RE-ELECT MIDLAND TEACHERS

Salaries Cut 10 Per Cent; Board Draws For Terms

Re-election of the complete roster of teachers, institution of a ten per cent salary cut, drawing for terms of office by trustees and the changing of the tax penalty ruling marked the principal business at a meeting of the board of trustees of the city schools Saturday.

The four members who were elected at the last trustee election drew for terms. J. R. Martin and Alvin Hicks drawing the one year terms, and W. A. Yeager and Frank Cowden drawing the three year terms.

A committee, composed of W. A. Yeager, chairman, James S. Nolan, and R. V. Lawrence, having been previously appointed to make a study of fifteen typical city school systems in Texas, made its report with recommendations which were adopted by the board.

OBSERVING CLEAN-UP WEEK

This week has been set aside for Midland's participation in the nation wide campaign for cleaning up, painting up, planting and beautification.

The week has a new meaning this year. It is not only for improvement of appearance of premises, but it offers temporary and badly needed employment for thousands who need food for their families.

Midland people, by devoting from one day to a week to cleaning up and improving property, will make their dollars serve a double purpose.

Fortunately, the city of Midland has given employment to idle men here, cleaning vacant lots, improving streets and making the city city both sanitary and attractive.

Property owners have less to do than in average years to make Midland an ideal-appearing city.

Attention to fire hazards is an effective means of observing clean-up week. A story in this newspaper Friday told of the 12 per cent reduction in Midland's good fire record credit. Continued fire losses might lead to a penalty instead of a credit. Look to your fire hazards.

PEACE AND WAR

Tucked away in an obscure position, a brief cable dispatch the other day told how a Japanese troop train was wrecked near Harbin, Manchuria, and added that Japanese officers on the spot believed that the wreck had been caused by Russian partisans.

Apparently this news item has drifted on down the stream of time and will be heard from no more; but some day a seemingly unimportant story like that may land on the front page in black face type, to acquaint us with the fact that Japan and Russia are to go to war.

For that is the kind of situation that now exists in the Far East; tense, strained, capable of bursting into flame at any moment from the smallest spark. This business of the wrecked troop train might have done it, if the world has had luck, some incident of no more intrinsic importance will.

Wars have a way of beginning over minor jars of that kind. It may seem absurd to think of Russia and Japan flying at one another because a railway train went into a ditch; but all the great nations of the earth went into a death-grapple in 1914 because a half-baked student killed an Austrian prince, and the American Civil war got under way because the federal government tried to send supplies to a fort on the South Carolina coast.

The point of all this is that wars never come suddenly.
Through many years they build themselves up. Their causes are piled up like some tremendously powerful but relatively inert explosive, which can be set off by the concussion of a tiny fulminate of mercury detonator. A pistol shot or a train wreck can be that detonator.

Work for peace, then, if it is to do any good, must be long before the crucial moment of accident arrives. It must begin when there seems to be no danger of war. If —to be plain about it—a terrible war in the Orient is to be averted, the great powers must at once work for peace
a lot harder than they have yet shown any signs of doing.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Some motorists are placarding their cars with plates which read, "Repeal the Eighteenth Amendment." Do they believe that making liquor more plentiful will make the roads safer?

Word that the United States income taxes paid after April 15 would be subject to fines brings home the fact that time, tide—and taxes wait for no man.

With ready-mixed flours for biscuits and cakes being added to the list of canned goods and delicatessen foods, it begins to look as if the "summer bachelors" would not fare so badly after all.

Now that five avenues of finance are open to apple and soft fruit growers of the state of Washington, perhaps one might expect sums lent them to be fruitful loans.

A spring cleaning note says that carpets should be beaten slowly. Many wives, however, would like to know if they are ever done otherwise.

It's Sad State of Affairs When We Have to Catch Crooks This Way

Girl Million-Heir Catch Getting Along

New York—Romaine Fleming, attractive "10-cents-a-dance" hostess, and Allan Carlisle, her shy, collegiate millionaire husband, have won the first sprint in the Young Love versus Life handicap.

Romaine, long accustomed to taking care of herself, stepped out and found herself a job while the honeymoon was still in its first quarter. Her friend Peggy Fears, actress-producer, gave Romaine a bit in her show.

Allan also has gone to work. His decision required more time and consideration. His Harvard course still had a year to run when his persistent courtship resulted in a romantic alliance.

Living simply "I had not studied for any profession," he apologized boyishly. "Wish I had now. I'd just taken a general course. I woke up to find that I could have used a better background for business."

So his first job is with a large insurance firm. He starts as a salesman. A few days of lining up prospects left him groping, but enthusiastic. Many of his college fellows look like "sture things" to him.

The Carlisles are living and intend to live simply. Their apartment is a modest one in Greenwich Village. The "missus" is well schooled in making and mending her own clothes. If necessary, the Broadway rumors that a gas plate is also a familiar item to her.

Young Carlisle, though expected to inherit some $3,000,000 one of these days, appears to be on a conservative college allowance. It is a matter he will not discuss.

His earliest upsets, concerns and disappointments grew out of Broadway's typical exploitation of a "Cinderella marriage." He found his name and that of his bride "four-leted" most prominently.

The Broadway rumors had it that members of his family were disturbed by the blatant ballyhoo and there had been councils of the clan.

Still Bouncing The honeymoon routine has included repeated visits to the "Orpheum Dance Palace" from which Romaine graduated in a wedding ceremony. The romantic legend has persisted that "Cinderella" usually appear overnight at the Ritz or at rigside seats in the swankiest spots.

But Romaine returns to her old haunts. Allan also meets his old pals there.

"All place and these people were all part of our romance," explains the bride. "It's like going home."

After all the new Mrs. Carlisle had danced as hostess for several years, Carlisle, with fellow collegians from Harvard and Princeton, world drop in for dancing diversion weekly, week-ends in New York. He meets his college fellows and she dances about with old friends or chats with the other girls.

More Romances Due Two of them are, at the moment, in the throes of romances expected to end soon in wealthy marriages.

One of them is a member of a trio with whom Romaine once shared quarters. Still another, Miss Violet Pve, dark and slender colleen from Belmont, is engaged to marry.

For about a year and a half before she signed to marry, Allan had been ready for the wedding bells at least a year ago, they say, but she encouraged him to stay in school and talk things over with his parents.

As for Mrs. Carlisle, she would have you know that she married Allan and not his millions.

