Emma Jeanne Slaughter Has Very Pretty Birthday Party

Little Miss Emma Jeanne Slaughter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Slaughter, celebrated her fifth birthday with another pretty party this week. Guests began arriving at 4:30.

Emma Jeanne was dressed in pink taffeta and cream lace, with accessories to match.

The little folks met on the pretty back lawn which was shaded and all in readiness for the party, with swings, sand-box and trapeze rings for entertainment. Games and contests were the pastime of the afternoon.

A spider-web game kept the little guests busy. Each child was given a string leading to the spider web with lots of hazards and entanglements to straighten out before reaching the web. On the web was a surprise gift for each child.

Miss Marguerite Wood and Miss Tena Lea Sikes supervised this game, which proved very interesting to the little folks.

Picture taking of the group and of Emma Jeanne standing by a table with her birthday cake placed in the center. The cake was large and pretty, decorated in the party colors of pink and green. The inscription, "Happy Birthday—Emma Jeanne" was on the sides. Five candles were on top.

Refreshments were served from a long table placed across the lawn. The table was covered with a pink and green spread with the cake forming the centerpiece.

The plates, napkins and favors carried out the color scheme of pink and green. Favors were balloon whistles. The birthday cake also contained numerous cake favors which created much merriment when found inside the slices.

Blue-cups-of-pink-and-white-ice-cream were served with the cake.

The little guests assembled in the living room for the opening of the birthday packages. The hostess was seated in a pretty chair covered with pastel organdy ruffles and here unwrapped her gifts. Janice Slaughter and Jane Marie Tingle assisted her.

A short program was rendered just before the opening of the packages. This consisted of an accordion march by Miss Pauline Schubert, songs by Billie Marie Tucker, Jack and Joe Dick Merrick and Jane Marie Tingle, and a little dance by the hostess.

Children present were: Betty Jean Wimberly, W. R. Newson, Jr., Dorothy Marie Wasson, Jess Slaughter, Jr., Janet Robby, Jimmy Harris, Lynn Porter, Jack Merrick, Joe Nell Sikes, Billie Rhea Gilmer, Mayme Jean Meador, Mary Evelyn Johnson, Helen Smith, Ruth Cornelison, Edmund Noteptine, Jr., Rose Nell Parks, Joan Cornelison, Patay Ruth Spencer, Johnny May Gilmer, Billy Crunk, Beverly Anne Stulting, Dorothy Anne Sikes, Jimmy and Paul Johnson, Mary Ellen Tucker, Sara Maud Johnson, Joe Dick Merrick, Billie Jean Younger, Clarice Petty, Mary Joyce Summers, Tommy Reece Gilmer, John Weir Noteptine, Wilma Joe and Mina Mae Taylor, Billie Marie Tucker, Dorothy Anne Meador, Jamie Marie

Gifts were sent by Mrs. Morgan, Stulting, W. A. Gilmer, Mr. and Mrs. Jess Slaughter, Harry Weeg, Jr., Charles Tucker and Ike Robb.

Unique Bloom In Mrs. Ivey's Yard

Talk about waiting for the century plant to bloom! Takes longer than that, waiting for an elephant's ear to put forth a blossom.

Mrs. J. M. Morgan, president of the Garden Club and a flower-lover all her life, said Thursday morning she had never seen an elephant's ear in flower, although she had heard of such a thing, and knew they bloomed.

Mrs. W. R. Ivey, 200 E. 6th street, has a blossom on her elephant's ear. It is the first time that the plant ever bloomed and when she discovered it Wednesday, she could not believe her eyes; she thought it was a faded leaf.

It is a cylindrical yellow flower wrapped as a calla lily forms its petals about its stem. Although the wind has already bruised it, the flower shows a delicate velvety texture of a pale yellow shade.

An elephant ear is so named from the shape of its huge glossy green leaves. It is planted for shrubbery and for its greenness, not for its flowers. This is the first time in the history of Big Spring that such a flower has been recorded.

Mrs. Morgan said that the plant will usually bloom if left undisturbed for years and given good treatment, but that many years are required before they reached the blooming stage.

AGAIN, REGRETS

For the second time the United States government has apologized to Germany for the tearing down of the Nazi flag from the liner Bremen in New York harbor.

First, this government expressed regret that the incident occurred. When two of the visitors were arranged before Magistrate Brodsky in New York, he released them from custody with the remark that the appearance of the Nazi emblem in New York harbor was as provocative as display of the black flag of piracy.

