SUN CONTINUES TO GLARE DOWN ON 'SWELTER-BELT'

14-Day Siege Shows No Signs Of A Finish

DEATH TOLL UP Estimated Loss In Lives Nears 4,400

CHICAGO, July 17. (P)—The withering sun glared down on the vast "swelter-belt" of the midwest today continuing a 14-day heat drought siege that has caused a loss in human life estimated to be near 4,400. The crop damage was estimated at more than $1,000,000,000 several days ago and since that time has risen immeasurably. No general relief is sighted.

Relief measures for the drought-harried regions proceeded along a front extending from Washington, D. C., to the parched plains of the west. Forty-three more counties in Kentucky, North Carolina and Georgia were added to the emergency drought areas by the AAA. This made the National Drought Aid section 452 counties in extent.

At Misamark, N. D., Resettlement Administrator, Rexford G. Tugwell declared his agency would take full responsibility for providing immediate help to needy farmers.

Second only in public concern to the heavy loss in life ascribed to the heat wave, was the question how deeply would the drought affect the grocery bill.

The first official forecast by the Bureau of Agriculture Economics in Washington indicated butter, cheese, eggs and the better grades of cattle would cost more during the remainder of the year. Local milk price advances continued, York, Neb., residents paying two cents more a quart effective today.

GOLDSMITH WELL COMPLETES TEST

Flows 2,815 Barrels In 24 Hours; 4,000,000 Feet of Gas

Production of 2,815 barrels of oil through open casing in 24 hours with 4,000,000 cubic feet of gas definitely established Phillips and Pure No. 5 Cowsden as the largest natural well yet drilled in the Goldsmith pool of Ector county. Plans are indefinite, but the well may be acid-treated later.

Located 1,320 feet from the north and 2,200 feet from the west line of section 23, block 44, township 1 south, T. & P. survey, the No. 5 Cowsden topped saturated lime at 4,099 and drilled to a total depth of 4,158 feet.

Northwest of the main Goldsmith pool, Landreth Production company No. 1-B Schaubauer is milling on casing-shoe crimped by nitro shot. The well was shot early this week with 160 quarts from 4,160 to 4,225 and flowed 187 barrels in 13 hours. It is bottomed at 4,230 feet in lime and is located 440 feet from the south and 2,200 feet from the east line of section 33, block 44, township 1 north, T. & P. survey.

GAINES TEST RESUMES DRILLING, NOW AT 4,145

Delayed for two days while waiting for replacement of damaged pump parts, Humble Oil and Refining company No. 1 C. H. Eubanks in Gaines county resumed drilling yesterday and is now below 4,145 feet in lime and anhydrite. It is 660 feet out of the southwest corner of section 6, block AX, public school land, eight miles northwest of the Landreth No. 1 Kirk discovery, which remains shut in pending orders to shoot or drill ahead.

In Cochran county, Honolulu and Cascade No. 1 Duggan, interesting wildcat in the center of labour 13, league 55, Oldham county school land, is drilling the red beds section at 2,170 feet.

Lou Stogner and Elliott Roosevelt's wildcat on the Grosins ranch in Yoakum county is drilling sand and anhydrite at 3,250 feet. Top of the Yates sand was called at 3,135 feet in the test. It is in section 215, block D, John H. Gibson survey.

BREWSTER DEEP WILDCAT CLEANS UP FISHING JOB

Floyd C. Dodson No. 1 Texas-American Syndicate, Brewster county Ordovician test, has recovered the last of the 12 1/2 inch casing lost recently and has cleaned up the hole. It is now waiting for delivery of 12 1/2 inch seamless casing en route from Youngstown, Ohio. Present total depth in the Dodson depth is 2,316, with top of the Delaware lime logged at 2,297.

Steve Currie No. 1 Klob, Ector wildcat north of the Crane Waddell pool, is reported drilling at 3,010 feet in anhydrite. It is 330 feet from the south and 2,310 feet from the east line of section 33, block 44, See OIL NEWS, Page 6

M'MAHON DENIES HE INTENDED TO KILL KING EDWARD

Says He Tossed Gun Into Street Near The Ruler

LONDON, July 17. (P)—George Andrew McMahon, whose loaded revolver menaced King Edward yesterday, said today that the weapon was knocked from his hand but that he threw it into the street near the street near the King.

This version was played by an authoritative source who said McMahon told the police he never had the least intention of shooting the king. He was taken to a hospital for mental observation and medical treatment.

It was reported yesterday that a woman "in grey" knocked the gun from the hand of McMahon as he aimed it at the King while he was riding in a parade. Identity of the woman is unknown.

Local Delegation Will Attend Rally

6 Midland Men on Welcoming Committee Of Big Spring Affair Honoring Senator

A delegation of Midland citizens tonight will go to Big Spring to join groups to welcome United States Senator Morris Sheppard who will deliver a campaign address in that town.

Six Midland men: M. C. Ulmer, Charles L. Klapproth, John P. Howe, Clarence Scharbauer, E. H. Barron and W. L. Pratt, will appear on the welcoming committee that will greet the senator. The group will leave the Ever-ready filling station at 6:30 p. m.

Several others besides the ones that will be on the welcoming committee are expected to attend and hear Texas' senior senator address what is confidentially predicted to be the largest gathering for a political talk in this section.

From Big Spring comes notices that letters have been coming daily to B. Reagan, chairman of the arrangements committee, indicating that delegations will attend from many surrounding towns. The affair has been planned as a "West Texas rally" honoring the veteran senator, and residents of all surrounding towns have been asked to serve on the reception committee.

A Lamesa man, Carl Roundtree, will introduce the candidate. Especially are large delegations expected from Lamesa, Garden City, Midland, Colorado, Stanton, Odessa and Tahoka.

Senator Sheppard will speak from a platform on the courthouse lawn, beginning at 8 o'clock. A 30-minute band concert, by the Big Spring high school municipal band, will precede the speaking program. Representatives of various towns will be asked to make talks for Senator Sheppard, but Reagan announced that all preliminaries would be brief.

BACKERS OF UNION PARTY WILL TOUR NATION FOR LEMKE

Priest, Doctor And Preacher Unite For Race

CLEVELAND, July 17. (P)—Dr. Francis E. Townsend announced Thursday that he, the Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin, the Rev. Gerald K. Smith and Representative William Lemke will participate in a tour in support of Lemke, the new Union party's candidate for president.

