Centennial Coins On Sale At First National Bank Now

Austin, Texas, Feb. 18. (Sp)—Texas Centennial half-dollars, which are being sold throughout the State as souvenirs of Texas Centennial celebrations, are now on sale at the First National Bank in Midland. Proceeds from the sale of the coins will augment state and federal funds now on hand to build the Texas Memorial Museum on the campus at the University of Texas. The federal government allocated $300,000 of the Federal Centennial Fund for the museum building, and the Texas Centennial Commission allocated $225,000 for equipping and furnishing the building. A minimum fund of $500,000 is needed from the sale of the Centennial coins to complete the first unit of the Texas Memorial Museum. Ground will be broken for the Texas Memorial Museum at ceremonies marking the opening of the Texas University Centennial Exposition, June 7th. All exhibits and display grounds used in the University Centennial will be conserved so that they can be transferred to the permanent memorial to Texas Centennial celebrations when the Museum is completed.

HEALTH PROJECTS ARE OUTLINED TO THE COUNTY BOARD

Members Adopt New Campaign Plans For Year

Three new projects in health publicity were outlined and discussed by members of the Education-Public Health committee of the Midland County Public Health Board at a meeting in the county court house yesterday. Radio health talks, a public health speakers' bureau, and an educational campaign within the membership of the Board, are the three projects which the committee will carry on during the year 1936. Mrs. J. H. Goodman, who is a member of the Texas Press Women's Association, is a new member of the Board appointed to work with the Education-Public Health committee. She will conduct a series of studies on the implications of the national Social Security Act to public health, aided by Frank Stubbeman, lawyer member of the Board. In addition to these studies, each member will be requested to read current magazine articles on public health. Mrs. Sam Ashley will direct the radio publicity. As discussed at the meeting, she will arrange for a five minute talk on some health problem that is facing the community each week. In addition to the five minute talk, ten minutes of music will be furnished. Mrs. Ashley hopes to secure some of the best talent of the city for these musical programs. Mrs. Addison Young, committee chairman, and Mrs. Harvey Blom, chairman of the Board, will work together in forming the speakers' bureau. Plans for this are to secure materials necessary for talks on some of the most vital and interesting health problems of the day, to secure the best available speakers in Midland to use these materials, and to notify the various civic, social and religious organizations of the city that such speakers are available for their programs.

Central Texas In Grip of Cold Wave

Gangster Slain Coldest Day of Year Felt in Many Cities

By Associated Press
North Central Texas today had its coldest day of the year when the temperature dropped to 10 at Dallas this morning. The cold penetrated far south, San Antonio registering 20, Corpus Christi registered 24, the lowest in many years; Brownsville had three below freezing at nine a. m., Amarillo had five above zero, Sherman eight, Longview 10, Austin 17, Houston 19 and Laredo 28. Virtually all the state was clear and temperatures were rising this afternoon. Weather forecasts for Midland and vicinity were far off in their predictions Monday night, 11 being recorded at the Southern Ice and Utilities company observation after a maximum drop to 22 had been forecast. The low reading was registered at seven a. m. today. A steady rise had brought the mercury to 25 degrees at noon today, but it started dropping once more and at one p. m. was down two degrees. Fair and not so cold is the forecast for tonight. Partly cloudy and rising temperatures are forecast for Wednesday.

Witcher, F. Foster Prepare to Go Ahead

By FRANK GARDNER
Drilling of plugs is scheduled to start today in both offsets to the central Ector pool. The south offset, Stanolind No. 1, J. E. Witcher, completed seven inch casing at 3917 feet. Total depth in the well is 4100 feet, reached with rotary and operators are now conveying and cementing the plug. Location is 660 feet out of the southwest corner of section 18, block 42, township 2 south. Offsetting the discovery to the east, Barrisland No. 1, Frank Foster, will probably start up tonight. Eight and a quarter inch pipe was set and cemented at 1694 feet. It is also rigging up cable tools and will drill to the Ordovician later to test the horizon proven by Gulf No. W. N. Waddell estate, deep discovery well nearly two miles to the northwest. On basis of Permian markers the unit test is said to be running over 100 feet higher than the Gulf Waddell. It is in the southeast corner of section 3, block B-27, public school land.