Indians, Maddened by Oil Wealth, Now Disillusioned

Editor's Note: The new economic order in the oil industry which has been marked by the recent price increase to $1 a barrel, has also marked the passing of America's greatest gamble, when huge and sudden fortunes were made. This—the fourth story in a series of five—is the colorful story of the Osage Indians who rose to wealth during the era of great production from their lands.

By ROBERT TALLEY
NEA Service Writer
(Copyright 1932, NEA Service)

PAWUSKA, Okla.—In the colorful drama of fortune which has marked the great gamble of oil, the story of the rise and fall of Oklahoma's Osage Indians is one of the most picturesque of all.

A few years ago there were known as "the richest people in the world." The income from the oil lands owned jointly by the tribe, netted about $13,000 a year for each member holding one of the 22,227 "headrights" that were allotted when the tribal rolls were closed.

Today, these payments have dropped to about $600 a year. While the decline in the price of oil has been responsible for much of this, the real reason is that the Osage wells are playing out. Production has dwindled to a fraction of the peak figure and no new oil pools are in sight in their area.

The clearest story of what has happened since the peak was reached in 1925 is told by the records of the tribe's income from oil and gas as obtained from the U. S. Indian agency here.

Fiscal Year	Tribal Income
1925	$29,584,739
1926	21,338,385
1927	17,315,910
1928	12,862,333
1929	9,180,664
1930	5,704,160
1931	1,716,330

Where as income per "headright" was about $13,000 in 1925, for the calendar year of 1931 it was only $981. Approximately the same ratio held in the payments for the first quarter of 1932, just made.

Bidders Are Indifferent

An indication of the dwindling Osage oil supply is the fact that oil men no longer bid feverishly for leases on the Osage lands. In 1923, nearly half of the tribe's income of $27,000,000 was in the form of bonuses paid for such leases. On March 22, 1932, an Osage people sale returned the smallest amount in history, $27,500. Less than a third of the tracts that the Indian agency offered were bought.

By a queer twist of fate, the 600 "restricted" members of the tribe who were allowed to collect only $1,000 a year no matter how much they made, while the "unrestricted" brothers were rolling in wealth, now are drawing more than the latter. The one-time "millionaires" are down to about $800 a year, but the government is drawing on the reserve that the "restricted" Indians (government wards) built up in the flush years to maintain annual payments of $1,000 a year allotted by the government.

Accustomed to lives of glorious ease, now faced with a tremendous decline in income and having practically no other source of income, these erstwhile "richest people in the world" are finding it difficult to adjust themselves to present conditions.

STICKERS

They have their own form of tribal government, with elected chiefs. Some of them have small shrines at which they practice an Indian form of worship, but many have been converted.

When an old brave dies—as was the case the other day with the aged Chief Bacon Rind—he is buried in the finest casket available. In the flush days of prosperity, it was nothing uncommon for $3,000 to be spent for a single funeral. Over his grave is raised an American flag, on a pole stuck in the ground. The flag stays there until it rots away in the wind and the rain. It is the symbol of the "Great White Father," meaning the federal government, for which the Indian has the deepest reverence.

For many years the Osage Indians have looked to the "Great White Father" for everything, while wealth from underneath their rocky farm lands flowed to them through his Indian agency.

Today, with the riches of the past fading around them, they are still looking to him and hoping he can find a way out.

Next, how oil is meeting its problem of overproduction and pointing a path out of the depression for industries in other lines. . . . "Alfalfa Bill" Murray's action in shutting down the wells last summer and what came of it.

FAMED WOLF HUNTER WILL TRY PROWESS

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UP)—Col. Jack Abernathy, now grown older and more portly than the Oklahoma youth who astonished President Roosevelt by catching wolves with his hands, will do his stunt once again.

He has sent to Denver for three timber wolves with which he will make his final wolf catching appearances here April 23.

Abernathy quit catching wolves after he had snared 1,000 by running them down on horseback, leaping upon them and grasping the wolf jaw in his strong hands.

"I am not as limber as I used to be," he said, "but I think there is still one more good wolf hunt left in me."

Abernathy's prowess so impressed President Roosevelt on a hunting trip that the wolf hunter became quite a pal of the sports-loving executive. He was made U. S. Marshall in Oklahoma and there added other hair-raising exploits to his list. Despite his adventures he never was hit by a bullet. One bullet hit the pommel of his saddle and the impact on his stomach made him think he was shot, but he was not hurt.

After leaving the marshalship, Abernathy went into the oil business. A narrow escape from death near Bastrop, Texas, when he was caught in a derrick wire rope and dragged to the engine drum, sent him to the hospital for a period.

"God's been taking care of me for some purpose," he mused after this last accident. "I guess he has work for me." So Abernathy took to evangelism. The wolf hunt will be only an intermission.

Peculiar Terms In Chinese Will

ROME (UP)—The treasury of the Chinese Republic finds itself richer today thanks to a wholly unexpected revenue source.

This is represented by Henry Basse, a German citizen, who before dying last August in Bressanone, Italy, bequeathed to the Chinese government the right of a million head of live, Basse, though he had a home at Bonn in the Rhineland, preferred to live at Bressanone, where citizens used to look upon him as a beggar because of his shabby appearance, and his poor scale of living. However, he had considerable wealth, which he had accumulated through successfully trading in China.

The bequest was accompanied by an astounding condition: that that sum was to be used by the Chinese government to fight the Europeans. "China to the Chinese" was the reason given by Basse in his will in explanation of his action.

Ts'iang Lu Fo, the Chinese charge d'affairs in Rome, has made several trips to Bolzano and Bressanone in connection with the legal steps required by the execution of Basse's will, and has returned here with the bequest. Whether the money will be used to fight the Japanese, under the present conditions, defenders of China, is not known.

Ts'iang Lu Fo, desiring to show gratitude to Basse's memory, handed to Rev. Sorraji, the parish priest of Bressanone the sum of two hundred lire with the request that he celebrate masses in suffrage of Basse's soul.

Observance of National Music Week is Planned Here

Piano Ensemble, Choral Club Program and Piano Recital Are Major Events Planned For Week of May 2-7; Many Participants

Preparing to appropriately observe National Music Week, May 2 to 7 in Midland, musicians and members of musical organizations have been working out definite plans for the past few weeks.

Introducing the week on Monday evening, May 2 a concert by a group of Midland's outstanding musicians will be given at the stage of the Yucca theatre.

