CONTEMPT TRIAL OF SIX NEWSMEN

ANGLETON, Aug. 2. (P).—Six Houston newspapermen Thursday interposed a plea of legal privilege to publish a fair and impartial ac-count of a public trial, as a de-fense against contempt of court charges.

The six were cited for violation of an order by Judge M. S. Munson against publication of testimony in the murder trial of Clyde Thompson, Retrieve prison farm convict. Thompson was convicted and given a life sentence last week.

The greater part of the day was taken up by testimony of District Attorney Robert Bassett, first witless for the state in the contempt nearing.
The newspapermen charged were

The newspapermen charged were George Cottingham, managing editor, and Ed Rider, correspondent, of the Houston Chronicle; Max Jacobs, managing editor, and Frank White, correspondent, of the Houston Post, and E. M. Pooley, managing editor, and Harry McCormick, correspondent, of the Houston Press.

District Attorney Bassett testified that Judge Munson had told the correspondents that they were welcome to sit in the court but that they must not print the testimony. Bassett said the judge had referred to an article in the Chronicle on July 18 which said there were rumors that friends of Thompson planned a prison break to rescue him when he went to trial.

Eassett testified that the judge declared he had been informed that Thompson's attorneys planned to use the article as a basis for a plea for a change of venue, and that the state would be put at great cost by a change of venue.

If Baby Breaks Out With Prickly Heat, Powder Not Enough

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
When a baby has prickly heat, his mother may think that a good dusting of powder, or cornstarch, dusting is soothing, especially in the creases, other means must be resorted to to prevent the maddening itch and cure it, once started.

Our good old friend, boric acid, comes to the rescue again. And just good old common baking soda. It is a nexcellent idea to have these two solutions already mixed where the hand can reach them with ease.

Boric acid powder must be dissolved in boiling water and cooled, Boil the water and while still very hot put in two teaspoons of the powder to the pint. For use on the skin this is not too strong.

Can Stand Frequent Dips

Baking soda solution is two tablespoons to the gallon. Use cold water or warm, it doesn't matter. Best to keep a jug of it near the bathroom, enough to last a couple of days. Baby can either be sponged with it every little while (if his rash is bad) or the soda can be put right in his bath water, tepid water; it won't hurt him to have three or four quick dips a day in hot weather if he is a normally strong child.

The boric acid is used more as an application than a bath because of the difficulty of dissolving it in

However, all the baths and appli-cations in the world won't keep the rash from forming anew with every sun-up unless baby is other-wise cared for. His bed that looks so soft and cuddly may be too much padded and too hot. His mat-tress should be flat and firm and his sheets pulled smooth and tight should be tied at the corners of the bed. It should be washed and sunned every day and the sfeets kept fresh. To lay him out on the floor (if he is not too new) with a thin comfort under him, will let him roll and get the air on his body. This can be repeated several times a day. But watch weather and sudden changes.

Diapers, when wet, should be changed at once. If baby has a tendency to chafe under them, the daily boking and rinsing (thoroughly, by the way) may be followed by another dipping in mild boric solution, then they may be dried with the healing mixture left in.

When the thermometer is up to ninety, he doesn't need any clothes but the trousers. It all depends on where you live and how old he is and how well he is.

Call Doctor for Sores

If prickly heat gets too bad, leaves open sores and won't heat with ordinary treatment, the professional eye should have a look, Open sores, like wounds, need something more special.

Keep him in the shade. Give him his sun baths early in the morning or late afternoon. And make them brief or not at all, unless under other orders. Use tepid, not hot; water for his baths, Rinss him in a bit colder water to harden the ekin. After nine months of age he can stand the

Dutch Schultz Freed | "Hell's Angels" in In Income Tax Trial

WASHINGTON, August 2. (P)—
Attorney General Cummings today described the acquittal of Arthur (Dutch Schultz) Flegenheimer on charges of income tax evasion as a "terrible miscarriage of justice."

MALONE, N. Y., August 2. (P)—Arthur (Dutch Schultz) Flegenheimer was acquitted Thursday night on a charge of violating the federal income tax laws.

A jury of farmers and tradesmendrawn from the Adirondack foothills returned its verdict more than 28 hours after receiving the case. Schultz, former Bronx beer dealer, who was known for a time as New York City's "public enemy No. 1," was accused of withholding $92,000 in taxes on his profits during 1929, 1930 and 1931.

It was his second trial, the first having ended in a jury disagreement.

This spectacular film drama was produced at a cost of approximately $4,000,000, and was three years in the making. This is the most time and money ever expended on a celluloid production.

Howard Hughes, 25-year-old president of the Caddo company, produced and personally directed the amazing dramatization of the world war in the air.

More than 137 pilots, planes and mechanics were used in filming the air sequences of "Hell's Angels," and in, one scene alone 50 planes are shown in free-for-all combat in what is admittedly one of the greatest achievements in the history of film-making.

Two years were devoted to the Claudette Colbert, who recently won the Motion Picture Academy Award for 1934 with a comedy portrayal, and whose roles in the past have ranged from an Egyptian sorceress to a modern devoted mother, essays a totany new type of characterization in her new starring Paramount picture, "Private Worlds," which is now at the Yucca Theatte.

A story laid against the background of a hospital for the insane, "Private Worlds" presents Miss Colbert as a trim, efficient and Miss Colbert as a trim, efficient and beautiful doctor who heals the mental illnesses of others although she cannot conquer the fear of the mental illnesses of others although she her own heart.

Phyllis Bottome's best-selling novel of the same name furnished the original from which "Private Worlds" was adopted. Gregory La Cava directed the picture which features Joel McCrea, Joan Bennett and Charles Boyer.

TO MISSOURI

Mrs. Terry Elkin and son have gone to Missouri for a visit. Mrs. Elkin came from Hannibal, Mo., of Mark Twain fame.

WHEN MOVIES COST A NICKEL?

PERHAPS you remember the flickering two-reelers that thrilled Midland people in the early days of motion pictures. It was about the same time—29 years ago—that another new thrill came to town. Kellogg's Corn Flakes! A crisp, delicious cereal that didn't have to be cooked!

Like the first movies, Kellogg's have come a long way since then. Constantly improved and perfected, Kellogg's Corn Flakes have grown to be the largest-selling ready-to-eat cereal in the world.

Give your family a treat tomorrow morning. Serve Kellogg's—crunchy—golden-brown. Compare their flavor with any other cereal you've ever eaten!

You'll be amazed at the big value in a package of Kellogg's. No bother to prepare. And above all, you get appetizing quality that never varies. Kept oven-fresh and flavor-perfect by a patented heat-sealed waxrite inner wrapper. Ask your grocer for Kellogg's—the original Corn Flakes—and don's be satisfied with any substitute.

Dr. Leroy T. Patton of the college department of geology and geological engineering and 12 students returned recently from a ninth annual field course in the Las Vegas range of the Sangre de Christo mountains of New Mexico. The course offered instructions in field methods and in mounting of geomethods and in mounting of geo-logical formations.

PLAN RELIC DISPLAY

DALHART. (A).—Several Dalhartans are making plans for a display of arrowheads, spearheads and other Indian relics here soon. Porter Montgomery, Dalhart youth, July 4 won first place in a similar display at Elkhart, Kans. Bill Baker of Boise City, Okla., recognized authority on arrowheads, said Montgomery had one of the best displays of "Folsom points" he had seen. These are supposed to be from 15,000 to 20,000 years old and received their name because the first ones definitely identified were found near Folsom, N. M.

Edward Roder of Perico, 25 miles northwest of here, has more than 300 perfect arrowheads. Many others in this area have valuable collections.
