HOOVER'S FIGHT TO CABINET

WASHINGTON, April 8. (UP)—President Hoover carried to the cabinet today his fight for drastic economy in the government. He presented each cabinet member at today's meeting with an "economy yardstick" on a pasteboard. The government's revenues were outlined on one side and expenditures on the other. A long red space at one end of the revenue side, covering nearly one-third of the stick, was marked "deficit."

Nurse Known Here Injured in Plane

Miss Evelyn Richter, well known in Midland and who took a week of instruction here last year from Miss Martha Bredemeier, Midland county health worker, was injured when her plane collided 100 feet above the Lubbock municipal airport Thursday with another plane. Two others were injured. Miss Richter, secretary of the City County Welfare association at Lubbock, who was flying a small monoplane, was most seriously injured. Her nose was crushed and she suffered a fractured ribcage. Cecil Casey, assistant fire chief, and Arthur Chase, who were in a biplane, received abrasions and small cuts.

Miss Richter, who had planned to try for a private pilot's license Saturday, had made a landing and started to take off again. Casey and Chase tumbled off at about the same time. Miss Richter's ship, beneath the biplane, collided with it. Both airplanes were badly damaged. R. W. Delaney, department of commerce inspector, was informed of the accident and will be at Lubbock today to investigate the crash.

In a practice typing contest with Big Spring typists yesterday at Big Spring, the high school team, composed of Kathryn Gosper and Dorothy Howell, retained its high speed composite average, making 60 words a minute. Miss Gosper wrote at the rate of 61.46 words, Miss Howell at 58.2. The Big Spring team averaged 46.33 words per minute. Josephine Dabney of Big Spring, writing at the rate of 48.35 words, came third as an individual. This will probably be the last practice contest before the typists enter the district contest at Lubbock on April 16.

Clothing Students To State Meet Soon

Approximately 90 girls who have taken clothing in the high school this year will participate in the clothing dress contest which will be held at the high school in the home economics department, April 19. Judges will select from this group representatives for the state home economics education costume and dress contest which will be held in Mineral Wells April 28. Entrants in the contest will be divided into three groups according to the types of dresses entered, school girls' costume, faded costume, and special occasions costume. In each case the entrant will wear the costume she has selected including the dress she has made in class, and will be judged according to the construction of the dress and the appearance of the costume as a whole. Other entries in the rally include an exhibit of children's garments which will be selected from Clothing II classes, and a problem in selecting children's and infants' clothing. Entries from the foods classes are taken from the child development and family relationships unit of the foods course, and includes a problem in selecting toys for children and a problem in selecting the type of work being done by the home economics class. The date for the style show will be announced later.

ICE CROP

ARGENTINE, Mich. (UP)—Mild weather this winter prevented local merchants harvesting their annual ice crop. They conquered the phenomenal temperatures, however, by allowing a thin coat of ice to freeze over the local mill pond and then pouring a little water on nightly. The process was repeated until ice six inches thick was formed.

Genius Abandons Dolls for Ibsen

Ava Louise Dubard, 11, shown above, is the highest genius discovered by the psychology department of Southwestern university, Memphis, Tenn., in a study of 1000 children covering a period of five years. Her intelligence quotient—or IQ rating, as the psychologists express it—is 181, which makes her mental age 19. An IQ rating of 140 or above classifies a person as a genius. Fifteen geniuses were discovered in the 1000. Ava Louise will enter junior high school next September. She makes A grades in all her subjects except art. No effort has been made to push her in her school work, as her parents want her to develop a well-balanced life. She enjoys playing with children her physical age as well as with those her mental age. She reads a lot, mostly classic authors, likes the movies—and has a boy friend.

UNBEARABLE TAX AND A FINANCIAL RUIN SEEN IF BONUS IS PAID TO SOLDIERS; STEVENS DEFENDS ACTS

WASHINGTON, April 8. (UP)—A thousand Legionnaires and members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars paraded to the foot of the Capitol steps and presented assembled senators and congressmen a petition which is said to contain 2,500,000 signatures demanding payment of the bonus.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—A statement that cash payment of the soldiers' bonus either will make taxes unbearable or ruin federal finances was issued today by Representative Milligan of Missouri, democrat whip of the house.

