SHERIFF PROBING SOLDIER'S STORY OF TOURIST CASE

Sergeant says He Saw Missing Quartet At Ft. Bliss

EL PASO, June 24 (P)—A report that Mr. and Mrs. George Lortus and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Heberer, East St. Louis, Ill., tourists who disappeared in New Mexico in May, 1935, were at Ft. Bliss, Texas, before they dropped from sight, was being investigated today by Sheriff Chris P. Fox of El Paso.

Sgt. C. A. Dollard, troop E seventh cavalry, told Deputy Sheriff S. D. Shea that the tourists talked with him about 7 a. m. May 20, 1935.

"The people were in an old model tan car.

"I talked with them about 10 minutes, Mr. Lortus said they were from St. Louis and were going to California. He asked me the shortest route to the White Sands, north of here. He said they were to meet a man on a ranch about nine miles this side of White Sands and take him with them to California.

"I directed them to the south gate of the post and they drove off toward Alamogordo, New Mexico."

Sgt. Dollard said he had mentioned seeing the tourists to several persons, but that no one had questioned him officially until yesterday.

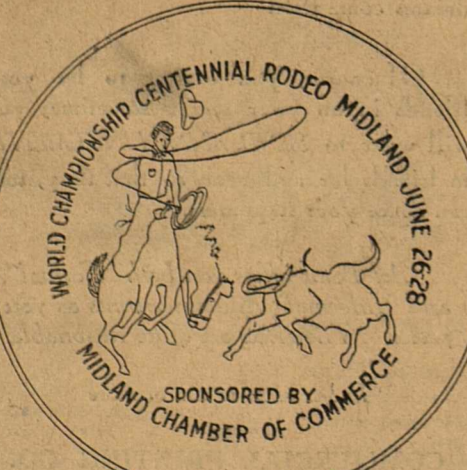

Investigators have worked on the theory that the tourists passed through Vaughn, N. M., to continue west to Alamogordo, New Mexico.

On June 29 some of their personal effects were found burned near Albuquerque.

ALL OWNERS ASKED TO PLACE HORSES READY FOR LINE-UP

GATHER AT 12:30

Procession To Start At Exactly One Friday

Final grouping of the horsemen's parade, set for one o'clock Friday afternoon, was made at a meeting of the parade committee yesterday afternoon and every horse owner was asked to have his mount in the line-up to add to the color of the opening program of the World Championship Centennial Rodeo. George Glass, Donald Hutt and T. O. Midkiff will be in charge of the parade.

All riders were asked to be at the west side of the high school grounds at 12:30 o'clock. The procession will start moving at exactly one o'clock traversing the downtown streets and ending at Midland Fair Arena. Riders will march in pairs, with attention to matching of horses.

The line-up will be substantially as follows:

Marshal: Chief of Police A. J. Norwood;

Big Spring band;

Flag bearers, mounted;

Officials of Midland Fair, rodeo committee and judges of rodeo;

Cowgirl sponsors, representing West Texas and New Mexico towns;

Contestants and feature performers at World Championship Centennial Rodeo;

Midland band;

Miscellaneous riders, including "town horses," flat saddle riders, women, children on big horses; Shetland pony riders.

Starting in front of the high school building, the parade will move at an even and brisk gait east on Texas to Loraine street; turn south, marching on Missouri avenue; turn east, march one block to Main street; turn north, go two blocks to Texas avenue; turn east, continue on Texas as avenue to Catholic church. The marshal will then lead the parade northward on the dirt street to the point where lane turns due east to the Midland Fair Arena, the procession breaking up at the fair grounds.

Riders other than contestants, who will not use their horses at the fair grounds, may have use of the cattle pens and corrals just north of the grandstand to keep their horses until end of the afternoon program.

The parade committee pointed out at the meeting that the colorful parade will add more to the glamour of the opening day than any event to be staged. Hence they requested cooperation of the public in bringing horses for the parade, either riding them or furnishing for riders who desire to parade but do not have mounts. Extra saddles also are needed, many having more horses than they will need but not having sufficient saddles.

Riders were asked to wear colorful attire, lending to the western atmosphere through use of loud shirts, bandannas and general make-up.

Town people having saddle horses and those who ride English saddles were expressly invited to be in the group of miscellaneous riders. The committee pointed out that although the rodeo is a western event, it is desired to have all classes of saddle

AMERICAN FORCED TO OUIT SIDEWALK BY JAP BAYONETS

Nipponese In Display Of War Strength In Peiping

PEIPING, June 24 (P)—Japanese bayonets cleared the mightiest martial display in nearly 40 years today—with a United States army captain and other foreigners reported forced from the roads and sidewalks.

Chinese reports said Captain Henry S. Jernigan, U. S. A., attached to the United States embassy as a language student, was shoved from the roadway with a bayonet point against his stomach by a Japanese soldier.

Captain Jernigan, a native of Hopkinsville, Ky., thrust the weapon aside and escaped injury, the reports said.

Other Americans and persons from abroad were said to have been pushed off the streets by bayonet-armed troops to make way for Japanese nationals gathered to witness the presentation of a regimental flag sent by Emperor Hirohito to the North China garrison.

With bugles blaring, Japanese soldiers estimated to number 3,000 marched through the streets, keeping Peiping in a state of excitement and expectancy.

Captain Jernigan, dressed in uniform, was standing in the roadway watching the Japanese troops when the soldier, armed with a bayonet, pressed him back, ostensibly to keep the walk clear for Japanese.

Raymond L. Hughes Elected As New 'Tail-Twister' of Midland Lions

By a majority of one vote, Raymond L. Hughes was elected to the exalted office of tail-twister of the Midland Lions Club at the regular weekly club luncheon in the assembly room of the county courthouse today noon. Hughes defeated Attorney James H. Goodman for the coveted office in one of the closest and most hotly contested political races ever staged in Midland county.

Due to one mutilated ballot, which was thrown out by the election judges, the final count was contested by Judge Frank Stubbsman, campaign manager for Lion Goodman, but on a recount, Lion Hughes was declared the winner. Judge Goodman had no statement to make following the election.