It was, from any standpoint, an uncalculated remark, and coming from such a source it is small wonder the Germans resented it.

So once again the government of the United States through Secretary of State Hull, expressed regrets—this time for the magistrate's diplomatic remarks.

That ought to close the incident. Hereafter let Nazi shipmasters keep crowds off their vessels in harbor—as they were advised to do by the New York police just before the flag was torn from the Bremen.

A NEW PLANE RECORD

The official top speed for land planes is now 324 miles per hour. It was boosted from the former record, 314 miles an hour, last week by young Howard Hughes, millionaire former Texas oil man and aviation enthusiast.

Using his new $120,000 plane, Hughes established the record with contest officials looking on, so it has been given the stamp of genuineness.

The speed is not impressively higher than the automobile record of 301 miles set not long ago by the Englishman Campbell. It is far below the seaplane record held by an Italian army flier, somewhere around 421 miles.

But it is an important contribution to the science of aviation, all the same, and Hughes will give army fliers the benefit of his experience in building and piloting the ship.

FOREIGN CAPITAL RETURNS

One political commentator attributes the current advance in the stock market to the influx of European capital. Money from Europe is coming into the United States, he says, because the European investors believe that war is coming and that the United States will keep out of it.

It will take a long time to alter Uncle Sam's status as banker to the world, a position he has "enjoyed" since the close of the world war.

Foreign capital helped build our railroads, develop our ranches and operate our mines. That it is coming back again is a good sign.

Whirligig
President have denounced "lawyer lobbyists," they can't prevent corporations and cities from engaging men supposed to be influential at Washington. Mr. Mullen is still doing a land-office business and so are many other Democrats.

Mr. Ickes has chipped many thousands of dollars from these bills, which may explain why politicians call him "hard-boiled." But he points out that these fees come out of taxpayers' money and it's up to him to keep them down.

Jobless
An almost unnoticed discovery of FERA investigators casts an ominous light on the problem of permanent unemployment. It disclosed that one out of every five persons on relief, ranging from 18 to 64 years old, is physically disabled. This means that about 2,000,000 reliefers are incapable of returning to work even in boom times.

It is estimated that 2,000,000 more will never again be able to go back to self-sustaining employment because of age, inadaptability or destruction of morale during the depression. Perhaps 2,000,000 additional—and that is a conservative estimate—will be thrown in the scrapheap because of technological improvements in the industrial machine. Then there are from 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 who never worked in the best of times.

Thus the total of unemployed or unemployable in a normal industrial period may go as high as 7,000,000 or more. You don't hear much about it but the economic planners favor a program which will recognize this fact. It looks toward annual relief appropriations, permanent emergency measures, and, of course, much higher taxes. The politicians don't like the idea.

Pledge
You may have noticed that newspaper dispatches from Hyde Park gave special mention to President Roosevelt's approval of a $3,000,000 PWA grant to rebuild a state capitol in Oregon that was destroyed by fire. It was the only project to merit presidential attention during the excitement over the Ickes-Hopkins bloup.

There's an interesting—and comic—story behind the incident. It seems that President Roosevelt gladly agreed to do this favor for GOP Leader McNary in return for the Oregon senator's tolerant attitude towards New Deal legislation. Secretary Ickes promptly okayed the application. But when Harry Hopkins took charge of public spending they forgot to tip him off about these preliminaries and he threw the project out because it did not comply with his specifications.

Mr. McNary telegraphed his office three times in one day to learn what was up. His friends protested to Mr. Ickes, who reminded Mr. Roosevelt of their pledge. Newspaper correspondents covering Mr. Roosevelt knew of the grant—and flashed it to Oregon—before PWA administrators at Washington did. It wouldn't do to let the senator think he had been forgotten.

has Wall Street in something of a dither. Instead of underwriting corporate issues in the usual way—which involves a syndicate of dealers to handle distribution and share the risk if the offering is at all large—this firm has marketed two big issues on a straight commission basis with no other dealers participating. The securities have been sold direct to investing institutions. Swift & Company raised $43,000,000 this way at the incredibly small cost of $172,000—and Socony-Vacuum will only have to pay $200,000 to raise $50,000,000.

