State Property Tax Is Again Set At 62 Cents

Labor Target

A request that Governor Landon investigate alleged "coercive tactics" against union organizers by the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation, at Alquiapa, Pa., the firm for which Landon's uncle, William T. Mossman, above, is public relation counsel, has been made by Phillip Murray chief of the steel organizers. Murray suggested that Landon owed it to himself to reiterate his labor stand there.

VALUATION KEPT AT SAME RATE AS FIGURE FOR 1935

General Revenue Tax Again 35 Cents, Maximum

SCHOOLS' SAME

20 Cents Remains As Rate, Announces Officials

AUSTIN, Aug. 4. (AP)—The automatic tax board today set the state property tax at 62 cents on the $100 valuation, the same as last year.

The rate of the general revenue fund was set at 35 cents, the confederate pensions at seven cents, both constitutional maximums.

The available school rate was set at 20 cents, the same as last year but not the constitutional limit.

The levy for schools was reduced from its constitutional limit of 35 cents to 20 cents last year because of large income from special taxes such as those on oil, gasoline, cigarettes, beer and horse racing.

The tax board consists of Governor Allred, Comptroller George H. Sheppard and State Treasurer Lockhart.

Anderson, adviser of the governor on tax measures, and Lockhart said they did not believe an increase in the school tax rate would be necessary. Sheppard said he hoped the board could avoid an increase.

Representatives of certain property taxpayers groups have contended the board is required only to levy a tax sufficient to pay a per capita apportionment of $17.50. The board may discuss that contention.

She claimed to know nothing of his death.

PLUGGING TODAY IN YOAKUM WELL

Henard Test Abandoned At Total Depth Of 5,328

By FRANK GARDNER
The Yoakum county test of Bahan & Rhodes and Fitzpatrick No. 1 Alice Henard is being plugged today and will be abandoned. It has been announced. Hopes of production in the wildcat were dashed yesterday when it struck sulphur water at the rate of 700 feet in three hours from 5,327 to 5,328. An oil showing from 5,228 to 5,240 which increased to an estimated 10 barrels per day from 5,240 to 5,249 had, for a time, revived interest in the test, but operators decided that the nine-foot pay section would not be of sufficient value to warrant shooting or treating with acid. An estimated 100,000 cubic feet of gas per day was present with the oil.

Location of the failure is four miles northwest of Plains in the center of the southwest quarter of section 367, block D, John H. Gibson survey. It failed to show anything in the pay horizons of Yoakum's only producer, Honolulu and Cascade No. 1 Bennett, 16 miles to the southeast.

ICKES DRAWS 'DEADLY PARALLEL' ON PRESENT, PAST Landon STATEMENTS

Says 'Candidate AWOL From War Against Poverty Since 1933 Enlistment'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4. (AP)—Secretary Ickes drew Monday what he called "a deadly parallel" between present and past statements by Governor Alm M. Landon, and said it appeared that "Candidate Landon has gone A. W. O. L. from the war against poverty and want and the exploitation of the weak in which he enlisted in '33."

The Roosevelt cabinet officer, in a radio address entitled "Governor Landon—'Practical' Progressive," in which he criticized such a designation discussed what he termed Landon's altered oil regulation views.

As presiding officer at an oil conference at the interior department here in 1933, Ickes said, Landon declared for "the iron hand of a dictator" unless the industry could solve its problem within 90 days. In his acceptance speech last month, Ickes added the Kansas governor declared against government regulation of industry.

The interior secretary said Landon praised "the courage with which President Roosevelt has attacked the depression," in his 1933 speech at the oil conference. He

HIGHWAY GROUP TO HOLD CONVENTION

Broadway of America Delegation Meets In Texarkana

DALLAS, Aug. 4. (Special)—Plans have been completed for a convention of Arkansas and East Texas towns on the Broadway of America, to be held in Texarkana August 24.

The first meeting of this kind was held in Colorado, Texas, for the cities between Dallas and El Paso. It was a great success. The smaller meetings bring the problems of the association closer to a large number of people than the national convention is able to reach. It is hoped that every town and city between Dallas and West Memphis, Ark., will have a delegation at the meeting.

