BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON
By RODNEY DUTCHER
Reporter-Telegram Washington Correspondent

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Mr. David Dubinsky of New York is getting to be a celebrated character out on the prairies.

The Republicans hope to make him as sinister a figure in the mind of rural America as Dr. Rexford Guy Tugwell.

National committeewomen from various states who flutter in and out of campaign headquarters in Chicago report gleefully that Dubinsky is getting to be a household word.

Simultaneously, some of the keenest C. O. P. strategists assure this writer that "Communism" has come to the fore.

Gas, Gas All the Time, Can't Eat or Sleep

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. A friend suggested Adierka. The first dose I took brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never feel better."

Dr. H. L. Shoup, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adierka gently reduces bacteria and colon bacilli."

WPA---What It Is and How Operated

This is the third and last of a series on WPA, what it is, how it operates, and how views conflict on its worth.

BY WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
Criticism of the Works Program might be boiled down and put into this form:

1--That, good or bad, it is costing so much that it eventually will bankrupt the government.

2--That it provides its workers with situation so desirable that they will not leave them to accept private employment even when offered, and that it is building a class which intends to "make a career of relief."

3--That it is a disguised political machine maintained by the Democratic party at public expense to enable that party to "deliver" a united vote of WPA workers and their families.

4--That much of the work done is trivial, worthless, or even harmful.

To these criticisms of WPA prevalent made by conservative opponents, it is only fair to add a criticism usually advanced by parties, papers, and individuals of more radical turn of mind; that the pay on WPA is disgracefully low and that WPA has failed to accomplish valuable results largely because it isn't spending nearly enough.

Prize "Pie" Opportunity
Since it is politics time, let's go into the political aspect first. Needless to say, the ability to give out 3,500,000 jobs presented the No. 1 opportunity of all time to serve political pie.

Everyone who knows Administrator Harry Hopkins joins in agreement that he has made a gallant effort to "keep it clean," though even Hopkins can scarcely be oblivious to requests coming from members of Congress, on whom will depend the next appropriation.

But Hopkins' orders and actions have pretty definitely proved his aim all along to "keep relief out of politics." Has he succeeded?

The first thorough airing of politics in WPA was ventilated by Senator Aush D. Holt of West Virginia, who charged that relief applicants had to get the approval of county bosses as favorable to Holt's colleague Senator Neely, before being put on WPA jobs.

He also charged that projects were being overloaded with high-salaried foremen who were uniformly party favorites.

Though a WPA investigation "whitewashed" the West Virginia situation, and though it was charged that Holt's chief interest was that he had failed to get his own supporters placed on WPA, there remained ominous straws which showed the direction of the wind. "GOUGE" Is Halted

Pennsylvania next uncorked a scandal. Actual letters to relief clients from a county party chairman were produced, demanding contribution to the campaign fund, and hinting an end of WPA employment if the donations were not forthcoming.

The charge has been frequent not only in Pennsylvania, but in many other states, that allotments for projects, and actual hiring of men on WPA jobs, "happened" to come just before elections.

While the Pennsylvania and West Virginia situation have attracted the most national notice, there are similar rumors afloat in every state.

Documentary evidence submitted by WPA critics indicates this tentative conclusion: that the well paid, non-relief jobs with WPA as administrators and supervisors, have usually gone to Democrats, though there are notable exceptions, such as that of Republican Victor Ridder, the administrator in the important New York post.

Further, that there are unrefuted instances of state and local authorities attempting to restrict regular WPA jobs to men who were "politically right," or trying to obtain campaign pledges and votes from them once they were on the payroll.

Just how widespread these practices have been, despite flat declarations by the president and Administrator Hopkins against them, it is impossible to say with any precision.

Private Employment Kick
The question of WPA as a competitor with private employers in the labor market is an even more ticklish one.

The whole history of WPA has been a series of adjustments of wage rates in an effort to fix fair ones. If too low, they cause strikes and protests as "starvation wages"; if too high, they cause a cry that private employers cannot get help at wages they can afford to pay.

