MUSSOLINI AND GRAND COUNCIL CONFERENCE IN ROME

Next War Move Is To Be Decided Upon

FEAR SANCTIONS

More Embargoes Are Expected By Italy

By Associated Press
Confronted with the fear of further sanctions, Mussolini today conferred with the supreme defense commission and the fascist grand council. They are to help him decide the next war move and a manner for fortifying the populace at home against privations due to sanctions.

War plans showing that the 1-000,000-man military machine could do to protect Italy's 44,000,000 population if league of nations sanctions result in war will be gone over in Paris. It was reported that France and Great Britain want the league to authorize "preventable mobilization" and to define the aggressor as two additional means of preventing war, while in London, Prime Minister Baldwin told the house of commons that the nation would be given details of the British re-armament plan at an early date.

Midland Rodeo Is Cited in Pamphlet

Lauding Centennial

Copies of the "Centennial Year Calendar of Texas Centennial Celebrations" have been received at Midland, being in pamphlet form and setting forth attractively the list of "fiestas, pageants and expositions" throughout the state from June 26-28, Midland's Western rodeo. (One of the nation's most authentic round-ups of picturesque characters of the Old West), a paragraph in the pamphlet states: "This piece of advertising is being sent all over the North American continent in response to our national advertising campaign," a letter from Ayres Compton of the publicity department, press division, wrote to The Reporter-Telegram.

INTEREST HIGH IN GLASSCOCK TEST

Moore et al No. 1 McDowell Drilling Area At 10,465

By FRANK GARDNER
John I. Moore et al No. 1 McDowell, deep test, being drilled in Glasscock county, has shown the most interest and is now probably the most closely watched of all the Permian Basin explorations. The consensus of opinion of the geologists is that the well is now definitely in Ellenberger limestone, lower Ordovician formation. The top of the Ellenberger has been picked at around 10,365 feet.

This morning the test had progressed to 10,465 feet, and had reported no more oil shows since the stained samples recovered at 10,440 feet.

The No. 1 McDowell is located in the northeast quarter of section 22, block 34, township 2 south, T. & P. survey.

Weather conditions yesterday prevented completion of installation of pumping equipment in the Gulf No. 1, Waddell, recent Ordovician pool, in the Tubb area of Crane county, but the well will probably be put on beam today. It has been cleaned out to 6127 feet, far enough below the chief source of the oil to insure creditable performance. After the upper section of Simpson was shot two weeks ago oil production was increased so that the rate of about 3750 feet in 20 hours.

The No. 1 Waddell is in section 4, block B-27, public school land. Humble No. 1 Tubb, another deep test in the same area, is fishing for drill-bit cones after reaching 2403 feet in anhydrite and lime. It is in section 11, Sinclair-Prairie No. 1, Tubb, probably deep prospect in section 3, is drilling lime below 2570 feet.

Before the survey begins, letters will be sent to the parents of the children so that they may request that their children be given the test. No tests will be given without the signed request of the parent.

All students who are unable to finance the test as given by a family physician but who wish to be tested and who have the request of their parents will be included in the survey through funds obtained in the Christmas sale.

SEVEREST WINTER IN SEVERAL YEARS AGAIN HITS STATE

50 Degree Drops In Mercury Noted At Points

STORM ABATING Slightly Warmer Is Forecast For Wednesday

Raging over the West Texas plains, a freezing wind quickly dissipated the balmy weather and caused violent temperature drops of as much as 50 degrees in a few hours in some points.

The East Texas oil fields were lashed by strong winds, some damage being done to oil derricks, communication lines reported. The wind was around 50 miles per hour. The temperature last night in Borger was 11 degrees, but today another threat of a general Panhandle snowstorm seemed to have dissipated. The temperature dropped to ten at Plover last night after having been 76 at one time Monday. Dallas temperatures dropped to 19 today. Others lows: Galveston 36, San Antonio 28, Paris 13—lowest recording there this year—Longview 22, Tyler 18 and Amarillo seven.