This followed a tumultuous day in the national convention of Townsend clubs which saw the wedding of Townsend's old age pension movement, Coughlin's national union for social justice, Smith's share-the-wealth movement, and Lemke's candidacy in the election campaign.

A discordant note was sounded by Gomer Smith, national vice president of the Townsend organization. He announced he is going to support Roosevelt. His speech brought thousands of boos.

Townsend then announced to a press conference that he would ask the board of directors to oust Gomer Smith.

Townsend said that details of the campaign tour have not yet been arranged but that he probably would start it and would be joined by Coughlin and Smith. Lemke will be a member of the party for at least part of the trip, he said.

Townsend said he "agreed perfectly" with Coughlin's attack on Roosevelt.

In regard to Gomer Smith, he said, "I don't want anyone in the official family who is kicking up a rumpus. There is plenty of room outside."

Coughlin directed a bitter attack at Roosevelt, and declared Townsend had approved the principles of the Union party, whose presidential candidate, Lemke, is scheduled to address the convention Sunday.

He said he was not asking the delegates to endorse the Union party, but asked "how many will follow Dr. Townsend?" Delegates rose to their feet and cheered.

Two hours later, the convention adopted a resolution declaring the Townsend organization non-partisan and calling for speaking invitations to be sent to the presidential candidates of the democratic, republican and socialist parties.

Then Gomer Smith delivered an address in which he concluded "I'm going to support President Roosevelt."

He declared that some of the Townsend leaders are "trying to lead us into the slaughter house of destruction along with Father Coughlin with his shirt off and with Gerald Smith with a Bible in his hand. There were a few boos. He halted several times, then proceeded with the assertion he could take care of hecklers. When he had finished Dr. Townsend quieted the delegates and said Smith was "homesick," and upset because he had been defeated for the democratic nomination for senator.

Becomes Irked at Spouse; Quits Car, Unconscious Form Found by Passers-By

Passers-by on the highway about nine miles west of Midland yesterday afternoon discovered a young woman, later identified as Mrs. H. D. Fisher, Silver City, New Mexico, lying unconscious at the side of the road and brought her here for medical treatment.

The woman was taken to the court house by the ones picking her up and a doctor was immediately called. She was taken to a hospital after an examination by him.

The physician called to attend her reported that after she regained consciousness she told her name and age (23), and said that she left Silver City in a car with her husband enroute to Missouri. On the way, she related, they became embroiled in an argument and she quit the car at the place where she was later found. To questioning she replied that she did not know how long she stayed there before she was brought to town.

The physician stated that her case was not serious and that it was caused primarily from hysteria following the argument.

Western Setting of Frontier Show Will Resemble Fiction As It Opens Saturday

FORT WORTH, July 17. (P)—In a setting as wild and western as ever painted in fiction, the Fort Worth Frontier Centennial will be formally opened at 5:00 p. m. Saturday.

United States Senator Tom Connally, Governor Alfred and R. L. Thornton, Dallas, Chairman of Executive Committee of the Central Centennial Exposition will be the principal speakers at the brief dedication ceremony. It will be staged at the foot of the hills built for "The Last Frontier," one of the major attractions at the Frontier Centennial.

Cowboys, soldiers and Indians of several tribes with stage coaches and covered wagons are participants in this brief but rip-roaring introduction of the Fort Worth Frontier Centennial.

The 4 major entertainments at Fort Worth's Frontier Centennial will go off as smoothly when the big show opens Saturday as if they had been running for three years, John Murray Anderson, the producer, said today.

He referred to the Casa Manana revue, "Jumbo," "The Honky-Tonk Revue" and "Last Frontier."

Visitors, Mr. Anderson emphasized, need fear no "first night" blundering.

Meanwhile, show officials made preparation to receive 60,000 persons on the opening day. Gates will be open at 3:30 p. m. Billy Rose, managing director, predicted visitors from all over the Southwest will flock into the show, but said he did not expect to hit the attendance peak until at least two weeks.

"I takes any fair that long to hit it stride," the little showman declared.

Two thousand persons today had made reservations for the opening

Miss Judkins Is Midland's Sponsor

Miss May Beth Judkins accompanied by her father, Arthur Judkins, left this morning for Sweetwater where she will compete with other West Texas beauties for the title of "Goddess of West Texas." Miss Judkins will be Midland's sponsor having been chosen by the chamber of commerce.

The winner of first place will be awarded an all-expense trip to the Frontier Centennial at Ft. Worth. She will be the honor guest and lead the grand march at the Queen's Ball following the contest tonight.

An informal reception will be held this afternoon for all entries on the Blue Bonnet Hotel roof from 5 to 6 p. m. The contest will be held at the Municipal Swimming Pool at 8 p. m. Following the contest the entries and their escorts will be honored with a ball on the roof of the Blue Bonnet Hotel.

Miss Judkins and her father will return tomorrow.

World's Tallest Tree Measures 364 Feet

SAN RAFAEL, Cal. (U.P.)—The Redwood Empire Association has established definitely that the tallest tree in the world grows within the Redwood Empire.

The tree is the "Founders Tree," a great redwood in Bull Creek Flat, near Drywood, Humboldt county. It is 364 feet high.

Only one other tree is known to have ever exceeded this height. This was an eucalyptus at Victoria, Australia which attained a height of 375 feet. According to existing records that have just been brought to light, it was destroyed in 1880.

Townsend Demands Of Dismissal Studied

CLEVELAND, July 17. (P)—Frank Arbutck, permanent chairman of the Townsend national convention, announced to a cheering delegation today that a motion or resolution having to do with the endorsement of a national political party "shall be out of order at all times."

He added that the decision represented the unanimous view of the board of directors.

The ordinarily demonstrative delegates received in silence the reading of a telegram from Governor Landon, republican presidential candidate, declining an invitation to address the convention. President Roosevelt also sent a message that he would be unable to appear.

Meanwhile, the delegates pondered the Townsend demand that Gomer Smith, who failed recently to qualify in the primary election for democratic senator in Oklahoma, to be replaced as a member of the board of directors and vice-president of the organization.

OKLAHOMA MEMBERS THREATEN 'SECESSION'

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 17. (P)—J. F. Nighswander, sixth district director of the Oklahoma Townsend clubs, declared today that the state clubs would "secede" from the national organization if the convention acceded to Townsend's demand to dismiss Gomer Smith, who yesterday announced that he would support President Roosevelt in the forthcoming elections.

