OHIO RIVER POURS THROUGH SCORES OF COMMUNITIES

Kentucky and Ohio Feel Force of Floods

DEATHS MOUNT

181 Recorded Over East, Damage Is In Millions

By Associated Press

The flooding Ohio river poured through a score of communities in Kentucky and Ohio today, bringing a taste of devastation which has already claimed 181 lives and made thousands homeless and wrought millions of dollars worth of damage. New England and Pennsylvania flood waters have receded, leaving stricken towns facing huge rehabilitation tasks. National guardsmen patrolled centers of all states except Connecticut.

Western Ohio families rushed to hills as villages were inundated along the river's course. The river had reached a high mark of 57 feet.

DUST STORM SWIRLS OVER OKLA. PANHANDLE

GUYMON, Okla., March 23. (AP)—A dense dust storm swirled over Oklahoma and the Panhandle today, paralyzing highway travel and ravaging wheat crops. The storm darkened the skies at Amarillo, making it difficult to see across the street.

Oklahoma farmers said one fourth of the wheat remaining after previous dusts had been blown away today.

Drivers along the highways were forced to turn on lights to efficiently navigate.

Pampa reported visibility was only two blocks following the arrival of strong dust-laden winds.

CONTEST ENTRIES REHEARSE TONIGHT

Burlesque Beauties Asked To Meet at Christian Church Annex 7:30

The first and only rehearsal of all models who are to appear in the Midland Lions Club's burlesque bathing revue at the Yucca theatre tomorrow evening will be held at the First Christian church annex this evening at 7:30 o'clock, and all models, Lions Club members and others taking part in the performance, are urged to be present. The rehearsal will be very brief. Spectators will be barred, according to an announcement issued by Doc Bailey, master of ceremonies for the revue, who will be in charge of the rehearsal.

The gigantic and mirth-provoking display of masculine pulchritude will be staged at the Yucca theatre tomorrow evening with a liberal percentage of the gross receipts going to the local Lions Club to be used in their sight conservation work.

Almost every member of the local club will appear as a model in the stage spectacle. Several other prominent business men of the city will also appear in the cast. The models will first display evening gowns and then bathing suits. The leading merchants of the city are sponsoring the models in the burlesque revue. It is a laff-riot from start to finish. Don't miss it.

On the screen the same evening, a complete change of program has been announced. "Don't Gamble With Love" starring Bruce Cabot and Ann Sothern, will be the feature picture, with an appropriate comedy, "The Perfect 36's," also being shown.

FILE MURDER AND ARSON CHARGES

Two Men Arrested After Three Persons Die In Store Fire

TEXARKANA, Mar. 23. (AP)—A. C. Ward, grocer, and Lee O'Brien, horse trader, were in the Bowde county jail at Boston Sunday on charges of murder and arson filed in connection with a fire that destroyed Ward's store early Friday, killing three persons.

After arrangements Sunday morning the two were ordered held pending a preliminary hearing Tuesday.

Special charges accused the pair of voluntarily killing J. H. Van Zan, fortune teller, by burning Ward's store. The complaint further alleged the two men burned the personal property of Ward with intent to defraud.

Besides Van Zan, who lived upstairs, two Negroes whose bodies were found in the bakery department, were killed by the fire which caused $75,000 damage to six buildings.

ENGLISH BARON, PIONEER CITIZEN WEST TEXAS DIES

Was Noted Geologist And Engineer for Many Years

SAN ANGELO, Mar. 23. (AP)—Baron Rathdown the eighth Viscount Godfrey John Boyle Chetwynd, 73, who played a prominent part in the development of this area of West Texas in pioneer days died here Sunday.

Lord Chetwynd's latest residence has been here during his past year. As a young man he came to West Texas in the early eighties and as one of the few men with engineering experience in the pioneer community surveyed much of the nearby territory.

Lord Chetwynd's death came at noon following a severe attack of pneumonia, which developed into pneumonia.

He succeeded to his title upon the death of an uncle in 1911, returning to live in England after having a prominent role in building up this portion of West Texas. During the World War he was managing director of the National Shell Filling Factory operated by Vickers and the British government at Chilwell in York, England.

Lord Chetwynd was a geologist of note and had been doing extensive geological work in this section during the last six months. He felt that he had found formations nearby which would produce silver and gold in paying quantities.

Lord Chetwynd was born Oct. 3, 1863, the second son of Capt. Henry Weyland Chetwynd, who was the third son of the sixth viscount. He married the daughter of Baron George von Alvensleben in 1893 and following her death married Mary Eden, daughter of Baron Auckland, in 1904. There are two sons and daughters.

The new viscount and baron is the Honorable Adam Duncan Chetwynd, who lives at Broad Oak, Eng., near Hertford, England.

27 PERSONS SLAIN IN MEXICO RIOTS

Several Score Wounded In Various Parts Of Country

MEXICO CITY, March 23. (AP)—At least 27 persons were killed and several score wounded in various parts of Mexico as discontent flared in rural districts over the weekend. Federal troops rushed to Canacatlan, Durango, where the town officials reportedly killed seven insurgents in repelling 40 rebels.

Durango dispatches said that 10 insurgents had been killed by fedorals during a battle in the Taxicaringa mountains.

MOB VIOLENCE IS AVERTED AFTER CHILD IS KILLED

Colored Ambulance Driver Taken By Police

3 OTHERS HURT

All Are Critically Injured in Crash

FORT WORTH, Mar. 23. (AP)—A 20-year-old negro ambulance driver was saved from mob violence Sunday after a child was killed and three persons were hurt critically in a collision of the ambulance and a coupe.

Fifty policemen were sent to the accident scene after cries of "lynch him" were shouted by the crowd that gathered after Pat Morrow, 7, of Greenville, was killed. They quieted the mob and took the driver to jail.