The newly elected tail-twister, in his acceptance speech, stated that he greatly appreciated the honor bestowed upon him, and that he would strive to fill the office to the best of his ability. He also stated that he held no grudge against his opponent or his campaign manager. Several followers of Hughes attributed his victory to his youth and beauty.

Hughes' platform, which doubtless gained him many votes, included the pension payment of $200.00 per month to all club members over 30 years of age. The platform also promised three cars in every garage in place of the two secured by Hoover. Goodman was running on a good looks platform.

Odessa Man Killed In Head-On Wreck

H. C. McGee, 44, Odessa, was killed almost instantly Tuesday afternoon when the car in which he was riding collided head-on about three or four miles east of Stanton with one being driven by T. V. Johnson, Lovon, Kansas.

Mrs. McGee, who was riding in the car with her husband, received a broken arm, broken leg and other injuries. She is however, expected to recover. She is in a hospital here. Johnson received only superficial injuries and is expected to be dismissed from a Big Spring hospital some time today.

A Midland man, W. G. Attaway, a telephone lineman, came by the scene immediately after the wreck, climbed a pole and put in an emergency call to Big Spring for an ambulance. Mrs. McGee and the body of her husband were brought here and Johnson was taken to Big Spring. The body of McGee was later taken to Odessa where it is being held pending funeral arrangements.

McGee was a driller for the Gulf Production Company and was residing in Odessa at the time of his death.

District attorney Cecil Collins announced today that driving while intoxicated charges had been filed against Johnson and will be served on him just as soon as he is dismissed from the hospital.

According to Collins, Johnson alleged that he was in Monahan's yesterday, and upon emerging from a beer parlor he discovered someone driving off in his car. He halted a passing car and asked them to pursue his own. He claims to have passed through Odessa and Midland, and still not sighting his car, the man with whom he was riding, one "Charlie", agreed to take him on the Big Spring in hopes of catching up with it. The wreck took place about four miles east of Stanton, and in the melee, Johnson alleges "Charlie" disappeared.

The car in which Johnson was riding was stolen and Collins reported the investigations were being pursued in an effort to clear up details of the accident not yet learned.

Everett Bowman, Grand Champion Cowboy Of The World, Not Expected To Win Levi Pants Offered To Losers At Midland Rodeo

Everett Bowman, of Tucson, Ariz., who arrived here yesterday to take part in the World Championship Centennial Rodeo, is holder of the "grand champion cowboy of the world" award, having won it with a total of 7,413½ points for last year.

Bowman competes successfully in all events, including all classes of roping, bronc riding, steer riding, bull dogging and such contests as may be staged at the various association rodeos.

The Rodeo Association of America, awarding the top prizes each year named Bowman first, Pete Knight second and Hugh Bennett third.

Addison Watley, Midland merchant who is donating prizes in the local rodeo, received an airmail letter today from Levi Strauss and Co., advising that the company gave to Bowman last year a check for $500 as part of his grand championship winnings.

The check, delivered at the annual La Fiesta De Los Vaqueros, Tucson, was two feet by four feet in size. Bowman received many other valuable prizes and purses by reason of scoring sufficient points to lead all cowboys of the world for the year.

Watley will give six pairs of Levi Strauss pants at the Midland rodeo to the "hard luck guys," those who break ropes, miss loops or otherwise stay out of the money.

"I'm not expecting Bowman to win any of these pants," Watley said.

ALRED ATTACKS NEW NOMINATING PLANS

PHILADELPHIA, June 24 (P)—Governor James V. Alfred of Texas declared today that he saw the possibility of the South becoming a "negligible factor" in selecting the party nominees if the two-thirds rule is repealed.

Declaring that the rule is the South's protection against "unfair apportionment," he said: "Abrogation in the future might make the South, which never fails to furnish electoral votes necessary for success, a negligible factor in nominating a candidate for which it is to vote. It might have a tremendous significance in the future, though it is of no importance at this convention."

BEHIND THE SCENES

-IN-

WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Reporter-Telegram Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 24—To a considerable—and perhaps even conclusive—degree, the presidential campaign will be a contest between the personalities of the candidates.

Platforms will be much the same. Landon's campaign managers are at least as shrewd as Roosevelt's.

The Roosevelt record is either a great asset or a net handicap, according to your views, and you either prefer it to Landon's record as governor of Kansas or you don't.

Under these circumstances, although it's to be remembered that the record of each man is the best indication of what he would do in the White House from 1937 to 1941, personalities become important.

The infectious smile of the gay and glittering Roosevelt will be opposed to the winning, friendly grin of the folksy, small town Landon.

The wealthy, patrician background of the "Squire of Hyde Park" will be opposed by the rugged setting of prairie, oil field, and Main street from which steps "the Kansas Coolidge."

This conflict with its possibilities for dramatization, plays a large part in the plans of Landon strategists and it already is causing concern in the New Deal camp.

The White House is being urged by close friends and advisors to tone down any further use by Jim Farley and Charlie Michelson of such expressions as "synthetic candidate," "man nobody knows, and typical prairie state."

Appeals to Small Towners It seems there are many small towns in the country, and although Landon is several cuts above the average man, his appeal to the average man is so direct that any personal, derisive attacks from Farley, who is widely regarded as a Tammany city slicker with no lofty ethics, aren't likely to do Landon any harm or Roosevelt any good.

The country is rapidly getting the picture of Landon—old-fashioned and homely virtues, warm and friendly small town manner, well-to-do family man who likes to go out fishing and walks down every day for lunch to a Main street cafeteria, commonplace but shrewd, enough hard-headed common sense—those sense if you like—to pay his own debts and his state's, the boy who sold eggs to neighbors at the age of 10, shirt sleeves and open collar on any hot day, office door always wide open to the folks, honest, thrifty, modest, kindly, tolerant, and so on.

Cite Kansas Virtues All that, along with the alleged virtues of Kansas—with a soft pedal on prohibition laws, anti-cigarette laws, and certain past or present peccadilloes—is the bill of goods which Chairman John Hamilton and his host, will be trying to sell the nation in the next few months.

It may go over well or it may flare back. Much depends on the skill with which the New Dealers handle it, and no one can tell.

