NEUTRALITY LAW HELPS, BUT HARDLY ENOUGH

The neutrality bill passed by Congress is a step in the right direction—but only a step. If we expect too much of it, we lay ourselves open for an unpleasant surprise some day. Probably the best way to see how it would work in actual practice is to go back 20 years and imagine what would have happened if it had been passed in 1915. Its chief provision is a ban on the shipment of munitions to warring countries. This would have had a very direct and marked effect in 1915 and 1916. Millions of the shells which burst along the German lines between Switzerland and the North Sea were made in America; their use had much to do with arousing German resentment to the point where unrestricted submarine warfare was declared. So if we had had this law in 1915, our chances of getting embroiled would have been substantially lessened. It must be remembered, also, that some of our great industrial concerns which found so many dividends and jobs in the munitions trade would have gone idle.

Next, the bill prevents American ships from carrying embargoed articles to the ports of warring nations, and forbids Americans to travel on the ships of belligerents except at their own risk. This would have saved us at least a little of the submarine warfare trouble; it might also have pulled a few of the teeth of the Lusitania tragedy, although the emotional shock of that affair would still have been great.

The other provisions—barring the use of American ports to the submarines of belligerents which made illegal use of the American flag—would have been of minor consequence.

So much for what the law would have done for us in the World War. Now for what it would not have done.

It would not have kept us from selling millions upon millions of dollars worth of wheat, oil, autos, beef, copper, cotton, steel and similar commodities to the allies, nor would it have kept American ships carrying such commodities from passing through the war zone. It would not have kept our bankers from floating billions in loans to finance those purchases.

And it was that trade, far more than the trade in munitions, which made us in effect the silent partner of the allies, and persuaded Germany that the chance of victory by submarine warfare was worth the risk of bringing us in as an avowed combatant.

The law would have helped, undeniably. It is doubtful, however, if it would have helped quite enough. When Congress reconvenes this winter it should give earnest thought to a possible broadening of the law, if it hopes to guarantee American neutrality.

GENEROUS PEACE PROPOSALS

You may have noticed a rather peculiar thing about the effort which France and England are making to induce Italy not to go to war with Ethiopia.

They are offering Italy concessions in Africa to make war unnecessary. One proposal is for Italy to accept a protectorate, or a League of Nations mandate, over the African kingdom. Another is for Italy to accept a good-sized slice of land in Ethiopia. Another is for certain sections of Ethiopia to be set aside for economic exploitation on Italy's own terms.

Now the peculiar thing about these plans is that in all of them England and France have been offering things which they do not possess. They have been offering to give Ethiopia from war, in other words, by taking from Ethiopia the very things that Ethiopia is preparing to fight to keep.

This is the kind of "peace" that Europe sees as its only alternative to war. The Ethiopians can hardly be blamed if they look on such peace moves with something less than whole-hearted approval.

Simple Desserts Are Triumph for Clever Hostess

By MARY E. DAGUE, NEA Service Staff Writer. The day Dolly Madison invented ice cream (just imagine what a dull world it would have been if she hadn't) she worked about twelve hours concocting complicated mixtures with her own hands, letting them stand and then adding them to other mixtures. Difficult, time-taking formulas for desserts were the fashion then. Anything that took less than six hours to fix wouldn't have been considered fit to serve guests.

Today, it's just the other way around. The simpler the dessert is, and the less time it takes to make, the more beloved it is of a hostess who has friends waiting for guests. We still want to make the most of the fresh fruits in market but the evenings are growing cold enough to make cake acceptable with the fruit. If you buy plain cup cakes, or if you make them yourself, an attractive way to give them is to spread the top and sides with jelly. Sprinkle with shredded coconut and top with whipped cream. Arrange a circle of slices of peaches or other fruit around the base of the cake.

Or the same idea can be carried out with a sponge cake or angel food. Cover top and sides of cake with jelly, sprinkle with shredded coconut and top with whipped cream. Arrange a circle of fruit around base of cake. This makes a handsome dessert.

