LET US NOT BE FOOLED BY CROCODILE TEARS

All-wise Mother Nature forgot to equip the crocodile with regular tear glands, so that when this rather terrifying reptile weeps he is generally supposed to be getting ready to bite somebody; and it is worth remembering that the same rule often applies in the big wide world of human affairs.

Just at present a great many tears are being shed by British statesmen about the deplorable condition of the British fleet. Since a big naval conference is due to be held in a short time, there is a natural suspicion that these tears are of the crocodile variety. Let's have a look at things and see.

The recent exchange of harsh looks between Mussolini and Stanley Baldwin is supposed to have revealed the pitiable weakness of England's sea forces. We are told that the British fleet is deficient in battleships, in cruisers, in submarines, in everything that makes an admiral's life worth living, and that the Mediterranean show caused the empire as a unit to quake in its shoes because of the fleet's weakness.

Now it happens that there are two prominent Englishmen, amply informed on naval matters, who don't agree with this diagnosis. They are Lord Stabogin, formerly Lord Kenworthy, an ex-naval officer and member of Parliament, and the Right Honorable Albert V. Alexander, former First Lord of the Admiralty.

These men say bluntly that England's navy is still the strongest on earth. They point out that England has the two most modern battleships afloat in the Rodney and Nelson; that her Hood is the mightiest warship in the world; that the British navy is the only one which possesses battle cruisers, having three of these craft; and that when ships now under construction are finished, Britain will have 17 more cruisers than any other power on earth.

That is not a picture of a navy that is rotting away in the midst of heavily-armed enemies. It is rather a picture of the world's greatest sea power taking care that it remains the world's greatest sea power.

In that case, why the crocodile tears? Well, this naval conference is coming; and if the way can be paved properly, Americans will pat the mother country tenderly on the back and tell her for heaven's sake to go build a few warships before her fleet falls apart on her. Then, when the dust settles, they will find that they have kindly negotiated their own navy into permanent inferiority.

Maybe it would be good policy for Americans to accept second place. That isn't the point. The point is that whatever they do should be done with open eyes. Being fooled by crocodile tears can be costly.

BRIDGING A WIDE GAP

It may have escaped your attention, but a small part of the hard-earned money you have given the federal tax collector is going to be used to build bridges in Central America.

Expenditure of $340,000 of PWA for bridges in Panama, Honduras and Guatemala has been approved by President Roosevelt, under authority of an act of Congress passed a year ago last June. And while it may seem odd for Uncle Sam to be building bridges for the Central Americans, this money will really be very well spent.

The point is that these bridges will be links in the great Pan-American highway, which presently will link the Americas for motor transport. It is perfectly obvious that this will give American exporters a tremendous advantage in the Latin-American market; equally so, that it will be a great break for the American motorist who wants to go touring in new lands. The nation will get a fine return on that $340,000.

COSTLY FROM THE START

Maybe it isn't a precedent of any kind, but anyhow the New York courts have just held that the cost of a wedding is a responsibility of the groom's parents as well as of the bride's. They have ordered the $848 expenses of the marriage of one Joseph Graziano, Jr., to Mary Yacenda split between the Graziano and Yacenda in-laws.

This is interesting as a revelation of the fact that ordinary people who aren't trying to crash the society columns can still find it advisable to lay out as much as $848 on a wedding blow-out. Just why so much money need be spent to get two people safely launched on the matrimonial sea is a bit hard to understand—except that it is the custom.

What we're trying to say is that the custom is a poor one. The over-elaborate wedding is silly when staged by wealthy society folk; when attempted by people in moderate circumstances, it is actually wrong. Why not make marriages cheaper—and, incidentally, try to make them a little more lasting?

BETTER, BUT STILL BAD

The latest figures on unemployment show two things pretty clearly. First, that conditions are slowly getting better; second, that even if they get a great deal better they are still going to be very, very bad.

New figures from the National Industrial Conference Board put the number of unemployed workers in September at 9,466,000, a decrease of 386,000 from the preceding month and a drop of 927,000 from September of 1934.

This represents a substantial and steady improvement, for which we may give thanks. But how slow the improvement is, after all! If we should maintain that rate of improvement, it would be 10 mortal years before our unemployed were all back at work.

It is a truism to say that unemployment is the greatest problem of the day. A brief study of these figures shows that it is a problem which will take a tremendous amount of solving.

RECOVERY SIGNS IN TEXAS MARKED FOR PAST MONTH

AUSTIN.—Practically all phases of business activity have registered further progress toward recovery during the past month and there are good grounds for expecting that the present trend will continue, at least during the remainder of the year and the early months of the new year, it is pointed out by Dr. F. A. Buechel, assistant director of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

Marked expansion during recent weeks in retail trade, checks cashed, and the movement of miscellaneous freight indicate that the rate of consumption is rising. Dr. Buechel said, "On the industrial production side of the picture, the outstanding features are the all-time high which was reached during the week ended October 12 in electric power production; the new peak reached in freight carloadings during the week ended October 19, the highest since 1931; and the maintenance of steel activity near the high of the year despite lack of volume orders from the automobile industry during recent weeks and the fact that the steel industry has been receiving but little support in the way of orders from the heavy industries such as commercial construction, the railroads, and public utilities."

"Although the rate of activity of railroads is growing more and more favorable and that of public utilities is already highly satisfactory, the same condition unfortunately does not exist with respect to net operating incomes of either of these institutions. In the case of the railroads, fixed costs and rigid public utility rate orders for the year create difficult problems for railroad management, and this situation would be greatly accentuated if the Federal social security act and the railroad pension acts were to be upheld by the Supreme Court. About 70,000 miles of railroad are already in receivership, more than one-fourth of the total for the century, with more receiverships impending. Until some of these problems are brought nearer solution they are at present, the railroads will not be in position to contribute either to the direct or indirect reduction of unemployment to an extent commensurate with the importance of this industry in our present economic structure."

"Although much of the distress of the railroads may be accounted for by the general business depression and the aggressiveness of competing agencies, this explanation will not account for the current low operating returns of public utilities, for the output of these organizations declined relatively little during the depression, and, at present, the output is the highest on record. Political rather than economic factors, therefore, appear to be responsible for the current unfavorable net operating results of public utilities. Should the Supreme Court invalidate or ameliorate the influence of recent Federal legislation pertaining to public utilities, an important stimulus to the heavy industries would doubtless result, with corresponding benefits to the employment situation."

