CONFLICT IN THE STATUTES PROVES PUZZLE TO CLERKS

Absentee Voting Now Legal But Ballots Not Certified

MEET SATURDAY

State Committee To Take Action In Convention

AUSTIN, Aug. 3. (P)—A conflict of statutes puzzled officials today preparing for the runoff primary August 22.

While absentee voting began legally today, the ballot could not be made up officially until August 8th when the state democratic committee meets.

Myron Blalock, committee chairman, said that he could do nothing about it. He said that some counties were printing ballots based on unofficial newspaper returns.

R. W. Hamilton, who was appointed county chairman of the democratic committee upon the resignation of J. P. Butler, was unable to be reached today by a reporter but both Butler and Susie G. Noble, county clerk, voiced the opinion that any Midland county voters desiring to cast absentee ballots would be forced to wait until after the state committee meets.

PAY LAST HONORS TO GREENVILLE 2 WHO DIED IN FIRE

Thousands Line The Streets As Pair Eulogized

GREENVILLE, Aug. 3. (P)—A pall of gloom spread over Greenville Sunday as thousands of citizens passed to pay tribute to two gallant firemen, W. R. Daugherty, 41, and Earl Jenkins, 35, who met death heroically in a fire that swept the WPA commodity warehouse here Saturday night.

Separate funeral services for the two men were held. Rites for Jenkins were held yesterday morning at the tabernacle in Caddo Mills, his former home. Rev. Marshall Masters of the Central Christian church here conducted the services, assisted by Rev. M. Shufflesworth and Rev. M. Hightower of Caddo Mills. Burial was in Caddo Mills cemetery.

Members of the Greenville fire department and friends bore his body to the grave, which was covered by a large floral offering.

Survivors are his widow and three children, his mother and several brothers and sisters.

Services for Daugherty were held in the afternoon at Central Christian church here, with Rev. M. Masters officiating, assisted by Rev. William Moffett, pastor of the Washington Street Baptist church. Burial was in the East Mount cemetery.

Surviving are his widow and four children, his parents and several brothers and sisters.

The long funeral cortege was headed by the Greenville fire chief and several comrades who served as pallbearers. Flowers banked the grave.

The men were trapped in the fire following an explosion. Both appeared at an iron barred window, crying in vain for help.

YOAKUM SHOWING IS ESTIMATED AT HALF-BBL. HOUR

Fishing Job At 5,327 Delaying Henard Wildcat

Later reports on the showing from 5,240 to 5,249 in Bahan & Rhodes and Fitzpatrick No. 1 Alice Henard, Yoakum county wildcat, indicate that the oil is live and amounts to approximately one-half barrel per hour. Before entering a soft lime section from 5,240 to 5,249, slight oil shows had been encountered from 5,215 on down. Bailing tests determined that water present in the emulsion was not coming from bottom hole formation. After testing, the well drilled ahead with no further shows and was reported fishing for bit at 5,327 feet in lime this morning.

A late report on the Bahan & Rhodes and Fitzpatrick No. 1 Henard states that it encountered sulphur water from 5,327 to 5,328, which rose 700 feet in three hours.

While the oil showing in the Yoakum wildcat is not large enough to be of commercial importance, it has served to draw back to the No. 1 Henard interest that had lagged because of its failure to show in the pay horizons of the Honolulu and Cascade No. 1 Bennett discovery 16 miles to the southeast.

The location of the No. 1 Henard is in the center of the southwest quarter of section 367, block D, John H. Gibson survey, four miles northwest of Plains. Six miles to the northeast, Stogner and Roosevelt No. 1 boogins, the only other active wildcat in Yoakum, is drilling red rock and anhydrite below 4,308 feet. It is in section 215.

Water Still Showing

Landreth Production company's No. 1 Kirk discovery in southern Gaines county apparently failed to shut off bottom-hole sulphur water by cementing back 15 feet from 4,870, bailing tests yesterday indicated. The well is now shut down, but operators will probably rig up standard tools and later run tubing with packer to determine the source of water. Since it is planned to shoot the well after shutting off water, the installation of standard tools will facilitate cleaning out after the shot. The No. 1 Kirk is located in section 22, block A-21, public school land.