ARMAMENT PLANTS IN FRANCE TAKEN OVER BY COUNTRY

War Profits Will Be In Charge Of The Government

PARIS, July 17. (P)—The French chamber of deputies today voted for the nationalization of the arms industry. The measure clamps strict government control on the nation's armament plants.

Edouard Daladier, minister of defense, warned there would be no "recourse or appeal" against the government decisions on munitions exports by state supervised factories. Exports, profits and securities will be controlled by cabinet decree.

New Drug to Banish Shyness Successful

LONDON (U.P.)—A new drug called benzedrine, which raises the blood pressure and thus cures depression and shyness, is described in the current issue of the "Lancet."

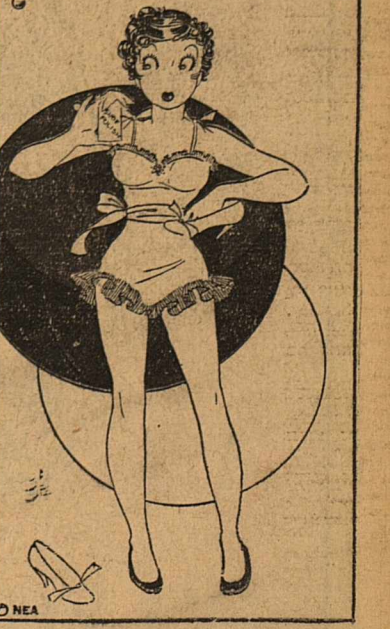

After a dose of benzedrine, even the most depressed patients are able to overcome their shyness, and talk spontaneously. They feel unusually full of energy and self-confidence.

Tests for the mental ability of patients after taking the drug show that they are able to concentrate better, and can work out problems faster and more accurately than before.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON By RODNEY DUTCHER Reporter-Telegram Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 17—Despite Mr. Farley's ebullient public predictions that President Roosevelt will carry 48 states, all the keener planners of the New Deal campaign agree that the contest is going to be close.

There is not now among them any vestige of a once somewhat prevalent belief that their ticket would have a walkaway. The last of that disappeared when democratic insiders learned that the American Institute of Public Opinion's poll would indicate a popular majority of only 51.8 per cent for Roosevelt with an indicated electoral college majority for Landon of 272 to 259.

Politicians in both parties are watching this and other polls like so many hawks. Republican jubilation is intense over charted evidence that preference for Roosevelt over their candidate dropped with astonishing speed following Landon's nomination. They are sure this is the beginning of a great trend, which will decide the issue.

Doubtful States Few Some Democratic politicians claim to be elated, however, by the fact that the index of losses has narrowed down to a very few the number of doubtful states where it will be necessary to fight. They insist they Can Lead And Still Lose The spectacle of a candidate winning a plurality of the popular vote and losing the presidency through defeat in the electoral college isn't anything you see very often. But it can happen very easily, especially if there's a third party ticket at large.

So far it has happened only to Democratic candidates and it could happen only to Roosevelt this year, since enormous Democratic majorities in the south can pile up a popular vote which may be discounted by close results in big northern states.

Cleveland had 100,000 more popular votes in 1896 than Harrison, who won the presidency by 233 electoral votes to 108.

Wilson, who in 1912 had 435 electoral votes to 88 for Roosevelt and eight for Taft, polled 1,300,000 fewer popular votes than the Taft and Roosevelt votes combined.

That Strong Grip Of Fellowship

.... Night Riders Up 'Tobacco Road'

The ominous shadow of night riders falls over a real-life 'Tobacco Road' in southeastern North Carolina. Below, in the first of two distinguished articles, a noted newspaper woman and author brings you a now colorful, now miserably drab but always human word-painting of social misfits whose counterparts might be found in the dingy side streets of cities or back country lanes in any part of the world.

By Laura Lou Brookman NEA Service Staff Correspondent CLARENDON, N. C. July 17.—Along "Tobacco Road" the sun beats down and a sultry breeze rustles the yellowing tobacco leaves—rustling that seems to be the echo of whispering voices. "Night riders again... night riders over at the Fowler place" Women peer from uncurtained windows—and beat a hasty retreat. Men shake their heads, eyeing questioners. There is something in the air here besides the stifling breeze.

It's a scene that might have been lifted, almost without change, from the stage production now in its third year on Broadway—"Tobacco Road" come to life.

I followed the road, winding between the tobacco fields, out to Lihue Fowler's place where the white clad night riders came, flogged 65-year-old Lihue, and his three daughters, Grace, Glen and Caroline, and sheared their hair.

Barfooted, anxious-eyed Mrs. Fowler looks out from the door of the unpainted chanty. "Yes'm, the girls is here. Yes'm, you can talk to them."

Lihue, her husband, isn't at home these days. Lihue's "on the gang," the local expression for working on the chain gang. He will be away for eight months altogether—four for them for drunkenness and four for taking 25 cents from a little crippled boy.

Neighbors describe Lihue Fowler's appearance by saying he's "high-sighted" and crooked. They tell, too, that, when arrested last, Lihue admitted he hadn't had a bath in five years. He took a beating rather than a bath—water was scrubbed.

"Seems like," plaintively says 16-year-old Glen who was one of the floggers' victims, "they been trying to undermine our Daddy. Seems like they're trying to break us up."

Ten children there are in the two-room Fowler home, from Frank, the oldest, who is 21 and crippled, to the two-year-old baby, "Grandma's" Nova Cox is there, too, looking in from the kitchen and bursting into tears at the sight of company.

Mrs. Fowler shifts the weight of the child in her arms and pushes a chair forward—the only one in the room. There's not much room for chairs, for it is a small room, almost filled by the two beds, unmade against the wall, and a worn bureau, the only other furnishings. The walls are gray and unfinished, like the outside of the house, but four colored pictures, cut from magazines covers, have been pasted to one of the walls. There are two windows with glass in them but no curtains.

A chicken hops up on the porch outside, looks in and decides not to enter.

Grace, 17, and next oldest to Frank, appears, wearing a wide-brimmed straw hat. "Yes'm," she says, "they flogged me and cut my hair."

She hesitates, grins and then takes the hat off to show a head with about an inch growth of hair.

"Hit was late one night, along about the middle of strawberrin' time," she says. "The floggin' hurt bad, but I hated worse to have my hair cut. I'd just had a permanent wave at Tabor City. Eight dollars hit cost."

