The change did not affect the previous plans for running a motorcade of Midland citizens to the Pecos rodeo on Friday, July 3.

The following firms have agreed to take part in the motorcade to the Pecos Rodeo July 3: W. T. Food Market, Red Cross Drug, Midland Hardware and Furniture Company, A. TALMADGE IS OFF DEMO COMMITTEE

Political Enemy of Gov. Elected to Fill Vacated Seat

PHILADELPHIA, June 23 (AP)—Eugene Talmadge, Georgia's anti-new deal governor, was ousted Monday as his state's member of the democratic national committee.

In his stead, the state delegation to the national convention elected Clark Howell, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, a political enemy of the governor and for years a power in Georgia politics.

Howell had no opposition and an attempt to force a contest with Senator George evaporated when the Senator withdrew.

Talmadge was not in Philadelphia last week he said he stood ready to make a quick trip to the convention scene if he could be of aid to "country or party."

The governor took over the post of national committeeman after the death, several years ago, of Major John S. Cohen.

MONDAY HOTTEST DAY OF YEAR AS SOL SENDS TEMPERATURES TO 102 FIGURE

Midland citizens Monday sweltered during the hottest day of the year as the thermometers recorded a maximum of 102 at 2:30 yesterday afternoon.

A light shower that fell about four yesterday afternoon failed to materially relieve things as it lasted only a few minutes.

The heat drove Midlanders to seek cooling amusements, the theatres, swimming pool and other places that offered even temporary relief from it being well patronized.

HOUSTON, June 23 (AP)—John Henry Kirby, chairman of the "Southern Committee to Defend the Constitution" said today that the organization was claiming 350,000 members in 17 states and that it would oppose the reelection of President Roosevelt.

He said that he was not sure whether the party would support Alf Landon, republican presidential nominee, or whether it would place its own candidate in the field.

He said that members of the organization were being polled to determine their attitude. He said "if they decide to throw their support to the republican nominee it will be as democrats as we have no intentions of becoming republicans."

Besides the get-together meeting, the truckmen will discuss improvement of their business under terms of the Texas motor carrier law.

Bryan Bell was appointed last week by the railroad commission as assistant director of the motor transportation division. He succeeded Tilden L. Childs who resigned recently.

LANDRETH KIRK IS CORING BELOW 4794

Gaines Test Blows Gas While Pulling Tubing

By FRANK GARDNER Landreth Production Company No. 1 Kirk in Gaines county was coring ahead 4794 feet this morning, with the core scheduled to be pulled shortly after noon.

Coring was resumed last night after the test had shown no oil or gas in swabbing down to bottom at 4,789. It was reported that the well blew some gas while pulling the tubing from the hole, but the flow exhausted after a few minutes.

A rainbow showing of oil is present in the pits as the No. 1 Kirk comes ahead, but it is possible that this oil is coming from one of the saturated sections farther up the hole.

Plans for acid treating the Landreth test were abandoned temporarily when it appeared that the last 100 feet of hole down to 4,789 which had shown good saturation in cores were too hard and tight to respond to the treatment.

Top of lime in the No. 1 Kirk was picked at 4,315 feet. It is located in the southwest corner of section 22, block A-21, public school land, eight miles northwest of the Means pool in Andrews and 10 miles southeast of the Seminole gas well.

The most recent wildcat to be located in Gaines, Humble Oil and Refining Company No. 1 C. H. Eubank, was spudded yesterday and is now drilling at 333 feet. It is 660 feet out of the southwest corner of section 6, block AX, public school land, and is about eight miles northwest of the Landreth test. It is being drilled by Loffland Bros. on a prospective structure mapped by many geophysical crews in recent months.

COLORFUL PARADE EXPECTED FRIDAY TO OPEN RODEO

Horses Are Coming To Town For The Procession

Saddle horses and cow ponies were being brought to town this week, preparatory to the big mounted parade which will open the rodeo here Friday noon.

Starting at the high school building, the parade of men and women and kid riders will assemble at 12:30, starting to move toward the business section of town at one o'clock and going directly to Midland Fair Arena to open at 2 o'clock performance of the World's Championship Centennial Rodeo.

Committeemen urged every horse owner or rider to enter the parade, as it will be strictly a mounted affair, eliminating the usual collection of automobiles and floats. All cowgirl sponsors, rodeo contestants, cowboys of the range, town-riders and kid riders were cordially invited to participate.

Colorful regalia was expected to be flaunted before the crowds, adding greatly to the western atmosphere of the opening rodeo day.