Still making good time, Humble No. 1 C. H. Eubanks, Gaines wildcat eight miles northwest of the Landreth well, is coring lime today below 4,994 feet. Another drill-stem test, the fourth, will be taken some time today. Previous tests showed no oil, gas or bottom-hole water, only drilling fluid. The test is in section 6, block AX, public school land.

Gauges 1,242 Barrels

Twenty-four hour gauge on Sinclair-Prairie No. B3 Walton set the well's potential at 1,242 barrels flowing through open casing. It is 1,650 feet from the south and 2,310 feet from the east line of section 24, block 26, public school land, in the Keys or Kermit pool of Winkler. It was shot from 2,840 to bottom at 2,950 with 200 quarts of nitroglycerin.

Mid-Continent No. 3 Walton, will go down in the Kermit pool that blew 50,000,000 cubic feet of gas for several days before being killed, was cemented and abandoned when operators were unable to pull drill-pipe from the hole. A total of 1,350 quarts of cement was used in the plug and the No. 3 well blew out when it struck strong gas flow in sand at 2,522, and it was not until a bomb had been set off inside the drill-pipe that circulation could be restored. The well is 2,310 feet from

Has Been Secretary Of C of C Since September '34

Mrs. Carl W. Covington has submitted her resignation as secretary of the chamber of commerce here, a position she has held since September, 1934. Official action on her resignation has not yet been taken by chamber of commerce officials. She has accepted the position of business manager of the Midwest Hospital.

Mrs. Covington, who was assistant to Paul T. Vickers before he resigned as secretary of the chamber here to accept a similar position at McAllen, Texas, has been with the local chamber of commerce since 1928. She was elected to the position of secretary to succeed Vickers.

One of a few women to hold such a position in chamber of commerce work in the state, she has been active in phases of the work outside Midland. She was in charge of membership work in the West Texas chamber of commerce in this district, is a member of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Managers' association, and appeared on the program of that organization at its recent annual meeting.

She has been correspondent for a number of state newspapers and in such work has given Midland wide-spread publicity through numerous stories on oil firms activity and general news from this region. She has also had longer articles published in such magazines as WEST TEXAS TODAY and EPICENTURY.

Financial records in her office have been kept "very carefully" and "very accurately," according to Harry L. Haight, auditor for the chamber of commerce books.

A record of courteous service to local citizens and strangers in obtaining information, places of residence, and numerous other kinds of assistance has been maintained during her years in the organization.

A substantial gain in membership has been recorded by the C of C during the secretaryship of Mrs. Covington, and the budget for the organization has been materially increased. It was reported.

A successor to Mrs. Covington will be elected within a month, it is anticipated.

Miss Phyllis Haag, assistant to the secretary, will continue her duties.

NEW MEXICO GETS SECURITY GRANTS

Board Authorizes Aid To State for Blind And Dependents

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 3.—The Social Security Board has just authorized certification to the secretary of the treasury the following amounts for grants to New Mexico for the quarter ending September 30, according to telegraphic communication received by Oscar M. Powell, Regional Director, Saturday, August 1.

For old age assistance, seven thousand two hundred fifty dollars and fifty cents ($7,250.50); aid to the blind, ninety-six dollars and one cent ($96.01); for aid to dependent children, twenty two thousand nine hundred ten dollars and thirty-eight cents ($22,910.38).

"The foregoing amounts," said Powell, "for the aged and blind include 5 per cent for administrative expenses."

"New Mexico is the only one of the three states in this region which has had its plans approved for federal-state cooperation for all three categories of public assistance. Louisiana has passed legislation for aid to the needy aged, aid to the needy blind, and aid to dependent children, and in addition has passed legislation for unemployment compensation. However, these plans for Louisiana have not yet been approved. Texas has passed legislation only for old-age assistance."