The coupe in which the child was riding was knocked sixty feet and turned over several times. The youngster died instantly. His head and body were crushed.

Others injured are Mrs. D. C. Apple, 26, Pat's aunt, who received a fractured pelvis and a head injury; Lois Apple, 5, her daughter, fractures of the pelvis and right hip and severe cuts and bruises, and C. F. Gaudin, 47, whose skull was fractured. All live here.

Radio patrol cars, augmented by officers summoned from the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stok Show grounds, responded to the call for help.

A negro assistant in the ambulance who fled the scene later reported to police.

CONVENTION FOR OIL MEN IS ENDED

More Than 20 Geologists From Here Visited AAPG Meeting

More than 20 Midland geologists were present at the Twenty-first Annual Convention of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists held at Tulsa March 19, 20 and 21. The total registration of geologists attending the meeting was said to number more than 1,800.

Technical sessions were held all three days of the convention and two Midland men were among those delivering papers. Ernest A. Obering, district geologist for the Shell company here, spoke Thursday on "Salt Deposition in the Permian Basin," and John Emery Adams, geologist with the California company, chose as his subject "Oil Pool of the Open Reservoir Type."

R. H. Reed of California was elected president of the association for the coming year, succeeding A. I. Levenson. The new vice-president is C. E. Doherty of Denver.

Among Midland geologists attending were: J. Ben Carsey of the Humble Oil and Refining Co.; Cary P. Butcher and Dick Gile of the Tidewater Oil Co.; E. A. Obering of the Shell Petroleum Corp.; Fred Wilcox of the Magnolia Petroleum Co.; Al Laskamp of the Barnsdall Oil Co.; John E. Adams and Fred Wright of the California Co.; Frank Schouten of Stanolind Oil and Gas Co.; Paul Schlosser of the Phillips Petroleum Co.; J. Fitzgerald of the Shell Oil Co.; J. J. Russell of the T. P. Coal and Oil Co.; F. J. Steel of the I. T. I. O. Co.; J. H. Markley of the Texas Co.; C. Schuur of the Mid-Continent Petroleum Co.; H. M. Bayer of the Gulf Production Co.; J. H. Armstrong of the Shellacraile Oil Co.; W. D. Anderson and J. M. Hills of the Amerside Petroleum Corp.; R. C. Lloyd; George Burton of the Sun Oil Co., and Ronald K. Deford of the Argo Royalty Co.

A wide range of subjects offers interest to any individual. Reproductions include copies of such famous creations as the "Sistine Madonna," "Song of the Lark," and the "Last Supper."

The noticeable number of Indian and Southwestern scenes will interest most Midland citizens. Landscapes are glowing or subdued and are shown by a number of artists.

There is a varied series of miscellaneous studies such as the delightful "Shepherd Boy" by Lenbach.

No admission fee is charged to see the pictures and everyone interested is invited to attend the display.

Warren Will Attend Funeral of Niece

LAST RITES READ SUNDAY FOR DEATH VICTIM, R. T. BUCY

Hundreds of Friends Crowd Church to Pay Respects

Hundreds of friends paid last respects to Ralph T. Bucy, 44, Midland county surveyor and religious leader, whose funeral service was held Sunday afternoon at the First Presbyterian church. He died at Lubbock Saturday of non-infectious meningitis. The auditorium was completely filled at the service and a crowd estimated at equal in number stood outside the building.

In impressive rites conducted by the Rev. W. J. Coleman, pastor, music was played by Mrs. Coleman on the pipe organ recently given completely by her and Mrs. Bucy. Pastors assisting included Dr. R. J. Irving of Fort Davis, the Reverends K. C. Minter, Winston F. Borum and W. R. Mann. A selected choir of mixed voices was directed by W. W. Lackey, with Mrs. Coleman playing the organ accompaniment.

Funeral bearers were J. R. Martin, R. M. Barron, E. H. Barron, J. L. McGrew, Fred Turner Jr., R. L. Miller, W. A. Yeager, Dr. W. E. Ryan, Leonard Proctor, Percy J. Mims, W. I. Pratt and Fred Wemple, casket bearers.

Many out of town relatives and friends of the Bucy family attended the funeral service or spent the week end here. Two brothers, Fred Bucy of Tahoka and Glenn of Fort Worth, and a sister, Mrs. Mary Alden, and their two children, Ralph Davis, 9, and Martha Jane, 7, his step-mother, Mrs. Mary Bucy of Fort Worth, and a third brother, Matt Bucy of Waco, were unable to attend the funeral.

An elder in the First Presbyterian church here, Mr. Bucy was an active writer and religious leader. He also was active in Rotary club, American legion, Red Cross, Good Government league, Masonic orders and other civic bodies.

Born in Johnson county January 8, 1892, he had lived in West Texas since he attained manhood, with the exception of the time he was in the army, becoming a second lieutenant in the engineering corps and serving overseas. He came to Midland in 1924, was married to Miss Lorraine Davis on December 31, 1924, and had made his home here continuously since March 1927. He was serving his third term as county surveyor, was engaged in general civil engineering practice and had extensive oil royalty holdings in Permian Basin fields.

Highway Officers Given Orders To "Crack Down"

RESUME DRILLING IN YOAKUM WELL

Honolulu and Cascade Test Now Below 5,124 Feet

BY FRANK GARDNER
Honolulu and Cascade No. 1 Bennett, southeastern Yoakum county discovery producer, resumed drilling late yesterday and when last reported had reached 5,124 feet below the old depth. After recovering five joints of tubing and packer lost Saturday, operators swabbed through casing for 8 hours, obtaining 30 barrels of oil.

The old gauge, taken last night on the rate of increase showed fluid rising 800 feet in the hole in three hours. Fluid level was within 1,100 feet of the top early this morning.