The Landonites expect the candidate's personality and background to drag in votes of millions of farmers, city workers, and small town business men every where.

On the other hand, Roosevelt has exhibited as popular and appealing a personality as any man who ever parked in the White House. His charm is famous and his direct method of appealing personally to the masses of the people has been his greatest political asset.

Landon, by contrast—though he gets on well with small groups and has won the friendship of many visiting writers who have talked with him and perhaps raided the ice box at the governor's mansion at midnight—doesn't go well on the radio and has no gift for appearances before large crowds.

Play Up to Plain People The question is whether enough people will sour on Roosevelt's grin, glitter, and gusto to succumb to Landon by November.

Many former Roosevelt supporters are no longer captivated by the "my friends" technique, although it appears he still has the votes of most of the "plain people" whom both he and Landon will seek to charm.

Hamilton keyed part of the campaign in his nominating speech, when he pictured Landon as one who knew the workman "not from the information of others received in surroundings of luxury," a man of "property not bestowed on him, but gained through his own efforts," and a candidate of "no gilt, no theatrical dramatics, no overwhelming egotism, no self-righteousness, and no pretense of supremacy."

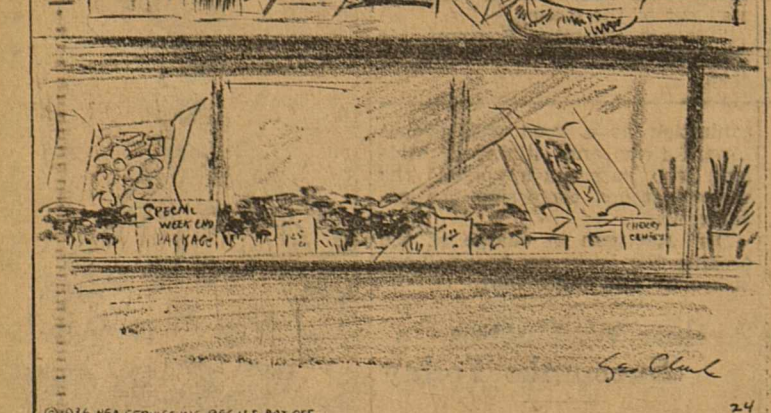

In any event, no one need get the idea that Landon—known as "fox" way back in university days—is dumb.

Cautious and opportunistic, he has missed few bets and pulled few if any boners. His political shrewdness may become as celebrated as Roosevelt's.

BLAME FOR HEADACHE PLACED LONDON, Ont. (U.P.)—The "morning after" headache is caused by spinal fluid, Dr. J. Milton Robb, of Detroit, told the Ontario Medical Association at its annual meeting here. He said alcohol promotes the secretion of the fluid, and either too much of it, or too little, causes headaches.

GLASS COFFIN ON VIEW FOR 12 YEARS; PROMINENCE IS SOUGHT AFTER DEATH

ST. LOUIS, (U.P.)—Joseph Marconnot, now 12 years dead, appears to have wasted some of his money. Marconnot, descendant of one of the early French settlers of Carondelet, Mo., lived a thrifty and lonely existence for many years so that he could afford to have his body mummified and placed on public view. According to his desire, the exhibition should be forever.

For more than a decade his body has been on view in a mausoleum in a St. Louis cemetery. It rests in a heavy bronze coffin before a glass window. But now relatives have decided that the curious have seen enough of it, and have closed the coffin.

Marconnot provided in his will for the preservation and exhibition of his body. He requested that it be placed on show only on Catholic fast days, but undertakers left the coffin open all the time, believing light was better than darkness for preserving the body.

Several influences are said to have shaped his course. Living almost alone, he often indicated a desire to create a stir and toward the end of his life, told one of his few acquaintances, "Nobody looks at me now, but after I'm dead I'll make the world come and see me."

When he died on Dec. 27, 1924, now papers were devoting much of the end of his life, told one of his few acquaintances, "Nobody looks at me now, but after I'm dead I'll make the world come and see me."

The recluses ordered that at least $3,000 be spent on his funeral, and the eventual cost was several hundred dollars more. He left an estate of about $70,000, mostly in property.

In the first years after his death, crowds of curious visited his tomb, but since then the throngs have dwindled to a point where relatives

WASHINGTON, (U.P.)—Single family and two family homes were largely responsible for the increase in home construction during March and April, according to the Federal Home Loan Bank Review.

An analysis of building permits reported to the bureau of labor statistics, revealed that one and two family houses accounted for 80 per cent of all dwelling authorized for construction during the two month period. Construction of apartment buildings to house three or more families amounted to only 20 per cent as compared with 33 per cent for the corresponding period last year.

States in the southeast and south led the country in April in rate of residential construction, the review said. The board's Los Angeles district, which includes Arizona, Nevada and California, led all other sections in construction with a rate of 51 new family units per 100,000 population. The Winston-Salem district, comprising the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Alabama, closely followed with a rate of 32.

Every district in the country, the board reported, showed an increase over the corresponding period of 1935. Small home construction in more was reported better during cities of 10,000 population and April than any month since May, 1931.

By NEA Service WASHINGTON, June 24—The cloth cap, wrinkled trousers and frequently unshaven face of William Lemke, who has chosen to run for the presidency on a new Union Party ticket, have been familiar in the congressional cloak-rooms since 1933.

They do not suggest the Yale and Georgetown doctor of law, nor the devotee of Chihuahua toy dogs and fancy gladiolas, nor even the former North Dakota University football captain—yet Lemke is all of these.

Persistence Personified For the last 20 years, the unsmiling and dogged congressman-at-large and plugged for his version of the ge from Fargo, N. D., has worked welfare of the "underdog." For the last two years, he has done almost nothing but buttonhole colleagues, urging them to sign his petition to bring to a vote the Frazier-Lemke bill to lift the farm debt by inflation.

Those colleagues who have been repeatedly buttonholed by the earnest Lemke to talk by the hour about his bill, call him "the most persistent man I ever saw."

Lemke is never seen in Washington's social world. He lives quietly in a suite in a first-class apartment hotel, but doesn't own a dress suit. Even White House receptions fail to draw him from the work or study which occupy his time outside congressional sessions. He abstains from drinking, chewing and smoking.