KWANGSI TROOPS ARE DEFEATED IN CIVIL WAR BATTLE

Government Men Are Victors In Big Skirmish

GIVE ULTIMATUM

Regime Given 2 Days To Make Known Its Attitude

HONG KONG, Aug. 3. (P)—Central government troops defeated Kwangsi soldiers in a seven-hour battle, Chinese reports said today.

Central government leaders, meanwhile, sent an ultimatum to the Kwangsi regime demanding clarification of its attitude by August fifth.

Troops of the Nanking (Central) Government Sunday encircled Kwangsi in a show of force designed to bring the Province under its jurisdiction.

Four Chinese gunboats rode in the Hong Kong harbor awaiting developments.

No serious fighting had occurred, but a thousand Kwangsi attackers invaded Kwangtung Territory near Piencheng. They retreated after a brief skirmish.

Desertion of 1,500 Kwangsi militia was seen as seriously weakening prospects of the territory resisting the Nanking Government.

Kwangsi was reported depending heavily on the militia force for support.

Nanking airplanes flew over Kwangsi cities to drop pamphlets urging citizens not to sacrifice themselves for warlords.

TRADE BETWEEN GERMANY AND U. S. HURT BY DECREES

Are Reprisals For Treasury Action Against Nation

BERLIN, Aug. 3. (U.P.)—The German government Saturday issued two decrees dealing a heavy blow to trade with the United States, it was revealed Sunday. The decrees were issued in reprisal to the United States treasury decisions against German export subsidies.

The United States treasury order asked German exporters to reveal how much they benefited from government subsidies. Compliance with the order, it was pointed out here, would constitute high treason in Germany. Accordingly, the Nazi government decrees provided:

1. That the so-called aski marks may no longer be used for payment of exports to the United States.

2. That private barter transactions with the United States henceforth will not be approved.

The decrees became effective Monday but will not affect existing contracts.

The measures vitally affect trade between Germany and the United States because approximately 60 per cent of that trade has been conducted through private barter transactions or with the aski or blocked marks used for payment.

FRYAR RESIGNS POSITION HERE

To Accept Job With An Oil Company; To Move To Howard County

J. Harvey Fryar, for the last three years business manager of the Midwest Hospital and Clinic here, has resigned his position and will leave Midland during the next few days for Howard county where he has accepted a position with the Sinclair Prairie Oil company.

Fryar has been active in civic affairs here. He is a member of the chamber of commerce, being on the committee on young men's affairs of that organization. He is also an active member of the Rotary club.

As business manager of the hospital, he has been prominent in organizations pertaining to that work. He is one of the membership committee of the State Hospital association and a past director in the association. He is also a director in the district hospital.

When the Northwest Texas Clinic and Hospital Managers' association held its annual convention at Midland a few months ago, Fryar was in general charge of arrangements for the affair which drew a large attendance among those connected with hospital work.

He will be accompanied to Howard county by Mrs. Fryar and their baby daughter. They will probably make their home in Coahoma.

"Queen of the Trail Drivers" Portrait Is In Hall of the Famed

DALLAS, Texas.—A portrait of Mrs. Amanda Burks, "Queen of the Trail Drivers," whose leathery faced fellows who sent millions of longhorns across the unbroken Texas sod, today hung in the hall of cattle Kings at No. 1 Livestock building of the Texas Centennial Exposition.

Of forty-seven portraits of famous cattle barons of Texas to find a place of honor in the lounge, Mrs. Burks will be the only woman, according to Gus L. Ford who arranged this collection and also the collection of cattle branding irons and designs for the livestock section of the $25,000,000 World's Fair.

Mrs. Burks gained the title of "Queen of the Trail Drivers" when she made the long trek with her husband, William Franklin Burks, when he was in the cattle industry at Banquette, Nueces County. Following his death in 1877 on his La-Motta Ranch, thirty miles southeast of Cotulla, Mrs. Burks took over his affairs and continued in the cattle and ranching business almost to her death in 1931 at the age of 90.