Though leaders in both parties are known to be opposed to cashing the veterans' certificates at this session, Milligan was among the first to make a public statement in opposition. Acting Chairman Crisp of the ways and means committee also has announced his opposition.

TRACK TEAM TO LUBBOCK; RELAY EVENTS ENTERED

Tomorrow morning before daylight the Midland high school track squad will embark for Lubbock to participate in the Texas Tech relay games.

More than 30 schools have entered teams in this meet and some of the Bulldogs, particularly Midkiff, would probably do well in these, but would not be able to compete in the relay races if entered in the individual events.

The main part of the meet will consist of five relay races. Preliminaries will not be run in these; teams will draw for heats or groups in each type of relay and for lanes at the Tech gym at 9 a. m. All teams will be timed in each heat and teams having the best time declared winners without "finals." Since there will probably be 20 teams entered in each relay, there will really be about three races in each type.

Midland will enter teams in these relays: Mile relay (each man running 440 yards)—Estes, Evans, Montgomery, Lee. Special relay (first man 70 yards over low hurdles, second man 220 yard dash, third man 100 yards, fourth man, 440 yards)—Straughan, Midkiff, Bonner, Hallman.

Medley relay (440, 220 and half mile)—Bonner, Midkiff, Hallman, Straughan. Shuttle relay (50 yard low hurdles, 50, 50, 70)—Estes, Hallman, Montgomery, Midkiff. Midland will have no entries in the half-mile relay, in which each man runs the 220-yard dash.

Texas Tech has a fast and wide track and a well trained personnel to conduct the meet. The number of teams entered will make necessary (See TRACK MEET page 4)

PLEDGE OF FEALTY IN LIMELIGHT

Attorneys Fight an Attempt of Love For Mandamus

DALLAS, April 8. (UP)—Five attorneys for local democratic officials defended the party loyalty pledge today in district court from a mandamus attack of Tom Love, dry leader. The attorneys sought dismissal of the suit on grounds that the court is without jurisdiction and that the issue is wholly political. Judge Robert Allen said he would grant the mandamus if Love showed the pledge was illegal. The action of the judge was considered as a blow to the defense which claimed the court without jurisdiction, although local democrats still believed the mandamus should be refused.

Southwest Posses Hunt Bandits After Massacre

One of the most determined man hunts in the history of the south west is being staged by straight-shooting Mexican and American officers on both sides of the border for three bandits who killed seven persons at the ranch home of Melquiades Espinosa, a cattleman near Berino, N. M., after demanding $5000 which they thought Espinosa had hidden in his house. The victims were Mrs. Espinosa and her six children. At the right is shown Espinosa, who was wounded, but escaped by feigning death. The ranch house where the massacre occurred is shown and, in circle, Adjutant General Osborne C. Wood of the New Mexico National Guard, whom Governor Arthur Seligman ordered to the scene. Wood is a son of the late Major General Leonard C. Wood.

COW PONY MAY PRESERVE TRADITION AND RUN IN RACE WITH FARM NAGS

High bred race mares belonging to local farmers may have a fast cow pony to contend with tomorrow afternoon if Frank Cowden carries out his plans to enter a horse. He had not decided definitely this morning but said he had a horse that should be hard to beat in the three-eighths race.

The number of paid entries remained at four, although it was expected that Bert Rosenbaum's bay gelding would be entered. The Franks Dun mare will not compete, due to lack of condition, it was said today.

The four entries are considered well matched. Trammell's paint Vette Harrison is a poor starter and may be fractious at the barrier, in which case she would not be likely to win. However, with Dutch Mayfield up she will be well handled and, if she gets away in front, will be hard to pass in the three-eighths distance.

The Netherland mare, Moondime, has shown remarkable speed and ease of running in the quarter mile and is the subject of much speculation as to endurance in the three-

"Old Soak" Tickets Are Still Available

You can still reserve tickets to the little theatre presentation, "The Old Soak," which will be given at the Yucca theatre this evening. The curtain will be lifted promptly at 8:15.

