Twelve new teachers, including three added positions are being announced by Superintendent W. W. Lackey and the Board of Education for the 1936-1937 session of the Midland public schools. Nine of the new teachers will fill vacancies caused by the resignations of the following: Prin. J. H. Williams and Mrs. Williams, band master R. E. Shrader, Miss Jimmie Martin, Miss Maurine Ford, Mrs. Stacey Allen, Miss Stella Maye Lanham, Miss Mary Belle Pratt, and Mrs. Sue E. Lee. Three additional positions have been created by the board, as follows: Diversified Vocations course in the high school, science teacher in the high school, and an additional primary teacher at North Elementary school.

Bearden and Fagg Promoted

R. C. Fagg of the high school mathematics department has been promoted to the principalship of the junior high school, and will take the place made vacant by the resignation of J. H. Williams. Mr. Fagg is eminently well qualified for his new work, holding the B. S. degree from North Texas Teachers' College, and the M. S. degree from Southern Methodist University, and having had eight years of successful experience as a school man. Before coming to Midland he was superintendent for six years of one of the better school systems in Collin county, has done much work on both of his degrees in the field of Education, and is thoroughly familiar with the Midland school system. He has practically a straight A record on all his graduate work in SMU. Popular with students, a scholarly and successful school man, faculty member, and patrons. Mr. Fagg will make a very acceptable man for the junior high principalship.

H. D. Bearden has the B. A. degree and the M. A. degree from Texas Tech and the University of Texas, has taught history and economics and coached debate in the Midland high school for several years, and has been approved by the State Board of Diversified Vocations to teach that work in the Midland high school. This new course, open to juniors and seniors only, has been added to the curriculum by the Board of Education this year, and will add four units of credit to the 4 1/2 units now held by the Midland high school. Mr. Bearden, also a very popular teacher, is well fitted to take charge of this very interesting and practical course.

Following are the twelve new teachers who have been elected by the Board of Education and who will be added to the faculty of the Midland schools for 1936-1937:

J. C. Moore has the B. A. degree from Southwestern University at Georgetown and the M. A. degree from the University of Texas. For his B. A. degree he majored in history, and for his master's degree majored in Education and minored in history. He has fifty college semester hours in history, and has taught the subject eleven years in high school. He has served as teacher and principal for six years, and as superintendent of a small high school near Mexia for the past five years. He has been active as section chairman of curriculum revision in his county, and as chairman of a division of the Interscholastic See (School News) Page 8

Capture of Irun Said To Be Imminent As Ammunition Low

By Associated Press

Rebel bombs wounded several persons and shattered windows Saturday in the first successful Madrid air raid.

Northern front casualties were estimated "thousands" as the rebels stormed Fort San Marcial, the key to Irun, and government forces there admitted that ammunition was running low.

A rebel broadcast claimed the defeat of a government column about 65 miles from Madrid. "We will be in Madrid within a few days," said General Quipo Delano.

Denmark, Belgium and Turkey informed Great Britain that they intended immediately to declare an arms embargo toward Spain.

Germany already has declared an arms embargo on Spain, and Italy has announced she also would ban arms shipments to Spanish belligerents.

King Alfonso, who fled the country in 1931, has given no public indication he sought restoration, but reports have said he was considering a flight back to Spain following reports by rebel leaders that establishment of the Bourbon family back on the throne was a part of their plans.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Reporter-Telegram Washington Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Politicians say one thing when they make public forecasts about the election and another when they speak privately among themselves.

The latter expressions are the more important, because they are much more likely to be accurate. Party leaders at national headquarters have the benefit of polls, public opinion and detailed reports from their state leaders, who are usually wise and experienced in the politics of their area.

Finally—and this should not be forgotten—these leaders are fortified in their predictions by intimate knowledge as to the relative efficiency of their state machines and knowledge of the amount of money and effort they are willing to pour into this and that state in the final stages.

It's that last factor—the final impetus of money and frenzied effort—which makes the sizeups and polls as of this date impossible to depend upon as indicative of the result.

Machines and Money
You have two immeasurable factors insofar as their influence on that result is concerned:

1. The Democratic political machinery. This means the normal federal patronage machine everywhere plus definite political activity by much of the network of New Deal agencies created since 1932. It also means the patronage machines of practically all the big states and most of the others—just remember the overwhelming number of Democratic governors and members of Congress elected in 1932 and 1934. For the sake of convenience you can add here the weight of beneficiaries of WPA, AAA, HOLC, CCC and various other New Deal agencies, a majority of whom are counted on to vote for Roosevelt.