Loyalists Prepare For Big Attack On Rebels

By Associated Press

In the seventeenth day of fratricidal war with reports indicating that assaults were progressing on the north and south central fronts, an agreement is imminent among France, Britain and Italy to let the peninsular nation settle its family squabbles alone.

It was regarded as a tacit guarantee that the peace of Europe for the moment was apparently successful in the French appeal to Britain and Italy to agree to a non-intervention policy.

Similar appeals are expected to be made Germany and Russia.

Barcelona advices said that the government was claiming the capture of Lazaida in a renewed drive on the Aragon front against the rebel stronghold of Zaragoza.

Loyalists gathered for a push against the rebels in the Guadarrama mountains above Madrid. The government said that it had complete control of Madrid.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Reporter-Telegram Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—President Roosevelt's order placing all patronage postmasterships under civil service is both better and worse— from the standpoint of the merit system ideal—than the administration-sponsored bill to similar effect which was beaten by republican opposition in the last congress.
Under the bill, democratic postmasters could have been blanketed into the civil service for life—assuming the democrats won the November election. If republicans won, the offices could have been thrown open to competitive examination.
Chief significance of the executive order is that it restores a similar order by President Wilson which makes mandatory the selection of the candidate with the highest rating in the competitive examination for the job.
Harding abrogated the Wilson order and gave the postmaster-general the choice from among the three leading candidates, which usually worked out so that a republican got the job.
Order Can Be Annulled
Chief weakness of the executive order is that it can again be abrogated and the first, second, and third-class postmasterships affected thrown back to the spoilsmen.
But Governor Landon has come out so strongly for the merit plan throughout the postal system that it is only fair to believe he would insist on retaining the principle of

Farley Riddle Hangs On
Inside tip: Some of Postmaster General Jim Farley's intimates are convinced that he will not keep his cabinet post—from which he is now on leave, handling the campaign—if Roosevelt is re-elected.
They say Farley wants to get back into business and make some money.
Inasmuch as Jim's current separation from the department came nearly a year after he first told people he was going to step out, and because it is well known that he would like to establish a reputation as a "great postmaster general," his present intentions are not to be accepted as a basis of absolute prophecy.

The STORY OF SPAIN

This is the second of four stories telling the historical story that lies behind the death struggle in Spain between discordant political elements, with brother killing brother in the streets.
BY WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
LIKE a rising sun, Spain flamed across the skies of the world from that year 1492 in which the Moors were driven from their country and Columbus opened a new world to exploitation.
Soon enough, gold began to come back from the Spanish Main and was piled on the wharves of Cadiz and Palos. Many a castle in Spain rose on this golden foundation as the conquistadores pushed their way into the Americas, Cortes to subdue Mexico, Pizarro conquering Peru, Coronado threading his way half way across North America in quest for treasure.
They left in their wake murder and blood and fire, but they also brought wheat, and the horse, and their religion to the Americas.
There was a boom in Spain. Prices rose, everything had to expand. Europe looked askance at the rise of a great first military power, much as it was to look later on Napoleon's legions and the German army of Kaiser Wilhelm II.
PERSECUTION ECHOS TODAY
But while Ferdinand and Isabella were planting the seeds of these things, they were planting other seeds, too, whose crop is still being harvested in Spain in the strings of burned churches and monasteries which smoulder in the wake of today's mobs whenever there is disorder in Spanish cities.
They were the seeds of religious persecution. Even before the days of Ferdinand and Isabella, the Christian Visigoth kings persecuted Jews and non-conformists. But under the great king and queen, religious persecution was elevated into a system and an unholo union of church and state by which each used the other to obtain its ends.
Isabella, liberal and conscientious in many ways as an administrator, was a religious zealot. While her armies stood before Granada, she issued an edict banishing the Jews from Spain. Perhaps 200,000 of them were driven out of the country to die miserably on the shores of Africa or to wander as outcasts through Europe.
THE BLOODY INQUISITION
But egged on still further by her priestly advisors, especially by the monk Torquemada who had been her tutor in youth, Isabella proclaimed his chief inquisitor under the order of Pope Gregory IX, who had named the Dominican order his chief instrument in extirpating heresy.
Torquemada made himself a name loathed for systematic and heartless appointing the man who passes with the highest mark.