With the centennial expositions of Arkansas and Texas in full swing, and the California international exposition as a lure for western traffic, the Broadway of America is enjoying a very heavy movement of tourist traffic.

The Pan-American highway from Nueva Laredo, Mexico, to Mexico City was officially opened July first. The road is in splendid condition, with the exception of a few miles where construction work is still under way. High officials from the United States and Mexico formed a motorcade at Nueva Laredo and drove to the Mexican capital. This road in the opinion of many, will be one of the greatest tourist lures on the continent for the next ten years. The Pan-American uses the Broadway of America, from Dallas to Texarkana over highway 67.

Plans for the meeting are as follows: Sessions at 2 p. m. and 8 p. m. on Tuesday; sessions at 9 a. m., 1:30 and 8 p. m. on Wednesday. Tuesday's program will include a grand parade at 6:30 led by the high school band under the direction of Joe Berryman, a swimming party and sunrise breakfast and on Wednesday there will be a luncheon at the Stockton hotel at noon. Both evening sessions will be open to the public.

Featured in the meeting will be a welcome address by Mayor Ben A. Owen, introduction of visiting officers, talks by the officers, junior graduation, a memorial service, a swimming party at Comanche Springs, initiation of candidates, exemplification of the ritualistic work, a question box, regular business, election and installation of officers, a scenic drive and a pageant at the ball park in which members of both the Woodmen Circle and Woodmen of the World will take part. Also numbers by Mrs. Ben Deason's School of Dancing from San Angelo.

The Blue Bonnet degree team of San Antonio and one from El Paso and the Fort Stockton junior team are scheduled to take part.

Mrs. Rooney is chairman of the local committee on arrangements.

Members of the local Odd Fellows and Rebekah organization report that plans for the entertainment of the association are complete and invite the public to attend the programs for the morning and afternoon at the High School Wednesday.

The program in detail follows: Call to order, 10:00 o'clock, Midland High School. Seating of officers, by Duke and Duchess. Presentation of colors and Bible, C. O. Fuller, Mrs. Bertie Mitchell. Opening song. Invocation by Chaplain, Mrs. Leota Johnson.

3 Trade Journals Are Also Charged By Grand Jury

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 4. (AP)—United States District Attorney John Boyle announced Monday a federal grand jury had returned indictments against 23 major oil companies, three trade journal publishing companies and 58 individuals charging violation of the Sherman anti-trust act.

The indictments were the result of an extensive investigation by the special federal jury into a complaint of the National Oil Marketers association that major companies were attempting to "squeeze" independent dealers out of business. Boyle said the names and identities of the defendants were being withheld until warrants are served.

Boyle said the specific charges are that the defendants "combined and conspired," beginning February 1935, and continuing to the present, to increase and fix prices of gasoline sold in interstate commerce, mainly in ten states of the middle west.

The grand jury's report, made to Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone, was a partial one delivered to the court July 28 and not made public until today.

The jury meantime has recessed until August 19 when Boyle said the investigation would be resumed.

Previous to the July 28 recess the jury had returned another indictment against William A. Tracy of Fort Worth, Texas, bulk sales manager of the Sinclair Refining company, charging perjury.

Boyle said that the 24 defendants were named in a single true bill charging that gasoline prices were manipulated by means of two concerted buying programs or pools, one operating in the East Texas and the other in Oklahoma and the nearby Mid-Continent fields.

The indictment charges, Boyle said, that the defendant companies acted in concert to purchase large quantities of gasoline in spot transactions at artificial prices which are maintained from independent refiners at a going market price.

LABOR TRIAL IS STARTED MONDAY

Lewis and Leaders Fail To Appear; Green Sure Trouble to Develop

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4. (AP)—Trial of the industrial union faction of the American Federation of Labor on charges of "insurrection and rebellion" began Monday with William Green, federation president, expressing diminished hope for a peaceful settlement.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and 11 other big union leaders who contend that all the workers in each big industry should belong to one big union, failed to show up when the federation's executive council started the trial on charges preferred by John P. Frey, president of the metal trades department.