USE THOSE POLL TAX RECEIPTS

Midland was just one of many counties to turn in a new record for poll tax payments, according to news releases from the Associated Press.

Political fever apparently has touched a new high as Texas voters prepare to use their pencils for or against New Deal measures, liquor sale in counties and precincts, gubernatorial candidates and office seekers in general.

Midland has an early opportunity to get action on the 2,125 poll taxes which set a new local record. One week after the time for paying poll taxes had closed, an election comes up in which every citizen should be interested.

Whether or not liquor may be legally sold in Midland county and precinct No. 1 is the question.

To make precinct No. 1 eligible, the county must at the same time be declared wet. Dry supporters have two chances for victory, either county wide or in the precinct. They have gone to work.

Every poll tax payer has his views and everyone has his inherent right to state his choice.

Put your newly purchased poll tax receipt in your pocket and go to the polls Saturday. It's the first election of a big election year.

'S O S'—SAVE OUR SOIL

The administration's efforts to formulate an effective substitute for the AAA have already been productive—interest has been focused on the importance of soil conservation to sound farming.

One hundred million acres of cultivated farm land have been destroyed in the United States by man-induced erosion, H. H. Bennett, head of the U. S. Soil Erosion service, declares. This is equivalent to 625,000 farms of 160 acres each, an area almost equal to that of Ohio, Illinois, Maryland, and North Carolina combined.

"This absolute wreckage," Bennett has found, "is only part of the farm problem, however. Of the 350,000,000 acres now under cultivation, about 125,000,000 acres have lost all or most of the productive surface soil by sheet washing. A hundred million acres more are undergoing serious erosion."

Whatever form of farm program is worked out in Washington, it could do no better than provide for soil conservation. Surely no farming can be sound without it.

Duce's Ethiopian Conquest May Turn Out to Be Just A Tragic Fake

By FRAZIER HUNT

Is Ethiopia to be the Promised Land for Italian expansion or is this only a fantastically exaggerated dream?

Has Mussolini, consciously or unconsciously, put over on his hero-worshipping people a fake so stupendous that it would be ludicrous if it were not tragic?

Unfortunately, the attractive idea that in these hot deserts and high plateaus and mountain valleys of Ethiopia can be found Italy's much-needed raw materials and strategic minerals has very little basis of fact.

In the whole of Ethiopia, as far as is now known, there is no coal or copper or any important mineral in workable quantities—except iron ore.

The possibility of finding oil is slight. There are some small deposits of gold and platinum that are said to have been worked since the bright days of the dark Queen of Sheba—but the total production of both has never been more than $1,000,000 a year.

Mussolini's professed ambition to build a "new Italy" upon the wild and mysterious terrain of Ethiopia will meet its greatest test if or when a purely military victory has been achieved.

Victory Can't Make Dreams Come True. Only as a possible land for limited future colonization are the Italians sure to find a justification of the dreams and contentions of Il Duce. Even this dream has been grossly exaggerated in the public imagination by the illusory propaganda of a controlled press.

If the Lion of Judah gives in and turns his country over to the Italians, it would take years to pacify the native tribes and chieftains. France took 33 years to conquer and pacify Morocco, and invested hundreds of millions of dollars before it began to break even. The problems of climate and terrain, of distance and native peoples, are even more formidable when it comes to Ethiopia.

"In 50 years Italy might be able to plant from 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 white colonists in Ethiopia," an Italian official explained to me with unusual frankness. "The mere physical conquest of the country is only the first step on the long road to the settlement of emigrants. The tribes must be disarmed and the whole country slowly civilized. The question of highways alone will take years to solve."

But it is the problem of security for new settlers that will be most difficult—if and when a settlement between Italy and the Negus is reached. At the opening of a part of the reclaimed lands of the Pontine marshes, I heard Mussolini thunder: "We will not send the flower of our people to barbarous lands until we are certain they will be protected by the Italian Tricolor."