ANOTHER KILLED, SEVERAL WOUNDED IN SPAIN RIOTING

Casualty Total Is Brought to 10 By Death

Madrid, Feb. 18. (AP)—Another man was killed and several were wounded today in a clash between leftists and police at Zaragosa, as the rest of Spain quieted down after Sunday's parliamentary election. Ten have died and more than a score have been seriously wounded as a result of the election. The returns show that the leftists are nine seats short of a complete parliamentary majority in the country. A "state of alarm" was declared Monday for a period of eight days as a precautionary measure and press censorship has been established.

"Grand Old Man of the Balkans" Now Staging Another Comeback After Death Takes Life of Foe, G. Kondylis

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
LONDON, Feb. 18. Five times premier, eight times a rebel, and always the nine-tailed political cat of Greece, Eleutherios Venizelos is expected soon to leave Paris for Athens. At 72, this "grand old man of the Balkans" is a political exile in Paris. But the combined break of victory of his party at the polls in Athens and the sudden and unexpected death of General George Kondylis, his bitterest opponent, have set the stage for yet another "comeback." The importance of another Venizelos comeback at this time lies in the fact that he is known to favor the British in the present Mediterranean scramble, and would undoubtedly ratify and support the military understanding that now exists between Britain and Greece in case of trouble with Mussolini. Kondylis had been sympathetic to Mussolini and the Italian point of view. King Had Broken With Kondylis It was Kondylis, too, who broke the Venizelist "revolt" in Crete last spring, and afterward declared that Venizelos must never be allowed to return to Greece. It was Kondylis whose military coup restored King George to the throne last October. Then when the Venizelist party polled a small majority over the Kondylists in January, Kondylis said he would by force prevent Venizelos' return, despite an orderly and honest decision at the polls in his favor. Then Kondylis suddenly died. Venizelos now has an open road ahead of him to a return, and his sixth premiership. King George, who had already split with Kondylis in the few months since his restoration, might be expected to welcome Venizelos as head of the government. (See GRAND OLD MAN, page 6.)

The victor which he retains at 72 is illustrated in this recent unposed picture of Eleutherios Venizelos.

APPOINT FRANCO Proclaim War Hero As Temporary Leader

Asuncion, Paraguay, Feb. 18. (P)—Paraguay veterans of the war with Bolivia today established a provisional government in this country, forcing President Eusebio Ayala to resign. Ayala, who fled after loyal police had lost a battle which raged all day yesterday through the streets of Asuncion, submitted his resignation by radio from the gunboat Paraguay on which he had taken refuge. Col. Camilo Recalde and his followers proclaimed the war veterans' hero, Col. Rafael Franco, provisional president. Ayala was permitted land and a return to his residence with full guarantees. Heavy fighting broke out in the streets of Asuncion Monday and lasted until 10 p. m. when loyal troops supporting Ayala surrendered to the rebelling forces. The surrender was unconditional.

NEUTRALITY BILL PASSES IN HOUSE BY LARGE MARGIN

Senate Debating on Passage of Act Similar

Washington, Feb. 18. (P)—With only a smattering of opposition votes, the house Monday adopted a compromise neutrality resolution and hustled it to the senate, already debating an almost identical measure. Even an effort to increase debate from forty to eighty minutes—and cries of "gag rule"—was turned down as the house, anxious to expedite action, smashed down oppositions under a 353 to 27 vote. The margin of almost 14 to 1 was far more than the required two-thirds. No amendments were in order. The senate was talking of winding up action on its bills, or perhaps the house version tomorrow. (Each would reenact until May 1, 1937, a provision of the present neutrality law for embargoes on sale or transportation of arms, munitions and implements of war to belligerent nations or to neutrals for transshipment to warring countries. That provision expires Feb. 29. In addition, loans and credits to belligerents would be restricted to amounts sufficient only for "normal peacetime commercial transactions." Latin American republics would be exempted from the law when at war with a non-American power unless they were cooperating with a non-American national in hostilities.)

CAMPAIGN'S GOOD SIDE

While the fireworks of the presidential campaign sputter around us these days, it is well to take a look at the American system of government in action.

The voter is the target of a barrage of argument and oratory such as has seldom been known in previous campaigns. The press, the radio, and public appearances have been utilized to drive home every point.

Confusing? Yes, very much so. But there's a good side to it, nevertheless. Democracy is having its full daily exercise on both sides of the fence. Candidates are shouting their loudest and the public is looking them straight in the eyes.