If Roosevelt is re-elected, he unquestionably will keep the order in effect until such time as permanent legislation may be enacted. The order gives him the power to reappoint democratic postmasters—assuming they can pass non-competitive examinations—for four more years. Or he can name classified civil service employees in the postal service in case of vacancies.
On the other hand, he can call for competitive examinations as fast as terms expire or other vacancies occur. A republican president, if he were to preserve the order in force, would almost certainly insist on competitive examinations immediately as term expirations and vacancies occurred.
Pressure Was Terrific
Republican comments include the fact that Roosevelt could have issued his executive order at any time in the last 3 1/2 years and the charge that he has acted in the face of a strong public demand and a strong position taken by Landon.
All of which is true enough—and it's also true that no president has ever stood up under such congressional pressure for jobs as came early in this administration.
Harding knocked out the Wilson executive order under such pressure. In his case and Roosevelt's the frenzy for political jobs was intensified by depression and unemployment.
The counter-pressure of public opinion for the merit system, however, has become increasingly effective through the last 60 years. Harding's "raid", involving some 13,000 postmasterships, was a far harder blow to civil service than Roosevelt's.
The present president "unblanketed" from civil service protection about 300 employees of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce (Hoover's pet) and 170 at the Soldiers' Home in Johnson City, Tenn., which was utterly indefensible and a black mark on his record.
But he stopped there—and relieved the remaining pressure by letting plenty of deserving democrats into the new deal emergency agencies.

Marines Accepting 500 New Enlistments
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 3 (Special)—Information reaching here today from Lieut.-Colonel Tom E. Thrasher, Jr., officer in charge of recruiting in Los Angeles, states that the marine corps recruiting service is expected to enlist more men during the next three months than at any equal period for the past five years.
Due to the increase allowed the marine corps by the last naval bill, the sea soldiers find themselves 500 men understrength on June 1, 1936. This number will be enlisted from all parts of the United States, the Los Angeles office due to its proximity to the San Diego base will accept an unlimited number of young men for immediate enlistment.
Young men desiring to apply for enlistment who live in the vicinity of Los Angeles should call at room 309 Douglas building, 257 South Spring street. Those living in areas away from Los Angeles may write for particulars and examination papers to the above address.
The requirements for accepted applicants are: 18 to 28 years of age, in exceptional cases men will be accepted up to 30 years, at least a common school education, no dependents, of excellent character, 66 to 74 inches in height and be able to pass a rigid physical examination.
The marine corps has been keeping pace with the times, states Col. Thrasher, a young man entering the service today has an opportunity to complete one of the many courses offered free of charge by the marine corps institute, and with the physical training and experience that he receives with extensive traveling, he is better qualified to command a better position and salary upon reentering civilian life. Many young men leave the marine corps to accept positions as radio operators and aviation mechanics, also civil service positions are a great inducement to marines who wish to serve but one enlistment and prepare themselves with a civil service course from the marine corps institute, with the five per cent preference given to ex-service men they are in a very favorable position to receive an early appointment.

Home Debating Leads Girl, 24, to Politics
ST. LOUIS, (U.P.)—Miss Patricia Prandergast, 24, tall and dark with curly hair, was spurred toward politics by discussions around the family table. She is one of 12 children and a candidate for the Democratic nomination as representative in the state legislature.
The family round table idea also impelled her toward favoring the one house legislature idea, such as has been established in Nebraska.
"You should see us," she said, "sitting around the table night after night arguing the pros and cons of politics. We all have different ideas and—well, you see there you have proportional representation. Think what a hard time a bill would have getting through it we were the legislature."
Patricia's father, Edward Prandergast, a member of the city administration, is her campaign manager.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 3—Ask any American Leaguer what club has the best chance of overhauling the New York Yankees and he will unhesitatingly tell you, "The Cleveland Indians."