"There were about 20 or 30 men in the crowd, I guess. They pounded on the door and threw it open and I was in' on the bed and they grabbed me and then they grabbed Caroline and Glen. I yelled and they said if I didn't stop they'd stuff something down my throat." Glenn interrupts, "I yelled, too. I asked what they'd come for and did they know anything against our cur-actor (character) and they wouldn't answer. Then they dragged us out of the house and Daddy, too, and took us off and beat us. They beat me the worst. I guess it was because I sass'd 'em."

Caroline, 15 years old, tosses her head. "They beat me," she says, "but they didn't cut my hair. I ran away so they couldn't. I ran away twice."

Bright-eyed is Caroline. Slender and graceful, too. She carries the melody when the three sisters sing Hillbilly songs, as they will on request. Glen takes the lowest notes and Grace the highest. "The Old Country Church" is their favorite, but they leave off the last letters, pronouncing the word, "Chur'."

They're pretty girls, even with their ragged haircuts and hand-me-down clothes. For special occasions they have shoes, though at home they go barefooted.

Mrs. Fowler, too, must have been pretty once. Now most of her teeth are gone and her face is lined and worn.

The baby, in her arms, murmurs, and the mother looks down at him. Held upright or lying down, the child's eyes are continually closed. "He needs doctorin'," the mother frets, "but I ain't got no money for it. We're pore folks. We don't mean no harm to nary one but we're pore folks. Lately the baby's had a fever, too. I think he's worry—kind of."

Frank, lurching in the doorway looks outside. "Startin' to rain," he announces. "Rain'll mean a right smart of money if it keeps up."

Next morning the Fowler place looks deserted. Only the pigs, nibbling around the dooryard, are in sight and they scurry at the approach of visitors.

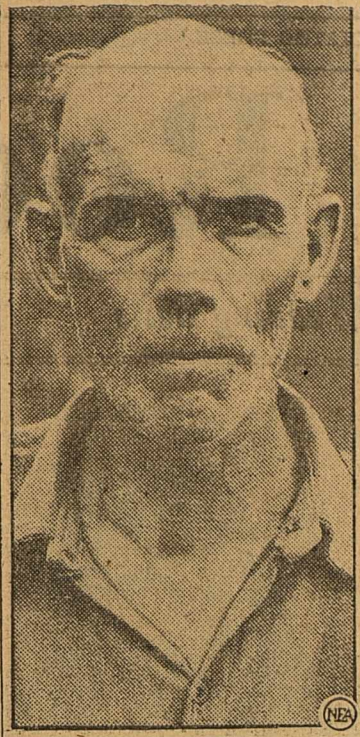

Mrs. Fowler answers a knock at the door. "Frank and the girls are away," she says. "They went to see their Daddy and take him some tobacco. No. I don't know when they'll be back. Not before night, I guess."

She says goodbye and disappears. Half-hidden in the kitchen doorway, Grandma Cox beckons. There are tears in her eyes and she tries to dry them on a corner of her apron.

"I don't want you should see me" she says between sobs. "because I'm so dirty. There ain't any way I can get clean here and I'm ashamed to be like this. Those girls cursed me this morning after I cooked their breakfast and said I was dirty."

"They went off again last night and came back late. They cursed their mother and knocked her down and then they took her out in the cornfield and knocked her down again. I'm afraid to stay here and afraid to leave. Oh, those girls!"

Tomorrow: Who, why, what are the night riders?

"HOT TRAIL" IS TRACED SAN FRANCISCO, July 17 (U.P.)—Federal Writers' Project workers believe they have found a new origin for the expression "hot trail." They have discovered that the early Padre explorers of California scattered mustard seed as they advanced into the unknown country, and when they wished to return a few weeks later had only to follow the yellow trail of mustard plants.

Korean men wear a "pill-box" or "bird-cage" hat as a badge of marriage. Through its transparent crown crown can be glimpsed the tightly bound queue. Bachelors are not permitted to use the hat nor tie up their hair. They are called "boys," regardless of their age.

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything). A PWA projects had just been completed, it was a rural school house. The first morning of school in the new school house the teacher asked the class who was responsible for their nice new school house. Johnny raised his hand and said, "Teacher I know, P. W. A." Then the Teacher asked who is responsible for the new desks and books. Another pupil raised his hand and said, "Teacher I know, P. W. A." Then she asked who is responsible for the beautiful sun shine that lights our school house and warms our body. The third little boy stood up and said, "Teacher, I know, God." About that time the boy sitting behind him hit him on the head with a ruler and said, "Sit down you dirty little Republican."

Residents of states that only this spring were congratulating themselves on not living in Texas "dust bowl" are now getting a touch of something far worse. Most of them would be glad to trade their entire sun parched farm for one acre of the crops now growing in the "bowl."

The Smitis are in the news. Al Smith "took a walk" as far as the democrats are concerned. (And as far as most of them were concerned, he could have made it a dive.) Rev. Gerald Smith, chief of the "share-the-wealth" clubs has lined up with Coughlin and Townsend. (Imagine Huey Long doing something like that.) Gomer Smith, who ran a mighty close second in the Oklahoma senatorial contest, has announced he will not support the new union party.

Simple and Cool Is Summer Motto

BY ALICIA HART
NEA Service Staff Writer

These days when the temperature reaches unbelievable heights and crisp breezes are few and far between, the woman who looks cool gets all the applause. This is the time to go in for simple clothes, an even simpler coiffure, a minimum of makeup, white-as-snow accessories and light, fresh perfume.

If you have someone to wash them for you or if you have time to do it yourself, by all means stick to cotton and linen frocks. But if keeping them spic and span is so much of a struggle that you occasionally appear in a dress that isn't quite clean, don't wear them at all. Go back to your old standbys, navy and black sheers, and dress them up with crisp white collars and cuffs.

Short sleeves are wonderful only when the elbows and arms below them are scrupulously clean. One dingy spot on one arm stamps you as a person who isn't exactly fastidious.

White cotton gloves, like stockings and white lingerie collars, never should be worn the second day. It may annoy you, but, if you want to look cool—therefore feel cool—during the day, you simply will have to do a bit of washing every night.

Watch the ribbon bands and floral trimmings on your summer hats. Dingy, frayed-looking hat flowers can spoil the appearance of an otherwise perfect ensemble. If you wear white shoes, clean them every night, and wash the laces frequently.