Only through the control of all Ethiopia by either Italy or the League—or a partition into zones of control and administration—can this protection be given future pioneers. Plainly, the settlement of emigrants is almost impossible situation a new and unsolvable element.

Want Peace Before Rains. In Milan, Venice and Rome I heard pathetic whisperings of "Peace by Easter." By Easter the rains will have begun and the situation of Italy will have become critical. The purely military problem in Ethiopia will likewise have become precarious. Within a few weeks of Easter the rains will set in and all forward military operations will be rendered impossible for another six months.

In the few months before these devastating rains begin Marshal Badoglio will unquestionably try to drive through to some smashing and spectacular victory that can sustain Italian morale and pride during the coming months of forced inactivity—and the growing internal crisis and collapse of economic life that will daily become more acute.

Much depends on this highly problematical victory. Already the controlled Italian press is beginning to prepare the nation, raised to a pitch of exaltation by Mussolini's feverish appeals to patriotism and dreams of empire, for the inevitable disillusionment which follows when the cold facts of the military and economic situation can no longer be hidden.

Sooner or later, too, will come the realization of the loss of her tourist traffic and export trade, and the million dollars a day cost of the Ethiopian venture.

But even a dramatic military victory in Ethiopia leaves intact all the imponderables of the external situation. Whether Mussolini wins or loses in Abyssinia, he must eventually come to some sort of arrangement with England.

Even if Mussolini succeeds in inflicting a crushing defeat on Haile Selassie and in destroying the major portion of his armies in the field—which is extremely improbable—England will have yet to be settled with. She will never permit Mussolini to swallow Ethiopia in one gulp.

It is these imponderables that make the situation so easy to understand but so difficult to solve.

Britain Brooks No Rival. As much as England needs Italy as a future ally, she will not tolerate her as a serious rival. It is all very well to use Mussolini's splendid soldiers on the Brenner Pass as a threat against Germany and as the sentinels of European peace and security—but a rapidly expanding Italian Empire astride England's sacred road to India is a horse of another color.

An inconsequential colony at the lower end of the Red Sea is one thing—but a great Empire controlling the headwaters of the Nile and England's cotton lands in Sudan—and able to recruit and train millions of savage warriors, drawn from the finest fighting tribes in the world—is altogether another thing.

A victorious Italy, with a taste for the blood of conquest, controlling the 80 miles of water in the narrow straits between Sicily and Africa—and in addition the 16-mile-wide mouth of the southern entrance to the Red Sea—would be a constant challenge to the mighty British Empire. It is this that gives to the

FEMININE FANCIES

BY KATHLEEN EILAND

This is the kind of day that makes us wish that modern office desks were equipped with foot-warmers.

An interesting version of the road to fame is found in the experience of Patti Price of South Africa who has attracted notice with her little book, "The Afrikaner Little Boy," a volume of songs about her nephew and his experiences and associates in the strange continent of the Southern Hemisphere.

Africa must be an interesting place for small boys—a land where witch doctors are met on a morning walk, where ostriches chase one and have to be shooed away with a bush, and where one little native boy may have the sole job of keeping chickens out of the dining room.

We think Miss Price is correct in her desire not to have her nephew become the focus of too much public interest through connecting his name with the songs. We still firmly believe that any child is better off who does not enter into the circle of world attention much until he is grown—and probably not then.

Fame, they say, is harder to withstand than adversity.

Speaking of fame, we are reminded that the forthcoming film version of the life of Louis Pasteur will bring into public notice the important associate behind the scene of the famous man—his wife.

The story will show how Mrs. Pasteur aided her husband by her loving and understanding adjustment of their routine home life to the needs of his exacting work. How meals were patiently put off until such time as he could eat and even the sickness of family members was not allowed to encroach upon his efforts to aid humanity in general.

It takes an unusually big woman, we think, (big in the sense of being far-seeing, sane, and humanly-loving) to put the needs of abstract humanity before the near and very dear needs of her immediate family.