Life-Long Team Play The nominee of the brand-new party was born in Albany, Minn., Aug. 13, 1878. He had the usual common school education, and then went on to the University of North Dakota, where he was graduated in 1902.

But before he left, there was formed a partnership which continues to this day. It was with Lynn Frazier, co-author of the law which has been Lemke's sleeping and waking ambition for two years.

Lemke was captain of the university football team one year, Frazier another. Lemke is still a fan.

They went into politics together in the days when the Non-Partisan League was sweeping the northwest during and after the World War. When Frazier was governor, Lemke was his attorney-general. Now Frazier is senator, Lemke congressman from that state, and together they made their fight for the farm-debt bill.

Close to Townley Lemke had gone on and studied law at Georgetown University in Washington, graduating later with his doctorate from Yale. He was a member of Phi Delta Theta.

He returned, then, to Fargo, to practice law and five years later married Elizabeth McIntyre.

It was during this law practice, often as representative of farm organizations, that he met A. C. Townley, the autocratic leader of the rising Non-Partisan League. Townley swept across the Dakotas, Minnesota, and invaded Kansas, in a widespread farm "revolt" which caused many a jitter in the conservative east.

Soon Lemke was a member of the league's executive committee, holding the Republican state central committee chairmanship much of the time. He was elected to his present term on the Republican ticket, but this was merely a designation of convenience. He has voted for most of the New Deal measures, and campaigned for Roosevelt in 1932.

Drafted Radical Laws As attorney-general of North Dakota in 1921, it fell to Lemke to draft the most radical program of legislation a state had put in operation up to that time. It was a program establishing a state bank, state insurance, on its own public buildings, state bonding of its own officials, state grain elevators and flour mills.

It was the answer of the North

"The issue is economic slavery."

Dakota farmers to what they considered exploitation by millers, traders, and middlemen, their expression of general discontent and unrest. The program was bitterly attacked within the state and viewed with alarm in others.

Claims Rescued Lemke says the state bank is still in operation, has retired its bonded debt, and has saved vast sums to farmers in interest charges. The Mill and Elevator Association buys the farmers' grain, and turns out 3000 barrels of flour a day. The public insurance scheme, he avers, has showed a $4,000,000 profit despite a huge loss in the burning of the state capitol. The state insures farmers against loss by hail, and its bonding plan for state employees has an $800,000 reserve.

There is no use in having states if some of them do not experiment, are not different from the others, he believes. North Dakota fairly well demonstrates in action Lemke's beliefs as to what should be done by the nation.

Beaten but Undefeated Mrs. Lemke lives in North Dakota with a 16-year-old daughter, Mary. Two sons, Robert 20, and William, 24, are with Lemke in Washington, law students at George Washington University.

Typical of the persistent and plodding Lemke was his recent action when after two years' work to bring the Frazier-Lemke bill to a vote, it was beaten, 235-142.

The next day he re-introduced the defeated bill.

Prospects For Pecan Crop in State Poor

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP)—Prospects for a good pecan crop in Texas this year are decidedly poor, says J. L. Rainey, local pecan expert and official of the West Texas Pecan Growers' Association, but he believes production in this section will be among the best in the state.

"The crop in San Angelo and along to Concho River to Lake Nasworthy has a good start," Rainey said, "but above the dam the freeze of early spring did considerable damage. The crop over the state has prospects of being the lightest in years."

The case-borer has been doing some damage, Rainey said, caterpillars are damaging trees and nuts in some sections but have made little headway in this area.

A short crop will mean a better price next fall, he said. Prices have risen slightly recently due to the predicted light production.

As a pleasing variation from the round of afternoon parties, members of the Bridgette club and guests were entertained with a 9 o'clock breakfast and bridge at the home of Mrs. Kinzie Reese, 411 North A street, Tuesday morning.

The hostess chose a rainbow color scheme which was reflected in the rainbow asters and fern centering the foursome tables at breakfast and in room decorations of asters and roses, as well as in accessories for the games.

A two-course menu was served after which tables were appointed for bridge. Novel tallies were in the shape of teapots and cups and saucers in the pastel shades. Gifts were wrapped in rainbow tissue and tied with ribbons of the same shades.

Among guests, Mrs. Frank Stacy was awarded prize for high score and among club members Mrs. Don Davis scored high. High cut went to Mrs. A. E. Horst.

Guests were: Meses. Clint Lackey, J. R. Norris, L. A. Tullis, A. O. Thomas, Stacy and L. G. Mackey. Club members present were: Meses J. J. Kelly, Horst, E. D. Richardson, S. O. Cooper, Bill Van Huss, Don Davis, and the hostess.

Special Program For Week at Texas Univ.

AUSTIN—A program of special events this week at the University Centennial Exposition is headed by a reception given Sunday afternoon by Dr. H. Y. Benedict, president of the university, in honor of the 94th anniversary of the birthday of Major George W. Littlefield, who became one of the foremost benefactors of the institution.

The Littlefield home, at the north side of the campus, has been given to the university, and in it the president and other members of the faculty Sunday afternoon received relatives and friends of the late Austin banker and cattleman. A display of pictures and relics of the university history was open to the visitors, as well as the display of the drama division. Several hundred callers were received during the afternoon.

The second important public event is an illustrated lecture at the Open Air theatre scheduled for Thursday at 8 p. m. Dr. Eduard Micek, associate professor of Slavonic languages, will speak about Czechoslovakia—"A Country That Loves America." Entertainment programs will be presented at the theatre the other five week nights.

On Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights two demonstrations of the university planetarium and of the working model of McDonald Observatory will be presented in the Old Library building. On the other nights the student observatory atop the physics building will be open to visitors.

Lipstick red—a color which, no doubt, would have made conservative housewives fifty years ago lift their hands in horror—is becoming popular for kitchen color schemes. It is favored in particular for a bold accent to contrast with black and white.

Black has long been used in the kitchen—since the time of coal and wood ranges. With the advent of the less messy gas, color came into stoves and white became a prime favorite. Now, even the gas range is going black.