Whether any additional pay streaks have been encountered is still uncertain.

The No. 1 Bennett was treated March 17 with 2,000 gallons of acid and appeared to be benefited by the injection. After swabbing through tubing for several days, operators decided to pull it and drill ahead. It was while pulling tubing that the string parted, causing the fishing job. The only source of oil thus far found by the discovery is from 5,094 to 5,096. It is located in section 678, block G, John H. Gibson survey, and is the farthest north producing oil well in this part of the Permian Basin.

Seminole Test Fishing
Fishing for a bit is in progress today at the W. T. Walsh, and Harry Adams Corp. No. 1 Averit, wildcat test three miles northwest of Seminole and one of the most closely watched operations in West Texas. Saturday the bit was secured but lost again when stem broke on the fishing string. According to reports the string of fishing tools was blown up to the crown while being pulled out of the hole, damaging some of the rig equipment. The gas flow, gauged nearly a week ago at more than 12,000,000 cubic feet per day is said to be unabated.

The Walsh and Adams test encountered the heavy gas in drilling to 4,910 feet, where it is now bottled. The fact that the gas appears to be "wet" has led many to believe that the well is at the top of the oil-bearing formation, and when drilling is resumed verdict should be known after a few feet have been made.

Located on a structure mapped by many geophysical parties, the No. 1 Averit also encountered a long series of gas pockets in the Yates sand horizon farther up the hole. It is in section 228, block G, W. T. R. R. survey.

Witcher Well Makes Flow
Flow of 256 barrels of oil with gas at 750,000 cubic feet was made by Stanolind No. 1 J. E. Witcher in a 22-hour period ending yesterday morning. The production was made with a string of tools and part of the line still in the hole and fishing for them is under way today. In the previous 24-hour period the well flowed a total of 650 barrels while fishing for the tools. The decrease registered by the last test is probably because of cavings clogging the pay zone. France Must Decide Whether She Is To Remain As A Great World Power

BY MORRIS GILBERT NEA Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Mar. 23.—Military occupation of the Rhineland by German troops made the opening of H. G. Wells' film, "Things to Come" in Paris a gripping and significant event instead of just another cinema premiere.

The audience, drawn from France's ace statesmen, people-about-town, journalists, and artists, sat in tense excitement, in the most modernistic of Parisian movie theatres. Once in a while they cheered. And more than once—they booed.

There was menace in the air of Paris that night, and a sense of bewilderment. Outwardly calm, Paris was obeying the plea of the nation's spokesmen to preserve its "sang-froid." But any hint to grasp at, in the way of reassurance, British support, broke down the reserve.

That was why the sequence showing thousands of British war-planes forging steadily, furiously eastward across an ominous sky brought cheers from strained throats. To the audience at "Le Paris" in the Champs Elysees, it was like the breaking of a dam, like the dawn of a new hope.

Re-calls Situation in August, 1914 Nobody could help turning back in imagination to a hot night in early August in 1914 when news reached Paris that Britain had at last—decided to pitch into the World War.

The less impulsive members of the audience made reservations. The situation was not identical, at all. There was no war, merely a possibility, a menace.

But it was noticeable that the sight of every war plane on the scene brought its response from the French audience—an innate, probably involuntary, reaction of excitement and approval of military prowess. For the French, loving peace, nevertheless also love the sight of a warrior.

Fling out, afterwards, the audience was silent. And in five minutes, every newspaper-boy in the Champs Elysees had exhausted his stock of special editions reporting Anthony Eden's speech in the House of Commons.

Future of Country Is Being Made France stands at the crossroads, not merely of war and peace, but of the whole future conception of the kind of nation she wants to be. The question is: Shall she continue to try to act as a Great World Power, or shall she resign herself to remaining a land of intellectual and spiritual distinction without the terrific strain of competing internationally in world politics and economic adventure?

A Great World Power—with 40 millions of population against Germany with 70 millions, Britain with her vast and populous dominions, Russia with 168 millions; with an instinctive dislike of modern industrial and economic organization; and with the perpetual obligation to keep up a massive army for purposes of prestige in European councils and of defense.

The strain is terrific, exhausting. The institution of a national army cuts across the whole of France's youth, staggers their careers, jangles their development. How much better to organize an army of career soldiers, well-paid, technically efficient, and equipped with arms, and let it guard France's frontier and keep the enemies off?

Then France could return—to say the rather few but intensely active prophets of this idea—to her old ways of happy life, when wine was really the laughter of the peasant fields of France when there was real gaiety in Paris and the provinces, when Frenchmen, women and children lived richly, in a world of charm.

To accomplish this—the tourist trade, the development of the invaluable French luxury trade, the stressing of scholarships and opportunities for learning and art. Idealistic, perhaps—but, the apologists argue, wouldn't it be better to make a stab at such a France, protected behind an invincible barrier of steel, than to continue groaning and sweating in the thick of world politics, with which, apart from her own safety, France hasn't the slightest interest?

It would mean reversing the prestige of the French nation which has been great in varying degree ever since Louis XIV, the Sun King, when France was the model of the world's civilization. But isn't this prestige already on the wane, and is it worth the candle, when actually French prestige—a real French kind—would rise again under the other circumstances?

Here, in the face of glowering war, is what some French people are thinking.

Letters to the Editor Reporter-Telegram, Midland, Texas, Because of the excellent record he has established as the state's chief executive, Governor James V. Allred need have no worry over the opposition that is cropping up against him for the July Democratic primary. His vigor, astuteness, honesty and constructive legislative program will assure his reelection, because Texans have accepted his administration of affairs with utter satisfaction.

BEHIND THE SCENES -IN- WASHINGTON By RODNEY DUTCHER Reporter-Telegram Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Our diplomats and the foreign diplomats and the foreign correspondents here are still betting against a European war in the next few months. But the odds have shortened.

