control baby was followed by an oppressive calm. Whether this had any especial significance is the question that is worrying reporters as they watch for developments.

In some quarters, the lull in developments is indicative of strict undercover dealing with agencies through which restoration of the child to its home may be made; to others it meant decision to keep all roads and communication channels swept clear of unofficial surveillance which might have a tendency to balk free entry of agents to the Lindbergh estate.

Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh were incommunicado. The strain is beginning to tell vividly on both, though they appear calm. Deep lines are etched in the colonel's face, and his wife does not appear well.

LONDON.—"Such a thing could not happen in Great Britain."
This was the reaction of the ordinary Briton when he read in his papers about the kidnaping of Col. Lindbergh's baby.

The news from America, accordingly, got a very big 'play' here. The contents posters of the newspapers, displayed all over London, called attention to the story in sixfoot letters. The papers themselves ran long cables about it and printed many pictures of the Lindberghs.

The editorial comment all seemed to blame the condition of affairs in America to the prohibition regime. Said the Mirror:

"What is behind these crimes, and how is it that no one, from the highest to the Towest, appropriate to the highest to the Towest, apparently is safe in the United States? The fact is that gangdom is now virtually in control. Since the introduction of prohibition the increase of crime has been phenomenal. For the first time in modern history we are confronted with organizations directed by men of personality, courage and genius, who are above the law. . . Here in Great Britain we can at least congratulate ourselves that the forces of law and order do still operate. In certain parts of Amoperate. In certain parts of America they appear to be suspend-

In Great Britain it is quite different. The police of London are under the Home Secretary, a member of the cabinet. Though the Home Secretary is a politician, there is no politics in the police force. A new Home Secretary does not mean a new deal in the police force. No action was taken by the Pecos group at the meeting. The speakers pointed out that building of the cut-off parallels to other first class highways entirely with the state funds and without having communities affected having any voice in the es affected having any voice in the matter whatsoever. Chamberlain de-clared that highways have grown to such tremendous importance that they govern politics and emphasized the fact that the state highway commission was today probably the most important board in the state. Chamberlain stated that the highway commission wanted to "throw away $1,500,000 to save seven miles to the speeding transcontinental to the speeding transcontinental tourist." Chamberlain urged that Pecos adopt a strong resolution op-posing this cut-off and if other towns over the state would do so, it would probably be delayed until all of Texas was out of the mud. "Even if nothing had been said about the Odessa-Ables cut-off, I believe that you should be alarmed here over the general policy," stated Chemberlein. you should be alarmed here over the general policy," stated Chamberlain. Bailey Hardy stated that the Judge W. R. Ely, chairman of the commission had told him positively that the Ables to Odessa cut-off would be built. "You may quote me as saying that," Hardy announced, "and I dare Judge Ely to deny that he said that to me." Hardy further stated that it was a shame that the highway department had so much money that it had to be used in constructing Mayor Brown of Mineral Wells warned Pecos business men that the Odessa-Ables cut-off was slated to follow the cut-off around Mineral Wells and Breckenridge. Chamber of commerce officials at Pecos had not taken any action in the matter, it was reported.

FRIENDLY GERMANY

It was interesting to read the recent cable dispatches telling of the elaborate celebration which the German government held to commemorate the bicentennial year of George Washington's birth.

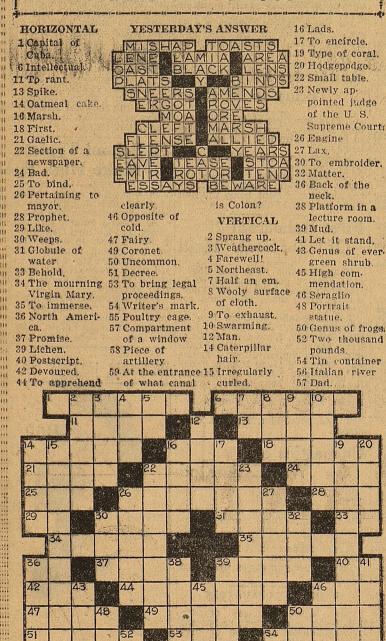

The ceremonies were held in the historic Reichstag under the patronage of President von Hindenburg. Chancellor Bruening delivered the chief address, the stars and strieps were abundantly displayed and a German military band played "The Star-Spangled Banner"—the first time that tune ever sounded in those halls.