RENOMINATION OF GARNER AND FDR CONCEDED BY ALL

First Session Finds Party Ready To Open Fight

SMITH IS FLAYED Liberty League And Members Lashed By Jim

PHILADELPHIA, June 23 (AP)—Flying the New Deal standard, the Democratic convention took off today toward the renomination of Franklin Delano Roosevelt and John Nance Garner, in a starting session abuzz with everything except business.

From the beginning it was clear that the controlling administration leaders are to give militant answers to challenges from the right and left for a straight ahead campaign. The first rallying oratorical flourish

NEW YORK, June 23 (AP)—Chairman John Hamilton of the republican national committee today virtually invited Al Smith to speak in the campaign in behalf of Gov. Landon.

Responding to the question, Hamilton replied: "I think Gov. Smith is one of the finest Americans, and the people of the country are entitled to hear his views.

ish came from national chairman, Farley, the preliminary keynote, while leaders talked platform behind closed doors. A few southerners still hunted forlornly ways to preserve the two-thirds nominating rule.

Outwardly the convention was an all-Roosevelt show, but underneath ran a tide of speculation of the intention of Al Smith and others who refused to go along.

Farley asserted that the sole issue of the coming presidential campaign was a continuance of the new deal, adding a slashing attack upon the nominees and the platform of the republican party. He charged they were the product of an effort to appear conservative in the east and liberal in the west.

"Behind the republican ticket is a crew of the DuPont liberty league and its allies, which so far have financed every undercover agency that has disgraced American politics with their appeal to race prejudices, religious intolerance, and personalities so gross they had to be repudiated by the regular republican organization.

The convention recessed at 2:30 until eight p. m., Eastern daylight time.

BEHIND THE SCENES

WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Reporter-Telegram Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 23—The republican party has formally declared its belief that states can constitutionally pass minimum wage laws, despite the supreme court's 5 to 4 adverse decision in New York's Tipaldo case.

The democratic party is shying off the constitutional issue, although the court's opinion in the New York case was its most unpopular decision of the last three years.

Governor Landon isn't sure whether the states can have such laws constitutionally, and favors an amendment if they can't.

New York and 11 other states have decided to continue enforcement of their minimum wage laws for women and children despite the Tipaldo decision.

The attorney general of New York is petitioning for a rehearing of the case and his petition will come before the court for decision next fall.

Here's a Revelation: All this needs some explaining and any lawyer can do it for you—it he is smart enough.

Four See Difference: Four justices, led by Chief Justice Hughes, said the New York statute was distinguishable from the District of Columbia statute and that the Adkins decision did not control.

Small Park Surveyed: SAN RAFAEL, Cal. (U.P.)—Federal research workers have established that this city has the smallest park in the United States. It is 10 feet long by 5 feet wide and contains one oak estimated to be 200 years old.

Alameda Deers Plentiful: ALAMEDA, Cal. (U.P.)—Research workers of the Federal Writers Project have just established that Alameda county has more deer than any other metropolitan area in the United States. While no attempt has been made to take a deer census it is estimated that at least 3,500 now exist in the county.

Slide Around Issue: Authors of the New York law had tried to frame it to meet the objections raised in the Adkins case. New York state asked whether the objections had been met successfully and whether the court, notably in the Nebbia New York milk control law case, hadn't since 1923 modified its position on the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment.

These issues the majority ducked, except as it said it couldn't go beyond the appeals court's opinion as to indistinguishability of the two laws.

Justice Roberts, who had delivered the opinion in the Nebbia case, was able to go along with Justice Sutherland, Butler, and Chief Justice Hughes.

SIDE GLANCES By George Clark

"My garden is so friendly, now. I would hate to add anything that would quarrel with the other flowers."

John T. Flynn, Noted Economist, Analyzes Republican Platform

BY JOHN T. FLYNN (Copyright, 1936, NEA Service, Inc.) We are now far enough away from the Republican convention to make a calm appraisal of the platform upon which the party has chosen to stand before the people.

It should be called a platform with an annex. The annex is the telegram sent to the convention by Governor Landon after the document's adoption and immediately before his nomination.

The platform contains 13 special topics and two omnibus clauses. The special clauses relate to the Constitution, re-employment, relief, social security, labor, agriculture, tariff, regulation of business, civil service, government finance, money and banking, foreign affairs, and national defense.

The two omnibus clauses are the preamble and a clause at the end—a kind of catch-all covering the Indians, Negroes, veterans, foreign debt.

As one looks carefully over the document now, it must be conceded that it is a good job as a political platform.

First of all, it contains in its preamble a flaming summons to arms in defense of our liberties.

