GUARDS POSTED TO KEEP FRIENDS FROM MINE SHAFT

Had Threatened To Enter Search Of Property

FEAR LIVES LOST

Doubt Expressed 4 Men Are Still Living

NOBERLY, Mo., Aug. 20. (P)—Guards were posted at an abandoned air duct today to keep friends of four entombed miners out when the friends threatened to defy officials and force their way down the shaft because attempts to reach imprisoned miners in the shaft had been abandoned because of bad air.

Rescue crews were entering their efforts on the debris-locked main shaft.

"We're going to stay on the job," staff mine inspector Arnold Griffith said. Veteran miners doubted if the men had survived their imprisonment in the caverns.

Deadly black damp, gas that lurks in coal mines when air circulation is blocked, has several times driven rescue crews to the surface after they had wormed their way down a water blocked air vent to the debris-locked main shaft.

SCOUT LEADERS ARE SPEAKERS AT ROTARY LUNCHEON

Review of Camp Life Is Presented By Executive

Speakers at the Rotary club luncheon today gave talks on Boy Scout work and on the new vocational course to be taught in the Midland public schools.

Alfred J. Stiles, executive of the Buffalo Trail Boy Scout council, outlined the activities of the recent camp staged at Barksdale, showing the character building features of the life in the open. He paid tribute to cooperation of local business men and adults who are aiding the scout program.

Wallace Wimberly made a brief talk on the scout water carnival, held at Pagoda pool this summer and of annual events held in other cities of the area.

Fred Earhard, state superintendent of vocational education, outlined the new diversified vocational course to be taught in high school here. Dan Bearden, coordinator or instructor, also was present. The supervisor said that much depended on cooperation of business concerns and leaders to assure the success of the new venture, as half days of the students' time are used for school work and the other half for laboratory work or actual work in concerns operating business covered by the course. From fifteen to thirty "laboratory" concerns must cooperate by providing places for the students to work and study their vocations.

Cotter Hiett and Clinton Lackey were named heads of two Rotary club groups in an attendance contest. Lectures each week must provide transportation for non-attenders to make up at the Big Spring club.

Dr. Wunder, in an interview here, said his leadership of such a movement in opposition to Dr. Francis E. Townsend had been the result of hundreds of complaints from members of Townsend clubs against what he termed "the dictatorship of the founder of the old age pension plans."

DISMISS DOCTORS ON STERILIZATION CHARGES OF GIRL

Defendant Says She Will Continue With Case

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20. (P)—Judge Raglan Tuttle Wednesday suddenly dismissed mayhem conspiracy charges against the two physicians who sterilized Ann Cooper Hewitt but left the way open for a determined prosecutor to proceed against them further.

The court held the state had failed to establish a case against the physicians, Dr. Tilton E. Tillman and Dr. Samuel G. Boyd.

Assistant District Attorney August Fournier, declaring the court's action "all wrong," announced he would proceed against the doctors again and would decide with colleagues on the course he would take. He said the first step probably would be an appeal of Judge Tuttle's ruling.

Defense Attorney I. M. Golden said Judge Tuttle's dismissal precluded further criminal proceedings against the doctors unless Fournier should win his threatened appeal.

The dismissal ended the state's short and bitterly contested attempt to show the physicians conspired with the girl's mother, Mrs. Mary Cooper Hewitt, against the heiress to the large fortune of Peter Cooper Hewitt, inventor.

Counsel for the physicians in turn charged the criminal proceedings were a part of an alleged plot to "extort" large sums of money from Mrs. Hewitt.

Tillman and Boyd wept as they heard the decision.

The ruling took the case out of the hands of a jury that had heard the petite Miss Hewitt testify she was duped into submitting to the operation before she became of age.

The physicians, along with the mother, contended the operation was deemed advisable because Ann was physically undeveloped and "badly oversexed."

Judge Tuttle ruled the state had not shown any act of bad faith on the part of the physicians.

Washout on Tracks Delays Train Today

A washout on the joint tracks of the Southern Pacific and the Texas and Pacific at Small, near Fort Hancock, last night caused several hours delay in train schedules. The train due here at six o'clock this morning was forced to delay six hours before repairs could be made that would allow it to continue its trip.

Officials of the Texas Pacific here did not have complete details of the damage done to the track. It is being repaired today.