Or try this: Moisten a square of sponge cake or other plain cake with fruit juice and put a thick slice or half of a fruit on top of the cake. Garnish with whipped cream and a contrasting fruit. Or use whipped cream or sherbet instead of fruit. If you use whipped cream, fill the cavity of each peach with raspberry sherbet. Or try pistachio ice cream with a slice of fresh pineapple.

Berry tarts are another easy-to-make dessert. The trick of making the shells is baking the crust on the OUTSIDE of the patty pans rather than the inside. If you want to glaze the fruit to give it that professional French pastry look, melt a clear apricot currant jelly enough to spread easily and cover berries after they are placed in the tart shells. A rosette of whipped cream may top each tart but don't make the mistake of completely masking the fruit with cream because you will spoil your lovely color effect if you do.

Fresh fruit served in sherbet glasses topped with a sprinkling of fresh grated coconut or whipped cream mixed with coconut makes a delicious dessert. This is a good way to use up odds and ends of fruit.

According to Professor Brigham, psychologist, the 15 most frequently used words in the English language are: in, and, a, that, to, with, be, of, as, all, at, not, to, and on. These words are said to comprise 25 per cent of all the words used in the average modern book.

Our Modern Homes

There are still people who can imagine that they had rather live back in the olden days than to live at the present day.

We do not believe that when these people tell us this that they are as sincere as they think, for who of us would give up our automobile for the horse and buggy, and who of us would give our beautiful bath room to be replaced with a tin tub? This would be asking too much, wouldn't it? Well, did you know that there is as much difference in the style and pattern of Plumbing Fixtures of today as there is in the horse and buggy and the automobile of today? Don't let your plumbing get out of date. We make liberal allowances on all old fixtures for new ones.

There are but a few more weeks left to put your heating plants in shape for the winter months and to fix your water cutoff so it is in working shape. Keeping Boys Out Of Bad Company Is Worth a Sacrifice

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

What could she do? Mrs. Brown sat in despair.

That day Bobby, ten years old, had taken change from the meat money and bought cigars. And Dave the older boy was down at the lumber yard with the usual crowd of loafers.

She couldn't complain to Will. Not too much anyway. The man had enough troubles of his own. He came home at night too hot and tired to notice that his sons, such nice honorable boys four months ago, were turning into rowdies and worse.

The day they had gone house-hunting, last April when it became apparent that they must move from the quiet little street and take a house for half the rent, this neighborhood looked all right. How were they to know that the new street housed two of the toughest gangs of youngsters in the city?

How soon she had found out! One week, two weeks then a month had changed the children completely. How they couldn't believe it true. But school had prevented the worst. Now vacation had accelerated the descent of the boys. Dave and Bobby were as bad as the rest.

Oh, why hadn't she seen eye to eye with Will last spring when he suggested living out in Aunt Sophie's old cabin, a mile beyond Deerkill Station? She had thought of the long walks to the country school and the still longer walks for Will morning and evening to the train. Winter, mud, loneliness for her, inconvenience and struggle. No movies, no excitement or company, just amputees and trees and perhaps a patch of garden.

This was another reason she could say so little to him now. But something would have to be done. Yet again she faced a still higher wall. They had a six-month lease on this house that would hold until November. Even though she could endure two more months of this place, that would bring them up to the cold weather and snow. She was desperate enough to face it now herself, but Will was not hardy and on top of everything else he was bound to break under exposure and bad weather.

The Crisis Comes There was nothing to do but wait. Perhaps God would send an answer. Her decision was to keep this last affair from him, too. And then that evening Dave swore a fearful oath at the cat. And Bob, when his father told him to do something said, "And who are you?" Or something like it.

"I'll just tell you both who I am," said their father. "I'm the man who is going to take this family out to the sticks this fall to live. I'm the man who is going to get you two young rascals out of this and make men out of you. Another year of bad company and neither of you will be worth the string to tie you."

And so they are going. The mother told me so with hopeful happy eyes. "We have decided that fighting the elements and the ground is the following statement: "The run northward over the measured mile was made in 11.83 seconds, or at a rate of 304.931 miles per hour..."

