BOXBAY, Okla., April 9. (UP)—Erve Kelly, former McIntosh county sheriff, was slain today in a gun battle with two men believed to have been "Pretty Boy" Floyd and George Birdwell, notorious fugitives.

SEYMOUR STEALS SHOW IN LITTLE THEATRE COMEDY

Joseph A. Seymour, Midland attorney who played the title role Friday evening in the little theatre's first production of the season, "The Old Soak," gave the most brilliant characterization of any one who has ever been given a role with the Midland organization.

Don Marquis, the author, wrote the part out ahead of other roles so prominently that no other character would have had a chance to compete with Seymour, which is another way of saying the entire play fell on the narrow and stooped shoulders of Seymour.

Seymour must have felt this when he made his first entry. "Pull for the shore, sailors, pull for the shore," he sang, the drinking then continuing the Yucca audience and preparing it for hanging on to every word he spoke from there out.

Another factor in favor of the keen enjoyment of the audience, aside from the strong supporting cast, was the play itself. "The Old Soak" is not only well known to the American theatre-goer; it is actually famous. With Seymour in the title role, it could scarcely have failed to swing the audience into immediate interest.

Miss Elma Graves, ill and tired from a siege of influenza, gave a splendid performance as the old Soak's wife. It was her first morning she could not go on the stage, but she insisted. She was in character throughout the run of the play, but was so weak physically that she almost collapsed afterward.

R. H. Morse, playing the role of a country banker, met favor with the audience in his first role with the little theatre. As contrasted with a genuine dislike to "Cousin Wacker" from his first entrance, just as Morse was charged with making it, "Clem," the Old Soak's son, played by Howard Henderson, was made the antipathy from the first. Dunaway made his first appearance with the play group and acted the role of the weak son in an exceptional manner.

S. M. Warren and Miss Stella Maye Lanham have become the first lovers' team of the little theatre. They have been cast opposite each other for two seasons and improve with each production. Sam is big and has those strong features which make him fit into any type lead. Miss Lanham knows stage technique from courses in the university and in a Kansas city dramatic institute.

Child Is Almost Electrocuted Here

A child's likelihood to stick objects into its mouth almost cost the life of Frankie Louise, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Drake.

Sea Lion Tamer Hurt in Wreck

Found seriously injured in the wreckage of his overturned truck near Eastland, Fred Solomon, sea lion tamer who showed at a Midland theatre last week, was said Saturday to have a fighting chance for life.

Solomon was towing a roadster behind his truck and it is believed the car came loose from its connection with the truck and ran alongside the heavier vehicle, fouling it so that it plunged out of control into the ditch.

The sea lions were not apparently injured, although they had been out of water quite a period before the wreckage was located by a passer-by.

It was explained to Bonner that the Midlander's name was found in a date book on Solomon. The caller asked for instruction on how to handle the sea lions, explaining he was afraid of them and that no one seemed to know much about caring for them.

65-Mile Gale Lifts Roof Here

A 65-mile-an-hour wind blew for a short time Saturday, and bore enough to polish the sides of a rock building.

The average speed of the ground current was 50 miles, according to measurements taken at the army meteorological station along the coast.

At 10, the wind must have blown at 90 miles an hour or more, but no barometer ascensions were made.

HOW DEMOCRATIC 'HOPES' VIEW CAMPAIGN ISSUES

Table with columns: Candidate (Smith, Roosevelt, Garner, Ritchie, Baker, Murray, Robinson, Byrd) and Issue (Tariff, Prohibition, Farm Relief, War Debts, Taxation). Each cell contains a brief statement of the candidate's position on that issue.

The stand taken by leading Democratic presidential possibilities of 1932 on some of the important issues of the approaching campaign is shown in the table below. In most cases, their positions have been set forth in recent speeches.

With the exception of Governor "Alfalfa Bill" Murray of Oklahoma, who probably will be listening in by radio, they are due to gather at Washington April 13 for the annual Jefferson Day rally, probably the last group meeting before the campaign for the nomination warms to fever heat.

CHILD NOT RETURNED, THOUGH RANSOM IS PAID

HOPEWELL, April 9. (UP)—A ransom of approximately $50,000 has been paid but the Lindbergh child had not yet been returned early Saturday afternoon.

It is said that many people buy the "unusual" bus lines, or in private cars and are left stranded. Most of them are cured for life and say never again will they buy transportation except on legitimate, recognized lines.

WELFARE DRIVE ORGANIZED FOR 3-DAY CAMPAIGN

Tomorrow and again on Tuesday and on Wednesday the people of Midland will have the opportunity that is presented annually to do their part in the contribution of money for the support of the Midland Welfare association.

The city has been divided into zones and eight women appointed as captains to supervise the soliciting in these designated areas. Prominent civic and club women of the city are cooperating in the work with much enthusiasm.

The "give a day's wages" appeal will be made to every employed person in the community and if all wage earners and salaried people will cooperate to this extent aid the business interests will donate $25,000 to the appeal. The success of the drive is assured.

Area Optimistic Over Oil Outlook

Citizens of McCamey, Rankin and Crane City are viewing the oil situation with more optimism than at any time in over two years. Midland citizens who visited those cities Friday found out, W. G. Riddle, district manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company, F. W. Chapman, district plant manager of the company, and the Midland chamber of commerce secretary visited the oil field town.