On the following evening in the Crystal ball room of Hotel Scharbauer, Miss Francine Fowler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Fowler of Odessa will be presented in a piano program by Miss Lydia G. Watson.

The program of artists at the Yucca theatre is expected to be the most unusual ever presented by Midland musicians.

Six pianos, including four grands, were placed on the stage Thursday and rehearsals are being held daily by a group of 20 pianists, directed by Wallace Wimberly.

"Chopin Polonaise in A" played by 12 persons at the six pianos, will show great skill by the pianists. A group of several piano numbers will be played.

Pianists include Mr. Wimberly, Misses Edna Marie Jones, Elizabeth Lomax, Zonelle Post, Lena Solomon, Lady Faye Scott, Lydia G. Watson, Misses Rawlins Clark, Tom Flood, J. Florey, George Glass, Emily Kannon, Gordon Gemmill, Jack Hawkins, Holt Jowell, Lois Baughman, C. A. Mix, O. L. Walton, L. C. Waterman, and Jim Williams.

Members of the Midland Choral club, wearing lovely garden frocks, and standing on a pyramid staircase, will make one of the most colorful appearances of the club, directed by Mrs. Barney T. Smith.

Costumes have been made for an Indian group of songs to be sung around a log before a glowing fire. Living models will appear on the stage in this group and probably in a Chinese selection.

Mrs. Leon Goodman is arranging the decorations.

Besides Mrs. Smith, director, and Mrs. Rawlins Clark, pianist, the club includes Mmes. L. C. Waterman, J. G. Gemmill, Tom Flood, Emily Kannon, G. W. Braunman, H. N. Phillips, Holt Jowell, George Abell, W. A. Hyatt, Misses Evelyn Scarborough, Eleanor Connell, Marquerite Eivens, Jerra Edwards, Edna Marie Jones and Loria Williams.

Tickets for the concert are on sale this week by members of the Co-Workers' class.

Miss Fowler is well-known here.

Miss Fowler, who expects to attend the American Conservatory in Chicago next year, following her graduation from Odessa high school, will play a group of compositions by master pianists.

She has appeared on numerous programs in Midland before and has played on several radio programs.

Accompanying her will be Fouchie Pollard, cornetist, the Watson School of Music orchestra, and the violin class under the direction of Mrs. Ned Watson.

The program will be open to the public.

Midland Delegates Report on San Angelo Meeting

Notes on the three-day convention of the Sixth District of Federation clubs at San Angelo last week have been compiled by Miss Lydia G. Watson, a delegate of the Fine Arts club.

The following highlights of the convention will be of special interest to Midland club women:

"San Angelo entertained the delegates beautifully. The hospitality was unsurpassed and luncheons and teas were lovely, each program were interspersed with musical numbers of rare quality.

"On Wednesday a chuck wagon dinner was served at the city park. Miss Carrie Reeves, president, very ably and cleverly presided at the meetings. She is a candidate for legislature.

"On Tuesday evening, Pat M. Neff, president-elect of Baylor University, with his characteristic grace addressed the women. Stressing the part that the celebration of the Texas centennial in 1936 he observed on a "grand" scale he said Texans should hang their heads in shame if he proposed constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to make appropriations for the centennial falls to pass in the November general election.

"Other outstanding addresses were by Mrs. W. Trapp of Brownwood in "Women in Industry" and by Mrs. Phoebe K. Warner, congresswoman-at-large candidate.

"Wednesday morning Midland delegates reported for their clubs. Mrs. John Haley reported for the Midland City Federation and also on the division of community service of which she is chairman. Mrs. S. E. Preston spoke for the Wednesday club. Mrs. W. A. Hyatt for the Mothers' club and Miss Watson for the Fine Arts club.

"At a memorial service Wednesday Miss Watson gave a tribute to the late Mrs. Marion F. Peters, who was an active member of the Fine Arts club. Mrs. M. H. Hagaman or Ronger also paid highest tribute to Mrs. Peters.

"Midland delegates were invited, together with Mrs. Charles Gibbs and Mrs. Jax Cowden, to Ballinger, a tea given by Mrs. Robert Harwell.

Thursday Club Evening Party Is Given

Sketches of comic characters used in matching partners for bridge games added interest to the party given by Mrs. W. C. Kinkel and Mrs. W. A. Yeager honoring members of Thursday club and their husbands.

The Kinkel home decorated profusely with roses was the scene of the affair.

For the couple drawing the sketches of Maggie and Jiggs, Mrs. C. L. Jackson was given a rolling pin and Mr. Jackson a can of corn beef and cabbage.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson also played high in the games.

Guests included Messrs. and Mmes. Joe Hemphill, Harvey Conger, Jack Hazittine, George T. Abell, Jackson, Mrs. C. E. Patterson, Mr. Martin Jackson and Mr. O. C. Harper.

Plans for Bridge Benefit Are Announced

Auction and contract bridge players will find interest in the benefit bridge affair to be held under the auspices of the Welfare association entertainment committee at the country club Friday afternoon at 2:30. Tables will be arranged for both games.

Reservations may be made early this week for 50 cents through Mrs. Leon Goodman, chairman.

Prizes will be awarded for winners in the games.

Presbyterial Reports to Be Given at Auxiliary

Mrs. Andrew Fasken and Mrs. Harry Adams, who represented the Women's auxiliary of the First Presbyterian church at the Presbyterial in Lubbock last week, will report on their trip to the women Monday afternoon at the church.

The official report will be read by Mrs. Fasken.

The program for the meeting will be led by Mrs. J. M. DeArmond, Mrs. T. R. Wilson and Mrs. W. G. Whitehouse will preside as hostesses.

For Mother—if you can't be with her on Mother's Day—send your photograph. Very special prices; case one limited tree at Prothro Studio. (Adv.)

Mrs. Hiatt Hostess to Bible Class

The Belmont Bible class met with Mrs. H. M. Hiatt Friday afternoon Mrs. J. M. King taught a lesson from the 22nd chapter of Acts. It was voted to change the time of meeting from 3 o'clock to 3:30. Mrs. J. E. Kelly was a new member added to the class. Others attending were Mrs. M. H. Hagaman, H. S. Collings, D. E. Holster, B. M. Hays, George Streeter, T. S. Nettleton, J. C. Hudman, Bill Davis, A. W. Lester, H. M. Beshner, C. E. Strawn and C. E. Nolan.