Green, spokesman for the faction which argues highly skilled workers should belong to the union of their craft no matter where they work, told reporters this failure to appear dimmed his hopes for peace.

Report German Ships Are Received By Rebel Chief

By Associated Press
Heavy firing in the Guadarrama mountains north of Madrid today beckoned another, perhaps critical, assault by Fascist insurgents on the gateway of Spain's capital as London and Paris experienced new pangs of anxiety over the maintenance of European peace.

Fears in some French quarters of another European war were felt because of reports that offices of two German warships anchored off Ceuta, Spanish Morocco, had been received by General Francisco Franco, generalissimo of the revolution. The French anxiety was "duly noted" by the British foreign office, it was authoritatively stated in London. The hub of the situation apparently lay in the attitudes of the German and Italian governments. The German government is yet to be approached with the French proposal of non-intervention. Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy has not yet replied to the proposal.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Reporter-Telegram Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4—Democrats planning to meet in Detroit Aug. 7 to express their detestation of the New Deal will not include holders of public office or those who recently enjoyed the suffrage of the voters.
Whether there is any significance in that or any reason for belief that Al Smith, Governor Ely of Massachusetts, and ex-Senator Jim Reed of Missouri have lost their old popular followings—it is a thought which arises in connection with the fact that the New Deal has been conspicuously successful this year in most democratic primary elections where its prestige, its favorites, or its enemies were involved.
Numerous pro-New Deal members of congress have been renominated more or less automatically. In 20 state primaries involving 213 house seats, only 10 members have been defeated for renomination. And only one lone senator, Tom Gore of Oklahoma.

Luck Still With F. D. R.
The point is, however—if it is a point—that in fights where candidates have been outstandingly identified with the administration and its legislation, and special attacks were made upon them, and in contests where the democratic incumbents similarly have fought the New Deal to where they were cordially hated in administration ranks Roosevelt had had the breaks.

Gore, of course, played the role of gadfly in Washington, loud in his contempt for newfangled legislation and constantly censorious of its administration. He will be succeeded by someone definitely more

Still another successful New Deal congressman who pulled through in the face of a hard fight was Congressman David Lewis of Maryland.
It would be easy to over-estimate the significance of these primary results insofar as it may apply to the presidential race. Except in the case of Lewis, these victories occurred in states where Roosevelt's plurality in November is a foregone conclusion.
What they do indicate is that, if Roosevelt is re-elected, he may have much the same nucleus of loyal supporters in congress which he has had before. That suggestion must be qualified, however, by the fact that Senator Costigan of Colorado had to retire because of physical collapse, and that Senator George Norris of Nebraska may or may not be re-elected as an independent.

This is the third of four stories telling the tragic history of Spain, giving the background of today's bloody internal warfare.