EDITORIAL NOTES

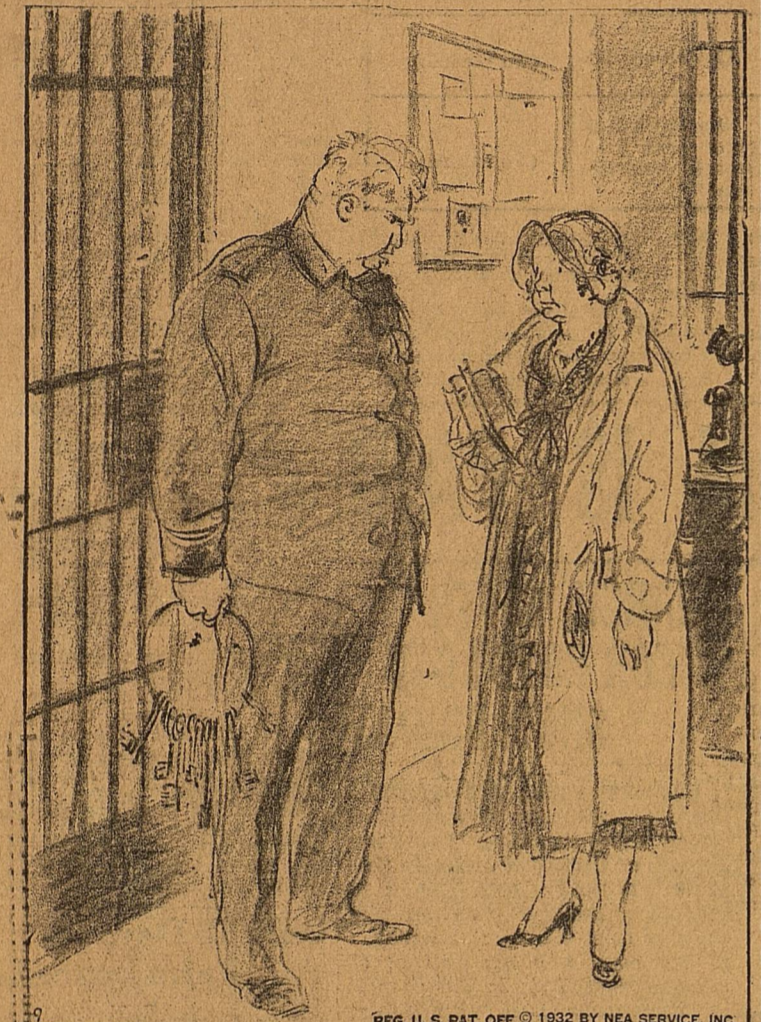

In the Arkansas Ozarks there is a lone cabin in the woods with 3000 books free to all. The library is never locked, has no attendants, no card is needed. One walks in, takes a book, signs, returns it when ready, signs again, and that's that. Which is a library method that speaks volumes for the honesty of people as a whole and the Ozarkers in particular.

Taking issue with a statement which represented the membership of the Chicago Board of Trade as being opposed to prohibition, the editor of Who's Who tells the wet members of the executive committee what's what.

Approximately 34 per cent of the natural wealth of the United States is now estimated to be west of the Mississippi. Perhaps this is what Horace Greely foresaw when he said, "Go West, young man!"

The wood-burning automobile now in operation in Germany claimed by the inventor to effect an 85 per cent saving in fuel cost is perhaps a forerunner of a tax on cord wood.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Susan Carey, who lives with her Aunt Jessie on Chicago's west side, has an unpleasant experience when she applies for her first job. Bob Dunbar, millionaire's son whom Susan met at business school, comforts her. She secures employment as secretary to Ernest Heath, prominent architect. Ben Lammpan, a moody young admirer of Susan's, visits her and she is given by some Bohemian friends. Susan does not enjoy the affair and decides not to see Lammpan any more. Weeks pass and the girl is lonely. Jack Warren's kind of mess. But they are not tied down. They live their own lives and have a good time. Susan, remembering Arnold's unkempt appearance and the greasy look of George's pants, looked into her smock, was silent. She did not want to criticize Ben's friends. "It's a great love, anyhow," Ben burst out after an interval as the bright lighted trolley purred in series of jerks and stops. "They were terribly in love. Arnold had a wife some place in Russia but they fixed that up. They're what I call a really happy couple."

CHAPTER X

On the way home in the hard brightness of the street car Ben said, "That's the way to live. Like Scotland and Andy. Free and easy." Susan stared at him. "You like that?" Ben moved impatiently. "Oh, I knew what you'd say. I know the merchant's kind of mess. But they are not tied down. They live their own lives and have a good time." Susan, remembering Arnold's unkempt appearance and the greasy look of George's pants, looked into her smock, was silent. She did not want to criticize Ben's friends. "It's a great love, anyhow," Ben burst out after an interval as the bright lighted trolley purred in series of jerks and stops. "They were terribly in love. Arnold had a wife some place in Russia but they fixed that up. They're what I call a really happy couple."

Susan felt a hysterical impulse to laugh but she restrained herself. She thought the whole crowd, the Strinskys and their unwashed friends, with the exception of that exotic blossom, Denise, dreadful people. With provincial simplicity she discounted whatever talent lay in Arnold's long fingers because he did not look clean. She wondered how she could best describe the party to Aunt Jessie.

She let her hand lie limply in Ben's warm one at parting. "I can't ask you to come in," Susan said gently. "Aunt Jessie's gone to bed. Thank you for taking me to the party."

Ben muttered, "Wanted you to meet the crowd. They're real people. You'll like them better when you know them."

Susan withdrew her hand. "Good night, then," she said, avoiding his hot, uncomfortable gaze. He called after her, "I'll phone you." Susan waved to him through the screen door, glad the tiresome evening was over. There was something almost frightening about Ben's intensity. Even when he had talked of the Strinsky's romance he had made it seem a personal matter.