The play group completed rehearsals last night. Miss Elma Graves, who carries one of the feature roles, was sufficiently recovered from influenza to continue and have no difficulty in doing her part, according to Mrs. George T. Abel, play director.

The play group has been fortunate in having one of the best known comedy-dramas of the American stage for its vehicle, "The Old Soak," carries more laughs to the manuscript page than any other comedy, according to many critics. It has been translated into almost every language, including the Arabic. Royalties pour in to Don Marquis, the author, in a steady stream.

Joseph A. Seymour plays the role of the Old Soak. Miss Graves' wife, Howard Dunaway his son, Miss Stella Maye Lanham his daughter, Mrs. Edwin C. Calhoun the maid in the Soak's household, Sam O. Warren the daughter's suitor, Bryan C. Henderson a bootlegger, Dick Morse a flinty country banker, and Mrs. Barney T. Smith an artist.

The play will be the best ever staged by the little theatre group, according to critics who have watched rehearsals.

He had just passed the Jeff Hall farm when two rifle bullets were fired from the underbrush at the side of the dirt road.

One of the bullets struck him in the neck and the other in the head, killing him instantly.

Cactus Cast Death Pall Over Family

KINGS MILLS, Ohio. (UP)—Natives of this town tell the story of the "death cactus" and the blight it cast over the home of Oscar Connelly, in hushed voices.

Three times in 20 years it has bloomed. Each time the white blossom has been accompanied by death. Now it has been thrown away its owners hoping to escape its evil influence.

The prickly little plant was kept in Connelly's home without blooming for years. Then, in 1912, the owner's son was stricken with typhoid fever. Simultaneously, the cactus bloomed, producing a single waxen white flower that exuded a sickening-sweet fragrance.

Until 1927 the plant failed to bloom. In that year, a daughter, Mrs. Mary McCullum, became ill. The "death cactus" bloomed. Mrs. McCullum died a few days later.

A few months ago, the plant showed signs of renewed life. The family became genuinely alarmed when Mrs. Connelly became ill. She asked her sister-in-law, Mrs. Annie Bateman, to bring the plant into the sick room.

the MAN HUNTERS BY MABEL McELLIOTT

Susan Carey, an orphan who lives with her Aunt Jessie on Chicago's west side finishes her course at business school where she has met Bob Dunbar, son of a millionaire. She secures temporary work as secretary to Ernest Heath, prominent architect.

Susan came out of Ernest Heath's office shaken but serene. The dreaded interview was over and with it had gone the sense of unending shame. Jack Waring had apologized manfully, had taken the entire blame for the awkward scene.

Nothing, Susan felt, would surpass her after the events of this altogether surprising day. Over and over again on the way home in a street car teeming with hot humanity, she rehearsed the incident.

Her cheeks burned at the memory. "What did you say, Aunt Jessie?" Susan asked absently as she accepted from her aunt's gnarled hand the plate heaped with potato salad and cold beef.

"He is a very nice young man, Aunt Jessie," she said. "I think the least you can do is show your manners when he takes such an interest."

Susan's curiosity was piqued. "How do you mean, Aunt Jessie?" she asked. "I did," Aunt Jessie sniffed. "Susan could scarcely believe her ears. The idea of Aunt Jessie sponsoring a young man was too preposterous to even consider."

"The heat had been increasing all day so that now, in the stillness of early evening, it seemed actually unbearable. Susan looked forward to a lazy evening after the supper dishes were done. She wanted to lounge on the tiny back porch in the finest garments possible. That pleasant plan she must now abandon.

Her mood changed. Why shouldn't she, after all, be nice to Ben Lampman? Ray Flannery took every

Survey Reveals School English

PITTSBURGH. (UP)—The questionnaire of the Pitt Weekly did not decide what University of Pittsburgh student is most likely to succeed, but it provided an interesting sidelight on college English—and egotism.

"The bozo you're looking at" was the direct answer of Student "V" to the question "in your opinion, what Pitt student is most likely to succeed after graduation?" Student "V" backed his judgment with the assertion that "if innate ability, baloney, and a good line mean anything, watch out for me." But Student "V" was matched in modesty, at least, by Student "M" who wrote shrinkingly: "Me. I'm

WHAT OFFICIALS THINK OF COAL PROBLEM IN KY.

