display that heavyweight punch he's been trying to acquire. A score of times he tagged Bettina right on the whiskers with his right, but Mello never looked like going down.
So Conn's next opponent will be Gus Losenovich, another light-heavy, in November.
Bettina might as well forget all about trying to win that title because he probably came as close to doing it last night as he ever will.
At the finish Mello sported cuts around both eyes while Conn had a gash on one eyebrow.
Conn made a better fight of it than in their first meeting in July. The fight set a new record for Pittsburgh, 17,532 fans paying $67,892.39 to see the city's first 175-pound title bout.

More Upsets Are Expected This Year

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 (AP)—In a week or two, the football season may follow its customary course with not more than the usual number of upsets, but from the way things have gone so far it may be hard to find any unbeaten grid teams when the 1939 campaign ends.
They said the balustrade of the speakers' stand where an Almasan meeting had been arranged had been so wired that it would electrocute anyone touching it. The wiring was discovered and out.

MEXICO AGRARIAN PROGRAM PROTESTED

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 26 (AP)—A delegation of Tepextepec civic leaders was reported en route here today to protest that the government's agrarian program had been overdone.
They said a recent order dividing numerous tracts of land among the peasants included—by mistake—the main street of Tepextepec, the cemetery and 55 residences.

To Check Constipation Get at Its Cause!

If constipation has you down so you feel heavy, tired and dopey, it's time you did something about it. And something more than just taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble.
If you eat the super-refined food most people eat, the chances are the difficulty is simple—you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean heavy food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines.
If this common form of constipation is your trouble, eat Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day and drink plenty of water. All-Bran isn't a medicine—it's a crunchy, fibered, nutritive cereal. And it will help you not only to get regular but to keep regular, day after day. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek, sold by every grocer.

Reds Favored In Mix With Missourians

By BILL WHITE
Associated Press Sports Writer

The road that is paved with good intentions is no more heavily trafficked today than the road that leads to Cincinnati's Crosley field.

For at the end of that concrete rainbow is the handsomest pot of gold any baseball fan could ask. And on the result of today's doubleheader may depend the hopes for a National league championship of the radiant Reds or the courageous Cardinals of St. Louis.

A split in the four-game series will not be good enough for the Cardinals. They must win all four, and even then the Reds can slip into the world series. A pair of victories now would give Cincinnati its first pennant in 20 years.

The standings as they go into their four game series:

To Play	W.	L.	G.B.
Cincinnati	53	84	7
St. Louis	89	87	3 1/2 (x)

(x) One game with New York cancelled.

The Reds, playing at home and with Bucky Walters on the mound, are favored to win the first game. One betting commissioner has the odds 5 to 8 on Cincinnati and 7 to 5 against the Cardinals, although with any other pitcher working for the Reds, the price is 5 to 6 and take your choice.

So far this season, each team has won seven games from the other, both boast current victory strings of seven games, and the Reds have registered 10 victories out of their last 20 starts, while the Cards have captured 18 of 21.

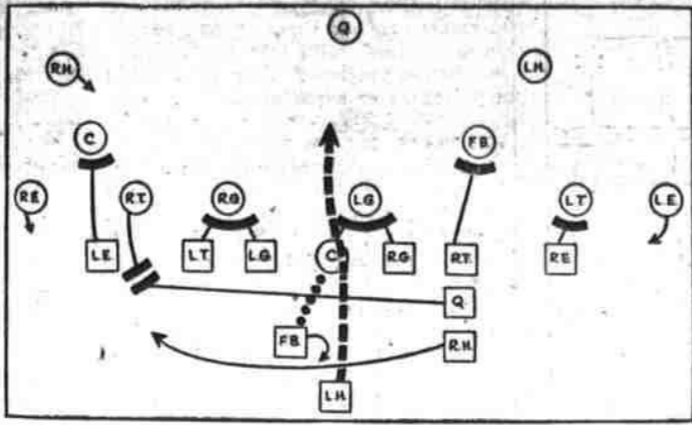

While everybody else waited quietly for the battles of Burgherville to open yesterday, the New York Giants made good use of the day by beating the Boston Bees 6-5, and the Chicago White Sox claimed a 4-3 victory over the St. Louis Browns in the only two games played.