"Considerable apprehension is being expressed in certain quarters concerning the effect on agriculture of the possible invalidation of the AAA by the Supreme Court. So far, at least as Texas is concerned, these fears seem to be without foundation. The animal industries of the State—beef, dairy, poultry, wool and mohair—which have never come under the AAA program now have comparatively bright prospects; and the prospects for the cotton industry, which has supposedly received special governmental favors in the form of rental and benefit payments, and pegged prices, are far less favorable."

"If subsidies for agriculture are needed as a permanent policy to compensate for the natural hazards of agriculture constantly faces and the weak bargaining position which the industry holds because of its six million widely scattered operating units and diverse interests, these subsidies, it would seem, should be associated with a program for promoting efficiency in production and not the reverse. With such a program, the additional tax burdens which direct subsidies would involve might be at least partially offset by lower costs of food and the maintenance of our foreign markets for agricultural products.

"The statistical position of agriculture is now the strongest it has been in years as a result of the devastating drought of 1934 and the growing demand for farm products. This is the time, therefore, to consider carefully to what extent the Federal Government itself may have been responsible for the building up of burdensome surpluses through the '20s by its production loan policies, the activities of the Federal Farm Board, and the recent price pegging operations of the AAA."

Haight's Dreams

Years ago there was a girl living in New York named May Yohe. She was extremely beautiful in every way. She was the divorced wife of Lord Hope of England who possessed the famous Hope diamond that brought ill fortune to anyone who owned it. That however is a story by itself. Well May came to New York and tried to get a place on the stage. That was easy to do but the stage producer wanted to see what she could do before he signed a contract so he asked her manager how her singing voice was. He replied that it was wonderful. The producer insisted that he know her range, that is, how high and low she could sing. "Well," said her manager, "I don't know about her range but I know she has two notes in her voice and say, they are dandies." Now comes the part that brings in this dream business that many persons here are interested in. Sounds affect the brain either awake or asleep. I was sleeping deeply one night. I dreamed that May Yohe came down the road arm in arm with Theosophists. Fritz was the man who had a singing school here a few years ago. He was writing an opera that was going to electrify the musical world and intimated that he would have parts in it for many of our talented young ladies in Midland. He departed this section taking his unfinished opera with him. Little has been heard of him since. As May and Theosophists came near me they began singing. May with her two notes and Theosophists with what he had in his throat. Their combined voices awoke me but the sound kept on. I lay there partially awake but not fully. Then I regained consciousness and realized that the sound came from a call that was feathered right across the street from our house. Can you explain that? I can't.

HOME ECONOMICS CLASS ENTERTAINS WITH SUPPER

The Home Economics III class entertained the members of the high school faculty with a buffet supper in the home economics department on Thursday evening.

A Thanksgiving motif was carried out in the decorations.

The menu consisted of city chicken, potato puffs, ginger ale salad with cheese pumpkins, pumpkin chiffon pie and candied nuts.

Inez Smiley acted as hostess and Helen Droleman as assistant hostess. They were aided by Gertrude Cookburn, Mary Marie Howard and Marcella Scarborough.

The guests included Supt. W. W. Lackey, Messrs. and Mrs. R. E. Shrader, R. D. Scroggins, De Lo Douglas, Misses Dorothy Radtiff, Elizabeth Lomax, Ruth Carden, Vera Helmer, Jessie Belle Cummings, Marion Carlwright, Helene Miley, Tammie Burrus, Ina Mae Vaughn, Phyllis Matlock, Theresa Klapproth, Frances Reast, Misses Elizabeth Wright and Alma Thomas, and Messrs. H. D. Bearden and D. D. Shifflett.

Mr. Lackey read the letter from Melba.

Over whom Billy Noble and Wayne Lanham had a quarrel Wednesday morning.

If Betty will ever break up with Malcolm—they broke up Saturday night, made up again Sunday night. You're doing well, Betty, if you can just keep it up.

What "Fish" girl Ralph was talking about when he said that going with her was like trying to wash your feet with your socks on.

If Skinny and Janie will make up before Christmas, Janie, I would imagine you had an eye for business.

What Johnnie Faye did during the holidays.

If Miss Carden has an S. L. Whom Deephane is casing long-time eyes at.

If Doris Tidwell really likes John Rhoden. Anyway we know that Freddie Lou did.

WHO'S IT—

Characteristic: Short, fat, not too smart.

Classification: Junior.

Attraction: Mammie Turlington.

Hair: Red.

Signature: Skinny rather tall.

Habit: Closing one eye.

Flame: Fred Mitchell.

Classification: Senior.

Answers for last week are Johnnie Faye Howe and Gertrude Vance.

EVERYDAY

By Ralph Lamar

It is an unofficial report that Ed and Billy Rene have called it quits for good. Well, you know it is here today and gone tomorrow.

Ed said he went to San Angelo to see his father, but don't forget that the former vamp of Midland High, Vernia Leone McMullan, lives there.

After Lucille's attempt to capture Walker's heart failed, I see she's turning back to Lige. Will Lige be waiting with open arms?

Billy's love for Melrose is yet lingering. The boy must have it bad.

Is it the Midland High beauties that attract those guys on the motorcycles everyday at noon, or do they just need the fresh air?

The freshman class didn't do so bad when they got those new girls. It's getting to be a habit with Liz and Jack.

BAND NOTES

The band has been having a long rehearsal on each Monday night. This week the rehearsal was held Thursday night. The band works on contest music which promises to be harder than usual.

The required number for 1936 contest is "Safari," a new overture by Guy E. Holmes. "Safari" is a colorful overture with all instruments having prominent parts. It requires an oboe player, which we do not have. The oboe is not technically difficult and some student could start on this instrument and make the band in one year.

For a selected number the band will probably use "Youth Triumph" by Henry Hadley.

During the past week the band has been marching by verbal com## mands rather than the drum major's signals.

This class meets three times a week the fourth period and serves as physical education. Mr. Shrader has used the class for a training school for drum majors and several are showing promise. The class is conducted on a socialized basis. Each member at some time is placed in the position of commander or drum major. Sometimes more than one squad will drill at the same time. There are 26 enrolled in the class.

BULLDOG BOW-WOW

The spotlight of district 7-B is centered on Odessa when the Bulldogs and Broncs will clash November 18. The two teams have seemed to be evenly matched, until the Johnny Green and Nash Tucker combination ran rough shod over the Pecora Eagles Armistice. The score was 19-7 in favor of the Broncs.

The Midland fans need not lose hopes of Midland beating Odessa. The Midland and Odessa lines are about evenly matched in weight and experience, but Odessa thinks that Johnny Green and Nash Tucker are the two best backs in the district; however, we believe that Walford and Midkiff can match them.