Newest Wrinkles in Cooking Will Be Taught at Annual School Next Week

Newest wrinkles in the culinary art—tasty dishes, vitamin packed foods, unique garnishes, scientific kitchen arrangement, modern cooking methods—will be taught a host of Midland women May 3 to 6, when Mrs. Leona Rusk Ihrig, national food and cooking authority, holds The Reporter-Telegram Cooking school. The training course will be held at the Yucca theatre.

Several important elements in cooking will be explained each day by Mrs. Ihrig. Advance information she has given concerning the local school indicates that the use of the oven will be one of the feature phases of the course.

"Time and temperature count for everything in baking," she says, "and luck is the housewife who has one of the modern ranges with the automatic range which means that it is possible to cook whole meals by putting them in the oven, setting the regulator and forgetting about them."

Otherwise, one has to be right

Unusual Decorations Planned for Recital of Vickers Studio

Gorgeous costumes, colorful settings and variety will mark the dance revue and expression recital of students of the Vickers studio at the Yucca theatre Friday evening at 3 o'clock.

A Tom-thumb wedding, put on by members of the studio Midget class, is expected to be one of the most attractive parts of the program. Beautifully rainbow colored evening gowns will be worn by participants. Such celebrities as Gull-Curci and Schumann-Heink, enacted by the children, will appear on the wedding program.

Advanced dancers will appear in a number, "Jus Clogging Along," with dancing being staged on a stairway setting. Handsome tulle jeweled costumes will make their first appearance in a dance revue here.

"Sweetheart Revue," by girls wearing pastel prints, will be an entertaining number.

A surprise number, "Don't Believe Everything You Hear," is expected to attract much interest.

Many other specialty numbers have been planned.

Small admission charges will be donated to charity.

Women Will Take Lead in Clean-Up Program

Miss Lois Patterson, chairman of the clean-up committee of the Federated Women's clubs of Midland, Saturday asked presidents of the various women's clubs of the city to interest their members in the clean-up campaign set for April 25 to 30, inclusive.

The clean-up campaign has a double purpose: to actually make the city clean, thereby not only adding to its attractiveness, but also to its healthfulness, and to provide work for needy people.

The city is furnishing a garbage wagon free. Miss Patterson asked all women having debris to remove to telephone 565 and ask a wishing laborer to take it.

The Women's clubs, headed by Mrs. John Haley will have general charge of the clean-up. The city and chamber of commerce are cooperating.

Pioneer Members Entertained by The Scharbauers

The apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Scharbauer presented a charming setting Friday evening when members of the Pioneer club were honor guests at bridge affair.

Rooms were abloom with beautiful bouquets of snapdragons and roses in pastel shades.

The pastel theme was seen further in bridge appointments and the table service.

Scoring high for club members, Mrs. John B. Thomas and Mr. C. M. Goldsmith received gifts. Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Daniel were awarded prizes for playing high among the guests. A cut prize was won by Mrs. O. B. Holt.

Attending were Messrs. and Mmes. Allen Tolbert, Leon Goodman, Harry Tolbert, Joe Youngblood, Homer Rowe, C. M. Goldsmith, Elliott Cowden, C. B. Holt, Frank Cowden, I. E. Daniel, Dr. and Mrs. John B. Thomas and Mrs. Clifford Hill.

Plans for Bridge Benefit Are Announced

Auction and contract bridge players will find interest in the benefit bridge affair to be held under the auspices of the Welfare association entertainment committee at the country club Friday afternoon at 2:30. Tables will be arranged for both games.

Reservations may be made early this week for 50 cents through Mrs. Leon Goodman, chairman.

Prizes will be awarded for winners in the games.

Co-Workers to Park For Picnic Supper

Members of the Co-Workers class took their supper to Cloverdale park Friday evening for the first class outing of the spring.

Miss Druella Lord, social chairman, assisted by Mrs. Athel Cole and Mrs. Bernard Westerman, planned the entertainment.

In the party were Mmes. John Drummond, J. M. Burrow, C. H. Oliver, Nettie C. Romer, H. A. Jesse, H. N. Johnson, E. E. Miller, W. M. Schrock, Athel Cole, Carl W. Colington, Ed Darnell, J. B. Cole, Bill Cole, Sharp, Misses Laura Jesse, Druella Lord, Irene Lord, Omega Stewart, Mrs. and Mamie Lusk, Edna Hanna, Darnell, and Lucile Cole.

Popular Visitor

Mrs. Fred R. Dent of Luke Field, Honolulu, arrived in Midland Friday evening for an extended visit with her mother, Mrs. John D. Robinson, and uncle, Dr. J. F. Haley, at the Haley hotel.

This is the first visit to the states by Mrs. Dent since her marriage to Lieut. Dent in San Antonio in February 1931. Their wedding was one of the most prominent social events of the season in San Antonio. Her cousin, Mrs. Alice Masson, was an attendant.

Lieut. Dent, a well-known flyer, has landed in Midland frequently.

CHAPTER XXII

Rose said, "You can take my white lace. It was only $18.50 marked down but you can hardly tell it from an original model."

"I hate to take it," Susan demurred. "It's brand-new. Terry has not seen you in it yet, has he?"

"That doesn't matter in the least," Rose assured her. "Terry will have plenty of time to get used to it—the rest of the winter." Rose's pretty, rather florid face was aglow with enthusiasm.

"You'll have to buy slippers, of course," she rambled on. "I think you ought to get bright blue ones, or maybe green. They're all wearing them this season." When Rose said "they," that firm voice Susan bowed to her superior knowledge. Rose, an assistant buyer now, knew exactly what "they" were going to wear before "they" knew it themselves.

For the 11th time that evening Susan said, "I can't go."

"Nonsense!" Rose was very brisk. "It's the chance of a lifetime. Would I jump at it, though? And it isn't as if they were all strangers. After all, Ben's an old friend, and those Strinskys—or whatever their name is—they sound all right."

"Oh, they're terrible," Susan announced with simple earnestness. "If you ever saw them!"

Rose gave this comment scant attention.

"Well, you're not responsible for them anyhow," she said with calm. "Just go along and look your prettiest and have a good time. I'll come over tomorrow night and bring the bag. Wasn't it lucky the girls gave it to me last Christmas?" She stood up. Susan hugged her remorsefully.

"You're so good," she said. "What makes you so good?"

"Rose viewed this remark dispassionately. "Well, if you don't think the greatest nonsense, Susan Carey!" she said. "As if anyone would not be glad to see you enjoy yourself."

"No wonder Terry is crazy about you," Susan cried. "I would be, too, if I were a man."