To be absolutely clean and dainty everyone needs a daily bath. During the hot months, it's a splendid idea to take an extra one a day. Use your cologne and bath powder lavishly. Dress carefully. Make up your mind not to think about the heat very much and not to discuss it at all, and eyes of envy will be turned your way wherever you go.

Bien Amigos Holds Bi-Monthly Meeting

Two tables of bridge were played at the bi-monthly meeting of the Bien Amigos club when they met Thursday at the home of Mrs. R. E. Kinsey, 1001 W. Missouri.

Pastel flowers were used in decoration. The packages wrapped in green and white were presented to Mrs. Carl Mitchell for high score. Mrs. James Chapple, Jr., for high cut, and Mrs. James Chapple, Sr., was remembered with a guest gift. Guests for the tea hour were Mme. James Chapple Sr. and Mrs. F. F. Winger.

Club members present were Mmes. Thomas Flood, Preston Bridgewater, Joe Ballanfont, Joe Chambers, Mitchell, C. A. Mix, Chapple, and the hostess.

Miss Watson Home From Trip West

Miss Lydie G. Watson returned last night after a two weeks' trip to El Paso and points west.

In El Paso she visited her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Poe, and Mr. and Mrs. Goode Renso. From there she went to White Oaks, New Mexico and visited friends, Mrs. Tom White and Miss Thelma White. The remainder of the trip she spent at various resorts in the White Mountains, including Ruidoso, Lincoln, and Eagle Creek.

Miss Watson announced today that the second term of her summer piano classes will commence Monday.

FIRES SET AT HALT SPEEDING
BELLAIRE, O., July 17 (UP)—Andy Divorsek did his best to help promote a traffic safety campaign. Divorsek spread waste from mine fires on the road in front of his home, preventing motorists from speeding. Drivers complained to police. Divorsek had to remove the waste.

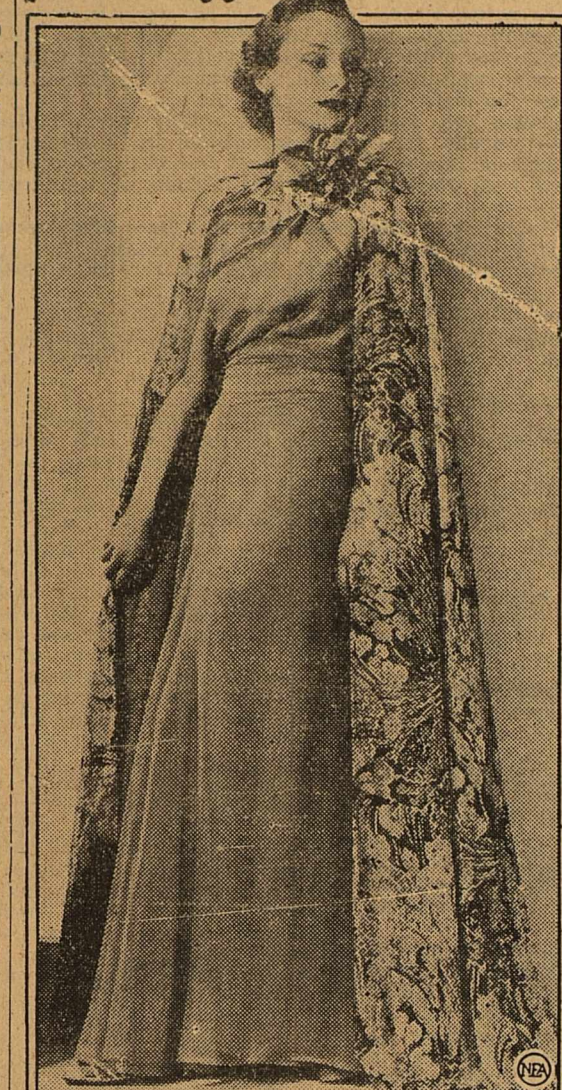

FAIR GETS FASHION SHOWS
SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 17 (UP)—California's state fair this year will be fashion minded. Public school students from over the state will give fashion shows three times daily.

Outraced Chimp in Movie Debut

This winsome young actress probably never will forget how her comely legs served as more than a screen attraction on her first appearance on a Hollywood movie lot. She is Dorothy Lamour, who took to her heels to escape a chimpanzee which became enraged at her shawl. The animal clawed and bit a studio electrician before being subdued.

Chiffon Ensemble

A PRINTED chiffon cape over a rose pink chiffon evening gown makes a charming ensemble for summer dancing. A cluster of multi-colored ribbons at the shoulder is a nice departure from the ubiquitous floral corsage and is colorfully in keeping with the summer tradition. (From Stein and Blaine, New York)

Atom Shooting May Upset Nature's Laws

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 17 (UP)—In an effort to solve one of the basic mysteries of science, two Yale university research assistants in the physics department have been bombarding atoms for the past year. They are attempting to discover the basic composition of matter by means of complicated apparatus, lightning speeds and chemical compounds.

The young men, both of whom received the Ph.D. degree in physics at last month's commencement, are studying different aspects of the activity of matter that is moving often as fast as 18,000 miles a second.

Robert L. Anthony, Fort Recovery, O., has been observing the tracks of radio active material with the aid of 10,000 automatic photographs taken with an "atom smashing" machine in the Sloane Physics Laboratory. He rigged up a complicated "cloud chamber" similar in design to one formerly used in the study of cloud condensation and rainfall.

Directly beneath the cloud chamber is a compressed air container with a piston and driveshaft. Immediately above the chamber is a stereoscopic camera with the film divided into two parts. This camera takes two identical photographs automatically.

Operation Is Automatic
A chemical compound containing hydrogen and sulphur is placed in the small cloud chamber which is compressed. A large valve in the compressed air compartment below is opened by an electric magnet, the compressed air is shot in above and below the piston, and there is sudden expansion and cooling of the gas in the cloud chamber. The chamber stretches down like an accordion suddenly, and particles are shot through the cooled gas at the dazzling rate of 12,200 miles an hour.

Splashing Way to Third Olympiad

Mrs. Eleanor Holm Jarrett, who represented the United States at the 1928 and 1932 Olympic games, keeps the water boiling to win the 200-meter backstroke event in the Olympic swimming trials at New York and clinch a place in her third Olympiad.