Next it contains the necessary surrenders or sops to various groups which demand planks—the veterans, the colored people, women, farmers, and workers.

Third, it speaks out boldly about such things as freedom, political corruption, civil service, Americanism—things upon which most good citizens agree.

Finally, it trends softly and whispers vaguely about such controversial subjects as money re-employment, national defense.

Second Step Two Subjects: In this respect, of course, it is not different from other platforms of other parties in the past. This platform, however, sidestepped two subjects upon which stripped declarations were looked for by old-line Republicans. One was money and the other was the Constitution.

For once in the last 40 years we find the Republican platform shying timorously away from the word "gold" as the Democratic platform shied away from the word "silver" in 1904.

Just where does the party stand, in the light of this platform, on certain great issues before the people? On the Constitution its position is fairly clear, but you have to search for it. Amending the Constitution might well take any one of three forms:

One would be to extend the power of the federal government over our economic life. Another would be to strengthen the power of the states over certain economic subjects.

The third would be to curb powers of the supreme court. The Republicans made the mistake of going to the convention breathing fire and brimstone against the president for his attacks upon the Constitution. Of course what they meant was his efforts to enlarge powers of the central government, and his suspected wish to narrow jurisdiction of the supreme court.

But suddenly the Republicans were confronted with a demand with in their own party for a constitutional change. And this demand came from the leading candidate's friends.

Landon Changes Trend: Landon shouters had arrived singing "the dear old Constitution is good enough for us." Then out of the blue came the realization that it wasn't good enough for Landon—that he, too, wanted an amendment.

Such a time is hardly favorable for the fine distinctions. But of course there was and is a very definite distinction between amending the Constitution to strengthen the powers of the state and amending it to weaken the powers of the state and extend the powers of the federal government.

The Landon demand was for the former as against the Roosevelt support of the latter. This was all made more difficult by Roosevelt's speech as the Republicans gathered declaring that the Constitution "was good enough for him."

It was this confusion, plus the well-known timidity of politicians plus the opposition of certain die-hard old guarders who want both federal and state government to be weak, which prevented a platform declaration for a constitutional amendment.

But despite all this the declaration would have been made had it not been for Senator Borah, who thus became the ally of the old guarders, in opposition to all constitutional change.

AGAINST DRASTIC REVISION: Of course this sudden dilemma had been produced by the decision of the U. S. Supreme Court in the New York case holding that the state had no power to pass a law fixing minimum wages for women in industry.

The upshot of the whole controversy is that the party has now fairly declared against constitutional changes that would enlarge the power of the federal government and deprive the supreme court of its authority to declare laws unconstitutional.

