School Enrollment Continues to Gain

Enrollment in the Midland public schools, in a report issued Friday, showed a gain of 68 over the same date last year, at the end of the third month. The enrollment figures follow:

1934-1935	1935-1936
High school	314
Junior high school	467
Elementary	213
S. elementary	222
Mexican school	97
Negro	87
Totals	1,340
Total increase over last year	1,408

The above figures show that the enrollments in the Mexican and the colored schools are 64 below the corresponding enrollments last year. This, of course, is due to participation in certain picking at the time. If the enrollments in these two schools were up to par, as they will be as soon as the cotton picking season is over, the increase in enrollment over last year would be 132.

Will Rogers Facetiously Sought Loan From R. F. C. On His Horse, "Blue Boy"

"How much can I borrow on my horse Blue Boy?" This whispered query was Will Rogers' first greeting to Wilson McCarthy, R. F. C. Director, when the two met in Washington, D. C., soon after formation of the corporation. The story is among a legacy of anecdotes Harvey Cough of the R.F.C. inherited from his long friendship with the cowboy humorist.

"While I was in Washington," Mr. Cough, President of the Arkansas Power and Light Co., related, "I saw him several times. I remember one day when he called I was in the board room. My secretary brought him around and ushered him in without ceremony. Work ceased immediately. He said, 'You know, I had a terrible time finding the R. F. C. but I happened to see some fellows leaving the hotel with a worried expression on their faces and portfolios under their arms. I just followed them and they brought me to the right place.' He looked around at the table and noticed Judge McCarthy. 'How's my old shepherd friend?' he asked. 'I told him,' continued Cough, 'that McCarthy was about to bust the corporation lending money on livestock in the west. With that he sidled around to the judge and asked in a low tone, 'How much can I borrow on my horse Blue Boy?'

BOY SCOUTS BACK FROM 3-DAY HIKE IN THE MOUNTAINS

Boys Spend Time at Learning About Country

TRIPS ARE MADE JAUNTS TO SEVERAL POINTS TAKE UP TIME

By H. H. KENDRICK Scoutmaster

Troop 52, Boy Scouts of Midland, returned from their "Be Prepared" exploration hike in the Davis Mountains Sunday night. The hike lasted three days. The time was spent in becoming familiar with the rugged country in and about the Madeira district. The base camp was snuggled between two high precipices or mountains well up in Madeira canyon near the banks of the canyon stream. The main "Wanta-Know-It" hike was made from camp through a smaller canyon up to Madeira Springs, and then skirting around the eastern edge and near the summit of the highest peak into a beautiful little hidden valley containing a lake and contented cows, with another range of mountains in the background.

For additional diversion short side trips were made to Balmorhea lake, where the boys were afforded the use of row boats through the kindness of Mr. Humphreys. A short inspection of the fishing lines affording the scouts fresh fish for supper; and to Phantom lake, which to the boys was all that the name implies. The afternoon being warm and the water being perpetually warm, they were allowed a ten-minute swim. It is not often that one can explore while swimming, but upon this occasion a swim was made in deep water back into a cave as far as daylight would permit. He threw together a mulligan stew that was a knock-out for genuine canyon chow. Waggon also had shelter provided in the event of showers.

HAILE ON FRONT

Prepares to Go North To Meet Pair of Lieutenants

The British cabinet today debated the problem of tightening sanctions as peace talk languished. Britain turned its attention to an oil embargo to freeze Italy into submission.

Over 900 mothers, widows of war dead, "mobilized" by Mussolini, took the Italian program of resistance to the sanctions to the nation's communities, bearing the slogan "re-asis".

An Italian communique reported that a skirmish in the Tembien region had resulted in 15 Ethiopians and six Italians being killed.

Reported plans for an Ethiopian offensive are being circulated in Addis Ababa. It was reported that Haile Selassie, in Dessye, was believed to be preparing to go north to meet two lieutenants, Ras Seyoum and Ras Kassa, whose combined forces of 400,000 men would attack the Italians entrenched along the Makale-Antalo line, possibly tomorrow.