On his first streak over the 13-mile straightaway Sir Malcolm attained the amazing speed of 304.311 miles an hour, which nearly equaled the United States airplane record of 304.98 but was well under the world plane speed mark of 423.822."

Just as the morning sun mounted the heavens, Sir Malcolm rode his six-ton mechanical monster down the 200-foot wide stretch, centered by its black line oiled into the surface.

Like a black ball it appeared on the western horizon, then flashed over the measured mile.

More than a thousand spectators thrilled to the fastest speed the world has ever known on the ground.

Just as he hurled past the last measured mile flag, death stared him in the face. The left front tire on his tin-tailed Bluebird blew out with a noise like a rifle crack.

Sir Malcolm was going at a 300 mile an hour clip. The big machine swerved slightly off the guide line.

A quick twist of the wheel and Bluebird's speedster control, again traveling true on the course.

The little man with the boundless courage rode his bumping mount down to a halt.

Panhandle Shows Great Interest In Races Here

Intense interest in the race meet to be conducted during the Midland Fair, October 19-23, was found among horse owners and race fans at the Panhandle meet which opened Monday, according to Tom Nance and A. C. Francis who returned from there last night.

Nance, chairman of the racing committee, and Francis, vice president of the Fair, made the trip to exploit the Midland event, taking with them a number of posters which were nailed at conspicuous places at Panhandle and Amarillo grounds.

They also took a large number of race programs which were "taken away" from them by the eager horsemen who had been hearing of the good purses and new track here.

They predicted that many residents of the Panhandle will be among the spectators for the meet here.

Tri-State Fair To Be Complete From Opening To Closing

Amarillo, Sept. 4.--When the Tri-State Fair opens here, Saturday, Sept. 14, it will be complete as on the closing day, Saturday, September 21.

Everything, with the possible exception of a few livestock herds, will be in place and ready when the 1935 exposition, the largest this year in the state of Texas, opens," declared Wilbur C. Hawk, president of the fair association, which now is in its thirteenth consecutive year.

Commercial displays are being arranged this week in the Merchants Building, which has been open day and night since Monday.

O. L. "Ted" Taylor, secretary-manager, is urging all exhibitors to have their displays in place early.

Many exhibitors from distant states this year are being attracted to the Tri-State Fair. This is especially true of livestock exhibitors.

Noted herds of the foremost breeders in America will be on exhibit. Approximately $20,000 in cash premiums and prizes, including money awards for the largest visiting delegations, is guaranteed for full payment.

While the fair does not open until Saturday, Sept. 14, the Tri-State Fair's race meet, in which entries from the major circuits will be seen, begins Friday, September 13. There will be seven or more races daily throughout the exposition.

Besides the races there will be a three-ring circus featuring Jack Hoxie, movie star, in daily appearances, Beckmann and Gerety, the largest midway attraction in the United States, and other amusements.

First of the scores of bands expected at the exposition will arrive Monday, September 16. Shamrock will head this vanguard.

Two special days already have been designated. Monday will be Shamrock Day and Press Day. Wednesday will be dedicated to the Old-Timers and other visitors.

Hepburn Film, 'Alice Adams,' at the Yucca

Striking characterizations highlight "Alice Adams," the Booth Tarkington story that won the Pulitzer Prize in 1922, now brought to the screen by RKO Radio at the Yucca today and tomorrow.

The drama concerns a girl's gallant struggle to rise from the mire of poverty and social oblivion in a small western town, where wealth is the yardstick of success.

The heroine of the story is an appealing combination of fineness, wit, romance and courage. Katharine Hepburn is starred in this brilliant role, which parallels the appeal of her characterization in "Morning Glory."

Contrasting pictures of the homes of the wealthy and the "middle class," which flourish side by side in Alice Adams' home town, are vividly drawn in the film. Fred Stone, noted stage star, plays the plodding, unambitious father. A nagging, disillusioned, but still amiable mother is portrayed by Ann Shoemaker. The shifthead, cynical young brother is capably handled by Frank Albertson. The handsome lover, who is the epitome of all Alice's dreams of an ideal man, is played by Fred MacMurray. Evelyn Venable plays Miss Hepburn's society girl rival.