Factors figuring in the guessing are relative preparedness and unpreparedness, the extent of sentiment for a "preventive" war, and the chances of an "incident" which might touch off the powder keg.

It still seems impossible to discover any statesman or other authority who doesn't believe there will be a war within the next two years.

Chief factor making for peace in the near future is the insistence of England in maintaining her policy of postponing the conflict as long as possible and refusing to join France and Russia against Germany—which, it is commonly believed, would also mean Japan—at this time.

And again it is the consensus of international opinion, based on information, that Hitler won't be "ready" for another year or two.

What shortens the odds is rather convincing evidence that the French have come to believe that it would be safer to fight Germany now than later, when she completes her rearmament. Reports that the French general staff has reached this conclusion are commonly credited here.

And there is a strong suspicion that Soviet Russia has also become sold on the "preventive war" theory.

Britain Prefers to Wait The British still seem to hold the key. They want to carry out their big program of rearmament before letting themselves in for any hostilities and they are still further unprepared for the important standpoint of the psychology of the British people.

They are definitely afraid of a German air attack on London, which might be launched and achieved before a defending air force could warm up and leave the ground.

has his choice, at Austria and Russia.

Now Is Time, France Thinks France, nevertheless, believes she will have to fight Germany sooner or later. And her military leaders feel that now—when Hitler isn't "ready," when France has the assured support of Russia and the Little Entente and the probable support of Italy—is the most advantageous time.

Perhaps more than ever before in history, statesmen of the world feel they need strong endorsement from public opinion in case of war. The average Frenchman isn't eager to get into an aggressive war. That's why it is likely that even a "preventive" war would be preceded by tactics designed to stir up popular passion.

A sudden incident, comparable to the sinking of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor, might set Europe's armies marching. But the more cynical diplomats suggest that when the "incident" comes, it will not arrive by accident, but by careful plan. (Copyright, 1936, NEA Service, Inc.)

Convalescent

By Helen Welshimer

MY heart that had been ill is better now. Though not so strong as it had been before, I cannot stand bright pains that tear and pound. Or monotone of anguish any more. Resiliency is gone and now it must be pampered by such things as constancy. Now it accepts no verdict unless just. Its interest lags without activity.

NOT quite an invalid and yet too weak. Not interested, or brave enough to seek. The answers to the riddles no one knows. It does relax, purged clean of rhyme or reason. And convalescing has a lovely season!

Babies Honored by Evangels Class Sunday Morning

Babies born in the Evangels class during the past two years were honored at a meeting of the class at the Baptist parsonage Sunday morning.

The following special program was presented:

Reading — Buttercups — Norma Jean Hubbard.

Reading — Barbara Ann Ellis.

Mrs. Hendricks Sings for Naomis

"Jesus Teaches True Values" was the subject of the lesson discussion given by Mrs. J. Howard Hodge at the Naomi class meeting Sunday morning.

Miss Virgie Locklar led the lesson reading and Mrs. R. L. Mitchell gave the devotional.

Mrs. Leo Hendricks sang a special solo accompanied by Mrs. Holt Jewell.

Mrs. O. H. Lamar played the class offertory.

In the Orient, bamboo and elephant grass are used in paper manufacture.

At The Library

New rent books are:

"Secret Marriage" by Kathleen Norris: Shortly after her secret marriage, Mary Burleigh realizes her mistake. She tries hard to make it a success, even though she has come to love another man. Her unflinching devotion to her orphaned brothers and sisters is appealing, and of course, it comes out all right. "The Last Puritan", by George Santayana: "More a memoir than a novel, the story's action is intellectual and spiritual; it has no plot and practically no love interest. But for a reflective reader, it is easy, rewarding reading. Oliver Alden, reared and educated in New England at the turn of the century, was, in spite of the advantages of intellect and wealth, so conscious of duty and responsibility that enjoyment was impossible. Written in simple clear prose, the book constitutes a general commentary on life by one of the most civilized minds of today." A. L. A. Booklist. "The Case of the Sleepwalker's Niece" by Eric Stanley Gardner: A new Perry Mason story by the author of the "Case of the Caretaker's Cat", etc. Other new books include: "The Incredible Balkans" by Konrad Bercovici: "For centuries the Balkans have been the bloody ground of the long struggle between the Turks and the Christian nations. They are still the battleground of the old world. Mr. Bercovici's study of this fascinating part of the world is based on intimate knowledge, for he is himself a Roumanian." "The Book of Old Ships", by Henry B. Culver, illustrated by Gordon Grant: "The Book of Old Ships, and something of their evolution and romance—wherein will be found drawings and descriptions of many varieties of vessels, both long and round, showing their development from most remote times; the portraiture of their progress, their garbment, and so forth. Together with divers dissertations upon the ORIGINS OF SHIPPING; also an appendix wherein will be discovered the inquisitive much information appertaining to the ancient uses and customs of the sea and mariners." "Mark Twain's America", by Bernard De Voto: A critical appraisal of Mark Twain is here combined with an analysis of frontier life in the Mississippi valley and the far west. It is a fascinating account of the forces which in the author's opinion formed Mark Twain's genius. This view is frankly controversial and particularly hostile to the theories of Van Wyck Brooks." A. L. A. Booklist.

"They Had Their Hour", by Marquette James: "They Had Their Hour" is important because it expands into real living human beings historical characters who are to most people but mere names remembered vaguely from dull school-books. It is so entertaining and readable that it can be recommended to any reader—even to the reader who ordinarily wouldn't even look at a history book! Galveston News. "Costume Design", by Anne Chase: Giving costume designs of every period.

"Silver, Pewter, Sheffield Plate" by Fred W. Burgess: Pieces of historical interest, Greek, Celtic, Roman, Mediaeval, etc., concluding with chapters on different articles, cameos, rings, brooches, watches, etc.