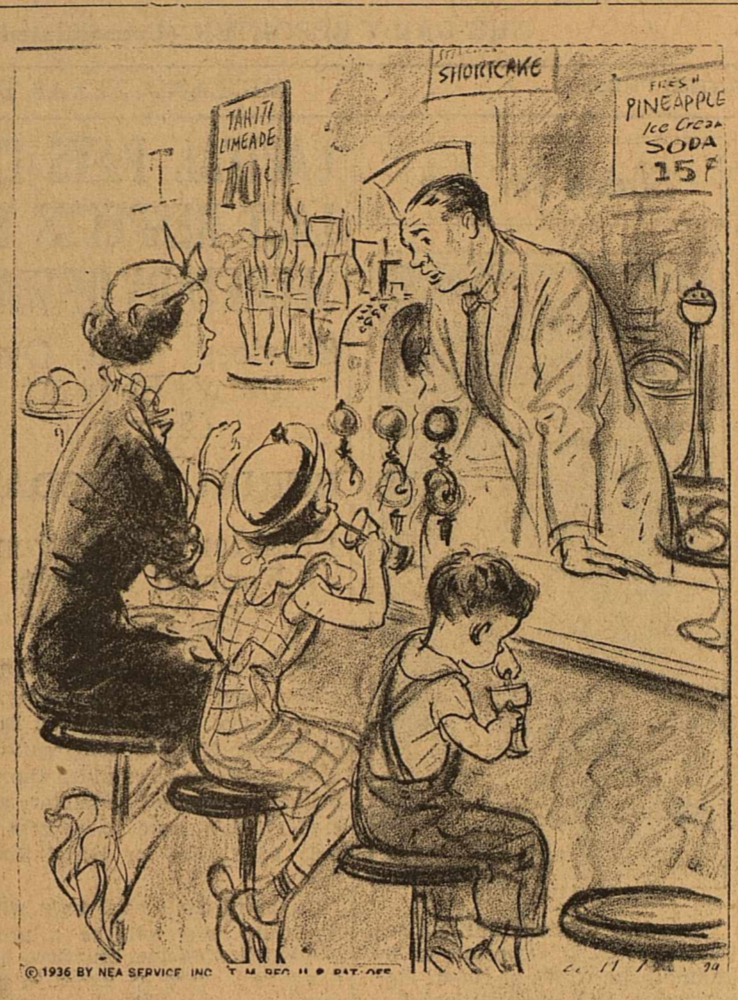

2. The Republican war chest which will be twice the size of the Democratic campaign fund and perhaps much more.

Those are the material factors.

Worry Over Pennsylvania

Republicans are definitely worried about Pennsylvania's 38. Democrats in a position to judge say "we've got a good chance there" or "we're going to win it."

Republicans say it's likely to be tough because of John Lewis and the miners—plus other labor leaders, the colored vote, and the Guffey-Earle machine.

G. O. P. leaders are hoping that miners will resent Lewis' "dictation" as to how they should vote and that it will turn out that both the miners and the colored people all voted for Roosevelt four years ago on the "wet" issue, only to return to the G. O. P. fold in large numbers in 1936.

Democrats insist Indiana is "safe" and Republicans dispute, but none to vigorously. Both sides come near agreement that Illinois is fighting ground, with Republicans seeming a bit more confident.

Democrats admit that Ohio looks bad for them at this time, thanks to irritation over their Governor Davey and strong Coughlin sentiment.

Several States Doubtful
Democrats insist they have the border states and Republicans here put up little argument about it except as to West Virginia and Maryland. The mountain states are all claimed by the Democrats as "in the bag" except for Colorado, which Democrats admit is doubtful.

Democrats claim Wisconsin and Republicans Minnesota with emphasis which is equaled by the other side in neither case. Nobody is sure about Michigan.

Everybody admits the South will stay Democratic and few Republicans doubt that Roosevelt has the Pacific Coast states sewed up. That leaves the farm states, which are doubtful.

Democrats have given up Landon's Kansas and have no great hopes as to Nebraska. Republicans hope for a clean sweep in the corn-wheat area and Democrats present plausible figures to show how they could lose it all and still win — if they could be sure of Indiana and Michigan or of New York or Pennsylvania.