Rose made a face at her in the mirror. "A lot you know about what men like," she said good naturedly. "You won't even give poor Ben a little encouragement?"

"Oh, Rose!" cried Susan impatiently. "You know he's not my kind. He's so serious and moody, he bores me."

"Well, he worships the ground you walk on. That's all I know about it," said Rose, putting on her hat. "You might be half-way decent to him once in a while."

Members of Entre Nous Club at Weyman Home

Bridge games were enjoyed by members of the Entre Nous club who were guests of Mrs. A. C. Weyman early last week.

Prizes awarded went to Miss Cordelia Taylor, who won high score, and Mrs. J. B. Zant, who cut high.

Party desserts were served to Mrs. Aldrege Estes, Mrs. Zant, Misses Theresa Klapproth, Taylor, Jerra Edna Williams and Juliette Wolcott.

Susan Carey, an orphan, lives with her Aunt Jessie on Chicago's west side, and works in the office of Ernest Heath, architect. Ben Lammpan, a moody young admirer, takes Susan to a studio party, where she meets Arnold and Sonia Strinsky, and Denise Ackroyd, a society girl.

Later, lunching with Bob Dunbar, young millionaire, whom she meets at business school, Susan sees Denise again. Jack Waring, Heath's assistant, tries to flirt and is rebuffed. Lonely when her aunt is away, Susan goes driving with Waring and he kisses her. Ben asks her to marry him and she temporizes. Her employer's wife snubs her. Susan hears Ben Dunbar is to be married and is heart-broken. Denise Ackroyd asks

Rose gave the other girl's shoulder a reassuring little pat.

"Nobody wants you to marry him, you goose," she said. "Just be friendly and nice. My mother always says that one bean attracts an' other an' I think she's right. Anyhow, be nice to him at this party."

"I will!" Susan promised. She told herself she would try to be friendly but not to be attracted to anything. I think she's right. Anyhow, be nice to him at this party."

"Susan went about her work Friday almost in a daze. Her face was hot and her hands were like ice. She thought several times wildly of sending a telegram to Denise saying she was ill, but always the thought of seeing Bob Dunbar deterred her.

Pierson snapped at her once or twice during the afternoon but she scarcely heard him. Susan's thoughts were all on the morrow. Her heart would throb painfully at the prospect. The fashionable world in which Denise moved and had her being was an uncharted land for Susan. There were no guideposts. Through the whirlpool of her reflections there persisted the nagging idea that Denise had some curious purpose in inviting her. Again and again Susan banished this idea.

Rose arrived at 8 o'clock with the new dressing bag of green leather. "It's much too nice," Susan worried. "I shall be afraid something will happen to it."

Aunt Jessie chimed in, "I declare I never heard of such fancy goings on. House parties!" she sniffed.

"Tisn't as if I knew the young lady's folks or anything."

"I've told you," Susan said patiently, "just who they are. Denise's father of Samuel Ackroyd of that old law firm. You've heard of them for years."

"Aunt Jessie knitted on steadily. her nose in the air. "Ackroyds!" she repeated, moved by some fierce, inner disdain. "Weren't they grocers when my own father drove his two black horses up and down Lake street? Indeed, my father had nothing to say to Ackroyds then. He was Dr. Thaddeus Carey!" she said to Rose who had heard the story a hundred times before.

Susan folded a pair of gossamer stockings and tucked them into the corner of the bag. Aunt Jessie's flow of conversation was not stemmed.

"Couldn't my father have bought the Ackroyds, lock, stock and barrel in those days?" she demanded indignantly. "Didn't the lake come right up into our front yard, and the Ackroyds lived in some hole or corner out south?"

"Well!" Rose put in brightly, "they have come along since those days. They've got seats of money now and that's what counts."

This decidedly was not the right answer. Aunt Jessie glared at her. "Manners were manners was—a was a girl," she stated. "If a person wanted you to come to visit (See MAN HUNTERS page 4)

Introduction of the New Ford V-8

We are deeply gratified by the interest being shown by the visitors who are seeing our wonderful new car.

On Friday, the first day of the car's introduction here, we had 1452 visitors. We gave as many demonstrations as time would permit and heard nothing but complimentary criticism of the car's performance.

We feel that the public appreciates the fact that Mr. Ford is doing his part to bring back prosperity by bringing out a new car at this time at a cost of many millions of dollars, together with giving employment to many thousands of workers.

We are advised that assembly of the new Ford V-8 and 4-cylinder cars will be started at the Dallas Plant of Ford Motor Company next week. This should mean that we will have cars available for delivery within the next ten days.

Please accept our thanks for our visitors' interest and complimentary expressions regarding the new car.

TEXON LOOMS FORMIDABLY IN TOURNAMENT TODAY; COWDEN ILL

VISITORS COUNTED AMONG SAND BELT STRONGEST

Feeling keenly the loss of Ellis Cowden, who will be kept from the engagement on account of illness, and hoping for "better weather" than Saturday's, Midland golfers who have been crowding the top of the ladder during the past week will go against a strong Texon line-up at one o'clock this afternoon in a crucial Sand Belt tournament.

As the week closed, the local ladder was topped as follows: C. L. Jackson, Ellis Cowden, Billy Moran, Delo Douglas, Frank Day, Arch Thomas, Joe Chambers and Red Knight.

The probable line-up, however, taking into account illness and absence of players from the city, was expected to include first Jackson and Moran, second Douglas and Day, third Chambers and J. F. Blount, and fourth J. H. McClure and E. M. Miller.

Texon is coming here with a strong, well balanced group. It was expected that Jackson and Moran would be pitted against the Kelly brothers, Pat and Bob; Douglas and Day would play against Jim Isbell and Perry Chambers and Blount against Bob Harvey and Jack Satterwhite; and the identity of those meeting McClure and Miller was not known here.

Although Midland goes into the tournament at the head of the Sand Belt, Texon is rated as one of the most formidable clubs in the association and may give the locals a stout drubbing. Midland defeated Odessa here two weeks ago 36 to 9, a high sandstorm prevailing at the time off but letting up somewhat in the course of play.