Alabama's Delayed Buck

By Jim Crowley

Labor Group Backs FD Plan Of Neutrality

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 26 (AP)—A resolution favoring in broad terms President Roosevelt's stand on American neutrality was reported drafted for debate today at the second convention meeting of the American Federation of Labor's metal trades unions.

Informed labor leaders backing the administration's program for revising neutrality legislation said the neutrality policy offered to the convention for adoption probably would not deal in specific terms with the "cash and carry" plan of munitions sales abroad advocated by the president.

Considerable significance was attached to the eventual action of the metal trades unions on neutrality since it is regarded as a preview of the stand which may be taken by the main AFL convention next week.

Discussion of neutrality at the opening session of the convention yesterday disclosed a division of opinion on the New York state movement should go in supporting the administration's proposals to congress for lifting the embargo on sale of arms to warring nations.

Meanwhile labor leaders reported a revival of pre-convention talk about the possibilities of a contest for the AFL presidency now held by William Green.

The name of George Meany, president of the New York state federation of labor, was mentioned, but veteran labor leaders and members of the AFL executive council discounted reports Green's reelection would be contested.

Labor politicians also discussed possibility the AFL secretaryship, now held by the veteran Frank Morrison, might change hands. Morrison, who will be 89 years old in November, has held the post since 1896.

SWEETWATER RANKS SEVENTH IN NATL. LEGION CONTEST

CHICAGO, Sept. 26 (AP)—The "Jersey Skeeters" from Hackensack, N. J., ranked today as the best American Legion drum and bugle corps in the land.

The "Skeeters" captured the championship last night at Soldier Field. The 55 members of the corps scored 93,499 points in the senior contest.

Musicians' Post, Sweetwater, Tex., with 75,900 points, won seventh.

Interests. Such a pact would place Russia in a powerful strategic position—a matter of vital concern both to Germany and the allies.

Turkey's Position
The point is, of course, that Turkey is a power in the eastern Mediterranean because of her control of the Dardanelles—key to the Black sea. She also is in a position to play an important hand in the Near East, especially as related to British interests.

Because of all these factors Turkey would be an invaluable ally to any nation in event of war.

Last May when Britain was busy trying to form a "Halt Hitler" bloc, she and Turkey pledged themselves to aid each other in "event of an act of aggression leading to war in the Mediterranean area." France and Turkey made a similar agreement.

Both pledges were said to be "pending completion of a definitive" agreement. Meanwhile Germany has been working night and day to try to swing Turkey into the Nazi camp.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

Boston's Post says it knows for a fact Joe Post says it knows for a fact Bucs at $27,500 per for three years.

So you wonder why they play such smooth football down in the Southwest, hey? Well, look how they bring up their coaches. Mose Simms, head man at St. Mary's (San Antonio) had 12 years actual playing experience. Starting from kindergarten, he had two years at San Marcos Academy, two at Decatur Junior College, one at Baylor, another at Centenary, two at Washington State, one at Simmons (now Hardin-Simmons), then topped off his travels with a year on the crack Olympic club squad at San Francisco. (P.S.: There were two years sandwiched in somewhere which Mose forgets, but he admits to 'em.)

AN ANALYSIS OF THE WAR DEVELOPMENTS

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
The further Europe proceeds with its mad-batter war, the more apparent it becomes both sides are discreetly inclined to hope there may be an easier route to victory—or shall we employ the revised version of "peace with honor"—than through a bleak and bloody holocaust in the German westwall of the French Maginot Line.

True, artillery duels and costly local engagements are proceeding on the west front. They did last night.

A major offensive presumably will develop in due course. That's almost inevitable, for the psychological effect if nothing else.

An army, like a dictator, has to keep itself in the limelight if it is to hold its following. You'd be surprised to know how many times big attacks are made on orders from the home government with the idea of providing propaganda to buck up the civilian morale, or for use abroad.

However, both the Anglo-French allies and the Germans are trying to crack the nut with their fingers, rather than use steel.

The allies are relying greatly on two expedients—cutting off vital German supplies by naval blockade, and inspiring the German people to revolt and throw Herr Hitler out.