Canada disclaimed any initiative for the proposed extension of the sanctions, saying that such an impression was a misunderstanding.

Italian business leaders said that trade was slackening and that problems of labor and business credit were developing as a result of the sanctions.

Ethiopia informed the league that Ethiopian troops were leaving Hawar, important eastern city, and said that it would be used in the future as a center for the care of the wounded and for civilians.

AS EDDIE RICKENBACKER SEES IT

A recent address by Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker presents a clear and complete summary of the aims of the Will Rogers Memorial Commission and the present status of the campaign. Captain Rickenbacker said:

"Years ago a Great Teacher said: 'Suffer the little children to come unto me.'"

"Will Rogers always followed that teaching. He always loved children and made them his friends, particularly the unfortunate, the crippled and the needy."

"That's why I seem to see again that wide, honest and delighted smile spread across Will Rogers' face at the knowledge that the Will Rogers Memorial funds will be devoted largely to aid handicapped children all over the country."

"By handicapped children, the Will Rogers Memorial Commission means those suffering from physical handicaps which hospital care and expert attention can cure or alleviate, children whose parents lack the means to give them that care; youngsters who walk in darkness, smiling despite the terrible burden of blindness; those who have heart trouble; victims of disease whose lot can be made happier or who can be brought back to partial or complete activity through expert attention; and those who, although in health, need shelter, schooling and home care which fate denied them."

"All these are meant by 'Handicapped children' and it is for these that the funds will be devoted which are subscribed to the memory of the man who throughout his life was interested in the handicapped and needy and gave so generously of his time, talents and money to help them."

"With the announcement that most of the funds raised will be devoted to the aid of handicapped children, and the new impetus imparted by the knowledge that the memorial would be a work so close to Will Rogers' heart, hundreds of local chairmen in many parts of the country have asked that the campaign be extended."

"The Commission has complied. The campaign will continue through December 14."

"Additional time was required to permit the many admirers of the cowboy philosopher to contribute. The local chairmen, thus far, have had but a limited time in which to work."

"And let me say, right now, that it is the Commission's wish that the memorial be truly representative of the millions who loved Will Rogers. We would rather that the fund be made up of the dollars, even the quarters and dimes, of his host of friends, than of a few large subscriptions."

"The Commission this week accepted the gift of a million dollar hospital at Saranac, N. Y., and a fund of half million dollars to maintain it for five years. It was presented by the National Variety Artists Fund, Inc., and the money to maintain it for five years was given by five major theatre groups, Fox West Coast Theatres, Loew's Inc., Paramount Theatres Service Corp., Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corp., and Warner Bros. Theatres Circuit."

"In behalf of the Will Rogers Memorial Commission I take this opportunity of thanking the National Variety Artists Fund, Inc., and the theatre groups for this magnificent gift. This great hospital will be administered by the Will Rogers Memorial Commission with the monies donated by the theatre groups."

"But this will be quite aside and apart from the expenditure of other funds contributed."

"The work of the Will Rogers Memorial Commission extends into every state of the union. The Governor of every state, less than two months ago, was asked to serve as honorary chairman of the work and to appoint an active chairman. Districts, counties and local communities have been organized. More than 2300 local committees are now active. The figure is conservative. Only this morning we received from Mr. Hokanson, Wisconsin state chairman, a list of 256 local chairmen."

"To these thousands of volunteer workers and to many others, the Memorial Commission wishes to extend its sincere gratitude; to Captain Frank Hawks, just back from a flying circuit of the country in which he spoke at meetings and over the radio in nearly 200 cities; to the professional stars, both men and women, who are giving so generously of their time and money to aid the memorial, to radio stations and the great national networks, to newspapers which are cooperating wholeheartedly, both through their columns and in receiving contributions; to banks which voluntarily are acting as depositories. To all these our sincere gratitude."