In our system, there is no beating around the bush. This sharp, though often blatant, battle between the "ins" and the "outs" is the protein of our country's diet. We may get tired of it before next November—but democracy thrives on it.

Men and women equal? The former have to go out and fight for election; all women have to do is to wed frail congressmen.

England Is Alive to New Nazi Threat

How does Great Britain react to the dread rumblings of war-in-the-making in Europe? Britain's dual answer is wise diplomacy and more war planes, as Frazier Hunt reveals today in the second of two articles which he has written exclusively for NEA Service and The Reporter-Telegram after a reporterial visit to England.

By FRAZIER HUNT
Night and day English factories and assembly plants roll out new war planes.

England at last has the wind up. She has only recently realized that new German bombers, that can carry 1000 pounds of death and destruction at 218 miles an hour, can take off from their home aerodromes and in less than two hours be dropping their gas and explosive eggs over London.

No less than Premier Stanley Baldwin, scarcely four months ago the idol and symbol of British integrity and strength, but now the scarcely tolerated titular leader—has pushed his dangerous frontier to England to the Rhine. England is no longer an isolated and removed island, but a part of the continent of Europe.

With these startling discoveries came the rude awakening that Germany was rebuilding her lost war machine, and that she had openly decided to have the dominating air force of all Europe.

Three Challenge Empire
On three far-flung fronts was this ancient British Empire being challenged; by Japan's aggression against China, where there are vast British interests at stake; by Nazi Germany and her military dreams in Europe; and by Italy in the Mediterranean and Red Sea and on the road to India. These were the three great world powers suffering from inadequate raw materials and lack of natural resources and land for their increasing populations.

On May, 1935, it was decided to jump, in the quickest possible time, the Royal Air Force from 560 to 1500 first line planes—with adequate reserve ships. This number is for home defense only, and when it is reached by the end of next year, will give England within a few hundred planes of the number that Germany probably will have. Germany, however, is building much faster than England.

War Industries Concentrated
With the general realization of Germany's new air plans came, as a distinct shock, the terrifying knowledge that England was far more vulnerable from the air than any other European country. The island itself was not only small, but Britain's key war industries were concentrated in a few large factories in a few centers.

Germany in dreaming out her great new war machine had anticipated this growing air threat by decentralizing her war industries. No longer was the giant Krupp works in the Rhineland the single center for her war supplies. Sensing that the war of the air would be decided from the air, she moved her airplane factories to central and eastern Germany, and then broke up these several plants into a number of small factories that made individual and vital parts of the machines. No bombing raid could more than destroy a single unit, or at most an assembly plant.