This would seem to indicate that the bitterness of World war days is about forgotten, as far as Germany and America are concerned. The traditional friendship between the two nations, tragically interrupted by the war-madness of the last Hohenzollern, has been resumed. Let us hope that it will never again be broken.

Urbana, Closed by Mayor, Learns Its Lesson, Booms

URBANA, Ill.—This is the story of a town that has whipped the depression, brought about business improvement, restored economic stabil-provement, restored economic stability to the community and is now in the midst of a $100,000 home improvement campaign—all as the result of a hysterical "run" on the town's two banks, which threatened to break both of them.

Mayor Reginald C. Harmon's drastic five-day "moratorium" closing all business houses in the city except drug stores and groceries, gave the town an enforced period in which to "cool off" and started the chain of events toward this improvement.

MAYOR RAPS MOB HYSTERIA

By R. C. HARMON, Mayor of Urbana, Ill.

I venture the assertion that fully half of our bank "runs" in this country today are due to hysteria on the part of peo-ple who have heard a lot of wild, false and baseless rumors. That was certainly the case in Urbana. Few banks close as the result of dishonesty behind the counter. Sometimes unwise in-vestments cause them to fall.

But in most cases a "run" is caused by sheer hysteria.

Any city can do what Ur-bana has done, if the said city is loyal and community spirited. But if the citizens are not loyal and willing to co-operate there is not much a mayor can do.

A mayor can't enforce "martial law." If he tried to do so he might have to put hundreds of persons into jail and that would cause a riot. That is where loyalty and public spirit comes in

The same committees that stopped the bank "run" are now being used to canvass the city in an effort to bring about the $100,000 of home to bring about the $100,000 of home improvements—remodeling and repairs—and this campaign is meeting with remarkable success. The city, with a population of 13,500, is the home of the University of Illinois. "I realized," says Mayor Harmon, Urbana's 32-year-old chief executive, "the risk I was undertaking when I issued the order that closed up the city. It was a move unprecedented in the history of the country. If it succeeded, I might save the town's banks and save a lot of our merchants from being dragged down to ruin with them; if it failed, I would be the goat and it would mean the end of my political career. "But it worked, It has also worked in a dozen other cities that have

Many Have Fear Of Heart Diseases

By MARTHA BREDEMEIER

There are certain widespread fears about heart disease which should be corrected because they are not true. Many think that if one has heart disease he is likely to faint away and that one who faints does so because something is wrong with the heart. Neither of these things is true. A diseased heart does not cause Palpitation of the heart, meaning to feel the heart beat, is often thought to mean a disease of the heart. Sometimes it may, but more often it does not mean this at all. If this palpitation is too frequently feltone should carefully examine the cause. Fear may make one as useless as a real disease may. People declare that their hearts skip-stop or turn over. This happens often with advancing years but usually it means nothing serious.

Heart disease cannot be lightly dealt with for it remains the chief agency of death. Almost twice as many deaths are caused by heart troubles as by any other disease.

or "just nerves." But whatever the cause, it should be corrected, so see your doctor.

Nowadays many hearts are injured by overdoing. For adults who are fearful of heart trouble, the best rule is: "Be your age!" Live an orderly life. Keep fit by avoiding all overindulgences and over-strain. Have decayed teeth and other centers of infection cleared up. Take time for complete recovery after disease. And have periodic health and dental examinations.

Heart defects spring from strange causes. The commonest are the disease of childhood. Rheumatic fever, sometimes called "growing pains", and other acute infections such as scarlet fever are the worst offenders. Any infection which enters the blood stream may result in injury to the heart.