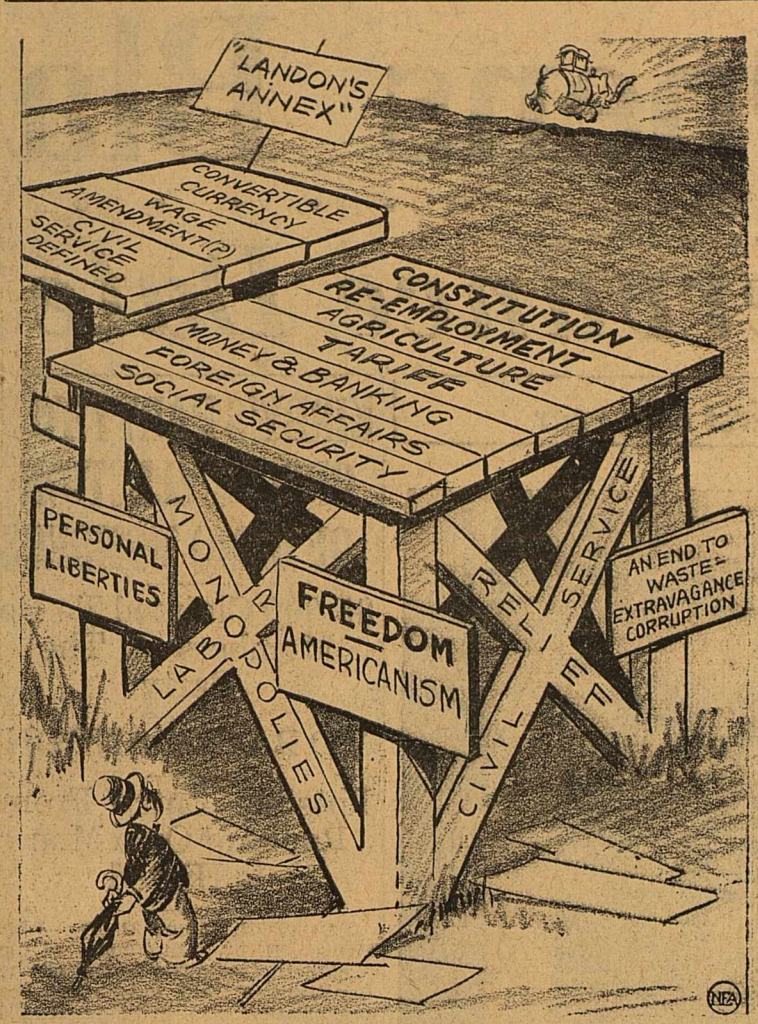

Also, it has declared in favor of laws to abolish sweatshops, child labor, and starvation wages, for women and children. But it keeps mum about the Constitution.

This is quite meaningless, since the supreme court has held the states can do nothing about such things. However, Governor Landon sent a letter to the convention which declares that he favors a constitutional amendment to give this power to the state "if necessary."

Hence the party can now claim that this is Governor Landon's personal opinion, but not the party's. The advocates of the constitutional change can claim that the party knew where the governor stood on the subject before it nominated him and hence thus by implication wove this declaration into its platform.

MONEY IS BURNING ISSUE: The next great cause of controversy was the eternal subject of money. Several factors complicated this. First, there is a large element in the Republican party which subscribes to what eastern financiers call "money heresies." Many believe in inflation. Many believe in "doing something for silver."

Senator Borah is one of these. The five silver states, votes of which are badly needed by the Republicans feel that way. But there is a third group which believes in a managed currency. How numerous this group is in the party will be seen from the fact that in 1932 the great majority of its members in the House voted in favor of the Goldsborough bill. That bill provided for a rudimentary form of managed currency and for inflation.

money convertible into gold? GOLD IS YEXING PROBLEM: As to the gold standard, we are in a measure on the gold standard. That is, money is valued in relation to gold.

As to the amount of gold in the dollar, that, somehow, is all mixed up with the question for foreign trade and the money problems of other countries. Should we stabilize now or should we wait until we can do it in agreement with other countries?

And, finally, as to "gold convertibility," how should that be brought about? Should gold circulate freely again, or should other forms of money be convertible merely into gold bullion or gold bars? Should we do this now or later?

In spite of all their cocksureness about money, the Republicans found themselves as completely at sea over the subject as the Democratic conventions of 1904 and 1908. In fact, the Cleveland convention duplicated a famous incident of the 1904 Democratic convention.

That convention repudiated Bryan and nominated Alton B. Parker. But it wanted to placate the Bryan wing. Hence it was disposed to keep quiet on the subject of money.

Parker, precisely as Landon did, sent a telegram to the convention stating his position on money and gold.

SOUND MONEY MEANINGLESS: But since then both parties have been "sound" on money. "Sound money" is a favorable expression. It really means nothing. Everybody is for sound money. But generally in our politics it has meant the gold standard.

Both parties have been for it since 1904. The Democratic platform in 1932 declared for a "sound currency maintained at all hazards." And here was the Republican party in 1936, after its bitter denunciations of Roosevelt's money policy, afraid to put them in its platform.

It declared for a "sound currency"—leaving out gold to please Borah and certain other groups. It came out against further evaluation. But it contradicted that by announcing that while it was stabilizing the dollar—settling on its gold content—it was not in favor of doing so right away, but waiting until other nations have sufficient stability for such action.

It demanded that the right to change the gold content be taken out of the president's hands and returned to Congress.

LONDON'S STAND CLEAR: However, in the preamble, the president was denounced for "dishonoring the country by repudiating its most sacred obligations." The party accepts that now as an accomplished fact, though it opposes further devaluation, and postpones final action until the international situation makes this safe.

Then Governors Landon's telegram to the convention said that by sound money must be understood "a currency expressed in terms of gold and convertible into gold." But he added that convertibility could not be attained now and that he would attempt it when it could be done with out penalizing our producers of commodities.

This puts him definitely on record as against a managed currency. The party declarations on agriculture were pretty much as forecast—tariff protection for farmers and subsidies to make up to them what they do not get by the tariff. Soil protection and co-operative marketing are included.

The relief plank was also what was expected—state administration of relief an dstate share in cost. The plank on the tariff and balancing the budget were also according to schedule.

SECURITY PLANK STRONG: The other two features which excite attention, and, for that matter, approval, are the planks on social security and the merit system.

On social security the platform denounced the president's weird plan for a reserve of 47 billion dollars, which is impossible. It advocated paying for old age pension as we go instead of through accumulated reserves and it urged also that all workers be included instead of only about half as in the president's plan.