Those dreadful people! Their way of living might seem ideal to Ben Lammpan, but it certainly did not to Susan. She would not go there again.

But as summer waxed and waned the girl almost regretted her decision. Chicago's Bohemia might not be the social background she desired but loneliness was hard to bear and the warm nights brought with them an aching sense of something missing.

Rose Milton went to Sweetwater Lake for two weeks and wrote back dozens of accounts of her life. She sent snapshots of herself, the center of a merry mixed group. Susan, tossing sometimes on a hot and disordered bed, listening to the raucous music of the radio next door, would wonder about life. She was 19, not unattractive, intelligent, what promise was there ahead for her? Even if she held the job at Ernest Heath's and looked as smart as might, with Miss O'Connell's convalescence lengthening out what had she to look forward to?

Next year she might get $22 a week. In five years she might be making $35. Well, what then? She would stay on with Aunt Jessie in the cottage, she would be 25, she would be 30, 35. She would begin to wear eyelashes and get features in the evening with some woman friend. She would be one of the brave, ever-increasing army of unmarried women workers in the Loop district. They had their two weeks' vacation, their one presentable suit. They wore neat, sensible shoes and devoted themselves wholeheartedly to the concern for which they labored.

Susan saw them in halls and elevators. She heard them whispering together in the cafeterias. "My boss says my boss thinks—" There would be usually a small, little smile as they spoke of their employers. "Office wives," Susan had heard them called. Their loyalty, certainly, was a quality most women would well to copy. They had none of the wives' privileges. They had neither charge accounts, nor chauffeur-driven cars, nor trips south in the winter. They were neat in big ledgers and typed exquisite letters. They remembered to order flowers for Mrs. Blanks' anniversary. They dusted the big mahogany desks and turned the loose-leaf calendars daily. They called at the University club to order a table for four, for Tuesday, please, and will you be sure it's near a window? They bought theatre tickets for plays they were never to see, ordered camellias for pretty ladies who had no reason for existence and made deposits in bank books of sums that would have kept them in clothing throughout their lives.

Susan said to herself that it wouldn't be so bad if the average secretary could see herself getting ahead as a young man might, using the office as a stepping stone to higher places. The typical girl worker, however, poured her energy, her sympathy and her intelligence into the job, and unless she met with exceptional luck or extraordinary favoritism she might work 10, 15, 20 years without any recognition beyond the weekly pay envelope whose sum remained discouragingly small.

She was young she was lonely, she was good. Sometimes during those warm, disturbing summer nights Susan wondered if it paid. She wondered if she might not, some day, answer the invitation in Jack Warren's eyes. She wondered if that seat in his sport roadster might not prove altogether too alluring some evening. Susan hoped not but she

EPWORTH, Ill. (NEA)—George Phillip Hanna, banker, farmer and volunteer hangman, expects to assist in the execution of Winnie Ruth Judd, the Phoenix, Ariz., trunk murderer.

Hanging is Hanna's hobby. "I'm a humane man," he says. "When I witness my first execution many years ago, at McLeansboro, Ill., the prison crew bungled the job. "It was brutal, horrifying."

So Hanna got his own rope, studied hanging, and since then has set the fatal noose about the necks of 62 condemned men. The last man he executed was Charlie Birger of Cairo, Ill., "Little Egypt's" notorious gang leader and terrorist, who was hanged at Benton, Ill.

Hanna, 58, and a bachelor until four years ago, lives in a snug little cottage, "Shady Rest," with antiques of his grim avocation lining the walls of the living room.

Heavy set, almost ponderous in manner and appearance, he is of delicate sympathy and perception. "I haven't much nerve," Hanna said. "I dread hangings. I'm upset for days before and afterwards. When I hanged Birger, a bad man, I hid the noose behind my back until the cap was adjusted."

Recently sparrows were driving the wrens away from around his cottage. Hanna borrowed an air gun to rout wondered. The phone rang one morning when she was alone in the office. "Hello, Miss Carey?" The girl's heart, for no good reason, began to beat thickly and uncomfortably. "This is Bob Dunbar. Be an angel and hang up the receiver. Right? How about the Blackstone?" Susan hung up the receiver with a gasp. The Blackstone, and she was wearing her old pink shanties!

"What a lovely pink shanty," she had picked up on a basement counter for $1.50. You would never have guessed the price. In a fever of excitement she had bought a new woman in Susan's town. Being a woman, she summoned a fixed smile to answer him.

"Going abroad?" she repeated, feeling rather stupid yet unable for the moment to think of other words. He frowned and played with his fork. "Yes. Thought I was to stay here and go into business."

"So am I." His mouth twisted whimsically as he looked at her. "I'll be home all gone as I thought it would. I wanted to be friends. I hoped."

The waiter arrived with a tray of little silver dishes and Susan hated him. There was an interval, and then they were alone again in the vast, scented, murmuring room once more.

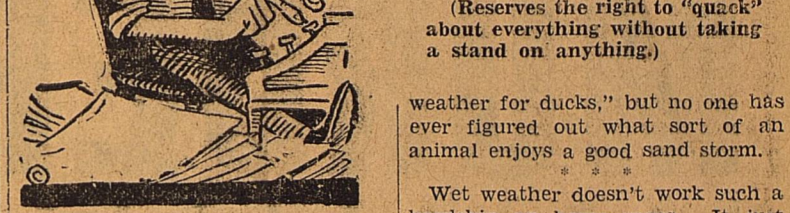

"Well, that's that!" Bob Dunbar's tone was harsh. "Perhaps you'll still be around when I come back." "When will that be?" "Oh, late fall—by Christmas at the outside."