NEW TESTIMONY HEARD AT TRIAL OF CONSPIRATORS

Russia Would Have Been Put Under Fascism.

TAKES BLAME

Admits Conspiracy Guilt Belongs To Him

MOSCOW, Aug. 20. (P)—Gregory Zinovieff, one of the 16 accused of plotting against the Soviet government testified at his trial today that the conspiracy, if it had been successful, would have put Russia on the road to Fascism.

He accepted full guilt for the conspiracy which allegedly included the intended assassination of Josef Stalin.

Zinovieff's secretary committed suicide rather than carry out the death order. Zinovieff and Leon Kameneff, another charged in the conspiracy, governed in a triumvirate with Stalin 13 years ago.

Four other leaders were marked for death with Stalin. They were Kliment Voroshiloff, Commissar of War; Lazarus M. Kaganovich, chairman of the All-Union Peasants' Congress and Commissar for Railways; Gregory K. Ordjonikidze, Commissar of Heavy Industries, and the Ukrainian Communist leader, Postisheff.

'DEATH WELL' IS COMPLETED FOR BIG POTENTIAL

Magnolia 6 Edwards Given Rating Of 13,192 Bbls.

BY FRANK GARDNER

Magnolia No. 6 Edwards in the Waddell pool of northern Crane county, scene of one of the worst tragedies in West Texas oil fields in recent years when four men met death last week in its gas-filled cellar, has been completed for one of the largest producers in the pool with a potential of 13,192 barrels per day. The well was assigned its potential after flowing 2,198.7 barrels in four hours.

Main pay in the Magnolia well was topped at 3,535, and drilling halted at 3,540, where it flowed 192 barrels natural in two hours. It was later tubed and acidized with 5,000 gallons. Location is in section 2, block B-23, public school land.

Farther south in the McCamey district of Crane, R. H. Henderson and others No. 1 Cordova Union, a producer being deepened to the pay horizon of their No. 1-B Hughes, is drilling line below 2,066.

A half-mile west of the Henderson No. 1-B Hughes, the No. 1-C Hughes will be spudded tonight. It is located 660 feet north and 330 feet west of the south corner of the west 95 acres of section 4, block R, G. C. & S. F. survey.

New Ector Well
Production was assured in Fred Turner No. 1 Blakeney, North Cowden well in Ector county, when it topped pay at 4,040 estimated at 25 barrels per day. The well has made several flows. It is now shut down at 4,075 while moving back boilers, but will be drilled deeper. It had previously logged an estimated 500,000 cubic feet of gas at 3,995.

Turner well is located 440 feet from the north and 2,200 feet from the west line of section 28, block 43, township 1 north, T. & P. survey, a half mile west of Landreth No. 1 Blakeney, a 600-barrel producer.

Grisham & Hunter No. 1 R. B. Cowden, closely watched northwest Ector wildcat, is reported to have logged an increase in gas from 4,292 to 4,304 and is now drilling below that depth. It had a showing of oil from 4,265 to 4,275 and gas at 4,258. The test shows section 10, block 45, township 2 north, T. & P. survey.

The other [Grisham & Hunter] test in northwest Ector, No. 2 R. B. Cowden, a mile and a half farther west, is drilling at 4,474 feet in lime. It had a showing of live, free oil at 4,435. It is in section 8.

Starts Pumping
Landreth No. 1 Kirk. Gaines county discovery well started pumping yesterday and will test for amount of oil and water produced after accumulated fluid has been pumped off. The well, located in section 22, block A-21, public school land, is bottomed at 4,855, cemented back from 4,870 to shut off sulphur water.

Rotary will start moving in tonight or tomorrow to R. H. Henderson and others No. 1 Parker, new extension test three-quarters of a mile southwest of production in the Furman pool of Andrews county. Derrick is up and pits have been dug. The first water well has been completed, and another is being drilled. Southern & Thurman are the contractors for the test. It is located in survey 111, block P, 660 feet east and 212 feet south of the southwest corner of section 25, block A-43, public school land.

In Terry county, Uscan and Illinois No. 1 Brownfield was spudded to a depth of 160 feet with water well machine and is now moving in rotary. Drilling will start next week.