"Old Glass, European and American" by N. Hudson Moore: The various famous makes of old glass in this country and in Europe are dealt with from the point of view of the collector. The historical facts

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

"Old Hickory"

NEXT to Jefferson, the fiery fighting Andrew Jackson has been a guiding star for members of the Democratic party. Opponents might remember him as the man who started the hateful "spoils system" which continued unabated until the assassination of President Garfield. But Jackson's worshippers look upon him as a red-blooded executive who fought in the Revolution when he was only 13, who crushed the Creek Indian revolts in Alabama and Georgia and brought about the acquisition of Florida territory, and whose victory at New Orleans was one of the greatest American triumphs over Great Britain in the war of 1812.

Throughout his presidency, from 1829 to 1837, Jackson's popularity grew as did that of no other president after him. Almost his first act as the seventh president of the United States was dissolution of the U. S. bank. At the same time he took the first steps toward specie currency and an independent U. S. treasury. For his courage and hardiness, his friends called him "Old Hickory."

Five different U. S. stamps picture Andrew Jackson. The one issued in 1902 gives the dates of his birth (1767) and death (1845).

"Antique Jewelry and Trinkets" by Fred W. Burgess: There are included introductory chapters on the craftsmanship, the jeweller's art, engraving, etc., followed by others of historical interest, Greek, Celtic, Roman, Mediaeval, etc., concluding with chapters on different articles, cameos, rings, brooches, watches, etc.

High-Speed Living Taxes Digestion

Smoking Camels found to have a positive beneficial effect upon Digestion . . .

Our modern "eat-and-run" way of living is hard on digestion. Experiences with indigestion are common! Hence unusual interest attaches to the following fact: that smoking Camels has been found to have a marked beneficial effect in aiding digestive action. You'll find Camels milder too, packed with the rich enjoyment of choice tobaccos.

Turn to Camels for digestion's sake... for the pleasure to be found in Camel's costlier tobaccos. Camels set you right!

OTIS BARTON, inventor of the "bathysphere," says diving tests condition—especially digestion. "Camels help make my food digest better."

LESTER STOEFFEN, former U.S. Doubles Champion, says: "Camels help food to digest easier. Eating at odd hours all over the country, I smoke Camels for digestion's sake."

COSTLIER TOBACCOS!

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand.

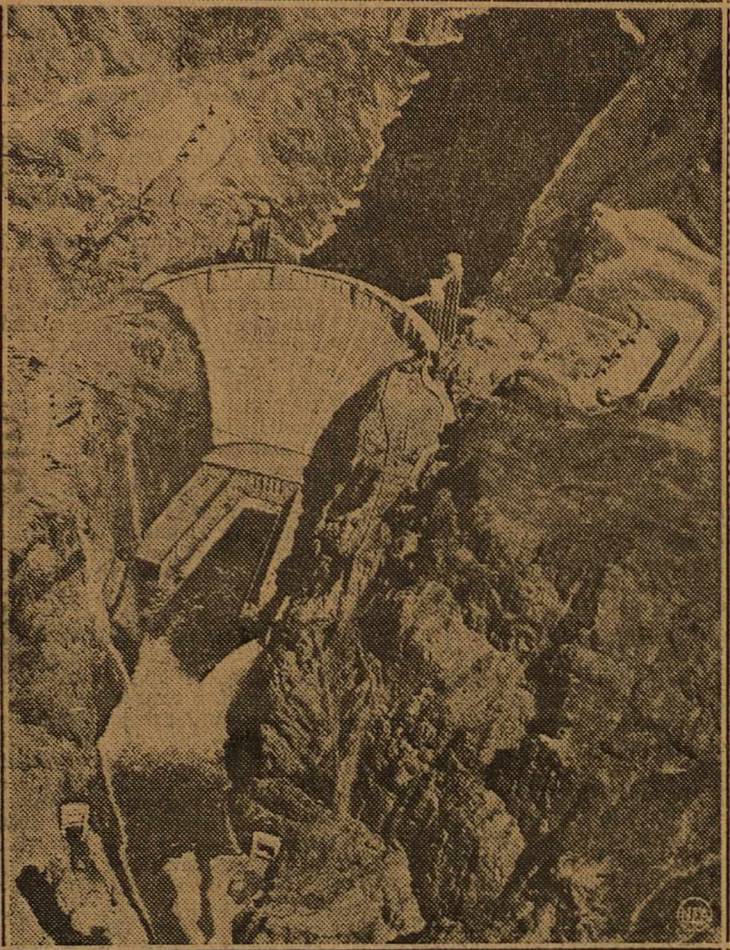

"CAMELS ARE A FAVORITE with us here," says Mr. Joe Moss, who presides over New York's Hollywood Restaurant (above). "I see Camels on lots of tables. We've found that success comes through giving people the best. The fact that Camel uses costlier tobaccos and people prefer Camels shows that they appreciate the same policy in other lines too."

