CARELESSNESS AT CROSSINGS

The grade crossing accident is one of the leading contributors to our auto traffic death list. And the thing every driver should remember is that in most cases such accidents are the fault of the motorists themselves.

Figures compiled by the Pennsylvania Railroad System show that during the first four months of this year, one-third of all grade crossing accidents occurred when motorists drove into the sides of trains. And in exactly half of these cases, the train involved was either standing still or moving at a snail's pace of less than 10 miles an hour.

The blithe carelessness with which some drivers approach railroad crossings could not be illustrated more clearly. It is sheer folly to drive up to any crossing without making absolutely sure that no train is in sight; but to blunder against a train that is actually on the crossing at the time is the next thing to simple suicide.

HOW VETERANS FEEL

Europe is generally admitted to be drifting steadily toward war. How do the European veterans of the last war feel about it? As fighting men, do they welcome the approach of a new war?

They do not. Representatives of the war veterans of Germany and the allies met in Paris recently and passed a resolution calling for the maintenance of peace, abolition of war-like policies and the settlement of international disputes by arbitration.

"The veterans of all nations are passionately attached to the maintenance of peace," they declared. "Men who incite war are not friends but enemies of their own countries."

There is a calm note of warning in this statement which the super-patriots of all lands, following policies that can lead to nothing but war, would do well to read.

JUST A SCRAP OF PAPER

You can begin to understand the cynical way in which the governments of the world signed the Kellogg anti-war treaty by meditating on the furore which arose when Emperor Haile Selassie of Abyssinia asked the United States to protest Italy's projected violation of the treaty.

Here we have, seemingly, an open and shut case. Having renounced war as an instrument of national policy, Italy—for reasons which Italians find good and sufficient—proposes to use war as such an instrument. The United States is asked to remind Italy of that renunciation—and instantly there is a sensation in all the capitals of Europe!

It is pretty clear that the governments which signed this treaty never had the slightest notion of abiding by its spirit. If they had, would they be dismayed by the thought that now, when it might be of some use, someone is actually thinking of reminding them of it?

LOVE ASSERTS ITSELF

Romance is coming back into the life of the hard-bitten and materialistic Communist of Soviet Russia. Joseph Stalin is becoming sentimental. The U. S. S. R. again is permitting love to assert itself, and things are brightening in the none too sunny atmosphere over Russia.

This encouraging tendency toward the more human side of life appears in recent acts and speeches of important Soviet officials. Stalin himself has broken down and confessed that man is more important than machinery.

The newspapers he controls editorially have stressed the importance of parenthood in the scheme even of Communistic endeavor, and now the national theater has produced, of all Shakespeare's plays, "Romeo and Juliet," the most romantic.

Probably soon the world will come to realize that the Russians, whether under czar or Communist dictator, are plain human beings.

Illness, the minimum for a French community. The mayor is the only one who lives in Feissal. The others own land there but live far, far away. It has seven registered voters. Three of them voted at the last municipal elections.

Its expenses are small, consisting almost entirely of salaries, which are low in virtue of the fact that all of the community's three able-bodied citizens hold several of them. The community is, therefore, wealthy. But the prefecture wants to save the salaries of the mayor, the ten municipal councilors, the postmaster, the police, the telephone service and even the day laborer by abolishing the community of Feissal (pop. 4), and attaching it to Authon (pop. 98).

Three of them are falling to pieces, but the fourth (which is the city hall, the postoffice and the rest of the public buildings as well) is the private residence of the population, which includes the mayor, the postmaster, the mayor's wife and the town's only private citizen, (the mother of the mayor). There once were two others but they moved to the country. Feissal has 10 municipal councilors.

SOUTHERN ICERS OUTFIGHT WINK TO WIN GAME BY 6 TO 5 SCORE

COME FROM REAR THREE TIMES TO TAKE DECISION

In one of the best softball games ever played on the local field the Southern Ice club managed to push over one run in the ninth inning and eke out a one-run margin over the strong Wink team Friday night by a score of 6 to 5.

The game was replete with thrills throughout and never an inning passed without some member of both clubs bringing the large crowd to their feet with a sensational play.

Time after time Morgan and Varner of the Icers and Lewis and Varner of the Wink team caught balls in the outfield that had "base hit" written all over them.

In the third inning Lewis went back into the cars deep in right field to pull down what looked to be a sure home run off the bat of Morgan and a couple of plays later raced in behind first base and shoestringed a Texas Leaguer off the bat of Cook.