Nearly 8 Tons of Colorado Produce At Wes-Tex Store

Two truck loads, or 15,000 pounds of bunch vegetable, fresh from Colorado state in a "dry-iced" refrigerator truck, will arrive at the Wes-Tex Food Market about 4 o'clock this afternoon, the management said today.

The vegetables, Wes-Tex representatives said, are the finest they could obtain, having been grown under highly favorable conditions, and were purchased by a personal representative of the Wes-Tex stores for sale this week end. The assortment includes turnips and tops, beets, carrots, mustard, radishes, green onions, cauliflower, brussels sprouts, bell pepper, tomatoes, cabbage, rhubarb, okra, cucumbers, beans, English peas, and celery.

A special display of the Colorado products will be made in the store and the public was invited to inspect them.

Local Option Desired by The Drys of California In Move for Prohibition

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20. (U.P.)—With repeal not yet 3 years old, California at the November elections will become one of the first battlegrounds in the Union for the return to local option as a stepping stone to prohibition.

Using the California "initiative" law, drys, under the leadership of the Anti-Saloon League, have won their first skirmish in the fight. By obtaining 190,000 signatures to an initiative petition they have succeeded in forcing the submission at the next election of a proposed amendment to the constitution, repealing, first, everything pertaining to liquor control and substituting for it a single sentence providing for local option.

This one sentence reads: "Every city, town, county, city and county, or territory outside of incorporated cities and towns, shall have the power to regulate, zone, or prohibit the sale of alcoholic beverages within its limits."

Although only 186,378 signatures were necessary to make the petition for the submission of the proposed amendment to popular vote obligatory, dry, for good measure, obtained a total of 199,327.

Liquor Abuses Admitted
The fight, however, is not to be a one-sided one on a single clear-cut issue, for wets sponsored an initiative petition that will place on the ballot a proposed amendment correcting admitted abuses that arose under the system of liquor control. In the event drys should win at the November election and their constitutional amendment become effective, it would take the liquor control entirely out of the hands of the state.

The proposed amendment of wets has the double purpose of preventing this and at the same time correcting a situation which they themselves admit is deplorable.

Initiative for the latter first was taken by the League of California Municipalities and other civic bodies but later was carried out by hotel and liquor interests who desire a better regulated system than the present one.

At present California's liquor control is invested in the State Board of Equalization. Against its administration many complaints of allegedly arbitrary and unfair treatment have been made by small liquor dealers, cafe owners and others.

Wets Favor New Body
To meet this situation, wets propose taking the control of the liquor situation out of the hands of the Board of Equalization and in-

FRANCE, BRITAIN TAKE STEPS AFTER GERMAN THREATS

Halting of Ship By Sub Is Bitterly Protested

WANT APOLOGY

Prevention of Such Action Again Is Desired

By Associated Press
Spanish government troops today established a new line of defense about 100 miles southwest of Madrid, claiming that rebels were in flight.

Meanwhile France and Great Britain, informed Paris sources said, may undertake mediation in an attempt to prevent a reported Spanish government search of a German merchant ship from having repercussions.

The German government in an ultimatum to Madrid announced that its warships would prevent a repetition of the recorded incident with "all means."

Halting and warning of a German ship off the rebel port of Cadiz was the incident that incited Germany. Before halting the Kamerun the Spanish submarine B-6 and the cruiser Libertad fired three shots at the vessel seven and one-half miles off Cadiz. The Kamerun was allowed to proceed, but was forbidden to enter the port of Cadiz, although it was under orders to call there for refugees. The Loyalist warships forced it to proceed into the Mediterranean.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER Reporter-Telegram Washington Correspondent