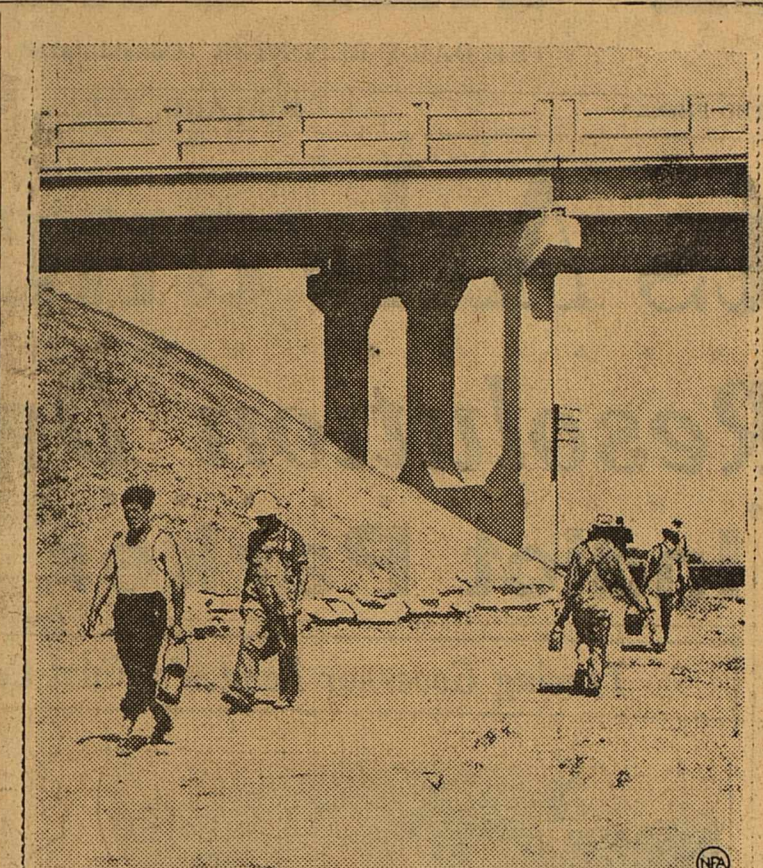

This cry has been especially bitter in farming regions dependent for harvest help on large supplies of transient labor for a few days' or weeks' work.

Colorado beet and onion growers loudly protested that workers "refused to forsake soft WPA berths, where they work six hours a day, to go into the harvest fields. Even the few who showed up cannot be depended on, because it is so easy on the WPA payroll."

In California, where the average WPA wage in the farming regions was $44 a month, growers again complained that workers could not be enticed to the harvest fields by any pay or conditions which the farmers could offer.

This complaint has been common throughout agricultural regions, and builders and other employers in cities have made the same complaint.

Cost Is Vital Question
Efforts have been made to meet the frictions by cutting off WPA projects during the harvest season in certain localities, and by making

Here is the argument against WPA as seen in many communities. WPA workers at Afton, Okla., are carrying rock in buckets a distance of three miles to be placed on the embankment of a completed highway overpass job.

Why Reds Favor Roosevelt
Communists have their own presidential candidate in Earl Browder, but they much prefer Roosevelt's election to Landon's for this reason: They know they can propagate freely and safely under a liberal democracy, but would be wiped out under Fascism. And they believe that Fascism might be more likely under Landon than under Roosevelt.

Roosevelt persuaded Democratic candidates for state office in Minnesota to withdraw in favor of Farmer-Laborites, a practical political move designed to "unite progressive forces" and prevent a Republican victory for both state and national tickets.

Republicans charge that the Minnesota Farmer-Labor party is endorsed by Minnesota Communists.

Then there's Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies Garment Workers, who has been in a more or less persistent state of fluster because his members are divided between allegiance to the A. F. and L. and the John Lewis C. I. O.

Dubinsky Fought Reds
Dubinsky's name appears as a presidential elector on the Democratic ticket in New York and on the pro-Roosevelt American Labor Party's ticket.