Can it be that the Tribe is to fulfill all the rosy predictions of the past three seasons?

Steve O'Neill has the hottest array in either major wheel right now. Apparently hapless relegated to the second division and 13 games behind the Ruppert Rifles, the Red-men launched their second eastern swing at Yankee Stadium on July 9. Their home stand had been none too successful and they had been a notoriously poor road squad for years.

So it was that their bagging nine straight and 10 of 12 on the Atlantic seaboard attracted no little attention. And now that they are back in League Park, with all hands drawing beads on the short right field wall, anything can happen.

A vote of confidence for O'Neill in the form of another year's contract may have something to do with the Injuns' spurt.

Cured of a threatened attack of stomach ulcers, which caused him to awake nights last season, Hal Trosky, again, is making the pellet at the gait which prompted Connie Mack to nominate him as Babe Ruth's successor in 1934. The big Iowa blond is leading both major loops in the highly important matter of driving in runs.

Healthy Pytlak Gives Indians Clever Catching

Earl Averill is well on his way to collecting a bonus for a "satisfactory" batting average which is now .363, and has batted in more runs than any other center fielder in the junior circuit.

Frankie Pytlak, apparently no longer worried about the mysterious ailment that drove him to quitting the outfit the past two summers, is catching, hitting, throwing, and running the bases like the Ray Schalk he promised to be. Billy Sullivan, who can sock that agate, is around to give the majors' smallest backstop ample relief, and to act as a superlative pinch hitter.

Mel Harder, up to 180 pounds now, tops the wheel in number of games won. He is being ably assisted by fiery Johnny Allen and Oral Hildebrand and Theron Lee, the latter two potential stars; Dennis Galehouse, a well seasoned recruit who "arrived" with the hot weather, and George Blaeholder and Lloyd Brown, crafty old heads. In the bullpen is Willis Hudlin, for whom the Boston Red Sox offered $30,000.

Others have contributed to the Indians' sudden reversal of form. Joe Vosmik once more found the range. There is the polished Bill Knickerbocker at shortstop and the improved Bud News Hale at third base. Roy Hughes plugged the gap at second.

Weatherly Supplies That Extra Punch
But it wasn't until a squatty 21-year-old kid checked in from New Orleans that the Redskins commenced to click. The effect that Roy Weatherly has had on the Indians is a striking example of what one inspired athlete can do for a ball club.

Cy Slapnick, the old pitcher who is business chief of the Indians, sent for Weatherly, a left-handed hitter, when things were at their worst. Jimmy Gleason, also up from the minors and who started the season, wouldn't do in right field. Due to his desperate illness, Bruce Campbell could not stand the steady grind.

Weatherly, who is reminded of Joey Sewell at the plate, would have been along sooner had he not had a small bone in his left arm broken by a pitched ball in the Southern Association.

'Trench Mouth' Is Highly Infectious

AUSTIN. — "Trench Mouth," known scientifically as "Vincent's infection" of the mouth, is a germ disease and highly infectious. It became so common during the World War and incapacitated so many soldiers as to have earned the name "Trench Mouth."

"This disease is transmitted in the same manner as a cold; that is, by direct contact with mouth of an infected person or indirectly through the use of insufficiently cleaned utensils, dishes, glasses, and other articles that have been used by persons who have the disease," said Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer.

"While 'trench mouth' may occur as a mild infection, it can, and often does, develop into serious illness. It occasionally ends fatally. Neglect of the hygiene of the mouth and teeth makes the mucous membranes of the gums and throat a favorite breeding grounds for the organisms causing this disease. It can be prevented by keeping the mouth and teeth clean and in a healthy condition and avoiding the use of articles that may carry the disease germs.