In a black-and-white kitchen red curtains and a few red dishes, with perhaps red in the linoleum, are clever touches.

Speaking of color, those reminiscent of the cattle country seem to be in vogue these days. For instance hose may be obtained in "chaps" or "saddle" color.

Cattle brands burned on leather make picturesque belts or are used in other ways.

A certain big store in Dallas is making determined efforts to launch into popularity a certain type of dress for the Centennial year called a "Cowboy Dress". It has a skirt out with a swinging flare, a bright silk blouse, a belt of the kind described above.

Somehow we fancy that it will be more popular with visitors than with natives of the state, though we may be wrong. To our sorrow, we often are.

Note of the phrase which is most popular with style ad writers in the big towns now: "whipped up" with white. And had you noticed that dresses are no longer trimmed in white or touched with white but "cooled off" with it or "iced" or "splashed" with it?

If we weren't too busy, we'd be miserable because of this heat scourge the last few days. But we can get excited over something and forget the weather—that being about the only time we do. This time the excitement has to do with vacations.

Wonder if any vacation was ever as wonderful as the dreams of it were? Anyhow we'll take a chance on the reality any time. For better or for worse.

WOMAN HOLDS ODD SPORT WRITER JOB

ST. LOUIS, (U.P.)—Mrs. Frank Goodwin, writer between 1892 and 1896 for the Cincinnati Tribune still remembers the trials of her early days as a pioneer sports writer in Cincinnati.

In the days when she went to work there, a woman sports writer was unheard of, but she managed to get the job and keep it until ill-health forced her retirement.

Talking to a young woman reporter of the St. Louis Star-Times, Mrs. Goodwin told how she was literally driven to take a job. She said her husband brought her and the young daughter West from New England, away from her family and friends. His job as sports editor was an advancement, but he worked at night and the young wife was alone much of the time and knew no one.

"I simply had to do something," Mrs. Goodwin explained, "so I became a newspaper woman. I didn't seem to fit in anywhere. I liked activity and people and excitement, but after all, I was just a woman, and you must remember that in those days, women were considered helpless, fluffly people."

Finally Offered Job
Mrs. Goodwin and her daughter were accompanying her husband to the office for several weeks before any mention was made of her working. The family had become well known around the newspaper plant before the owner, James M. Glenn suggested that she might try special assignments.

She did, but said she "just naturally gravitated toward sports." "Now, you know, there had never been a woman sports writer before," she said, "and at first everyone looked down his nose at me. I could feel an sometimes heard them say, 'Here comes the silly woman!' I just simply made up my mind that they should learn to like me."

"I assumed great indifference to strong language, smoking, drinking, whatever the men did. And it wasn't long before they took cognizance of the fact that I was a good fellow who did a good job. And after that I became great friends with the whole staff and they treated me as an equal."

"I was writing special features about all sports events, but I especially liked horse racing and bicycling."

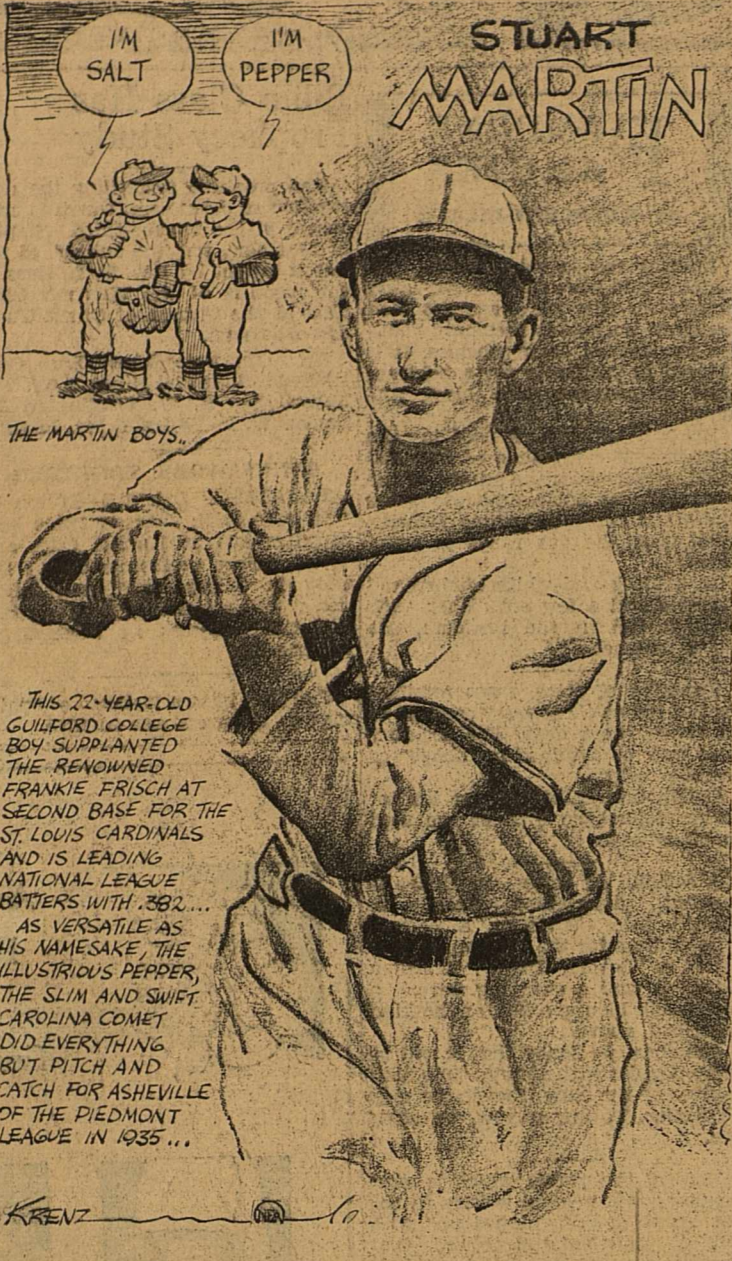

"Bicycling was a great fad, and I never see young girls riding today in shirts and shorts that I do not think of the uniforms we used to wear. At first the girls wore long skirts which were very cumbersome."