Association standing by points is as follows:

Midland	36

Lamesa	25
Sweetwater	25

The Derby Parade

LIBERTY LIMITED

Odessa Golfers to Lamesa Links Today

ODESSA, April 23.—The Odessa Golf club's team of eight players will go to Lamesa Sunday for their second game as a member of the Sand Belt Golf association. Odessa lost her first match with Midland at Midland two Sundays ago by 9 to 36. Lamesa won her first match of the season at Midland the same day from the strong Texon team, winners of last year's play, by 25 to 19. The Odessa team at present includes the following, who will probably play in the order given: Morgan Neil, W. T. Henderson, Ralph S. Shuffler, Mark Henderson, Calvin Pegues, Tony Frank, Perry A. Meade, George Elliott. The other members of the club, in their order on the club ladder are T. B. Harris, Fred King, R. H. Shuffler, R. O. Sandstrom, and George Kesler. Should any of the team members fail to appear, the next qualified man available will take his position.

JAILED FOR ZEAL

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Roy McCormick, 24, walked into police headquarters and asked, "What's the bail for Nick?" Just a few minutes before Policeman Quetchenbach had locked up Nick Tascone, 24, for attempted robbery. He knew the news hadn't time to spread.

"Nick who?" he asked. McCormick stammered around so much that Quetchenbach held him for questioning. He finally acknowledged he was an accomplice of Tascone.

Liberty Limited, a son of Sir Galahad III, will be one of Kentucky's hopes in the 58th Kentucky Derby, May 7. And if Liberty Limited can win the Derby he will have broken the long trail of misfortune which the Three D's Stock farm of W. T. Waggoner has had to travel.

There are no finer sportsmen than the Waggoners of Texas, but the sport of kings has been expensive for them both financially and sentimentally. There was, for example, Broadway Limited, the Man o' War Straight colt, that cost $65,000. Broadway Limited never won a race, and died of heart failure while trying.

Then Kilkenny broke down while making the Derby effort. The Waggoners built the beautiful Arlington Downs track in Texas but the state refused to let it run.

But Liberty Limited has been working so well in his training for the Derby that his trainers are confident that the red, white and blue colors of Three D's will flash to the front. And if Liberty Limited should fall, the Three D's have another capable horse, Rowdy Boy, that might be able to turn the trick.

Liberty Limited started six times as a two-year-old and won one race. He was out of the money only once

City Tournament of Net Stars Planned

Plans for a city tennis tournament, to be held about May 1, were announced today by W. D. Godbey. He said that the tournament was being held prior to the closing of school in order to give faculty members and students who will leave for the summer an opportunity to compete.

Details of the tournament will be announced shortly, he said.

OLD WRITING REVEAL WAR WAGED BY TEXAS TOWNS FOR UNIVERSITY

AUSTIN—The campaign preceding the election in 1881 that resulted in locating the main university of Texas at Austin and the medical branch at Galveston was full of bitterness. Personal journalism, typical of the day, was indulged in freely by the newspapers of towns that were competing for the institution. This was particularly true of the newspapers of Austin, Waco and Tyler. Dr. H. Y. Benedict, president of the university, has been digging into the files of the papers of that period and some of the comment which he has brought to light could everybody wears."

After she had gone Susan ticked off the various items on her fingers. The sheer underthings, the stockings, Ross had lent her all of those. Dear, good Ross! Kind Ross! She would make it up to her some day. Aunt Jessie had been bitter ever since the purchase of the slippers but Susan, usually so docile had held her determination to get them. She must be properly dressed. She laid reverent fingers on the white lace, dreaming.

Aunt Jessie's voice recalled her. "High time you were in bed," she was saying. Susan looked up with the dream still in her eyes. She was seeing not a middle-aged woman in a worn black dress but a smooth and polished dance floor on which a white-frooked girl floated in the arms of a tall young man.

"I declare, you don't seem to hear a word, I say," Aunt Jessie complained, not without reason.

Susan threw her arms around the older woman eagerly. "Say you're glad I'm going. Say you're glad I'm having some fun at last!" she demanded.

Aunt Jessie attempted to disengage herself but the strong arms held her fast. The rosy young cheeks were pressed to her faded one. "You are wild as a young colt these days and that's the truth," Aunt Jessie cried. "There's no doing a thing with you."

Susan released her, laughing in a sudden excess of high spirits. She sprouted around the sitting room. As the older woman watched, in some subtle way, her expression altered. "I declare, she looks for all the world like her father at this moment," Jessie Carey was thinking to herself, half in awe. She reflected that Susan was a handsome girl and no two ways about it. She sighed. What could she give a young, high-spirited creature like this? A home, and a bride for her irrepressible enthusiasm? Was it enough?

She shook herself free from this momentary weakness. "Susan Carey," she scolded, quite in her usual form. "You pack yourself off this instant to bed."

Susan went. Aunt Jessie felt suddenly old and tired.

"I'll be glad if she married that young Lammpan and settled down," she murmured as she wound the clock. "Then I wouldn't have to worry about her any more."

miles above the town, where they are decomposing and adding poison to the water. The Telephone says that the taste of the water is not only bad, but that it "smells." Waco retaliated by comparing her 20 saloons with Austin's 90.

"Paid advertisements in newspapers led additionally to much favorable editorial comment, circulars were sent to many influential citizens and voters, various conventions and meetings were attended," Dr. Benedict said. "Tyler, however, put many more speakers out than did Austin. All of the contesting towns were profuse in the distribution of advisory ballots. There was a strong drift in favor of Austin all over the state, mostly in favor of Austin for the entire university."

The late Col. A. P. Woodruff, in commenting on the election wrote: "Austin owed a great deal to the professional men of Texas in the outcome. They, especially the teachers, in votes and in active influence, were mostly for Austin, sentiment and state pride played a large part. Only 55,840 votes were cast. The apathy of the people could not be overcome. Location at Austin was regarded by many as a step making for the great unification of the state. Texas undivided being a common slogan for the Austin supporters."

"The young men of Texas who are educated at the capital will learn something more than books. They will learn the history of the state and the character and lives of the distinguished men of former times, and will see and become acquainted by reputation, at least, with those who are controlling the affairs of the state, with many of whom they may have to act in after life. They will there also more readily than elsewhere take in the knowledge of the resources and attributes of all parts of the extensive state. They will also, by collecting at one place for education, form associations and friendships with their fellow students all over the state, which will be of great advantage as well as a social pleasure during their whole lives afterward."

Spanish Trade Hit by Barriers

MADRID (UP)—Spanish foreign trade was considerably less in January, 1932, than in the same month in 1931 and 1930 thus reflecting the decrease in exports caused by the tariff barriers abroad, and the decrease of imports caused by the fall in value of the peseta.