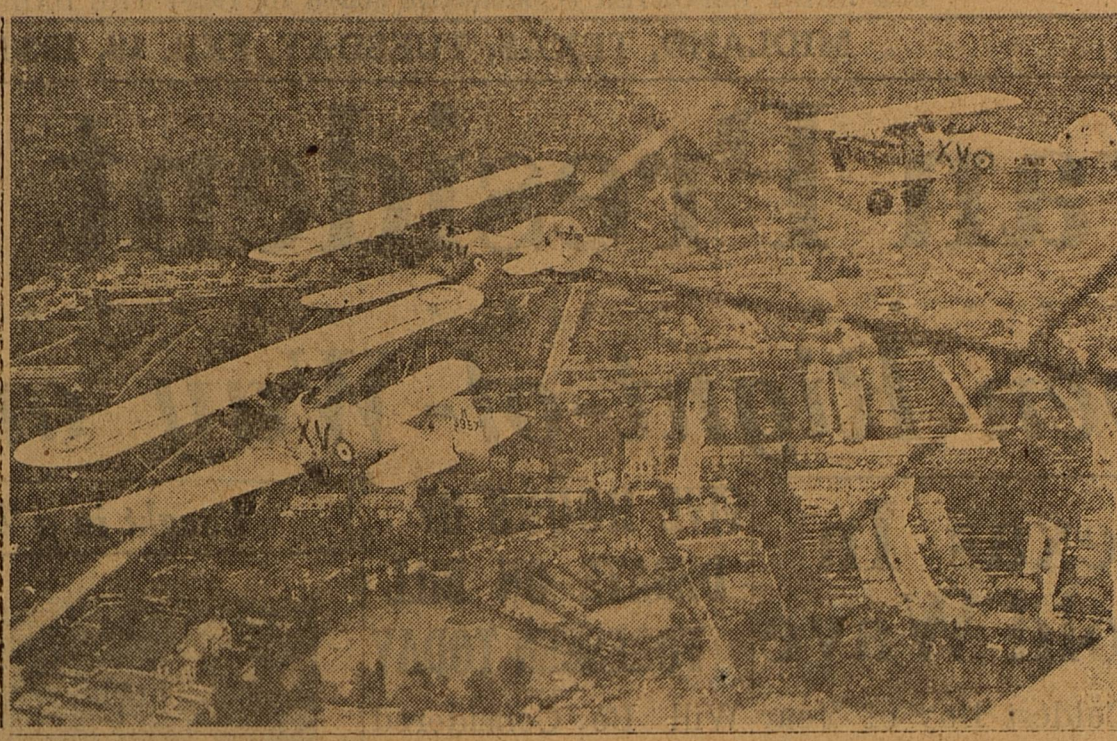

It was all this, and the return of Germany's marching mood, that finally awakened France, as well as her own new dangers. With her allies in eastern Europe, that had once made up the major part of the old Austro-Hungarian nations, she might feel safe. If England would pledge her full military support. But—at least until the Italian situation showed real dangers—England has refused to do this.

In final despair France turned to the Soviet Union, and on last May 18th made a Mutual Assistance Pact that pledges one nation to come to the aid of the other in case of attack by a third power—Germany.

England Holds Peace Key
It may seem like a paradox to write that while war rests in the hands of Germany, peace rests in the hands of England. If England comes out squarely for France, and her allies, including Soviet Russia, then Germany may not dare venture a war move. (I am accepting the optimistic premise that somehow or other the Italian situation will be eventually settled peacefully.)

This means that Soviet Russia would for a time become the dominant power in eastern Europe. But in the end Germany would refuse to accept this lowly status and break her chains.

So it is that sooner or later England holds the peace key.

The roar of the motors of her own war planes over London is a warning to England of her vulnerability in the "next war"—a war in the air.

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

It isn't often I pick up writings of serious nature in this column, yet I believe the people of this section knew Wilbur Hawk well enough that they will want to read this tribute written by Wilbur's partner, Gene A. Howe, in his column "The Tactless Texan" in the Amarillo Globe-News.

I would like to say something, and it seems I cannot say anything. Words are so futile in times of distress and grief.

Down here at the News-Globe office there is a smothering sadness that softens and fills and stills the hearts of everyone. Wilbur Hawk is gone from the News-Globe and when you say this it's like saying that the whole organization itself has been lifted out by its foundations. The News-Globe was Wilbur Hawk and Wilbur Hawk was The News-Globe. They were just together, parts of each other.

Personally, I simply couldn't feel worse or more helpless. It's a very great, a very dear sorrow that I will carry with me always.

Wilbur Hawk and I have been more than business partners for many, many years. We were raised in the same county, came to know each other when we were very young men and have been intimately and closely identified for nearly a quarter of a century. And I am very, very proud of the fact that not once in all that time did we have the slightest difference on anything. To me it's one of the biggest experiences anyone could have.

I remember it wasn't so many months ago that I talked with Wilbur and I told him how I appreciated his consideration and treatment of me and that he had been so generous and so big in his understanding that I knew that if we ever had any sort of a difference it would be my fault. We could have had our personal difficulties in our early partnership; we couldn't have had them in the later years.

He has always been my ideal of a man from the first time I saw him. Whether I admired him instinctively or I quickly and shrewdly recognized his power and ability, I sought him as a partner early in our lives. My father also advised and urged that I try to do this, and we were in our twenties when this was arranged. And of course this for me proved the best thing I could ever have done.

When Wilbur Hawk was a young man he was most eager, most determined to make money. But later in life after he had done fairly well and had built himself a comfortable home and had taken some trips he had planned as a youth, he became the most generous individual I have ever known. For years every business enterprise he has initiated and carried through was done for the purpose of helping some younger men obtain a start.

Wilbur Hawk was a worker and a driver and laziness to him was an unpardonable sin. The greatest joy of his life, the triumph of his life to himself, was the helping of young men in whom he had confidence and faith. He has done more of this than any man I have ever known, and what finer tribute can be said of anyone? It's so wonderfully true.