It does, however, insist on a state administered system of old age pensions, while the president's plan is a national one. It also supports state unemployment systems, which is in line with the president's policy, though the president attempts to force state system by means of a tax.

On unemployment the platform is very vague. MERIT SYSTEM URGED: One splendid feature is the demand for a federal civil service system. This would be more or less routine but for Governor Landon's telegram saying what he means by vicil service. He means a service in which everybody under the grade of assistant secretary shall be a part of the classified service.

Apparently the Republicans' battle is going to be waged, not so much on the platform as a whole as upon the flaming preamble—a kind of stirring call to patriots to rise and smite the enemies of the nation.

We are going to hear Americanism, Farley, and the corrupted civil service, extravagance and the nation's credit discussed rather than specific declarations in favor of particular topics.

The Love That You Returned to Me

By Helen Welshimer

THE love that you returned to me, dear one—
Is love that you shall hunger for, you say.
Is it because its hold has grown too strong
That fearing thralldom you must go away?
"I hurry from the potency of need
For all you give. I am afraid that I
Who love you more than you, dear, do believe Shall grow to loathe the love's bondage" by and by.

THIS thus you speak. You are a little boy
Who sees the world as his brave hunting ground
And fears to claim one spot as his alone.
Lest owning it, his spirit will be bound.
Love must be free—I know that more than you.
Wind, spring, dawn, stars are not held in the hand.
Yet there's no force that can uproot them, dear;
Love is not grasped—oh, don't you understand?

Appearance Depends Largely on Posture

By ALICIA HART
NEA Service Staff Writer

Good posture is the first requisite of grace. A woman who stands on one foot, allowing stomach to protrude, slumps forward when she walks or sags clumsily when she sits cannot possibly hope to appear graceful and lovely.

First of all, learn to stand correctly. Don't throw shoulders back stiffly or hold chin rigidly in. Forget about these and concentrate on your backbone. If it is straight, except for four or five vertebrae at the base which should be turned up and forward, stomach will look flat and hips more slender. In other words, avoid an exaggerated hollow in the center of the back.

When you sit, remember that the center of your back—not shoulders—should rest against the back of the chair. Cross your legs, if you like, but always cross one above the other. Remember, of course, that about the most awkward thing you can do is to sit with your feet wide apart, flat on the floor. Always keep feet close together.

Another graceless effect can be obtained by standing on one foot with opposite hip thrown outward, stomach protruding. This pose will ruin the appearance of any figure. By all means avoid it. Instead, always stand with your weight placed equally on the balls of both feet.

When you walk, move from the hips and waistline. Think of your legs as long columns that swing along in one piece from waistline to feet instead of broken columns that move sometimes between hips and knees—other times between knees and feet.

Regardless of your size or weight, you should do limbering and stretching exercises that keep the waistline, legs and arms supple. In the morning, stretch forward to touch the floor with your hands. Keep knees stiff and do the exercise very slowly. Then bend backward, to the right, to the left, and forward again. Swing arms up and down as you do deep breathing routines. And don't forget ankle and foot exercises.

Believe Mecca of Old Indian Tribe Located

CHICAGO (U.P.)—Excavations on the ruins of an ancient Pueblo village led Dr. Paul S. Martin, curator of anthropology at Field Museum of Natural History to believe that the Mecca of the Holy Land had its counterpart a thousand years ago in southwestern Colorado.

"Lowry Ruin," shrouded in mystery for hundreds of years, was rebuilt six different times, Dr. Martin found, a phenomenon not encountered in studies of other southwestern prehistoric ruins.

"It indicated," he said, "that Lowry may have been a holy place to which pilgrimages were made."

Giant Kivas Found
The underground kivas, chambers for religious ceremonies, is one of the largest ever discovered, he said. It was deserted by its builders hundreds of years before the coming of the first white men, the archeologist found, the tribe presumably migrating out of Colorado in the face of a stronger invader.

The people probably were ancestors of the Pueblo Indians found in Arizona and New Mexico, Dr. Martin believes. The invaders who drove them out probably were the stronger Navahos.

Basic Style Retained
The great kiva, with certain structural modifications, was preserved through all the occupancies of Lowry Pueblo.

Dr. Martin, who spent four summers examining the ruins, said he believed the population of Lowry and its surrounding area apparently was sparse at all times, not more than 50 or 60 persons living in the pueblo at any one time.