Measured in terms of gold pesetas (worth 19 cents to the dollar), the imports in January, 1932, amounted to 73,600,000, compared to 100,900,000 in 1931 and 192,200,000 in 1930.

Exports in January, 1932, amounted to 54,000,000 gold pesetas, compared with 104,700,000 in 1931 and 183,500,000 in 1930.

Cannade Tests Frigidaire Strength

One of the high spots of interest in each of the fifty-five national exhibits recently held by General Motors was the Frigidaire automatic cannon in the Frigidaire booth which hour after hour shot heavy steel balls against a porcelain finished metal strip.

Millions of people who visited these exhibits were greatly impressed by the manner in which the porcelain finished metal withstood the incessant battering of the steel balls.

"It was the best and most convincing demonstration of the superiority of porcelain finish for a refrigerator," says H. W. Newell, Frigidaire's new vice president in charge of sales. "It showed beyond the shadow of a doubt the durability of this finish and the reason why we refer to it as 'lifetime porcelain.'"

The Frigidaire display attracted throngs of people in each exhibit city due to the measure in the recent announcement of sweeping price reductions and the general interest in the company's new air conditioning equipment, which was given prominent display space at each show.

"The interest created by Frigidaire's new low priced models, which were made possible through consideration of the manufacturing economies that could be effected through greatly increased production, has certainly proved the wisdom of our decision to offer them to the public at this time," Mr. Newell said. "We are now sure that many people who have wanted a quality refrigerator but have deferred buying because of price are being brought into the market as a result of our decision."

they at least had the decency to sit down and write you. But now, oh, no, they can't be bothered."

Rose laughed. "Come on, you know you're pleased that Susan has this chance."

"Indeed I'm not. It will be putting a lot of nonsense in her head and no good will come of it."

Rose leaned over and took the white lace frock from Susan. "Here, let me fold that." With capable fingers she arranged the dress. "There that's right. It won't need pressing or anything but be sure to shake it out as soon as you get there."

"I will."

The two girls kissed. "Lots of luck," Rose whispered in Susan's ear. "And be sure to tell me what

25,000 Expect to See Submarines

CORPUS CHRISTI—Plans for the entertainment of 25,000 citizens of South Texas are being made here in anticipation of the visit to the port of Corpus Christi of two United States submarines on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, April 9, 30, and May 1.

In keeping with the plans of the Navy department to give citizens of the United States an opportunity to secure first hand knowledge of the country's defense equipment, there will be no charge in connection with a visit to the submarines.

Commander Chas. S. Kerriek of the U. S. S. S-13 has advised Sidney King, manager of the local chamber of commerce that visitors would be welcome aboard the two submarines between the hours of 9 and 11:30 a. m. and 1 and 4:30 p. m. each day they are in Corpus Christi port.

While on the surface a submarine is navigated like any other ship. Submerged, it usually runs just far enough under the surface of the water to permit a periscope to be lifted clear of the water for observations. When close to enemy vessels the periscopes are used sparingly, being raised only a foot or two above the surface and for just a few seconds at a time.

Submarines are probably the least comfortable ships of their size ever constructed. As practically all of the vessel is given over to operating machinery, there is a minimum space available for quartering the five officers and thirty nine enlisted men who man the U. S. S. S-12 and S-13, the two ships to visit Corpus Christi.

Owing to their cigar shaped design they roll and pitch more in rough water than any other kinds of ships. The interior is always damp, and as no real heating is afforded, the temperature in the boat is about that of the sea water. During a New England winter this will mean 33 degrees, while in the tropics 90 degrees. Consequently, for extended operations, the governing factor is not so much fuel or food that can be carried, but the length of time men can work under these unpleasant conditions. F. Plato states that the same care will be shown as when more than 90,000 people visited Old Ironsides here last February, without one serious accident being reported.

Drive to Get Babes To Church Started

LONDON. (UP)—The churches could be filled within a few years if pastors gave proper attention to the rite of baptism, the Bishop of Southwark believes.

The bishop has written other members of the clergy, urging them to keep constantly in touch with parents and godparents after a child is baptized, to insure that he is brought to church regularly. Godparents as well as parents should be made to realize their responsibilities, he declared.

SUICIDE THEORY DOUBTED, WOMAN FLYER'S LOVER

MIAMI, Fla., April 23. (UP)—Doctors have found bruises on the body of Harden Clarke, writer and flyer, indicating that he died after a struggle. Handwriting experts claim they found discrepancies in the "suicide note" left in Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller's home. Clarke was found dead at the home of the famous woman flyer Wednesday. The note left indicated he suicided by shooting himself.

Famous Jungle Tale On Screen at Ritz

"Tarzan, the Ape Man," based on the hair-raising story of jungle adventure by Edgar Rice Burroughs, will be the attraction at the Ritz theatre Sunday and Monday. Johnny Weissmuller, world's champion swimmer and considered to have one of the finest physiques of a man living, plays the title role of the strange white man who lives in the jungle like the apes. Prominent role are also played by Neil Hamilton, Maureen O'Sullivan, C. Aubrey Smith, Doris Lloyd, Forrester Harvey and Ivory Williams. The picture was directed by W. S. Van Dyke who achieved such sensational success with "Trader Horn."

The story, laid for the most part in the beast-infested Lake Albert region of Africa, concerns the attempt of a handful of English adventurers to find the mysterious "elephant's burial ground" where they hope to secure a fortune in ivory. The daughter of the leader of the safari is abducted by Tarzan, the Ape Man, who lifts her bodily from the ground and then carries her away beyond the reach of human hands by swinging through the tops of trees at dizzy heights. The continually exciting and oftentimes thrilling adventures with wild beasts, pygmies, and other jungle terrors make this a picture which is said to contain even more hair-raising episodes than the celebrated "Trader Horn."

Girl of the Rio At Grand Today

Dolores Del Rio and Leo Carrillo, popular stars, are united in "Girl of the Rio" which opens its engagement at the Grand theatre today. Dramatically Miss Del Rio portrays what critics have declared to be the best starring role of her career, combining the poetic beauty of her work in "Ramona," and in "Evangeline" with the vivacity and movement of "What Price Glory." In support of the star are two accomplished actors. Leo Carrillo portrays the role of Don Jose, the blustering, vainglorious boaster that Holbrook Blinn made so famous in his years of stardom in the stage play, "The Dove," by Willard Mack. Carrillo's role, thanks to the able direction of Herbert Brenon, has not been whittled down to unimportant as compared with Miss Del Rio's. The second lead is played well by Norman Foster, himself a star on the stage though he is rather new to the screen. Others in the cast are Lucille Gleason, Stanley Fields, Ralph Ince, Edna Murphy, and Frank Campana.