Little Snow Predicted HAZLETON, Pa., (U.P.)--There will be little or no snow this winter, according to many of the farmers in this vicinity. They cite the fact that very little snow falls in seasons that have been preceded by abundant rainfall, according to the law of averages.

SPRINGVILLE, N. Y. -- The Old Man is resting at his country home here in preparation for his 41st season of coaching.

Springville doesn't appear on any football schedule, but most of the game's new formations were conceived in this pleasant little village situated 3 miles from Buffalo, in the northwestern part of New York state.

Springville is the home of Glenn Scooby Warner, greatest playmaker in the history of the greatest of collegiate sports.

"I have had the pleasure of coaching three of the finest players of all time," said Pop Warner, as we chatted in the dry goods store. They were Ernie Newton, of Stanford; Jim Thorpe, of Carlisle; and now Dave Smukler, of Temple.

"Thorpe was the most versatile. Never the most dependable and consistent, but I really believe that Smukler will prove to be the greatest player that I have ever coached. Dave weighs 220 pounds and does not have a weakness. He can hit the line, run the end punt and pass, and is the best man I have ever seen backing up the line on defense. He loves the game, is reliable and consistent, and seldom gets hurt. He has two more years to play.

"I believe that Bob Peck, center of my famous Pittsburgh Club of 1916, was the most formidable line-man I ever coached. Peck was not only a splendid player, but was one of the finest inspirational leaders I ever have seen. Bob, as you probably know, died suddenly on the golf course of Culver Military Academy two or three years ago. He was director of athletics at Culver for many years.

"Pittsburgh again should have the strongest squad in the east this year, and Colgate, despite the loss of Marty McDonough, a remarkable back who has just suffered a broken leg in a baseball game, should be represented by a strong outfit. Columbia, Princeton, and Pennsylvania will be powerful. I look for improvement at Harvard, Dartmouth, and Holy Cross.

"Ohio State is likely to be in the class of the Big Ten. Alabama and Louisiana State should be the leading teams of the south.

"Stanford's veteran aggregation once more should be tops on the Pacific coast unless the players suffer from senior superiority complex.

ADD MICHIGAN STATE AND VANDERBILT "This will be my third season at Temple. The prospects look to be at least as good as last season when we went through our regular season undefeated.

"We tempt loses only four regulars, and our reserve material is sufficient to replace them without weakening the team any more than we made up by the increased ability of those players who are left.

"It will be difficult for Temple to make as good a record as in 1934, even though the team may be as good or even a little better because, as you know, even an outstanding team has to be pretty fortunate to go through a stiff schedule without having one of its day once in a while, or meeting with a reverse through unfortunate breaks.

"Newcomers on the Temple schedule include Michigan State and Vanderbilt, two pretty good teams. Practically all the teams that we are tackling again are tough. In addition to Michigan State and Vanderbilt we expect stiffer competition from Marquette's Buckner, West Virginia, Carnegie Tech, and Villanova. We also have appointments with Texas A. & M., Centre College, and St. Joseph's College, of Philadelphia.

LATERAL TO BE FURTHER DEVELOPED "I expect to see many teams further develop the impromptu lateral pass, which Colgate did so well with last season. It will be interesting that Minnesota scored its winning touchdown against Pittsburgh last year with a lateral, and that the Panthers scored and made a long run against the Gophers on such plays.

"My biggest moment in football was experienced in Stanford's final Big Game with California in 1924. Apparently hopelessly repulsed 20 to 6, and with only ten minutes left, Stanford scored two touchdowns and converted to obtain a tie. It was the most thrilling gridiron battle I have ever seen.

"I got my next biggest bang in 1913, when Dartmouth, unbeaten at the time and leading my Carlisle team, 10 to 7, at the conclusion of the half, was swept off her feet by the Indians in the second half, Carlisle leading, 35 to 10.

"Football has undergone many changes since I was a player in the early 90's. It is vastly more interesting for spectators, players, and coaches than it was in the old days."