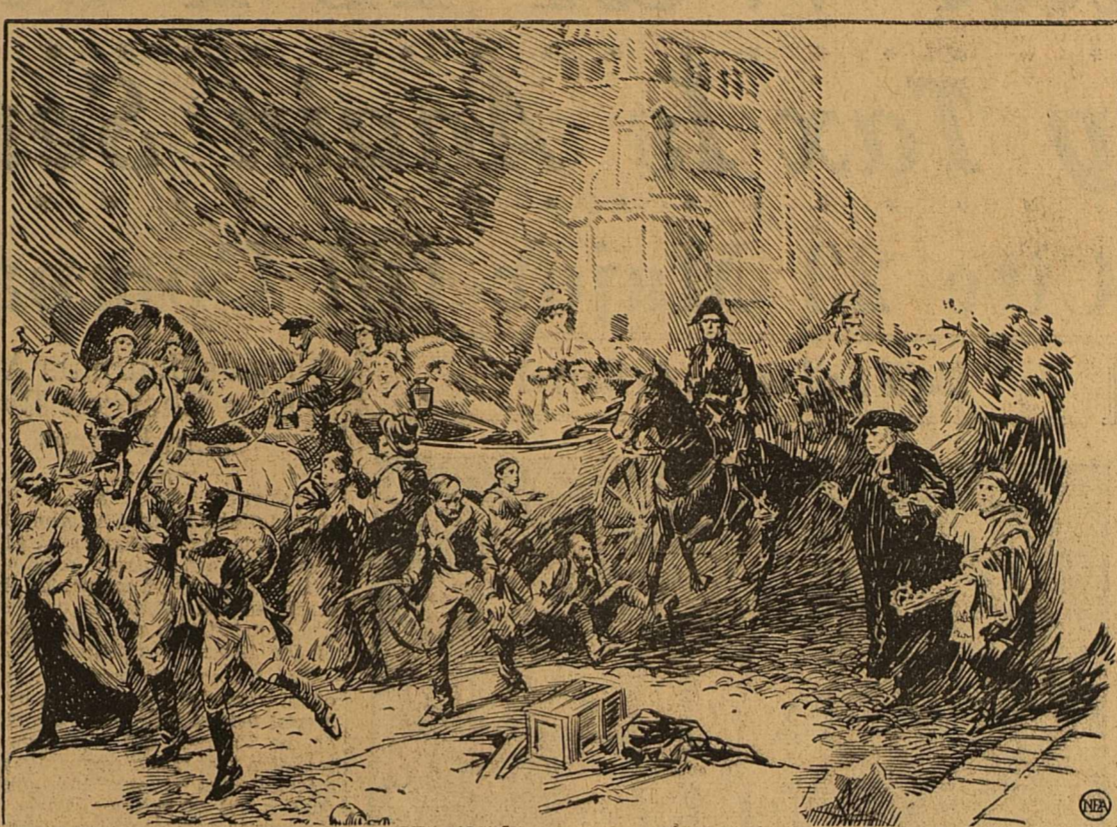

BY WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
Though direct downfall did not follow the defeat of the great Armada, Spain declined from that day. It was a hollow shell, with venal and incompetent officials, stupid and bigoted rulers, and a people whose every effort at industrial or agricultural progress was thwarted by taxation and a stifling bureaucracy.
The Hapsburg emperors used the country as a pawn in the European diplomatic game; domestic government was weak and tyrannical at once. A rebellion in Catalonia, which even today maintains great pride of locality, was savagely suppressed. Portugal fell away without a fight, for when the Brazagans took charge there, the Spanish crown was engaged in a fight with the French. Naples revolted, and the Thirty Years' War took a dreary toll of Spanish resources. Continual and bitter warfare was necessary to keep a foothold in the Netherlands. Wars with the French were continual, inspired by childish intrigues of intermarriage among the royalties of both countries.
Under Hapsburg rule, the population of Spain declined from 20,000,000 to 8,000,000. Public finances were a wreck, the army and navy demoralized and ruined. In 1700 the last Hapsburg king died, leaving the crown to a French Bourbon, Philip V.

EUROPE'S BATTLEGROUND
Now Spain found herself in the middle, allied with France against a coalition of England, Holland, Denmark, Austria and Prussia. Spain was the battleground. Allied troops took Barcelona, freed the Spanish Netherlands, and invaded Spain itself through Portugal. Even Madrid was captured. Spanish troops fought and died in every intriguing campaign throughout Europe.
When the French Revolution overturned monarchy in France, Spain was too weak to intervene. But her royal house made its position clear—it was against the revolution. A Spanish army invaded France after Louis XVI had been executed, but was driven out, and French revolutionary troops swarmed through Catalonia.