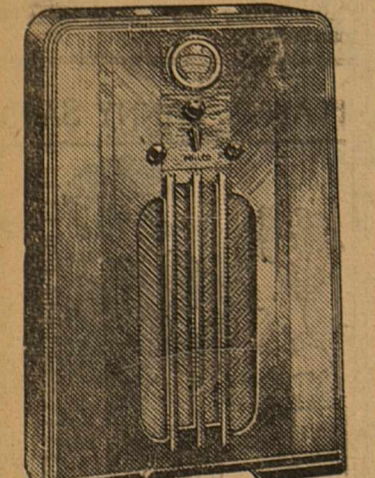

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—This business of appealing to Washington when you are in trouble is doubtless very bad, calculated to sap the moral fiber and bankrupt the government. Even if that's so, it doesn't make the letters received here from victims any less pathetic or revealing. Here are a few excerpts: A South Dakota school teacher: "The heat outside is 116. The thermometer on this table where I write registers 110. There is no hot wind today. "As I look out of these windows, I see nothing but an unending expanse of baking, dusty earth and parched, ruined crops. For me, this week, it might not be so bad, aside from our money loss, if our 11 cows and heifers did not moo so, sometimes an hour at a time, for water. Each day they grow weaker and thinner. The tongues of the oldest have begun to swell. Their eyes are bloodshot. "Both our wells have been dry for almost three weeks. The bran we have won't last long. I have much pride in our cows. Did you ever own gentle, blooded cattle? "The nearest spring is several miles down the road. Fourteen families use it. Each owns stock. We are rationing its water. The flow decreases daily. There's a water hole about 10 miles away. I heard yesterday 25 families were using it. If the WPA men could only deepen and enlarge it. Won't you see what can be done about the water hole? I shall close. My cows are moaning again." Cactus and Despair "An old homesteader" in Montana: "This country is slowly turning into a desert. Each year the cactus growth increases. Its growth has been remarkable since 1934. Cactus follows every drought. The severer the drought the finer the cactus. I haven't raised a forkful of cattle feed in three years. I have not had a crop in eight years.

Fighting Forest Fires He-Man Job And CCC Lads Prove To be He-Men

BY WILBUR E. BADE NEA Service Special Correspondent

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 20.—CCC youths recruited from city slums, small communities, and colonies of unemployed have played a great part in saving from utter devastation the North Woods country in Minnesota and Wisconsin, where forest fires have ravaged more than 75,000 acres of timber, farm lands, and second growth woods. So say the forest rangers. "Without the men from the efficient well-disciplined CCC camps dotting the woods countries in these two states, we would have been helpless," R. U. Harmon, supervisor of the Superior National forest in Minnesota, declares. C. C. Carlton, state ranger in charge of the Cloquet, Minn., station decided the CCC youths with saving some of the finest remaining stands of timber in Minnesota. Del Isch, federal ranger in the Moquah forest in Wisconsin, echoed Carlton's praise as did settlers in fire-swept areas. "I make a living from land and stock. My stock and the stock of hundreds of others was sold at a great loss two years ago. The herds was nearly depleted. This year there is another drought and a scourge of grasshoppers and Mormon crickets. We are forced to sell all remaining stock. We people try to provide food and clothing for our families from land and stock. We have reached a point where we need relief as bad as those on the relief."

Along the Miller trunk highway, between Duluth and the Iron Range, this patrol, with a pressure tank, blots out "spot" fires before than can jump the road and rage through brush country.

Move Swiftly Into Action When the call comes to a CCC camp, the men snap into action like an infantry company bound for the trenches. Trucks are loaded with shovels, axes, brush hooks, water tanks, burlap bags, pails, food, oil, and gasoline. Trucks rumble out, loaded with men. Reporting to the ranger on the fire line, men are quickly stationed. Blanketed by acrid smoke, they beat out flame that has licked across the fire line. They rush in to brush out a territory, cut down trees and pile them in the unprotected area, and dig a trench before the path of flame. A backfire is set. Men patrol the area with wet burlap and with water tanks on their backs to extinguish embers driven over the line. They work without protest and without shirking, amid stifling heat, with acrid smoke biting at their lungs, almost blinding them. But they check the fire. Sometimes the wind shifts suddenly and men are rushed to a new front—men who are due for rest, but the fire doesn't wait. There is no loafing. Rain Is Best Bet "When it comes to fighting fires, the best way is to get yourself a damned good rain," declares P. W. Swedberg, Moose Lake Station (Minn.) ranger. But his district has had about .54 inch of rain since July 1, and the woods are drier than matchsticks. He has 20 fires in his district. More are being reported hourly as the smoke lifts occasionally and rangers in observation towers spot fresh blazes. He has had little sleep for a week. He is fagged and is going to rest. In comes a call for 300 men and tractors in the St. Croix forest. The fire is out of control. He is on the phone, first arranging for some CCC men, then for 100 volunteers from nearby towns. He gets a caterpillar tractor and a road scraper started from a point 90 miles away. The others are in use. No rest for another day. But he called on the CCC first.