Wilbur Hawk never had a small idea in his life. If he made successes or mistakes, they were big. There was no smallness, no littleness in anything he has ever attempted.

All of us who have observed him know of his energy which he gave so unsparringly for his friends and for this plain country which he loved so deeply and unreservedly. All of us know of his achievements and his deeds in business and civic work, but only his closest friends and those associated with him at the News-Globe office and in his varied enterprises could know him really well.

And all I can further say is that I do not believe a man ever lived who was more beloved by the men who worked with him day after day than Wilbur Hawk. I have seen more grown men crying out loud the last few hours than I ever before observed in my life, and it's what a man is to those who know him best that counts in the last analysis.

Old Wilbur is gone and may God bless him as those who loved him on earth so dearly do!

FEMININE FANCIES

BY KATHLEEN EILAND

There must not be anything to this oft-quoted belief that the artistic in temperament, such as actors and writers, are not interested in things of this mundane sphere. At least, we note that such people are well-represented in the line of appetite. A survey just compiled by six New Yorker names the foremost gourmets in the United States: O. O. McIntyre, Edna Ferber, Daniel Frohman, Marion Davies, Lew White and William Rhinelandt Stewart.

Those who think that women should have only bird-like appetites for food should notice that a third of the names are those of women.

Goodness, there's another glamour aid listed for languorous ladies. This is the perfumed hairpin. We've known for years that perfume in one's hair is an aid to fascination but we didn't know it should be used via the humble hairpin.

These new beauty assets are covered with a felt-like fabric which retains the odor for several days. When it disappears, one merely moistens the felt with one's favorite fragrance and presto—enchantment is new as ever.

Perhaps it is just a sentimental hangover from Valentine's Day (or maybe just because it makes good copy) but we're going to quote here an old bit of verse which we like: "For if he comes not by the road, And come not by the far seaway Yet come he surely will Close all the roads of all the world. Love's road is open still."

It makes good philosophy, whether or not one can subscribe to the theory.

We've all heard dozens of times that "Men must work and women must wait" in approved poetic style. Speaking of woman's role of watchful waiting, a modern writer has this to say:

There is nothing so hard to endure as silence, nothing so difficult as the knowledge that we can make no efforts in a loved one's behalf. The fact that we are making some motion toward alleviating or aiding a given situation, small or futile as it may be, always helps. It is a relief, a safety valve for our spirits.

When there is nothing at all to be done a woman proves her worth. If she can take the silence with dignity any man can be proud that she waits his coming. If she lets her own worry explode in thousands of small hysterical bombs that go off spasmodically she betrays a caller that isn't worthy.

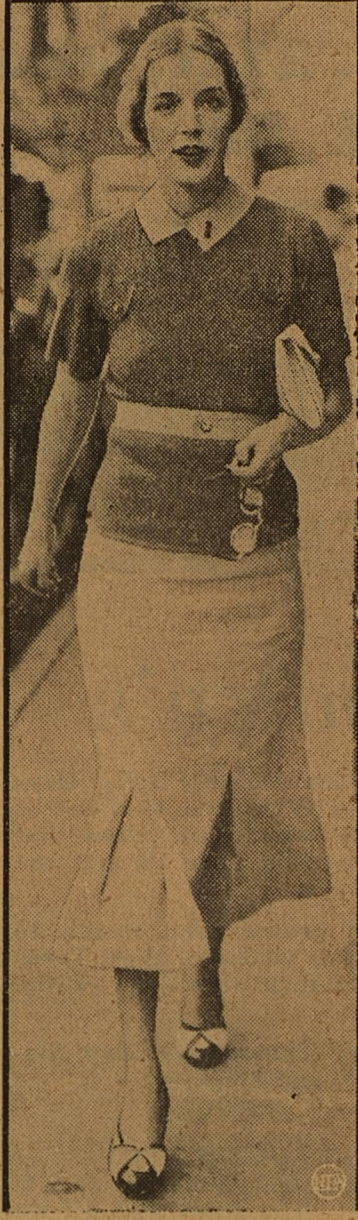

The latter statement reminds us of that quotation to the effect that it isn't the crises but the every day trivial happenings that are the biggest test of a person's real character.

Most people show courage and kindness in the big misfortunes of life, we believe. It isn't so easy to show courage, and forbearance, and undeviating kindness through a series of days and months and years when outside circumstances are making no special appeal to finer and deeper characteristics.