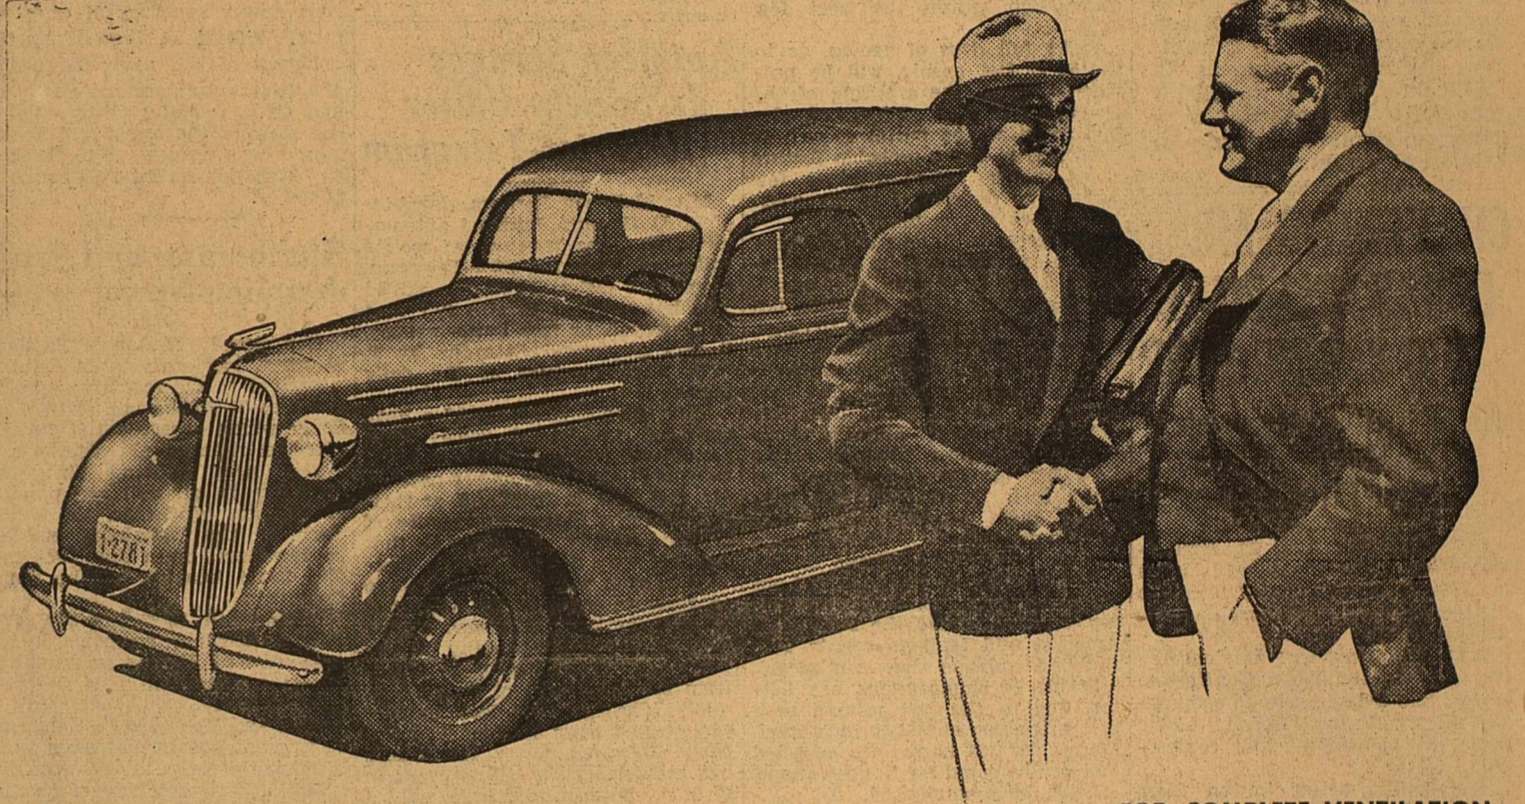

Both sides, incidentally, are beginning to say privately that Lemke will take more votes from Landon and fewer from Roosevelt than they supposed.

"Camera Eye" Restoring Confidence of the Public In Racing; Gates Going Up

High Speed Machines Catch Place And Show Horses

By MAX RIDDLE
NEA Service Turt Writer

Much ado has been making the rounds recently about the camera eye for registering horse race finishes. Arguing the matter pro are operators who seek to give the betting public confidence in track operation; on the other side are owners and others who will tell you that judges, if honest, can see far better than cameras.

The latter argument you must take with a grain of salt, for racing people are the most conservative in the world, resisting even good innovations with might and main. It remains that the camera is booming business at the tracks.

By means of the camera operators are able to give to the judges finished photos of the winner within two minutes.

It sounds simple enough, but there are plenty of difficulties, some of them mechanical, and others of acceptance by racing officials.

The first involves a matter of mathematics to the point of guess-work.

Higher Mathematics Needed

A photo-electric cell does not work instantaneously. While it is working the horse is moving forward. Therefore, the time of operation of the "eye," plus the time necessary to amplify the impulse and that required to make the exposure, must be balanced against the speed of the horse at the finish.

For most purposes the speed of a running horse in the last 10 feet of a race is neither greater nor less than that in any other stretch. But when hundredths of seconds are being considered the difference is appreciable. Thus no camera yet perfected will always catch the finish just as the winning horse touches the line.

Races are won and lost in a foot of space, say six inches each side of the finish. If your picture is taken six inches before the finish, it would not necessarily give the true result of a near dead heat—the position of the horses might change in the next six inches. Again, your picture may show the first four horses to finish, but unless the result was a four-way dead heat, it would show only the winner, and would not necessarily show which horse was second, third and fourth; that is, the position of the other three, with regard to the finish line, might change by the time the second and third horse had reached that point.

To correct this the cameras operate "eye" at Thistle Down in Cleveland and Detroit includes a high speed movie camera which automatically operates to catch the finish of all horses.

Here again the falling of most cameras can be recognized. Most movie cameras take 32 frames a minute. Since there must be a stop or blank between each picture, and the horses are "moving" forward during that blank, the actual finish of the race might easily occur during a blank, and your resulting finish pictures would not be conclusive.

To correct this the cameras operate at the speed of 150 frames per second. This camera almost entirely eliminates the fault which caused the photographed finishes to be discarded at three or four tracks.

Nearest Horse Favored

The greatest objection to the picture which racing men make is that the camera cannot see accurately. They state—and rightly—that a camera is not able to see depth, or the third dimension. Thus, an object slightly in front of one of similar size will look larger.

In other words, the turf world is firmly convinced that the camera favors the horse nearest to it, or the one farthest from the rail. Yet from the beginning of racing there always have been complaints that the judges favored the inside horse, even though human beings have stereopticon vision.

The reply which the camera men make to this is that, in the first place, the camera is located on top of the grandstand, and as near to the track as possible. Thus it would not matter if there were a slight distortion or enlargement.

Moreover, as will be seen from photographic finishes, there is little, if any, distortion possible when you are photographing a line. The first horse to touch the white finish line is the victor. There is no possibility that the second horse will look smaller and therefore farther away.

In any case, accurate or not, the photographic finish has inspired a confidence in racing which no other innovation save the saliva test has brought to the sport.