The secret of the low cost lies in the fact that the distributing house assumes no responsibility for how much of an issue is sold—and therefore charges no spread to cover dealer risks. The issuing company takes the chance of a poor demand that the underwriter normally covers. But the pioneer experience of Salomon Bros. & Hutzler shows that this risk is slight if the issue is priced right. Investors come a-running without waiting to be solicited. The investor saves money by this method too with the price spread eliminated. A further point worth noting is that market rigging is automatically obviated—since it isn't worth any one's while to doctor prices.

In fact, all hands gain by the innovation except the dealers who would normally cut in on the profits of distribution. They don't like it much. If it became common practice it would turn the investment banking business upside down. But it won't—partly because many corporations will still prefer a guarantee of the amount of money they will get from a bond issue to the cheaper cost—and partly because the investment banking fraternity won't let it. If it threatened to become general they could institute a subtle boycott of such offerings that would be most discouraging to issuers.

Notes
The new Alcohol Control Administrator, Franklin C. Hoyt, has greater powers than were given to his predecessor, Joe Choate. He can fine violators, just like Potato Czar Joe Hutson. A large white-collar force is questioning income-tax-payers on their 1933 returns. Scores of torpedoes and destroyers are laid up on account of old age. Great activity now in all government departments—they've all got new funds.

NEW YORK
By JAMES McMULLIN
Mobilized
Herbert Hoover is becoming a real headache to backstage republican chiefs. The ex-president's attitude has changed subtly in recent weeks. It has been apparent for some time that he feels entitled to another chance—but until lately New York insiders believed he would wait for the nomination to come to him instead of going out after it.

They figured their main problem was to convey the idea that he wasn't wanted as tactfully as possible. They knew they couldn't push him out of the picture entirely—but they hoped he would accept the inevitable gracefully and confine his activities to promoting someone else's candidacy.

Now he has made painfully clear to them that Mr. Hoover has no intention whatever of being shoved into the role of backstage driver. He has made up his mind that watchful waiting is futile. He will declare himself a candidate publicly—for a while at least—but he has privately mobilized the remnants of his political machine to line up delegates for next year's convention.

Network
Mr. Hoover also plans a sustained barrage of verbal assaults on the New Deal instead of the occasional pot shots he has indulged in up to now. Informal sources understand he has appointed himself Mr. Roosevelt's critic-in-chief—and that he takes the appointment seriously.

The prestige of his former office will assure publicity for his utterances that potential rivals cannot command. The object is to impress himself on the public mind as the logical and outstanding leader of the crusade against Rooseveltian herelets.

These developments give GOP string pullers the shivers. They are certain his nomination could lead only to disaster in 1936—yet they dare not fight him too openly and he is impervious to hints. His personal machine is by no means the hopeless wreck you might expect. Party big-timers oppose him almost unanimously—but so they did in '28 and what did it get them? His earlier success was founded largely on a wide network of carefully cultivated contacts with minor political bosses—and it's the network which is being revitalized now.

Roller
The sad part of it is that the best minds behind the republican scenes can't figure out what to do about him. After all, Mr. Hoover is the party's titular chief. He is evidently determined to carry his battle for vindication to the finish. If they repudiate him directly they risk a party split that would ruin all hopes of victory next year. There are cynics who favor letting him run and take his licking in order to get rid of him permanently—but such defeatism is distasteful to the majority of inner counselors.

Expert diplomacy seems to be the only hope of inducing him to step aside. And that brings up the difficult question of finding an emissary to whom he will listen. Few easterners are in his good graces. It's doubtful whether even Ogden Mills—if he could be persuaded to tackle the job—could put it over.

The outlook for a harmonious and unified GOP in '36 begins to look about as hopeful as Uncle Sam's chances of collecting the war debt from France. Some of the boys would give their eye-teeth for an old-fashioned steam roller guaranteed in good working order.

Innovation
The investment house of Salomon Bros. & Hutzler has sprung a new system of floating securities that affectionate friendship" for the president was a blow to promoters of the Jefferson Democrat third party idea. It was true that the Virginian had shown no interest in their attempt to revive the Palmer-Buckner strategy of 1896—but they had still cherished hopes of converting him to the need for defeating Roosevelt. Now he has virtually served notice that he will have none of them—and they fear his prestige with conservatives will induce many other right-wing democrats to follow his implied example of party regularity. New Yorkers observe that FDR certainly owes Glass a vote of thanks.