"Because of the many institutions which have aided in collecting funds, it will be impossible for at least a week, possibly two weeks, to give any estimate of the amount raised. But it will be a sum representative of the millions of Will Rogers' friends."

"May I, in closing, not only thank our large but our modest givers. It is with a thrill that we have received the large checks of those who could afford to give, but I take special pride in thanking the eleven students in the senior class of the Tressler High School in Loyesville, Pennsylvania, for their contribution of two dollars."

"The Tressler High School is an orphans' home."

SENSIBLE DECISION

A year ago last spring a Michigan youth drove his auto into a group of pedestrians and killed two people, the parents of five children. Charges were brought against the youth, and just recently a final disposition of the case was made.

Under a court order, he must pay $10 a week toward the support of the five orphaned children for five years. He must not drive an automobile again, and under no circumstances may he purchase liquor. The court put him on probation to make sure that these orders would be carried out.

Here is a disposition of a traffic case which seems to be highly sensible. The young motorist is getting enough in the way of punishment, surely, to impress on motorists generally the need for caution.

Being kept away from liquor and autos, he won't repeat his offense. Meanwhile, he is compelled to render substantial financial aid to the dependents of his victims. The whole might well set a precedent for similar cases elsewhere.

STORIES IN STAMPS By I. S. Klein

The ABSENT BRIDEGROOM

A STRANGE wedding was celebrated in Damascus recently when the daughter of Sheik Nawaf El Shaalan of Damascus was married to King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia, and since 1925, king of Hejaz. For the bridegroom had sent a delegation of 40 Arabian sheiks to represent him, while he remained at Mecca, holy capital of the Moslems. Married 160 times previously, father of 51 living children, this monarch merely went through the official ceremony of adding another mate by proxy. Moslem law permits him only four wives, but divorce is easy under the same law, and so this ruler, who prevented a Holy War against the allies during the World War when he kept the Arabs from joining the Turks, adds his 161st bride at 55. No stamp of Hejaz carries his portrait, nor that of any other person. All that they show are inscriptions from the Koran, and mosaic decorations from famous mosques.

Fortitude Subdues Intensity of Pain

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Pain is an odd thing. Everyone who suffers with toothache or a fracture, with gallstones or sick headaches is certain when the spell is on him that HE suffers pain more acutely than any one else ever did, or does, from the same cause.

This has been gone into and at last we have a verdict. Say the scientists, "There are degrees of pain. Similar afflictions cause sufferers varying degrees of agony. It depends upon the nervous temperament of the victim. Sensitive, high-strung over-emotional people are more susceptible to deep suffering."

When Spartan warriors returned "with their shields or on them" as their mothers or wives ordered, very possibly there was little nursing done. It was considered weak to coddle the body or repair it beyond nature's own healing. Savages initiate their boys into manhood by cruel tests. There is no sympathy wasted or wanted. The youth endures having his front teeth knocked out or his thighs pierced by arrows without a moan, or is branded a weakling.

Of course, we civilized people only stand our boys up before machine guns and under sky bombs and scar them with gas. A mere nothing so far as we are doing? By every means under the sun we are creating an over-emotional race. Keeping step with the palliatives and pain-easers of science (thank heaven for them) is the emotional or greater susceptibility to pain.

Compare two boys—or two girls—one from the slums who never had a bandage on a cut or an unguent on a burn, with another reared in luxury who sets the house by the ears and doctors running to cure a bumped head.

Learning to Take Hard Knocks Which of the two will take discomfort later on as just one of those things that doesn't matter too much? Who will dramatize himself less and ACTUALLY SUFFER less? Naturally the one who learned that knocks are something to forget—not he who puts a pin-scratch in his emotional mind, above a day's work and plays it up to the limit.

By all means we must take no chances with our children. Health first. Then humane treatment of all diseases and accidents, no matter how innocuous they be. This is the greatest achievement of the century to my mind. Nothing is more heart-breaking than a sick or suffering child.