TYPISTS SHOW SPEED

The typing classes, having mastered the keyboard and operative parts of the typewriters, are beginning a study of business letters and forms. They have taken several short speed tests, too. The best speed was 30.5 and 27 net words per minute, made by E. C. Girdley and Kathryn Brown respectively.

FACTS AND ASSUMPTIONS

What can be the meaning of this, Marcelle called up C. A. and asked him whether she could go with Johnny Nobles.

Betty is worrying about who will be her attendant in the coronation. She wants Bill, but that's the way with life. I guess she will take Bob instead.

Sam is all sugar and pie over Marcelle now. He must want to be in the coronation too.

The Lucky Seven has slowed down this week. They are all busy trying to be in the coronation.

Johnny has finally confessed she wants to go to the football banquet with Renfro.

Fred just can't shake Joanna no matter how hard he tries, for where you see him, Joanna is always near.

Betty and Wanda will soon come to blows about who has the best brother-in-law.

Mr. Shifflett is greatly hurt because his name hasn't appeared in the Midland High News more often. Things are getting pretty bad. Our famous James Walker wants to take Miss Matlock to the football banquet.

Cupid is working around MHS. It seems Mr. Lackey is about to lose a good secretary.

PEEPING PERCY

Well, well, well, is this a surprise? Newnie asked Anna Beth to go to the magician show—but she didn't go. At first you don't succeed, try again, Spoozie.

Our fish girls seem to be doing very well with graduates. For example, Compton Ward came after Helen Mayes, at the game Friday night, and Pat Cope came after Nola Mae Newton.

Darleen, how do you feel since Leo has turned all eyes to Phoebe? Maybe I should ask Leo how he feels.

John Junior Dublin certainly seems to think a lot of our beauty, Jessie Lynn—enough to carve her initials all over his notebook. These freshmen really have the cases between themselves.

La Moine has so many callers and her house is so far out that she has had a flag put up in the lot across from her house. When the flag is up, she is home, and when it is down, she's gone (really with A. B.). With special effort, the flag was made high enough for most of the high school boys to see from their homes and to save them the trouble of having to lift the telephone receiver.

Alta announced the other day that she never saw a boy she didn't like. These boys don't know how lucky they are.

Sam, it looks as though you've got your girl back from Johnnie Nobles again. (Much to two juniors girls' regret.)

Miss Cumming said "Little Willie" seem to be progressing fairly well.

Wheel Gerald, our child prodigy who actually knows the alphabet up to c and is now learning the days of the week, reached the remarkable age of sixteen Wednesday, and celebrated it with a dinner at his home that evening. But the treat of the evening was that he received a telegram from his girl in Arkansas!

BOYS PLAY LAST GAME

In the pep rally Friday morning Coach Baumgarten asked the seniors and the boys that would be ineligible if the 18-year rule goes into effect next year to pass across the stage. The boys are as follows: T. Bryant, O. Buffington, L. H. Collins, F. Cowden, S. Midkiff, captain, J. B. Miller, F. Mitchell, R. Prothro, B. Reid, R. Richman, captain, J. B. Thomas, D. Wafford, B. # Texas Range, Livestock Conditions On Upgrade

Well Above 10-Year Average for the State; Direct Opposite to 1934

The condition of Texas ranges and livestock is well above the 10-year average on November 1, and is in direct contrast to the extremely low condition of a year ago. Rainfall has been adequate in all sections, except the extreme northern portion of the Panhandle where only scattering showers fell during October.

Although Texas cattle ranges declined 1 point to 87% of normal during October, condition is well above the November 1 ten-year average of 79.4%, and is 37 points above the extremely low condition on November 1, 1934. The figure this month is the highest November 1 condition since 1926, excepting 1922 when ranges were 88% of normal.

Despite the 1 point decline in condition during October, the outlook for winter ranges as a whole is probably somewhat better than it was on October 1. Most of the northern portion of the Panhandle, which was the only section of the State badly in need of rainfall, received some moisture during the month. Should additional rain fall in this area immediately, conditions should improve rapidly; otherwise, it appears that this section of the State again will face the necessity of feeding heavily to carry stock through the winter. There is considerable forage available in this section but grain feed is scarce. Wheat has not developed far enough to furnish much grazing at this time.

In all other areas range and feed conditions appear to be ideal. Ranges of hay and other feeds, but moisture except in a few scattered localities where reports indicate a shortage of grass and feed. Stock water is adequate in all sections.

Condition of sheep ranges declined 2 points during October, and is now rated at 92% of normal compared with 41% a year ago, and 81.8% the 10-year average. Ranges are almost universally good for winter ranges and feed, and water supplies are generally plentiful.

Cattle will go into the winter in much better than average condition, and with prospects for good grass and ample feed supplies, they should winter well with a minimum loss, unless the winter is unusually severe.

Condition improved 1 point to 88% of normal during October, which compares with 61% a year ago, and 82.8% the 10-year average condition on November 1. Losses have not been heavy, reports indicating that most of the loss has been due to a few worm infestations.

Full shipments of cattle have been heavy with prospects of lighter shipments during the remainder of the winter. There is a tendency to hold young cattle (cows and heifers) to restock where cattle were sold close in 1934.

Sheep

The condition of Texas sheep is 91% of normal compared with 90% on October 1, 60% a year ago, and 84.6% the 10-year average on November 1.

Conditions are unusually good in the main sheep area and stock will go into the winter in strong condition. Losses are reported as about normal, and feed is abundant. Most of the ewe lambs have been held and few ewes have been shipped out of the State. There is very active demand for breeding ewes.

Goats

Goat condition at 91% of normal remains unchanged from a month ago and compares with 65% on November 1, 1934, and 85.3% the 10-year average.

Western Range Report, Nov. 1 (U. S. Western States)

Range and pasture feeds are very good and above average in the Western States, with large supplies of hay, roughages, and other feeds. Livestock are going into the winter in above average condition, according to the monthly Livestock and Range Report of the United States Division of Crop and Livestock Estimates.

Ranges

Feed on western ranges and pastures is very good, with the condition generally above average. Supplies on the programs. The annual staff cleared $40.00.

The staff also prepared and sent in pictures of the Midland High School float, band and pep squad which appeared in the parade the evening day of the Midland fair. They also sent in two pages of pictures of the freshman initiation. They are working on the senior pages now.

Water Softeners Cheaply Priced Now On Market

Cheaply priced small-home water softeners of superior quality are on the market.