But no matter how people fall below perfection in everyday living we'll still believe there's something fine in humanity when people come through in grand style when the skies fall.

It has been found that ground olive stones have been mixed with some brands of pepper.

Beauty Tonic Need Not Be a Medicine

A Spring tonic which stimulates youth mentally and physically, putting a shining quality into your eyes and making your smile infectious, doesn't necessarily have to be a medicine or a diet. It may be a fine book that sets your mind at work in a new and fascinating fashion. Or a vacation. Or a new friend. Late last spring I saw a woman who looked as though she had been sleeping soundly and taking outdoor exercise with a vengeance. Her skin was blooming. Her steps were light. She seemed fairly to dance when she walked. She appeared about ten years younger than she had earlier in the winter. When asked about the change, she simply said, "Well, you see, I've just learned to read."

Just learned to read! Yet here was a woman who had graduated from a fine college years before and who had held many good positions. She meant, of course, that she had just learned to enjoy, understand and retain printed words. Her taste in literature has changed radically since then. She enjoys history, biography and the daily newspapers. Naturally, her conversation is more stimulating, and her eyes have continued to shine and sparkle. She is a nice person before. Now she is an utterly charming one. There are others who lift themselves out of late winter doldrums into a true Easter frame of mind by taking up some outdoor sport. A weekly game of tennis, or a round of golf do a good deal for drooping spirits and sallow skin. A three-day liquid diet, followed by weeks of sensible eating, will remove extra poundage which often depresses.

run from two to four million cubic feet daily. The test is located on a geophysical high three miles north-west of Seminole in section 228, block G, W. T. R. R. survey.

In Hard Lime The more advanced of the Gaines wildcats, Wahlenmayer, York and Harper No. 1 Dr. E. H. Jones, is drilling without change in hard lime below 5094 feet. Some caving from a long section of open hole is said to be slowing up drilling. Last pipe set was eight and a quarter at 3300 feet. The No. 1 Jones entered Permian "big line" at 4899 feet. It is seventeen miles northwest of Seminole in section 414, block G, C. C. S. D. & R. G. N. G. survey. In southern Winkler county, Gulf No. 1 E. R. Hill is drilling at 3554 feet in time with over 1400 feet of salt water in the hole. It is east of the Hayley pool, in section 9, block B-11, public school land.

Further north, the Texas Co. No. 1 Lum Daugherty, a half mile west of Scarborough pool production, has reached a total depth of 3271 feet in time. It tested a sand break from 3248-69 feet which is thought to be the source of about 10 barrels of salt water per day. The well is also making some oil from sands at 3037-48 and 3018-53 feet. The aggregate of oil and salt water amounts to about one and a half barrels an hour. The prospective extension is in the southeast corner of section 2, block 74, public school land.

Cleaning Out Magnolia No. 1 State-Walton is cleaning out within 12 feet of bottom preparing to drill ahead. Two shots failed to develop any oil, although the test is making over 1,500,000 cubic feet of gas from total depth of 3279. It is in section 7, block B-3, public school land, two miles east of the Savre pool. In the Waddell pool of northeastern Crane county, plug will be drilled today in Magnolia No. 4 Edwards which set and cemented seven inch casing at 3130 feet. The test topped brown lime at 3108 feet and is running about 10 feet lower than the No. 3 Edwards, the largest well yet completed in the pool. It is in section 2, block B-23, public school land.

Grand Old Man--

Venizelos is best known to America through his part in aligning Greece with the Allies during the World War. King Constantine was then pro-German, his wife being sister of Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany. Venizelos succeeded in setting up a pro-ally revolutionary government, deposing Constantine. He sent Greek troops to Salonika, and took part in the Versailles peace conference.

Started Career as Revolutionist But all that was only an incident in the turbulent life of this political cat-of-nine-tails. As long ago as 1896 he was leading a revolt of his native Cretans against Turkish rule. And this sort of personal revolutionary activity he has continued up to the present when, only a year ago, his followers tried an abortive revolt.

But in Balkan politics Venizelos has been in the forefront of trade and reciprocal treaties among these nations looking to healing Europe's chronic sore spot. Living comfortably in Paris with his young wife, Venizelos might hesitate at re-entering the maelstrom of Greek politics. But on the other hand, he has never yet been deaf to such a call to power as is expected to come to him from King George as a result of Venizelos' latest victory at the polls.