There were no fortifications or signs of battle. The populace pre-

Methodist Women Meet for Study On Monday

Mrs. Holt Jowell taught three lessons in the study course, "Toward Christian Ideals of Brotherhood," at the meeting of the Mary Scharbauer circle of the Methodist missionary society Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank Adams, 409 N. Carrizo. The first topic discussed was "False Assumptions," the second "Economic Failures in Brotherhood" and the third "Trends Toward Brotherhood."

Mrs. M. J. Allen opened the meeting with prayer and Mrs. J. M. Prothro presided over the business session as circle chairman.

Refreshments were served at the close of the study hour to the following members: Mmes. W. A. Black, Bill Conner, Otis Ligon, Ray Beville, J. M. Prothro, Mary S. Ray, A. J. Voliva, M. J. Allen, Holt Jowell, and the hostess.

The Laura Haygood circle, meeting with Mrs. P. P. Barber at her home north of town completed study of the course they have been pursuing. Mrs. C. E. Nolan taught.

Fourteen members and three visitors were present including: Members, Mmes. Frank Prothro, C. G. Taylor, Cole, J. T. Tidwell, Noel G. Oates, Pollard, L. H. Pittman, C. P. Wilson, Clyde Gwyn, Everett Klumbold, A. J. Andrews, C. E. Nolan, Jess Barber, the hostess; visitors, Mrs. H. C. Barnes, Mrs. Stevens, Mrs. Cutberth.

Dr. J. W. Bass, left, director of public health for the City of Dallas, Saturday dedicated the Frigidaire Hall of Science at the Texas Centennial Exposition, as Phil M. 'Roaming Lady' Tale of Adventure Exciting adventure races across the screen in Columbia's "Roaming Lady," co-featuring Fay Wray and Ralph Bellamy which is showing today and tomorrow at the Ritz Theatre.

The film presents Miss Wray as a madcap million-heiress, in love the devil-may-care Bellamy, an aviator employed by her father. The difference in their social positions, coupled with a perverseness in both, brings nothing but lovers' quarrels which finally culminate when Bellamy is virtually shanghaied by her father and sent to China.

On the way, Bellamy discovers that Fay has stowed away on the ship to be near him. The ship is diverted by a treacherous crew into the hands of a Chinese rebel chieftain who impresses Bellamy into his army as a military flyer.

The sequences which follow are replete with action, particularly the final scene which shows the thrilling and spectacular escape of the principals from the rebel's camp.

The production is fast-paced and replete with action, comedy and romance.

SWISS LIKELY TO RECOGNIZE SWISS

ZURICH (U.P.)—Switzerland may resume diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia before long. Opposition to this move has weakened considerably, mainly because of the economic situation. The question is up for discussion in parliament.

Socialists and communists are hoping that parliament will decide the question definitely and favorably. The catholic party, liberal-conservative circles of the French cantons, and the league of patriots are opposed to resuming normal relations with the Soviet. Many who formerly opposed the move now are undecided or have changed their view. A sensation was caused recently when the general committee of the second chamber, voting nine to three adopted a resolution proposing resumption of relations with Russia.

Favorable Action Surprises
The resolution came as a surprise because it is the federal council who is competent to take the lead in foreign affairs and the committee had not previously asked Foreign Minister Giuseppe Motta for his opinion. In June, Dr. Motta probably will take the position in parliament that the time is not yet ripe for the move.

Several chambers of commerce and also the young liberals have voted resolutions proposing relations be resumed. The big exporting firms, especially the large manufacturing industries, are mainly behind the campaign in favor of Russia and have organized a society to develop commercial interchange between the two countries.

Trade Revival Seen
It is argued that a considerable increase in Swiss-Russian trade is possible only if normal diplomatic relations are resumed. Walter Stucki secretary general of the federal public economy department, who is in charge of negotiating commercial treaties, said to encourage these tendencies.

Dr. Motta, speaking before the assembly of League of Nations in 1934, when he opposed the admission of Russia into the League, explained why Switzerland hitherto had refused to resume diplomatic relations with the Soviets. The reasons guiding Switzerland, and especially Motta, who is a catholic, are of a moral and idealistic character. But there are political reasons also. It is feared that a Russian embassy at Berne might become a center of Communist propaganda in Switzerland.

Detroit Judge Warns Slow Motor Drivers

DETROIT, (U.P.)—Detroit, one of the unhealthiest cities in the nation for automobile speeders, has turned thumbs down on the slow road hog. Traffic judges have asked Police Commissioner Heinrich Pickert to stamp out the practice of slow moving vehicles holding their own in the center of busy streets, blocking several lanes of traffic. "These slow movers are causing other motorists to dodge in and out of traffic, thus increasing the hazard," Judge George T. Murphy said. "They are as much a menace as the speeder."