By Harry Grayson

Captain George Eyston continues to break automobile racing records of all sorts. The amiable Britisher, great engineer, great racing driver, and an author of some accomplishments, was the man who really discovered the Bonneville Salt Flats of Utah as a racing grounds. He it was who stole Sir Malcolm Campbell and his Blue Bird from Daytona Beach.

The American sporting public knows little about racing drivers such as Eyston and even less about their astonishing ability, both as pilots and engineers. The fact that their racing achievements are the holding of records for one hour, six hours, 24 hours, etc., for various types of cars causes Americans to lose interest.

Therein lies the essential difference between American and European automobile racing. American racing is done on closed courses either of dirt, board, or brick, the tracks usually being either a half mile or a mile in circumference. Drivers race for certain distances, and little attempt is made to cover as great a possible distance in a given number of minutes.

British are interested in Car Performance

But the British, and the continental Europeans as well, are interested in car performance. Their races are run over courses which are simply ordinary highways. There will be sharp turns, stretches of dirt, various types of paving, high hills, etc. Performance, roadability, and economy of operation count for as much as mere driving skill.

Such a race was recently held in Florida, with stock cars competing. Eyston and several other British drivers inspired the race, and the results were rather remarkable, in that one of the least expensive of American cars won the race in every respect except gasoline used.

Americans are proud of their mass production of automobiles at relatively cheap prices. But the British have led the world in engineering skill for many years. Their motors are perhaps the finest in the world, as witness their use on land, sea, and in the air.

They are equally successful both as racing engines and in stock cars. In fact, most race winners over there are merely British, or continental stock cars.

Stock Cars Not Race Machines on U. S. Tracks

Yet the stock car, as a racing machine, has not been seen in this country since the early days of the automobile. Such names as Buick, Oldsmobile, Cadillac, Packard, and Auburn are unknown on the race course.

Deussenberg alone represents both fields. Moreover, so little interest is maintained in engineering by the general public that even the makes of the racing cars are seldom mentioned any more.

For instance, this department scanned no less than six different accounts of the Indianapolis race without once finding the name of the winning car. One can only surmise that the engineering of the car—even though Indianapolis attempts to include engineering as a condition of the race—has totally lost interest for sports lovers in general.

The boyhood day arguments as to whether Marmon was superior in speed to the Mercer, or Packard to the Stanley Steamer are heard no more. One reason, of course, is that though many different racing cars are made, the actual manufacturers are either Deussenberg or Miller.

Parts manufacturers then add some gadget to the machine and relabel it "Perfection Special" or some other term as meaningless as that. The net result is a completely specialized and limited racing field, which actually bears little on the stock car of the future.

Meanwhile, the British continue to experiment and continue to sell us ideas for improvement of the motor car. And the drivers like Eyston and Campbell continue to hold all the world's speed records of every sort.

"WILD AND WHOPEE" TYPIFIES F. W. SHOW

Within the last few weeks the likeness of a rather scantily clad but buxomly beautiful young woman whose brief costume is adorned with stars presumed to symbolize the state of Texas mounted on an agile and snery paint pony, has become almost as familiar as the bearded brothers on roughshod boxes of the gent with luxuriant mustache identifying a certain brand of safety razors.

GALS AND HOSSES

Fort Worth Trade-Mark

The young lady... to say nothing of the horse... is calculated to make you Fort Worth Frontier conscious. With a costume rather more attenuated than is the custom in the cow country one might gather the implication that there is truth in the press agent's assertion, "you'll see more girls and more of 'em than any time since Cabeza de Vaca barnstormed from Buffalo Bayou to El Paso." Yes, there will be girls and horses... and more girls.

To add zest to Frontier publicity the slogan, "Wild and Whopee," has been coined. This, last one surmise that the Fort Worth affair contemplates ought save entertainment. With hundreds of communities throughout the state celebrating along historical and educational lines Fort Worth is going in, for giving folks a good time... and in a big way.

The SPORTS HORN

On To The Olympics By ERIC KEYSER

United Press Staff Correspondent BERLIN, (U.P.)—After Germany occupied the demilitarized Rhineland zone, pressure was brought to bear on French athletic authorities to cancel participation in the Olympics at Berlin. But they held out pleading that sports had nothing to do with politics, or at least it shouldn't so France will enter some 100 athletes.

It was a Frenchman, Baron Pierre de Coubertin, to whose initiative the world owes the revival of Olympic Games and it was meant as acknowledgement of this fact and as a sign of appreciation that the French capital twice was elected host for the Games, in 1900 and in 1924. France has won four gold medals in track and field events: the pole vault with Gauder in 1906—the only time America was beaten out of this medal—the 5,000 meters with Guillemot in 1920; and the Marathon race with Teato in 1900 and with El Ouafi in 1928.

Only two other countries can boast the feat of winning this strenuous race twice, the United States which won with Hicks and John Hayes in 1904 and 1908, and Finland with Kohlamainen and Albert Stenroos in 1920 and 1924. France has figured prominently in many of the Olympic side-events especially in bicycling, in which it won 12 gold medals, in equestrian sports, fencing, wrestling, and in weight-lifting, in the latter especially in the lighter divisions. At Los Angeles France won gold medals in the lightweight division in wrestling, in the feather and light and in the individual and team dressage test.

GREECE—

At the opening Olympic ceremony Saturday, Aug. 1, Greece's 24 athletes will march at the head of the column in the parade into the Berlin Stadium. The other countries will follow in alphabetical order. This has been customary in deference to Greece as the ancient motherland of Olympic sports and first host to the modern Olympic Games.

In addition to this customary arrangement an innovation has been planned for Berlin. Spiridon Louis, Greek farmer who won the Marathon at the first Olympics in 1896, will kindle the Olympic fire on top of the Berlin Stadium from the torch which will have been brought from Greece by relay runners. Incidentally, when Louis won the Marathon also the second and third were Greeks as were the fifth, sixth and seventh while the only foreigner who placed was Kellner, Hungary.

Louis' time was 2 hours 58:50 minutes, that of the second and third 3 hours 06:03 and 06:30 minutes respectively.

Besides the gold medal won by Louis, Greece won only one other in the track and field with C. Theodoridis winning and the standing broad jump in 1912, the last time this event has been on the Olympic program. The Greek's name is the only other name on the Olympic record book for this event. At the four previous Olympics it was won by R. C. Ewry U. S. A. In addition to the two gold medals in track and field, Greece won five medals in shooting contests and three in gymnastics.