But common sense should prevent too much dramatization of hurts. It is kinder for children to learn to accept discomfort as logically as possible even though they miss the pat and tears and sympathetic murmurs they crave.

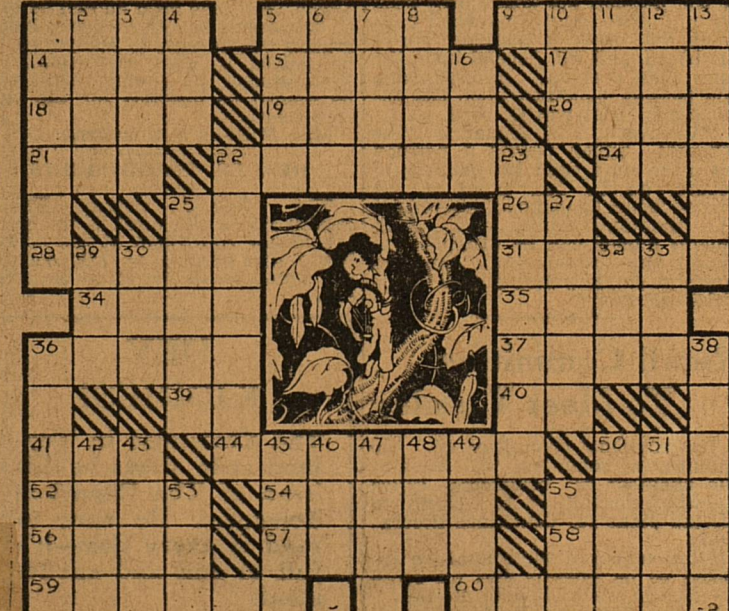

Why? Because pain without "nervous emotion" is less pain, or will be in future years. Fortitude, so it seems, is a palliative of potent strength.

FEMININE FANCIES

BY KATHLEEN EILAND

They say whoever possesses much money wants more. We begin to believe that holds true about other things—the desire ever outpacing attainment—even such a commonplace thing as sleep.

If not, then why, when we have spent nine and a half hours in bed, should we arise in the morning feeling more sleepy than usual?

Perhaps being sleepy (and we fear slightly cross) is our version of "blue Monday."

Seeing all the teachers and other citizens returning to town after the Thanksgiving holiday is like watching a return of the natives.

The Christmas decorations going up and the reminders of the decreasing number of shopping days tells us that Christmas is nearly here. Well, holidays always find us unprepared, so we suppose it had just as well come now as later.

Some one said to us the other day, "Christmas has never meant anything to me since I found out who Santa Claus was."

Of course some of the mysterious glamor went out of Christmas with that discovery. We can remember that the first Christmas after we found out that momentous secret was quite unsatisfactory. Still, the one thing that makes Christmas lack some vital quality now that we are grown up, is a financial one. Christmas is no fun when one is too broke to give presents. That is what makes Christmas worthwhile—giving. And where there isn't any giving, there isn't any fun in the holiday.

Races Take Lunch Money

LYNN, Mass. (U.P.)—Lynn High School's lunchroom has gone into the "red" because students have not been patronizing it. Deputy Superintendent Ernest Stephens learned that the students have been pooling lunchroom money to make daily wagers on horse and dog races.

PRESCRIBED DOSE

By Helen Welshimer
YOU think you would be good for me. But that gives you no border, For carrots are a healthy food And one I never order!

YOU'RE prompt and orderly, precise, And if you cut your finger You wouldn't let a stray word slip— It's vain for you to linger

IN my confines, I like new things While anything exciting You quarantine like chicken-pox. My good man, we'd be fighting

ALL day, all night, year in, year out, And you would hate the riot As much as I would grow to loathe Eight hours of constant quiet.

THERE are many girls, my nice young man, From Rome to Bethlehem, Who're fond of Mary's little lamb, But I'm not one of them!