Just here we are quoting the opinion of one woman writer along the line of whether and how a woman should make home life flexible to the requirements of her husband and his work, whatever it may be. Whether or not one agrees with her (and personally we do), the extract is at least worth reading.

"Too often women expect that the home shall be used, not as a place of rest and helpfulness which caters to the needs of its members, but as a machine that must be worshipped. The world's work can not always be done on definite schedule.

Women have been attributed the power to guide men's desti-

There is absolutely no excuse for obvious grooming faults—crooked heels, soiled collars, cuffs and gloves and wrinkled clothes—and little more than that for equally obnoxious, but a trifle less conspicuous ones.

The minute you put on a jeweled clip with one or two stones missing, a coat with a safety pin in the lining or a slip with shoulder straps tied up in knots, not only do you lay yourself open to criticism of your appearance, but of your personality as well.

Others, including men, suspect right away that you are as careless mentally as you are about your grooming.

Remember that perfect grooming takes a little time. You can't allow only twenty minutes for morning bathing and dressing and expect to look beautifully turned out. Admittedly, early morning sleep is a fine thing indeed, but if you want to look your level best always, do plan to go to bed early enough to enable you to get up in time to bathe, dress and put makeup on carefully.

If you have no time to wash light-colored gloves, get dark ones, which can go to the cleaner now and then. Better to wear black leather gloves with every costume you own than light ones which, although more flattering to your dresses, seldom are spick and span.

Watch your hats. If even slightly dusty, the smartest Paris hat loses all of its allure. Brush your hat carefully before you put it on in the morning. Keep all of them in boxes—not exposed to dust and dirt. Clean the inside as well as the outside of them. When a floral or ribbon touch begins to show signs of soil, clean it immediately. If this is impossible, throw it away and wear an untrimmed but immaculately clean hat.

TOLEDO, (U.P.)—Patrolman Edward Kline's disguise was too good. Dressed as a vagabond, he succeeded in spotting a narcotics peddler in a cafe. He hastened to a fire station to telephone headquarters, but was ordered out of the building with the warning that "bums aren't allowed here."

"Eleven billion dollars a year for Food?"

THAT'S HOW MUCH American women spend. If you are buying food for the so-called "average" family of four your share is at least $11 a week.

The job of getting the most out of that eleven dollars requires thoughtful planning, if not ingenuity. You've got to keep a supply of staples on hand—flour, sugar, shortening, baking powder, essential condiments and spices. A variety of breakfast cereals is required. Milk, butter, eggs and cheese figure in meals constantly. Tea, coffee, cocoa and canned fruit juices are consumed daily. Fresh, as well as canned fruits and vegetables, can't be overlooked. Meats and fish—either fresh, smoked or canned—demand that you buy them. Jellies, jams, relishes and canned soups insist upon a place in your market basket. And last, but not least, is bread three times a day.

So what's the best rule to follow in buying this wide assortment of food? How can you avoid monotony in meals? How can you discover new menus and recipes? How can you have enough money left over each week from your food allowance for a few tasty luxuries that make meals more appetizing? How can you save time and money in buying?

Well, you can tramp through the markets daily—looking, pricing and comparing. But here's an easier way—a more accurate way—a more up-to-the-minute way—

by Harry GRAYSON

NEW YORK.—Omaha is in England to prepare for a conquest of the British turf.

After many fortunes and vicissitudes, the blood which once was the pride of all Old Blood returns labeled "Product" of the "United States" and with the avowed purpose of conquering its distant brothers.

Omaha is a son of Gallant Fox, Imported Sir Gallant Fox III, French bred, sire of Gallant Fox Sir Gallant III, was by the immortal Teddy. The blood, in top male line, goes back to the unbeatable Ormonde of England.

On his dam's side, Omaha has more of England about him, for Plumbino was by imported Wrack of the light little isle. Old Wrack died only a few months ago after a useful life in American stud ranks.