By NEA Service

PINEVILLE, Ky., April 8.—That there is a trying and difficult economic problem facing coal operators in this Kentucky area today is as clear as the fact that the families of jobless miners are near the hunger line and employed miners are working only part time at far less wages than they formerly got.

The collapse of the coal business is as clear as the manner in which the coal operators, business men and law-enforcement officials of Bell and Harlan counties are trying to solve their problem. Their method is to complete suppression of human rights and civil liberties.

Such interests in these communities have banded together to crush unionism among the miners. They have used every means at their command—the power of the law, deportation of unwelcome visitors—they even have taken a monopoly on food relief, refusing union and their sympathizers permission to send any food in here for the jobless miners.

In Harlan county things are being run by Sheriff John Henry Blair and County Judge C. D. Jones, who have recently drifted apart politically but not on this subject.

In Bell county, County Prosecutor Walter B. Smith, only 28 years old, is the one-man dictator.

OFFICIALS FEAR 'REDS'

Both Sheriff Blair and Prosecutor Smith tell you that they are depending on the public officials and Communist bent upon overthrowing established government with a revolution, and Mr. Smith explains it this way:

"Kentucky is a state of pioneers and the Kentuckians are pioneering here today against a Communist menace that, if permitted to take root here, may flourish and spread until it engulfs the entire nation. The National Mine Workers is a Communist union.

"We are engaged in chocking a well organized movement that aims at the destruction of our government, our homes, our courts, our industries and everything else that is American.

"In the wake of these Bolsheviks, feeding upon the publicity attendant to the future they have created, have come a lot of half-baked emigrants from New York who call themselves journalists and novelists. They say they came here to help the miners; the truth is that they came here to get publicity for themselves, or for the red publications they represent or for books they plan to write. Theodore Dreiser, for example, made a lot of noise but never until this day has he aided anybody in Kentucky.

"That explains the situation as mine operators and public officials here would like to have it explained—that they are fighting a Red menace."

OPERATORS' PROBLEM

The grave economic problems that face the coal operators in these days of depression were outlined to me by operators whom I interviewed and the high points in their statements were:

- 1.—Ninety per cent of the coal operators here have gone broke, or are as good as broke. (I saw stocks of commissaries of bankrupt coal companies being auctioned off at sheriff's sale in front of the court house at Pineville.)
- 2.—They are trying to sell coal that costs $1.25 a ton to produce on a flooded market where it is being begged at $1 a ton, as against $10 for this same coal a few years ago.
- 3.—The independent operators are not only fighting the depressed market, but they also are engaging in cut-throat competition to get what little business there is in sight. They can't make price agreements to stabilize their business because of the Sherman anti-trust law.

The rapidly increasing use of hydro-electric power, gasoline, fuel oil, and natural gas has played havoc with the coal market in recent years.

High freight rates on coal have encouraged this and killed the export market for coal; the railroads are now getting more than the mine owners with such rates from here as $1.75 a ton to Louisville, $1.95 a ton to Cincinnati, $1.41 to Knoxville and $2.25 to Atlanta.

MAKE PROFIT ON STORES

"I'm 68 years old," said R. W. Lett, the oldest operator in the Pineville area, "and I've lived just 10 years too long. Had I died 10 years ago I would have left the coal industry at its peak.

"Today we can produce more coal than the market will take at any price. Our mines are over-developed. Under present conditions we have from three to five times as many coal mines and as many coal miners as we need."

The operators are hanging on, hoping for better times. They say they can't close down completely because there are certain items of overhead expense like pumping, that must continue at all times. If pumping is stopped, they say, mines will fill with water.

The operators admit they are depending a lot on the profits of their commissaries, or company stores, in these times when they are losing money on coal production. Employers are buying up commissary stores instead of independent stores, claiming they are entitled to this trade.

They admit that their prices are higher than those charged by merchants but explain that this is unavoidable because they cannot buy in such great quantities as the chain stores.