HORNED FROGS ARE TO LEAVE TUESDAY FOR CALIFORNIA

Will Meet the Santa Team There on Saturday

FORT WORTH, Dec. 2.—The Texas Christian University football squad, with but one practice session behind it—Monday afternoon—will entrain at 10 a. m. Tuesday for San Francisco, where the Horned Frogs will take on the Santa Clara Broncos in Kezar Stadium next Saturday afternoon.

The Frogs will be playing farther away from their home base than they have ever appeared before, but they will have a good number of supporters nevertheless.

The coaches and squad will leave aboard a special train which will carry also the 43-piece Horned Frog band, and a group of ardent fans, the exact number of which will not be definitely known until train time. The special will take the northern route to San Francisco, and the schedule calls for a stopover of some seven hours in Denver and one of two and one-half hours in Salt Lake City. At both of these points, the Frogs will take a light, limbering-up workout.

The train will arrive in San Francisco at 9:30 a. m. Friday. The return trip, along the southern route with a stopover at Los Angeles, will put the special back in Fort Worth Wednesday night.

Last year the Frogs and the Broncos played in Fort Worth, in what turned out to be probably the best home game of the season. T. C. U. came out on the long end of a 9 to 7 score, after having been picked to lose.

The present season has not been quite so successful for Coach Clippert Smith and his men as was the 1934, which will probably give them all the more incentive to wind it up in a blaze of glory before the home folks by knocking over the strong T. C. U. aggregation.

Candle Power Fails

WELLESLEY, Mass. (AP)—Police stopped Frederick Taylor, truck driver, because his truck did not carry the minimum headlight candle power, Taylor said the electrical system went dead. He placed a candle in each lamp. The law requires a minimum of 21 candle power in each lamp.

"G-Dog" Gets New Home

CLEVELAND (AP)—"Alkie," the "G-Dog" who gave his master a way to liquor agents when he bounced out of a door on which the agents were spying, has a new home. Agents are to keep the German shepherd puppy because his master, Joseph Urban, is in jail for operating a still.

