RAIN PLAN IS EXPECTED SOON

Hail/Wind Offset Benefits of Rain

Rains late Tuesday, which continued to benefit crops and ranges over a wide area, had their value offset in some localities by heavy damage from hail.

Reports this morning said the T. O. Midkiff ranch, southeast of Midland, suffered heavy hail, resulting in loss of sheep and damage to the ranch house and barns.

Hail fell at Stanton, also in strips along the highway east of Midland. The J. C. Miles farm, three miles south of town, had hail but not enough to cause great damage. It was reported this morning. Hail also fell at points north of here, including the Scharbauer Cattle company's North Curtis place, 18 miles north of Midland.

LAVAL FAILS TO PERFECT FRENCH A NEW CABINET

President Calls on
Other Prospects
For Premier

PARIS, June 5. (AP)—Pierre Laval, foreign minister, failed today to organize a new French government to succeed the overthrown cabinet of Fernand Bouisson.

Laval tried nearly 24 hours to gather ministers for the cabinet, but finally was forced to tell the president he had failed. The president then began calling other premiership prospects to his study.

BOISSON CABINET IS SHORT LIVED

PARIS, June 5. (AP)—A defiant chamber of deputies by two votes late Tuesday overthrew the young cabinet of Fernand Bouisson and last night both the veteran Pierre Laval and Bouisson refused calls from President Leduc to form a new one.

France was thus plunged into one of its greatest political crises of years. The Bouisson government was smashed when it demanded emergency powers from the chamber to safeguard the cabinet. Bouisson's cabinet broke all records for short life among France's notoriously short-lived governments. It lasted exactly three days and 20 hours.

HOWARD COUNTY RELIEF WORKERS STAGE 'WALKOUT'

BIG SPRING, June 5. (AP)—Displeased with the curtailed allotment given Howard county for June, relief workers Tuesday went on strike.

Their action followed a mass meeting in the district court room Monday evening. Following several spirited speeches, a motion carried by a big majority to strike. There were no demonstrations.

Tuesday morning workers did not call for their cards. There was a little silent picketing but no disorder. Later in the day several men called for their cards and went to work on the highway project.

Dissatisfaction broke out among the workers here Monday morning when it was made known the June allotment for general relief purposes was approximately $5,500, only about half of the previous month figure.

With the budget cut, half, County Administrator L. A. Deason announced a corresponding reduction in projects and number of men to be utilized.

Although there was difference of opinion among workers themselves as for what they might strike, it was agreed by a majority that it was to be reduced to a minimum wage of higher per hour was demanded.

Relief officials countered with the assertion that there was only a certain amount to be spent, and no more. If the per hour wage scale were raised, the number of work hours per individual would have to be reduced, they pointed out.

Tuesday morning members of the Howard county relief board were pressed by relief workers pleading their case for higher wages. The county board, its chairman, Martelle McDonald, pointed out, has nothing to do with fixing pay per hour. This was fixed by a group of disinterested representatives from several working trades. It was pegged at 35 cents per hour.

The "walk out" did not affect a FWA project and the west highway overpass job. Men working on those jobs are paid a minimum wage prescribed by the federal government. Their employment is handled through National Re-employment Service and not through the relief office.

A woman character well known among relief workers complained in the meeting Monday evening that she had slept on a bad mattress with insufficient cover all winter and "they ain't done nothing for me." A husky worker expressed displeasure with the voting of billions for relief when "we're not getting any of it." He also raised the question about the president's fishing trips, just where the expense money for those excursions was coming from.

Others stuck more to the line and objected to the 35 cents per hour pay rate and the reduced allotment for June. The district court room was packed, partly with curious on-lookers, and people were standing outside the doors.

west, the raging waters of the Republican River are shown in this aerial view of the inundated prairie country near Arapahoe.

Flood Havoc

Where this torrent raged along a Pueblo, Colo., street, four brick residences stood, but only this one reeling on the brink of swollen Fountain creek, remained after the fury of the flood had been spent here and rivers rushed eastward to take a toll of more than 100 lives and cause property damage far above $10,000,000. One room was ripped from this home and the attic roof left perilously jutting over the stream.

Tottering on the bank of Fountain creek at Pueblo, Colo., half the dormitory of the state asylum annex is shown here, after the swollen stream had torn the structure in two, and left one section tipped crazily in the stream. Killing more than 20 in this section of the state, the floods poured eastward, carrying death and destruction and threatening tremendous damage to crops, with a record rise feared all along the Missouri river.

Seek Portland Boot-Legger As "Pot-Bellied" Kidnaper

(By Associated Press)

Rain-blessing of May—threatened to become calamity in June as damaging hail and winds soon followed by heavy rain and heavy precipitation at several West Texas points Tuesday was matched at others by inundated fields in which seed were ready to rot or had been washed away for the second and third times.

Hail and strong twisting winds joined a three-inch rain at McCamey early in the night to give that oil field town the worst storm in its history.