Christmas—Christmas—Christmas—Susan felt as though she were suffocating. To find love, all at once, and have it snatched away. These large, fringed eyes, gray and black by turn, were raised to his. "That's right. I wanted to tell you something. I would have before but the family's been pestering me all summer. Been keeping me out of town. Treating me like a kid in grade school. But you must know—you must have guessed before this time."

Susan felt joy suffusing her, washing over her like warm rain. Into the waters of this tale—let there drop the tiniest of pebbles. A girl's voice, slow and drawing and incoherent, broke across Bob Dunbar's. The strange voice said, "Wherever have you been, darling? I've been missing you so."

Susan glanced up to find the red-haired girl who had been at the Strinsky's party staring impudently at her. But the words were addressed to Bob Dunbar who had sprung to his feet. "Miss Arkovod, this is Miss Carey," he said. Susan wished the ground might open and swallow that red-haired girl, Denise. (To Be Continued)

LETTERS to the EDITOR

Midland, Saturday. Dear Sir: If Doc Ryan isn't a patient in his own hospital this morning he has an iron constitution. He sat right behind us at the Old Soak Friday night and watched Joe Seymour and his co-conspirators, Mrs. Eddie Calhoun and B. C. Henderson get 18 full size hookers of whisky out of a pint flask. He leaned over our shoulder and says it ain't so far it can't be done and I ought to know. He asks us if we had kept count and we says we had and that we had counted a couple too many. Doc, he groaned and says again it ain't so and I know what I'm talking about. Then he says I can stand a lot but I can't stand any more and he went out in a daze. Joe was always talking about a DE-vice and the money it was going to make him. If he will patent that DE-vice where you can get 13 good big snifters out of a pint bottle he can get most of the money in the world and qualify as a great benefactor. Seymour could not have been surpassed in the leading role but it would have been spoiled but for the convincing work of Elma Graves as his wife. Miss Graves gave a fine interpretation of her part. Bryan Henderson was just right as the bootlegger. E. H. Morse was good but a bit too mild in the banking office. He gave in too easily. When a fellow has to cough up ten thousand berries he usually makes a pretty vigorous squawk. Mrs. Calhoun's "tipsy" work was most amusing. The rest of the cast showed to good advantage. Barney Smith did wonders with his excellent musical crew. Our humble opinion is that it would have been almost impossible, even by professional standards, to have had a better presentation of The Old Soak than was given by the Midland theatre Friday night. Mrs. Abell is a real director. —Deirdrick Van Pelt Jr.

ANDOVER.—Lloyd Cook never gets pants paying what he did for his razor, shaving brush and strop. He has had the outfit for years, and says it is more than 85 years old. He calculates that he has saved more than $2,210 in barber bills during the time he has been using it.

GUN SAVES LIVES

WINSTED, Conn.—Instead of killing, the shotgun of a family here saved lives. During the night the kitchen of the gun owner's house caught fire. The fire heated the shotgun, kept on the back porch, until it exploded the shell in the gun. The noise woke the family in time for them to escape.

Vet With Broken Neck Removes Truss

BROCKTON, Mass. (UP)—Nearly two and a half years ago, Leonard W. Holland, 35, World war veteran, fell and broke his neck in three places. Broke his spine. Broke one shoulder. Recently, after months in a cast, he was able to remove the Thomas collar that fitted close upon the neck of his head and close on the lower part of his neck. He had worn the collar since the accident. "I feel like a new man," he said.

Rummies Fate In High Court

WASHINGTON, (UP)—The fate of many rum ships which the government has sought to forfeit may hinge on the decision of the supreme court in a series of cases which it has been asked to review. The vessels involved, large and small craft which at one time or another lost the battle to the Coast Guard, have been libeled under the customs and navigation laws. They are mostly of American registry.

Relying on a previous decision of the court, which held that the prohibition law must be relied on in seeking to forfeit motor vehicles could only be forfeited under the dry laws. Others have ruled that either the customs, navigation, or prohibition laws could be invoked. The government is asking a review in the case of the gas screw vessel Overland seized in the Sakonnet river, Rhode Island as liquor was being unloaded. Forfeiture proceedings brought under the tariff act were set aside by the Boston circuit court.

It similarly is appealing from a like ruling in the case of the auxiliary fishing schooner Ruth Mildred, seized in the East river, Manhattan, loaded with liquor. An appeal involving a British ship, the Sebastopol, seized with 4841 cases of liquor aboard in New York harbor Aug. 1, 1927, has been brought by Louis Halle, attorney for the General Import and Export company.