The English again have bombarded Germany from the air with pamphlets. This time they said, among other things: Message

"The British and French fleets have swept German merchant shipping from the oceans. Therefore your supplies of a whole range of essential war materials such as petrol, copper, nickel, rubber, cotton, wool and fats are almost gone and you can no longer rely as you did in the last war upon neutral supplies because your government cannot pay for them."

That's smart propaganda to hand a people who only twenty-one years ago was driven into submission by the lash of hunger. If the British can get results that way, it will be a lot easier than smashing the westwall.

TO TALK TREATY
MEXICO CITY, Sept. 26 (AP)—Ruben Romo, Mexican ambassador to Cuba, is expected here today to discuss with government officials a proposed trade treaty between Mexico and Cuba.

Many Americans, at the time of the opening of the Panama canal, were opposed to fortifying this "Canal of All Nations." It was to be a symbol of international progress and good will. Now, under congressional mandate, the canal is being made "impregnable from attack by sea, land, or air."

The chinchilla, a rodent weighing 20 to 24 ounces full grown, is the rarest of fur-bearing animals. Eleven animals, captured in three years of searching in the Andes mountains, formed the nucleus for the 2,000 chinchillas now living on farms.

The biggest ocean liner ever to sail through the Panama canal was the Bremen, which is 940 feet long, has a beam of 101 feet, and a load draft of 33 feet 10 1/2 inches.

'Desperate Effort'

With subscription campaigns breaking out over all of Texas in behalf of community chests, united charities and other benevolences, Governor O'Daniel suggests a subscription drive to pay old age pensions and avert the proposed slash of $6 in checks. The governor terms this a "last desperate effort," with the money to be returned to the donors once the treasury had sufficient money to care for the emergency.

Some donors might be motivated somewhat by the fact that a growing deficit would not be encouraging for the speedy return of the money, might be disturbed as the governor has been at the failure of the Legislature to do his bidding on providing pensions revenue, and certainly are not encouraged by world conditions and the thought that the United States could become involved pushing pensions out of the picture entirely.

The governor by his advocacy of the subscriptions plan opened an old discussion about who blocked whom—in other words brought up again the issue of who is to blame for the fact that the Legislature provided no revenue at its general session and pension payments have been cut. The psychology of opening up a dividing issue at a time when the executive is calling for a united front in dealing with the pension problem may be questioned in some quarters. At the same time, the governor has it in his power to give the plan a considerable impetus by taking the lead with a sizeable contribution. Being a big mill man and one of the large industrial figures of the state, he might volunteer the use of a salary as governor for two years, challenging Texas by substantial example and demonstrating unqualified belief in the suggestion he has made to the public.

Pensions by subscriptions offers some major difficulties in that the demand for them does not come from the monied interests who are now asked to handle the burden voluntarily.

Man About Manhattan

NEW YORK—In the world of the theater drama stems mostly from life, but a news dispatch from the interior of Europe tells how this process has been reversed and gives us an instance where life, if not stemming, is certainly paralleling the familiar lines of Bob Sherwood's play, "Idiot's Delight."

Most of you will recall this Pulitzer Prize drama, or certainly the movie, with Shearer and Gable, in which a reformed thief, in charge of a third-rate group of vaudeville hoofers were trapped in Europe by the outbreak of war.

These girls were in a "Fascist" country and were witnesses, with the audience, of the behind-the-scenes manipulations of the Big Munitions manufacturers, who allegedly compel war to be fought, so that their factories can keep turning.

Now that war had broken out in reality, Broadway was wondering about those eight young girls—tour of Europe several months ago. War caught them in the interior of the continent, just as the little show biddies in "Idiot's Delight" were trapped in a great hotel, close to the frontier, where the thunder of the guns could be plainly heard, and the drone of the planes we- as persistent as the buzz of flies in fly time.

I suppose those little American girls have heard plenty of planes drone by and guns, too.

Much has been written of John Steinbeck's earlier career, of the long, lean days when he worked as a carpenter, picked fruit on farms, and generally starved before he became a writer of best-selling novels. Now another young man, Pietro di Donato, a bricklayer, has tossed away his hod for a typewriter and written an amazing book (it is amazing from a standpoint of sales at least) which carries the somewhat startling title of "Christ in Concrete."