Budget Cut Kicks Back

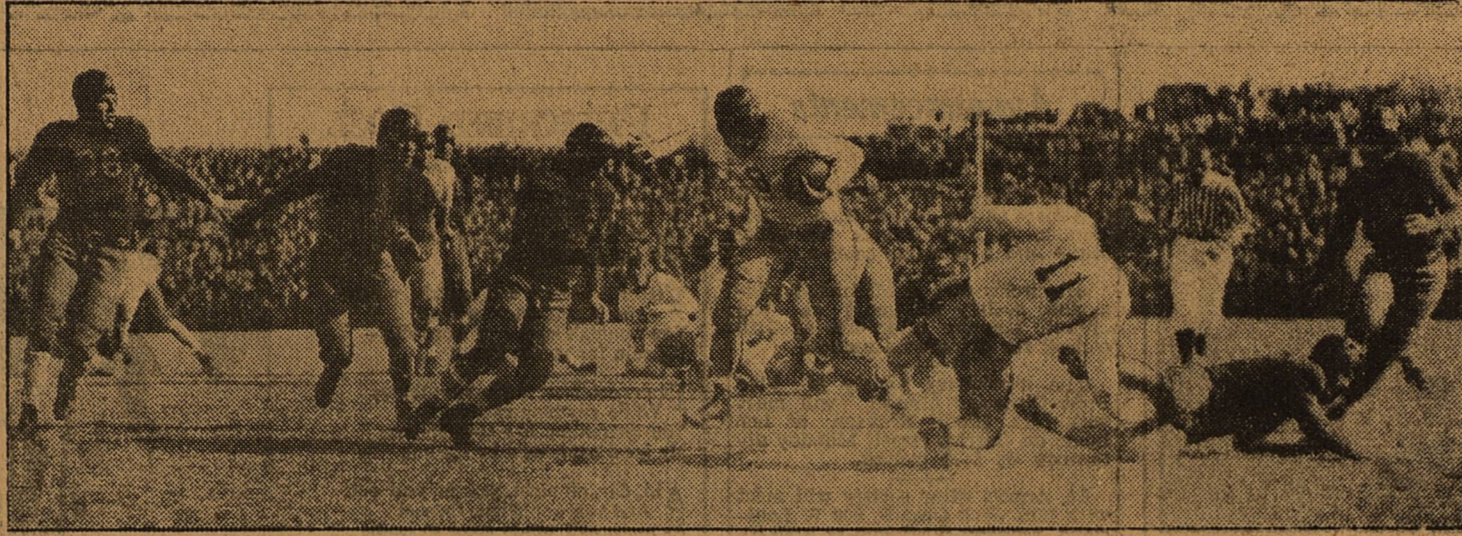

TACOMA, Wash. (AP)—Pierce County Commissioners reduced the staff of Assessor Fred A. Smith from 18 to 14 deputies in drafting the 1936 budget. Smith immediately announced increase in assessed valuations of property owned by each of the commissioners.

Civilization Falls On Ranger

VANCOUVER, B. C. (AP)—"Uncle Tom" Drury, veteran Grouse Mountain hiker and ranger, is recovering from a severe attack of homesickness. Drury left his mountain home two years ago to live in England, but missed the British Columbia wilds so much he couldn't get settled and decided to return.

A curio shop in Seattle, Wash., has a collection of carvings said to be the smallest in the world. Figures of the Virgin Mary, Christ on the cross, Confucius, and Buddha on grains of rice are among the collection.

Jimmy Lawrence Makes Long Gain Against Mustangs

The driving Jimmy Lawrence, 180-pound T. C. U. halfback, rips around the Christians' right tackle for one of the Frogs' longest gains in the first period of the T. C. U.

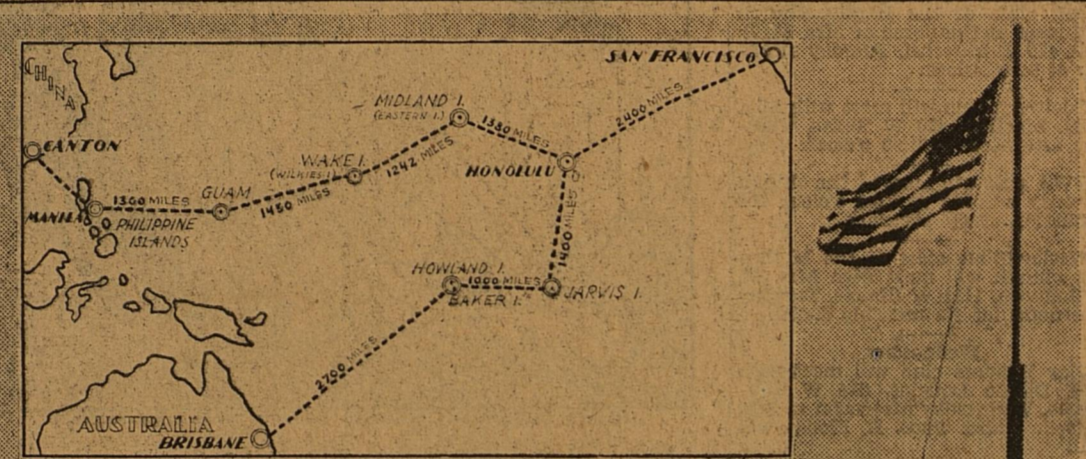

S. M. U. Southwest Conference clash. His teammate, Grose, close, 210-pound left tackle is falling after being hit by a Pony lineman. Stamps, Mustang left guard, is about to tackle Lawrence. Behind Stamps are Baker and Sprague, following the play. The Mustangs halted the Frog drive 15 yards short of the goal when Sam Baugh's pass over the goal on fourth down was incomplete. The Mustangs retaliated with their second marker.

