BATTLESHIPS TO COME

After a lapse of 18 years, the United States government is evidently about to start construction of a new battleship.

Under the Washington treaty, battleship construction in this country has been suspended. Now, however, the treaty is about to lapse; and while naval officials do not plan to increase the present number of battleships, they point out that no fewer than seven of our dreadnaughts will be obsolete because of age by the end of 1936—the Arkansas, New York, Texas, Nevada, Pennsylvania, Arizona and Oklahoma.

What Congress may do with any replacement program is hard to foretell. The General Board of the Navy, however, believes that construction of at least one new battleship should start next year, with construction proceeding at the rate of one a year thereafter.

Since our last battleship cost $27,000,000, it is evident that our naval budget will continue to be high for years to come—if, indeed, Congress consents to go ahead with the replacement program.

HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Dark Chiffon For Town Dark chiffons are about the nicest kind of costumes for warm days in town. During the hottest weather you can wear white accessories with your navy, white jacket dresses.

Keeping Bananas White To keep sliced bananas from turning black, pour over them a little orange, lemon or grapefruit juice. This same treatment will keep peeled apples from discoloring.

Onion and Orange Sandwich A hot weather salad that wins favor at supper or lunch time is one of thin slices of Spanish onion and oranges. Put on a bed of crisp escarole and serve with French dressing, made with lemon juice instead of vinegar.

Four in One Shape There's a new party form that makes four little party shapes at once, all different and suitable for filling with caviar, jelly or cheese to serve with cocktails or tea. Each little party is a small mouthful.

To Press Linen Suits When pressing linen suits or coats, flat iron the inner pockets and the heavy seams which take longer to dry. This will avoid creases when the garments are given the finishing touches.

To Crisp Wilting Greens Did you ever try bringing wilting salad greens back to a state of pristine freshness by letting greens stand for a while in a pan of cold water to which a little vinegar had been added? A pinch of salt in the water in which you wash the cabbage will make it crispier for slaw or salad, too.

Sweeping Under Grass Rugs Newspapers placed under summer rugs of grass or loosely woven cotton will save unnecessary cleaning. Sweep the rugs while the paper is under them, roll them up, remove the papers with their layers of dust, then mop.

Rice Keeps Salt Loose Salt shakers will remain unlogged even in the dampest weather if a half teaspoonful of rice is mixed with the salt and left in the shaker.

iced Armenian Soup An Armenian summer soup is made of sour milk, boiled barley and dried mint leaves, served with small chunks of ice so that it is very cold. An Armenian dessert is made of slices of orange, orange marmalade over which orange juice has been poured and then a sprinkling of pine nuts.

"Sea Monster" Is Shark PRINCE RUPERT, E. C. W.P. Prince Rupert's "sea monster" is nothing more than a shark after all. Two fishermen found the "serpent" entangled in their nets. It was a basking shark, 38 feet long and weighing about 10 tons.

FEMININE FANCIES BY KATHLEEN EILAND

An Eastern magazine offered a trip to New York as a prize for the best rural newspaper correspondent. The prize went to Mrs. Mary Mahoney, a white-haired grandmother who has been a newspaper correspondent for 44 years.

One thing I like about the city folks is that they all seem to have come from the country. About the only native New Yorker I have met is Al Smith, and he motored in from 60 miles out in the Long Island hills to see me.

Very probably at least one reason for the big city friendliness to Mrs. Mahoney was her friendliness to it.

Maybe it was significant that it was not the hottest night clubs and the brightest lights that she sought to visit but the cathedral and Sherman's statue, and the water front, and the big ships.

We saw something the other night that we liked very much. A set of small clear water glasses was decorated near the top of each glass with one or two bright red painted cherries. The result was unusual and pleasing.

We believe that home-planning goes in waves. At least we have heard of several young couples recently who were planning or building homes. The fact seems to foretell permanency in marriage.

Wonder if the divorce rate has any connection with the prevalent custom of living in furnished apartments which has been in vogue for the last few years?

Senior League Entertains with "Kid" Party

The young people of the Senior League met at the church Tuesday evening, and then went to Cloverdale for their social meeting.

The girls were dressed in short dresses and wore ribbons in their hair. After playing games, they were served watermelon.

Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kowledge, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Gwyn, Mrs. Euel Feeler, Mrs. Eucs Feeler, Algernon Feeler, Madeline Reising, Estelle Chivers, Cecil Chivers, La Verne McMullan, Anthon Johnson, John Allan Sewell, Lella Mae Miles, Colin Puckett, Thelma Chivers, and Alvon Patterson.

Announcements

Thursday The Evangelical Sunday school class of the Baptist church will meet at Pagoda Pool Thursday morning for a swim at 8:30 o'clock to be followed by picnic lunch at 11:30 o'clock. All new members will be honor guests.

The Anti club will meet with Miss Maedele Roberts, 206 W Ohio, Thursday evening.

Belmont Bible class will meet with Mrs. Brown, 807 S Big Spring, Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The lesson will be taken from Luke 18.

Mr. Maurice Woody Honored at Picnic On His Birthday

Honoring Mr. Maurice Woody on his birthday, Mrs. Bertha Kennedy, Bertie Boone and Leslie Stevens were hostesses at a picnic and watermelon feast at China Grove Monday evening.

A number of the picnic guests returned to the home of Mrs. J. V. Stokes here, where the remainder of the evening was spent in games and dancing.

Sixteen couples were present.

Poverty In Land Of Plenty Causing Search for Remedy

Editor's Note: The following discussion of Social Credit as a proposed remedy for the economic ills besetting so many lands at the present time is contributed by R. W. Castleberry, Midland attorney. The introduction is reprinted from a series of articles written by him and published in the Midland Daily News in January of this year. The body of the discussion has been compiled by him.

The paradox of poverty in a land of plenty is causing many of our former conservatives to cast about for a remedy that will work. For the past five years I have read much on the subject of Economic Reform, but I must confess that for the most part I considered the remedies as bad or worse than the ills themselves. Also, most writers merely point out evils that are only too apparent and conclude with no remedy. What suffering humanity needs today is a real, effective remedy.

What I consider to be an approach in the right direction in the matter of a solution to our present and future economic ills is contained in Major C. H. Douglas's theory known as Social-Credit. Major Douglas is referred to as the English "father" of Social Credit. He has had wide experience as an engineer and inventor. Douglas is a native of Scotland and served the British as an assistant manager during the War of the Royal Aircraft Factory at Farnborough. Study groups have sprung up in every country in Europe, in British South Africa, China, Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania, Canada, and the United States to study and disseminate the social-credit ideas of Major Douglas. His books have been translated into many languages. Japan, the first nation to use his theory of national book-credits is against unused industrial capacity, has thus been able to undersell, with ease, all competitors in the trade war of nations.

The Principles of Social-Credit Social credit is a method for a full distribution of goods in this age of power production and advancing technology. The problem: With a possible production of goods and services greater than ever before in history, both men and machines are forced to stand idle while millions are in need of food, clothing and shelter. The goods could be produced but the public has not the money to buy them.

The Cause: The buying power distributed today through production is always less than the money cost of the goods produced. The total income of the country is thus chronically insufficient to buy its total output. This shortage of buying power is a permanent defect in our present financial system and persists whatever the volume of production. This is true in every industrialized country.

Money is the title to life in modern society. Poverty, depression and business failure are directly linked up with our money system. Ninety per cent of our money consists of bank deposits, created and destroyed in the bookkeeping of private institutions, our banks. A money system should be a system of tokens or tickets, entitling their holders to the goods and services industry produces. This is what trade requires.

These money tickets have no inherent value themselves, but the banks have come to consider money as a commodity. Under the present faulty system it has become the business of banks to create money and deal in it. To the extent that the banking system creates and withdraws commercial loans, its operations control our lives, because the banks regard the money they create and issue as their private property. They issue it only as debts which must be repaid with interest.

The sound and rational basis for a scientific money system in our age of power, technology and physical plenty depends upon the rate at which the nation can supply itself with the goods and services needed and wanted by its citizens. What we require is a supply of credit, free from the condition of debt, from its issue, correlated with the supply of goods and services which the nation can produce.

The Proposals: Social Credit proposes, first, to establish in the United States Treasury a National Credit Account. This account would be credited with the production of wanted goods and services, and debited with their consumption.