"The early symptoms of 'trench mouth' usually include dryness and burning of the gums and throat. Later symptoms include bleeding and sore gums, bad breath, and mouth ulcers. As any of these conditions may be due to some other cause, a dentist or the family physician should be consulted promptly. If diagnosis is made and treatment started early, it is possible to check this infection before it develops into a severe form."

Print in Popularity

FEMININE FANCIES

BY KATHLEEN EILAND

Hot as the days are, we can still, believe it or not, enjoy looking at the new fall clothes which are beginning to attract attention in the shops.

Two piece affairs and tunic effects seem in high favor and as we have noted before in this column, sleeves with fullness at the top giving a quaint effect.

There is, for instance, a spruce-green crepe, which is dark green (the explanation is given in case the reader is not more of a forestry expert than the writer.) A cluster of suede—yes, suede—flowers in rust color blends nicely with the general color scheme.

But the dress that we really became enthusiastic over was, naturally, one that wouldn't look well on us at all. A rust-colored velvet tunic with buttons down the back and tricky front ornamentation was posed above a brown skirt. And if there's anything much rickier-looking than rust-color velvet we don't know what it is.

Wonder why the books we want to read most are always in the rent collection at the library? We've about decided that there's such a thing as a "split personality" and that the part of us which controls our wishes is a very perverse person.

No matter how very independent and straightforward and adult one learns to be, there is nothing quite so soothing as to go back home once in a while and have one's family treat one like a child—and a petted child, at that.

At The Library

New rent books now on the shelves include:

"Whippoorwill House" by Louise Platt Hancock. A tender story of young love, written in Mrs. Hancock's brightest style. Has not appeared serially in any magazine.

"Beyond Sing the Woods" by Trygve Gulbransen. A charming, old world story of the house of Bjornald, the men and women who lived there, and the ultimate growth of Old Dag to the realization that the Lord, indeed, desires to withhold vengeance as His own. "A novel far out of the ordinary. It is a real experience to read BEYOND SING THE WOODS." N. Y. Herald Tribune.

"Waterloo" by Manuel Komroff. "And so here ends the record of the last desperate stand of the world's greatest dictator." So closes Komroff's vivid, colorful and stirring account of the gathering of the French and British forces for the historic battle of Waterloo. Napoleon's last meteoric stand is brilliantly depicted and at the end, we leave him as we found him at the beginning—a nextle.

"Give Me One Summer" by Emilie Loving. A delightful story of the Maine Coast where Alexander Carson comes to claim his aunt's estate and finds Melissa Barclay who cared for the aunt until her death. He knew he wanted her 'on sight' but developments were slow and flavored with mystery, providing plenty of excitement for the reader who is, of course, well pleased with the result.

"Gone With the Wind" by Margaret Mitchell. A novel of characterization placed in Georgia during the Civil War and the Reconstruction period. It is the story of young Scarlett "Hara, selfish, willful, magnetic, and daring, and of the people and events in her life. Beared in comfort, the war brought suffering and hunger, and she determined to have security and wealth again at any cost. Friends and men who loved her were used to further her ends, but she finally paid a high price for her success. Long, but never lessurely; a swift-moving, absorbing adult story about living people." New York Times says: "This is beyond a doubt one of the most remarkable first novels produced by an American writer. It is also one of the best."

"The Magnificent Hoax" by E. Tery story. "The Doctor" bsecurity tery story.

"The Doctor" by Mary Roberts Rinehart. Having completed his training, Noel Adren starts to build up his own practice. Specializing in surgery, he rises to the peak, maintaining the high ideals of his profession. Through his efforts to aid a shiftless family, Dr. Adren's professional life becomes so affected that he cannot marry the girl he loves. But he solves the problem in line with his ideals. A character which the readers will respect and admire.