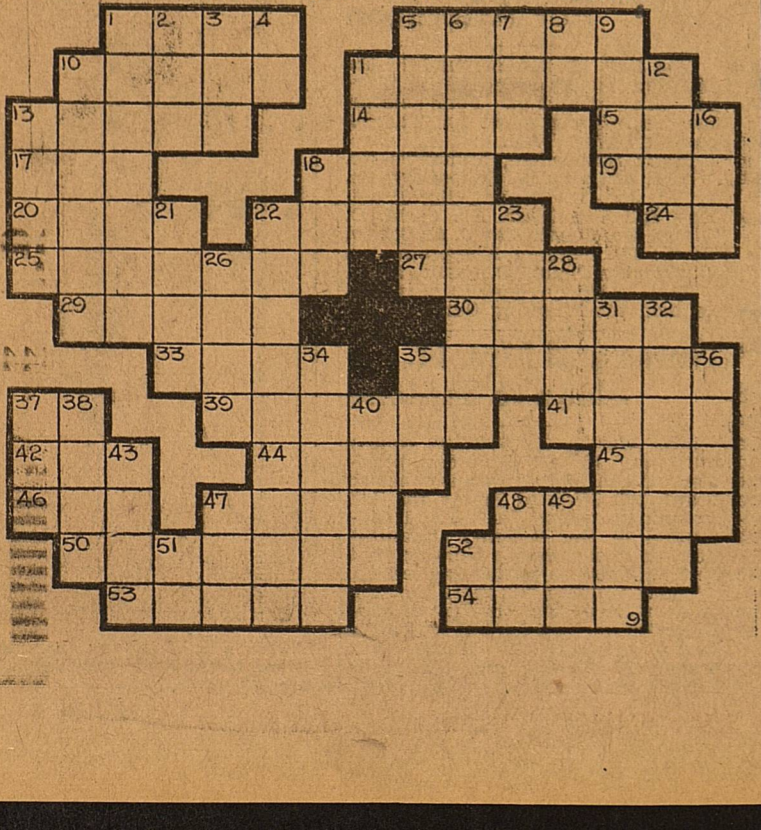

CRASH—IT'S SET!

FORT WORTH.—Vernon James, 13, was watching a marble game. One of the marbles rolled into the street and the boy dashed after it. As he ran, Earl Thompson, pedaling a bicycle, crashed into him, breaking his leg. Leonard Reed picked up Vernon to take him to a hospital. Jack Adams, 14, volunteered to go along. On the way, Reed's car collided with another and was overturned. In the resulting crash Jack's arm was broken—but the broken leg of Vernon was somehow set in the mix-

Informal Parties Close Quiet Week; Evening Bridge for Pioneer Club Is Colorful Affair at Homer Rowe Home

Spring entertainments for Midland social clubs are being marked with charming informal gatherings for small groups.

Outstanding among the parties of the last few days of the week was a beautifully appointed evening bridge affair given by Mr. and Mrs. Homer Rowe Friday honoring members of the Pioneer club.

Potted tulips, California poppies and a color note of green and gold added charm to the rooms of the Rowe home.

Tallies and score books were of a colorful jonquil design and prize packages were covered in gold cellophane and tied with green ribbons.

Mrs. Harry Neblett and Mr. Frank Cowden played high among the club members and guest prizes went to Mrs. A. N. Hendrickson and Mr. A. S. Legg.

An honoree's gift was presented to Mrs. J. E. Hutt of Kansas City. Mr. Clyde Cowden won the cut trophy.

Golden poppies graced the party plates passed at tea time to Messrs. and Mmes. Harry Neblett, Joe Youngblood, Frank Cowden, Clarence Scharbauer, Elliott Cowden, C. M. Goldsmith, Harry Tolbert, Allen Tolbert, Clyde Cowden, E. E. Daniel, A. S. Legg, A. N. Hendrickson, Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Thomas, Mrs. J. L. Crump, Mrs. Leon Goodman, Mrs. J. E. Hutt, Mr. Donald Hutt, and Mr. Ellis Cowden.

Spring Party for Thursday Club

A spring party at the home of Mrs. W. C. Kinkel Thursday afternoon was given as a favor to members of the Thursday club.

Mrs. C. L. Jackson played high and presented her gift to Mrs. H. W. Mathews, a member who left Saturday to make her home in Dallas.

Representatives from Four Methodist Churches Assemble Here for Program

Convening for the regular quarterly zone meeting, Methodist women from Big Lake, McCamey and Rankin meet with Midland women for an all-day program at the Methodist church Friday.

Prohibition served at the theme of the morning program with the afternoon being devoted to special music and business transactions.

As a special work for the zone this year, the organization voted to pledge $120 for the care of a missionary, Bible scholar or some religious cause.

Mrs. H. E. Hayes, zone chairman, and Mrs. Gilbreath, secretary, of Rankin presided.

The next zone conference will be held July 8 in Big Lake.

Mrs. Edwin C. Colman opened the morning session with a devotional. Mrs. Harris of McCamey spoke on "Call to Arms Against the

More Than 30 Play at Club House

Eight tables were arranged for bridge players at the Midland country club house Thursday evening for the club party given on each first and third Thursday.

Score awards for the occasion went to Mrs. B. W. Floyd and Mr. L. C. Waterman.

Mrs. Chapman Gives Club Party

Emphasizing a color theme of yellow and green Mrs. Blake Chapman entertained with a lovely spring party Thursday for members of the Ace-Hi bridge club.

Trophies for the games were presented to Mrs. Leslie Stevens, high, and Mrs. Myrl Manschreck, low.

German Artists Studied by Art Club

A study of German artists and their paintings was made by members of the Arno Art club who were guests Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John M. Shipley.

Members taking part in the discussions were Mmes. Fred Turner, Allan Hargrave, E. H. Ellison, Ralph Barron, F. H. Lanham and Shipley.

North Ward Association Will Close Year Thursday

The Rev. W. J. Coleman will be the principal speaker at the Parent-Teacher association meeting Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the North Ward school building.

"Recreation" will be the subject he discusses.

Other features of the program include a reading by Eula Ann Tolbert, piano solo by Dorothy Sue Miles, and a song by a group of North Ward girls.

The year's work of the association will be closed with this meeting. Officers for the next term are to be selected.

It was announced that all present members and parents who will become members next year are asked to the meeting.

Brilliant Favorite Is Now at Her Best

Ann Harding's latest starring vehicle is outstanding in many respects all of which assure audiences who see "Prestige" at the Grand theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, a thoroughly enjoyable hour with this great EKO movie star.