For this reason tracks such as Cleveland's Thistle Down, hitherto "leaky roof" affairs which inspired no public confidence and suffered accordingly in income, are prospering as never before.

Sound Local Banking

—helps the Community and the Nation

NO one understands the business needs of his Community so well as the banker who lives and does business there. At the same time he keeps informed as to national business developments and their effect on local conditions. No one is more deeply interested than he in the success and prosperity of his neighbors, for their business welfare means safe, lucrative employment for his loanable funds.

This bank, typical of the American Banking System, is a constructive force in the business life of this Community. It is engaged with many of its neighbors in playing a part in the nation's business by capable management of local enterprise. We invite more of our neighbors to come and discuss their plans with us.

A close finish caught by the camera eye. The horse on the rail, the winner, is just nosing into the finish line. Since the camera eye will catch only the victor, and not register the finish of the second and third horses, apparently in a dead heat, a movie camera, taking shots at the rate of 150 frames a second, is used to determine the place and show winners.

Airline Claims Record Hauls on Chevrolet Truck

Eastern Air Lines lay claim to a new world's record. But instead of pinning the ribbon on one of giant Douglas airliners, the claim is now made that the Chevrolet truck, used by EAL for refueling planes at Jacksonville, Florida, has achieved the world's shorthaul record, with a total of 38 miles registered on the speedometer after 12 months of daily service. That's really going places. Every day it makes eight round trips. It backs up, non-stop, for 35 feet. Then it refuels a plane and makes a forward nonstop run of 35 feet. There it rests until it is time to do it all over again.

The truck is one of the fleet of four 1 1/2-ton trucks, its brethren being located at Atlanta, Washington and Newark, respectively. Each has a capacity of 510 gallons of 80-octane gas and 150 gallons of 87-octane. The latter contains more lead and is used only on take-offs. 60 gallons per minute are pumped from the truck into the Douglas planes, a total of 1500 gallons per day during summer. As a matter of fact, it is expected that 250 gallons will be used every day next winter when extra sections will be flown to take care of the New York and Chicago—Miami business.

The "Champ," as the airport crew calls it, has three drivers but no state license, since it operates entirely on the company property. It forms an important part in the efficient operation of the Great Silver Fleet and has made consistent contribution in enabling Eastern Air Lines to keep a minimum schedule of 8 1/2 hours between New York and Miami, 10 hours between Chicago and Miami, and 8 1/2 hours between New York and New Orleans.

It is estimated that the truck will have to be in service 5,812 years before it can equal the record of 225,000 miles now held by several Chevrolet trucks.

FEMININE FANCIES By KATHLEEN EILAND

We always thought that the farmer's daughter was the only one who worried much about sunburn. But the farmers in the midwest are wearing troubled frowns because their prize pigs are blistering from the summer's terrific heat.

It seems that the white Danish pigs which they are raising sunburn so easily that in some instances, besides just blistering and peeling off, their ears have become infected. The problem has become such a big one, that black hogs from England have been imported to cross with their Danish brethren in the belief that the cross-bred offspring will not be too susceptible to sunburn.

We shall look next for anti-sunburn remedies for pigs to be included in the medical pages of mail order catalogues.

Black deserves its popularity when it is featured in an evening gown of taffeta with quaint, shirred bodice adorned with thin, buttoned, puffed sleeves, and a double pleated collar of white over black. The climaxing point of distinction in the dress, however, is the wide ruffle about the skirt edged with double pleats of white under black and gathered up high in the front to form a front slit. The gown is shown by a downtown store.

Another of those things at which we are particularly inept is the task of folding or wrapping carbon paper so that it does not crack and wrinkle. And how we do hate wrinkles when we start typing!

There is probably more breathless hoping for rain going on in West Texas now than there is hoping for any other one thing. (We're hoping that before this sees the light of day in print, a two-inch precipitation will have drenched the land.) The queer thing is that here where rain is so often intensely desired, people tire of muddy roads and wet days more quickly than where these are commonplaces.

Give the average West Texan more than two rainy days in succession and he begins to grow restless. No matter how thankful he is for the rain in his hearts, he begins to wish it would clear up and the sun would shine.

We have discovered that writing a column (so called) is an excellent way of getting to say what we think without very much danger of having to think up an answer for too-clever retorts.

In the almost two years that "Feminine Fancies" has been foisted upon a more or less helpless public, the writer has had a great deal of enjoyment from it. (Whether the readers can say the same or not is a different story.)

In this last issue of the column, therefore, we offer one bit of advice: If you want a little work and a lot of fun, if you want to get some ideas and opinions out of your system and hear their effect upon your friends, and if you don't mind being called uncomplimentary names now and then,—go out and write a column. Some people will like it and some people won't—but it's a great game.

Mrs. M. R. Hill had as guests Friday Mrs. M. F. Harnish of Los Angeles, who was before her marriage, Jimmie Lee Poole, and Mrs. Harnish daughter, Patricia Ann. Mrs. Thomas Rhinehart was accompanying them from Dallas where they had been attending the Centennial.

'AMERICA'S BEST LOVED DRAMA,' 'THE GREEN PASTURES,' SHOWING AT YUCCA

"The Green Pastures," pictured by Warner Bros. from Marc Connelly's Pulitzer Prize Play, and hailed by critics as "America's best loved drama," comes to the Yucca Theatre today.