Four-Inch Downpour
A cloudburst four miles south of Roscoe early in the afternoon left hundreds of acres of land under water and ruined grain and cotton crops. Four inches of rain fell in 30 minutes, accompanied by hail that came with a roar heard for miles.

Growing crops were damaged, poultry killed, window glass knocked out and many car tops damaged by hail at Littlefield, in northern western county, and at South Plains points, Tuesday afternoon.

Neither deaths nor injuries were reported, but property loss, with McCamey suffering the greatest damage, will run into thousands of dollars.

Utilities Interrupted
The city of McCamey was without light last night as the service was disrupted as the wind blew down scores of light poles. Few residents had usable telephones, because of similar damage to the telephone system. Streets were flooded to curb levels and many of the stores reported stocks damaged by water.

Because of darkness, a complete check could not be made until today, but it was expected the oil field will come in for a big share of the loss.

At Girvin, 12 miles west of McCamey, there was neither rain nor wind. The storm struck about 7 o'clock, following one of the hottest afternoons of the season.

Houses Damaged
South of Roscoe during the cloudburst, hail storms of large size were slacked five feet deep in ditches along the roadways. They beat off roofs of houses, many of which had been re-built following a destructive hailstorm of a few weeks ago, and shattered window panes.

Land was badly washed in the area affected, several miles wide, and lakes were overflowing. It is a level country, and the greatest depth reached except in ditches, was a few inches.

Heavy damage to toll lines of the Southwestern Associated Telephone company was reported in Brownfield, Littlefield, Sudan and Amherst following the rain and hail storm on the South Plains.

Ten miles east of Midland, large hail stones fell during a heavy rain, tearing through auto tops, denting fenders and hoods. At 6 p. m. the rain had amounted to 3.25 inches and was still falling.

The Garden City section reported ranches receiving as much as five inches since late afternoon with hail doing some damage to orchards and crops near the city.

In Jones and Runnels counties, both heavy cotton-producing areas, farmers who did not face re-planting were apprehensive over the

Seek Portland Boot-Legger As "Pot-Bellied" Kidnaper

TACOMA, Wash., June 5. (AP)—Hot on the trail of George Weyerhaeuser's kidnapers, after the tell-tale appearance of one of the ransom bills in eastern Oregon, the nation's manhunters labored today to "break the case wide open" by tomorrow evening.

A former big-time Portland bootlegger was reported by Captain Jack Keegan of the Portland police detectives to be sought in the belief that he possibly was the "pot-bellied man" the boy described as one of his kidnapers.

The trail of the $200,000 kidnapers grew warmer last night with discovery of the passing of the first ransom bill in eastern Oregon, and the statement of a justice department spokesman that the case will "break wide open in 40 hours."

The assertion concerning the "break" came but a short time after the first ransom bill in the kidnaping came to light, and all the cunning of the justice department's criminal hunters had been thrown into a search for the suspect.

"This case will break wide open in 48 hours," the spokesman said. "The ransom money is loose now."

He added his belief that "a local gang—by that I mean Seattle and Tacoma men—was responsible."

Liquor Conspiracy Testimony Taken

LUBBOCK, June 5. (AP)—Leonard Terry of Big Spring Tuesday afternoon in United States district court told of operating a Lamb county whiskey route in 1933.

Terry was the second defendant the government used in its efforts to convict Sheriff L. M. Irvin of Lamb county and 25 others of conspiring to deal in untaxed whiskey. Terry pleaded guilty.

E. E. Wheeler, a fugitive defendant in this case, was Terry's employer, the expressionless witness said. Wheeler had told him their wholesale liquor dealings were protected by Sheriff Irvin who was to receive 50 cents the gallon for liquor sold; and that the sheriff's son, Driscoll, was an intermediary. Terry testified.

TAXING POWER OF GOVERNMENT MAY BE NEXT RESORT

New Long Range NRA
May Be Effected
By Leaders

WASHINGTON, June 5. (AP).—Possibility that the government's taxing power might be used to effectuate a new, long range NRA program was disclosed today by Chairman Doughton, of North Carolina, of the house ways and means committee, as administration leaders sought legislation for a temporary skeletonized recovery organization. He expected in a conference today with Donald Richberg and representatives of the senate finance committee, to agree upon a temporary NRA measure. President Roosevelt submitted all proposals for the future of the NRA to Attorney General Cummings and Solicitor General Reed. They thus far had failed to find any plan which meets legal requirements.

WASHINGTON, June 5. (AP).—Democratic congressional leaders said today that President Roosevelt is planning to submit additional legislation before the end of the present session of congress to replace the invalidated code structure of the NRA. The form of future legislation as yet was undetermined.

WASHINGTON, June 5. (AP).—Apparently determined to have the nation decide on the business-control issues raised by the supreme court, President Roosevelt today proposed a fragmentary, stop-gap extension of the NRA.

Announcing that an agreement had been won from democratic congressional leaders on the proposal, the president outlined plans for a codeless, "skeleton organization" that would keep business statistics and require that government contractors live up to minimum wage and maximum hour standards.