Dirty
The Stock Exchange forgives A. A. Berle, Jr., his complaint about manipulation of transit stocks since he said that he would not ask a Securities Exchange Commission inquiry and indicated his confidence that the exchange itself can handle the matter satisfactorily. Are 'd And About The Sports Circuit

By Tom Beasley

FIVE OF the Southwest conference teams turn on the heat this week. The conference events will not travel quite as much in 1935 as in 1934, yet the 19 inter-sectional games listed present a schedule only slightly less tough than last season.

AGAIN A complete conference schedule has been arranged, each member school playing all six of the other schools. However, this year this was accomplished only by showing the S. M. U.-A. & M. game up to Dec. 7, whereas it usually comes early in November.

OUTSTANDING INTER-sectional tilts will be: S. M. U. vs. U. C. L. A. in Los Angeles, Nov. 11; Rice vs. George Washington in Washington, D. C., Nov. 2; and T. C. U. vs. Santa Clara in San Francisco Dec. 7. Four Southwest teams will meet Centenary, three will meet Tulsa and three L. S. U. Among the other important non-conference opponents are Temple (A. & M., Oct. 5, Tyler), Duquesne (Rice, Oct. 5, Houston), Washington University (S. M. U., St. Louis, Oct. 12), University of Oklahoma (Texas, Dallas, Oct. 12), and Loyola (T. C. U., New Orleans, Nov. 8).

IT IS interesting to note the record of T. C. U. in the Southwest conference. The Frogs won their first conference football championship in 1929 and repeated in 1932. In 1930 they finished in third place, in 1931 in second place, in 1933 in tie for second, and in 1934 in fourth place. In winning the 1932 championship, the Christians did what no other conference eleven has ever done—defeated every other member of the conference.

AMOS MELTON, Fort Worth sports writer, said in a recent radio speech that after a week of practice the Frogs looked better than they did after three weeks of training last season.

BIG SPRING grid coaches are using the Notre Dame or Rockne style of play, formerly very popular in the mid-west but later having achieved a more general reputation. It is built upon the idea that a shift of backfield and perhaps of line as well places power where it is needed. It is named both for its illustrious founder and for the great school where it was first used.

THE NOTRE Dame plays begin with the quarterback standing behind the center and the other three backs parallel to the line back of him. The linemen may or may not all be on the line of scrimmage. Except on quick opening plays the backs shift into a new formation, generally the box.

THE NOTRE Dame has the advantage of being built to two strong sides of the line rather than one as in the case of other systems, but at the same time calls for a player to learn more different positions. RANGER'S BULLDOGS may teach Harry Taylor and his San Angelo Bobcats some new tricks Friday night. The Bulldog backfield looks as a pretty potent outfit despite the loss of Britt and Anderson.

IN THE Ranger secondary will be Jacoby, a 200-pounder. Jacoby can be remembered as the clowning left end last year who was plenty powerful, especially in the Abilene game. Ruthless by mere display of tonnage, Ranger is said to be the only real contender for the Oil Belt crown.

THE OKLAHOMA Coaches' Association is clamping the lid down on the boys who officiate. The officials must pass an oral and written examination before they are allowed to ply their trade.

IN EIGHT of the last 10 years, Alabama's football captains have been Heimen. Headed by Capt. Jim Walker, end, there are six players, named Jim on the Alabama football squad.

SPECIAL TRAIN TO EL PASO FOR AUSTIN HI GAME

Big Spring grid fans will have the opportunity of riding a "special" to El Paso when the Steers clash with the Austin Hi Panthers in a night game at the Border City Plaza, Sept. 27. George Gentry, high school principal, said today. A $5 round trip rate has been secured from the Texas & Pacific Railway, Gentry said, fans leaving here Friday morning and returning here Sunday.

At least 75 tickets must be sold to obtain the reduced rate. However, school officials are certain of selling at least that many tickets. The special will make the trip as well as about 25 members of the team.

INJURY JINX HITS STEER GRID TEAM

These Eagles Meet Steers Here Saturday Night

ENDS ARE CRIPPLED

Locals May Not Be At Full Strength Against Abilene

For the first time this season, J. Gordon Bristow, head coach of the Big Spring Steers, spoke very pessimistically of his football team Wednesday afternoon as he gloomily watched the boys go through their paces at the Steer corral. "They look lousy," the coach said, as he strode off the field. "Not bad enough to keep them out of the game, Bristow said, but battered up enough to slow them down. Hildreth will probably be relegated to an end position. Wilson, a regular guard, was also skinned up a bit and failed to suit out for a day or so. Henninger, sub back, was not out for practice Wednesday.