The picture, which ran for five years as a stage play and thrilled millions of people, is said to be one of the most inspiring spectacles that has ever been screened. It was produced on a magnificent scale with gigantic sets and beautiful backgrounds. In this respect it is far greater in scope than the stage production because scenes which were only hinted at in the cramped quarters before the footlights are shown in all their magnificent grandeur on the screen. The unlimited space and the magic of the camera have wrought a miracle the stage never dreamed of.

The story, representing the primitive conception of the Bible and its characters, is filled with delightful humor, although presented with a tender reverence.

The wonderful characterizations of Biblical folk and the beautiful scenic effects are enhanced by the singing of rich and melodious spirituals by the famous Hall Johnson choir. There are twenty-five of these spirituals altogether, some of faint haunting background with the singers unseen, and other in full voice with the sixty members of the choir on the set.

There is a tremendous cast with 111 speaking parts and nearly 1,000 other players. Thirty of the actors were taken from the stage production while the others were recruited from New York and Los Angeles.

Rex Ingram, who has the leading role, takes the place of Richard Berry Harrison, who died after playing the part for five years on the stage. He is credited by Connelly, the author, with giving even a finer performance than Harrison, who won the hearts of millions by his simple and dignified performance. Others in leading roles are Oscar Polk, Eddie Anderson, Frank Wilson, George Reed, Abraham Glaves, Myrtle Anderson, Al Stokes, Edna M. Harris, James Fuller, George Randol and Ida Forsyne.

Mrs. J. M. King and daughter, Miss Annie Lee King, returned Saturday morning from Los Angeles, Calif., where they have spent the summer with their daughter and sister, Mrs. Chauncey Garrison and family. Miss King attended the University of Southern California the first part of the summer.

"The Last Outlaw"

Harry Carey, veteran of veterans among Western screen stars, is said to have one of his greatest roles in "The Last Outlaw," RKO Radio drama with other headliners including Hoot Gibson, co-starred with Carey, Henry B. Walthall, Tom Tyler and Margaret Callahan. Thru the eyes of Carey as the last outlaw the old frontier and the modern city which sprang from it are brought together and compared as are the people of both eras. The picture is showing today and tomorrow at the Ritz Theatre.

HARRY CAREY AND HOOT GIBSON IN VIRILE DRAMA, 'THE LAST OUTLAW'

A vigorous, action-filled Western drama pictured in the up-to-the-minute setting of a modern manuscript brings Harry Carey, Hoot Gibson, Margaret Callahan, Henry Walthall and Tom Tyler to the Ritz Theatre in "The Last Outlaw" today and tomorrow.

Starring Carey and Gibson this RKO Radio picture tells with effective punctuation of fist fights, thrilling automobile chases, spectacular riding and gun battles the adventures of an old western desperado who twenty-five years after a last law-defying escapade, takes his guns again to wipe out a mob of gangsters.

Walthall portrays an old-time gun sheriff who, though he has been shunted into an obscure police force for being out-of-date, joins Carey to prove that the fighters of the old rip-roaring west are a match for today's gangster when they pit six-shooters against machine guns.

Hoot Gibson and Miss Callahan ride the picture with an ardent and romantic love affair. The outlaw's daughter playing the role of a gangster's "kiddie" is led by the trail with Carey and Walthall to hunt and smash her father in their lonely Oklahoma mountain hideout.

The coldly merciless mob leader is characterized by Tyler. Ray Mayer and Harry Jans are seen as his ruffianly ruthless machine gun artists with other important roles being played by Russell Hopton, Harry Jans, Frank Jenks, Frank M. Thomas, Fred Scott and Maxine Jennings.

Bing Crosby's Best To Be Shown at The Yucca September 6

Bing Crosby, Bob Burns, a blooded bull, a box car and a crazy cross-country pilgrimage; hot "swing" tunes and songs of the old West; Frances Farmer, Martha Raye and her clock-stopping face; a rodeo, songs, gags and songs.

Those are a few of the ingredients of Paramount's "Rhythm on the Range," romantic and hilarious musical scheduled to open Sunday Sept. 6th at the Yucca Theatre. Others, no less important, include the thugery of Warren Hymer, James Burke and George E. Stone the Russian cowboy antics of Leonid Kinsky, the skilled acting of Samuel S. Hinds and Lucille Webster Gleason, and the subterranean urges of Charles Williams.

Tunes Are Varied
Music in "Rhythm on the Range" varies everywhere from the sentimental melodies of the famous Bob Burns "bazooka" to times by Louise Prima's world-famed swing band. It launches six song hits, all of them already popular; "I Can't Escape From You," "The House That Jack Built for Jill," "If You Can't Sing It You'll Have to Swing It," "Empty Saddles," "Roundup Lullaby," and "I'm An Old Cowhand From the Rio Grande." "Rhythm on the Range" a seventh hit, was inspired by the picture.

Briefly, the story casts Crosby as a cow hand who takes part in a New York rodeo, buys a prize bull, and starts for his home range in a box car with the animal. His buddy is Burns.

Society Stowaway
Frances Farmer, a society girl scheduled to marry a man she has no interest in, stows away in the box car. Half-way across the continent, girl, bull and cowpuncher are left behind by the train; they have to make their way as best they can.

Meanwhile Burns has been beset by the mad Miss Raye, and their comedy romance has got off to a flying start, also while they are traveling from New York to the ranch.

Hymer, Burke and Stone enter the story when they begin trailing Crosby and Miss Farmer across several states with the idea of kidnapping the girl and holding her for ransom.