Cyclists "Most Daring"
"So a bicycling club was formed and a new and modern uniform came into existence. This consisted of blue alpaca bloomers worn below the knee, overhung with an ankle-length skirt. After some discussion it was also decided that the riders could dispose of the extra skirt once outside the city limits."

"Not long after that, a new and much improved uniform came into fashion. It was very much like the modern culotte, a divided skirt that reached about two inches below the calf. This was considered indecorous, but people became used to it, as they do to almost anything, even women sports writers."

"She was asked if she wasn't criticized by the public."

"I don't know whether I was criticized or not, to tell you the truth," she admitted. "I was doing something I liked and there was nothing wrong with it, and I knew that in a few years many women would be doing the same thing. I think there is a definite field for women in sports writing as well as anything else. They just simply see things that men don't see."

Firestone Placing New Tire on Market

After months of testing and factory preparation Firestone announced this week its new Standard tire, introduced to the public as the thrifty tire of 1936. It is a tire of first line quality, embodying all of the exclusive Firestone patented construction features, and at the same time offered at a price that marks a new era in economy for car owners.

For nearly a year, Firestone engineers, research and production men have been developing this new tire. In its construction they used only first grade materials and they designed a tread with more and tougher rubber in contact with the road to give long, even wear and anti-skid traction.

The famous gum-dipping process is used in the construction of this new tire. This method, which is exclusive with Firestone, adds eight extra pounds of rubber to every one hundred pounds of cotton cords, and not only provides greater strength but gives greatest blowout protection. Another Firestone patented feature embodied in this new tire is two extra layers of gum-dipped cords under the tread, assuring greatest cushioning and uniting the body and tread in one inseparable bond.

The new low prices at which this tire is sold, combined with its first line quality make the new standard the greatest value ever offered. Volume production, most efficient factory methods and equipment in the industry, and a distribution system, which has reached a new peak in economy made possible the savings which have been passed on to our owners.

The new standard tire can be obtained in all sizes for passenger cars, trucks and buses.

All fathers and mothers want their children to succeed and as long as they can, mothers and fathers the country over sacrifice and plan to give their boys and girls every advantage, every opportunity, for they want them to have a start which they too often were denied.

"We want to send Jim to college if we can afford it," they say. "We plan to give Mary special training in music if we have the money when she has finished high school."

But why should an IF threaten these dreams? A PRAETORIAN EDUCATIONAL POLICY can erase that IF and permit mothers and fathers to say positively, "MY CHILDREN ARE GOING TO COLLEGE." The Praetorians' plans offer a systematic way of saving. A little put away each month makes the education SURE. Investigate the Praetorians' Educational policies for children.

Oldest Conductor To Retire Within Year

HUNTSVILLE, Texas, (U.P.)—J. P. (Pat) Frank, 68, the oldest conductor in length of service on the Houston-Palestine division of the Missouri Pacific lines, will retire within a year.

"When I do," he declared, "I'll take time out to catch up on some of the fishing I've missed in recent years."

Frank has been here almost a year. He makes three round trips daily, 14 miles each, on the branch connecting Huntsville with the main line at Phelps.

"I took this when it opened several months ago and have been riding my pension." I was tired of the Palestine to Houston passenger run because there was too much night work, long schedules and detailed work.

Frank left the home farm in Tyler county in 1888 and began his rail road career as a brakeman on the Houston and Great Northern. In his early years he met Jay Gould, the New York financier. "Gould had bought the H. & G. N. when he was riding the international from Laredo to Longview and eventually changed the name to the International—Great Northern. He was a very nice, retiring sort of man," Frank said.

Frank was in charge of the private car of Sarah Bernhardt, the famous French actress on one of her tours through the state. "I wasn't much impressed with her as a woman," he explained.

"The crowds went crazy over her, however, although she spoke only French and her audience couldn't understand a word. I enjoyed her in 'Camille' which I read on the way down to take charge of her special. At that time she must have been 66 or 67 years old and we had to keep the crowds away during the day time when she had no make up on."

"Several years ago Miss Anne Morrow was on my train on her way to Mexico to meet her father."

"As I passed through she stopped me and said: 'Conductor, if you have a telegram for Miss Morrow we are in this (pointing to a door) compartment.' At that time her name was being coupled with Charles A. Lindbergh and the newspapers were featuring the romance."

"I had a telegram for her, so I said: 'yes, I've heard the name and here it is.' She accepted it with a smile. She was one of the sweetest little girls I have ever met."

The Huntsville-Phelps line the veteran conductor revealed, has had an educational value. The crew had to have a fourth to complete its domino game when the main line train was late. One of the brakemen who was slow at figures became so adept in counting he is now regarded the best player in the group.

Liquor Violation Fines In State Total $50,000

AUSTIN, (U.P.)—Persons convicted of violating Texas' liquor control act have paid approximately $50,000 in fines and court costs, the liquor control board reported after a survey this month.

Fifteen hundred, and sixty-nine charges had been filed up to the time of the survey. There had been 495 convictions and 21 acquittals, the board said. Two hundred and thirty-five cases had been dismissed and the remainder were pending.

The largest single fine was $1,000 and the longest jail sentence was 60 days.

Liquor revenue was augmented recently by $12,000 in excise tax payments from wholesalers in Houston, Dallas and San Antonio.

A solid content of only 10 per cent is contained by potatoes grown in Kayukuk, Alaska. Nothing remains but a tough skin with a white lining when they are cooked.

Copies of Early Day Maps Are Preserved

AUSTIN—Several photostatic copies of early maps that are significant and valuable in a historical way have been placed on exhibit at the University of Texas Centennial Exposition, and may be seen by summer visitors.

A photostatic copy of the Paris Globe, undated, but copied in 1528, is displayed. On the map the territory corresponding to the New England states is labeled Terra Francosa.

Another is the Delisle map, made in 1700. It marks the high point in American cartography up to that time. In it is a good delineation of the Great Lakes, Guillaume Delisle, the cartographer, was the royal geographer of France, and recognized as the best cartographer of his time.

Also may be seen the copy of the Coutino map of 1502, which was made for the Duke of Ferrara. It shows the latest discoveries of the Portuguese and Spanish up until 1502. It is said to have been made by an Italian in Lisbon.