Fire Pops Like Corn The cameraman and I follow a ranger to the head of the fight. The smoke is billowing and rolling. There is little flame. Around us the fire sounds like corn popping in a giant tin popper. The fierce crackling, says Ranger Carlton, is the fire moving on the ground. It consumes the dry wood, the shrubs and brush, and roots. The heat kills the trees. White ash looks dead, but they conceal live coals that almost scorch off the soles of our boots. A mile back are blackened stumps. There was a good wind there. Rocks stand out, bare in the flame-swept area. The intense heat of the ground fire, like a furnace generates its own wind. The black smoke, fed by pitch from the pines, billows and breaks into flame that licks out 50 feet to crisp leaves of birch and poplar. The ground fire flares and the wind rises. Fanned on, the flame sweeps over a dried muskeg swamp as if it were excelsior. Trees Burn in Instant Carlton warns us to look out for a wind shift. He is trying to estimate the progress of the fire and how far back it stretches; he has 400 men and tractors coming in shortly. "She'll hit the river in an hour," he says. Back goes a message to get a crew to strengthen two bridges so trucks can move in. The flames lick on. A birch becomes a pillar of flame, the dried bark and crisp leaves burning like paper. Fifty years of growth gone in a puff. Two hours later men start to work. The tractor breaks the ground after men have taken out the big trees and hauled them toward the fire. Brush is taken out on both sides of the line. A backfire sweeps toward the flames. The CCC starts to patrol for spot fires. The heat is fierce. Perspiration dries in an instant as the hot wind beats down. Breathing is hard; our lungs ache. Farther back is a crown fire—the flames leaping through the tops of trees as the smoke bursts into flames. In one minute by our watch, the fire has spread over 150 yards. To check a crown fire, trees are chopped down for many yards in the path of the blaze. The brush is piled with the trees, or if there is time and room to work, it is hauled to one side. If the wind is right, the back-firing method comes in again.

Two Dreaded Foes The two fire menaces in the North Woods are cigaret and cigar stubs and dry lightning. Stubs thrown from cars or discarded by berry pickers smolder and soon have a wide area glowing like a furnace. A wind whips it into flame, and the fire is on. In a few minutes it is out of control unless a crew is on hand. Dry lightning in the woods is like the spark that sets off a cigaret lighter. Dry lightning comes with a storm that has no rain. Lightning strikes in a score of places, setting small fires which in an hour make a forest an inferno. Because of heavy smoke blanketing the woods rangers are unable to spot new blazes in the woods until they are far out of control.

Judges Are Named For The Frontier Livestock Shows FORT WORTH, Aug. 20.—The judges who will have the responsibility of selecting the prize winners in the sheep and goat, wool and mohair department of the Official Texas Centennial livestock exposition here, October 3-11, have been announced. All are men well known in sheep and goat circles. One comes from Illinois, one from Washington, D. C., and three from Texas. Approximately $9,000 in premiums is being offered for this department. Classifications include Ramboulllets, Delaine Marinos, Hampshire, Shropshires, Southdowns, Corriedales, Dorsets, Cheviots, Oxford, Suffolks, Lincolns, Cotswolds, Romneys and Karakuls. Angora goats are divided in two groups: B-type, or animals with a preponderance of flat locks, and C-type, or animals with a preponderance of ringlets. Professor W. G. Kammlade of the University of Illinois will make the awards in the fine wool breeding classes; Roy W. Snyder of the Extension Service and A. K. Mackey of the Animal Husbandry Department, A. & M. College of Texas, will judge the medium and long wool sheep classes; Fred Earwood, executive vice-president of the Sonora Wool and Mohair Company, will make the awards in the Angora goat breeding classes, and Frank Grayson of the Livestock, Meats and Wool Division of the Bureau of Agriculture Economics, Washington, D. C., will judge the wool and mohair show. Grayson was formerly employed as wool and mohair graders at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. In announcing the judges, D. G. Tallpot, manager of the livestock department, and J. M. Jones, superintendent of the sheep and goat departments, call attention to the fact that entries on sheep and goats, in fact, on all classes of livestock, must be received by September 4. The show is part of the general livestock show that will be held at Ft. Worth, when premiums totaling $75,000 will be paid to the prize winners of the different classes of livestock. Water freezes every night of the year at Alto Curcerim in Bolivia, while at noon the sun is hot enough to blister the skin.