Much emphasis is being placed on the ability of these men to rise above the bonds of menial slavery and win a place in contemporary letters, but that sort of thing has been going on for centuries. Knute Hamsun, the Scandinavian writer, began life as a street-car conductor in Chicago. Jack London was for years a stevedore along the docks of San Francisco. He became a celebrated adventurer and turned to writing because he couldn't help himself. Jim Tully was a road kid and a circus roustabout. I have heard him talk for hours of those days when he was far from town, and when he never knew where the next nightfall would find him. He became a writer simply because Jack London was his hero, and because writing was easy for him.

One of the beauty spots of Manhattan is Bryant Park, at the rear of the Library, on Sixth Avenue. This used to be a place to be strictly avoided after nightfall, unless thugs interested you. It was a rendezvous for bums and outcasts, an ugly cesspool of the city. But now it has been changed into a great, green cool tree-lined retreat, with striking water fountains, and always, it seems, ten million lights.

Fairy story—"Once upon a time a family moved to his belongings, when piled on the sidewalk, asked very costly and attractive."—Detroit News.

Life's Darkest Moment

After A Man's Heart

by JEAN RANDALL

Chapter 19 SWEET AND TRUSTING "There's not another girl!" For an instant the sweetness deserted Iris' voice, and it was merely sharp and a little shrill. Tim shook his head. "If you mean by that am I in love with another girl, no. Not likely, after the jolt you gave me last summer. There is, however, a mighty good friend of mine—" "Feminine gender?" "That's Buff Carroll, the daughter of the cartoonist. In a few words he explained his rumpus with the ranch, his motor accident, Buff's being in Boulder, to take some courses at the University." Seeing incredulity deepen in her eyes, he went on: "I give you my word there's never been a word of love-making between us. In fact, we quarreled rather sharply this very afternoon. She's very different from you, Iris. Small and self-reliant, and knowing her own mind on every subject."

Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON—The war will begin to grow exciting from our standpoint when British cruisers begin roaming up and down our coasts and German submarines pick off British freighters within sight of the Atlantic seaboard. We will get terribly angry, officially, and send protests. We will tell them to get their ships out of the way of our commerce. Besides, it is disgraceful for a first-line power to let alien sea-police pester around in the front yard. Beyond a protest, we can do little—unless we want to write some more international law of our own. The thing all hinges on just what part of the ocean a neutral—a big neutral—can take over in time of war. We can take over the water out to the three-mile limit without protest. Every nation concedes that. But sometimes that is not enough for protection of our interests. When we were beating off run-runners we established a 12-mile zone as U. S. territorial waters. Other nations, in grinning friendliness for our effort to enforce an experiment "noble in purpose" allowed us to get away with that much ocean—but only for prohibition purposes. They refused to let it become a precedent or anything further.

WE TOOK OTHER SIDE

We have also been on the other side of the fence. During the early years of the World War while Italy was still a neutral she tried to establish a six-mile zone of "territorial water" around her shores. The United States flatly refused to recognize it.

Nevertheless, the president boldly asserted that U. S. territorial waters extended out so far as we found it necessary to extend them. But almost in the same breath he said the United States alone could not make international law. It takes more than one nation to do that.

Actually our navy is patrolling the seas out as far as 200 miles. But that would not necessarily prevent British and German boats coming in much closer. They did in the last war. A German submarine waited off Nantucket in plain view of shore and placidly picked off several British ships as they cleared the American three-mile zone.

Similarly, a flock of British cruisers waited just outside of New York harbor. The United States called it unfriendly and vexatious to have British move in on us, even if she were looking for ships with cargoes destined ultimately for Germany.

"But my dear fellow," England replied, in effect, "we are staying outside the three-mile limit. It is perfectly legal. And besides, during your Civil War you bloody well bottled up Bermuda with your own fleet." However, England finally pulled her ships out to the six-mile zone to pacify us.

GULF A BATTLEFIELD?

We have a right to prevent warships from carrying on a battle so close to our shores that bullets could fall on us. France insisted on that when the U. S. ship Kearsarge lay in wait to fight the Confederate commerce raider "Alabama."

Enemy ships can't operate in Chesapeake Bay. That is a closed water. But what about the Gulf of Mexico? A submarine might slip in there and slug a British tanker loaded with Texas oil. That, too, would be getting close to home, and awfully close to the Panama canal. But we don't control the gulf the way we do the Chesapeake.