GERMANY—

The maximum number of athletes permitted under Olympic rules, 448, will be entered by Germany. In the eight Olympics in which the Fatherland has competed—it was barred from the first two post-war Games in 1920 and 1924—Germany has won 43 Olympic gold medals. But only one of this number was won in track and field sports. Moreover, it was won by a woman athlete, Mrs. Radke, who in world record time won the 800 meter event at Amsterdam in 1928.

Most of Germany's Olympic gold medals were won in aquatic sports in which 13 were gained, one by a German mermaid, Hilde Schrader, who won the 200-meter breast-stroke event at Amsterdam. Of the remaining gold medals, seven were won in gymnastics, four in rowing, three each in tennis, wrestling, and weight-lifting, and two in equestrian sports and fencing. One was won in the tug-of-war at Athens in 1906 with a team made up on the spur of the moment by husky German gymnasts and other strong men on the Olympic team.

The remaining two gold medals were won by brain rather than brawn as they were awarded, one each, as first prizes in the Olympic Architectural Contest at Amsterdam and the Literary Contest at Los Angeles. Incidentally, one of the three gold medals gained in fencing was won by Miss Helene Mayer who, although a non-aryan according to present German law, also will be on the Swastika-bearing German Olympic team this year by special invitation of Reich Sport Leader, Hans von Tschammer und Osten.

In the coming Games Germany will make every effort to win gold medals in the men's track and field division—the trophies which many are wont to count as the only genuine ones. Germany's best bets to make this hope come true are Ernest Lampert and Willie Schroeder in the discus throw, and Hans Woellke in the shot put. Also the husky German fraeuileins may be expected to get one or the other gold medal, first of all, Gisela Mauermayer, holder of the world's record in the discus throw with yards to spare ahead of the field.

CHEAP ELECTRICITY has a lot to do with this

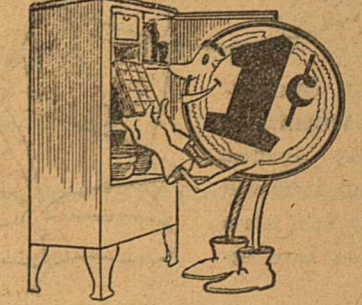

It takes plenty of wholesome food to build sturdy young bodies. Growing boys and girls burn up energy in tremendous quantities and it takes the right kind of food in proper proportions to keep them husky and healthy.

An electric refrigerator will keep your children's food fresh and wholesome for only a few cents a day for electricity... a few pennies that will insure pure and untainted food at every meal.

See Your Electric Refrigerator Dealer TEXAS ELECTRIC SERVICE COMPANY R. L. MILLER, Manager

PENNYWISE SAYS:

"Lots of good food has gone into the building of the muscle this young husky is so proudly displaying. And it's been kept safe and wholesome in an electric refrigerator."

Cats to Chase Electrical Mouse On Trapped Quarter-Mile Course

LONDON, July 17 (U.P.)—While cat racing may never displace the "sport of kings" in England, a determined effort is to be made next month. At the little village of Portesham, in Dorset, a cat racing course is being built. The course, which will have four "traps" will be 440 yards long, and the encouragement for the chase will be an electric mouse.

Fifty out of the 150 pets in the village already are in strict training.

There are no listed age limits nor classes. But careful observation has proved that the best racers are between two and three years.

One experimental meeting has been held in which there were six races. At this meet, a dummy mouse which was run on an endless rope worked by a winch proved too slow for the "puss in seven leauge boots."

Identification is made by red, white, blue and yellow ribbons tied about the racer's necks.

Nothing has yet been done about seeking scientifically bred runners, but one man, on leaving the new race course, expressed himself as interested in training a breed of mice to chase an electric cheese.

Britain Studies Army Proposal of Enlisting

LONDON (U.P.)—Creation of "Boy Battalions" designed to ensure a proper flow of recruits for the army, has been proposed in the House of Commons.

The Secretary of War, Duff Cooper, was asked if, in view of the widespread unemployment and the short age of satisfactory recruits, he would consider this suggestion. He replied that a scheme for absorbing more boys into the army was now being considered, and that he would bear the scheme in mind.

Thirty-five thousand recruits are required in the present year, and the army cannot get them. All sorts of schemes are being considered to make army life more attractive, and it is believed that one difficulty is that the minimum period of enlistment is seven years. Many men it is pointed out, would volunteer for three years, but are reluctant to contract for seven. To change the seven-year enlistment period, however, would strike at the roots of the army's system of overseas drafting.

It takes months to train a recruit and as the drafting season is from the autumn to the spring a man who joined in this period probably would have to wait at least a year before he could leave for overseas service. To obtain any value from short-service enlistment the drafting season would have to be extended over the whole year and drafts would have to be sent overseas and brought back every few weeks, a system which is regarded as impracticable.

However, active consideration is being given to the recruiting of boys but strict secrecy is maintained regarding the nature of the proposals.

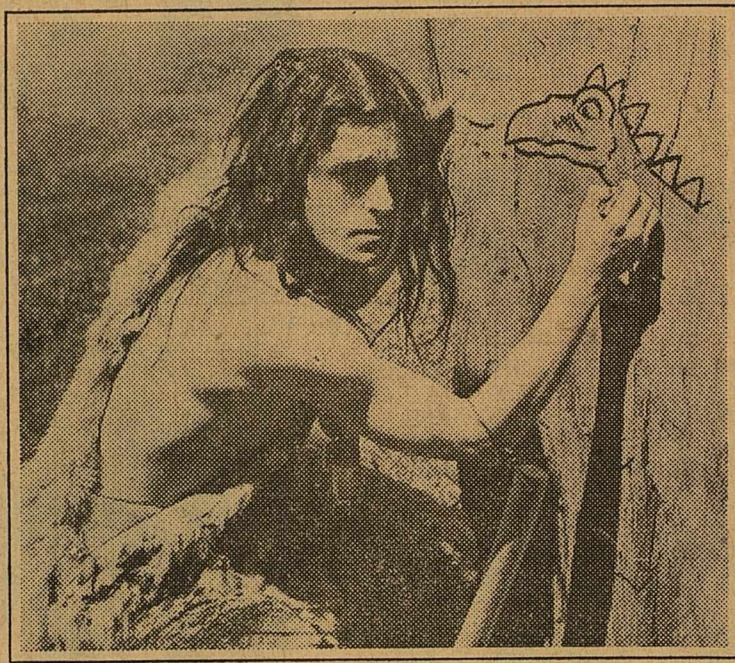

National Bank Charter Issued First in 1863

PHILADELPHIA, July 17 (U.P.)—The first national bank charter granted by the federal government was issued to a Philadelphia institution.