Structural Map Of State Is Being Made

AUSTIN, Aug. 20.—Another step has been completed in the execution of a structural map of the state of Texas which is being made by the Bureau of Economic Geology of the University of Texas. Engraving has just been finished. The map, which is in color, shows all oil and gas fields of the state, and likewise the major structural features. Several geologic horizons are used in contouring, ranging in age from the Ordovician to the Tertiary. The structural map, drawn to the scale of 1:1,000,000 has been made possible by cooperation from many geologists and oil companies in the state. Dr. E. H. Sellards, director of the bureau, said. Midland Man Weds Dallas Girl In Ceremony Here

Mr. Hyson Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Smith of Midland, and Miss Thelma Kay of Dallas were married at the Baptist parsonage Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock.

Rev. Winston P. Borum read the ring ceremony. Both the bride and bridegroom are deaf mutes and their only attendant was the latter's brother, Herbert Smith, who interpreted the words of the wedding service to them through sign language. Their responses were made by nodding "yes" to the pastor's questions. This is the first couple that Mr. Borum ever married in this manner.

The bride wore a blue linen suit. The wedding was witnessed by a small group of friends and was followed by a reception at the home of the bridegroom's parents, where the bride cut the wedding cake in the traditional manner.

The groom has lived in Midland for several years and is well-known here.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith will make their home on Baird street.

Mrs. Parker Is Hostess to Club

Mrs. Ray Parker was hostess to the Home Art club at her home on West Texas Wednesday afternoon. The afternoon was spent in informal visiting, with no program arranged.

Guests were Mrs. M. D. Cox, mother of the hostess, and Mrs. Henderson.

Refreshments were served at the close of the party to: Mmes. Cox, Henderson, and the following club members: Mmes. Guy Brenneman, O. N. Maness, J. B. Neal, Geo. L. Wright, A. W. Stanley, B. W. Reecer, Julia Wilson, and the hostess.

Mrs. Maness is leaving Midland soon to make her home in California.

Methodist Union To Meet at Big Spring

Several young people from Midland are expected to attend the meeting of the Methodist Signal Mount Union at Big Spring tonight. The highlight of the meeting will be an address at 8:30 o'clock this evening by Rev. E. L. Norwood, pastor of the Texhoma church and director of young people's work in this conference. His subject will be "Echoes of Sequoyah."

A picnic will be held at 7 o'clock. Officers of the district will gather for an afternoon meeting at the First Methodist church at Big Spring.

Baptist Children Have Picnic Party

The Beginner's department of the Baptist Sunday school was entertained with a picnic at Cloverdale Tuesday afternoon from 4 o'clock until 6 o'clock.

Thirty-five children between the ages of three and five years were present, together with eight grown-ups.

Games were played and the swings and other play equipment at the park came in for enthusiastic attention of the guests.

A picnic lunch was served. Miss Mary etty Willis is head of the department.

FEMININE FANCIES

By KATHLEEN EILAND

There is nothing more exciting than trying to get the report on a good story. Sometimes we think it requires unlimited patience, perseverance, and diligence to do it.

The thermometer may dance with the hured mark again but we know that summer is really over already. There is something in the air, a crispness and a scent, that, summer mornings do not have. Two days ago the drifting smoke had the look of fall. Yesterday, there was a suggestion of fall in the air. This morning, fall is here.

Let fall come. Whenever school opens, clubs begin their new year's work, and people square their shoulders for a new job, life takes on a breathless, glamorous quality. Despite the sometimes dreary days and chilly winds, we like autumn.

In the summer months, people live outside their homes. With the coming of winter, they turn their thoughts inward as they seek to shut themselves away materially from the outside weather. Then books and open fires and rich foods and long hours of dreaming come into ascendancy. There is a self-centered quality about winter living that summer existence does not have.

Sales in Department Stores Showing Gain

AUSTIN, Aug. 20.—Sales by Texas department stores during July were well above those of the like month last year and the seasonal decline from June to July was less than the average of the past several years, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research has reported.