Can Omaha win abroad? Are American horses the equals or superiors or inferior to English thoroughbreds? There are difficult questions to answer.

American runners have had honorable careers in England, though to hear Britons tell, it wouldn't think so. The four best were, perhaps, Foxhall, Iroquois, Tracery, and Reigh Court. And Sir Martin, the renowned Cap and Bells, Parole, and several others had more than excellent careers on the lawn courses of the empire.

Trainer Enthusiastic About Omaha's Chances

Parole whipped everything in sight with everything but the Bank of England on his back. Colin, Duke of Magenta, Fair Play, an dothers got nowhere, but for the most part they broke down. Parole was taken to England as a trial horse for Duke of Magenta. What would the Duke have done, if Parole could trim the best the bugle could produce?

Foxhall and Iroquois went to England as youngsters before their careers had begun. The problems of acclimatizing and teaching them to gallop the opposite direction thus were almost negligible. Iroquois won the Cambridgeshire and Caesarwin.

Cap and Bells bagged the Oaks, greatest of British filly events. Reigh Court accounted for the Coronation Cup and was second in the Ascot Gold Cup. Mate was a good winner although long past top form. There is little or no doubt that Sir Martin would have taken the Derby had he not fallen in the stretch while in front.

William Woodward long has planned a British invasion. A true sportsman, the owner of Omaha races horses because he likes to—not for the money or publicity. If the banker's entrants are not fit to run, they remain in the barn. Omaha did as America's 3-year-old champion for half of last season.

When Woodward decided to send Omaha across the Atlantic, he had him inspected by Capt. Cecil Boyd-Rochefort, his British trainer. Captain Boyd-Rochefort was enthusiastic, so the long-legged 4-year-old was shipped. If the stretch burner doesn't train to expectations, rest assured that he won't start.

Coronation, Ascot Gold Champion's Objectives

Omaha is in particular, after the Coronation and Ascot Gold Cups. The latter, at two and one-half miles, often is called the world's greatest race. Probably, alongside the Melbourne Cup of Australia, it deserves the ranking.

What Omaha's chances of capturing the Ascot Gold Cup are, who can say? In his favor is the fact that he can run all day. He will have the advantage of the services of one of the finest trainers in England.

Against this, it must be remembered that Omaha has been subjected to mysterious but none the less actual lameness which might crop up again at any time.

There are more entries for the Ascot Gold Cup than usual, but the class of them is very poor. With a winning effort under his girth, Omaha might very well be the favorite at post time.

The English are expected to "honor" Omaha with something more than 130 pounds of handicap. The British have a habit of doing this to American horses. They gave poor old lame Twenty Grand such weights and did the same for Mate, which had copped about one race in his last 14 before making the voyage.

However, Omaha was so convincing prior to his pulling up lame last season that there still survives the idea that he will prove superior to all obstacles.

Bathers Dive 'Round and Around at 8 Below, Below!

Bud Dant, Chicago dance band trumpeter, probably was playing that "below, below" line in "The Music Goes 'Round and Around'" when this picture of the Chicago Polar Bears Club in bathing was snapped. For it was 8 below zero when the hardy souls, dressed in shorts and slippers, slipped into Lake Michigan's icy waters for their weekly Sunday swim. Instead of singing "Whoa-oh-oh, oh-oh-oh," they stuttered "Brr-r, r-r-r."

The washtub was all right in the days depicted in the above scene . . . none knew better. But modern science has taught us the fallacy of that belief. The washtub has no more place in the 1936 American home than a yolk of oxen would have on the Broadway of America.

"IT RATES RIGHT AT THE TOP WITH 'MAKIN'S' SMOKERS OUT OUR WAY" — SAYS BERT WEEMS... SPEAKING OF PRINCE ALBERT

Here's Bert Weems, who has been rolling his own with Prince Albert for the past 21 years.