Also on display is the copy of the Champlain map of 1612. It was published in "Les Voyages du Sieur Champlain" in Paris in 1613. In it the New England coast is correctly drawn for the first time. Another is the La Cosa map, 1500. It is the earliest map extant showing any part of the new world. La Cosa accompanied Columbus on his first voyage, and was the best cartographer of his time. The original of the map is in the Museo Naval, Madrid, Spain.

The Jesuit map of 1672 shows the Jesuit missions in the Northwest United States. It shows all of Lake Superior. Father Marquette is said to have been one of the authors of the map. It has served as a model for much later maps.

The De Soto map which was copied in 1544, and whose author remains anonymous, shows the line of explorations followed by De Soto and Moscoso from 1539 to 1543. It is the first map to represent geographically the interior of the United States. In Seville, Spain, the original will be found. With it a legend for Texas reads, "In these mountains there are silver mines." Buffalo are also mentioned.

Exhibited with the maps is the first atlas dealing with the New World. It was published in Seville in 1519; its author, Enciso, was Spanish.

These maps are part of a display prepared by the department of romance languages at the university. Their endeavor has been to show how the languages have been largely responsible for progress in the world. They achieve this through showing displays on history, the great masters of art, religion, cartography, transportation, education, archaeology, Spanish-American art, language teaching in Texas, modern art, art of living, and other items.

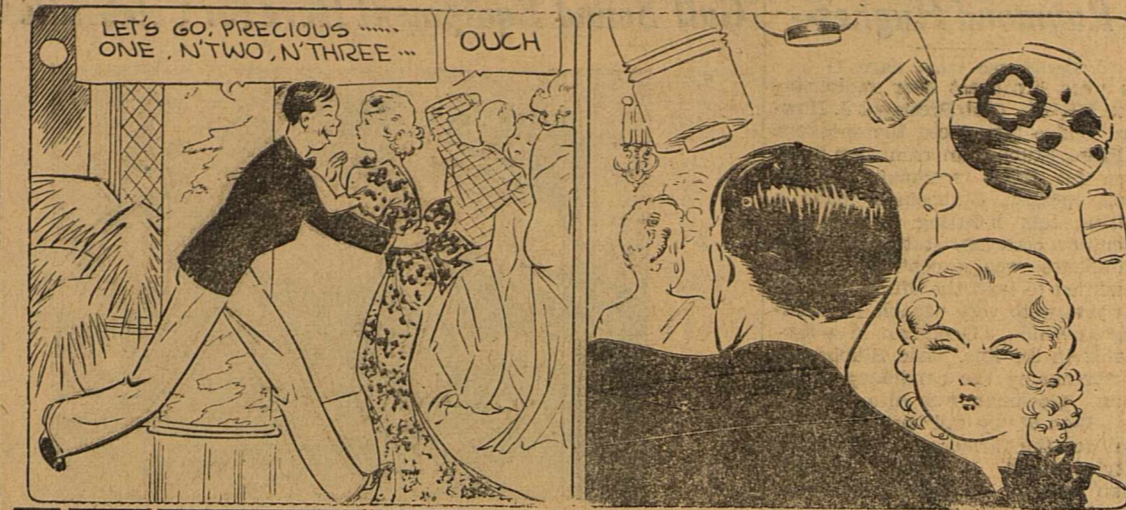

Guides are station about the campus to conduct Centennial summer visitors through the various exhibits.

SATURATED CORES IN GAINES TEST INCREASE HOPES

Landreth Kirk To Run Tubing For Another Swab Test

Recovery of only three feet of saturated cores from 4,789 to 4,806 and less than four feet from 4,806 to 4,816 from Landreth Production Company No. 1 Kirk has stimulated hopes that a new pool will be opened in south central Gaines county. Sections of the lime appeared to be very soft, and it was reported that only 20 minutes time was consumed in coring from 4,804 to 4,806; previously, while above 4,789, it had taken an hour to core a foot. The cores recovered were fragmentary, but showed much better porosity than was present farther up the hole. The well is now drilling ahead below 4,818 and is scheduled to stop at 4,820, where operators will pull the drill-pipe and run tubing for another production test.

When total depth was at 4,789, the Landreth wildcat was swabbed to bottom through tubing but showed no oil or gas. Operators then decided to go deeper before acid-treating the long series of saturated streaks. The encountering of a much softer section by the test has enhanced its prospects to make a commercial producer although very little free oil was showing up in the returns. The well is located eight miles northwest of the Means pool and ten miles southeast of the Seminole gas well. It is in the southwest corner of section 22, block A-21, public school land.

After drilling to 350 feet in red beds, Humble Oil and Refining Co., No. 1 G. H. Eubank, newest test to spud in Gaines county, set 13-inch casing with 200 sacks of cement at 317 feet. It is now waiting for the cement to set. Location is 660 feet out of the southwest corner of section 6, block AX, public school land, about eight miles northwest of the Landreth No. 1 Kirk.

Award Winner

Bette Davis continues to reign as the supreme screen sensation of 1936 by her portrayal of the "richest girl in the world" in "THE GOLDEN ARROW," her first role since winning the highest Motion Picture Academy Award for the "finest performance of the year." It is showing today and tomorrow at the Yucca Theatre.

YOAKUM WILDCATS ARE SHOWING PROGRESS

Progress is reported on the two wildcats now drilling in Yoakum county. Elliott Roosevelt and Lou Stogner No. 1 Googins in section 215, block D, John H. Gibson survey, has reached 2,200 feet. It was reported that some delay had been caused by trouble with the circulating pumps. The test is about 15 miles north and six miles west of the recent Honolulu and Cascade discovery on the Bennett ranch.

Six miles to the southwest, and 4 miles northwest of Plains, Bahan and Rhodes and Fitzpatrick No. 1 Alice Henard is drilling below 2,395 feet. It is located in the center of the southwest quarter of section 367, block D, John H. Gibson survey.