Mr. Roosevelt emphasized throughout a round of extraordinary conferences with cabinet and senators and house leaders that this projected shadow of the old blue eagle machine would not seek to enforce the working conditions or fair trade practices that existed under the code structure abolished by the supreme court's decision of Monday before last.

Many children were among the 255 persons whose bodies were recovered from the wreckage of the church in San Pedro and were each year the devout of the countryside kneel in prayer, the supplicants beseeching their patron saint for life-giving rain.

SCHOOLS ON DEFENSIVE

Dr. Edwin C. Broome, superintendent of schools in Philadelphia, tells the National Society of New England that "there seems to be a country-wide movement" to discredit the school system...

The warning is well-timed. Our school system is expensive; granted. It may be that a judicious pruning of the budget here and there would be a good thing.

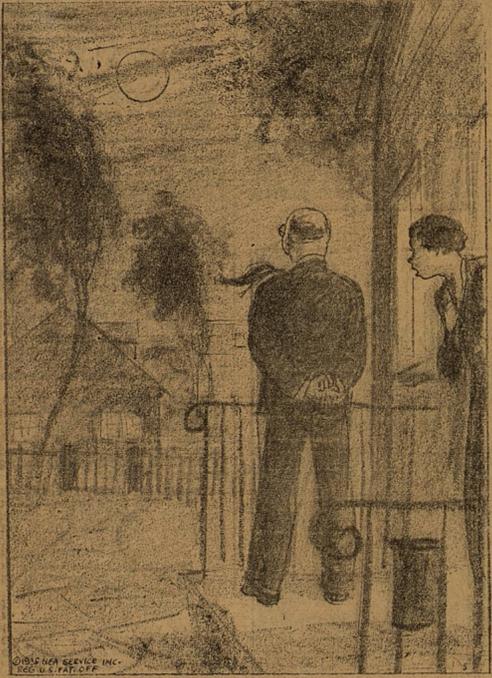

To reduce the cost of government, attack first wasteful and inefficient political control. See that the so-called "honest graft"—as well as the other kind—is eliminated...

Strictly adhered to, such a program would sharply reduce taxes and still leave us able to support the schools in the style our children deserve.

We imagine it would be difficult to interest a public enemy in a chain letter, in view of his reluctance at having his name at the top of a list.

"Fairy Land" Theme Is Stressed in YWA Banquet

With table decorations depicting some of the best-loved of childhood's fairy tales, YWA members entertained with a "fairy land" banquet at the Baptist annex Tuesday evening.

The banquet was served at four tables forming a hollow square. The tables representing the stories of King Midas, Cinderella, Red Riding Hood, and The Three Little Pigs.

Gold was the prevailing color note at King Midas's table. The color being used in the candle holders with their white candles, in the nut cups, in the place cards with edges cut to represent the towers of a castle, in the gold and white napkins, and the programs.

The same color note was used at the Cinderella table which depicted several scenes from the story which has been beloved since the days of the Egyptians to this era of the New Deal. Here were Cinderella in her poor clothes and her gay stepsisters in brighter garments.

Those famous companions, The Three Little Pigs and the Big Bad Wolf, shared attention at the fourth table which held blue candle holders. Place cards bore pictures of the Three Little Pigs.

Miss Jessie Moody presided as toast mistress. The following program was presented: Invocation—Mrs. J. M. White. To Our Visitors—Miss Obara Hines.

Get Acquainted choruses—Led by Miss Annie Faye Dunagan. To Our Counselor—Miss Laura Shelburne.

Response—Mrs. Iris Bounds. Talk—The Big Bad Wolf—Mrs. H. B. Dunagan. Piano solo—Miss Vivian Arnett.

To the Annie Barron circle—Miss Evelyn Adams. Response—Mrs. J. M. White. Talk—Just Wishing—Mrs. Winston F. Borum.

Mrs. Borum's talk was the main address of the evening. The speaker stressed the point that what one wishes for determines one's character to a great extent and that "just wishing" accomplishes nothing.

Guests for the evening included chairmen of the WMU circles and a few others specially invited. One copy of every book published in England must by law be supplied on demand to certain specified libraries, including the Bodleian Library at Oxford and Cambridge University Library.

The nicest time in the world to stay home is on a rainy night when one has a good book to read or congenial friends to talk to.

Come to think of it, one of the pleasures that some people might number among the minor ones of life but that we think is a major delight, is possessing friends to talk things over with.

And did you ever think just how few people you meet in the course of a lifetime that you can really talk to without reservation, from the full depth of your feeling and experience?

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything).

All my life I've heard women talk about how mean men can be, but did you read the yarn about the woman at Fort Worth yesterday who jumped from a bridge to a bank a few feet below, making on-lookers think she jumped into the water 60 feet below?

The optical illusion worked so perfectly that hundreds of rescuers went to work dragging the river bottom and making every effort to recover the woman or her dead body. Meanwhile she stood by and "egged them on" to work faster, finally telling someone in the crowd what a joke she had played.

The only place the workmen made a mistake was by not taking their grappling hooks and using them on her after they discovered what saps she had made of them.