One thing we do know about the three-mile limit. If we get careless and let a belligerent ship sink his enemy in our three-mile zone, we have to pay for the sunken ship.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

HOLLYWOOD—The first really cheerful set I've seen in this town since war broke out in Europe was that of "Broadway Melody of 1940" — which shows what music can do to lift the spirits.

Nobody was talking about war; the chorus girls (who always have just finished their routines and disappeared immediately before I walk on a set) were missing, but Fred Astaire and Eleanor Powell, both trim and neat in white, were going through their "Begin the Beguine" routine.

The set—huge, with a dark blue, highly polished floor, one section of which was mirrored—was cheering in itself. High dark blue walls, studded with electric stars, surrounded two sides; as third side, made of mirrors, reflected the motions of Powell and Astaire; before the orchestra, and along the unmirrored side, graceful formally designed "palm trees" of silver reared shining heads. And to the wild music of the playback, Astaire and Powell went into their dance.

"Begin the Beguine." Do you know what it means? Ever since I first heard it, which is a while ago, I've been asking people. Musicians, jitterbugs who were in the jive with it, swagmoozers. Nobody knew. Here, I thought was my chance to pin it down.

Bob Ritchie, who a year ago was traipsing through Europe finding new talent, was looking on, but he didn't know. Norman Taurog, who was directing, said he thought it had something to do with bayous, but he wasn't sure. Bobby Connelly, the dance director, opined the Beguine was a native dance in Martinique. A secretary was dispatched to telephone the music department. The music department, which knows many things, didn't know this.

"We better ask Cole Porter," said Taurog. "He wrote it." And then it came up, from the publicity girl who had just found out from Cole Porter, himself, who wrote it. "Begin the Beguine" means, in fact, absolutely nothing. There's a little island called Beguine somewhere off the south of France, and Porter used it (pronounced be-geen) simply for euphony.

They're spending $130,000 on the "Begin the Beguine" number, and—"Aren't we a bunch of intelligent people," announced Taurog, "to be doing all this—without even thinking of what it means?" The new "Broadway Melody" has, beside Astaire and Powell, Hollywood's other importantly successful dancer: George Murphy.

Except for Vera Zorina, whose specialty is ballet, there isn't another major star in town who works at the dance as a serious business. There's Shirley Temple, of course, but dancing is incidental to Shirley's success. There's Ginger Rogers, but she's not majoring in footwork any more. And there's Joan Crawford, but Joan gave up hoofing long ago. And the town, despite its scarcity of dancing stars, is full of dancers. Specialty dancers, chorus dancers, adagio dancers, every kind of dancers—and only four who've reached screen stardom through their feet. The British Admiralty has declined a request that frog served to English sailors be strengthened. The Linties probably regard that as a rum deal.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Plans Complete For Frances Willard Celebration

Plans for the Frances Willard Centenary Celebration on September 28 and the annual convention of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union are getting into final shape and promise a never-to-be-forgotten experience for the delegates and visitors at Rochester, New York, from September 27 to October 3.

The opening session of the convention, the previous evening, will be a fitting preparation for the great day, bringing into focus the results of much of Miss Willard's work for the future. The opening procession always stirs the great audience, and it will be of more than usual interest to hear the greetings from Rochester citizens who are contributing to the type of progress that Frances Willard envisioned for the whole country.

And the annual address by National President Ida B. Wise Smith not only will bring the spiritual keynote for the coming days of celebration, but also, as always, will be a document tracing the past year's events along the line of social progress or deterioration. It is Mrs. Smith's custom to follow much the same plan as Frances Willard did in her day, making the annual message not merely an interesting talk for her audience on that occasion, but a real chronicle reflecting the trend of the times as related to human welfare.—(Submitted by and published at the request of the local WCTU.)

Pull the Trigger on Lazy Bowels, and Also Pepsin-ize Stomach!

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels.

A HINT OF THE OLD—YET VERY NEW

There's a hint of the fashions of 1913 in the hat this chic New Yorker wears to cocktails. Its black crown is circled with a fringed pink plume dyed to match the stripes that band the sleek black satin jacket worn with a plain black satin skirt. A gold head necklace and bracelet and an "envelope" watch whose diamond-studded flap raises to show the face, make smart accents.