"Santa Claus"

There is a Santa Claus!
In fact, there is seven-count 'em-one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, of them and the mainest one of them all is (don't laugh, darn you) Dr. J. B. Thomas.

I don't even grace this column with a photo of myself-not even a caricature-but I am going to break down today and place the picture of "Doc" in there.

(And, "Doc", it doesn't do you justice.)

Imagine (you can't, but try to, anyhow) my surprise when I picked up the telephone and answered with my usual "Porter-Tele-grrrr" baritone to hear a voice come out something like this:

"Yess?"

"Yessahah."

"Well, you have been griping for a press box out at the football field, and now all you have to do to get it is to go out there and tell the contractor working at the erection of 600 more seats (that is another story and I'll get to it later) just how you want it built."

Despite the fact that I had already recognized the voice I was as nervous as an old maid at her wedding. Looks like Doc could have at least gently led up to the subject.

DR. J. B. THOMAS

But he was just as matter-of-fact as if he were telling someone that their leg would have to be taken off.

I could tell the contractor several ways that I would like to have it built. (And the school board, too.) For instance, it is reported that the press box at Crossley field in Cincinnati has some cute blondes, redheads, brunettes, or what do you prefer? ready at all times to serve either food or drink, all of it on the house. And the press box is probably big enough to stage a softball game in. But that would be too much of an advancement all at one time.

One glassed in from the front and with something over the cracks in the floor and wall (there usually is in most press boxes) built up high enough that the entire audience would not block the view everytime anyone got a hand on the ball will be perfectly alright with me.

A paper in a town where there is not a press box should hire the biggest and toughest person in town as their man to "cover" the games. A little man doesn't have a chance to even see what is going on much less take notes on it.

But if the school board lives up to their word and builds the kind

Man Behind Big Move

place that I would like, what would people think of it? Out at the race track grandstand there is a small table erected away up at the top of the wholeworks and on it in big letters is printed "Press Box." But don't you believe it.

They did, however attempt to get a light placed over the bench at the last rodeo, but as yet there is none. I never knew typewriters were such an attraction to kids until I tried to work out there. Maybe not all of them but most of them find it the most fascinating thing going on regardless of what kind of show is being held in the arena. They're worse than flies because you are not allowed to swat them.

Since signing the pledge—believe it or not, seven weeks of "right" kind of living has practically put me in the driver's seat on the water wagon—I have been wondering just how I would get by out at the games this fall when that old north wind really starts making everyone think that "long-handlers" are not such an old-fashioned idea after all. Hereofore, a person was exposing themselves to pneumonia, gripe, and myriads of other diseases while sitting—or standing—while trying to find out who carried the ball while the fattest person at the game was either standing in front, or sitting on top of you.

And this to members of the school board. "Please let me know the next time when you have a meeting and the drinks, cigars (what do you want?) will be on me."

That press box won't only prove of benefit to me. The school board will be repaid by better, more accurate accounts of the game and by complimentary statements made by visiting writers.

And here is something that should prove of interest to every backer of the local high school club. The Bulldogs have a new assistant-coach.

Ladies and Gentlemen, I offer you Weldon L. (Bud) Taylor. Captain last year of the championship eleven at North Texas State Teachers College at Denton, and making his debut as a coach.

Built like a structure to withstand earthquakes, as capable looking at handling himself as one of the Dusek brothers, he could have held his own on a club in the days when anyone under 200 pounds was called too little to play football, yet, without a jolly good fellow until he dons football togs and starts the boys to working out. Some of them have already started calling him Simon Legree.

He played tackle on his club last year and if used that size of his to the maximum degree, what a tackle he must have been. He'll be line coach here and Dutch will look after the backfield men. And if you don't think the two of them are going to turn out a football team here this year just go out and watch them work those kids for a while.

Here's a tip to aspirants to places on the team this year. Don't go out unless you can really "take it."

Dutch and Bud are going to have these youngsters so tough that a blacksmith couldn't drive a nail into their hide.

Construction of 600 new seats out at Lackey field is far more important than a mere paragraph announcing the fact can make it appear.

It means that, temporarily at least, there will not be the overcrowded conditions that existed last year. Several times during the last few seasons officials have been sorely pressed to accommodate the large crowds that appeared at some of the stand out games.

It was not the desire of the officials to permit many persons to stand along the fence in front of the spectators in the stand but there was nothing they could do about it. After all, only so many persons can get in a limited space.

Erection of the stands is a clear indication that the school board is thinking of more than just a financial gain. In all probabilities just as many people would come out to the games this fall regardless of whether the seats were built but the new space will give spectators the com-

By Harry Grayson

NEW YORK, Aug. 29—It was about time Joe Cronin put his foot down.

Cronin firing Wesley Farrell and firing the Carolinian $1000 for taking a runoff powder while under fire at Yankee Stadium is an indication that the young manager of the Boston Red Sox finally is convinced that the late John McGraw and others of his type had the right idea.

McGraw ruled with an iron hand. Frank Frisch, disciple of the old Giant leader, has been singularly successful in using his methods. From bat boy to the great Dizzy Dean, it's the best they've got or get out with Frisch.

The baseball manager who tries to be a good fellow on the job doesn't last long. I suspect that it is just as well for Cronin that he obtained a five-year contract when he shifted from Washington to Boston in the spring of 1935.