None of the injuries, however, are of a very serious nature and Bristow expects his boys to be in top condition within two weeks time, but right now he's worried because he won't be at full strength Saturday night against the Abilene Eagles, a team thought to be much better than reports indicate. "And I do not want to win that game," Obie moaned. As a whole, the team is in a general run-down condition—physically. From early until late the coaches have stressed calisthenics. Gridgers have spent plenty of time running and less on plays. The mentors have kept up the work until dark and then order night instruction.

Four of the Steer wingmen, Jones, Wisenbunt, Woods and Morgan are on the hospital list. Not bad enough to keep them out of the game, Bristow said, but battered up enough to slow them down. Hildreth will probably be relegated to an end position. Wilson, a regular guard, was also skinned up a bit and failed to suit out for a day or so. Henninger, sub back, was not out for practice Wednesday.

Tackles are only in fair shape. Pass work was scheduled for Thursday afternoon with some more conditioning and fine point instruction on the slate for Friday. Coaches recalled that in the opening game last season, three of the five Steer backs were laid away for a few days.

Redbird Manager Sifts Minor League Clubs

By HAL BOYLE ST. LOUIS (AP)—The strongly equipped world champion Cardinals have already started picking new faces for 1936. With the "gas-house" prima donna of the far-flung Cardinal network hot after their second straight National League pennant, Manager Branch Rickey has sifted the Redbirds' minor league clubs and signed up two "naturals."

The latest graduates of the Cardinal "chain" system to be advanced by Vice-president Rickey are Dominic Joseph (Mike) Ryba, 30-year-old "one-man ball club," and Lyle LeRoy (Punch) Judy, youthful base-running sensation of the Western Association.

Ryba, a versatile ex-coal miner, is one of the most remarkable players in baseball. A jack-of-all-trades on the diamond, he pitches, catches or takes a turn in the infield or outfield with equal facility and aplomb. Concentrating on hitting this season, Ryba, now with Columbus, heads the American Association filingers.

Scrimmage Held Twice Daily At Bear Grid Camp

WACO (Sp.)—With only three days of practice before them before their first skirmish of the 1935 season, the Baylor Bears are scrimmaging and drilling twice daily in a desperate attempt to attain perfect physical condition when they meet the Southwestern University Pirates of Georgetown under the floodlights of Carroll field Saturday night, September 21. Slight injuries have kept four of the Bruin candidates out of the regular drills for the past few days, but only one of these injuries is severe. Randall Mate of Lorens, red-skin back of the varsity squad, broke a small bone in his ankle in Monday's practice, while Brazell, who suffered an injured hip last week, is back at his fullback post. Harvey Blue, a promising tackle candidate, is out of active play with a bad knee, and Rudolph Hikel, another tackle prospect, is down on the sidelines with a knocked-down shoulder. The rest of the forty candidates are rid of their sore muscles and are rapidly rounding into tip-top shape.

Teams Swing Into Action

High School Grid Teams Open On A Broad Front This Week (By The Associated Press) Texas schoolboy grid teams open on a broad front this week and the thousands of fans will be given an inkling of the exciting races in prospect for this season. Only four Class A teams and a handful of "B" clubs went into action last week.

Seventy-one teams, of the more than 80 clubs geared for the Class A race, will swing into the stretch. Only one conference game will be played. It is out in District 4, where the race always opens early, and pits Fabens against Austin high of El Paso.

Twenty inter-district melees will provide significant tests. Most important in this area will be the Ranger at San Angelo Friday night squabble and the Abilene-Big Spring tussle also bracketed for Saturday night.

The state champion Amarillo Sandles, will be in Dallas to oppose Woodrow Wilson, usually one of the contenders there. Corpus Christi's state runners-up are to entertain Harlandale of San Antonio. Sherman, in District 6, rated one of the best teams in the state, has an excellent chance to attract more attention by beating Greenville, a standout in the league for several years.

Maverick Team Is Organized

Under the leadership of E. P. Ketter, an independent football team is being formed among local boys. The team will be known as the Big Spring Mavericks. Workouts will be held at night under the area of the Munny Park football diamond. Among those who have joined the Ketter team are Buster Bell, former McMurry star; Elmer Dyer, all-District center in 1931; Buckner Hare, George Chavis and Cecil Reid.