Trainer Pictures Bloodhounds as Sensitive As Children, Denies Viciousness Of Breed

ANGOLA, La. (U.P.)—Bloodhounds says Capt. Fred C. Ball, have to be trained like children. Most people think the dogs are natural-born hunters, but the fact is less than half of them ever can be taught to follow a trail.

"The secret of a good bloodhound is the shape of its nose. If long and narrow, the dog's scent nerve is unusually sensitive, explains Ball. And for all their persistence on the hunt, they are not vicious, and seldom attack their prey."

"The best dogs will get a man cornered, then stand off and bay him," Ball declares.

Ball is trainer and handler of dogs at the state prison farm here. Convict trusties, called "dog sergeants", are detailed to help him. The dogs and their handlers are continually in demand throughout the state for trailing murderers, robbers and jail-breakers. When convicts escape from the prison farm into the surrounding Tunica hills, the dogs are indispensable. For the hunt, they are usually chained in pairs, with their handlers following on horseback, for if the trail is "hot," the dogs set a fast pace, with their noses skimming the ground and their long ears flopping to their pater.

Bloodhounds have been Ball's lifelong interest. Nothing is sweeter music, he says, than the sound of a dog as he hits a trail and races 10 to 12 miles an hour at full bay.

The perfect trail is one left just after a rain, and the worst is one made just before a rain. But a real dog will not be stopped. He needs only the faintest scent of a man's footprint.

"You really should be able to let the dog smell a piece of clothes of the man being hunted, or the bed he has slept in, or even the cash register he has robbed," Capt. Ball said. "But even that isn't necessary for a good bloodhound. He can strike a trail from a footprint."

The captain started training dogs in his boyhood. His uncle Ben Ball, had the most famous pack in the Ozark Mountains years ago. Once he trailed the James boys. Uncle Ben gave his nephew a pup and told him how to train it. The boy started by hiding behind trees and letting the pup find him. The trails must be easy at first, or the dog gets discouraged.

"Red," a lean dog with a long nose and a burnished red coat, is Ball's present favorite, "the smartest of the Angola pack," he calls him.

STAMFORD RODEO PLANS COMPETE

Everything 'All Set' For Opening of Reunion July Second

STAMFORD, Texas, June 23—Final preparations are being completed by officials of the Texas Cowboy Reunion for the opening of its seventh annual rodeo and round-up here July 2-3-4. All buildings, grandstands and corral fences have received a new coat of paint. The ground of the arena has received a sanitol treatment, a preparation to prevent dust, which is calculated to be one of the most appreciated improvements that has been made this year.

Ornamental trees and native mesquites on the grounds have made good growth in the past twelve months and will furnish some shade to comfort and cool the weary cowboy or other visitors who seek shelter from the sun. A high wire fence has been built on three sides of the 42 acres Reunion tract and a steel woven wire fence with four ornamental gates adorn the main entrance. Additional comfort for the spectators has been provided by placing foot rests on all seats in the grandstands, and by adding awning-like extensions to the roofs to keep out the sun.

Officials plan to give the patrons their money's worth at all performances. A full carload of 4 and 5 year old, wild Brahma steers has just been received for use in the steer riding contests. There is a herd of 75 strong, kicking cows, with spring calves alongside for cowboy teams in the wild-cow-milking contest to wrestle and contend with. A new string of bucking horses is on hand, too, for the bronc buster to ride or attempt to ride as the case might be. And some of the toughest horses of last year will be in the arena again this year to do their best and worst to put the rider on the ground or make him pull leather. In the list of old horses is found only those with a bad reputation, such as "Doctor Blackwell," "Candy Wagon" and "Lightning."

Aside from purely rodeo events there will be many other things to interest and entertain the visitors, a round of parties and dances will compliment visiting sponsors and other guests. There will be a square dance nightly, at the bunkhouse especially for the oldtimers, but the younger cowboys are not barred, and they always join in the merriment. Band concerts will provide downtown entertainment the first day, the grand parade is to be a chief street attraction the second day, and the Old Fiddlers' contest at the City Auditorium will entertain hundreds on the third day.

Numerous ranches have indicated that they will send their chuck wagons again this year. These wagons will be assembled in a fenced area where wood, water and beef are furnished and where other needed commodities may be had from the

Final Exploitation Of Rodeo Sent Out

All newspapers in the southwest, and many in other sections of the United States, received final stories this week from the Texas Centennial publicity offices, exploiting the Midland rodeo. Under a Midland date line, the following publicity was distributed.