As the guardian of the welfare of the people, the Government assumes the duty of assuring that buying power is raised up to the level of production. This would be accomplished by issuing credits, free of debt, against the National Credit Account. (1) through a National Discount payable to sellers at retail, where the total costs of production are collected from the public; and (2) through a National Dividend payable to all citizen consumers, in addition to whatever wages, salaries and dividends they receive from industry.

Effects of the Proposals: These measures will immediately stimulate Business Recovery, yet they avoid the dangerous possibilities of inflation. They would provide a gradually rising standard of living, in accordance with the nation's ability to produce wealth in all directions. They would abolish poverty and guarantee economic security for all. By enabling each country to buy its own total production, Social Credit would also enable it to exchange any surplus beyond its needs for the products of other countries, in this way eliminating the international struggle for export markets which is the chief cause of war.

Social Credit is opposed to dictatorialism and regimentation. It involves no confiscation, no expropriation; does not abolish private property. It does not mean the nationalizing of industry or banking, or the suppression of individual initiative. Neither does it mean what is commonly called "individualism," which in practice is the claim of certain individuals to control the lives of others.

Social Credit is not Socialism, is not Communism, is not Fascism; it is a definite, constructive program to establish Economic Democracy.

profile in the mirror. You hear a lot of exaggeration. One time, a good many years ago, Bob Hill stumped his toe while coming from the feed barn. Before night it was all over town that he lost his leg at a railroad crossing.

"Lap and Tap" Trammell, of former racing fame here, said they waited until he got rid of Nettie Harrison before they started to build the new race track here.

Will Crier, who sold Crier Park yesterday to the city of Midland, was offered a larger price a few minutes later, but being Will Crier he was reminded of the old days when a couple of early settlers of this section did some trading among themselves. One owned two sections of land and the other a bunch of saddle horses. Neither could get any cash for his property, so they traded a half interest in each. Later, the one who owned the horses told a friend how he took advantage of the one who owned the land.

"I gave him a bill of sale to the whole remuda, and he hasn't found it out yet," he laughed.

Soon the one who owned the land was telling what a good joke he pulled.

"I decided him both sections of that land," he said.

One of the major deals reported recently was the sale by Mayor Ulmer of about a hundred acres he formerly used in connection with his peewee golf course.

ONE-RUN MARGIN IN EACH GAME; FIRST GOES TO 8 INNINGS

The Hughes Tool team finally took a seat on top of the league, last night, but it took them 15 innings of hard playing to do so. They took a one-run, eight-inning, 17-16 decision from the Cox Motor team in the first game and won the second by one run also. This was a 5-4 win over the Southern Ice.

The first game was a wild free swinging one that found first one club and then another in the lead until it was finally ended in the eighth inning when Burris managed to hit a home run with none on. They won the second game when six men got consecutive singles in the seventh inning.

The Hughes team started out in the first game as if they would make a runaway of it when they scored eight runs in the first inning. The Coxmen did not give up, however, but landed on Parrott, starting Hughes pitcher, for nine runs in the second inning and blasted him from the box. The two clubs each had one more big inning, the Hughes scoring five in the fifth and the Cox four in the same frame.

The Cox team made three runs in their half of the seventh to tie up the score but were not able to hold it during the eighth and were shut out by Lewellen in their half of the inning.

The second game of the evening was a ding-dong affair that saw the Hughes team take a one-run lead in the second inning on Burris' home run but lose it to the Coxmen in the fourth when Lewellen hit a long home run and blasted one for four bases, scoring two of his mates ahead of him.

The Hughes managed to get another run in the fourth when Lewellen hit a long home run with none on. The Ice got one more in their first half of the seventh to go two up again but they did not hold the lead long.

In the last half of the seventh Miles, first batter, singled and the next five hitters, Hedges, Burris, Estes, Rodgers and Straughan, did the same thing to put across three runs and win the game.

Straughan pitched six-hit ball for the winners and would have had a shut-out had his support been perfect.

Gaiety Runs Riot In Paris Picture

Film audiences will learn the answer to the new Gordon and Revel hit song, "Why Do They Call It Gay Paris?" when they see "Paris in Spring" now showing at the Yucca.

Mary Ellis and Tullio Carminat head the cast of this film in singing and romantic roles. Ida Lupino and James Blakeley play the chief supporting roles.