COLORADO TEAM WILL BE HEAVY

MIDLAND (Sp.)—With game time only one day off, Coach Baumgarten is driving the Bulldogs hard for their first game of the season Friday night with the Colorado Wolves. With Adams, giant Bulldog tackle, out with injuries and unable to play in the game it is certain that the Bulldogs will be outweighed when the game starts. The Colorado club will start a team on the field that will average 161 pounds in the line and 162 in the backfield. It is the opinion of those who have seen the Colorado boys in their daily workouts that they have a team that is 100 per cent better than they had last season. The Colorado club beat the Midlanders last season by a 12-0 score and with a team that is admittedly twice as good as they had last season they will undoubtedly enter the game here Friday night at two or three touchdown favorite to win the game. Nine members of the team that played against the Bulldogs last season will again be seen in action in Friday night's game. One other man, Garvey, at tackle, played against Midland in 1934.

Chevrolet Trucks In Thrilling Tests Atop Pikes Peak

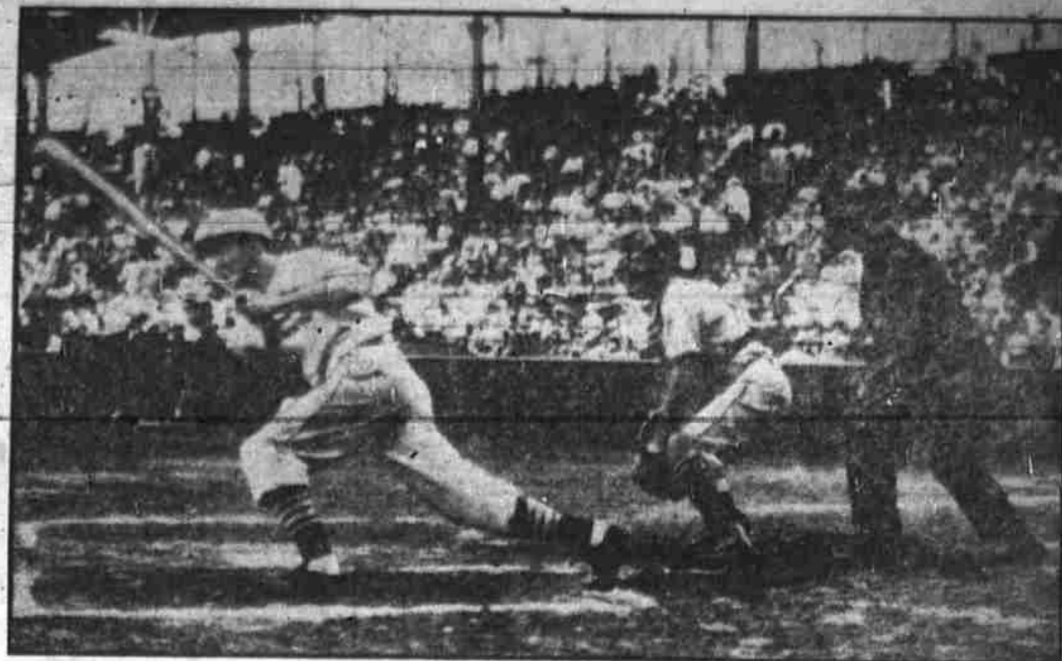

In the first formally observed and timed tests of motor trucks over the perilous hairpin turns and steep switchbacks of the Pikes Peak auto highway, near Colorado Springs, Chevrolet 1 1/2-ton and half-ton trucks demonstrated their power, endurance and efficiency over the course of the annual Labor Day hill climb contest, a distance of 12 miles, 2200 feet, with a rise of 4959 feet from the start to the summit, 14,109 feet above sea level. MORNING STAR

Chapter 14 ABOUT JUDITH

"I'm sorry," Emily said finally, laying a hand on his. "I wish I could say I'd marry you, but I can't. I don't want to marry anyone, yet, and I don't love you that way."

"But you do like me? And there's no one else?"

"No," she said. "There's no one else. Nothing, she thought, but the memory of an ecstasy that was very different from this — an ecstasy that hadn't endured."

"I'm perfectly willing to wait," he said eagerly, as if she hadn't known that. "I've always loved you and I always will, but I don't want to hurry you. I just wanted you to know it, and I hoped that you might love me."

"I'm sorry," she said again. "I wish I could say I did."

"Will you try?" he pleaded.