"Mother of the Bride" by Alice Grant Rosman. By setting her story in the midst of the preparations for a wedding, the event itself, and the aftermath, Alice Grant Rosman has chosen what is unquestionably one of the most appealing emotional situations. There is nothing like a wedding to bring the feelings of all involved—father, mother, daughter, brother and friends—to their highest pitch; and it is under this dramatic tension that the story of a mother and father who had forgotten what their own marriage meant reaches its climax.

"The Featherleys" by Virginia Watson. This story of a Virginia family follows the fortunes of the Featherleys from the earliest ancestor—Ralph Featherley, an English gentleman—1642 to the present time. Through all the stirring events of Virginia history, the family is eminent until after the Civil War when Peyton Featherley is forced to sell Plumehurst, the home of his ancestors. An evident love of Virginia, and a knowledge of its history on the part of the author, have created a sincere, worthwhile book.

FIRST CZAR OF THE BULGARS

GREEK culture had stood young Simeon, son of the Bulgar King Boris, in good stead, and so, when he ascended the throne of Bulgaria in 893, he brought Greek learning to the Slavs. He even helped translate Greek writings for the benefit of his people.

But Simeon went further, in an effort to increase the power and prestige of Bulgaria. He fought back the Greeks. He chased the savage Magyars across the Danube. And he extended Bulgar territory to the greatest limits in his history.

Not content with military supremacy, Simeon freed the Bulgar church from Greek dominance, and set himself up as "Czar of the Bulgars and Autocrat of the Romans (Greeks)." Bulgar power was at its highest when Simeon died in 927, but his son Peter could not carry on his policies. Instead, he sought peace with the Greeks, revolt spread, and the empire Simeon had built began to crumble.

A profile of the great Czar Simeon appears on one of the stamps of Bulgaria, issued in 1929 to commemorate the millenary of his reign.

Morgan Is Shipshape Again

Just a few weeks ago J. P. Morgan was carried from his private car, unable to walk because of neuritis. Here you see him going up the gangplank of his palatial yacht "Corsair" at East Island, N. Y., under his own power, apparently completely recovered. He's headed for cruise to England.

Irene Dunne's Versatility Highlights "Show Boat" With Vibrant Portrayal

An exceedingly versatile Irene Dunne is seen in Universal's "Show Boat" now at the Yucca theatre. Heretofore Miss Dunne has been described as "charming" and "patrician." She gained these attributes with her performances in "Cimarron," "Back Street," "Roberta" and "Magnificent Obsession."

Now she will also be known as provocative, mirthful, almost mercurial. Irene Dunne proved in "Show Boat" that she could make a dramatic scene throbb with dynamic force.

Then she went beyond that. She gave her songs the thrill of romance in her sequences with Allan Jones. She took on the personality of a winsome blonde dancer in the show boat scenes and sent a banjo over hurdles of harmony in the bar-gain.

But the greatest surprise was her appearance as a modern Topsy. In blackface with kinky hair and shuffling steps, Irene showed a new ability as an actress. She out-topped Topsy. She danced with carefree abandon, played music that vibrated like jungle drums. She sang and scampered, leaped and laughed like an imp on the golden stair as she presented the gay number, "Gallivantin' Around."

Miss Dunne said of her "Show Boat" role, "It was such a satisfaction, doing Magnolia on the screen, after I had played it on the stage. The film script gave me new opportunities to carry the character beyond the period of the original production."

Barbers' Patience Exhausted

EUREKA, Cal. (UP)—Barbers in Eureka have reached the point where even the worm turns. They were silent while the citizens grew competitive beards for the celebration of the "Days of General Grant" festival. Now that the festival is ended the barbers insist the beards should come off. But men have discovered that it is more economical not to shave.

looks a thousand times better than an eighty-five dollar one that should be at the cleaner's.

Remember, too, that, especially in summertime, hats and shoes should be aired inside and out occluded to freshen hat bands. Always put shoe trees in your slippers and don't forget about wiping them carefully. Also, keep an eye on the leather lifts of shoe heels. It's a mistake to wear them a single hour after they begin to look rundown.