RELIEF MONOPOLIZED

The same forces that are running everything else in the coal area also are running the relief program and refuse to permit any outside aid to be given to the unemployed miners on the ground they are "Reds." The only outsiders permitted to operate here are the Quakers, who are conducting soup kitchens. One union soup kitchen in here, by truck, at another, two men were killed outright by a deputy sheriff and one wounded. Union sympathizers, like Waldo Frank, have been arrested after bringing food in here by truck.

There are at least 10,000 men, women and children on the relief lists in Bell and Harlan counties today.

Local agencies have raised this year $32,000 in the two counties—Pineville with a population of 3,600 raised $6,000—and are being helped indirectly by the Red Cross. Red Cross chapters in various cities make up carloads of provisions and ship them in here, independent of the national organization.

Roughly, each family gets $2 worth of food each week. The average family numbers five.

If there is an able-bodied man in the family, he is required to work for it—usually on a public road or at some church, or in a welfare club or civic club makes possible—at $1 a day.

If there is no man in the family able to work, or if work is not available, relief is donated outright, officials say.

"We try to find work for them because we don't want to pauperize them," said Rev. L. C. Kelly, one of the ministers who work with large families get more work."

WHAT MINERS LIVE ON

From Mrs. Antoinette Low Hutchinson, in direct charge of distribution of the relief at the mine, I obtained an estimate of what a $2 weekly food allowance will buy:

One 25-pound sack of meal, 45 cents; one 24-pound sack of flour, 55 cents; two pounds of lard, 20 cents; one pound of meat, 20 cents; two pounds beans, 25 cents; one pound coffee, 15 cents.

"Of course," said Mrs. Hutchinson, "this is varying according to requirements. A family does not need a sack of flour and a sack of meal every week, so they get other things instead—potatoes, oatmeal, canned milk and the like."

That the local relief agencies who have attempted to carry the load, with the unofficial assistance of the Red Cross, are finding their task a heavy one, is admitted.

"The peak has about been reached," said Herndon Evans, Red Cross chairman for Bell county. "I don't know where we are going to get it, but we must hold out as long as we can. We have been hoping every day that conditions would get better. If any community wants to send us provisions, it would be a God-send and a real service."

Both Harlan and Bell counties are looking forward eagerly to the approaching distribution of free flour milled from surplus government wheat. The Relief Association hopes to get a 12-pound bag of flour for each of 1500 families.

Record-Making Firestone Rail Car

Harvey S. Firestone (left foreground) finds the new Firestone rail tires in perfect condition after they had enabled an automobile running on railroad tracks to set a record between Miami and Jacksonville, Florida. The car, covering 405.7 miles at an average speed of 64.39 miles an hour, bettered by 42 minutes the fastest railroad run between these two cities made over a route 40 miles shorter. The smooth and quiet operation of the flanged pneumatic tires was a revelation. Mr. Firestone believes that miles of unused railway tracks will be reopened through their use. With Mr. Firestone, who is chairman of the board of The Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, are, left to right, Harvey S. Firestone, Jr., vice president; Clifford D. Smith, development engineer, who operated the car; and John W. Thomas, president of the company.

Pratt Points Out Needs of Society

By W. ILY PRATT

There are three necessities of life—food, clothing, and shelter. Perhaps their necessity is in the order named. All are essential in any civilized country. They are all three mandatory to the sustaining degree, at least.

Paradoxical as it appears to us, these three necessities of life are not available at the present time to a greater number of people in this richest nation on earth, than ever before in history. We have a surplus of many food supplies, a surplus of those commodities from which clothing is obtained, and certainly as a nation we are overbuilt in housing conditions. But, there are more undernourished men, women and children, more thinly clad persons and more "wanderers" today than in our national history.

None has yet been able to unravel the mystery, if it can thus be called. Much oratory, many "alibis" and many prophecies have gone forth over this very thing in ever increasing numbers. Strong, able-bodied men who have never before known the touch of want are standing in bread lines or seeking out the relief organizations that there may be obtained bare sustenance for those near and dear to them. Willing workers, efficient craftsmen and honorable professional men are having their very hearts warming dry by having to ask for that which stifles the blood of every red-blooded citizen—charity.