NEW WILDCAT TEST FOR NORTHWEST WINKLER

Arrangements have been completed for a new test in northwest Winkler county near the New Mexico line. It will be known as the Fields, Cherry and Finley No. 1 J. B. Walton and will probably be spudded around the first of July. Location is 2,310 feet from the south and 330 feet from the west line of section 3, block C-23, public school land. It is two miles north of the Leck pool and about the same distance south of the Continental No. 1 Eaves permit in Lea county, New Mexico, a gas well rated at 90,000,000 cubic feet per day. The well will be drilled with rotary in order to minimize difficulty should high gas flow be encountered.

Raymond Hughes--

(Continued from page 1) es were broadcast over radio station KRLEH. Club President J. Howard Hodge introduced the speakers. Frank Stubbeman, campaign manager for Judge Goodman, was the first speaker. Stubbeman made a stirring talk befitting to the momentous occasion, stating that his candidate was exceptionally well qualified to hold the office since all lawyers were very capable of twisting anything. "Goodman is a specialist in his line," said Stubbeman in advancing the candidacy of his man. Goodman was also pictured as a Lion of "up-tail" principal, who was for the farmers as well as the city dwellers. In closing, Stubbeman read a statement by Judge Goodman, who was not allowed to speak in his own behalf.

Claude Crane, who was in charge of Hughes' campaign, was the next speaker. Immediately preceding the address, Crane led the Hughes delegation in the singing of "I'll Be Glad When You're Dead You Rascal You". Crane, who stated that he was not so full of "hot air" as the opposing campaign manager, stated the Hughes platform and dwelt at length on its merits. The speaker stated that his man proposed a business administration, strictly enforcing the rules of the club. Hughes was pictured as a competent man by his campaign manager. A sketch of Goodman's life, which did much toward electing Hughes, was read by Crane. It was stated that Goodman once ran for dog catcher of Lubbock, being defeated by a count of 9,999 to 2. Numerous other incidents, none too flattering to Goodman, were related by the victorious campaign manager, who waged one of the bitterest battles of words ever staged in the state. Crane closed his address by stating that Goodman was in his dotage, while his candidate was young, ambitious and well qualified. Dr. J. B. Thomas also spoke briefly in behalf of Candidate Hughes, stating that he was young in years but rich in experience.

All in all it was a very interesting campaign and the club members got lots of fun out of it. IT WAS ALL IN FUN.

Early Day Pastor Speaks

Rev. Nat B. Reed, early day Midland pastor, who was a guest of the club today, made a brief talk in which he related many interesting early day incidents of this community. Rev. Reed, who is now a resident of Phoenix, Ariz., gave his impression of the city today in comparison to the Midland of several years ago. He recalled that when he left Midland, the old courthouse was the most imposing edifice in the then small town. All social gatherings were then staged in the court house, according to the speaker. Rev. Reed, who left here 28 years ago, was pastor of the First Methodist church when the present church building was erected. Mrs. Reed, the former Miss Jennie Curtis, the first young lady to come to Midland, is here with Rev. Reed on a visit. The speaker in urging all the young men of the community of today to take advantage of the many opportunities offered them, stated that they have fallen heir to much that came as a result of the efforts of the early day citizens of this community.

FELLOW CONVICT STABS AL CAPONE IN PRISON HOUSE

Al Capone was stabbed in the back and superficially wounded by a desperate fellow convict in Alcatraz prison Tuesday but the former Chicago gang overlord smashed his assailant with his fist and walked to the prison hospital.

The attacker was James C. Lucas, Albany, Texas bank robber. Federal authorities have termed as one of the most dangerous criminals in the United States.

Ill feeling has been reported between Capone and other convicts from time to time since the weird uprising of prisoners last January. Lucas, a leader in that fruitless movement, supposedly has been bitter against Capone because the latter refused to participate.

Warden James A. Johnston quoted Capone as having reported Lucas had begged him for financial assistance and had been refused.

Lucas also felt, Johnston said, that Capone had informed against him.

The Texas robber passing between the prison barber shop and the clothing shop, saw Capone in the latter place. Entering the barber shop, Lucas obtained a pair of scissors.

Johnston said he took the scissors apart, gripped one of the 4-inch blades and lunged 10 feet across a passageway to strike Capone in the back.

Capone wheeled and sent Lucas reeling with a fistful blow. A guard rushed in and separated the two.

The scissor blade penetrated the flesh to a depth of about a quarter of an inch and made a wound about an inch long.

Lucas was sent to solitary confinement.

Capone has achieved the reputation of being a model prisoner since being brought to the island prison in San Francisco Bay. He is serving a 11-year term for income tax evasion and his sentence will not expire until May 3, 1942. Only recently he was denied a parole.

Full Grandstand Only Requirement To Rodeo Success

"All we need now is to fill the grandstand," rodeo officials said today as details were being rounded up for the biggest show ever staged in this part of the country.

Brahmas, broncs, Chihuahua steers, roping calves—all these were filling their paunches on full feed at the fair grounds. Mares for the bareback bronc riding were grazing quietly a few miles from the city one additional lot of outlaw horses was rolling toward Midland. Nothing else needed to be done about the stock to guarantee the contestants would have their slayers and fat work ahead of them to get in substantially on the $3,500 in cold cash which awaited them at the bank.

Contestants, than whom there are none better in these United States, bided their time between the luxurious box stalls which are furnished them for their valuable roping and dogging horses and the down town streets. In addition to those who have been arriving for the past few days, there came today, Howard Westfall, Tom Taylor, Jim Massey, Person, J. D. Amburgey, Maynard Gayler and others who have roped, ridden and bitten dust before the crowned heads of Europe and the big-hatted heads of the west.

Cowboys and cowgirls from ranches and horse owners living on farms also were asked to be in the parade, whether planning to enter rodeo contests or not. Thousands of visitors, many from eastern points, will witness the spectacle, consequently a complete representation of horse owners was asked.

Trucks will be provided to pick up members of the two bands when they reach the Catholic church, giving them transportation to the fair grounds where music will be furnished in the grandstand during the afternoon and evening performances.

Joan Proctor, eleven year old daughter of Leonard Proctor, member of the official rodeo committee, was asked by the parade committee to ride the $100 prize saddle to be awarded in the cowgirl sponsor's contest.