U. S. Annexes Pacific Isles as Air Route Links

Shrouded in secrecy for more than half a year, American "colonization" of Howland, Baker and Jarvis Islands, shown in map above, for use as stepping-stones in a projected transpacific air route to Australia and New Zealand, has been revealed. An American citizen, Harry L. Theiss, is pictured above raising the Stars and Stripes over Howland Island after four Hawaiians, American citizens, had been placed on each island to make them United States property. Though Great Britain is believed to have rival claims to the three Pacific "pin-points," the U. S. State Department asserts that official American claims go back to 1856.

Superstition Delays Project

HONOLULU (AP)—Superstition and not political red tape may cause a change in plans of the new Ala Moana waterfront park, now under construction here with federal relief funds. Plans to plant two miles of Polynesian trees have been delayed due to an ancient Hawaiian legend which holds they bring bad luck.

Although men, many thousands of years ago, hammered meteoric iron tools and weapons, it was only a little more than 100 years ago that scientists admitted there was such a thing as a meteorite.

by Harry GRAYSON

The real All-America: Lawson Little, who survived exacting 18-hole opening rounds of match play to become the first golfer in history to win both the British and American amateur championships in successive years.

This Stanford kid beat the best simon-pures in the world under widely varying conditions and while they were looking him in the eye in a million spots where one slip on his part would have meant elimination. I particularly liked Little's carriage and demeanor. From the moment he walked out to the first tee to defend his American championship and complete his cycle in Cleveland until Walter Hagen called his final playoff shot the greatest he had ever seen, there was no question in anybody's mind as to who the champion was. I have never seen a defending titleholder take such complete command of his field.

Sam Parks, Jr. The professionals didn't like him, but he has been right up there since winning the United States Open championship over an Oakmont course that was treacherous for everybody but him.

Knowing that it was going to be held there, Parks used the common sense formula of practicing over Fownes' folly. He devoted a month to that. The result was that he was the only player in the magnificent pack who knew every blade of grass on Oakmont's slippery greens. Having prepared, he excelled less tentative and more famous players who neglected the assignment until it was too late, and consequently was the only participant who did not squawk about the greens. He taught more important pros a good lesson. Next time they'll be ready.

A Shot—and Not in the Dark Gene Sarazen. For holing that long brassie which copped the Masters' Tournament. It perhaps was the greatest shot ever made. Luck, of course, but had not the Connecticut Italian been in there trying, it never would have been made. Sarazen will do until a finer money golfer comes along.

Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, who proved that the hand can rock the cradle and still retain its touch on a golf course.

Discovery. For carrying all that weight and for all those rides that he made looking for competition. Some day American handicappers will find a much better way of balancing the worth of horses.

Tintagel, a raw freshman that will be heard from when the new varsity thoroughbreds go to the post in 1936. He topped the young money winners.

Dr. Charles H. Strub, the dentist and baseball man, who, with no experience, put over the Los Angeles Turf Club, and gave the turf its richest number in bringing back California racing on a big scale.

Mickey Cochran, who personally scored the run that brought his Tigers Detroit's first world championship in modern baseball, and then took his place among baseball's more important men.

Charley Grimm, who threw away his banjo and led the Chicago Cubs to an even more phenomenal finish than the St. Louis Cardinals turned in the year before.

Wilmer Allison, who clobbered after twice being turned down by the United States Davis Cup committee, and whose victory over Frederick Perry was the most stunning upset of the year.

Don Budge, California rethead, the finest peagreen tennis player Wimbledon has seen in years.

Honest Stevedore Makes Good

James J. Braddock, who came off the Jersey wharves after having been declared through, and bagged the heavyweight championship.

Joe Louis, who restored sizable gate receipts and class to boxing.

Michael Strauss Jacobs, who grew tired of the stupidity of Madison Square Garden, quit scalping tickets, and became the foremost pugilistic promoter of the day.

Mary Hoerger, aquatic daughter of an aquatic mother, who won the women's National A. A. U. senior diving wreath at the age of 11.

Elmer Layden, who put Notre Dame back in the headlines.