Records displayed in conjunction with the annual Phila. Exposition showed that National Bank Charter No. 1 was granted to the First National Bank of Philadelphia on June 20, 1863.

One of the leading figures in the bank's organization was Joy Cooke, financial aide to the government at the time of the Civil War.

'Alley Oop's' Creator Goes Caveman and Berserk

"Alley Oop," that beetle-browed Stone Age hero whose antics on the comic page of this newspaper always are good for a chuckle, has nothing on his creator, Vincent T. Hamlin. Touring northwestern wilds, Hamlin was seized by Oregon cavemen in the famed Oregon Caves, near Grants Pass, and given a grueling initiation into their tribe. After gulping raw meat "of the sacred aurochs," Hamlin was proffered a cocktail of dinosaur's blood, as shown above, while Chief Big Horn (W. H. Moses), King Guz of the tribe, studied his reaction. At left, above, is the Flamewatcher (L. A. Ringuette), the tribe's Foozy. A moment later the potent brew took effect. With yells that disturbed seismographs, Hamlin, as shown at left, reverted to type, a fur ensemble, and his art.

Capra's 'Mr. Deeds' At Yucca Sunday

Frank Capra is coming to town. Well, not actually, though one of his productions, always eagerly awaited, is scheduled to show Preview, Saturday night, Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday at the Yucca Theatre. It's title is "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," and it stands a very good chance, according to reports that have preceded it, of rivaling "It Happened One Night," which Capra also directed for Columbia Pictures.

Gary Cooper, one of Hollywood's top ranking male stars, is seen in the role of Longfellow Deeds, a simple, small-town boy with, nevertheless, lots of common sense, who inherits the tidy sum of $200,000 from an eccentric uncle. His descent upon New York City is the signal for newspapers and grafters to come snapping at his heels. He outwits the chisellers by the mere expedient of using his old-fashioned horse-sense.

But he has more difficulty with the Fourth Estate, which is represented by Jean Arthur in the role of a sob-sister who knows her way around.

Deeds doesn't know that Miss Arthur or Babe Bennett, as she is known in the tale, is a reporter, so he opens his heart to her. In fact, he opens it so wide that the girl crawls in, and finds himself in that strange condition known as love. Babe, too, is an easy mark for Cupid, the matchless archer, but she places her duty to her paper over that to her heart.

It is through the stories Babe writes from her vantage point that Longfellow Deeds gets into a mess of trouble over his $200,000. And more than that it would be unfair to divulge, except that the story carried a most unusual twist.

Riviera Hopes For Visit From Edward

CANNES France, (U.P.)—If King Edward chooses to spend his summer holiday this year on the Riviera, it will be his fifth visit to the Azure Coast. His Majesty first came here as a youngster just before the War. Newspaper pictures of the period show him reviewing a battalion of Alpine Chasseurs, French "Blue Devils," at the Antibes barracks.

The King did not come back until the summer of 1932, when he and his brother, Prince George, came up from Malta on a British cruiser on their way to Biarritz, where up to that time the King had usually summered in France.

Visited Monte Carlo

The two brothers spent barely 48 hours in Cannes, as "incognito" as the circumstances would permit. They bathed, golfed, danced and appeared at the Monte Carlo Casino. They also astonished the smart crowds on the Croisette promenade of Cannes by appearing in fishermen's red trousers and open-necked, flaming red shirts. The Prince of Wales, shopping in one of the side streets of Cannes, was even lectured by a salesgirl, who did not recognize her customer for "tearing down everything in the shop to pick out a 20-cent shirt."

On the Monte Carlo Summer Sporting Club's dance floor the Prince was pelted with flowers by enthusiastic girls.

The third visit of the King dates back to the summer of 1934, when

In G-Man Story

Richard Dix popular favorite of the films for more than fifteen years, brings another thrill-cramped role to the screen in RKO Radio's "Special Investigator." Dix is first a brilliant lawyer in a big city and later a government aide in the vicinity of a Nevada mining camp on the trail of bullion thieves. Margaret Callahan plays opposite Dix, with Erik Rhodes and Owen Davis, Jr., heading the supporting cast showing today and tomorrow at the Yucca Theatre.

he arrived on Sept. 10, and stayed two weeks.

The last time the King, as the Prince of Wales, honored the Riviera with his presence was in August last year, when he took Lord Chamberlain's villa Le Roc at Golfe Juan adjacent to the Chateau de l'Horizon. He stayed five weeks and he seemed to enjoy himself thoroughly as much as an unhampered as any well-to-do tourist who spends his summer vacation on this coast.

In the afternoon he took his apartment on the terrace of the Hotel Carlton at Cannes and in the evening he dined at Le Roc, at one of the Riviera casinos or at a private villa. He passed his days golfing, swimming and yachting.

Boon to Casino

At that time he liked a little flutter now and then, and his patronage was a decided boon to the Casino, especially so far as the chemin de fer tables are concerned, because everyone like to boast that they had banished the Prince. American women fought for the privilege.

One day last summer he astonished patrons in the Monte Carlo Casino by appearing in a French sailor's togs.

As a rule, kings attract less attention on the Riviera than cinema stars. People seldom turn their heads to look twice at a king, and if it were not for the bodyguard that surround them since the murder of King Alexander of Yugoslavia at Marseilles it would be difficult to recognize royalty.

Cannes and the Riviera look forward to the visit of King Edward with great expectations, because his

Nebraska Wins Distinction As State for All Botanists

LINCOLN, Neb., July 17 (U.P.)—Botanists regard Nebraska as important botanically because the state lies at the crossroads of mid-continental plant migration.

This fact was revealed in a thesis recently completed by Dr. John Mack Winter of Peru (Neb.) State Teachers College and published by the university botanical survey.

Dr. Winter found that plants from nearly every region in the United States are grown in Nebraska. Plants peculiar to the northern forests, mountain varieties and species typical of both the east and south have taken root here.

New plants have gained a foothold in this state include the yam, star flower, a wild indigo, Indian pipe, wild black cherry, white oak, wild asters and shrubs, evening primrose, a western sumac, wild dahlia, quaking aspen and paper birch.

Most country roads measure 66 feet in width because this is the length of the original surveyor's chain.