After all, Edwin would make existence a much simpler thing. Loving Edwin would probably solve all the problems that were tormenting her. If you loved him perhaps you wouldn't notice his little peculiarities, or, noticing them, wouldn't mind.

"Yes," she said at last. "I try. But I'd rather not talk about it any more for a long time. If I ever find that I can care about you, I promise to tell you."

"And you aren't mad with me for telling you? Nothing will be changed?"

"No," she said slowly, "nothing will be changed."

She wondered in sudden despair anything would ever be changed. He got out of the car then, and went with her to the doorway. "It's been wonderful to be with you," he said haltingly. "May I see you tomorrow night?"

Tomorrow and tomorrow. But if you didn't see Edwin, what else was there? "Yes," she said.

He held her hand for several seconds, but to her infinite relief he made no move to take her in his arms. He would keep his word scrupulously, she knew.

Then he went back to his car and drove away.

Her predictions to Jock Cushing were justified. They organized a bridge club of two tables that was to meet once a week for luncheon. It was decided that everyone should put up twenty-five cents a meeting, which was to be given to the winner instead of a prize.

"But for heaven's sake don't say anything about it," Eleanor Mobley had laughed, "or our fond parents would have a stroke. They'd have no objection to our winning a box of powder that didn't match our complexion, or a pair of stockings that didn't fit, but this is gambling!"

Everyone laughed, and no one mentioned it at home.

Even the girl scout troop materialized. Emily, "having nothing else to do," they said, was the ideal person to take charge.

She accepted the charge, and spent hours learning to tie six kinds of knots and to make a fire with no paper and only one match. The girls adored her, and wanted to spend all the time that wasn't taken up with school and scouting at her house, but the tasks filled endless hours that would have dragged, and their devotion was soothing to her pride.

She rebelled at the Woman's Club. They needed "new blood and new enthusiasm," they said, but she decided that there were plenty of years ahead for that.

And so she laughingly rebuffed Frances's attempts to enlist her interest.

"This was to be my year of play, darling! Before long I'll have to go back to Ardmore to get some rest. Give me a year or two of grace and then I'll give up frivolity and turn my attention to civic problems."

And Frances, who had the gift of yielding in relatively unimportant things the better to win in important ones, had dropped the subject.

Occasionally she "helped out" at the Elston Public Library. The library was small and struggling, but she loved the contact with books and with people who came to read them.

A mutual love of books was as strong a tie as children or golf, and she managed, very tactfully, to introduce a few discriminating readers to her own favorite authors, thereby earning their lasting gratitude. If boredom ever overwhelmed her she had decided that the library might be the best escape that Elston had to offer.

She had given up for the present the idea of leaving home, not because of Frances's arguments, but because of Jeffrey's obvious delight at having her there.

They had always loved each other deeply and almost wordlessly, but now they had discovered companionship, and Jeffrey's pleasure in accomplishing what Frances's insistence might never have achieved alone.

The two of them took long walks, talking eagerly of the things that she was discovering and that Jeffrey had known for a long time, and it seemed to him that he was happier than he had ever been before.

And because there were no crises to divide the time into periods, days slipped evenly and swiftly past, and the year of play was half over before she realized that it had begun.

Early in March Judith wrote one of her characteristic scrawls. Judith's letters arrived about once a year, a really remarkable record, she herself admitted.

There had been the letter acknowledging Emily's wedding present, and containing a vivid and telegraphic description of her home and her husband. Aubrey was a lamb, and probably the only person alive who would put up with a crazy Carroll.

The place was heavenly, and much more scientifically run than Carrollton. Aubrey even managed, with farm prices what they were to make the place pay.

"You'd like him," Judith added carelessly. "He reads things: can you imagine it? Not just market reports, but books by people I've ed upon her presence; invariably she took issue with them and invariably they voted her down. Perhaps they insisted merely for the sadistic pleasure of voting her down.

The chairman was deploring the fact that the library's circulation had decreased. He was, to be quite frank, at a loss to explain it.

"It seems quite obvious to me," Emily had to speak, in spite of the heat. She had restrained herself on this point for months. "As long as you regulate the entire fiction list on the basis of whether a book is proper reading for a child of fifteen, you can't expect anybody over fifteen to read it."

The Board looked pained. They had settled this question of Immortal Books for good, and Emily was bringing it up again.

"That isn't altogether the measure of our fiction," the chairman said coldly. "It's rather the moral tone of the books that we consider."