Varner made catches of line drives twice in the seventh after it seemed that he could not get near either of them.

Morgan got five put outs in his evening of toil in the left field and none of them were easy.

Wright pitched the complete game for the winners and despite the fact that he could not get the ball over the plate where he wanted it his mates gave him such sensational support in the field and then got hits when they made runs that this was overcome.

Hoag pitched for the visitors and was rapped for 12 hits during the evening but was pulled out of a hole several times by a defense that was every bit as good as that presented by the Ice.

The Midland club, evidently suffering from stage fright, kicked the ball around enough in the first inning to give the Wink team three runs and put themselves in a hole that they could not get out of until the fourth when they finally managed to tie up the score.

The Midland team missed a good chance to score in the first inning when the coaches held Morgan up at third after he had hit one over the center fielder's head and reached that base on it. They did make one in the second, however, when Pierce led off with a walk and came home when Mills doubled to center.

The Icers tied up the score in the fourth when, with two out, Mills walked, Hedges tripled down the right field foul line and Jones doubled.

The Wink team went one up in the fifth when Davis led off with a triple and scored on a single by Creech. The Ice tied up the score again in the sixth when Pierce hit one that bounced under the cars in right field and was not recovered until he had rounded the bases.

The Ice went ahead for the first time in the eighth when Pierce singled and came home on a double by Hedges. They did not hold the lead long, however, as Hoag, Wink pitcher, led off the ninth for his club with a double and came home when Rogers singled.

To start the ninth for the Ice, Wright went out, third to first; B. Howard, batting for H. Howard, struck out, but Morgan got a long double to center and came home with the winning run when Bizzell hit a line single over the visiting shortstop.

Pierce, with a home run and a single, and Morgan with a double and triple, were the big guns of the Midland attack. No man on the Wink team got more than one hit.

Flubdubs

BY JESS RODGERS

Youse guys and gals who missed the game between the Southern Ice and Wink teams Friday night are in for a long session of regrets for it is very probable that there will not be another game as good as it played here in several months.

There was more hard-hit balls hit in the game than there has been hit on the field in the last month. There was more sensational catches and better base running than it has been our pleasure to watch in a long time. There was not but one time in the game when the coaches of both teams were not wide awake and that was in the first inning when Morgan was stopped on third after hitting over the center fielder.

Incidentally, the collection was the best that has ever been donated at one of the games.

If Hurstel did not lie to this department then someone else did. In figuring up the League standings Friday Hurstel said that of the two games that the Southern Ice team lost last only one of them should go into the loss column. Dub Hurst, manager of the Hardware team in the absence of Luther Tidwell, says that there was no agreement on his part that the game in which the Hardware team defeated the Ice for it to go down in the records other than the usual order. Manager Buchanan of the Continental, the other conqueror of the Ice during the week, said the same thing. Such statements rather put this department on the spot but as we would rather try to outrun one person than two we'll say that the Ice lost two during the week.

If there is anyone in the league that is not hitting 500 or more this season we would like to hear from them. Every player in the league seems to be hitting 500 or more and wanted to know why they are not listed among the big six.

To be perfectly plain about it—that big six means about as much as a snowball would to an eskimo for there has not even been an accurate score kept on more than half of the games.

HOusetops POUNDED BY ROARING CHENANGO FLOOD

With little more than their roofs showing above the torrents pouring down the beautiful valley of the Chenango river, creating a scene of utter devastation, the farmhouses seen in this picture give striking evidence of the height of the flood that raged through New York state, taking toll of more than 40 lives and $20,000,000 in property. Seemingly by a miracle, these dwellings, located north of Binghamton, were not swept from their foundations by the deluge beating against their second stories. On knolls which were high and dry, only the tops of trees appeared above the water, which rose almost to the tops of telephone poles in some places. Back of the roaring stream are the hills to which hundreds fled barely in time to escape death.

Only black and white can be recognized in some forms of color blindness, but the majority of color blind persons are blind to only one or two colors.

Darrow Returns. Clarence Darrow has been back to the battleground since the trial. It was a few years ago when he returned with his family.

Well, I didn't do so much good here after all," said the "infidel" Darrow, noticing a new church edifice located opposite the hotel.