He is an ex-Communist who has fought Communist invasion of his union for years—and has been getting testimonials from employers in the garment industry to that effect.

Awhile ago, Dubinsky's union contributed to and Dubinsky collected for a fund which went to the Spanish loyalists.

North Midland H. D. Member Elated Over Salad Frame Results

Mrs. A. L. Hallman, home food supply cooperator in the North Midland Home Demonstration club, is elated over the prospects of having salad greens from her salad frame in the near future.

Mrs. Hallman's salad frame, which is located south of the house, is three feet by sixteen feet. Although the frame is small enough to be watered daily, it produces enough greens and vegetables to afford ample provision for the two people.

At the present time, mustard greens, lettuce, and turnips are planted in the frame, but in the near future, Mrs. Hallman plans to plant a few radishes every week as long as possible, and also to add some onion sets the latter part of the week.

She calculated that the seeds she planted the 29th of September would be ready for the table service by the 29th of October.

to balance them off mathematically against projects admittedly valuable seems impossible.

These include the famous waterless lake at Mount Airy, N. C., where $30,000 was poured into a dam behind which no water collected; the unfinished river-diversion project in Cahokia Creek at East St. Louis, Ill., which Republicans decorated with a sign "Smell It"; the "$25,000 Dog House" in Memphis, Tenn.; the $20,000 bird paths in Queens, N. Y.; the "white collar project" to catalog foraminifera fossils in New York; the building of $80,000 worth of road between Skull Valley and Yava, Ariz., minute hamlets in the desert.

All these and scores of others are cited by critics and defended by the Hopkins administration, which points out that in almost every case local communities were "sold" enough on the merit of the proposal to bear a good share of the cost.

The merit of most of the projects is a matter of opinion, and every voter no doubt has impressions from what he has seen and heard of the projects in his own locality.

The Works Program, third great effort to give relief from unemployment by providing work at government expense, is on trial in the November elections.

In January, a new Congress will hear official reports on its activities, and tackle the problem it aims to solve.

Scrubbing Up On Skin Care

BY ALICIA HART NEA Service Staff Writer

Scrupulously clean skin is of paramount importance right now. You new fall dresses and hats won't look like anything at all if your complexion is dingy. Be meticulous about night and morning cleansings and make a rule never to apply make-up during the day without first removing the stale layer.

Choose Right Cleanser Business women ought to lay in a supply of liquid cleansers which quickly remove dust and cosmetics. There are rather oily ones for dry skins and, of course, greaseless types for oil complexions. Always apply liquid cleanser with a cotton pad. To save cleanser and cotton, use a medium-size pad, wiping your face and throat first with both sides of it, then with the inside.

There are new creams for night and morning cleansings, too. One of these contains a bit of gold which, the manufacturers say, is supposed to make it more efficacious as a cleanser. Anyway, gold or no, the product is easy to use and does well the job for which it is intended.

Observe Daily Routine Nowadays the majority of women use soap and water, followed by cream at night, and cleanser in the morning. When you get up, smooth on a thin layer of creamy cleanser, brush your teeth, then remove the cream with a washcloth which has been dipped in very hot water and squeezed as dry as possible. Hot applications will remove morning puffiness, so don't skip the area underneath your eyes.

Unless your skin is extremely sensitive, try a complexion brush in conjunction with soap and water cleansings. Get one with rather soft, flexible bristles and stick to rotary motions when you use it. This stimulates circulation and will tend to improve coloring as well as the texture.

Music, Romance and Fun Dominate Film

Easily the most delightful potpourri of beauty, wit, music and rhythm offered during the current season, "The Big Broadcast of 1937" which closes today at the Yucca Theatre brings to the screen a generous helping of the air-wave's most outstanding performers aided by a host of the screen's best entertainers.

Scintillating, gay, timely and often hilariously funny, "The Big Broadcast of 1937" includes Jack Benny, George Burns and Gracie Allen, Bob Burns, Martha Raye, Benny Goodman and his orchestra, Shirley Ross, Ray Milland, Frank Forest, Benny Fields, Leopold Stokowski and his Symphony Orchestra and many other outstanding singers, dancers, musicians, comedians and specialty performers.