They are purchasable under the terms of the Federal Housing Act, with no down payment and with many months to pay.

Coming at this particular time, the announcement of a new junior line of home water softening equipment by a leading manufacturer, at a price of about one-third less than the larger models, is of interest not only to the public in hard water territories, but to industry in general.

In past periods of recovery from economic maladjustment, the whole range of business has been benefited by the conversation of some mechanical product from the "luxury" to the necessity class. Automobiles had their big inning; in fact, they have had several big innings. Radios and electric refrigeration have had theirs. If one investigates farther back, the list grows.

Right now, two ingenious products that stand at the head of the line, ready for the gates to open wide on free spending, are home water softening equipment and home air conditioning systems. Each helps to make life infinitely more comfortable.

To be sure, water softening units have not been "luxuries" in terms of price for service, because the cost of units employing the hard-water extracting mineral, zeolite, has not been prohibitive for a great many people. Many thousands of homes, as well as hotels, restaurants, hospitals, beauty parlors and other institutions, have been equipped. But production of new junior models puts hard water relief within easy reach of countless more small-home owners, and that enables a tremendous increase in distribution of the Hundreds of dealers throughout the country already have reported a most encouraging mass interest in the junior water softeners. And, what is more significant, the public has begun to order them in good numbers.

In one year a junior water softener will save considerably more money out of the household budget than the cost of one of the models. Hard water is hard on complexion, hands, skin and hair; it injures delicate fabrics, streaks china and glassware, "eats up" soap and necessitates the use of strong scouring powders. It clogs pipes, automobile radiator tubes, water heaters and steam boilers with hard scale and hinders fuel bills. And it does not bring out the full tenderness and flavor of vegetables when cooking. Hard water is unhygienic, because it makes dirt-removal so difficult and leaves a filmy deposit of soap curds. It often causes a rash on infants that may be mistaken for prickly heat.

An annual saving of $17.50 for an average family of four in modern water softening is effected by installation of zeolite water softening equipment, according to figures compiled from the experience of thousands of users. The saving is on soap and cleanser bills, clothing and linens, maintenance of plumbing, heating plant, water heater, etc., and preparation of foodstuffs. Saving on fuel is not included in the above sum.

The principle of these junior water softeners is the same as that of the larger models: elimination of calcium (lime) and magnesium from water by running it through a tank filled with zeolite. No chemicals are added to the water and the inhibitor's effectiveness is made to last indefinitely by a simple regenerating process. This equipment is attractive in appearance and its substantial make-up is tested for many years of service.

Gar fish have green bones.

V-8 LEADERSHIP

On October 31 of last year, Henry Ford announced his intention to build a million Ford V-8s in 1935. We are pleased to report that this goal was reached in exactly ten months instead of a full year.

One million cars and trucks is an impressive total. But figures by themselves mean nothing. It is what they represent that counts. Selling a V-8 at a low price has brought a new kind of automobile within reach of the people. Producing it has provided steady work for hundreds of thousands of men in the Ford plants, in associated industries and on the farm.

These million Ford V-8 cars and trucks have helped to make things better all around. In the first ten months of 1935 the Ford Motor Company paid out, in the United States alone, $140,119,326.00 in wages and $523,111,399.00 for materials.

Over-Use of Beauty Aids Defeats Aim

By ALICIA HART
NEA Service Staff Writer.

Just as too many accessories—even though they are handsome ones—spoil the well-groomed effect for which you strive, too great a collection of attention-getting beauty aids, worn at one time, make you look haphazardly turned out instead of neat and trim.

The woman who starts out wearing long, artificial eyelashes, an intricate coiffure, a black beauty spot on cheek or chin and scarlet nails impresses others in much the same way as one who dresses up a frock with beads, earrings, bracelets, a mesh collar and jeweled belt.

The easiest way to solve the problem of what to put on and what to leave off is to decide first of all just which feature or which part of your face you wish to dramatize. If you have nice eyes, make them up as much as you like, wear an off-the-brow hairdress and don't use enough rouge and lipstick to draw attention away from your eyes.

If you have a beautiful mouth and chin, forget about mascara and eyeshadow and concentrate on learning how to apply lipstick to accentuate your mouth. Girls with lovely ears are the ones who should wear their hair off the face and go in for earrings.

Broad faces look less wide if hair is parted in the center. Long ones and long noses, too, look shorter if the hair is done with a side part. If you have a well-shaped head, wear your hair flat across the back. Incidentally, ringlet curls, unless they are pinned down smoothly, tend themselves well to large faces, whether round or oval. Leave these for girls with rather small features.

Unless your hands are truly pretty, better wear neutral polish on your nails. Vivid tones attract attention to your hands, of course.

PTA Speaker Talks On Helping Children To Be Thankful

Editor's Note: The following talk on "Helping Our Children to Be Thankful" was given by Mrs. O'Rourke before the meeting of North Ward PTA Friday afternoon. The speaker concluded her paper with a story which, because of its length, cannot be printed here.

By MRS. A. J. O'ROURKE

Truthfulness, which is honesty toward facts, is something we have to learn. It is not inherited but is acquired by the child through training. Think, then, what an immense responsibility we parents shoulder in attempting to raise our children to manhood and womanhood. You are best not to have too stringent family laws about punishment for falsehoods. Do not deliberately censoring a particular lie and meeting dire lie with dire punishment. If this method should be followed your youngsters will soon anticipate your methods and be able to sidestep the issue with more fabrications. It is equally as bad to promise to punish if complete truthfulness be told. How can your child expect the same forgiveness in later life? You, for example, might be forgiven for running over the neighbor's child's tricycle, but never the less you would be expected to pay for its repair. The child's responsibility should not end with the mere admittance of the error.

A child will sometimes lie because life is too hard for him. He may have his entire day planned for him, to the extent that he has very little time to squander joyfully on himself. Such a child may invent excuses as to why he was kept in school and so forth, just to acquire the coveted time of freedom.

Lies may be divided into two classes—the black and the white. We as adults know, or hope we do, where to draw the line, but it is mighty difficult for a child to tell just where or when a lie is getting a bit too grey. How many of us say, "Tell Jimmy you are sorry you hit him," when we know for certain that John is pleased as much to get it off his chest. Or "Tell Mary thank you for the lovely hankies" when you are perfectly aware that Sally had a special yen for a soap bubble pipe. We are still familiar with the old one "Run to the door, Johnny, and tell the agent Mother isn't in" and Johnny obediently trots to the door with the enlightening message—"Mother says to tell you she isn't home."