Bryan, the other great general in that Dayton battle, has long since died. He spent his last hours in the little Rogers cottage in Dayton where he sat on the front porch in a big rocker, eating radishes from a big paper sack as he prepared to continue his battle against "Darrow and the Devil." The Great Commoner's last speech, that was never delivered, was prepared on this magnolia-shaded porch; his last great dream, the establishment of a fundamentalist school, was visualized in this little cottage.

Bryan was laid to rest, at his own request, in Arlington. But even today, the little Dayton cottage still stands as a shrine to the memory of this great man, and occasionally some of his admirers journey there especially to see the place where Bryan died.

Giant in Those Days. As for John R. Neal, the Tennessee legal brains for the defense, he is still running for office and making trips to Washington in the interest of the Tennessee Valley. Judge Raulston retired from the bench after his defeat and is now practicing law in South Pittsburgh; Walter White, no longer Rhea county school superintendent, is selling insurance for a living, and Sue Hicks, a prosecuting attorney, was recently elected to the Tennessee legislature from his home county.

Dayton Undisturbed. Dayton the little southern town, situated in a wonderfully beautiful setting in the hills of Tennessee, remains undisturbed. The sun still beats down on Dayton streets just as it did 10 years ago. Daytonians still go about their work as they did before the Scopes trial, and the country folks still raise strawberries for a living.

About the only time the evolution trial is ever mentioned in Dayton is when a visitor, passing through on the train, sticks his head out a window and asks: "Are there any monkeys here?"

"Occasionally one passes through here," usually replies a Daytonian. The principal change in Dayton since 1925 is that Robinson's drugstore no longer stands on Main street near the Aqua Hotel, which means that "main" street has also shifted locations.

The famous place where "it all started" is now located around the corner on Market street, in a brand new bank building.

In one corner of this store stands the little "drugstore" table at which the famous trial was conducted. In the center, and carefully protected by a glass top, is a marker which reads: "At this table the Scopes evolution case was started May 5, 1925."

Want Some Strawberries? Father up the street and nearer the courthouse square, hundreds of farm trucks and wagons are backed up to the curb. Strawberry growers are lounging aimlessly. Walking casually up to one, you ask: "What about the Scopes case?"

"Oh," drawled the farmer, between chews of tobacco, "a fellow said we come from monkeys. We didn't did we? Would you be liking some nice fresh strawberries?"

Cutting The Melon Pays Big Dividend In Appetite Zest

By MARY E. DAGUE NEA Service Staff Writer

For that summer slump in the family appetites, try fruit. Cantaloupe, for instance, either by itself or in fruit cup, watermelon balls, pink and frosty; pineapple, dead-ripe, with lime juice and mint. Peaches and bananas combine well, with a little lemon juice sprinkled over. A melon filled with any kind of berries and chilled is pretty to look at and delicious to eat. Oranges with a little pineapple juice poured over and minced mint make another cool appeal to the palate.

One of our own favorite suppers for a hot July day is watermelon cocktail followed by hot baked bean sandwiches, carrot straws and cucumber sticks with olives and radishes on a relish tray finished off with gingerbread and whipped cream.

Watermelon Cocktail. Prepare balls of chilled watermelon and put in stemmed sherbet glasses. Pour chilled ginger ale over, and serve at once.

Melon Macedoine. Choose small cantaloupe and cut in halves, allowing one-half for each person to be served. Scoop out pulp in small cutters. Combine with watermelon balls and honeydew melon balls. Return to cantaloupe shells and pour over sherry to cover. Serve on a bed of chopped ice. Chill melons thoroughly before cutting. This is suitable to serve at a company dinner.

Watermelon Appetizer. Prepare balls of watermelon and arrange on small glass plates. Garnish with sprigs of mint and put a green maraschino cherry in the center of the melon balls. Pour over some of the juice from the cherries and serve.

Hot Baked Bean Sandwiches. Slice Boston brown bread very thin and spread with creamed butter. Heat baked beans. Put a slice of bread on each plate and cover with a thin layer of tomato catsup or chili sauce. Add a thick layer of baked beans and cover with a slice of buttered bread.

Off to Make North China Safe for Japan

While diplomatic tension between Japan and Russia increased as a result of Soviet complaints about "invasions" of its territory along the Manchukuo border, Nipponese warlords continued to pour troops into the territory along the Great Wall of China. Amid a scene of holiday gaiety, happy Japanese troops are shown leaving Tokyo enroute to North China, from which the Nanking government has been forced to withdraw its army.