NEW GET-ACQUAINTED OFFER

(30 smokes on us if you're not pleased)

Roll yourself 30 swell cigarettes from Prince Albert. If you don't find them the finest, tastiest roll-your-own cigarettes you ever smoked, return the pocket tin with the rest of the tobacco in it to us at any time within a month from this date, and we will refund full purchase price, plus postage. (Signed) R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, North Carolina.

"THAT GOES FOR US TOO" — SAY ROLL-YOUR-OWN SMOKERS OF MIDLAND!

Bert Weems is noted for rolling a nifty cigarette. Turns 'em out in 14 sec. This is what he says in compliment to Prince Albert: "Prince Albert rolls so slick and easy, it almost rolls itself. It's packed right, in tin, so there's no spilled tobacco, no waste. And there's enough for 70 cigarettes in every two-ounce big red tin. That rates Prince Albert right at the top with 'makin's' smokers out our way."

Real Man-Style Taste Too! "Prince Albert tastes right—rich and mellow," Mr. Weems continues. "It is the real joy smoke for roll-your-own cigarettes." You'll roll 'em quicker yourself with Prince Albert, and enjoy a mildness and good taste that you'd never met up with anywhere else.

For in Prince Albert there is all the mellowness of choice tobaccos. Then the P. A. "no-bite" process is used to make sure that harshness is marked "absent." Prince Albert is "crimp cut"—lies right in your cigarette paper and doesn't blow all over the lot. If you're "choosy" about your "makin's," you'll appreciate Prince Albert.

Change to Prince Albert for your rolling. You don't need to risk a penny on our money-back proposition. Prince Albert takes kindly to a pipe too.

Ingrained Kindness Shows Home Ideals

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

We wonder why children grow up without a thought of anyone in the world but themselves. Why they forget the Golden Rule. Why so many cherish the creed of the horse-trader who did others before they did him.

With the whole world playing a game of grab, it is not to be wondered at, or censured too much, of course; but still-and-all, it seems to me that economic conditions are not altogether responsible or even the chaos of morale that engulfs us.

I believe as usual, that home standards are largely to blame, and home attitude toward the other fellow. Take your neighbors. Out of a dozen families how many give a snap what the others do? Perhaps one, and it is of this one I write. She is a busy woman, this little wren of a lady, but never too busy to give a thought to anyone within her vicinity who needs a word of friendliness, a jar of soup or perhaps a book to read. She has a tiny garden, and is discovering in her quiet way what the trouble might be.

Daughter Is Like Mother

Her little girl is conditioned to the attitude of her mother. She is eleven now and her day consists of a fine mingling of thought for others as well as thought for self. She smiles at one as though she liked him, and, indeed, she does like most people. There is no way to develop friendliness toward others like that of doing things for them.

I never saw a child as truly glad to see someone get a new dress or good marks. She does not appear to notice it when all the children on the street have new skates attached to their shoes, as they come now, while she wears an old pair handed down from the ark. Or that her bicycle is second-hand while all the others are brilliantly new.

If she sounds too much like a Pollyanna and you picture a smug child who prefers matrimony to profit and who loves the thrill of renunciation, I must correct you. She can stand up for her rights as well as an old pair handed down from the ark. Or that her bicycle is second-hand while all the others are brilliantly new.

Smyrna, Rhodes, Colophon, Samamis, Samos, Chios, Argos, and Athens all claim to be the birthplace of the Greek poet, Homer.

WHY? WHY? WHY do the liquor dealers want a legalized liquor traffic in our County and City? Because they POSITIVELY KNOW that it will mean MORE LIQUOR SOLD and MORE MONEY MADE FOR THEM! OF COURSE, it also means more drunkenness, more poverty and misery in homes, more murder and fatal accidents especially on our highways, more danger and ruin to our young people. But the liquor dealers care far less about these tragedies than they care for their profits. ATTEND THE UNION SERVICE FOR MORAL DEFENSE, FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH, WEDNESDAY, 7:30 P. M. HEAR OUR RADIO PROGRAM OVER KRLH EACH DAY THIS WEEK FROM 12:30 TO 12:45 NOON