It is possible that many times we don't properly investigate the apparent lies our children tell us. We could help them by listening a bit more carefully. Take the case of the child who insisted he had been talking with "God." The child told where he had talked with God, what He looked like, what they said to each other and that God even told him his name was Jehovah. If the parents had listened patiently and gone with their son to meet God as he begged them to do they would have been saved much mental unrest. The apparent lie was solved by Jehovah actually appearing at the family door one night to sell them some vegetables and he not only resembled, mightily, our pictures of God but his name was Jehovah. Imagine the questionings that must have gone on in this young man's mind when all of the time he knew his story was really sincere.

The child who really delights in telling whoppers need not be a bad child at all. It may be just the result of a highly vivid imagination. The imagination should be fostered but the wild stories turned into a game—with the child thoroughly understanding the ridiculousness of the pretended truism. Even the very young are quick to sense the difference between probability and possibility and will sarch the face of the older to see whether or not he is putting over his wild tale.

Truth can be held best when one is shown through firmness, kindness, and understanding on the part of the parents.

Continued bad weather prevented the morning's golf games.

Mrs. W. R. Bowden and Mrs. D. J. Finley were hostesses for the luncheon with the following women present: Mmes. Joe Pyron, J. M. Armstrong, Harper, Geo. Farley House, Alden Donnelly, Adams, J. W. Rettig, D. C. Hempel, Thos. B. Flood, Spradling, Joe Clingan, Stacy, Frank Aldrich, R. C. Conkling, D. S. Googins, W. B. Harkrider, Hemphill, C. A. Porterfield, Allen Hargrave, C. R. Titus of Mexico City, T. I. Harkins of Houston, Fred Wilcox, John Shipley, I. E. Daniel, J. R. Ashley, E. A. Keeler.

Mrs. D. L. DeHonne and Mrs. Phillips will be hostesses next Friday.

sheer cruelty to tell Mary the tooth extraction or the shot in the arm "will not hurt a bit," when we know that it will. It is much harder to spend an hour or two preparing Mary for the ordeal, that's true, but once she has made up her mind herself to go through with it, the feeling of achievement will repay both the child and the parent, many times over.

In my opinion, a child can be taught, at an early age, the difference between a peaceful and a troubled conscience. This can be shown through firmness, kindness, and understanding on the part of the parents.

Four Are Hostesses at Dance

Mmes. Duffey, Walsh, Fitzgerald, and Crump Entertain Large Group at Affair in Hotel Scharbauer Friday Evening

Outstanding among social affairs of the pre-Thanksgiving season was the dance for which Mmes. W. T. Walsh, C. C. Duffey, James Fitzgerald, and Joe Crump were hostesses, in the Crystal ballroom of the Hotel Scharbauer Friday evening.

Floor baskets and tall stands of huge yellow chrysanthemums, ferns, and yellow roses, gave a touch of autumn festivity to the ballroom. Ned Bradley's orchestra of 10 pieces from Lubbock played for dancing.

Funch was served during the evening. Approximately 150 invitations were sent out for the affair. Several out-of-town guests were present.

Fire Hazards and Parking Discussed
By North Ward PTA

Discussion of fire hazards and a plea led by Mrs. F. H. Schouten for safety from them in the school building was a feature of the North Ward PTA meeting Friday afternoon at North Ward.

Mrs. E. R. Thomas, principal, in discussing the dangers of haphazard parking in front of the school asked that parents cooperate by parking head-in at the curb, preferably at the end of the campus. If necessary to park in front of the building, adherence to head-in parking was urged as being less likely to lead to accidents than horizontal parking in the street.

Mrs. A. J. O'Rourke spoke on "Helping Our Children to Be Thankful" and Mrs. E. W. Anguish read an adaptation of "Edith Cavell," a play.

The rhythm band of the school played. A good attendance was reported.

District Home Economics Club Formed By Representative Here Saturday as Midland, Odessa, Hosts to Meeting

The first meeting of the home economics clubs of district seven was held at the High School here Saturday with the Midland and Odessa clubs as hostesses.

Colorado, Garden City, and Stanton sent representatives to the meeting at which organization of the district body was effected. The following district officers were chosen at a business session Saturday afternoon: President, Lucille Bodine, Colorado; vice president, Tommie Shelburne, Stanton; secretary, Billie Rene Robinson, Midland; treasurer, Mary Beth Scruggs, Midland.

It was decided that the next meeting of the organization would be held at Colorado in the spring. The primary object of the movement is to promote acquaintance between the different clubs and give reports of their activities. The program for Saturday morning stressed the serious and inspirational side of the meeting. Miss Phyllis Matlock, head of the clothing department of Midland High School, while the afternoon numbers were more "peppy."

Adale Reiger, president of the Midland High School home economics club which has a membership of approximately 150, gave the welcome address opening the morning session in the High School auditorium.

Supt. W. W. Lackey brought greetings to those present. Following the introduction of representatives by Laverne Bodine of Midland, the girls' trio of the High School, composed of Mary E. Newman, Wanda Ticker, and Jane Dunagan, presented a musical selection.

Mrs. E. R. Thomas, principal of North Ward school, speaking on "Living the 24 Hours a Day," made the chief inspirational address of the day. Group singing and a tap dance by Wanda George, Midland, closed the afternoon session after which club reports were made by Maxine Bell of Garden City, Tommie Shelburne of Stanton, Norma Lee Hall of Colorado, and Adale Reiger of Midland.

The reports were followed by a business meeting in which district attendance now, this being an improvement over a few days ago.

The new schedule of opening school at 8 o'clock and dismissing at 2 o'clock is meeting the hearty approval of every one. Mrs. W. C. Crady of every one. Mrs. W. C. Crady reported because "we can do practically a half day of cotton picking each day."

Among visitors last week were Lynch King, Mrs. Barney High-tower, Judge E. H. Barron, Mr. Monikern and Messrs. Watts and Crady of Heinz Manufacturing company.

Judge Barron gave an interesting talk on Red Cross work Friday. Miss Ozella Bryant did substitute teaching in the primary department Monday for Miss Jewell Mickiff who was visiting in Lubbock. Mrs. A. M. Bryant did substitute teaching in the intermediate department for Mrs. Edith Wilson who was away in her father's home south of town.

Rev. W. C. Williamson of Stanton preached at both services at Greenwood Sunday. Attendance was good and there were three additions to the church and one conversion.