The story deals with the romance that blossoms between Miss Ross and Milland when the latter is assigned to trick her off the air by Forest, an orchestra leader, and Benny, the studio manager. She discovers the deception and breaks with Milland, Gracie Allen, sponsor of a program, teams her with Forest and they become popular. An air wedding is planned for the two but when the moment arrives Miss Ross flees. She is found after a hectic chase and rushed to the studio to go through with the wedding as per schedule. She does—and finds herself married to Milland. All of this is done to excellent dancing and splendid music both "swing" and "sweet."

GRIDIRON HEROES

ONE of the greatest forward passers ever to grace a gridiron was "Brick" Muller, California star back in 1920-21. Possessed of a great pair of hands, Brick averaged 63 yards on his tosses in 1920, and was the talk of the country the following year, when Ohio State went west to engage the Bears in the Rose Bowl game. In that famous intersectional clash, Muller, although hounded by Buckeye forwards all afternoon, got off several tosses, climaxing his performance by pitching the pigskin for a touchdown pass that traveled a distance variously estimated at from 65 to 75 yards, and sending the Bucks home on the tail end of a 28-0 score. In addition to being rated the best end of the country in 1921, Muller also was a marvelous blocker and pass receiver.

Says Ex-Candidate Has Yielded to Rascoob DuPont Group

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20 (AP)—Lashing out at Alfred E. Smith, who recently asked an audience, "who is Ickes?" Secretary of the Interior Ickes, last night said Smith is an "insanely jealous man," whose "bosses hate Roosevelt because they cannot control him."

"Enraged by his defeat for president in 1928 and doubly embittered because Franklin D. Roosevelt had carried New York state for governor while he had lost it for president, Al Smith yielded more and more to the influence of John J. Rascoob and the DuPonts," Ickes said. "Their patronage meant economic security for him and some sort of a future."

NEW OIL FIRM IS LOCATED IN CITY

British-American Oil Producing Company Opens Office

The British-American Oil Producing Company, with American headquarters in Tulsa, Oklahoma, has recently opened a West Texas division office in Midland, Ross Williams having been transferred here from Oklahoma City to be in charge of the local office. Office space for the company has been secured in the Petroleum building.

Although the company does not have oil production in West Texas at the present time, acreage is being secured and it is likely that the company will begin drilling operations in this section shortly.

The British-American Oil Producing Company, which is the second largest oil company operating in Canada, maintains its general headquarters offices in Toronto, Canada. The organization operates five Canadian refineries.

The company was a pioneer in the capital grounds drilling program in Oklahoma City, and has over 40 producers in the Oklahoma City field at the present time. The company, which was organized in 1928, has been operating in the Texas Panhandle since 1929, and has considerable production in Gray and Carson counties. The British-American also has extensive holdings in the East Texas oil field, where it operates its own pipe line system.

As the company expands its operations in West Texas, the local office personnel will be increased, according to Mr. Williams.

Mr. Williams' wife and son have moved here with him to make their home.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 20—Announcement has been made by the Blatz Brewing Company of a $700,000 building expansion program, making the fourth time the company has added to its production facilities since repeal of prohibition.

Construction of a seven story steel and concrete stock house, 99 by 116 feet and 100 feet high, has been started on the site of the historic original Blatz brew house. It will be completed by March 1.

More than 200 men will be employed in its construction for a five months period.

Large American Stores Ranked Above Europe's

PITTSBURGH (U.P.)—European department stores still are below the efficiency and service standards of similar stores in the United States, according to Edith Jamieson, instructor in salesmanship at the University of Pittsburgh's research bureau for retail training.

Miss Jamieson reached her conclusions after a summer's tour in England and on the Continent, during which she studied department store methods.

The salaries paid salespeople in American stores are larger than those paid in Europe, she said.

"Despite the high type of executive training and the able handling of personnel in the foreign stores, they have a long way to go before they are on an equal basis with American stores," declared the instructor.