Cronin attempted to humor costly stars, instead of bluntly telling them what he expected and demanding that they earn their fat salaries. The result was that the club got out of hand.

Cronin for weeks started pre-game meetings with "Now, boys, I am the manager." Soon one of the more flippant members of the Red Sox, who plainly didn't know how lucky he was to be working for such a generous owner as Tom Yawkey, thought it would be fun to beat his boss to his daily introductory remark. Other players took up the chant.

When athletes become as derisive as that, there isn't much discipline and trouble such as that with Farrell isn't far behind.

Terry Goes It Alone; Hornsby A Tyrant

Bill Terry and Rogers Hornsby are other managers who modeled themselves after McGraw, under whom they played. Both have their faults, but there is none who does not respect them.

Terry had roomed with quiet Stony Jackson for years when he was appointed head of the Polo Grounders in 1933. The first thing Memphis Bill did was room by himself. It was his tip to his teammates that he was to be the boss with all hands being treated alike.

Hornsby is baseball tyrant, but he had the reputation of being the smartest manager of them all until cast in his present role with the Browns, who are largely composed of culls.

Mickey Cochrane, Jimmy Dykes, and Charley Dresen still are considered "one of the boys," but none of them hesitate to crack down when occasion demands.

There were unmistakable signs that Charley Grimm was on his way out until he took a firm grip on his command in the middle of last season.

Philip K. Wrigley made Grimm a vice president of the Cubs in hope that the move would help the banjo playing guide to take hold of the situation. It did, and the Cubs came down in front in the most phenomenal finish in the long history of the National League. Grimm recently again had to read the riot act to the Bruins.

There is no question but that Connie Mack is the able handler of men in baseball. Mack runs a club with kindly tolerance, but when quiet chats fail to straighten out prima donnas and cantankerous performers, they soon are on their way.

No Player Bigger Than His Ball Club

Joe McCarthy strictly is a foreman whose one idea is to place the right man in the right place and get the most out of him. When that doesn't work, Buffalo Joe recommends a change.

Bill McKeechie and Steve O'Neill are fine men around whom players rally, but both are capable of laying down the law.

The one criticism of Pie Traynor is that he is too easy going, which also may be the fault of Casey Stengel and Jimmy Wilson.

Cronin himself and Outfielder Flit Cramer have been the only two Red Sox regulars who have hustled consistently since the club first showed signs of bogging down. The others appeared to give up when the pitching collapsed.

Farrell's keen desire to win is commendable, but his temperamental diodes put managers on the spot and destroyed the morale of clubs with which he performed. Wesley was a constant source of worry to Roger Peckinpaugh and Walter Johnson in Cleveland.

Farrell had asked out of the box without permission from Cronin before, and had threatened to quit pitching when a relief worker was sent to the bullpen, which often

SOUTH RALLIES TO ROOSEVELT FETE

CHARLOTTE, N. C. Aug. 29. (U.P.)—Southern Democratic supporters of the Roosevelt administration will give their 1936 election campaign a sendoff at a seven state rally here Sept. 10.

An afternoon address by President Roosevelt will be the focal point of the entire meeting program.

This opportunity to participate in a gigantic political "family reunion" probably will bring 50,000 Democrats from tobacco and cotton fields; from the mountains and dozens of Southern cities and towns Florida, Georgia, the Carolinas, Virginia, Alabama and Tennessee will be represented.

Attendance May Reach 100,000

Hawood Robbins, young lawyer in charge of arrangements, is preparing this municipality of 90,000 persons for a possible influx of 100,000 visitors.

Object of the meeting is, essentially, to weld the "solid South" into an even stronger New Deal camp. In the rear of Charlotte's little armory-auditorium, WPA workers are bolting down seats and adding final touches to a new concrete stadium. The meeting will serve as its inauguration.

An estimated 20,000 persons will crowd into the stadium proper. Temporary stands around the rim and on the central field will place another 20,000 to 30,000 in sight of the speaker's platform. Loud speakers will carry the speeches to those unable to enter the stadium, and the program will be broadcast.

City to be Bedecked

A display of bunting and flags unprecedented locally will line the President's route to the stadium. At least 25 bands will join in a street procession.

Tentative plans call for the festivities to start shortly after noon and end by nightfall.

National Democratic Chairman James A. Farley, Secretary of State Cordell Hull, and Secretary of Commerce Daniel Roper, are expected. Senators likely to attend are Hugo Black, Alabama; Walter George, Georgia; James Byrnes, South Carolina; Harry Byrd, Virginia; Josiah Bailey and Robert Reynolds, both of North Carolina.

Other outstanding guests probable will include Gov. J. C. B. Ehringhaus of North Carolina; Gov. Olin Johnston of South Carolina; Rep. Robert L. Doughton, N. C., and Clark Howell, Atlanta publisher.

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

DEATH OF A GENIUS

ON a blustery winter day in December, 1791, a group of dejected friends bore a plain pine coffin into St. Mark's cemetery in Vienna. The howl of the wind through bare branches was the only funeral dirge. At the gate, the bearers turned the box over to the keeper and left the body for a pauper's burial.