Sunday school at Prairie Lee Sunday afternoon was well attended. At McClintic school, Carl, John, Marjorie, and Marie Ward were absent last week to gather cotton but will be back this week, their father reported.

Ross Fisher was ill and missed half a day from school Wednesday. Rev. W. R. Mann visited the school Friday. He made a short talk and gave the children some Bible story pamphlets, Miss Hazel Self, teacher, said.

Monday morning's exercises at McClintic school consisted of appropriate numbers on Armistice Day subjects. Mrs. Ruby Jamison, teacher, reported.

Visitors last week were Mrs. Lura Hollingsworth, Judge E. H. Barron

Midland Leaguers Attend Meeting at Sterling City

Messrs. Alvon Patterson, Woodrow and Ray Gwyn attended a meeting of the Shepherds Union at Sterling City, Friday night.

The meeting opened with a chili supper given by the Sterling City League, after which the group met in the main auditorium of the First Methodist Church for a business and devotional meeting.

The theme "On to Memphis" was carried out in earnest. Talks were given by Rev. E. O. Moreland of Robert Lee, Texas, and Rev. L. O. Spellman, presiding elder, San Angelo, and by the conference executive secretary, Rev. W. W. Patrick. They also pointed out high lights of the coming conference.

A trio of "See You in Memphis" was given by Misses Gladys Byrd and Marjorie Cox and Mr. John Smith. The district director is being sent to Memphis by the Pastors and the Union.

Eighty three representatives from the various leagues were present as follows: Miles 7, First Church, San Angelo 26, Trinity Church, San Angelo 7, Water Valley 12, Robert Lee one, Sterling City 19, Midland three. There were six pastors present, and two visitors.

While there the Messrs. Patterson and Gwyn renewed friendships of long standing when Midland was a member of the West Texas Conference also some of the friends known in college.

November's Health Perils Call for Many Precautions

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
Old wives used to say, "Live through March and you live all summer." My experience with children and children's diseases compels me to add, "Live through November and live all winter."

It seems to me that something stronger than coincidence has made this coming month one to keep an eye on. About seven-tenths of my family's serious illnesses have occurred after the leaves fell.

Is it not natural, then, associating late fall with almost everything from pneumonia, scarlet fever and diphtheria to the lower grade germ diseases (usually ticked as grippe and flu), that I send out a storm signal to others who have lived a shorter time?

Fall is Worse Than Spring. The greatest factor in maintaining health is always that of keeping up body defense and resistance.

The day, as hard as she works now, but what was that when the little hand on the clock was moving steadily toward eight — when another world would swing open with the time-lock and promise some new allure?

Even Husband Has Changed. Now she can't even go shopping, or across the street for kaffee klatch with a neighbor. It's nothing but boil bottles, change diapers, keep Jeanie out of the Young Mother Faces Life of Irsome Restrictions. By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON. Complains a young mother: "I can't go anywhere or see anything. I have two young children and nobody to leave them with. My husband often works at night, but when he is at home he is too tired to go out, or let me go while he looks after the family."

Poor child. She can't be much more than that, I'm sure. Just a few short years ago she was getting waves and manures and going driving with Jim or to the movies with Bob or dancing with Harold. Perhaps she worked through knife-drawer; bathe, scrub, wash, cook, strain cereal and at bed time find herself just where she started in the morning. A silent and perhaps grumpy husband, too, who no long glitters in tux and studs, but most likely asks her if she has a quarter left for carfare.

Nature counts on the stamina of its girls to produce and endure. Her compensation is the love she puts in the young mother's heart for her helpless, babies, love of husband and contentment of home.

It is not abnormal for the still-young woman to long for some diversion. Indeed it would be abnormal if she didn't. After all she is human, and routine and confinement are ever hard for the young, particularly if there is no break.

There may be some comfort, however, in being told a few things.

Has Company in Misery. First of all, that she is not selected to suffer alone, if she calls it suffering to be tied down. Motherhood, the child-bearing period, is always an interlude in social life, more or less.

Second, when the children are older, and the youngest is in kindergarten, she will not only still be attractive but at the best time of her life. She will be surprised at the zest for living that remains in her. Not only that but the richness of experience will color her view and give it depth.

Attitude will help. A disappointment may strengthen determination to succeed or be a knock-out blow, according to character. The trouble lies here mostly. I think. Many a lovely young mother croons to her baby and fairly shivers with the happiness of it all. She is satisfied to be a wife and mother and let the rest of the world go by.

As to the restlessness, let them be patient. Some day they will sigh over their tall children and wish they were babies again. (Copyright, 1935, NEA Service, Inc.)

SECOND HALF POWER ATTACK GIVES BULLDOGS 13-0 VICTORY

WAFFORD LEADS WAY FOR MATES OVER THE LOBOES

Invaders Outplay Home Team in 1st Half LAST HOME GAME All-Victorious Year Had on Lackey Field

Unleashing a powerful second half drive, the Midland Bulldogs kept their home slate clean for the season Friday night when they overpowered a heavier Monahans team to win a hard-earned 13-0 victory. After being roughly outplayed in the first half, the club came out with fire in their eyes and with Wafford, powerful half, leading the way, they proceeded to play most of the second half in their opponents' territory.

Wafford undoubtedly played the best game that he has all season and time after time ripped the Lobo forward line apart with powerful drives, often making yards after two and three of the invading team members got hold of him.

The big half was not the only

Midland player to show outstanding form, but he was the brightest light of the night on either side.

Hary, Monahans quarterback, was the outstanding player for his team and all during the first half was a constant threat through his ball carrying ability and his field generalship.

The Midland team got into a hole early in the first quarter that they never got out of until the second half had started. Collins, Bulldog safety, picked one of Hary's long punts on the Midland 10 yard stripe but before he could get out of his tracks, he was tackled fiercely by one of the Lobo ends, fumbled and the ball was recovered by Monahans. The Bulldogs managed to hold, however, and take the ball on downs, but Richman, kicking from behind the goal line, got one off for only about 15 yards and once more the visitors marched into the shadows of the Midland goal. Once more a hard fighting line managed to hold the hard driving Lobo backs, but once more Richman got one off that flew out on the home team 15 yard stripe. After holding the invaders for the third consecutive time, a series of end runs and a long punt by Richman finally placed the ball in mid-field but most of the play for the rest of the half was in Midland territory.

Midland's first touchdown came as the result of a fluke on the first play of the second half. After Prothro kicked off, one of the Monahans halves touched the ball before it rolled over the goal line and before he could make up his mind whether or not to pick up the ball, Midkiff raced over and fell on it behind the goal line, automatically giving the Bulldogs six points. Prothro's try for the extra point was wide.