"Paris in Spring" deals with a merry mix-up of romantic lovers. Carminat loves Miss Ellis, and Ida Lupino loves Blakeley, but Carminat and Miss Lupino are disheartened, ascend the Eiffel Tower with the idea of jumping off and meet each other on top.

Rather than commit suicide, they will see Paris together and make their respective sweethearts jealous.

The picture reaches the comedy climax when Carminat and Miss Lupino flee to the home of her grandmother. Grammy makes the mistake of thinking that the wrong couples married. When morning arrives the true sweethearts are only too happy to be reunited.

"Swell Head" New Picture at the Ritz

(Review)
There is a generous quantity of laughs and chuckles in "Swell Head" the new Columbia picture now at Ritz Theatre. Plenty of hits, a winning amount of runs and no errors at all should be chalked up for this picture.

The antics of Wallace Ford, playing the role of Terry McCall, an egotistic ball player, provide the entertainment of a superior kind. Flanked by Barbara Kent and the lovable Dickie Moore, Ford struts his cocky stuff through some reels of genuinely interesting film.

Terry McCall, home-run king, has a vocabulary limited to "I" and "me." His braggart manner not only puts him in bad with Mary Malone, his girl friend, but it almost ruins his brilliant baseball career. The final reformation and reclamation of the inveterate swell-head is a novel and altogether satisfactory twist in a picture you shouldn't miss. Ben Stoeff directed. William Jacobs did the screen play from a story by Gerald Beaumont.

Visitors Honored at Chicken Barbecue at Cloverdale

Honoring his sisters, Mrs. Roy Martin of Fort Worth, Mrs. C. B. Lane of Abilene, and Mrs. W. R. McCormick of Brownwood, who are visiting here, Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Jones entertained with a chicken barbecue at Cloverdale Monday evening.

Lawn games furnished recreation for the thirty persons attending.

Present, besides the honorees, were: Meses, and Messrs. Kirby Sims, Dudley Hurley, Edie Comey, Eddie Blacher, Freeman, J. A. McClurg, J. J. Russell, Norman Woody, Hugh Hines, W. N. Cole, Miss Norman Stevenson of Breckenridge, Miss Bryant, Jean Hines, and the host and hostess.

New Rustproofing System for Fords

An entirely new method of rustproofing which, for the first time in the history of electro-chemistry, utilizes alternating current in the process, has been perfected by the Ford Motor Company and is now being used on its entire production of head and tail lamps, at the Ford lamp plant at Flat Rock, Michigan—the famous "factory in a meadow."

The new process was adopted because it requires less floor space than other rustproofing methods, provides a surface all ready for painting as the article comes from the rustproofing machine, a 100 withstands at least 300 hours of salt spray test without deterioration. Tests of 1,000 hours under salt spray have shown no rust. Ford chemists say. This is the equivalent of many years of ordinary use.

The process, which was first developed outside the Ford organization, did not work well when Ford made the first commercial installation. The treated articles developed in part an "alligator" surface which was not fit for painting. It was finally decided the trouble arose through the lamp shells being too clean when they went into the zinc phosphate rustproofing bath. So instead of shells going through a washing machine first, they are now made "dirty" by an operator who wipes over with an oily cloth the surface to be painted. The film provides enough protection from the acid rustproofing bath for the deposition of zinc to begin before the acid has etched the steel.

The effect of the alternating current is to permit the articles to take up the zinc without interference from hydrogen bubbles which form on the surface of the article to be rustproofed in the absence of the electricity. The process is not electro-plating, however. In electro-plating, the article to be plated is the cathode of the electrical circuit, whereas in this new process the article is alternately cathode and anode, alternating 60 times a second. The actual deposition of rustproofing agent on the article is entirely by chemical action in this process.

Leaders Not Lacking

It will all take a trying amount of patience and intelligent leadership. But one of the things that I have discovered in this rambling over America is that we have tens of thousands of fine and experienced men and women who are ready and waiting to throw themselves into the mighty task of the rehabilitation of our country. They want only the chance.

TOMORROW: What the South thinks of Huey Long.

When you leave Dyess Colony and drive southward you soon get into the country of old-time plantations, weighed down and handicapped by a vicious system for which the owners are personally no more to blame than the abused share-cropper himself.

Here in this homestead project may be the answer that will not only be fair for all but will help build a new and beautiful southland.