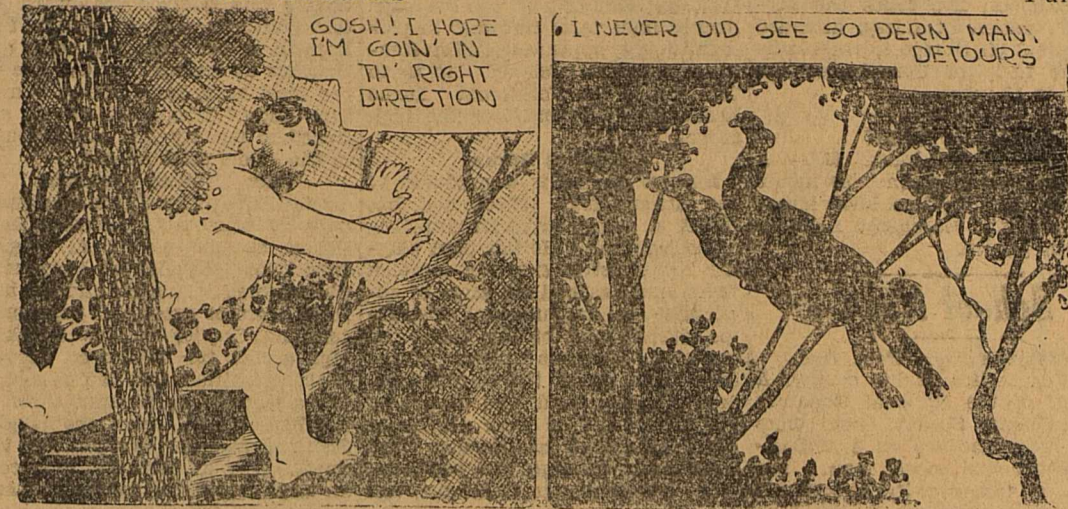

Years later, someone discovered that in that plain box was the body of a genius, but the grave of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, regarded by many as the world's greatest composer, could not be located.

From the age of 6 to the time of his death at 35, young Mozart composed 922 known pieces of music—operas, symphonies, concertos, string quartets and quintets, songs, and other types. Yet whatever reward he received he lavished on his sickly wife, the former Constance Wagner, or on his numerous "friends." As a result, he died penniless.

His portrait appears on one of the stamps Austria issued in 1923 in memory of its great musicians.

Rural Schools

Enrollment at Prairie Lee school reached 105 last week. Because of the crowded condition in the school, the children who were under six years of age were asked to withdraw.

Chapel exercises were conducted last week by Prin. A. M. Bryant out in the future chapel programs will be presented on each Monday morning in the different rooms. All patrons and friends of the school are invited to attend these programs.

The school bus has changed the direction of its afternoon route, accommodating the same number of children but lightening the load of the bus over the greater number of miles. Other changes may be made in the future in order to accommodate the greatest number of children possible.

Prin. Bryant reports that the students are progressing well in their work.

Miss Lola Livingston of Midland and Mrs. Burl Rice were visitors to the school last week.

Little Jane and Rosa Fay were ill part of last week but are back in school this week.

Mrs. J. M. Livingston is seriously ill following an attack Thursday morning.

Word was received Wednesday morning that the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Bramlett had been destroyed by fire.

At The Library

New books on the rent shelf are: "The Wind Blew West," by Edwin Lanham; "A historical novel about a small West Texas town called Rutherford, from 1875 to 1885. Through the activities of the residents, a picture of the town's halting development is presented. An Indian raid and trial, political juggling, a temperance campaign, and a revival meeting are integral parts of the story. The major theme is the continually expected but long delayed railroad. Should be of particular interest to those interested in Texas of earlier days."

"The Moon's Our Home," by Faith Baldwin; "Cherry Ches-ter, well known stage and screen star, meets and marries Anthony Amberton, as well known as a hunter and explorer. Neither knows the true identity of the other, and after the ceremony when explanations are attempted, both misunderstand and vow never to speak again. A humorous story written by one of the most popular authors."

"Smoke in Her Eyes," by Alene Corliss; "Vickey is desperately in love with her sister's fiancee. Until the engagement is broken she tries to hide her feeling, but was never able to do so. Phillip, who has loved Vicky for years, must wait until her infatuation is over before trying to win her. An absorbing love story; very nice for summer reading."

"Inside Europe," by Gunter; "A collection of personality portraits of the men who are shaping policies in Europe, with some comment on political and economic issues. Able written, with apparently impartial summing up of situations; it ranks above the usual gossip type of biographical sketches."

"Ten Years in a Quandary, and How They Grew," by Robert Charles Benchley; Short nonsense essays illustrated with Guyas William's drawings.

Fourteen books include: "Wild Animals of North America" by E. W. Nelson: Intimate studies of big and little creatures of the mammal kingdom. (National Geographic Society publication).

"Our Insect Friends and Foes and Spiders." A series of fascinating studies of bees, ants, beetle, bug, fly, butterfly, moth, and spider life. (National Geographic Society publication).

"Cattle of the World," by Alvin Howard Sanders: Their place in the human scheme. Wild types and modern breeds in many lands. (National Geographic Society publication).

"The Book of Birds," birds of town and country, the warblers, and American game birds. (National Geographic Society publication).

"The Book of Fishes," game fishes, food fishes, shellfish and curious citizens of American ocean shores, lakes and rivers. (National Geographic Society publication).

"Our Dogs," by C. E. Harbison: Owners of a first pet, and others who have dogs but are ignorant of the best ways of training and feeding them, will find this book a practical help. Care, training, feeding, and diseases are well covered, also breeding. There is little information about the different breeds however. Indexed.