The other Midland score came later in the same quarter when Wafford, almost single handed, carried the ball about 50 yards, finally going over on a sensational 35 yard run off his own right tackle. On this run Wafford was apparently stopped several times by the defending team, but through sheer power and a strong stiff-arm he went over six yards up. Prothro kicked the extra point.

The Bulldogs threatened to score all during the last quarter, three times getting inside the Monahans 10 yard stripe, but the necessary power to put them over could not be mustered.

First downs were eight to four in favor of Midland, but they failed to show the clear superiority of Midland in the last half.

Keys Quadruplets Turn Out to Help Texas Eleven

Instead of triple-threat men who can run, kick, and pass, teams facing Texas' Baylor University this season must beware a quadruple threat, the famed Keys sisters of Hollis, Okla., who are giving Baylor graders a few tips on teamwork and co-operation which they learned in more than 20 years of sisterly comradeship. "Ox" Parry, star tackle at the Waco, Tex., institution, is the lucky pupil shown above with his quadruplet mentors. ## A. C. C. PREPARING FOR HOMECOMING

Largest Gathering of All Time Expected by Officials

ABILENE, Nov. —Abilene Christian college is expecting its largest gathering of ex-students and friends to be present for the fourth annual big home-coming to be held at the college campus, Abilene, Texas, November 22 and 23. As students are enrolled in the school from this community and as a number of patrons and friends of the institution live here, a number are expected to attend from Midland.

High lights of the annual gathering which for the past two years has numbered more than 2,000 will be the traditional bonfire and pep rally Friday, November 22, with the students' association in charge; of special groups, including ex-students of Christian colleges, not now in operation which were last year voted as honorary members of the ex-students' association, to be held Saturday morning; annual ex-student chapel program Saturday, November 23, 10:00 a. m., to be followed by a business meeting of the ex-students' association. At 11:30 a. m. the traditional West Texas barbecue will be held on the campus; and at 2:30 p. m. the annual football game with McMurray college will be played.

Committee chairman in charge of various activities are J. W. Trout, programs; Mrs. M. E. Gilliland and Miss Gladys Arledge, lodging; J. E. McKenzie, barbecue; and Wendell

FLUBDUBS

By JESS RODGERS

Through the courtesy of "Doc" Ellis, John Smith was able to collect a far better feed than we had planned on having feed for him.

Like a bolt from the blue Doc told us "Thursday." Who ever heard of a newspaper writer having money enough to feed himself, much less anyone else, bring Smith out to house after the game and I'll feed you both." He did—AND HOW! When it comes to making enchiladas, the doctor is in a class by himself, and after the enormous amount of them consumed by those present, the Ellis exchequer is probably much lower now.

It is a good thing for Frank Cowden that Doc donated the dinner. We would have sent him a bill for half of it had we been forced to buy it because of his failure to give Wafford a chance to make another touchdown in the closing moments of the game when the ball was resting inside the Monahans 10 yard stripe.

There was only a handful of spectators at the game but they were amply repaid for their braving the cold weather by the play of Wafford. That big boy played with a dash and a fury in the last half and swept the Lobos off their feet, and given more opportunities to carry the ball he would undoubtedly have made more counters.

His long dash for a touchdown was the highlight of the game. It seemed that practically every man on the Monahans team touched him at least once but he just used sheer power and a wicked stiff arm to jostle them all out of his way.

For a few minutes early in the game Midkiff looked like he did at the start of the season, but relapsed into his expiring habit of falling down each time he carried the ball until finally Cowden was sent in for him.

Where at the start of the season it was almost impossible to get him off his feet, Sam falls down now practically every time he tries to cut into a hole. In our opinion it is just a case of him trying too hard. Naturally high-strung, when he enters a game he is not as cool and deliberate as he should be in his movements on the field.

The line play of the Bulldogs in that first quarter was something to write home about. Three consecutive times early in the game they were forced to repulse the heavier Lobos inside their own 10 yard line, and each time they met the challenge in glorious fashion. Irrespective of what the Monahans quarter called, it failed.

Richman made a couple of outrageously short kicks early in the game to help keep the team in the hole, but once he got one straightened out he kept it up the rest of the evening. His defense play was up to his usual standard and that is plenty.

Decreased Shipping Of Livestock Not Tonnage Disparity

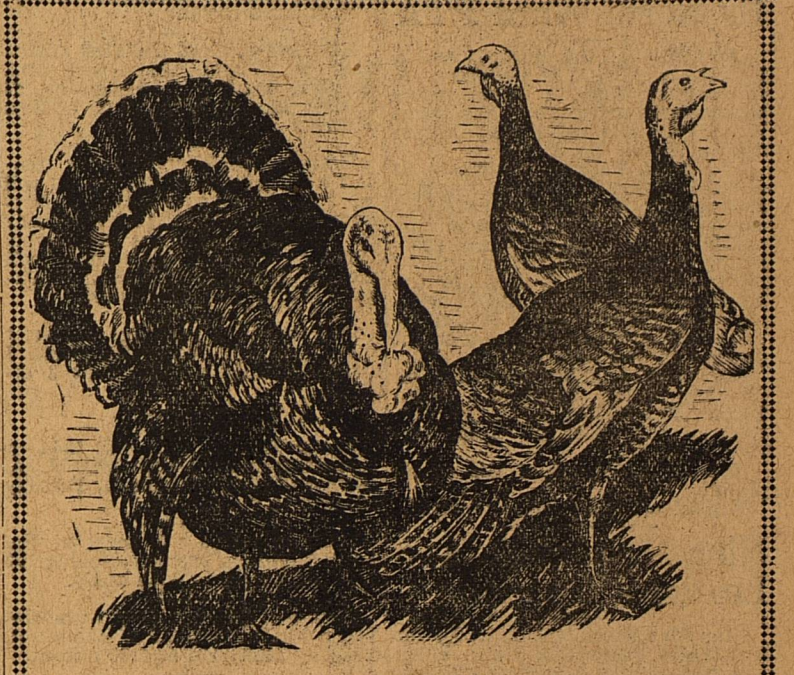

AUSTIN, (AP).—Despite decreased livestock forwardings to Fort Worth and interstate points, Dr. F. A. Buechel of the University of Texas bureau of business research believes the disparity in tonnage may not be so great as the numbers would indicate.

September forwardings were 4,906 cars against 9,386 in September, 1934, a decline of 48 per cent. Decreased shipments, he said, reflected the government's drought relief program of a year ago.