Boulder Spillways Get 'Workout'

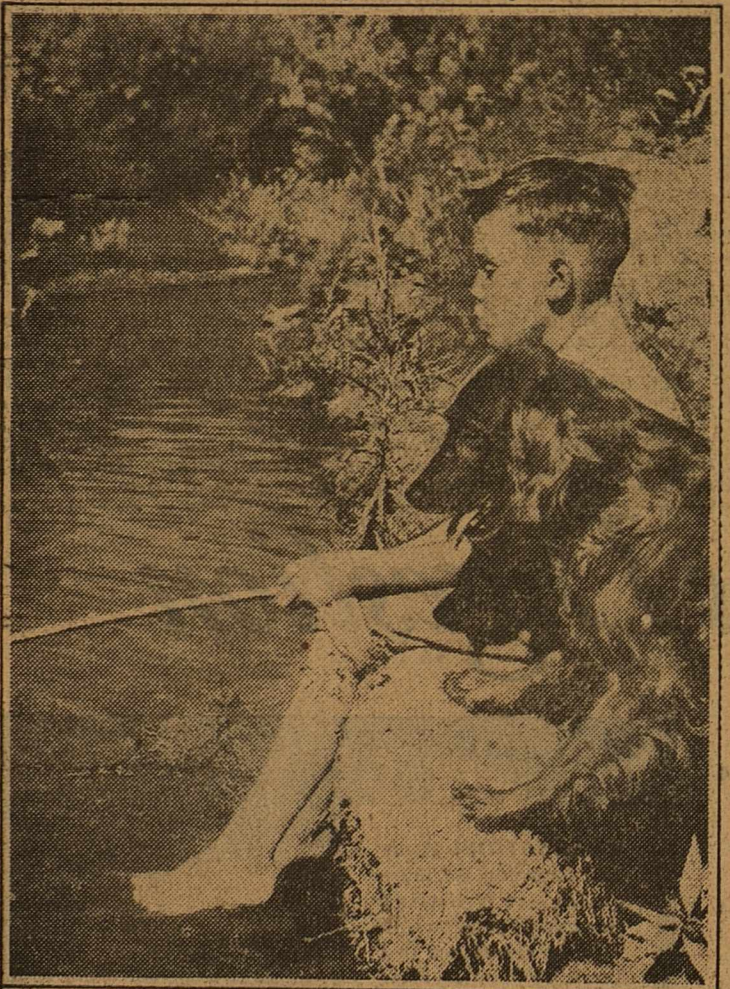

Swedish Princess Has Royal Time

Not a tiny model, but the real, massive Boulder Dam, with great torrents gushing through its spillways for the first time, is pictured in this striking view, taken from a plane high above the earth. Enough water to float a battleship poured from Boulder Lake through the intake towers, shown behind the dam, and out the giant spillways, so government engineers could test the equipment.

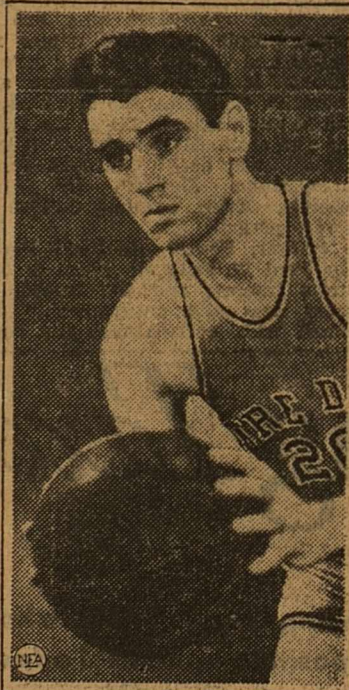

A princess charming in her Victorian coiffure and gown, Princess Sibylla of Sweden apparently enjoyed hugely the first masked ball held in Stockholm in the last seven years. The wife of Prince Gustaf Adolf, Sibylla and other members of the Swedish royal family made merry at the brilliant fete, formerly an annual function.

Where His Fancy Lightly Turned

As signs of spring, green buds and chirping robins are all very well. But what better harbinger is there than this scene, of a barefoot lad and his dog, on a river bank, waiting eagerly for that cork to start bobbing? Workaday grownups may turn to the calendar to learn when spring begins, but Young America senses it in that lure of the old fishing grounds.

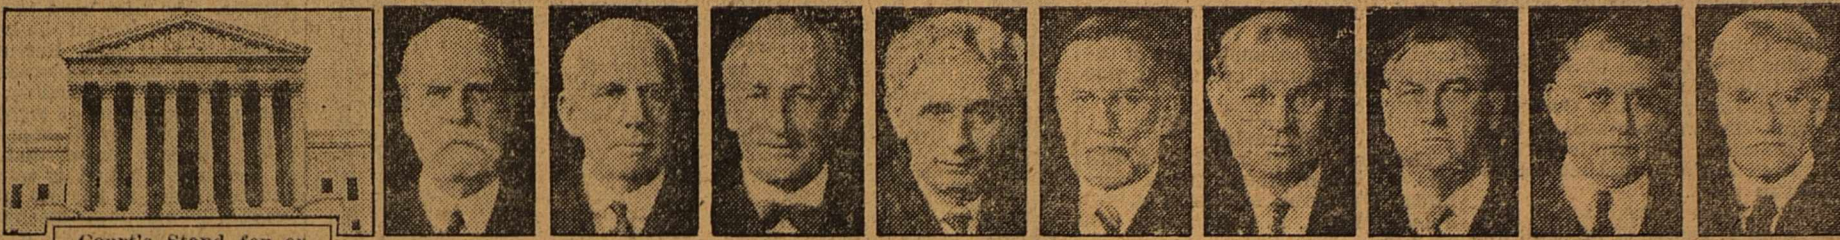

PACES IRISH

One reason for success of Notre Dame's basketball team this year is Johnny Moir, a sophomore ball tosser who broke the all-time Irish one-game scoring record when he counted 25 points against Pitt in a recent cage contest. Moir also has broken the all-season scoring mark registered by Moose Krause in 1932-33, having registered 219 counters.