"One of the west's outstanding celebrations, the world championship rodeo at Midland, will be presented this year on June 26, 27, and 28 as one of the western type celebrations which feature the Centennial year program.

"A total of $3,500 in purses is offered for the various rodeo events. "The Midland rodeo will be staged in the new $60,000 Midland Fair arena, said to be the best equipped arena in the southwest. The steel grandstand seats 5,500 spectators.

"A stirring and colorful parade of mounted horsemen will open the show on Friday morning, June 26. Rodeo performances will be presented Friday and Saturday with the big final event on Sunday afternoon, June 28.

"Main events in the rodeo performances will be calf roping, wild horse roping, steer riding, bronc riding, bull dogging, bare back bronc riding, and wild horse race. Cowgirls, representing various towns and cities, will compete for a $100 saddle and other valuable prizes. Judging will be on the appearance of the cowgirl, appearance of the horse, ability of the girl to ride and ability of the horse to be reined."

GO TO TEMPLE

Mrs. Clyde Cowden and Mrs. Clarence Hale went to Temple last Saturday and will spend several days there. Mrs. Hale has been ill for the past ten days.

chuck wagon commissary, a new feature added to simplify provisioning the chuck boxes. Chuck wagons are fascinating to visitors of all ages it seems, and this year in order that all may have the opportunity of eating at one of them tickets for a noon day meal may be purchased for a small fee.

The Reunion draws a list of notable each year. Last year the late Will Rogers characteristically dropped in unannounced to see the show. Governor James V. Allred has attended nearly every year, and the governor has given positive assurance that he will be back this year. Arriving in Stamford at noon on July 4, he will head the afternoon parade and pilot it to the rodeo grounds where he will be a guest at the afternoon performance.

GREAT LAKES SHOW WILL OPEN JULY 27

Exposition at Cleveland Will Be Extended Over 100 Days

CLEVELAND, O., June 23 (Spl.)—A miracle show built on Cleveland's lake front in 80 working days—a miracle show 100% completed in the face of the eternal it-can't-be-done—a miracle show from the science of illumination and from cultural progress to pulchritude—the Great Lakes Exposition—will open here on time Saturday noon June 27th.

For one hundred days—ending Oct. 4th—the Great Lakes Exposition will unfold to millions of visitors the romance of iron and steel, and planes, fashion and finance, food and fun—as marked by the lives of those who in 100 years have written the glorious history of the Great Lakes states—New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota, among whose famous shores are to be found sixteen presidents and in which the American Legion Convention next September will close the Exposition program of special events in the traditional blaze of glory.

As far as the eye can reach, and somewhat farther than the average visitor likes to walk until abetted by rickshaw, wheel chair or intramural bus, the Exposition, marking the centennial of Cleveland's incorporation, records the colonial history and modern achievements of the Great Lakes states.

Its modern miracle of lights will be turned on by a twinkle from the eye of the Man in the Moon.

What three months ago was an unlovely city dump, even this day blooms with one of the most remarkable rock gardens that Horticulture has ever claimed as its most precious child—while a full mile away tower the picturesque Streets of the World, again transforming Cleveland's hitherto forgotten lake front into a Babe's Tower setting of strange tongues and stranger men's and colorful folk dances.

A distinctive marine atmosphere pervades the Exposition's decorations, climaxing along its water front in the S. S. "Moses Cleave-

Waring Orchestra On The Air Earlier

Fred Waring and his Pennsylvaniaians will be heard a half-hour earlier on their Tuesday and Friday broadcasts over the CBS and NBC network respectively, beginning June 26, according to an announcement made today by the Ford Motor company. The new time schedule which begins this evening with the NBC broadcast, will bring them to eastern radio listeners from 9:00 to 9:30 p. m., EDT. Pacific coast listeners will hear the program at the same time as at present, with the rebroadcast going on the air from 12:00 to 12:30 a. m., EDT.

There will be no change in the stations now carrying the program, nor will there be changes in the type of entertainment that has made the Ford dealers' Waring broadcasts so highly popular. As at present, there will be a total of 154 stations carrying the program, 93 of them on the CBS hookup and 61 on the NBC network.

The entertainment lineup will continue Rosemary and Priscilla Lane, Stella and the Fellas, Ferne, Tom Warring, Foley, McClinton and Johnny Davis. The famous Waring Glee Club, and the recently added V-Eight Octet will provide harmony numbers.

Mrs. T. Paul Barron returned late yesterday from a week end trip to Lubbock, her son, Charles, coming home at the same time from Clovis where he visited relatives for several days.