"This year ranchmen and farmers obviously will utilize livestock to the fullest extent possible as a medium for marketing forage and feed crops, of which there is now an abundant supply in Texas," Dr. Buechel said. "It is a fair assumption, therefore, that while the number of livestock moving to market is radically smaller than it was a year ago, the disparity in tonnage may not be so great as the numbers would indicate, since it is probable that the weight per animal is averaging higher than it did last year. It is also safe to assume that the quality of livestock on the average is higher than it was last year, and that this will contribute toward the increase of demand."

THANKSGIVING DAY IS REAL THIS YEAR

Employment Putting Relief Rolls Down and Payrolls Up

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 14.—Thanksgiving Day in Texas will really be Thanksgiving this year as employment payrolls and bank statements touch a new high and relief rolls a new low.

Chief motivating factor in this noticeable improvement is the Texas Centennial Exposition with its widespread construction projects. In Dallas where the Centennial Exposition will be staged, financial figures show the highest peak of business improvement. Since June the upturn has continued steadily. In the rest of the State, business likewise has boomed under force of memorial constructions and building projects revolving around celebrations preliminary to the National Exposition opening here June 6.

Building of the Exposition already is in full swing with 1,500 workmen busy on the Dallas grounds, and more being added daily. More than 5,000 laborers and skilled artisans will be working on Exposition construction work by January 1. Five major buildings of the Texas Centennial Exposition already are under construction. Their cost is approximately $2,000,000. Contracts are being let almost daily and in the next thirty days ten more major exhibition halls will be under way according to Manager William A. Webb.

Exhibition departments are all operating at full speed. Space in some of the main exhibition buildings is now at a premium. Concessions for the Midway are being sought in such volume that only the major attractions in the country have a chance to secure locations.

Official announcement that President Roosevelt would visit the Exposition in June has created intense enthusiasm throughout the South-west and already preparations have been started throughout the South-western states for his reception in Dallas.

Buildings which are now being constructed on the Exposition grounds, include $1,200,000 State of Texas Hall, the Hall of Foods and Beverages $200,000, Hall of Agriculture $140,000, Hall of Animal Husbandry $150,000 and the $125,000 Administration Building. Contract for the $400,000 Varied Industries, Electrical and Communication Building, will be awarded before the end of the month as will the contract for the Transportation and Petroleum Building which will cost $500,000. Seven permanent civic buildings costing $1,125,000 will be contracted for during December.

DAUGHTER TO FORRESTS

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Forrest are the parents of a daughter, Martha, born Thursday. The baby weighed three and a half pounds.

Miss Ozell Bryant left Friday night for Dallas where she will take a four-day demonstration course offered by the Heinz company. She will return next week to Hokus-Pokus grocery here to take up her work.

career which first made him universally known to stage followers.

Once, when doing his rope spinning trick at Union Square theatre, New York, his rope refused to work. Always ready with his wit, he remarked to the audience: "Spinning a rope is lots of fun if you ain't got your neck in it." This was the beginning of his career as a monologist which later made him more popular than his work as a rope artist.

Spotted by a Ziegfeld agent, he said: "Shucks I can't act, I just act natural." He was signed by Ziegfeld and starred for six years, although in his own words, he remarked: "I joined up with Ziegfeld, not as one of the beauties."

Once on a trip to London, he thought of some humorous remark and wired it to the New York Times. The wire was unnoticed but it led to the daily syndicate column which at the time of his death, paid him $3,000 a week. No matter what remote corner of the globe he went, he managed to wire his daily column to American newspapers.

Aided Sufferers And, with reference to his world travels, since 1928 he had flown a half million miles as an ambassador of goodwill, and he constantly boosted air travel.

A few years ago, when he was starting to fly around the world, he heard of the mid-western farmers and the suffering among farmers. He called on Captain Frank Hawks to take him to that territory, assembled a troupe of entertainers, went about putting on stage shows as he had done in earlier days and gave all the proceeds to the suffering farmers of the middle west. He then went to Washington and asked what else could be done for relief of the farmers.

Next, he got busy and flew around the world, "making it laugh and doing more than a crowd of cabinet diplomats," according to The Literary Digest, "to make America liked abroad."

To fail to mention Will Rogers as a moving picture actor would be gross negligence. He first appeared in silent pictures, but was a "flop." But in talkies he became Hollywood's highest paid actor.

"Talkie pictures are givin' me a chance to gab again," he once said, "and I guess I'll keep on gabbin' as long as folks can stand it."

Another time he said, "I'm entirely different from the movie stars. I still got the same wife I started out with." As a radio entertainer, it was the same story. Although he often went before the microphone without having studied out his speech, he never failed to hold his audiences closely. He once remarked over the radio: "I don't worry about anyone who was 'too lazy to turn the dial,' and others could shut him off if they didn't care to hear him. His services as a radio entertainer brought a tremendous figure."

Worth Millions At the time of his death, Will Rogers was worth approximately $3,000,000, of which $1,000,000 was in life insurance. His tragic death last August brought grief to the high and the low, to the most prominent and the most common. Expressions of grief were once again at one by President Roosevelt, Vice President John Garner and dothens of high standing in government.

Senate Majority Leader Robinson said: "Probably the most widely known citizen in the United States, and certainly the best beloved, met his death."

In Wall Street, the stock of Fox Films, which had just contracted to pay Will Rogers $8,000 a week, went off 1 1/2 points upon the news of his death.

In spite of his chances in the here after, Rogers had said: "Can you imagine when I die and Saint Peter asks me what I did on earth to qualify myself for Heaven, and I answer: 'I spun a rope and kidded myself so other people wouldn't kid me first.'"

He lived a clean life. He was the friend of everyone. To express it in the vernacular of the times, "Will Rogers was tops."

Millions now have an opportunity to contribute to the Will Rogers Memorial Fund. Famous friends have organized The Will Rogers Memorial Commission. It is hoped every one who smiled with Rogers will come forward with a contribution. Take it or send it to your bank—or any bank—or use the accompanying coupon to send your subscription to this office. Every cent subscribed will be used for memorials to be selected by Henry Ford, Herbert Hoover, Alfred E. Smith, Will H. Hays, Jesse H. Jones, Owen D. Young, Vice President John N. Garner and other men and women of national prestige and respect. The memorials will depend on the number of friends who contribute—but they will be used for charitable, educational and humanitarian purposes. There will be no cold shaft of marble to honor the memory of this warm, friendly man. They will be living, continuing memorials.