Records from 89 representative Texas establishments show an increase in July sales of 21.6 per cent over a year ago and a decline of 21.3 per cent from the preceding month. For the first seven months aggregate sales of these stores exceeded those of the corresponding period last year by 18.1 per cent.

A better showing than the average for the state in comparison with July, 1935, was made in the following cities: Beaumont, Corsicana, Dallas, Fort Worth, Galveston, San Antonio, and Temple.

There was practically no change in the percentage of credit sales in relation to net sales, but the percentage of outstanding credit accounts collected during July was greater than it was in the corresponding month last year," the Bureau's report said.

Let your first fall ensemble be a knitted suit. This smart model, of nubby wool in a Persian knot knit, comes in the new red earth color. The skirt is trim and straight and the jacket, fitted at the waistline, is finished with four pockets. It's worn with an emerald green wool scarf.

Photographic Tour Univ. Off the Press

AUSTIN.—A Photographic Tour of The University of Texas, a picture book of the University, is just off the press. The book covers the campus of the university from the first stir of life in the morning until the last studying is done at night.

The book was underwritten and printed by the Steck Company of Austin. Material was compiled and edited by Granville Price, member of the committee of public information of the university and assistant professor of journalism.

"We have long felt the need for such a book," William L. McGill, director of Student Publications, said. "But the committee and public information did not feel that it could finance the publishing. Steck Company has taken this upon itself and is selling the book at cost."

The tour as pictured in the book begins with sunrise on the tower where the first rays of the new day strike. A picture of the bells that are to play "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You" is shown. A picture of students of the university hurrying to morning classes starts off the day.

From there the pictures and short word descriptions carry the visitor with the janitors of the 40 acres, with "Pop" Neenan at the entrance to the campus, on into the classes and then with the students through the chats and friendships of the few minutes between classes.

The history classes are pictured because of their size. One of these classes had 645 members last year. The pictures carry the visitor on into the various buildings on the campus that are busiest in the morning. The Geology building, Garrison hall, Junior High School, the Library building, Law building, and the rest of the Student Union building pass in review.

A peep inside is taken at the president, H. Y. Benedict, and the other business places of the campus. Little Campus offices are shown, and the Galveston School of Medicine opens its door through the pictures.

Then comes noon and the lunch hour with pictures of the cafeteria in the Student Union and the tea room in the Home Economics building.

And after that it's back to work again in the labs in chemistry, home economics, physics, engineering, business administration, and architecture. Or maybe its play at a packed stadium or in Gregory gym. The woman's gym and intramurals are all shown.

At last comes the time to go home to the dormitories—to university dormitories and to boarding houses. Play comes too, with dances in the Union building and in Gregory gym.

And then, study and night lights over the city. The visitor has completed his photographic tour.

Pearling Fleet Tries New Gear for Its Deep Diving

SYDNEY, N. S. (U.P.) — For the first time in many years, white men are competing with Japanese and Malay divers in Australia's pearling industry.

This venture is being made by a Sydney firm which maintains a fleet of four pearling ketches in Darwin and which has the rights to a new diving gear. This gear, it is said, enables divers to descend to 240 feet, whereas under present diving conditions, 150 feet is considered an unusual depth. It also speeds up descents and ascents.

Great interest is being taken in Darwin in the Sydney firm's tests in view of the increasing difficulties with foreign divers and the intense foreign competition. About 22 Australian luggers operate from Darwin with indented Japanese and Malay crews and more than 20 Japanese owned boats are on shell grounds not far from the Australian coast and northern islands.

NEW COTTON STANDARDS WILL BECOME EFFECTIVE IN COUNTY ON AUGUST 20

American upland cotton will be graded on and after August 20, 1936. According to the new grade standards which will become effective on that date, Dr. A. G. Black, chief of the bureau of agricultural economics, announced today.

These revised standards were officially promulgated on August 20, 1935, and are now to be put into use exactly one year later in accordance with the provisions of the Cotton Standards Act and the Cotton Futures Act.

The universal standards for the grade of American cotton established by the United States department of agriculture have been accepted by all of the principal cotton organizations of Europe and these standards, together with those for length of staple, are generally used throughout the world wherever American cotton is bought and sold. The present grade standards have been in effect since August, 1924.