Record Wrecker in 440

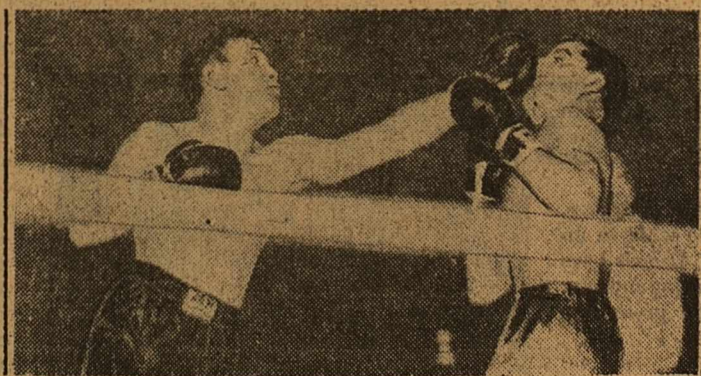

Out-distancing his field by yards, Ray Ellinwood, long-sounding University of Chicago runner, set a new world indoor record of 43.9 seconds in the 440-yard dash at the Big Ten indoor meet in Chicago. Here's Ellinwood crossing the finish line, breaking his old mark of 49 seconds set a month ago.

Bridge of Glacial Ice Is Nature's Masterpiece

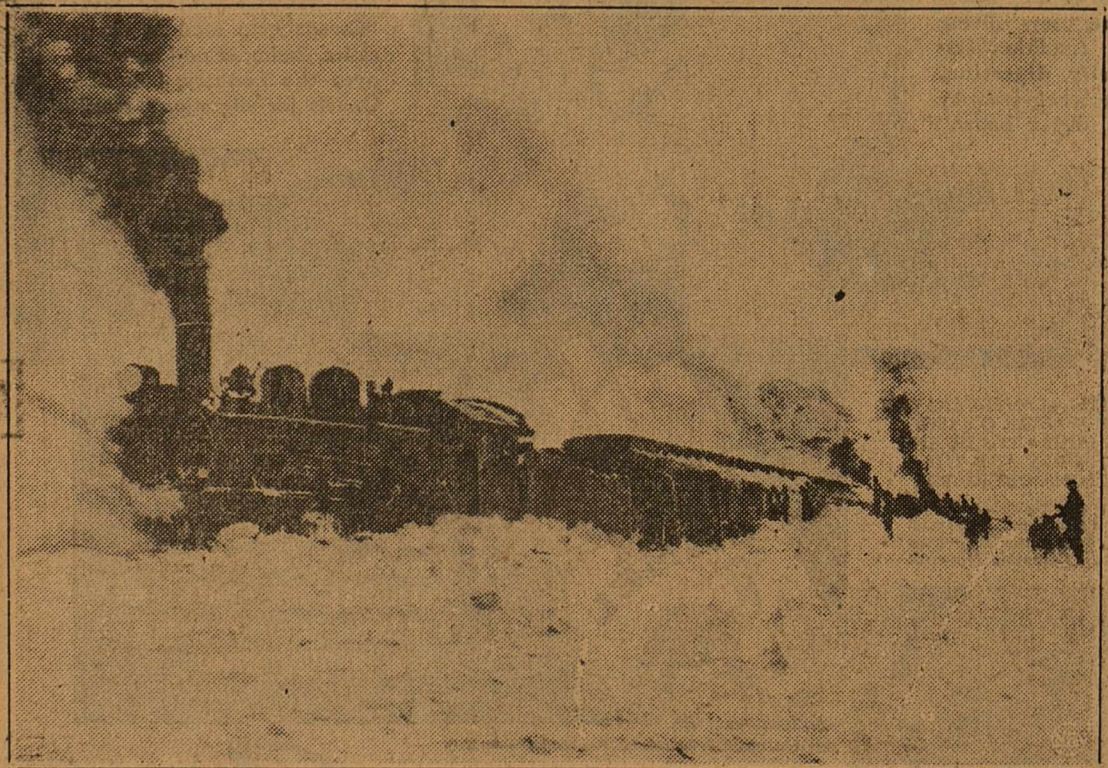

A striking example of Nature's architectural wizardry is this huge arch of ice, bridging a tumbling torrent in Glacier National Park, in northwestern Montana. Carved by water erosion throughout the ages, this beautiful formation, named Agassiz Glacier after the famed Swiss-American naturalist, is one of the park's most impressive sights. From above, the glacier resembles a huge bird flying over the mountain pass.