As the physically frail but spiritually gigantic heroine, Ann Harding gives a superb performance. Nor has she ever appeared to greater advantage from the standpoint of photography. Her wistful loveliness has an ethereal quality, with, in many scenes, a charming suggestion of whimsical humor.

Midland Women Will Hear Pat M. Neff

When delegates from the Midland study clubs attend the Sixth District Federation of Women's clubs in San Angelo this month they will hear ex-Governor Pat M. Neff speak.

Three delegates, Mrs. John Haley, Mrs. W. A. Hyatt, and Mrs. M. R. Hill, were elected by organizations last week.

Neff, who has accepted the presidency of Baylor university, but who has declined as yet, to let the public know just when he will resign his present position of railroad commissioner has accepted an invitation to address the convention in San Angelo, April 18-20.

Those familiar with the ways of politics around the state capitol predict that when the Neff resignation is handed in, it will be so timed that his successor, to be named by Governor Sterling, will fill Neff's unexpired term, rather than go out of office with the present biennium, or be required to campaign the state for election in November.

Gov. Neff's address at San Angelo will not be political, but will be on "The Texas Centennial," a theme in which Texans are all much interested just now, inasmuch as 1936 will mark the close of the first century of Texas independence.

INVEST IN HUMANITY IT PAYS

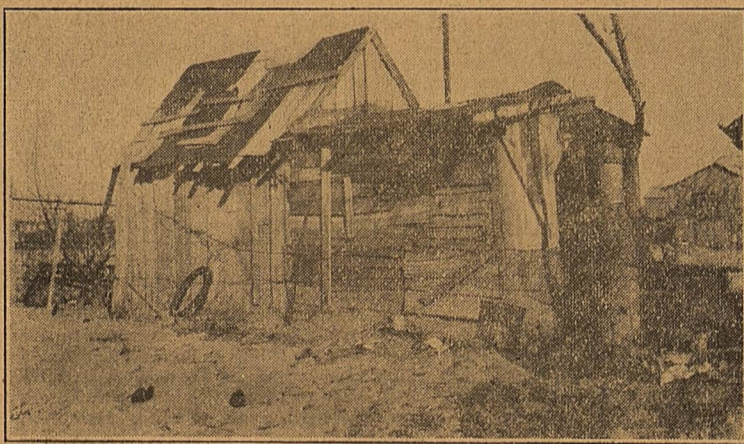

This scene is typical of many families in the Mexican quarters of the city. Many do not have proper shelter, much less sufficient food. A small part of your donation will be used to alleviate the suffering among these people.

Midland has its share of unfortunate families. Every citizen shares in the responsibility of welfare work.

Were these kids happy when this food was given to them? Look at the expressions on their faces and judge for yourself. It was the first food they had eaten for several days, regardless of the fact that they had searched the garbage cans diligently—they were late.

If every person with an earning power will donate one day's salary, the problem will be solved.

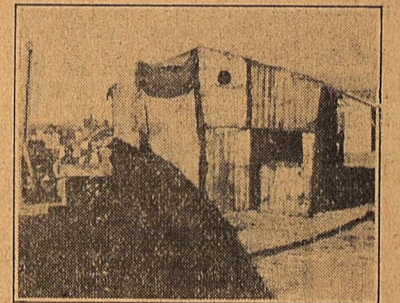

Even though little children call this place home, it is far from being anything but a shack of the lowest type. There is nothing here to protect the family from a hot summer sun nor is there protection from the freezing wintry winds.

Give 1-365 of your income to the Annual Welfare Drive.

These four pictures are actual scenes taken in Midland.

MIDLAND AND ODESSA TEE OFF AT 1 O'CLOCK; LAMESA AND TEXON AS SOON AS FIRST FLIGHTS GET OFF

The cap will be blasted off the Sand Belt Golf association on the country club links this afternoon when four teams take their clubs out of the moth balls for the first official tournament play of the season.

Midland and Odessa play begins at 1 o'clock, Odessa deciding to shift the scene to Midland because of incompleteness of repair work on the course there.

Texon and Lamesa foursomes start teeing off after the last Midland-Odessa contestants have passed beyond driving range.

On the Midland club will be Ellis Cowden, C. L. Jackson, Frank Day, Billy Moran, Arch Thomas, Joe Chambers and Red Knight.

Challengers for positions on the Midland club will play each other on Fridays preceding Sunday association play, according to Sandy Auchterlonie, professional at the course.

Lamesa and Texon will meet here due to the clause in the association rules providing that towns over 150 miles apart must play on some course as nearly as possible midway to the two towns.

ODESSA, April 9.—Eight local golfers will go to Midland Sunday afternoon for their first match in the schedule of sixteen tournaments to be played between member teams of the association during coming few months.

It is expected that most all of those mentioned will attend the tourney at Midland, but the first eight named, if present, will represent Odessa in the competition.

The play is conducted as a combination individual match between players on opposing teams and also a four-ball match between two men from each team. Points are given in both instances, and in addition points are given for the presence on time of each man of the team.

The first meet was scheduled to be played in Odessa, but because of delay in getting some work done on the local course it was thought advisable to go to Midland and then have Midland come here at a later date.

Eight towns were represented by the membership in the association and Odessa plays each one of these during the season twice.

PLAYGROUND BALL MEET

Playground ball club managers and anyone else interested are asked to meet Monday evening at 8 o'clock at the home of Andy Northington on North B street.

A league schedule will be drawn, managers have agreed.

Women's Work Aids Welfare, Says Official

By W. ILY PRAIT

Welfare work could not be done without the ladies. Especially in Midland is this true. Every activity connected with the work is done by ladies with the exception of administrator of food.