The Spanish people neither supported their own king nor rallied to the revolutionary forces as the French hoped. They simply suffered. Peace had to be made to avoid complete conquest.
friendly—Congressman Josh Lee.
Another Enemy Down
Defeat of Congressman George Huddleston in Alabama was even more satisfying to the New Deal crowd. It's at least a good guess that the administration went as far as it could, without exposing itself, to contribute to the result.
Huddleston came within a hair's breadth last year of wrecking Roosevelt's pet Wheeler-Rayburn public utility holding company act. He served on a conference committee as a key member, and his die-hard opposition brought on as spectacular a test of strength between a president and a powerful special interest group, in this case the "power trust," as has ever been seen.
The hatred built up between Huddleston and the New Deal can hardly be overstated. If power companies didn't back Huddleston in the primaries, they're the most ungrateful wretches on earth, which they seldom are.

And Friends Come Back
In Texas Congressman Sam Rayburn was renominated (equivalent to re-election there), and Congressman Marty Maverick received such a large plurality as to assure his renomination in a run-off.
Rayburn is Roosevelt's candidate (it's supposed to be a secret, of course) for democratic floor leader and to succeed Bill Bankhead as speaker of the house in case the latter's health doesn't hold out. Rayburn jammed the holding company bill through the house, and rushed through the stock market, security and other New Deal measures.
Power companies tried to lick him, even getting house-to-house canvassers, ostensibly selling household articles, to make speeches against him at all calls.
Maverick is the South's outstanding liberal in congress. He also incurred the wrath of utilities and oil interests, and a large slush fund was thrown in against him. He campaigned as a pal of the administration. Roosevelt, although always publicly proclaiming that he can take no part in primary contests, secretly did everything he reasonably could to insure Maverick's renomination.
Sure of Further Support
Still another successful New Deal congressman who pulled through in the face of a hard fight was Congressman David Lewis of Maryland.
It would be easy to over-estimate the significance of these primary results insofar as it may apply to the presidential race. Except in the case of Lewis, these victories occurred in states where Roosevelt's plurality in November is a foregone conclusion.
What they do indicate is that, if Roosevelt is re-elected, he may have much the same nucleus of loyal supporters in congress which he has had before. That suggestion must be qualified, however, by the fact that Senator Costigan of Colorado had to retire because of physical collapse, and that Senator George Norris of Nebraska may or may not be re-elected as an independent.

The STORY OF SPAIN

Forced by Napoleon to accept a French king, all Spain seethed in desperate revolt, but without success until the English troops under Wellington cleared the Peninsula. Here Napoleon's French veterans are shown evacuating Madrid after Wellington's victories. The sketch is by NEA Staff Artist Ed Gunder, from an old picture by R. Hillingford.

Rebellion was already rumbling in Peru and Mexico, and the Spanish monarch chose this time to form an alliance with France against England. Napoleon, who had taken over the French revolution, demanded that Spain, as his ally, declare war on Portugal, his enemy. Against his will, King Charles had to invade Portugal, supported by a French army. This campaign was inconclusive, but left Spain exhausted by a corrupt and licentious court.
Into war between France and England, Spain was now drawn, not so much through the French alliance as through British affronts to her sea trade. For her pains, she saw her fleet beaten by Nelson at Trafalgar.

But Charles IV had offended Napoleon by refusal to recognize some of the Kingships that conqueror distributed among his relatives. So Napoleon, fresh from triumphs throughout Europe, filtered his troops into Spain as allies intent on invading Portugal. But when a revolution broke out against the Spanish King, the French soldiers were in Madrid ready to take charge. They did so, but not without bitter resistance from the Spanish populace, who fought the trained French troops in the streets with much bloodshed.

FRENCH YOKE TIGHTENED
This unorganized resistance developed into an organized campaign against the French, for Napoleon had dared to make his brother Joseph King of Spain. Napoleon himself had to come to Spain to conduct the campaign to subjugate the Spaniards and beat the English, who were again invading from Portugal. At first Napoleon's genius won both objectives, but then came Wellington in charge of a new English expedition.

In his classic Peninsular campaign, Wellington drove out the French, which gave opportunity for Ferdinand VII, who had been ousted by Napoleon, to return to his Spanish throne. He faced, in 1814, the final revolutions in the Americas, revolutions that were to sweep away his empire overseas except for Cuba and the Philippines.
This revolt spread to Spain itself, and by 1820, Ferdinand was forced to grant the people a constitution. A conflict somewhat like that of today shook Spain, between the constitutional radicals and the monarchists, and resumed despotic power, and as the last of the American colonies broke away he died in 1833.