What is the duty of every citizen who is gainfully employed or has accumulated sufficient to have an income of any kind during such times. Can he sit idly by and see his fellowman suffer and he not be willing to reach out a helping hand for his relief? Can he stifle that small voice that urges him to give a practical application of that great law of life, whose practice reflects the character of the man, that "we are our brother's keeper?"

This week the Midland Welfare Association will make its annual drive for funds. This is your opportunity to make a part of the relief of the unfortunate. Your money will be spent where it will provide one or all of the necessities of life to some worthy person or persons. Who knows how far reaching or how close to home some mistake may some time come? If it did, would you expect some friend or some one who could, to help you over the line? Sure you would, and rightly so. Then, let's help the other fellow over his hill.

"Give a day to the welfare."

NEW LIBRARY BOOK

Concerning the "Law-West of the Pecos, the Story of Roy Bean," by Everett Lloyd, a review from the Midland library, where it has been placed, says:

"This book deals with the life and times of Judge Roy Bean unique and picturesque self-styled 'law west of the Pecos' who held quasi-legal sway on the Texas border for 20 years. As saloon-keeper, justice of the peace, oracle of some of the most humorous decisions known to law, his posthumous fame has become world-wide.

"All the Roy Bean decisions and rulings, all the Roy Bean stories, are preserved in this volume.

"The illustrations alone in a 'Book West of the Pecos' make it a work every booklover and collector will prize."

"The national commander and all the posts are bound by the national convention and any action which fails to come up to the convention mandate is ultra vires regardless of what my personal opinion is, I'd be bound to live up to the convention vote."

In my opinion passage of the bonus bill at this time would unquestionably bring about considerable reduction by congress in the competition now received by disabled service men and a disabled man sponsoring it is doing something calculated to harm himself.

New Plan Used In Ritz Film

Shooting scenes only between one and six p. m. is a production experiment which is working out efficiently at the Hollywood Paramount studios.

The picture on which this new plan was tried is "This Reckless Age," which features Charles "Buddy" Rogers, Richard Bennett, Peggy Shannon, Charlie Ruggles, Frances Dee and Frances Starr, shown at the Ritz today.

The players reported to the set at nine a. m. and immediately started rehearsal of the day's schedule of scenes. All the scenes for the day were rehearsed by Director Frank Tuttle, before the first was filmed.

The entire cast of "This Reckless Age" greatly appreciated this innovation, as it greatly expedited production and relieved everyone of the tension due to unexpected notices of filming work.

A Brilliant Cast With Ann Harding

Brilliance is the hallmark of the cast which surrounds Ann Harding in her newest RKO Pathe starring picture, "Prestige," which will be the feature at the Grand Sunday.

The leading masculine roles opposite the star are filled by Adolphe Menjou and Melvyn Douglas. Menjou, long established favorite, needs no introduction to any theatergoer, and a young starlet has already made a triumphant film debut opposite Gloria Swanson in "Tonight or Never."

Known to stage audiences wherever the English language is spoken, Guy Bates Post makes his talking picture debut in this picture. Clarence Muse, one of the most noted negro actors in America, has an important role. Others who appear in the cast are Ian McLaren, Carmelita Geraghty and Creighton Hale.

Diving Planes Hit High Speed

LONDON. (UP)—Britain has captured another world air speed record, 407 1/2 miles an hour in vertical dives from 20,000 and 25,000 feet.

This record recently has been attained by a number of British single-seater fighting planes of the Royal Air Force during trials to test the structural strength and streamlining of the machines.

Although diving speed is not included in recognized performance tests, the ability of a military airplane to withstand the stresses imposed at "terminal velocity" without structural failure is of first importance.

So far, three different types of single-seater machines have reached these tremendous velocities and tests are being carried out with other machines. Among the successful types in the "Firefly" a large number of which were recently ordered by the Belgian Government.

The maximum speeds of the machines in level flight are 215-220 miles an hour. The British fighters have dived at nearly double their top level speeds without showing a sign of stress.