This year the clothing room, located on the second floor of the courthouse has been an active place each Tuesday. Mrs. Elliott Cowden is room supervisor and with the assistance of ladies from the various societies of the different churches has done a very helpful work in the distribution of the clothing needs.

More than 1900 garments have been given out. Of this number 1150 were garments donated by the people of Midland. The balance consisted mostly of such items as sweaters, shoes, hose, underwear, layettes, etc., bought that children might be kept in school, and the baby garments for those emergencies of expectant motherhood. Five hundred and fifty individuals were given wearing apparel of some kind. Three hundred and eighty dollars was the total expenditure in this department. This small expenditure was due largely to the splendid contribution by the ladies through the sewing committee.

More than 400 garments came from the sewing room, which is directed by Mrs. Leon Goodman. One young lady in school has made several dresses, another lady made 75 garments, another 30, etc.

What might be called emergency medical relief is all that the Welfare association proposes to do. In this the ladies also play a prominent part. Miss Bredemeier, county health nurse, in conjunction with Mrs. Sloan, general supervisor of investigating committees, are the two most active in this phase of the work.

Several emergency cases that would excite the pity of the hardest heart have been cared for, and in other instances ways have been provided for rehabilitation through medical aid, that have saved the association many dollars that would have been sure to follow as a result of non-attention. The physicians and dentists of the city have cooperated wholeheartedly with this department of the work, and have been more than liberal in giving of their time and talent.

Possibly a hundred ladies have contributed some directly to the carrying on of this work in a systematic and orderly way during the year. As many more could be obtained perhaps if there was need for such a number. The amount of constructive and remedial work that these ladies can and will do in our community depends entirely upon the funds that are made available for the use of this worthy organization.

Necktie Supports 100-Lb. Ford Block

Who'll wear the red tie? Addison Wadley has one of his "Spur Royals" doing some heavy duty work in the men's window of his store, supporting a 100-pound Ford motor block. After allowing the necktie to hold the motor for a few days, it will be removed from the window and worn. Wadley says it will look all right, too. He was busy Saturday holding bugs-of-war with a similar neck piece.

600 Potatoes for Poor Taken in

From 500 to 600 potatoes, most of them large, were taken in at the Ritz theatre Saturday and will be given by Manager John Bonner to the Midland Welfare association.

Some of those who attended the show gave several potatoes. Admission was a nickel and a potato for children, a dime and a potato for grown-ups. About 75 women and 200 children were estimated to have attended at the special matinee.

IN SERIOUS CONDITION

A. Miller of Penwell, in a Midland hospital, was reported Saturday in a serious condition from an abscessed neck. He was struck by a truck while working on an Ector county well.

Big Crowd Will Attend Reunion

STAMFORD, April 9.—The third annual session of the Texas Cowboy Reunion will be held here July 4, 5 and 6. The dates, which have just been adopted by the board of directors, are about a week later than past sessions have been held.

Stamford, general supervisor of investigating committees, are the two most active in this phase of the work. Several emergency cases that would excite the pity of the hardest heart have been cared for, and in other instances ways have been provided for rehabilitation through medical aid, that have saved the association many dollars that would have been sure to follow as a result of non-attention.

COL. DEMPSEY IS SERIOUS IN BIG WAY SAYS SCRIBE

DETROIT.—Jack Dempsey is still looking toward the future. Regardless of what boxing critics say—and many of them are frank enough in advising him to hang up the gloves—Dempsey insists on taking his comeback seriously.

Reverses encountered in his recent "sawing around the circle" have not erased from the Mauler's mind the conviction that he can qualify for another fling at the championship.

Dempsey started last August on an itinerary that took him from one coast to the other. He met 108 opponents, often meeting four in one night, and scored 76 knockouts. He also had a few setbacks, notably in Chicago where he was outpointed by King Levinsky. In Detroit he looked none too impressive against Babe Hunt, the Oklahoma striping, though the popular verdict was that the former champion deserved the decision, assuming that the four-round exhibition was worthy of a decision.

Since the Hunt engagement was the last of the tour, advertised to determine whether Dempsey can regain fighting form, the old champion thought that he might be thought of the results of the experiment.

"I think it has done me a lot of good," replied Dempsey. "For one thing it has proved to me that I can still take a punch and get a lot of tough fellows here and there and some of them could hit pretty. At first I was in doubt about whether I could take it after my long lay-off, but I soon satisfied myself on that point."

This discovery was reassuring to Dempsey.

"The only things I ever had," he confessed, "were a punch and the ability to take it. My tour has shown that I can still hit and that I can shake off a crack on the chin or a belt in the stomach."

Before answering the questions as to whether he can again prepare himself to mingle with the topnotchers, Dempsey wants more time. The seven-months junket brought drawbacks, jumping from town to town, Dempsey found it impossible to get regular rest or to maintain a strict diet. He had to be in almost constant contact with curious citizens.

Seeking to shake his hand, to obtain an autograph or to hear him how long Tunney was down in Chicago.

This sort of business is a pleasure to one of Dempsey's disposition. He seems to enjoy sitting at banquet tables, making speeches at noon-day luncheons, visiting mayors, governors and industrial leaders, and saying "Hello, Pal" to every caller. But he realizes that such stuff is poor training.

Now he is going to establish a training camp in the Nevada woods where he can work for a few weeks free from interruption, have his own sparring partners, his own cook and follow his own ideas of exercise and relaxation. And he intends to do a lot of mountain climbing to strengthen his legs.

If he thinks that he can hit something approaching the speed he knew in his heyday, Dempsey will accept a match with Primo Carnera in Reno this summer. If successful against the Italian Goliath, Dempsey says he will challenge the winner of the fight between Schmeling-Jack Sharkey bout in June.