INTERNAL STRIFE, AGAIN
Conflict immediately broke out between the "Carlists," who wanted Ferdinand's brother Don Carlos to succeed to the throne, and the "Christinos," who favored a regency by Christina for Ferdinand's daughter Isabella II. Savage warfare again swept the Peninsula for six years and in its course the monastic orders were suppressed, and their properties confiscated. Isabella with foreign aid, prevailed.
In the 1850's, radical and moderate united against absolutism, and the forerunner of today's party lines was laid down. Through the 60's, these liberal parties grew in power, and in 1873 a republic was set up. Isabella was driven out, religious orders abolished, and toleration decreed.
But a military coup much like that being attempted today broke the republic, and in 1874, the son of Isabella, Alfonso XII, was declared king. Religious toleration was immediately greatly restricted again, and a continual friction between the restored monarchy and the rising socialist and radical parties harassed the country.

ANARCHISM DEVELOPS
In the 90's, with trial by jury just established and the beginnings of liberalism appearing, anarchism began to develop in Spain. It continues today to some extent. Catalonia was shaken by strikes, and repressive measures were adopted against the anarchists.
In the midst of this internal turmoil, ranging from demands for liberalization of the constitution to bread riots by the people and bombings by anarchists, trouble was brewing overseas.
Cuba was stirring with revolt which the abolition of slavery in 1880 did not abate. Belated efforts to reform in Cuba failed to pacify

Now that the elections are just about all over, what are some of the "rabble-rousers" going to find to "rabble-rouse" about?
Midland farmers have been heard to complain because they do not raise any large amount of corn and wheat since the price of it has gone so high. But the price on the crops they do raise is better than it has been in years and a record-breaking harvest is certain. They do not have any room to complain.

Fares lowest in history—substantial reductions on round trip tickets—for the world's finest transportation in sleeping cars or coaches. And remember—when you take the train you know in advance exactly what the trip will cost.
Western railroads slashed fares in 1933. They presented air-conditioned service in 1934. By 1935 all principal trains were air-conditioned. For 1936 they have greatly increased the number of air-conditioned cars, including coaches, sleeping cars and diners.
Western railroads also offer economy meals, dependability, and faster schedules with safety. When you add these to low fares, you can't afford to overlook the greater comfort and independence of train travel. . . . Ask the railroad agent about travel or shipping to any part of the world.

Coordination of Kicking, Breathing Important to Beginners in Swimming

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of 10 swimming lessons by the mother of the famous aquatic Hoerger girls.

By MRS. FRANCES HOERGER
Nationally Known Swimming Instructor

Co-ordination of kicking and breathing is all-important, with emphasis on exhaling.

This can best be practiced with the assistance of a flutter board. The pupil makes two leg beats inhaling and four exhaling. Four beats are essential for perfect exhalation.

REPEAT DIPPING THE FACE UNDER WATER UNTIL YOU CAN EXHALE THROUGH THE NOSE

Proper breathing is one of the most important factors in swimming. If you do not learn to breathe properly at the beginning, it will handicap you later on.

To learn to breathe properly in water stand in it at a depth a little above the waist. Place your hands on your hips and take a deep breath through your mouth, exhaling through the nose. Do this several times. Now put your hands on your knees and, taking a deep inhale, put your head under water, holding your breath until you count 10. Then with your head under water, exhale through the nose slowly.

Repeat this process until you can take a normal breath and exhale through the nose under water.

Be certain that you exhale all your breath from your lungs before you come up for another supply. Practice until you can do it indefinitely.

Keep your eyes open, for it is necessary for a swimmer to see under water.

Flying Ratings To Be Issued Pilots

Instrument ratings for non-air line pilots, indicating that these pilots have met experience requirements and passed flight tests in navigation of aircraft by reference to instruments and radio, are provided for in amendments to the Air Commerce Regulations announced today by the Department of Commerce.