In discussing the origin of the new standards Dr. Black explained that for some years the American cotton crop has been growing whiter in color and that very little blue stained or yellow stained cotton has been ginned. Conditions contributing to this change include earlier movement of the crop, less exposure of cotton than formerly, the planting of earlier maturing varieties to avoid boll weevil damage, earlier picking and prompt ginning. Improved road conditions and the increasing use of motor trucks has contributed to earlier handling.

Requests were received from time to time from organizations of producers, merchants and manufacturers that the standards be revised to make them more representative of crops now being produced. Promulgation of the revision last year followed the examination and approval of the grade boxes by representatives of producers and other organizations in the American industry and of the European associations and exchanges that are parties to the Universal Cotton Standards Agreements. It is anticipated that the revised standards will facilitate marketing by producers as well as transactions between members of the trade and cotton manufacturers in America and abroad.

Dramatic Story Of 'Final Hour' at Ritz

The outstanding qualities of Columbia's "The Final Hour," now showing at the Ritz Theatre are the sincerity and power of its dramatic story. Interpreted by a strong cast headed by Ralph Bellamy and Marguerite Churchill, the film relates the turbulent career of John Vickery, a brilliant young attorney, who rises from despondence and poverty to the high position he once held.

Produced from a story by Harold Shumate, "The Final Hour" further relates how Vickery, plagued by marital disappointments, broken health and spirit and practically penniless, meets and falls in love with lovely young Flo Russell, night club entertainer, superbly portrayed by Marguerite Churchill. His new-found love infuses him with a new ambition which culminates in his greatest triumph as he stands before the bar defending the girl he loves against an accusation of murder.

Military, Civil Landings Equal

Airport records today showed a decided increase in landings, including both military and commercial planes.

Two C-14's were among the arrivals. One came from El Paso en route to Fort Sill, Okla., and was flown by Private D. M. Byrne. The other, flown by First Class Private L. L. Sallor, came from Fort Bliss and departed to Dallas.

The third military plane was an O-43 piloted by First Lieutenant R. Alan of the air corps. He came from Brooks Field, San Antonio, and went to Dallas.

Commercial ship landings equaled the military, three planes owned by as many oil companies arriving at the field today. They included a Stinson, a Travelair, and a Fairchild.

Jimmy Allred, Jr., Thinks Bed in The Pioneer Home Soft

AUSTIN.—Jimmy Allred, Jr., thinks the bed in the Pioneer Home of the University Centennial Exposition is pretty soft.

At any rate he had a nice time bouncing on it until Mrs. Allred put him off. Mrs. Allred, Jimmy Jr., Lucy Carol Christian, a niece from Fort Worth, and Betsy Lorraine Nichols, daughter of a very close friend of Mrs. Allred's, visited the main exhibit hall of the Centennial, Gregory Gym, Jimmy, Jr., as full of energy as he was on the University Longhorn Band trip to New York when he made headlines so often, was especially interested in the bed in that old paneled room.

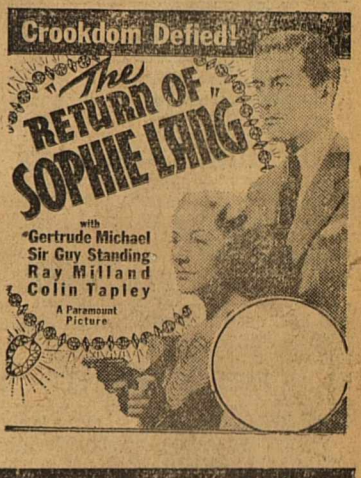

Little Betsy Lorraine Nichols' home is in California. She was named after Mrs. Allred.

Estes Builds Own Air Conditioner

Robert E. Estes, county surveyor, has built his own air conditioner at his 211 West Kansas home.

"When the temperature was 105 degrees a few days ago, the temperature in this house was kept at 80," Estes said. "We all make provisions to keep warm in cold weather by the use of stoves or furnaces, but we do not fortify ourselves against the hot days of summer very effectively or efficiently."

Estes said his air conditioner was installed at a cost of $25 or $30, and will reduce the temperature of two good sized rooms 15 to 18 degrees at the same time freeing the air of dust or pollen, at a cost of less than one cent an hour.