Crowds Swarm to Ford V-8 Showing

Perhaps the greatest interest shown by the public for a new model automobile exhibited here, was evident Friday and Saturday, at the showing and demonstration of the Ford V-8 at Cowden-Kelley Motor company. J. Homer Epley, local Ford dealer, has announced that 1,422 persons came into his showroom Friday to see the new car. The crowd did not make Saturday, due to the fact that the Taylor sedan was in service most of the day for demonstration purposes. Staff members of the Reporter-Telegram were taken for a special demonstration late Friday. The special showing proved that the engine is vibrationless and that the new Ford is a fast, powerful and alert car. The only thing left that reminds one of the old car is the name. The synchronized silent gear shift and silent gear, rubber engine mountings, down-draft carburetor and carburetor silencer, automatic spark control, fuel pump and rear gear tank place the new Ford in a class by itself in its price range. The advent of the new Ford V-8 into automobile competition at this time, marks one of the greatest since attempts at the revival of prosperity. Ford did not contemplate placing his V-8 on the market until conditions were more favorable for immediate sales. Those who are familiar with his plans say, however, President Hoover called Ford to Washington for a conference which ended in "speeding up plans and production" for the new car and the employment and stimulation of business among approximately 200,000 wage earners. This decision by Ford has affected more than 800,000 people in the United States, inasmuch as that number of people are connected by family relations to the wage earners in Ford production, sales and service. In commenting on the new car, Epley said, "It meets my expectations in every respect and surpasses them in many. It has done me much good to see the splendid interest shown by Midland people in the new car. We hope to have several models on the floor within the next ten days and we ask that the public come to see them."

Only Six Days for Loan Applications

Six more working days and no more U. S. money for farm loans. Thus, tersely did John S. Andrews, field representative for the reconstruction finance corporation, warn Midland county farmers to make application now for their farm loans. Next Saturday, April 30, is the dead line for applying for farm loans, Andrews exhorts all Midland county farmers needing money to go to the chamber of commerce office early this week and fill in their applications.

Mrs. Adams Heads District for PTA

Midland, Ector and Andrews counties of the Sixth district Parent-Teachers association have been placed in charge of Mrs. E. C. Adams of Midland, new vice president of the sixth district. Mrs. Adams was elected at the recent convention in San Angelo. The Midland woman is among the most prominent Parent-Teacher workers in West Texas and is an indefatigable worker and leader in Midland. She was elected vice president because of her outstanding leadership in parent-teacher activities in Midland. Mrs. Adams has not only headed many of the parent-teacher activities in Midland, but has spent many hours in preparation of books, the making of articles for sale to raise money for the organization, in arranging meetings and in all other activities of the organization. She is at this time general chairman of the summer round-up campaign, a health census movement in Midland.

Ambrose Leader In New Location

Kenneth E. Ambrose, manager of the Southern Ice & Utilities plant at Malvern, Ark., is assisting the chamber of commerce of that city in arranging for a school on tourist information. Ambrose, always a civic leader while in Midland, is also assisting in promotion of the Ouachita mountain district as a playground. The former Midlander and his family are happy in their new home but miss their Midland friends he writes to friends here.

Progress Made by Harry Adams Test April Rivals March In Texas Panhandle

Harry Adams company's No. 1 W. F. Scarborough in the Scarborough pool in northern Winkler county, 660 feet from the north and west lines of section 2, block 77, public school land, had drilled to 550 feet in redrock Friday. Ten-inch casing was set at 533 feet.

Midland-Glasscock Signs are Erected

Eight metal signs were erected Saturday by the Midland chamber of commerce on the Garden City road. The signs will aid travelers from Midland to Garden City and thence to San Angelo and from Garden City to Midland. Many people not familiar with the turns in the road miss their way. The drilling of a western well here reveals the increased importance of the road. The material, painting and erection of the signs cost the chamber of commerce only $8 for the eight signs, but this was made possible by the assistance of Charles A. McCormick who erected the signs without cost.

McCORMICK IMPROVING

Information was received Saturday that the condition of George D. McCormick, who underwent an emergency throat operation in San Antonio last week, was much better. He is expected to return home early next week. J. J. Kerby, with whom McCormick made a business trip to Marlin, is remaining in San Antonio until McCormick is able to return. Annoying smoke which has bothered passengers on ocean liners is now eliminated by smoke deflectors. These devices divert the smoke from the decks and throw it high into the air.

Prince of Wales Visits Brewery

LONDON. (UP)—Enough beer to soothe many an arid throat was brewed by the Prince of Wales during a surprise visit to homes and industries in London's East End. With no more warning than a message carried ahead by a member of the Prince's staff that a "well known person" would be along in a few minutes, the Prince descended on Charrington's Brewery, in Mile End Road. He went through the plant and before departing consented to "mash" a special brew. Special attention will be paid by the brewery to the maturing of the Prince's product and it is expected that eventually a couple of dozen bottles will be sent to the Prince. In Peru, non-voting citizens are not allowed to hold public office or sign legal documents, or obtain passports.

Busy Days for King and Queen

LONDON. (UP)—Any ordinary day in the lives of the king and queen here is like a busy day in one of the world's greatest business organizations. From 6 a. m. until about 10:30 p. m., Buckingham palace, to outward appearances a quiet, stately royal home, is actually a hive of bustle and activity. At 6 a. m. the palace servants take over control from the night watchman. By 9 a. m. they have cleaned and dusted the 500 rooms and the almost endless corridors and passages. Between 9 and 10 a. m. an army of secretaries, officials, clerks and stenographers arrive. The business side of the royal household is in full swing before many an ordinary business man is at his office. In the meantime things have begun to stir in the southwest wing of the palace where their majesties have their private apartments. Every day the king is up at 8 a. m., sometimes taking a center in Hyde park and, in any cases spending an hour reading before breakfast. He carefully studies official telegrams and government dispatches that have come in overnight and then takes a glance at the morning papers, putting them by for a closer reading later in the day. The royal breakfast, a simple meal, is served in the Chinese room at 8:30 a. m. Immediately after breakfast the king confers with Sir Clive Wigram, his private secretary and chief adviser. Together they go through the immense mail and the king dictates notes indicating the lines on which replies are to be sent. Before luncheon is served at 1:30 the king always finds time for a