The amendments, which become effective August 15, apply to non-air line pilots engaging in non-schedule instrument flying along the airways in adverse weather. Under regulations previously announced, pilots who wish to make instrument flights through or over clouds along the civil airways are required to have demonstrated their ability to do so, to have the necessary equipment in their planes, to furnish flight plans in advance and to report their progress by radio. The instrument rating is evidence that the pilot has met the Bureau's requirements with respect to experience and training.

To qualify for the instrument rating, the pilot shall be the holder of a transport, limited commercial or private pilot license, shall have had 200 hours of solo flying time, and a minimum of 20 hours instrument flying instruction and practice. In addition he is required to pass a flight test during which he will be seated in a hooded cockpit—his view of the ground cut off so that he has to depend upon instruments and radio in navigating the airplane—with Bureau of Air Commerce inspector as check pilot. In this test he will be required to navigate the airplane in straight level flight, in moderate banks making 180 and 360 degree turns in both directions, in minimum glides, maximum climbs and approaches to stalled attitudes of flight, climbing turns and recovery from stalls, skids, slips, spirals and banks in excess of 45 degrees. Also, he will be tested in turning his radio equipment and in using the radio for orientation, or in other words to determine his position by reference to radio beacon signals. He will be checked in following the course marked by the radio range beacon, in locating the cone of silence over the transmitting station, and in letting down to safe altitude while flying on the radio range course.

The rating will be noted on the pilot's license. For a transport or limited commercial pilot, whose license has to be renewed each 6 months, the instrument rating will be renewed if he has had two hours of instrument flying practice within six months preceding the expiration date of the license. For the private pilot, whose license is renewable each year, the instrument rating will be renewed if he has had four hours of instrument flying practice within the year preceding the expiration date of his license, including two hours within the last six months.

The new rating does not apply to scheduled air line pilots who are governed by special regulations and have Scheduled Air Transport Ratings covering instruments and radio flying as well as other phases of training and experience.

"The manufacture, sale, transportation, and possession of all liquors, the alcoholic content of which is entirely and exclusively the result of the fermentation process is hereby authorized under such restrictions as may be authorized by law.

"(b) The Legislature shall enact laws to regulate the sale of spirituous liquors of any county, justice precinct or incorporated town or city, may, by a majority vote of those voting, determine from time to time whether the sale of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes shall be prohibited or legalized within the prescribed limits; and such laws shall contain provisions for voting on the sale of intoxicating liquors of various types and various alcoholic content.

"(c) In all counties, justice precincts or incorporated towns or cities wherein the sale of intoxicating liquors had been prohibited by local option elections held under the laws of the State of Texas and in force at the time of the taking effect of Section 20, Article XVI of the Constitution of the State of Texas, it shall be unlawful to manufacture, sell, barter or exchange in any such county, justice precinct or incorporated town or city, any spirituous liquors or malt liquors or medicated beverages, capable of producing intoxication or any other intoxicants, unless and until a majority of the qualified voters in such county or political subdivision thereof voting in an election held for such purpose shall determine such to be lawful; provided that this subsection shall not prohibit the sale of alcoholic beverages containing not more than 3.5 per cent alcohol by weight in cities, counties or political subdivisions thereof in which the qualified voters have voted to legalize such sale under the provisions of Chapter 116, Acts of the Regular Session of the 43rd Legislature."

Centennial Exhibit Proves Crime Costs

DALLAS, Texas.—Crime doesn't pay.

Neither can crime be perfect. If you think otherwise examine some of the machines and the systems exhibited at the Texas Centennial Exposition which the federal and state governments use in crime detection and solution.

There is an electrical sorting machine capable of sorting 24,000 cards per hour, siftings from as many as 760 different combinations which is used in the larger identification bureaus, among them the United States Department of Justice.