Fight That Cost Loser's Life

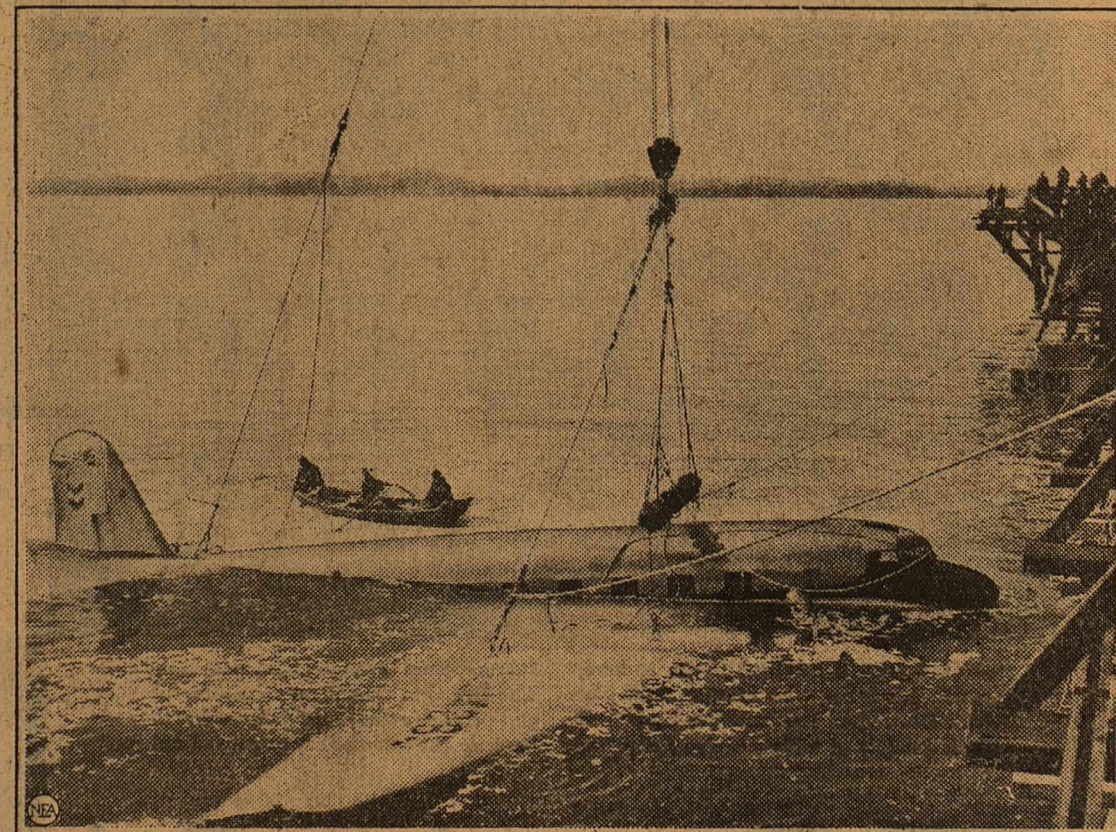

With tragic suddenness, the bout between Lou Ambers, (left), contender for the lightweight championship, and Tony Scarpati (right), fought at Madison Square Garden, New York, was concluded. At the end of the seventh round, Ambers knocked Scarpati down. Scarpati failed to rise and was rushed to the hospital, where he succumbed to death from a head injury.

No, King Winter Hasn't Abdicated; Here's Proof!

Maybe the backbone of that "old-fashioned" winter is bent, if not snapped, in most parts of the country, but it wasn't even dented near Hartford, S. D., where this train, on the Omaha line, was freed after being held fast for 25 hours by huge snowdrifts, left in the wake of a blizzard. While mail sacks for warmth and food from the baggage car were provided for women and children passengers, section hands and relief locomotives succeeded finally in returning the train to its starting point, Sioux Falls, S. D.

Salt Lake Yields Luxury Liner Hidden Five Months

Mystery which shrouded the disappearance last Oct. 6 of this Standard Oil Company luxury liner and its three occupants ended with divers' discovery of the plane on the bottom of Great Salt Lake. The ship is shown being raised after having been towed 23 miles under water by tugs. Bodies of two occupants of the plane, which crashed while en route from Oakland, Cal., to Salt Lake City, were found on an island in the center of the lake.

In Marital Race, Victory Is Gloria's

It's almost a neck 'n' neck race in number of marriages among these three Hollywood actresses, but the glory of victory seems destined for Gloria Swanson, at right, who has had four husbands and, judging by her romance with Herbert Marshall, seems well on her way to adding a fifth. The other two, with four marriages each, are Dorothy Lee, upper left, who has just wed the wealthy A. G. Cox Atwater of Crown Point, Ind., and Josephine Dunn, who took a fourth husband last year.

Texas Statistics Justify Wildlife Conference Call

Mrs. Hal C. Peck, member of the State Game, Fish and Oyster commission, has received a letter from Governor James V. Alfred expressing the hope that she will attend and will urge others in this section to attend the Texas Wildlife Conference which he has called to meet in Austin, March 27-28. Jay N. Darling, former chief of the U. S. Biological Survey, famous cartoonist, and president of the General Wildlife Federation, will come from his home in Iowa to address the Texas meeting. The need for such a conference as that planned for this week is seen in the statistics concerning Texas which are given below: Texas ranks first in the annual value of its wildlife resources. Texas has a greater variety of wildlife than any other state. Texas wildlife resources are valued at more than $90,000,000.00 annually. Texas sportsmen are spending more than $25,000,000.00 annually on hunting and fishing. Farmers and ranchmen of Texas make a greater profit in the aggregate from the wildlife that inhabits their land than is made by land owners in any other state. Texas is the first state in the Union in rural population; it is fifth in general population. Texas ranks nineteenth in the amount of revenue that is provided for restoration and administration of its wildlife resources. In many sections of Texas the original wildlife abundance has reached the state of actual depletion. A number of valuable species of this State, with abundant opportunity for increase, are scarcely holding their own—among them the Mountain sheep, pronghorn antelope, partridge chickens. There has been little legislative effort to co-ordinate and simplify wildlife regulations in Texas. There has been no successful effort in this State to provide flexible laws with which wildlife emergencies might be met. The valiant efforts of a few forward-looking lawmakers, without general public support, has been unavailing in providing the governmental recognition which the wildlife resources of this State deserve and require. Because of favorite climate, our great size, the individual efforts which many landowners have initiated, and the remnant of wildlife which we have available for restoration efforts, more can be accomplished in Texas, if a start is made now, than in any other state making an equal expenditure. It cannot be expected that dormant public sentiment, and efforts of separate and independently working groups will accomplish the task. It is a job for everyone who is interested in any phase of wildlife development, whether from the viewpoint of the recreationist, landowner or industrialist. It is a problem to be considered both from its potentialities for future happiness and future economic prosperity of our people. The future security of our wildlife can be provided if all groups, and all citizens who should be interested in the valuable natural resources of this State, will meet and counsel together, and join their forces and purposes for immediate action. There is need for larger funds for wildlife; there is need for better education; there is need for long-time planning. Without adequate organization it cannot be expected that there will for a long time be the general public awakening that is required for wildlife conservation and restoration. It is a job that is worthy of the Texans who are this year celebrating the achievements of those who made Texas independent. While we are celebrating our hundred years of progress we should guarantee to the youths of the future, the heritage of the outdoors of which we are the temporary custodians. We have used much of the heritage that was given us. There will be much more which we may use and enjoy if we assume the full task of conservation and restoration.