In Dempsey's opinion, the winner will be Schmeling.

"Yes," said the old Mauler, "I think the Dempsey will belt him out. I like him because he never stops coming while Sharkey is easily discouraged."

Farm Loans Must Be in by April 30

A noticeable improvement in business conditions in some sections of the state where farmers in large numbers are obtaining agricultural loans from the Reconstruction Finance corporation is being reported to region manager Owen W. Sherrill by bankers, merchants and by chamber of commerce executives.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars being spent for seed, supplies, fertilizer, fuel, and oil for tractors, feed for work stock, repairs and miscellaneous expenses of crop production," said Sherrill, "is causing money to circulate rapidly and widely. Increasing consumption of farm supplies is a very effective, practical and fundamental means of actually restoring prosperity from the ground up."

"Full credit should be given county committees in some sections of the state for the readiness with which applications are prepared properly, they are cleared with dispatch at the Dallas office and checks are mailed within 24 hours."

"In many sections, community committees or sub-committees have been established by county committees. Farmers in a locality can have their loans passed on by these sub-committees, which save the farmers time and a great amount of travel. This procedure is being encouraged by the Dallas office to expedite the work and better serve the farmers."

It is expected that approved loans for Texas, New Mexico, and Arizona farmers will total from $7,000,000 to $10,000,000 by the end of this month. Applications for loans must be filed by April 30, it is announced by Sherrill and application forms may be obtained from county committees, sub-committees, or through county agents or the Cotton Co-operative association branch offices.

Pioneer farmers in the middle west planted thousands of trees, it is estimated they planted 240,000 acres in Iowa, 40,000 in Illinois, 14,000 in Ohio and 10,000 in Missouri.

Odessa Working On Rodeo Plans

ODESSA, April 9.—Rapid progress is now being made on plans for the big rodeo and celebration to be staged here May 30 and 31 by the American legion, according to information that the rodeo will be one of the best in years. It is understood that around $1,000 in prize money has been arranged for the occasion.

In addition to the fifth division junior baseball league meet, which will be held here at that time, a legion convention is planned for the purpose of discussing plans for dividing the 16th district. This is one of the largest districts in the state. It is said, and the wide variation of interests in widely separated portions of the district make such a division advisable, some legion members believe.

Odessa Legion Head Honored

ODESSA, April 9.—Three appointments, ranking high in district legion honors, were conferred on A. J. Burks of Odessa, commander of the local legion post, at the recent 16th district meeting at Kerrville. These have since been confirmed by state headquarters.

Burks was named chairman of the legion's junior baseball league for the fifth division, delegate of the 16th district to the next state convention and 16th district nominee for delegate to the national convention.

Official Pep Song Is To Be Adopted

AUSTIN, Tex., April 7. (UP)—A new song to replace "The Eyes of Texas" as the official "pep" song of the University of Texas is on its way to collegiate popularity here.

"Texas U," written by Eva Russy Garcia of Austin, was given first place in a contest sponsored by the university band for the selection of an official "pep" song. The rhythmic dignity of "The Eyes of Texas" will be reserved for a tempo more stately than that of touchdowns and home runs.

The words of "Texas U" are: "Always true to our Texas U. And united we fight for her. We defend her name. Always sing her praise, Proudly carry the orange and white."

"Ever loyal we stand by you. Give us courage to see it through. Though we win or lose We will boost for you. 'Tis the spirit of Texas U."

Music for "Texas U" in G major and 4-4 or march time, was composed by Samuel Ortega, Austin.

Both of the song writers are students in the college of arts and sciences at the university. The song will not become the official "pep" rhythm of the university until it is adopted by the student body.

THOMASON FOR PRIVATE LEASE OF BIG SHOAL

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Congress is preparing for one of the most bitter battles of the present stormy session with the recent completion of work on the Muscle Shoals bill here, a task in which on Texan, Congressman R. E. Thomason, played an active part.

The huge power and nitrate plant in Alabama has stood practically idle since the days of the World war while congress has been trying in vain to enact legislation which would meet presidential approval. The present bill provides for leasing the plant, under certain restrictions, and in the event a satisfactory lease cannot be negotiated, governmental operation would be inaugurated.

Congressman Thomason, only member from Texas on the military affairs committee, which has been handling the bill, was described by newspaper men here when he was appointed on the committee, as "no friend of the power trust."

"I favor leasing the plant to private enterprise so that this project may be developed and its tremendous power resources made available to the public," Congressman Thomason said, "but in the event a satisfactory bid cannot be obtained I am unwilling to allow the project to stand practically idle as it has for so many years."

"Nearly $200,000,000 of the taxpayers' money was sunk in Muscle Shoals and so far no advantages have been received. The plant was built to supply nitrate during the war, it can easily be utilized in the manufacture of nitrates for fertilizers and in power production. One of the nitrate plants, costing millions of dollars, is already obsolete and it has never produced a dollar's worth of nitrate. If the project is allowed to stand indefinitely without operation all of it will eventually be nearly worthless. To allow it to remain idle forever would constitute one of the greatest wastes of public money in the history of the republic."

"It is not a question of investing public money in private business, but of taking action to salvage something of the tremendous fortune which the public has already invested."

The military affairs committee started hearings on Muscle Shoals shortly after congress convened last December. It has heard witnesses from all over the country. Edsel Ford was one of the men who testified before it. The committee members have read literally scores of pamphlets, charts and surveys going into all phases of the problem.

Congressman Thomason has been studying the problem carefully for months and has expressed himself as favoring the bill as presented to the house and hopeful of its passage.