"But so many of the most powerful novels, new as well as old," Emily said, "have a doubtful moral tone. After all, grown people should be allowed to choose their own reading."

Tomorrow, Emily makes one more attempt to break the charmed circle.

she accompanied him from a sense of duty.

She enjoyed the trip, even while she thought regretfully of the pleasure of seeing Judith again. But before too long, she hoped, she might escape from Elston, and while she stayed she wanted to do everything in her power to please Frances and Jeffrey.

It was Friday afternoon in early September, and the Board of Control of the Elston Public Library was holding its monthly meeting. Emily looked absently out the window. It was bad enough to be a librarian on a breathlessly hot day like this, without having to attend Board meetings. She wondered for the twentieth time why they insist-

Charming Claudette Cuts Capers

Claudette Colbert Is Presented For Second Time By Columbia

Everyone has been waiting to see of affairs. A neurotic elter and a spoiled, precocious brat aged nine another picture of the "vamp" type as "It Happened One Night," which not only won her the Academy Award for 1934 but also heaped honors on director, producer, scenarist, and her co-star. But they need wait no longer. "She Married Her Boss" is here. Since making that immortal film, Miss Colbert has appeared in dramatic successes such as "Imitation of Life" and "Private Worlds." But she is at heart a comedienne, and enjoys making pictures that enable her audiences to laugh with her. Which is why she again went to Columbia to make "She Married Her Boss," a film directed by Gregory LaCava—who worked with her in "Private Worlds." The theme of her new picture lends itself to buoyancy and charm. Miss Colbert is seen as a superbly efficient secretary to the young head of a large metropolitan department store, a young man with a bad digestion and a memory of a marital experience that turned sour. Melynn Douglas, Broadway star, plays this role. But while Claudette sympathizes with his dyspepsia, she is impatient with his views on marriage as she is much in love with him. Douglas' home is in a sad state

Pep-Squad Girls Practice Daily To Present New Drill Formations Benefit Of Steer Football Fans

There may be unsung heroes in football, but football doesn't go un-sung. To the pep squad, goes this unfortunate distinction. Fifty girls, chosen for the group, work 45 minutes daily after school on new drills, new formation to add color to the football show.

Unlike their brother students, they do not get a period off just because they happen to belong to the pep squad. It's 45 minutes in the afternoons and 45 minutes early in the mornings, all just to present a different stunt.

This week, under the direction of Miss Lillian Shick, 50 girls are practicing a new exhibition for Saturday night. Monday they will junk the drill and learn an entirely new stunt for the next game.

Recently Miss Dorothy Jordan resigned her post as co-sponsor of the organization, leaving Miss Shick in charge.

Last year the pep squad accompanied the team to El Paso, San Angelo and Lubbock for the Amarillo game and, together with the band, presented clever drills.

R&R Road Show Friday And Saturday At The Lyric To Feature "The Lives Of A Bengal Lancer," With Gary Cooper

A new sort of British soldier in India has found a new Kipling to glorify his achievements.

He is the Bengal Lancer, glorified in the best-seller by Francis Years-Brown, "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer." The screen story based on the book comes Friday and Saturday to the Lyric, an R&R Road Show, with Gary Cooper, Franchot Tone, Richard Cromwell and Sir Guy Standing heading the cast.

Sir Guy Standing, former commander in the British Navy, is authority for the statement that the British soldier in India is no longer the man celebrated in Kipling's songs and stories.

"The soldier of the King" drinks far less than he used to," avers Standing. "Today, he pines a Hindu grammar, kodaks the Taj Mahal, travels days to see a famed temple, behaves in an orderly manner, and acts like a tourist who's come for a long stay and is determined to make the most of it.

"Don't think for the moment, however, that they are softer or less willing to fight than their rough-hewn predecessors. The Bengal Lancers, for instance, have a man-size job and do it well.

"Their business is policing a huge rough area, full of canyons, peaks, boulders and secret passes, and fighting the sly Afriid tribesmen, who are dead-shots and faster on the move than lizards.

"Though they have a long and honorable history, the Lancers lack a Kipling and would have remained in obscurity if Years-Brown had not written his remarkable book about adventure in their ranks."

The motion picture, "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer," was begun over four years ago, and more than four thousand actors, six separate locations and several hundred thousand feet of film were employed before it reached its final form. It is a story of brave and courageous fighting men who place duty above love and death.