This investigator may pour through this machine the record cards of thousands of criminals and leave it to the machine to ferret out the type they seek. If the criminal has blue eyes, brown hair, stands five feet nine and limps, the machine will pick out the cards of criminals answering such a description. Then it is but a matter of minutes before the list in a crime is narrowed down to a few suspects.

There's the state's scientific crime detection laboratory which shows the rapid stride of Texas in the past 18 months toward solving its crime problems. The exhibit is in charge of M. T. Gonzales, former Texas Ranger, now head of the state's bureau of intelligence. In this exhibit are hundreds of guns, ranging from machine guns to tiny pistols, all of which were taken from criminals. There is a complete file of data on firearms, bullets and fired cartridges, dictaphone sets, ultraviolet lights, fingerprint cameras, enlarging cameras and a nice display of fingerprints.

Directing youths activities to keep him away from crime is another feature to be found in this connection at the Centennial Exposition. The Civilian Conservation Corps and the Boy Scouts, both of which have exhibits at the Exposition, are examples. In each organization the activities of the youth are directed to make better citizens of the youths in their ranks.

The Centennial Exposition's free exhibits explaining the ceaseless warfare on crime are worth a separate trip to the Exposition in themselves.

FEMININE FANCIES

BY KATHLEEN EILAND

The International Federation of Business Women, meeting in Paris, has endorsed the principle of "equal pay with men for equal work."

"We don't want to be known as women chemists, women artists, and women teachers," said one of the speakers. "We are chemists, artists, and teachers, and we have a right to the salaries appropriate to those professions."

We imagine a good many thousand American working girls will say an emphatic "Amen, Sister!" to that statement, especially the latter part of it.

Just why a woman should object to being known as a woman chemist, teacher, reporter, or whatever she is, we can't understand. We can certainly understand why she wants to be paid as much for the work she does for the same labor as a man receives.

A feature writer has described in a recent article some of the unusual qualities in the model home for 1936.

Very up-to-date it seems but it sounds to us as if it might be a trifle uncomfortable to live in, despite its tomorrow's conveniences.

In the first place, the house is of steel, which strikes us as being singularly unhome-like. It is air-conditioned and is without visible lights except a few reading lights.

One thing we do rather like—where scatter rugs would ordinarily be used—and how we dislike too many of them—this home uses larger rugs in which designs are woven to take their place. At least the housewife wouldn't have to shake out half a dozen every time she cleaned the room.

The dining room is disguised as two rooms by having one end painted a different color from the other. Now that's an idea that reminds us of the March hare. What could be madder.

And there are port holes in the shower curtain! Which sounds like a doubtful feature to say the least.

All in all, if we were choosing a home, we'd choose one that wasn't quite so much of a model perhaps—but a lot easier to live in and up to.

O'Donnell Asking Midland Sponsor For Rodeo There

Secretary of the chamber of commerce Sallye Covington today announced receipt of a letter from O'Donnell announcing their rodeo there the fourteenth and fifteenth of this month, and a request that a sponsor from Midland be named for the affair.

The letter from O'Donnell follows: We are very anxious to have sponsors from all our neighboring towns, and hereby extend an invitation to Midland to send a princess for the affair. Of course a town as small as ours would hardly have suitable hotel accommodations, but our citizens have gladly opened their homes to the visiting girls, and a number of social affairs have been planned for them. This office is committee headquarters, and each of the girls are asked to report here immediately on arriving, to be welcomed by our sponsor and hostess, and to be assigned to her home for the two days. She will be asked to bring her own mount which she will ride in the parade, but the rodeo officials will care for him without expense to her. She will need her riding clothes, a sports dress or two, a formal afternoon gown for teas, etc., and one formal evening gown for the coronation ceremony, as well as a more simple one for the Queen's Ball on the second evening. I mention these items for her own convenience, but your selection will, of course, know what costumes will be appropriate.

We will be happy to have you name your sponsor as soon as possible, and as soon as you file her name with us, our official hostess will write a personal invitation and we will arrange her home for the two days.

Everett Milam, Baptist church secretary, left this morning for the Baptist encampment at Paisano.