Lynn O. Waldorf, the hick from Kansas State, who took it so well in the early weeks of his first fall at Northwestern and who closed with one of THEE teams of the year.

Jay Berwanger. For making the All-America for the third consecutive year with a comparatively weak Chicago array, and for his department in and out of a football suit.

Bobby Grayson. For packing Stanford back to the Rose Bowl for the third consecutive season on one good ankle.

Andy Pilney of Notre Dame. For the finest individual football performance.

Barney Oldfield. At 57 he is no different than the Oldfield of 30. Still the star and best copy at automobile shows.

All-America men survive. Oldfield is something in the way of proof.

The world has a combined annual output of $500,000,000 worth of gold.

Lions live chiefly in sandy plains and rocky places. They are not entirely jungle inhabitants.

Palestine is not as fertile now as it was in the days of Christ.

Where Japan Is on the Move Again

This map shows the powder keg of the Far East where rival ambitions, border clashes, and international "incidents" stir fears of a Soviet-Japanese conflict, and indicate that Japan is ready to extend its sway in China. While Mongol descendants of Genghis Khan clash with Japanese troops on the Mongolian-Manchukuo border, Russia, whose interests have been paramount in Mongolia for years, backs the 11-year-old republic in its refusal to permit Japan to establish military representatives in Mongolian cities, sensing an espionage plot. On Manchukuo's southwestern border, Japan's efforts to divorce five North China provinces from the domain of Chiang Kai-shek's "national government" in Nanking and bring them under Tokyo's influence may have the support of a farmers' revolt, which Chinese authorities say is fomented by Japan.

Loans for new construction, purchase of homes and conditioning amounted to 64 per cent of all new loans made by these associations in September. As of November 15, there were 990 Federal savings and loan associations in operation, with total resources of approximately $470,000,000. Every Federal association is required by law to be insured through the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, which protects every shareholder against loss up to $5,000. Insurance of shareholders is also available to state-chartered associations of the building and loan type, which apply to the Corporation for such insurance and are approved. More than 100 state-chartered associations have already become insured.

Natural Resources Will Be Featured At The Centennial

DALLAS.—The almost unlimited natural resources of Texas, the minerals and metals which constitute the basic prop of the state's prosperity, will be featured in a special exhibit at the Texas Centennial Exposition. The story of Texas' underground wealth will be vividly told through the collection of natural resource exhibits now being assembled by a group of scientists, geologists and business men. The exhibit will be in the Hall of 1936, the sole section of the million dollar Texas Hall of State which will not be devoted to display of historical treasures. It will exemplify modern Texas with its opportunities for future development. Every college in the state, every public library, the leading geologists and the heads of corporations dealing with minerals, have been asked to aid in the painting of this striking picture of the Lone State State's natural resources. The story will start with the gold which the conquistadores sought and which has only been discovered in Texas in negligible quantities. Then the history of every industry will be told in compact exhibit form including petroleum production in which Texas leads the world. Coal, sulphur, lignite, building stone, marble, natural gas, graphite, gypsum, iron, lead, limestone, quicksilver, potash, manganese, mica, silver, zinc, mineral waters, copper and asphalt are some of the natural resources which will be exhibited in such manner as to explain their development since their first discovery beneath Texas soil. The exhibit will be entirely non-commercial, the plan being to present to millions of visitors the great scope embraced by the natural resources of the state.

Most directories are permanently bound, which makes them out-of-date in a few months after they are issued.

It is the wish of The Reporter-Telegram to make this Directory as complete and as accurate as possible. The co-operation of every person in Midland County is earnestly solicited to that end.

Below is a reproduction of the desired information. Please fill it out and either mail it or bring it to The Reporter-Telegram office at 112 West Missouri St. This advertisement will be published several times, and if you need additional information slips, you can clip them.

A house-to-house canvass will be made later for final check-up. If you clip the information sheet below, you'll save time for everyone and will not be annoyed later by a "knock on the door."
